

Mulla
The Transfer of Property Act

13th Edition

2018

Dr. Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Social Responsibility and Student Welfare Committee

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Introduction

Introduction

Prior to the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, there was practically no law relating to real estate in India. A few points were covered by the Regulations and Acts which were repealed either wholly, or in part by section 2. But for the rest of the law, the courts, in the absence of any statutory provisions, adopted the English law as the rule of justice, equity, and good conscience. This was not satisfactory, for the rules of English law were not always applicable to social conditions in India, and the case law became confused and conflicting. To remedy this state of affairs, Commission was appointed in England to prepare a code of substantive law for India.

The first Law Commission consisted of Lord Romilly, MR; Sir Edward Ryan, Chief Justice of Bengal; Lord Sherbrooke; Sir Robert Lush; and Sir John Macleod, who assisted Lord Macaulay in drafting the Indian Penal Code. This Commission drafted the Indian Succession Act, the Indian Contract Act, the Negotiable Instruments Act, the Indian Evidence Act, and the Transfer of Property Act.

The Transfer of Property Act, though drafted in 1870, was the last of these drafts to become law. The draft was sent to India by the Duke of Argyll who was then Secretary of State for India, and after some amendments, it was first introduced as a Bill in the Legislative Council in 1877. The Bill was then referred to a Select Committee, by whom it was revised and circulated for public criticism. In deference to this criticism, all matters not directly referring to transfers inter vivos were omitted; some clauses referring to trusts, powers and settlements were dropped; and other clauses were added with a view to save the provisions of local law and usage.

The Bill thus redrafted was referred to the Second Law Commission consisting of Sir Charles Turner, Chief Justice of Madras; Sir Raymond West; and Mr Whitley Stokes, Law Member of the Council of the Governor-General; but no less than seven Bills were prepared before the first Bill was introduced in the Legislative Council by Mr Whitley Stokes, and passed into law on 17 February 1882.

The Second Law Commission in their report of 1879 said “the function of the Bill was to strip the English law of all that was local and historical, and to mould the residue into a shape in which it would be suitable for an Indian population and could easily be administered by non-professional judges.”

Some of the provisions of the Bill were borrowed from the enactments which it repealed and superseded, but the Bill was based mainly on the English law of real property. The Law of Conveyancing and Property Act, 1881 (44 and 45 Vict c 41) had been enacted in England before the Bill was passed into law, and some of the provisions of the Act, notably sections 57, 61 and 69, are borrowed from that statute.

The Act was afterwards amended on 12 separate occasions by the following Amending Acts:

1. Act 3 of 1885—amending sections 1, 4, 6(i), and 69. It abolishes exemptions from the Act on the ground of race, and reconciles the provisions of the Registration Act with those of the Transfer of Property Act.
2. Act 15 of 1895—which exempts government grants from the operation of the Transfer of Property Act.
3. Act 2 of 1890—amending sections 3, 6(e), and 6(h), and remodelling chapter VIII which deals with transfers of actionable claims.
4. Act 6 of 1904—amending sections 1, 59, 69, 107 and 117. It enables a local government to extend part of the Act of specified territories, and to apply the provisions of the Act relating to leases to particular classes of agricultural leases. It provides for the registration of certain mortgages and leases, and for equitable mortgages in moulmein, bassein and akyab.
5. Act 5 of 1908—transferring the adjective law of mortgages to the Code of Civil Procedure.

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

6. Act 11 of 1915—amending section 69.
7. Act 26 of 1917—validating mortgages and gifts in Agra and Oudh executed before 1 January 1915, and attested on acknowledgement of execution.
8. Act 38 of 1920—omitting the words “with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in council” from sections 1 and 117.
9. Act 38 of 1925—amending section 130.
10. Act 27 of 1926—amending section 3 by inserting a definition of the word “attested”
11. Act 10 of 1927—amending section 3 by making the definition of the word “attested” retrospective.
12. Madras Act 3 of 1922—modifying the provisions of the Act to give effect to the provisions of the Madras City Tenants Protection Act, 1922.

Despite these amendments, there were conflicting decisions on nearly every section of the Act, and a further exposition of the law became necessary. Accordingly in 1927, a Special Committee, consisting of Mr SR Das, Law Member of the Council of the Governor-General, Mr BL Mitter (afterwards Sir Brojendro Lal Mitter), then Advocate-General of Bengal, Dr SN Sen, and Mr Dinshah Mulla (afterwards the Honourable Sir Dinshah Mulla, PC) were appointed to examine the provisions of a Bill prepared by the legislative department of the Government of the India for the purpose of making a general amendment of the Act. The Bill which was the result of their labour was, after a slight amendment in Select Committee, enacted in the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Act 20 of 1929.

The Act as amended sets at rest points on which decisions have been conflicting, and made several changes in the law, of which the most important are:

Section 3 – Registration amounts to notice.

Section 3 – Constructive notice to an agent is notice to his principal.

Section 15 – Validation of transfers to a class of some members as regards which it fails.

Section 53A – Statutory recognition of the doctrine of part performance.

Section 58 – In a mortgage by conditional sale, the condition must be embodied in the same deed.

Section 60A – A mortgagor entitled to redeem may require the mortgagees to transfer the mortgage debt to a third party.

Section 60B – Statutory recognition of the mortgagor's right of inspection of title deeds.

Section 61 – Mortgagor's right to redeem several mortgages to the same mortgagee separately, or simultaneously.

Section 63A – Statutory recognition of the mortgagee's right to compensation for necessary improvements.

Section 65A – Statutory recognition of the mortgagor's power to lease.

Section 67 – Abolition of the remedy of foreclosure in certain mortgages.

Section 67A – Mortgagee's obligation to enforce several mortgages by the same mortgagor simultaneously.

Section 69A – Provision for appointment of a receiver by a mortgagee exercising a power of sale without the intervention of the court.

Section 92 – An extension of the principle of subrogation.

Section 101 – A modification of the law of merger.

Section 107 – Provision requiring registered leases to be executed by both parties.

The amending Act involved amendments in various other Acts, of which the more important are as follows:

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

The Married Women's Property Act, 3 of 1874, has been amended to make it clear that section 8 of that Act is subject to section 10 of the Transfer of Property Act.

The Specific Relief Act, 1 of 1877, was amended in accordance with the statutory recognition of the doctrine of part performance in section 53A of the Transfer of Property Act. (The Act was re-enacted in 1963.)

The Code of Civil Procedure, Act 5 of 1908, is amended in O 34 relating to mortgages. Provision is made to allow a mortgagee to recover sums spent for necessary costs, charges and expenses. This is in accordance with section 63A which allows a mortgagee, compensation for improvements in certain circumstances. Mortgages by deposit of title deeds are included in rule 15 of O 34 as such mortgages are included in the definition in section 58, and the old rule 11 is omitted as the principle "redeem up foreclose down" is now embodied in section 94. Other amendments include provisions which make it clear that the right of redemption is not extinguished until a final decree for foreclosure has been made, or until a sale in execution of a mortgage decree has been confirmed.

The Indian Limitation Act, 9 of 1908, was amended by including suits for the enforcement of mortgages by deposit of title deeds in the 12-year period of limitation under Article 132.

The Indian Registration Act, 16 of 1908, was amended to provide that a mortgage by deposit of title deeds, though an oral transaction, cannot be displaced by a subsequently registered instrument; and also to allow an unregistered instrument to be admitted as evidence of part performance of a contract with reference to section 53A of the Transfer of Property Act.

The Indian Succession Act, 39 of 1925, was amended to correspond with amendments made in chapter II of the Transfer of Property Act with reference to transfers inter vivos.

All these amendments were made by a separate Act, the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Supplementary Act 21 of 1929.

Further amending Acts were passed after the legislation of 1929. Act 5 of 1930 amends explanation I to section 3 with reference to the operation of registration of a deed of notice when the deed is registered in a different district; and Act 16 of 1930 amends O 43, rule 1(o) of the Code of Civil Procedure in accordance with the amendments made in O 34, and Act 35 of 1934 inserts the word "naval" after the word "military" in clause (g) of section 6.

There have been few major changes since 1947. In that year, the Disposition of Property (Bombay) Validation Act, 1947, was passed to validate the bequests held void by the Privy Council in Sopher's case.

After 1947, the jurisdiction of the Privy Council was abolished, and the Federal Court and later the Supreme Court became the final court of adjudication in India.

Successive adaptation of orders in 1950 and 1956 have nominally altered the Act by, for example, altering the words "Province", "British India", "Part B State", etc.

In 1959, Parliament enacted the Miscellaneous Personal Laws (Extension) Act, 1959, which extended the Hindu Disposition of Property Act, 1916, to the whole of India except Jammu & Kashmir, and Madras Acts I of 1914 and 8 of 1921 were repealed.

The Limitation Act, 1963, has repealed and largely re-enacted the Act of 1908. Among the few changes relevant here is the new Article 63 (a), which provides for a period of 30 years for all suits for foreclosure; and the absence of a provision corresponding to the old Article 116, which provided for a period of six years for compensation for the breach of a contract that is registered. All such suits would now be treated on the same footing, irrespective of whether the contract is registered.

1963 also saw the enactment of the Specific Relief Act, 1963, which repeals and partly re-enacts the Act of 1877. Section 27A of the Act of 1877 which enacted the active equity of part performance as in English Law has not however, been re-enacted.

Benami Transaction (Prohibition) Act, 1988, takes away the plea of Benami purchase, and has made the litigation and transactions under the Transfer of Property Act, much simpler.

By Registration and other Related Laws (Amendment) Act, 2001 (Act 48 of 2001) which came into force from 24 September 2001, far reaching amendments have been made to the Registration Act, 1908, and section 53A of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. On or after the commencement of the amending Act, if the document containing contract to transfer for consideration any immovable property is not registered, then, for the purpose of section 53A, the right to defend possession pursuant to part-performance will not be available.

The Parliament, by Transfer of Property (Amendment) Act, 2002 (Act 3 of 2002) which came into force on 31 December 2002, has substituted section 106 in order to eliminate the technical pleas so far taken on the basis of the language employed in unamended section 106, and avoid multiplicity of litigation leading to serious injustice. The transitory provisions made under the amending Act are very material since the provisions contained in amended section 106 have been made applicable even to the suits or proceedings pending at the commencement of the amending Act.

Introduction

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Introduction

Introduction

Prior to the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, there was practically no law relating to real estate in India. A few points were covered by the Regulations and Acts which were repealed either wholly, or in part by section 2. But for the rest of the law, the courts, in the absence of any statutory provisions, adopted the English law as the rule of justice, equity, and good conscience. This was not satisfactory, for the rules of English law were not always applicable to social conditions in India, and the case law became confused and conflicting. To remedy this state of affairs, Commission was appointed in England to prepare a code of substantive law for India.

The first Law Commission consisted of Lord Romilly, MR; Sir Edward Ryan, Chief Justice of Bengal; Lord Sherbrooke; Sir Robert Lush; and Sir John Macleod, who assisted Lord Macaulay in drafting the Indian Penal Code. This Commission drafted the Indian Succession Act, the Indian Contract Act, the Negotiable Instruments Act, the Indian Evidence Act, and the Transfer of Property Act.

The Transfer of Property Act, though drafted in 1870, was the last of these drafts to become law. The draft was sent to India by the Duke of Argyll who was then Secretary of State for India, and after some amendments, it was first introduced as a Bill in the Legislative Council in 1877. The Bill was then referred to a Select Committee, by whom it was revised and circulated for public criticism. In deference to this criticism, all matters not directly referring to transfers inter vivos were omitted; some clauses referring to trusts, powers and settlements were dropped; and other clauses were added with a view to save the provisions of local law and usage.

The Bill thus redrafted was referred to the Second Law Commission consisting of Sir Charles Turner, Chief Justice of Madras; Sir Raymond West; and Mr Whitley Stokes, Law Member of the Council of the Governor-General; but no less than seven Bills were prepared before the first Bill was introduced in the Legislative Council by Mr Whitley Stokes, and passed into law on 17 February 1882.

The Second Law Commission in their report of 1879 said “the function of the Bill was to strip the English law of all that was local and historical, and to mould the residue into a shape in which it would be suitable for an Indian population and could easily be administered by non-professional judges.”

Some of the provisions of the Bill were borrowed from the enactments which it repealed and superseded, but the Bill was based mainly on the English law of real property. The Law of Conveyancing and Property Act, 1881 (44 and 45 Vict c 41) had been enacted in England before the Bill was passed into law, and some of the provisions of the Act, notably sections 57, 61 and 69, are borrowed from that statute.

The Act was afterwards amended on 12 separate occasions by the following Amending Acts:

1. Act 3 of 1885—amending sections 1, 4, 6(i), and 69. It abolishes exemptions from the Act on the ground of race, and reconciles the provisions of the Registration Act with those of the Transfer of Property Act.
2. Act 15 of 1895—which exempts government grants from the operation of the Transfer of Property Act.
3. Act 2 of 1900—amending sections 3, 6(e), and 6(h), and remodelling chapter VIII which deals with transfers of actionable claims.
4. Act 6 of 1904—amending sections 1, 59, 69, 107 and 117. It enables a local government to extend part of the Act of specified territories, and to apply the provisions of the Act relating to leases to particular classes of agricultural leases. It provides for the registration of certain mortgages and leases, and for equitable mortgages in moulmein, bassein and akyab.
5. Act 5 of 1908—transferring the adjective law of mortgages to the Code of Civil Procedure.

Introduction

6. Act 11 of 1915—amending section 69.
7. Act 26 of 1917—validating mortgages and gifts in Agra and Oudh executed before 1 January 1915, and attested on acknowledgement of execution.
8. Act 38 of 1920—omitting the words “with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in council” from sections 1 and 117.
9. Act 38 of 1925—amending section 130.
10. Act 27 of 1926—amending section 3 by inserting a definition of the word “attested”
11. Act 10 of 1927—amending section 3 by making the definition of the word “attested” retrospective.
12. Madras Act 3 of 1922—modifying the provisions of the Act to give effect to the provisions of the Madras City Tenants Protection Act, 1922.

Despite these amendments, there were conflicting decisions on nearly every section of the Act, and a further exposition of the law became necessary. Accordingly in 1927, a Special Committee, consisting of Mr SR Das, Law Member of the Council of the Governor-General, Mr BL Mitter (afterwards Sir Brojendro Lal Mitter), then Advocate-General of Bengal, Dr SN Sen, and Mr Dinshah Mulla (afterwards the Honourable Sir Dinshah Mulla, PC) were appointed to examine the provisions of a Bill prepared by the legislative department of the Government of the India for the purpose of making a general amendment of the Act. The Bill which was the result of their labour was, after a slight amendment in Select Committee, enacted in the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Act 20 of 1929.

The Act as amended sets at rest points on which decisions have been conflicting, and made several changes in the law, of which the most important are:

Section 3 – Registration amounts to notice.

Section 3 – Constructive notice to an agent is notice to his principal.

Section 15 – Validation of transfers to a class of some members as regards which it fails.

Section 53A – Statutory recognition of the doctrine of part performance.

Section 58 – In a mortgage by conditional sale, the condition must be embodied in the same deed.

Section 60A – A mortgagor entitled to redeem may require the mortgagees to transfer the mortgage debt to a third party.

Section 60B – Statutory recognition of the mortgagor's right of inspection of title deeds.

Section 61 – Mortgagor's right to redeem several mortgages to the same mortgagee separately, or simultaneously.

Section 63A – Statutory recognition of the mortgagee's right to compensation for necessary improvements.

Section 65A – Statutory recognition of the mortgagor's power to lease.

Section 67 – Abolition of the remedy of foreclosure in certain mortgages.

Section 67A – Mortgagee's obligation to enforce several mortgages by the same mortgagor simultaneously.

Section 69A – Provision for appointment of a receiver by a mortgagee exercising a power of sale without the intervention of the court.

Section 92 – An extension of the principle of subrogation.

Section 101 – A modification of the law of merger.

Section 107 – Provision requiring registered leases to be executed by both parties.

The amending Act involved amendments in various other Acts, of which the more important are as follows:

Introduction

The Married Women's Property Act, 3 of 1874, has been amended to make it clear that section 8 of that Act is subject to section 10 of the Transfer of Property Act.

The Specific Relief Act, 1 of 1877, was amended in accordance with the statutory recognition of the doctrine of part performance in section 53A of the Transfer of Property Act. (The Act was re-enacted in 1963.)

The Code of Civil Procedure, Act 5 of 1908, is amended in O 34 relating to mortgages. Provision is made to allow a mortgagee to recover sums spent for necessary costs, charges and expenses. This is in accordance with section 63A which allows a mortgagee, compensation for improvements in certain circumstances. Mortgages by deposit of title deeds are included in rule 15 of O 34 as such mortgages are included in the definition in section 58, and the old rule 11 is omitted as the principle "redeem up foreclose down" is now embodied in section 94. Other amendments include provisions which make it clear that the right of redemption is not extinguished until a final decree for foreclosure has been made, or until a sale in execution of a mortgage decree has been confirmed.

The Indian Limitation Act, 9 of 1908, was amended by including suits for the enforcement of mortgages by deposit of title deeds in the 12-year period of limitation under Article 132.

The Indian Registration Act, 16 of 1908, was amended to provide that a mortgage by deposit of title deeds, though an oral transaction, cannot be displaced by a subsequently registered instrument; and also to allow an unregistered instrument to be admitted as evidence of part performance of a contract with reference to section 53A of the Transfer of Property Act.

The Indian Succession Act, 39 of 1925, was amended to correspond with amendments made in chapter II of the Transfer of Property Act with reference to transfers inter vivos.

All these amendments were made by a separate Act, the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Supplementary Act 21 of 1929.

Further amending Acts were passed after the legislation of 1929. Act 5 of 1930 amends explanation I to section 3 with reference to the operation of registration of a deed of notice when the deed is registered in a different district; and Act 16 of 1930 amends O 43, rule 1(o) of the Code of Civil Procedure in accordance with the amendments made in O 34, and Act 35 of 1934 inserts the word "naval" after the word "military" in clause (g) of section 6.

There have been few major changes since 1947. In that year, the Disposition of Property (Bombay) Validation Act, 1947, was passed to validate the bequests held void by the Privy Council in Sopher's case.

After 1947, the jurisdiction of the Privy Council was abolished, and the Federal Court and later the Supreme Court became the final court of adjudication in India.

Successive adaptation of orders in 1950 and 1956 have nominally altered the Act by, for example, altering the words "Province", "British India", "Part B State", etc.

In 1959, Parliament enacted the Miscellaneous Personal Laws (Extension) Act, 1959, which extended the Hindu Disposition of Property Act, 1916, to the whole of India except Jammu & Kashmir, and Madras Acts I of 1914 and 8 of 1921 were repealed.

The Limitation Act, 1963, has repealed and largely re-enacted the Act of 1908. Among the few changes relevant here is the new Article 63 (a), which provides for a period of 30 years for all suits for foreclosure; and the absence of a provision corresponding to the old Article 116, which provided for a period of six years for compensation for the breach of a contract that is registered. All such suits would now be treated on the same footing, irrespective of whether the contract is registered.

1963 also saw the enactment of the Specific Relief Act, 1963, which repeals and partly re-enacts the Act of 1877. Section 27A of the Act of 1877 which enacted the active equity of part performance as in English Law has not however, been re-enacted.

Benami Transaction (Prohibition) Act, 1988, takes away the plea of Benami purchase, and has made the litigation and transactions under the Transfer of Property Act, much simpler.

Introduction

By Registration and other Related Laws (Amendment) Act, 2001 (Act 48 of 2001) which came into force from 24 September 2001, far reaching amendments have been made to the Registration Act, 1908, and section 53A of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. On or after the commencement of the amending Act, if the document containing contract to transfer for consideration any immovable property is not registered, then, for the purpose of section 53A, the right to defend possession pursuant to part-performance will not be available.

The Parliament, by Transfer of Property (Amendment) Act, 2002 (Act 3 of 2002) which came into force on 31 December 2002, has substituted section 106 in order to eliminate the technical pleas so far taken on the basis of the language employed in unamended section 106, and avoid multiplicity of litigation leading to serious injustice. The transitory provisions made under the amending Act are very material since the provisions contained in amended section 106 have been made applicable even to the suits or proceedings pending at the commencement of the amending Act.

End of Document

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed >
Glossary

Glossary

Ab initio.—(Latin). From the beginning.

Abadi.—A cultivated tract. A farm.

Abkari.—Revenue derived from duties on the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor.

Accessio cedit principali.—(Latin). The accession is added to the principal. A maxim of Roman law by which ownership is acquired by accession.

Adaimanam patram.—(Tamil). A deed of simple mortgage.

Adhlapi.—A transaction, customary in the Punjab, by which a person sinks a well and clears the land and receives in return a proprietary interest in a share of the land.

Advancement.—A payment to start a child in life or to make provision for him.

Alienajure.—(Latin). In the right of another.

Alio intuitu.—(Latin). With a different view of prospect. For a different purpose.

Ba Farzandan.—(Persian). With children, including descendants. The words indicate that the grant is to the grantee and his posterity.

Bai-bil-wafa,—See “Bye-bil-wafa”.

Bandhak.—(Sanskrit). A pledge, a mortgage.

Bandhakikhat.—(Bengali). A deed of mortgage. Also bandhaknama and bandhak patra.

Bastu.—A house site, a building plot.

Batai.—(From Sanskrit Vut, to divide). A share. A division of the crop between the landlord and the cultivating tenant.

Battaki.—See Buttaki.

Bemaidi.—Without a term. Also Bemeyadi. For the construction of a bemaidi lease see Janaki Nath v Dina Nath, (1933) 54 Cal LJ 412, 133 IC 732.

Benami.—Nameless, fictitious, A transaction under a false name.

Bhagbandhak.—A possessory mortgage.

Birt.—(From the Sanskrit Vritti, maintenance, means of livelihood). Fees to family priest. A right, custom or privilege derived from the performance of offices whether secular or religious. A grant of land to a person for maintenance or for religious or charitable objects Wilson's Glossary.

Birt-maha brahamani.—Fees or presents received by a Brahmin who conducts funeral ceremonies.

Brahmottar—(Bengali). Land granted rent free to Brahmins for their support and that of their descendants. Such lands have frequently been acquired by non Brahmins.— Wilson's Glossary.

Burgadar.—A person who cultivates the land and gives, a share of the profits to the owner. He is not necessarily a lessee. See Brahmamoyee v Sheikh Munsur, (1920) 32 Cal LJ 37.

Buttaki.—Proclamation by beat of drum.

Butwara.—Partition. Butwara proceedings are proceedings for partition with the sanction of the revenue authorities.

Bye-bil-wafa.—(Arabic). Literally a sale with faith. A mortgage by conditional sale.

Caveat emptor.—(Latin). Let a purchaser beware. “Caveat emptor does not mean either in law or in Latin that the buyer must take chances, it means that the buyer must take care”: Wallis v Russell, (1902) 21R 585, p 615.

Cess.—A tax or rate. A great many miscellaneous cesses, imposts and charges were imposed under the Government of the Moghuls in addition to the land revenue both by the government and the zemindars. These have been either abolished or assimilated with the land revenue. The cesses abolished are called siwai (ie extras) or abwa or mathaut: Section 74 Bengal Tenancy Act 8 of 1885. Other cesses indirectly connected with the use of land and water and called sayar the landlord was allowed to retain: Section 3(4) Agra Tenancy Act, UP Act 3 of 1926. Such cesses were Banker or a tax on jungle products; and Julfar, a tax on fisheries; and Phulkar, a tax on fruit trees.

Cestui que trust—The beneficiary of a trust.

Chakran lands.—Lands held on service tenure. Generally speaking, the term includes all lands so held whether by police officials, chowkidars or persons whose duties are personal to the zamindar: Ranjit Singh v Kali Dasi, 44 IA 117, (1917) ILR 44 Cal 841.

Champerty and maintenance.—Practices forbidden by English law which are the fomentation of litigation in which one has no interest of one's own. A bargain whereby one party is to assist another in recovering property and 'is to share in the proceeds of the suit.

Char.—Land formed by alluvion.

Chevisance.—The business of a scrivener, ie, a shroff or dealer in money.

Chose in action.—A term of English law, for a thing recoverable by action as contrasted with a thing or chose in possession. An actionable claim.

Chowk.—A courtyard. A square.

Ghowkidar.—A village watchman remunerated by an allotment of land held either rent free or at a low rent in consideration of services to be rendered to the zemindar, who, before the English occupation, was responsible not only for the payment of revenue, but also for the preservation of peace and order within his district. The chowkidar rendered not only police service, but personal service to the zemindar: Ranjit Singh v Kali Dasi, 44 IA 117, (1917) ILR 44 Cal 841, 40 IC 981.

Chuck.—A corruption of “Chak” (Sanskrit Chak, or Chakra a circle or district). A portion of land divided off. The detached fields of a village. A patch of rent free land. A separate estate or farm. A sub-division of survey number.— Wilson's Glossary.

Covinous.—Collusive. Covine is “a secret assent determined in the hearts of two or more to the defrauding and prejudice of another.”— Co Litt, 357.

Damdupat.—A rule of the Hindu law of debts by which the interest recoverable at any one time cannot exceed the principal.

Darpatni.—A tenure subordinate to a patni. A sub-leasehold. See Patni.

Darpatnidar.—A holder of a darpatni.

Dartaluk.—A subordinate taluka or estate the holder of which pays revenue through a superior talukdar or zemindar.

Darwans.—Doorkeepers. Porters.

Debutter—(A corruption of Deotar from the Sanskrit Devatra belonging to the deity.) Land granted rent free for the support of a temple or idol.

De die in diem—(Latin). From day to day.

Demise—A transfer by way of lease.

Deorha.—One and half. Used to express interest in kind at the rate of 50%.

Deshgat watan.—A hereditary district office remunerated by a cash allowance or a grant of rent free land.

Dharm.—(From the Sanskrit Dhar, to hold)- That which holds a man in the right path. Law, virtue, legal or moral duty.- Wilson's Glossary.

Dhrista bandhaka.—(From Sanskrit "Dhristi, sight and Bandhak, a pledge). A simple mortgage. Diggubhogyam.—(Tamil). A simple mortgage.

Dowlferist or Daulferist—A rent roll. A statement of rents demanded by zemindar from his tenants.

Ejusdem generis.—(Latin). Of the same nature. A rule of construction whereby general terms following particular ones are taken to apply to persons and things which are of the same nature as those comprehended in the particular terms.

En ventre sa mere.—(French). In his mother's womb.

Ex-proprietary tenant.—A landlord or proprietor who has lost his proprietary rights by alienation voluntary or involuntary and has become a tenant with a right of occupancy in his sit land and in land which he has cultivated continuously for a specified number of years. See The Oudh Rent Act 1886 (UP Act 22 of 1886) section 7 A; The Agra Tenancy Act 1926, (UP Act 3 of 1926) section 14; The North West Provinces Tenancy Act 1901, (NWP Act of 1901) section 10. See also "Sir."

Ex-proprietary tenant.—An ex-proprietary tenant is a landlord who has lost his proprietary right but who remains a tenant with a right of occupancy of his sir or home farm land; See The Agra Tenancy Act, UP Act 3 of 1926, sections 14 & 15; The North-West Provinces Tenancy Act, NWP Act 2 of 1901, section 10. See also "Sir".

Fee Simple.—A term of English real property law denoting an absolute estate. "Fee signifieth inheritance and simple is added for that is descendible to his heirs generally that is simply without restraint to the heirs of the body or the like. The word (simple) properly excludeth both conditions and limitations that defeat or abridge the fee" (Co Litt 1 b: Halsb Vol 24, para 315).

Fee Tail.—A term of English real property law denoting a restricted estate or feudum talliatum or an estate tail. "To hold in fee Tail or in Tail is where a man holdeth certain lands or tenements to him and to his heirs of his body begotten." (Terms de la Ley; Halsb Vol 24, para 442.)

Feoffment.—A term of English real property law denoting a conveyance in fee simple.

Forehand rent.—Rent payable in advance.

Gage.—A pawn or pledge. (From the same root as the word engage.)

Gahan.—(Marathi). A pledge. A mortgage.

Gahan Lahan.—(Marathi). A mortgage by conditional sale.

Ghatwa1.—Literally the guard of the ghat or hill pass. Ghatwal lands were holding created in frontier territories so that the holders might be 'wardens of the Marches. the State granting lands to be held free on condition of guarding the passes: Baden Powell Land Systems of British India, Vol I, p 532. The person holding the office of ghatwal is bound to perform police duties and quasi military duties in consideration of a remuneration which may take the form of the use of land or an actual estate in land, heritable and perpetual: Narayan Singh v Niranjan Chakravarti, (1924) 51 IA 37, 3 Pat 183, 79.1C 825, AIR 1924 PC 5. The tenure, though peculiar because of a certain reserved power of selection, nevertheless ranks as hereditary: Raja Durga Prasad v Tribeni, (1918) 45 LA 251, 46 Cal 362: Secretary of State vJyoti Prasad (1926) 53 IA 100, 53 Cal 533, 94 IC 974, AIR 1926 PC 41. The Birbhum yhatwallands were declared transferable and heritable subject to a rent fixed in perpetuity by Beng Reg 29 of 1814.

Gross.—A thing or right in gross is one which is independent of anything else. Thus a right or common of pasture appendant may exist in respect of arable land: Tyrringham's case (1584) 4 Co Rep 36a, 37. But a right or common of pasture in gross appertaineth to no land and must be in writing or prescription: Co Litt 122a.

Guzara.—From the Persian word Guzarish. Maintenance.

Hat.—A market, a market held on certain days, a fair.

Hathchitti.—A letter or note written or vouched by the hand of.

Havala.—A transfer of a debt from the original debtor to a person who becomes liable for it to the creditor.

Hereditament.—A term of English real property law. The word hereditament is of as large extent as any word, for whatever may be inherited, be it corporeal or incorporeal, real personal or mixt, is a hereditament: Co Litt 16a, 383a, b.— Tenement is a large word to grant realty but hereditament is the largest: Coke Inst, Vol 1, p 6 Jarman says that the most comprehensive words of description applicable to real estate are tenements and hereditaments as they include every species of realty corporeal as well as incorporeal.

Heriot.—A term of English real property law denoting the right of the Lord of the manor, on the death of a freeholder to the best beast or other chattel of such freeholder: Halsb, 2nd Ed vol 7, para 574.

Habi-bil-iwaz.—A gift with an exchange. A mutual gift. A gift for a consideration as when a man gives property to his wife in lieu of her dower.

Homestead land.—In Bengal, the expression denotes a permanent tenancy created before the Transfer of Property Act for the purpose of habitation when a pucca building has been erected of the land leased: Safar Ali v Abdul Rasid, (1924) 39 Cal LJ 585. With reference to the Bombay Bhagdari Act (Born Act 5 of 1862), a homestead has been defined as including the site of the building, the dwelling house; the trees, wells and shrine and all the appendages which together constitute the usual surroundings of the ordinary village home: Collector of Broach v Venilal, (1897) ILR 21 Bom 588, p 593.

Id certum est quod certum fieri potest—(Latin). Another reading is "Id certum est quod certum reddi potest." That is (sufficiently) certain which can be made certain. A maxim of construction: Owen v Thomas, (1834) 3 My and K 353 (a contract): Adams v fones, (1852) 9 Hare 485 (a will).

In esse.—(Latin). In being.

In gremio.—(Latin). In the bosom of.

In odium spoliatoris.—(Latin), The whole maxim is "In odium spoliatoris omnia praesumuntur", Every presumption is made against a wrongdoer. A rule of evidence that as between an innocent party and a wrongdoer unexplained circumstances are presumed unfavourably to the wrongdoer: Halb, 2nd Ed, Vol 13, para 705.

In pari delicto potioreset conditio possidentis.—(Latin). In equal fault, the condition of the possessor is the stronger.

Inam.—An Arabic word meaning a gift or benefaction. A gift by a superior to an inferior. The term is applied to gifts of land rent free or at a quit rent in hereditary and permanent occupation. There are many classes of inam, but the word is of generic significance applicable to the grant as a whole.

Inter vivos.—(Latin). Between living persons,

Istimrari.—From the Arabic word Istimrar meaning perpetual. Permanent. Perpetual. The word may by usage refer to perpetuity during the lifetime of the grantee. See Istimrari Mokerari. In the absence of such usage, an istimrari lease was held to convey a permanent and hereditary right: Din Dayal v Sifat Ali, (1923) 10 Oudh LJ 630. The istimrari estates in Ajmere are held in absolute proprietary right and only pay revenue to the government in the form of a permanent and unenhanceable tribute: Baden Powell Land Systems of British India, Vol II, p 336.

Istimrari Mokerari.—From the Arabic word Istimrar meaning perpetual in point of time, and the Arabic word Mokarar meaning fixed as to rent. A perpetual tenure at a fixed rent. But the words in their lexicographical sense do not imply any heritable character as mourasi does: Narsingh Dyal v Ram Narain, (1903) ILR 30 Cal 883 approved in Kamakhya v Rama Raksha, 55 IA 212, 109 IC 663, AIR 1928 PC 146. This is because permanence may only be during the lifetime of the grantee and the words by themselves only confer a life estate on the grantee: Ramnarain Singh v Chota Nagpur Banking Association, (1916) ILR 43 Cal 332, 36 IC 321

Jaghir.—From the Persian word Jai meaning a place, and the Persian word Gir meaning a holder. A grant generally from the Moghul Government of the royal share of the revenue but not of the soil. Such grants were originally for life to a Court favourite or as an appanage to an officer or title and were resumable at pleasure. In time, either because of the decline of the Central Government or because it was thought below the dignity of the ruler to resume, the grant became permanent and hereditary and many assignments to revenue grew into landlord tenures. Again jaghir grants were sometimes made with the express object of settling waste lands so that the terms of the grant were such as to make the estate hereditary and alienable. Baden Powell Land Systems of British India, Vol I, p 189: Ramakrishnarao v Nanrao, (1903) 5 Bom LR 983; Maya Das v Gurdit Singh, 16 IC 855. See Gulabdas v The Collector of Surat, 6 IA 54.

Jaghirdar.—The holder of a jaghir.

Jamma.—Total rent or assessment payable.

Jenmi or Janmi.—Probably a corruption of zemindar. A proprietor of land. See Malabar Tenancy Act, Mad, Act 14 of 1930, section 3(k). See also Kanam.

Joshi.—A Brahmin versed in astrology. A priest.

Jote.—A holding for purposes of agriculture. It may mean a raiyiti or a non-raiyiti holding or any sort of holding. It does not necessarily mean an occupancy holding: Upendra Kishore v Khalil, (1932) 55 Cal LJ 170, 139 IC 544, AIR 1932 Cal 568.

Jus ad rem.—A right to a thing. A contractual right.

Jus disponendi.—(Latin). The right to dispose of. The right of sale, control and management.

Jus in rem.—A right in a thing. A proprietary right.

Kabuliyat.—See Razinama and Kabuliyat.

Kadam sharif.—A Mahomedan religious ceremony.

Kamaki.—Waste land adjoining cultivated land. The adjoining ryot has certain rights called kamaki rights over the waste land, eg, the right of pasturage and of gathering leaves for manure.

Kanam.—A customary mortgage in Madras which partakes of the character of a mortgage and of a lease. It cannot be redeemed before 12 years and the mortgagor lessee or kanamdar is entitled to compensation for improvements on redemption. The annual payments to the mortgagor-lessor or janmi (probably a corruption of zemindar) are regulated by what remains of the fixed share of the produce after deducting interest. If the mortgage is not redeemed, but is renewed at the expiry of 12 years, a renewal fee is payable to the janmi. This mortgage has a feudal origin, the mortgage debt having been originally a fee paid in token of feudal allegiance by the holder of the land to the lord: Baden Powell, Land Systems of British India; Vol III, pp 159-177. See Ayyappan v Venkedeswam, (1962) ILR 2 Ker 614, AIR 1963 Ker. 309. Kanam was defined in the Malabar Tenancy Act, Mad Act 14 of 1930, section 3(1), as follows:—

“Kanam means the transfer of consideration in money or in kind or in both by a landlord of an interest in specific immoveable property to another (called the kanamdar) for the latter's enjoyment, the incidents of which include:—

- (1) a right in the transferee to hold the said property liable for the consideration paid by him or due to him which consideration is called 'kanartham',
- (2) the liability of the transferor to pay to the transferee interest on the kanartham,
- (3) the payment of 'michavaram' by the transferee,
- (4) the right of the transferee to enjoy the said property for 12 years or any other period, and
- (5) the liability of the transferee to pay a renewal fee to the transferor, if the transferee is permitted to enjoy the said property for a further period after the termination of the original period.”

The word “michavaram” in the above definition is defined in section 3(q) of the said Act as ‘whatever is agreed by a kanamdar in a kanam deed to be paid periodically in money or in kind or in both, to or on behalf of the janmi., Section 17 of the said, Act, gives the kanamdar a right of renewal and regulates the renewal fee.

Kanamdar.—See Kanam.

Karnam.—A village servant employed in revenue duties in Madras, and corresponding to a patwari in Northern Indian and kulkarni in Western India. The office is remunerated by a hereditary estate in land. The appointment and succession to the office is regulated by the Madras Hereditary Village-Offices Act, Mad Act 3 of 1895.

Kamavan.—A term of Malabar law denoting the manager of a tarwad. See 'Tarwad'.

Kayam or Kaim.—Fixed. Imports non-fixity of rent but permanence of occupation; Mehr Ali v Kalai Khalashi, (1915) 19 Cal WN 1129, 29 IC 461; Shyama charan v Fakir Chandra, 101 IC 45, AIR 1927 Cal 546; Chandra Kanta v Amjad Ali, (1920) 32 Cal LJ 296 (FB).

Kayam and Saswatham.—(Telugu). Fixed and permanent. Construed as equivalent to Istimrari Mokarari and therefore not necessarily hereditary: Rajaram v Narsinga, (1891) 15 Mad 199.

Khata.—A ledger account. Also a current account. Also book in which account is kept.

Khatkabala.—A conditional, engagement. A mortgage by conditional sale.

Khewat.—The record or register of persons who hold shares in a co-parcenary village.

Khorposh or Khor-o-posh.—Literally food and clothing. A grant of maintenance.

Khot.—A hereditary farmer of Jand revenue. The khoti tenure is customary in the Konkan.

Khot nisbat.—Lands held by permanent tenants of the khot who have hereditary but not transferable rights. For the distinction between khot nisbat land and khot khasgi land which is the private property of the khot, see Ganpati Gopal v Secretary of State, (1924) ILR 48 Bom 599, 83 IC 370.

Khudkast.—(Literally, self sown). Land cultivated by the proprietor himself.

Kuttubadi.—(Telugu). A Madras revenue term for the quit rent of land granted to a public servant.

Lac.—Resin exuded from the bark of certain trees.

Lambardar.—From the English word Number. A cultivator who pays the assessment and is registered in the Collector's roll according to his number. He is representative of the co-sharers of his Mahal or village, collects their share of the revenue and has a right of suit against them for their share of the revenue, village expenses and other dues. See The Agra Tenancy Act, UP Act 3 of 1926, sections 221 and 265; The North-Western Provinces Tenancy

Act, NWP Act 2 of 1901, section 159; The North-Western Provinces and Oudh Land Revenue Act, NWP Act 3 of 1901, sections 45, 144 and 184; The Central Provinces Land Revenue Act, CP Act 2. of 1917, sections 2(6), 187 and 188.

Lekha Muki.—A customary mortgage in Punjab where the mortgagee is in possession and is responsible for the accounts.

Locus poenitentiae.—Place or opportunity for repentance or change of intention.

Malikhana.—From the Arabic word Malik meaning a proprietor. An impost originally payable by the holders of the village to the proprietor of the parent estate from which their holdings were carved out. For a history of these imposts, see Ramesliwa Singh v The Secretary of State, (1906) 11 Cal WN 448.

Malikhandar.—The proprietor entitled to receive the malikhana allowance. See “Malikhana.”

Math.—An abode for students of the Hindu religion. An establishment where Hindu religious mendicants reside. The origin of Maths is explained in Sammantha v Settappa, (1878) ILR 2 Mad, p 179.

Melwaram.—(Tamil). The proportion of the crop claimed by government as opposed to the Kudivaram or the cultivator's share. See Seethoyya v Subramanya, 56 IA 146, 117 IC 507, AIR 1929 PC 115.

Miras.—An Arabic word denoting inheritance or heritability: Ajmanesse v Panna Lal, (1923) 27 Cat WN 1037. The permanency of Miras tenure is indisputable. The Mirasdar and his descendants from generation to generation enjoy the land so long as they pay the rent: Khanderao v Ramji, (1899) 1 Bom LR 373; Vithalbhai v Narayan, (1894) ILR 18 Bom 507.

Mohant—The head of a math. See “Math.”

Mohurram or Muharam.—The first month of the Mohamedan year when it is unlawful to make war. It is the month in which Hasan and Husain, the sons of Ali, were killed. This event is celebrated every year by the Shias with public mourning and lamentation.

Mokarari.—Derived from the Arabic word Mokarar, an agreement. Means agreed upon or fixed. The word is applied to a tenure with a fixed rental: Gaydutullo v Girischandra, (1910) 15 Cal WN 175. But the word raises no presumption that the tenure is hereditary, for fixity may only be for the lifetime of the grantee: Bilo.smoni v Raja Sheopershad, (1882) ILR 8 Cal 664, 9 IA 33; Nabendra Kishore v Chaudhury Mian, (1931) 52 Cal LJ 583, 131 IC 584, AIR 1931 Cal 265.

Mortis causa.—(Latin). Because of death.

Mortuary.—A payment due by custom on a man's death out of his property to the person. (Halsb, Vol 3, para 917).

Mourasi.—Derived from the same root as Miras, an Arabic word meaning hereditary. It implies a succession from generation to generation, a heritable and permanent tenure: Giribal v Kedar Nath, (1929) ILR 56 Ca1180, 117 IC 534, AIR 1929 Cal 454.

Muafi.—A tenure by which land is held rent free for a time.

Muddatta Kriyam or Muddata Kayam.—(Telugu). A mortgage by conditional sale.

Mukhtiar.—A law agent. A legal practitioner of an inferior grade.

Mukkadami.—The tenure of the mukkadami or headman of the village who is responsible for the collection of the revenue. In the absence of clear evidence to the contrary, it is not heritable or transferable; Bhagwati v Hanuman, (1900) ILR 23 All 67.

Mulgeni.—A tenure in the Carnatic of new and previously uncultivated lands with hereditary succession. A hereditary farm at a fixed rate indefeasible as long as the stipulated rent is paid.

Murra.—A weight of grain; 25 maunds in some places and 28 maunds in other places.

Mustagharaq.—Security. A word indicating a hypothecation.

Mutawalli.—A person appointed to the care and management of wakf property. See' Waif.

Nankari.—From nankar, meaning bread for work. Nankari land is land given by a zamindar for service performed: Harish Chandra v Qgsim Gani, AIR 1961 Pat. 291.

Naslan bad Naslan.—Generation after generation. Words used to indicate an estate of inheritance: Gnanendra Mohan Tagore v Upendra Mohan Tagore, (1870) 4 Beng LR 103, 192 OCJ; Tulshi Pershad Singh v Ram Narain Singh, (1886) ILR 12 Cal 117, 12 IA 205.

Nazar or Naze.—A lump sum paid as a premium; a royalty or bonus or commission: a fine paid to the State on succeeding to office or property.

Nazarana or Nazrana.—A premium. A sum exacted by a superior in the guise of a present.

Nirantar.—Perpetually; for ever. See Bom HC Printed Judgments (1876) 227.

Non est factum.—(Latin). It is not done or executed. A plea by which a man charged upon a writing avers that it is not his deed: Halsb, Vol 10, para 721.

Novation.—A new contract whereby a liability under an existing contract is extinguished and a liability under a new contract is substituted for it: Scarf v Jardine, \(1882\) 7 App Cas 345.

Omne majus continentt in se minus.—(Latin). The greater includes the less. He who has authority to do the more important act shall not be debarred from doing that of less importance.

Omne principal trahit ad se accessorium.—(Latin). Every principal draws the accessory after it. See "Acessio cedit principali."

Optimus rerum interpres usus.—(Latin). Usage is the best interpreter of things. See Broom's Legal Maxims, 7th Ed, P 592.

Otti.—A form of kanam mortgage in Madras in which the interest on the sum advanced covers the whole of the janmi's share of the produce. See "Kanam."

Owelly.—Compensation given for inequality of shares on a partition.

Pala.—A turn of worship. The right of the officiating priest in a temple to conduct public worship and receive the offerings in rotation with the other pujaris or priests.

Palyam.—(Tamil) Land settled on Polygars or rubber cheftains at a quit rent on condition of rendering police services. For a history of the tenure see Appayasami Naicker v Midnapore Zemindari Co, 48 IA 100, 60 IC 953.

Paracudi.—(Tamil). A migratory or non-resident cultivator who does not belong to the village community. See "Ulwadi".

Pardanishin.—Sitting behind the screen. A woman who observes the rule of seclusion.

Parwarish.—(Persian). Cherishing or fostering. Maintenance.

Pata or Patta or Putta.—A lease. A generic term embracing every kind of engagement between a Zemindar and his Tenants, or Ryots: Dhunput Singh v Gooman Singh, (1867) II Moo Ind App 433.

Patni.—An estate carved out of his proprietary interest by a Bengal Zemindar, either as a device for raising 'money, or to be relieved of the trouble of direct management: Baden Powel Land Systems of British India, Vol I, p 543; Wilson's Glossary. - A first the zemindar was prohibited from giving a lease for more than 10 years. This restriction was removed by Regulation 5 of 1812 and the practice became common for the zemindar to create permanent subordinate tenures. These tenures are called Patni talooks and are by their very nature heritable and alienable, the zemindar retaining the status of zemindar, but parting with all control and interest, except as to a quit rent: Tarinee Churn Gangooly v Watson & Co, (1869) 3 Beng LR 437 AC, 12 WR 413, Patni talooks created before the permanent settlement were recognised by Bengal Regulation Act 8 of 1793. The Patni Law, ie Bengal Regulation Act 8 of 1819 was enacted to grant facilities to the zemindar to create Patni talooks for the punctual payment of rent; Surendra Narain Sinha v Bijoy Singh, (1925) ILR 52 Cal 655, 89 IC 785, AIR 1925 Cal 962.

Patnidar.—The holder of a Patni Talook. See “Patni.”

Pattidar.—The owner of a patti or share of a mahal or village separately assessed to land revenue. He pays his share of the revenue through the Lambadar of the mahal. The shares are generally fractional according to the laws of inheritance: Baden Powell Land Systems of British India, Vol I, p 126. See The Central Provinces Land Revenue Act, CP Act 2 of 1917 sections 2(12), 97, 123 and 161. The North-West Provinces and Oudh Land Revenue Act, N-WP Act 3 of 1901 sections 84 (1)(c). 146(e) and 160. See also “Lambadar.”

Patwari.—A village servant employed in the keeping of revenue accounts in Northern India corresponding to the karnam in Madras and the talati or kulkarni in Bombay. The appointment and remuneration of patwaris regulated by sections 22, 23 and 24 (b) of the North -West Provinces and Oudh Land Revenue Act, N-WP Act 3 of 1901. Patwaris are also in existence in some districts in the Central Provinces: Sections 43 and 227(d) of the Central Provinces, Land Revenue Act, CP Act 2 of 1917.

Permutatio est vicina emptioni.—(Latin). Exchange is analogous to purchase,

Persona designata.—(Latin). A person designated. A person specified or nominated.

Peruarthum.—A customary mortgage in Malabar. It is a mortgage by conditional sale redeemable by payment of the market value of the land at the time of redemption: Shekari Var.ma v Mangalom, (1876) ILR 1 Mad 57.

Pro tanto.—(Latin.), For so much, for as much as is paid.

Proprio motu.—(Latin.) Of his own motion, by his own act.

Proprio vigore.—(Latin.) By its own force.

Pujari.—A priest in a Hindu temple who conducts public worship and receives offerings either for himself or for the idol.

Quicquid inaedificatur solo, solo cedit.—(Latin). Whatever is built of the soil falls into or becomes part of the soil. Whatever is built on the soil belongs thereto.

Quicquid plantatur solo, solo cedit.—(Latin). Whatever is planted in the soil falls into, or becomes part of the soil. Whatever is planted in the soil belongs thereto.

Qui facit per alium facit per se.—(Latin). He who acts through another is deemed to act in person.

Qui prior est tempore est jure.—(Latin). He who is first in time prevails in law. He has the better title who is first in time. The equitable doctrine of priority.

Qui sensit commodum debet et setire onus.—(Latin). He who derives the advantage must sustain the burden.

Raiyat.—A cultivator; a peasant; a tenant who is given the right to bring the land under cultivation: Hira Lal v Matukdhari, (1928) ILR 7 Pat 275, 109 IC 461, AIR 1928 Pat. 316. See the definition in section 5(2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act 1885.

Ram Lila.—A public performance in the month of Ashwin of a drama illustrating the adventures of the God Rama.

Razinama and Kabulayet.—Surrender and agreement. The procedure by which one person relinquished his holding in land and another person agrees to become the holder or Khatedar under the Bombay Land Revenue Code, Bom Act 5 of 1879.

Regalia.—Royal rights pertaining to the Crown. Things belonging to the sovereign. The crown, sceptre, orb and other articles used at the coronation.

Rehan or Rahn.—(Arabic). A pledge; a mortgage.

Relief.—Money payable to the lord by a freeholder on his succession to land of which his ancestor died tenant of the manor. (Halsb, 2nd Ed Vol 7, para 594).

Rent note.—An agreement to lease signed only by the lessee.

Res communes.—Things that are common to all men. Things the property in which belongs to no one, but the use to all; such as air, light, running water, etc.

Res extra commercium.—Things not the subject of commerce or trade. Things which cannot be bought or sold.

Res gestae.—(Latin). Things done.

Restitutio ad integrum.—(Latin). Restoration in full.

Royalty.—In mining lease a royalty is a payment to the lessor proportionate to the amount of the demised mineral worked within a certain period: Halsb Vol 20, para 1418 —It is in reality the price paid for a portion of the soil the payment whereof is distributed over a number of years: Krishna Kishore v Kasunda Nyadi Collieries, 65 IC 673, AIR 1922 Pat. 36; AG of Ontario v Mercer, \(1883\) 8 App Cas 767.

Ryot.—See Raiyat.

Sadavarat.—(Sanskrit). A guest house for the accommodation of travellers or religious mendicants.

San.—A form of anomalous mortgage unaccompanied with possession prevalent in Gujarat.

Sankalp.—(Sanskrit) A vow; a gift in accordance with a vow.

Sarabarakar.—A manager or land agent who collects rents, retains a portion as his profit and pays the balance to the zamindar. In some cases the office is hereditary but without right of alienation without the permission of zemindar.—Wilson's Glossary.

Sarabarakari interest.—The interest of a sarabarakar or middle man. See "Sarabarakar."

Saranjam.—The maharati equivalent of Jaghir. See: "Jaghir".

Saswatham.—(Telugu). Permanent. See "Kayam" and "Saswatham".

Scheduled district.—A scheduled district is defined in section 3 (49) of the General Clauses Act to be a scheduled district as defined in the Scheduled Districts Act 1874. The Indian Statute Book contained from the earliest time "deregulationizing" enactments barring the application of the ordinary law, which was at first contained in the old "regulations" in the more backward and less civilised parts of the country. These enactments became so complicated that it was difficult to ascertain what laws were and what laws were not in force in the "deregulationized" tracts. The Scheduled Districts Act was passed to remove doubts as to the extent of these tracts and the law in force therein. It specifies and constitutes a number of the deregulationized tracts as scheduled districts and gives power to declare by notification what enactments are, and what enactments are not in force in any scheduled district. It further enacts that any district to which 33 Vict c 3 s1 (giving power to make regulations for the peace and good government of British India) is made applicable, is a scheduled district. - Illbert's Government of India, p 214.

Seisin.—A term of English real property law. It signifies possession of a freehold so that a man cannot be said to be land unless he is in possession of the freehold either personally or by means of tenants; Topham New Law of Property, 4th Edn, p 12. It has nothing to do with seizure which is a forcible taking of possessions. It meant originally quiet possession sitting on land, ie the possession of a settlor or squatter from the latin sessio, sitting. It was formerly used to chattels but is now a technical term of real property law.

Sheba.—(A corruption of Seva). Service. Attendance upon an idol. Worship.

Shebait.—The manager and superintendent of an endowed Hindu temple.

Shikmi.—A subordinate tenure the holder of which pays his revenue or share of revenue through some other person, and not direct. The word means belly and a shikmi tenure is a tenure which has been carved out of the head tenure. The word “Shikmi” is a common expression meaning an undertenant: Doma Sing. Gobind 135 IC 93, AIR 1931 Pat 36.

Sir.—The word means “his own”—The proprietor’s Sir land is his own land as distinguished from the land in which the old tenants of the village have ancient rights. It is the home farm land in which the landlord or co-sharer in the joint village holds directly in his own management, either cultivating it himself or by his farm servants or personal tenants. Certain privileges attach to the Sir and if the landlord or sharer defaults in the payment of revenue and is put out of possession and becomes an ex-proprietary tenant, he still retains his Sir: Baden Powell Land Systems of British India, Vol 1, p 166. See also the Agra Tenancy Act, UP Act 3 of 1926, sections 4-7, 14, 15, 18 and 69; The Central Provinces Land Revenue Act, CP Act 2 of 1917, sections 2(17), 68, 93, 9,106, 120 and 137; The North-Western Province Tenancy Act, N-WP Act 2 of 1901, sections 10, 11 and 89; The North-Western Provinces and Oudh Land Revenue Act, N-WP Act 3 of 1901, sections 4(2), 4(13), 122 to 127.

Specialty.—A contract under seal. A contract made by deed, eg, a mortgage.

Spes successionis.—(Latin). An expectancy to succeed to the property of a living person. It confers no actual interest in property, not even a contingent interest.

Stridhan.—Property held by a Hindu woman unconditionally and subject to no restriction. That alone is her peculiar property which she has power to give, sell or use independently of her husband’s control: Phukar Singh v Rangit Singh, (1878) 1 All 661.

Sudbharnabond.—From Sud, interest, and Bharna, paying in full. A usufructuary mortgage bond.

Suijuris.—(Latin). Literally, of his own right. A person capable of exercising his rights. An adult who is no-longer under the disability of infancy.

Suo jure.—(Latin). In one’s own right.

Swadhin Adhamanam.—Literally possession deed. A possessory mortgage in Malabar.

Tabula in naufragio.—(Latin) Literally a raft in a shipwreck. A description applied to the English doctrine of tacking.

Tagavi or Takavi.—Literally assisting. Advances of money made by the Government to cultivators for the purchase of seed to be repaid when the crop is reaped.

Tahsildar.—An official in charge of the collection of the revenue of a tahsil or division of a district.

Thluka or Talook.—A division of a district. An estate. Talukas in Oudh were originally granted by the Moghul Government at a favourable assessment. See The Oudh Estates Act 1 of 1869 as amended by Act 3 of 1885. As to Gujarat see Bom Act 6 of 1888. As to Pami Talukas see “Patni.”

Talukdar.—The holder of a taluka. See “Taluka.”

Taran Gahan.—Literally security pledge. A simple mortgage in Bombay.

Tarward.—A term of Malabar law denoting a group of persons all of them tracing their descent from a common female ancestor, owning joint property under the absolute management and, control of the senior male member who is; all the karnavan: Shuppu Menon v Narayanan, (1905) ILR 28 Mad 182 (FB).

Tenant by curtesy.—‘A tenant by curtesy of England is where a man taketh a wife seised in free simple or in fee tail general or seised as heir in tail general, and hath issue by the same wife, male or female, born alive albeit the issue after dieth or liveth yet if the wife, dies the husband shall hold the land during his life by the law of England - Coke on Littleton section 35 cited in Eager v Furnivall, \(1881\) 17 ChD 115, 120. - The husband was said to have an estate by curtesy meaning probably an estate given by the curia or court. The estate of courtesy has been abolished by the Administration of Estates Act 1925.

Tenement.—A term of English real property law. Blackstone says that a tenement though in its vulgar acceptation is only applied to houses and other buildings, yet in its original, proper and legal sense, it signifies everything that may be holden provided it be of a permanent nature.

Terminus a quo.—(Latin). The starting point from which.

Toda giras hak.—The right to an annual payment of toda giras. The custom of toda giras arose out of the dispossession by conquest of old Rajput Chiefs in Malwa, Gujarat and Central India. They were cadets of ruling Rajput families to whom territory had been assigned for giras or maintenance, the word Giras meaning literally a mouthful. When dispossessed they waged war and levied contribution all around them. Their exactions were compromised, the word Toda meaning a composition. Toda giras was, therefore, in its origin, a cash composition which secured protection and freedom from plunder. The allowance has now become an item in the rent roll of the villages: Baden Powell Land System of British India - Vol 3, pp 277, 281.

Transit in rem judicatum.—(Latin). Passes into or becomes a thing adjudged or finally decided. When the judgment is delivered the cause of action is extinguished and transit in rem judicatum or merges in the judgment.

Ulavadi.—(Tamil). A cultivator who has inherited land. A ulavadi mirasdar was held not to be a permanent tenant when he was also described as paracudi, ie, migratory: Mayandi Chettyar v Chokkalingam, (1904) ILR 27 Mad 291, 31 IA 83.

Uraller.—The trustee or manager of a temple in Malabar.

Utbandi.—A system of cultivation in Bengal by which the tenant cultivates for a year or a season only and the rent is fixed by agreement when the crop is on the ground. Hunter's Statistical Account of Bengal cited in Beni Madhub v Bhuban Mohun, (1891) ILR 17 Cal 393.

Ut lite pendente nihil innovetur.—(Latin). Let nothing be altered or renewed while the suit is pending.

Utpat.—A priest attached to the temple at Pandharpur.

Ut res magis valeat quam pereat.—(Latin). Literally rather let the matter prevail than let it perish or rather let it operate than let it be inefficient. A canon of construction, whereby, if a deed is capable of a twofold construction, that construction should be adopted which will uphold the deed.

Varashasan.—(Marathi). An annual allowance paid either by the Treasury or by assignment of the revenues of a village; and assignment or charge on the revenues of a village made by the proprietor.

Verumpattamdar.—A verumpattam tenant. See Verumpattam tenant.

Verumpattam tenant.—A tenant who has taken a lease for the cultivation of land or gardens without any loan or advance. See The Malabar Tenancy Act, Act 14 of 1930 section 3(w).

Vinaya.—A code of ecclesiastical law following the precepts of Buddha and recited by Buddha's, disciple Upali at the first Council after Buddha's death. Rules of discipline for the monastic order.

Vritti.—A Sanskrit word meaning maintenance, means of livelihood or profession. A customary allowance; a payment or a fee to a Brahmin.

Wakf.—The word in Arabic means literally "detention" or "immobilisation". Hence Baillie's definition—"The detention of a thing in the implied ownership of Almighty God in such a manner that its profits may revert to or be applied for the benefit of mankind" Baillie's Mahomedan Law p 558. Hamilton translates the word as appropriation. Hence the definition—"The appropriation of any particular article in such a manner as subjects it to the rules of divine property whence the appropriators right to it is extinguished and it becomes the property of God by the advantages resulting to his creatures." Hamilton's Hedayapp 231. The definition in the Wakf Act is "Wakf means the permanent dedication by a person professing the Mussalman law as religious, pious or charitable." This represents the meaning now attached to the word in the courts.

Wajib-ul-arz.—(Arabic). Literally fit or worthy of representation. A record of rights prepared by a Settlement Officer in a co-parcenary village. In the North-West Provinces, it is the most important document relating to the administration of the village: Mussammatt Lali v Murli Dhar, 33 IA 97. It is a register of the shares and holdings in the village and states, the mode of payment of the revenue and the powers and privileges of the Lambardars. It is also an official record of local custom: Balgobin v Badri Prasad, 50 IA 196.

Watan.—The word includes an office held hereditarily for the performance of duties connected with the administration or collection of the public revenue or with village police. The Watan property, if any, the hereditary office, and the rights and privileges attached to them together constitute the Watan. Watan land is land held or assigned for providing remuneration for the performance of the duties of the watandar or person holding the hereditary office. See Bom, Act 3 of 1874.

Yajman.—A person who employs a priest or priests to perform for him either fixed or occasional religious ceremonies; a householder; a head of a family; a master or head of a caste.

Yajmari Vahis.—Books containing names of pilgrims who have visited the shrine in past years.

Yajman virtti.—An obligation imposed upon the purohit or family priest to perform certain religious rites, the performance of which carries with it certain emoluments: Kadulal v Beharilal, (1932) 25 Serv LR 451137 IC 136.

Zarichaharam.—A fourth part of the price; claimed by the zemindar as a perquisite on the sale of a holding.

Zur-i'peshgi.—Literally a payment in advance or a lease for a premium. A usufructuary mortgage in the form of a lease.

Glossary

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Glossary

Glossary

Ab initio.—(Latin). From the beginning.

Abadi.—A cultivated tract. A farm.

Abkari.—Revenue derived from duties on the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor.

Accessio cedit principali.—(Latin). The accession is added to the principal. A maxim of Roman law by which ownership is acquired by accession.

Adaimanam patram.—(Tamil). A deed of simple mortgage.

Adhlapi.—A transaction, customary in the Punjab, by which a person sinks a well and clears the land and receives in return a proprietary interest in a share of the land.

Advancement.—A payment to start a child in life or to make provision for him.

Alienajure.—(Latin). In the right of another.

Alio intuitu.—(Latin). With a different view of prospect. For a different purpose.

Ba Farzandan.—(Persian). With children, including descendants. The words indicate that the grant is to the grantee and his posterity.

Bai-bil-wafa,—See “Bye-bil-wafa”.

Bandhak.—(Sanskrit). A pledge, a mortgage.

Bandhakikhat.—(Bengali). A deed of mortgage. Also bandhaknama and bandhak patra.

Bastu.—A house site, a building plot.

Batai.—(From Sanskrit Vut, to divide). A share. A division of the crop between the landlord and the cultivating tenant.

Battaki.—See Buttaki.

Bemaidi.—Without a term. Also Bemeyadi. For the construction of a bemaidi lease see Janaki Nath v Dina Nath, (1933) 54 Cal LJ 412, 133 IC 732.

Benami.—Nameless, fictitious, A transaction under a false name.

Bhagbandhak.—A possessory mortgage.

Birt.—(From the Sanskrit Vritti, maintenance, means of livelihood). Fees to family priest. A right, custom or privilege derived from the performance of offices whether secular or religious. A grant of land to a person for maintenance or for religious or charitable objects Wilson's Glossary.

Glossary

Birt-maha brahamani.—Fees or presents received by a Brahmin who conducts funeral ceremonies.

Brahmottar—(Bengali). Land granted rent free to Brahmins for their support and that of their descendants. Such lands have frequently been acquired by non Brahmins.— Wilson's Glossary.

Burgadar.—A person who cultivates the land and gives, a share of the profits to the owner. He is not necessarily a lessee. See Brahmamoyee v Sheikh Munsur, (1920) 32 Cal LJ 37.

Buttaki.—Proclamation by beat of drum.

Butwara.—Partition. Butwara proceedings are proceedings for partition with the sanction of the revenue authorities.

Bye-bil-wafa.—(Arabic). Literally a sale with faith. A mortgage by conditional sale.

Caveat emptor.—(Latin). Let a purchaser beware. “Caveat emptor does not mean either in law or in Latin that the buyer must take chances, it means that the buyer must take care”: Wallis v Russell, (1902) 21R 585, p 615.

Cess.—A tax or rate. A great many miscellaneous cesses, imposts and charges were imposed under the Government of the Moghuls in addition to the land revenue both by the government and the zemindars. These have been either abolished or assimilated with the land revenue. The cesses abolished are called siwai (ie extras) or abwa or mathaut: Section 74 Bengal Tenancy Act 8 of 1885. Other cesses indirectly connected with the use of land and water and called sayar the landlord was allowed to retain: Section 3(4) Agra Tenancy Act, UP Act 3 of 1926. Such cesses were Banker or a tax on jungle products; and Julfar, a tax on fisheries; and Phulkar, a tax on fruit trees.

Cestui que trust—The beneficiary of a trust.

Chakran lands.—Lands held on service tenure. Generally speaking, the term includes all lands so held whether by police officials, chowkidars or persons whose duties are personal to the zamindar: Ranjit Singh v Kali Dasi, 44 IA 117, (1917) ILR 44 Cal 841.

Champerty and maintenance.—Practices forbidden by English law which are the fomentation of litigation in which one has no interest of one's own. A bargain whereby one party is to assist another in recovering property and 'is to share in the proceeds of the suit.

Char.—Land formed by alluvion.

Chevisance.—The business of a scrivener, ie, a shroff or dealer in money.

Chose in action.—A term of English law, for a thing recoverable by action as contrasted with a thing or chose in possession. An actionable claim.

Chowk.—A courtyard. A square.

Ghowkidar.—A village watchman remunerated by an allotment of land held either rent free or at a low rent in consideration of services to be rendered to the zemindar, who, before the English occupation, was responsible not only for the payment of revenue, but also for the preservation of peace and order within his district. The chowkidar rendered not only police service, but personal service to the zemindar: Ranjit Singh v Kali Dasi, 44 IA 117, (1917) ILR 44 Cal 841, 40 IC 981.

Chuck.—A corruption of “Chak” (Sanskrit Chak, or Chakra a circle or district). A portion of land divided off. The detached fields of a village. A patch of rent free land. A separate estate or farm. A sub-division of survey number.— Wilson's Glossary.

Covinous.—Collusive. Covine is “a secret assent determined in the hearts of two or more to the defrauding and prejudice of another.”— Co Litt, 357.

Damdupat.—A rule of the Hindu law of debts by which the interest recoverable at any one time cannot exceed the principal.

Glossary

Darpatni.—A tenure subordinate to a patni. A sub-leasehold. See Patni.

Darpatnidar.—A holder of a darpatni.

Dartaluk.—A subordinate taluka or estate the holder of which pays revenue through a superior talukdar or zemindar.

Darwans.—Doorkeepers. Porters.

Debutter—(A corruption of Deotar from the Sanskrit Devatra belonging to the deity.) Land granted rent free for the support of a temple or idol.

De die in diem—(Latin). From day to day.

Demise—A transfer by way of lease.

Deorha.—One and half. Used to express interest in kind at the rate of 50%.

Deshgat watan.—A hereditary district office remunerated by a cash allowance or a grant of rent free land.

Dharm.—(From the Sanskrit Dhar, to hold)- That which holds a man in the right path. Law, virtue, legal or moral duty.- Wilson's Glossary.

Dhrista bandhaka.—(From Sanskrit "Dhristi, sight and Bandhak, a pledge). A simple mortgage. Diggubhogyam.—(Tamil). A simple mortgage.

Dowlferist or Daulferist—A rent roll. A statement of rents demanded by zemindar from his tenants.

Ejusdem generis.—(Latin). Of the same nature. A rule of construction whereby general terms following particular ones are taken to apply to persons and things which are of the same nature as those comprehended in the particular terms.

En ventre sa mere.—(French). In his mother's womb.

Ex-proprietary tenant.—A landlord or proprietor who has lost his proprietary rights by alienation voluntary or involuntary and has become a tenant with a right of occupancy in his sit land and in land which he has cultivated continuously for a specified number of years. See The Oudh Rent Act 1886 (UP Act 22 of 1886) section 7 A; The Agra Tenancy Act 1926, (UP Act 3 of 1926) section 14; The North West Provinces Tenancy Act 1901, (NWP Act of 1901) section 10. See also "Sir."

Ex-proprietary tenant.—An ex-proprietary tenant is a landlord who has lost his proprietary right but who remains a tenant with a right of occupancy of his sir or home farm land; See The Agra Tenancy Act, UP Act 3 of 1926, sections 14 & 15; The North-West Provinces Tenancy Act, NWP Act 2 of 1901, section 10. See also "Sir".

Fee Simple.—A term of English real property law denoting an absolute estate. "Fee signifieth inheritance and simple is added for that is descendible to his heirs generally that is simply without restraint to the heirs of the body or the like. The word (simple) properly excludeth both conditions and limitations that defeat or abridge the fee" (Co Litt 1 b: Halsb Vol 24, para 315).

Fee Tail.—A term of English real property law denoting a restricted estate or feudum talliatum or an estate tail. "To hold in fee Tail or in Tail is where a man holdeth certain lands or tenements to him and to his heirs of his body begotten." (Terms de la Ley; Halsb Vol 24, para 442.)

Feoffment.—A term of English real property law denoting a conveyance in fee simple.

Forehand rent.—Rent payable in advance.

Gage.—A pawn or pledge. (From the same root as the word engage.)

Gahan.—(Marathi). A pledge. A mortgage.

Glossary

Gahan Lahan.—(Marathi). A mortgage by conditional sale.

Ghatwa1.—Literally the guard of the ghat or hill pass. Ghatwal lands were holding created in frontier territories so that the holders might be 'wardens of the Marches. the State granting lands to be held free on condition of guarding the passes: Baden Powell Land Systems of British India, Vol I, p 532. The person holding the office of ghatwal is bound to perform police duties and quasi military duties in consideration of a remuneration which may take the form of the use of land or an actual estate in land, heritable and perpetual: Narayan Singh v Niranjan Chakravarti, (1924) 51 IA 37, 3 Pat 183, 79.1C 825, AIR 1924 PC 5. The tenure, though peculiar because of a certain reserved power of selection, nevertheless ranks as hereditary: Raja Durga Prasad v Tribeni, (1918) 45 LA 251, 46 Cal 362: Secretary of State vJyoti Prasad (1926) 53 IA 100, 53 Cal 533, 94 IC 974, AIR 1926 PC 41. The Birbhum yhatwallands were declared transferable and heritable subject to a rent fixed in perpetuity by Beng Reg 29 of 1814.

Gross.—A thing or right in gross is one which is independent of anything else. Thus a right or common of pasture appendant may exist in respect of arable land: Tyrringham's case (1584) 4 Co Rep 36a, 37. But a right or common of pasture in gross appertaineth to no land and must be in writing or prescription: Co Litt 122a.

Guzara.—From the Persian word Guzarish. Maintenance.

Hat.—A market, a market held on certain days, a fair.

Hathchitti.—A letter or note written or vouched by the hand of.

Havala.—A transfer of a debt from the original debtor to a person who becomes liable for it to the creditor.

Hereditament.—A term of English real property law. The word hereditament is of as large extent as any word, for whatever may be inherited, be it corporeal or incorporeal, real personal or mixt, is a hereditament: Co Litt 16a, 383a, b.— Tenement is a large word to grant realty but hereditament is the largest: Coke Inst, Vol 1, p 6 Jarman says that the most comprehensive words of description applicable to real estate are tenements and hereditaments as they include every species of realty corporeal as well as incorporeal.

Heriot.—A term of English real property law denoting the right of the Lord of the manor, on the death of a freeholder to the best beast or other chattel of such freeholder: Halsb, 2nd Ed vol 7, para 574.

Habi-bil-iwaz.—A gift with an exchange. A mutual gift. A gift for a consideration as when a man gives property to his wife in lieu of her dower.

Homestead land.—In Bengal, the expression denotes a permanent tenancy created before the Transfer of Property Act for the purpose of habitation when a pucca building has been erected of the land leased: Safar Ali v Abdul Rasid, (1924) 39 Cal LJ 585. With reference to the Bombay Bhagdari Act (Born Act 5 of 1862), a homestead has been defined as including the site of the building, the dwelling house; the trees, wells and shrine and all the appendages which together constitute the usual surroundings of the ordinary village home: Collector of Broach v Venilal, (1897) ILR 21 Bom 588, p 593.

Id certum est quod certum fieri potest.—(Latin). Another reading is "Id certum est quod certum reddi potest." That is (sufficiently) certain which can be made certain. A maxim of construction: Owen v Thomas, (1834) 3 My and K 353 (a contract): Adams v fones, (1852) 9 Hare 485 (a will).

In esse.—(Latin). In being.

In gremio.—(Latin). In the bosom of.

In odium spoliatoris.—(Latin), The whole maxim is "In odium spoliatoris omnia praesumuntur", Every presumption is made against a wrongdoer. A rule of evidence that as between an innocent party and a wrongdoer unexplained circumstances are presumed unfavourably to the wrongdoer: Halb, 2nd Ed, Vol 13, para 705.

In pari delicto potioreset conditio possidentis.—(Latin). In equal fault, the condition of the possessor is the stronger.

Inam.—An Arabic word meaning a gift or benefaction. A gift by a superior to an inferior. The term is applied to gifts of land rent free or at a quit rent in hereditary and permanent occupation. There are many classes of inam, but the word is of generic significance applicable to the grant as a whole.

Glossary

Inter vivos.—(Latin). Between living persons,

Istimrari.—From the Arabic word Istimrar meaning perpetual. Permanent. Perpetual. The word may by usage refer to perpetuity during the lifetime of the grantee. See Istimrari Mokerari. In the absence of such usage, an istimrari lease was held to convey a permanent and hereditary right: Din Dayal v Sifat Ali, (1923) 10 Oudh LJ 630. The istimrari estates in Ajmere are held in absolute proprietary right and only pay revenue to the government in the form of a permanent and unenhanceable tribute: Baden Powell Land Systems of British India, Vol II, p 336.

Istimrari Mokerari.—From the Arabic word Istimrar meaning perpetual in point of time, and the Arabic word Mokarar meaning fixed as to rent. A perpetual tenure at a fixed rent. But the words in their lexicographical sense do not imply any heritable character as mourasi does: Narsingh Dyal v Ram Narain, (1903) ILR 30 Cal 883 approved in Kamakhya v Rama Raksha, 55 IA 212, 109 IC 663, AIR 1928 PC 146. This is because permanence may only be during the lifetime of the grantee and the words by themselves only confer a life estate on the grantee: Ramnarain Singh v Chota Nagpur Banking Association, (1916) ILR 43 Cal 332, 36 IC 321

Jaghir.—From the Persian word Jai meaning a place, and the Persian word Gir meaning a holder. A grant generally from the Moghul Government of the royal share of the revenue but not of the soil. Such grants were originally for life to a Court favourite or as an appanage to an officer or title and were resumable at pleasure. In time, either because of the decline of the Central Government or because it was thought below the dignity of the ruler to resume, the grant became permanent and hereditary and many assignments to revenue grew into landlord tenures. Again jaghir grants were sometimes made with the express object of settling waste lands so that the terms of the grant were such as to make the estate hereditary and alienable. Baden Powell Land Systems of British India, Vol I, p 189: Ramakrishnarao v Nanrao, (1903) 5 Bom LR 983; Maya Das v Gurdit Singh, 16 IC 855. See Gulabdas v The Collector of Surat, 6 IA 54.

Jaghirdar.—The holder of a jaghir.

Jamma.—Total rent or assessment payable.

Jenmi or Janmi.—Probably a corruption of zemindar. A proprietor of land. See Malabar Tenancy Act, Mad, Act 14 of 1930, section 3(k). See also Kanam.

Joshi.—A Brahmin versed in astrology. A priest.

Jote.—A holding for purposes of agriculture. It may mean a raiyiti or a non-raiyiti holding or any sort of holding. It does not necessarily mean an occupancy holding: Upendra Kishore v Khalil, (1932) 55 Cal LJ 170, 139 IC 544, AIR 1932 Cal 568.

Jus ad rem.—A right to a thing. A contractual right.

Jus disponendi.—(Latin). The right to dispose of. The right of sale, control and management.

Jus in rem.—A right in a thing. A proprietary right.

Kabuliyat.—See Razinama and Kabuliyat.

Kadam sharif.—A Mahomedan religious ceremony.

Kamaki.—Waste land adjoining cultivated land. The adjoining ryot has certain rights called kamaki rights over the waste land, eg, the right of pasturage and of gathering leaves for manure.

Kanam.—A customary mortgage in Madras which partakes of the character of a mortgage and of a lease. It cannot be redeemed before 12 years and the mortgagor lessee or kanamdar is entitled to compensation for improvements on redemption. The annual payments to the mortgagor-lessor or janmi (probably a corruption of zemindar) are regulated by what remains of the fixed share of the produce after deducting interest. If the mortgage is not redeemed, but is renewed at the expiry of 12 years, a renewal fee is payable to the janmi. This mortgage has a feudal origin, the mortgage debt having been originally a fee paid in token of feudal allegiance by the holder of the land to the lord: Baden Powell, Land Systems of British India; Vol III, pp 159-177. See Ayyappan v Venkedeswam, (1962) ILR 2 Ker 614, AIR 1963 Ker. 309. Kanam was defined in the Malabar Tenancy Act, Mad Act 14 of 1930, section 3(1), as follows:—

Glossary

“Kanam means the transfer of consideration in money or in kind or in both by a landlord of an interest in specific immoveable property to another (called the kanamdar) for the latter's enjoyment, the incidents of which include:—

- (1) a right in the transferee to hold the said property liable for the consideration paid by him or due to him which consideration is called 'kanartham',
- (2) the liability of the transferor to pay to the transferee interest on the kanartham,
- (3) the payment of 'michavaram' by the transferee,
- (4) the right of the transferee to enjoy the said property for 12 years or any other period, and
- (5) the liability of the transferee to pay a renewal fee to the transferor, if the transferee is permitted to enjoy the said property for a further period after the termination of the original period.”

The word “michavaram” in the above definition is defined in section 3(q) of the said Act as ‘whatever is agreed by a kanamdar in a kanam deed to be paid periodically in money or in kind or in both, to or on behalf of the janmi., Section 17 of the said, Act, gives the kanamdar a right of renewal and regulates the renewal fee.

Kanamdar.—See Kanam.

Karnam.—A village servant employed in revenue duties in Madras, and corresponding to a patwari in Northern Indian and kulkerni in Western India. The office is remunerated by a hereditary estate in land. The appointment and succession to the office is regulated by the Madras Hereditary Village-Offices Act, Mad Act 3 of 1895.

Kamavan.—A term of Malabar law denoting the manager of a tarwad. See 'Tarwad'.

Kayam or Kaim.—Fixed. Imports non-fixity of rent but permanence of occupation; Mehr Ali v Kalai Khalashi, (1915) 19 Cal WN 1129, 29 IC 461; Shyama charan v Fakir Chandra, 101 IC 45, AIR 1927 Cal 546; Chandra Kanta v Amjad Ali, (1920) 32 Cal LJ 296 (FB).

Kayam and Saswatham.—(Telugu). Fixed and permanent. Construed as equivalent to Istimrari Mokarari and therefore not necessarily hereditary: Rajaram v Narsinga, (1891) 15 Mad 199.

Khata.—A ledger account. Also a current account. Also book in which account is kept.

Khatkabala.—A conditional, engagement. A mortgage by conditional sale.

Khewat.—The record or register of persons who hold shares in a co-parcenary village.

Khorposh or Khor-o-posh.—Literally food and clothing. A grant of maintenance.

Khot.—A hereditary farmer of Jand revenue. The khoti tenure is customary in the Konkan.

Khot nisbat.—Lands held by permanent tenants of the khot who have hereditary but not transferable rights. For the distinction between khot nisbat land and khot khasgi land which is the private property of the khot, see Ganpati Gopal v Secretary of State, (1924) ILR 48 Bom 599, 83 IC 370.

Khudkast.—(Literally, self sown). Land cultivated by the proprietor himself.

Kuttubadi.—(Telugu). A Madras revenue term for the quit rent of land granted to a public servant.

Lac.—Resin exuded from the bark of certain trees.

Lambardar.—From the English word Number. A cultivator who pays the assessment and is registered in the Collector's roll according to his number. He is representative of the co-sharers of his Mahal or village, collects their share of the revenue and has a right of suit against them for their share of the revenue, village expenses and other dues. See The Agra Tenancy Act, UP Act 3 of 1926, sections 221 and 265; The North-Western Provinces Tenancy

Glossary

Act, NWP Act 2 of 1901, section 159; The North–Western Provinces and Oudh Land Revenue Act, NWP Act 3 of 1901, sections 45, 144 and 184; The Central Provinces Land Revenue Act, CP Act 2. of 1917, sections 2(6), 187 am 188.

Lekha Muki.—A customary mortgage in Punjab where the mortgagee is in possession and is responsible for the accounts.

Locus poenitentiae.—Place or opportunity for repentance or change of intention.

Malikhana.—From the Arabic word Malik meaning a proprietor. An impost originally payable by the holders of the village to the proprietor of the parent estate from which their holdings were carved out. For a history of these imposts, see Ramesliwa Singh v The Secretary of State, (1906) 11 Cal WN 448.

Malikhandar.—The proprietor entitled to receive the malikhana allowance. See “Malikhana.”

Math.—An abode for students of the Hindu religion. An establishment where Hindu religious mendicants reside. The origin of Maths is explained in Sammantha v Settappa, (1878) ILR 2 Mad, p 179.

Melwaram.—(Tamil). The proportion of the crop claimed by government as opposed to the Kudivaram or the cultivator's share. See Seethoyya v Subramanya, 56 IA 146, 117 IC 507, AIR 1929 PC 115.

Miras.—An Arabic word denoting inheritance or heritability: Ajmanesse v Panna Lal, (1923) 27 Cat WN 1037. The permanency of Miras tenure is indisputable. The Mirasdar and his descendants from generation to generation enjoy the land so long as they pay the rent: Khanderao v Ramji, (1899) 1 Bom LR 373; Vithalbhai v Narayan, (1894) ILR 18 Bom 507.

Mohant—The head of a math. See “Math.”

Mohurram or Muharam.—The first month of the Mohamedan year when it is unlawful to make war. It is the month in which Hasan and Husain, the sons of Ali, were killed. This event is celebrated every year by the Shias with public mourning and lamentation.

Mokarari.—Derived from the Arabic word Mokarar, an agreement. Means agreed upon or fixed. The word is applied to a tenure with a fixed rental: Gaydutullo v Girischandra, (1910) 15 Cal WN 175. But the word raises no presumption that the tenure is hereditary, for fixity may only be for the lifetime of the grantee: Bilo.smoni v Raja Sheopershad, (1882) ILR 8 Cal 664, 9 IA 33; Nabendra Kishore v Chaudhury Mian, (1931) 52 Cal LJ 583, 131 IC 584, AIR 1931 Cal 265.

Mortis causa.—(Latin). Because of death.

Mortuary.—A payment due by custom on a man's death out of his property to the person. (Halsb, Vol 3, para 917).

Mourasi.—Derived from the same root as Miras, an Arabic word meaning hereditary. It implies a succession from generation to generation, a heritable and permanent tenure: Giribal v Kedar Nath, (1929) ILR 56 Ca1180, 117 IC 534, AIR 1929 Cal 454.

Muafi.—A tenure by which land is held rent free for a time.

Muddatta Kriyam or Muddata Kayam.—(Telugu). A mortgage by conditional sale.

Mukhtiar.—A law agent. A legal practitioner of an inferior grade.

Mukkadami.—The tenure of the mukkadami or headman of the village who is responsible for the collection of the revenue. In the absence of clear evidence to the contrary, it is not heritable or transferable; Bhagwati v Hanuman, (1900) ILR 23 All 67.

Mulgeni.—A tenure in the Carnatic of new and previously uncultivated lands with hereditary succession. A hereditary farm at a fixed rate indefeasible as long as the stipulated rent is paid.

Murra.—A weight of grain; 25 maunds in some places and 28 maunds in other places.

Glossary

Mustagharaq.—Security. A word indicating a hypothecation.

Mutawalli.—A person appointed to the care and management of wakf property. See' Waif.

Nankari.—From nankar, meaning bread for work. Nankari land is land given by a zamindar for service performed: Harish Chandra v Qgsim Gani, AIR 1961 Pat. 291.

Naslan bad Naslan.—Generation after generation. Words used to indicate an estate of inheritance: Gnanendra Mohan Tagore v Upendra Mohan Tagore, (1870) 4 Beng LR 103, 192 OCJ; Tulshi Pershad Singh v Ram Narain Singh, (1886) ILR 12 Cal 117, 12 IA 205.

Nazar or Naze.—A lump sum paid as a premium; a royalty or bonus or commission: a fine paid to the State on succeeding to office or property.

Nazarana or Nazrana.—A premium. A sum exacted by a superior in the guise of a present.

Nirantar.—Perpetually; for ever. See Bom HC Printed Judgments (1876) 227.

Non est factum.—(Latin). It is not done or executed. A plea by which a man charged upon a writing avers that it is not his deed: Halsb, Vol 10, para 721.

Novation.—A new contract whereby a liability under an existing contract is extinguished and a liability under a new contract is substituted for it: Scarf v Jardine, \(1882\) 7 App Cas 345.

Omne majus continentt in se minus.—(Latin). The greater includes the less. He who has authority to do the more important act shall not be debarred from doing that of less importance.

Omne principal trahit ad se accessorium.—(Latin). Every principal draws the accessory after it. See "Acessio cedit principali."

Optimus rerum interpres usus.—(Latin). Usage is the best interpreter of things. See Broom's Legal Maxims, 7th Ed, P 592.

Otti.—A form of kanam mortgage in Madras in which the interest on the sum advanced covers the whole of the janmi's share of the produce. See "Kanam."

Owelly.—Compensation given for inequality of shares on a partition.

Pala.—A turn of worship. The right of the officiating priest in a temple to conduct public worship and receive the offerings in rotation with the other pujaris or priests.

Palyam.—(Tamil) Land settled on Polygars or rubber cheftains at a quit rent on condition of rendering police services. For a history of the tenure see Appayasami Naicker v Midnapore Zemindari Co, 48 IA 100, 60 IC 953.

Paracudi.—(Tamil). A migratory or non-resident cultivator who does not belong to the village community. See "Ulwadi".

Pardanishin.—Sitting behind the screen. A woman who observes the rule of seclusion.

Parwarish.—(Persian). Cherishing or fostering. Maintenance.

Pata or Patta or Putta.—A lease. A generic term embracing every kind of engagement between a Zemindar and his Tenants, or Ryots: Dhunput Singh v Gooman Singh, (1867) II Moo Ind App 433.

Patni.—An estate carved out of his proprietary interest by a Bengal Zemindar, either as a device for raising 'money, or to be relieved of the trouble of direct management: Baden Powel Land Systems of British India, Vol I, p 543; Wilson's Glossary. - A first the zemindar was prohibited from giving a lease for more than 10 years. This restriction was removed by Regulation 5 of 1812 and the practice became common for the zemindar to create permanent subordinate tenures. These tenures are called Patni talooks and are by their very nature heritable and alienable, the zemindar retaining the status of zemindar, but parting with all control and interest, except as to a quit rent: Tarinee Churn Gangooly v Watson & Co, (1869) 3 Beng LR 437 AC, 12 WR 413, Patni talooks created before the permanent settlement were recognised by Bengal Regulation Act 8 of 1793. The Patni Law, ie Bengal Regulation Act 8 of 1819 was enacted to grant facilities to the zemindar to create Patni talooks for the punctual payment of rent; Surendra Narain Sinha v Bijoy Singh, (1925) ILR 52 Cal 655, 89 IC 785, AIR 1925 Cal 962.

Glossary

Patnidar.—The holder of a Patni Talook. See “Patni.”

Pattidar.—The owner of a patti or share of a mahal or village separately assessed to land revenue. He pays his share of the revenue through the Lambadar of the mahal. The shares are generally fractional according to the laws of inheritance: Baden Powell Land Systems of British India, Vol I, p 126. See The Central Provinces Land Revenue Act, CP Act 2 of 1917 sections 2(12), 97, 123 and 161. The North-West Provinces and Oudh Land Revenue Act, N-WP Act 3 of 1901 sections 84 (1)(c). 146(e) and 160. See also “Lambadar.”

Patwari.—A village servant employed in the keeping of revenue accounts in Northern India corresponding to the karnam in Madras and the talati or kulkarni in Bombay. The appointment and remuneration of patwaris regulated by sections 22, 23 and 24 (b) of the North -West Provinces and Oudh Land Revenue Act, N-WP Act 3 of 1901. Patwaris are also in existence in some districts in the Central Provinces: Sections 43 and 227(d) of the Central Provinces, Land Revenue Act, CP Act 2 of 1917.

Permutatio est vicina emptioni.—(Latin). Exchange is analogous to purchase,

Persona designata.—(Latin). A person designated. A person specified or nominated.

Peruarthum.—A customary mortgage in Malabar. It is a mortgage by conditional sale redeemable by payment of the market value of the land at the time of redemption: Shekari Var.ma v Mangalom, (1876) ILR 1 Mad 57.

Pro tanto.—(Latin.), For so much, for as much as is paid.

Proprio motu.—(Latin.) Of his own motion, by his own act.

Proprio vigore.—(Latin.) By its own force.

Pujari.—A priest in a Hindu temple who conducts public worship and receives offerings either for himself or for the idol.

Quicquid inaedificatur solo, solo cedit.—(Latin). Whatever is built of the soil falls into or becomes part of the soil. Whatever is built on the soil belongs thereto.

Quicquid plantatur solo, solo cedit.—(Latin). Whatever is planted in the soil falls into, or becomes part of the soil. Whatever is planted in the soil belongs thereto.

Qui facit per alium facit per se.—(Latin). He who acts through another is deemed to act in person.

Qui prior est tempore est jure.—(Latin). He who is first in time prevails in law. He has the better title who is first in time. The equitable doctrine of priority.

Qui sensit commodum debet et setire onus.—(Latin). He who derives the advantage must sustain the burden.

Raiyat.—A cultivator; a peasant; a tenant who is given the right to bring the land under cultivation: Hira Lal v Matukdhari, (1928) ILR 7 Pat 275, 109 IC 461, AIR 1928 Pat. 316. See the definition in section 5(2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act 1885.

Ram Lila.—A public performance in the month of Ashwin of a drama illustrating the adventures of the God Rama.

Razinama and Kabulayet.—Surrender and agreement. The procedure by which one person relinquished his holding in land and another person agrees to become the holder or Khatedar under the Bombay Land Revenue Code, Bom Act 5 of 1879.

Glossary

Regalia.—Royal rights pertaining to the Crown. Things belonging to the sovereign. The crown, sceptre, orb and other articles used at the coronation.

Rehan or Rahn.—(Arabic). A pledge; a mortgage.

Relief.—Money payable to the lord by a freeholder on his succession to land of which his ancestor died tenant of the manor. (Halsb, 2nd Ed Vol 7, para 594).

Rent note.—An agreement to lease signed only by the lessee.

Res communes.—Things that are common to all men. Things the property in which belongs to no one, but the use to all; such as air, light, running water, etc.

Res extra commercium.—Things not the subject of commerce or trade. Things which cannot be bought or sold.

Res gestae.—(Latin). Things done.

Restitutio ad integrum.—(Latin). Restoration in full.

Royalty.—In mining lease a royalty is a payment to the lessor proportionate to the amount of the demised mineral worked within a certain period: Halsb Vol 20, para 1418 —It is in reality the price paid for a portion of the soil the payment whereof is distributed over a number of years: Krishna Kishore v Kasunda Nyadi Collieries, 65 IC 673, AIR 1922 Pat. 36; AG of Ontario v Mercer, \(1883\) 8 App Cas 767.

Ryot.—See Raiyat.

Sadavarat.—(Sanskrit). A guest house for the accommodation of travellers or religious mendicants.

San.—A form of anomalous mortgage unaccompanied with possession prevalent in Gujarat.

Sankalp.—(Sanskrit) A vow; a gift in accordance with a vow.

Sarabarakar.—A manager or land agent who collects rents, retains a portion as his profit and pays the balance to the zamindar. In some cases the office is hereditary but without right of alienation without the permission of zemindar.—Wilson's Glossary.

Sarabarakari interest.—The interest of a sarabarakar or middle man. See "Sarabarakar."

Saranjam.—The maharati equivalent of Jaghir. See: "Jaghir".

Saswatham.—(Telugu). Permanent. See "Kayam" and "Saswatham".

Scheduled district.—A scheduled district is defined in section 3 (49) of the General Clauses Act to be a scheduled district as defined in the Scheduled Districts Act 1874. The Indian Statute Book contained from the earliest time "deregulationizing" enactments barring the application of the ordinary law, which was at first contained in the old "regulations" in the more backward and less civilised parts of the country. These enactments became so complicated that it was difficult to ascertain what laws were and what laws were not in force in the "deregulationized" tracts. The Scheduled Districts Act was passed to remove doubts as to the extent of these tracts and the law in force therein. It specifies and constitutes a number of the deregulationized tracts as scheduled districts and gives power to declare by notification what enactments are, and what enactments are not in force in any scheduled district. It further enacts that any district to which 33 Vict c 3 s1 (giving power to make regulations for the peace and good government of British India) is made applicable, is a scheduled district. - Illbert's Government of India, p 214.

Seisin.—A term of English real property law. It signifies possession of a freehold so that a man cannot be said to be land unless he is in possession of the freehold either personally or by means of tenants; Topham New Law of Property, 4th Edn, p 12. It has nothing to do with seizure which is a forcible taking of possessions. It meant originally quiet possession sitting on land, ie the possession of a settlor or squatter from the latin sessio, sitting. It was formerly used to chattels but is now a technical term of real property law.

Glossary

Sheba.—(A corruption of Seva). Service. Attendance upon an idol. Worship.

Shebait.—The manager and superintendent of an endowed Hindu temple.

Shikmi.—A subordinate tenure the holder of which pays his revenue or share of revenue through some other person, and not direct. The word means belly and a shikmi tenure is a tenure which has been carved out of the head tenure. The word “Shikmi” is a common expression meaning an undertenant: Doma Sing. Gobind 135 IC 93, AIR 1931 Pat 36.

Sir.—The word means “his own”—The proprietor’s Sir land is his own land as distinguished from the land in which the old tenants of the village have ancient rights. It is the home farm land in which the landlord or co-sharer in the joint village holds directly in his own management, either cultivating it himself or by his farm servants or personal tenants. Certain privileges attach to the Sir and if the landlord or sharer defaults in the payment of revenue and is put out of possession and becomes an ex-proprietary tenant, he still retains his Sir: Baden Powell Land Systems of British India, Vol 1, p 166. See also the Agra Tenancy Act, UP Act 3 of 1926, sections 4-7, 14, 15, 18 and 69; The Central Provinces Land Revenue Act, CP Act 2 of 1917, sections 2(17), 68, 93, 9,106, 120 and 137; The North-Western Province Tenancy Act, N-WP Act 2 of 1901, sections 10, 11 and 89; The North-Western Provinces and Oudh Land Revenue Act, N-WP Act 3 of 1901, sections 4(2), 4(13), 122 to 127.

Specialty.—A contract under seal. A contract made by deed, eg, a mortgage.

Spes successionis.—(Latin). An expectancy to succeed to the property of a living person. It confers no actual interest in property, not even a contingent interest.

Stridhan.—Property held by a Hindu woman unconditionally and subject to no restriction. That alone is her peculiar property which she has power to give, sell or use independently of her husband’s control: Phukar Singh v Rangit Singh, (1878) 1 All 661.

Sudbharnabond.—From Sud, interest, and Bharna, paying in full. A usufructuary mortgage bond.

Sui juris.—(Latin). Literally, of his own right. A person capable of exercising his rights. An adult who is no-longer under the disability of infancy.

Suo jure.—(Latin). In one’s own right.

Swadhin Adhamanam.—Literally possession deed. A possessory mortgage in Malabar.

Tabula in naufragio.—(Latin) Literally a raft in a shipwreck. A description applied to the English doctrine of tacking.

Tagavi or Takavi.—Literally assisting. Advances of money made by the Government to cultivators for the purchase of seed to be repaid when the crop is reaped.

Tahsildar.—An official in charge of the collection of the revenue of a tahsil or division of a district.

Thluka or Talook.—A division of a district. An estate. Talukas in Oudh were originally granted by the Moghul Government at a favourable assessment. See The Oudh Estates Act 1 of 1869 as amended by Act 3 of 1885. As to Gujarat see Bom Act 6 of 1888. As to Pami Talukas see “Patni.”

Talukdar.—The holder of a taluka. See “Taluka.”

Taran Gahan.—Literally security pledge. A simple mortgage in Bombay.

Tarward.—A term of Malabar law denoting a group of persons all of them tracing their descent from a common female ancestor, owning joint property under the absolute management and, control of the senior male member who is; all the karnavan: Shuppu Menon v Narayanan, (1905) ILR 28 Mad 182 (FB).

Tenant by curtesy.—‘A tenant by curtesy of England is where a man taketh a wife seised in free simple or in fee tail general or seised as heir in tail general, and hath issue by the same wife, male or female, born alive albeit the issue after dieth or liveth yet if the wife, dies the husband shall hold the land during his life by the law of England - Coke on Littleton section 35 cited in Eager v Furnivall, \(1881\) 17 ChD 115, 120. - The husband was said to have an estate by curtesy meaning probably an estate given by the curia or court. The estate of courtesy has been abolished by the Administration of Estates Act 1925.

Glossary

Tenement.—A term of English real property law. Blackstone says that a tenement though in its vulgar acceptation is only applied to houses and other buildings, yet in its original, proper and legal sense, it signifies everything that may be holden provided it be of a permanent nature.

Terminus a quo.—(Latin). The starting point from which.

Toda giras hak.—The right to an annual payment of toda giras. The custom of toda giras arose out of the dispossession by conquest of old Rajput Chiefs in Malwa, Gujarat and Central India. They were cadets of ruling Rajput families to whom territory had been assigned for giras or maintenance, the word Giras meaning literally a mouthful. When dispossessed they waged war and levied contribution all around them. Their exactions were compromised, the word Toda meaning a composition. Toda giras was, therefore, in its origin, a cash composition which secured protection and freedom from plunder. The allowance has now become an item in the rent roll of the villages: Baden Powell Land System of British India - Vol 3, pp 277, 281.

Transit in rem judicatum.—(Latin). Passes into or becomes a thing adjudged or finally decided. When the judgment is delivered the cause of action is extinguished and transit in rem judicatum or merges in the judgment.

Ulavadi.—(Tamil). A cultivator who has inherited land. A ulavadi mirasdar was held not to be a permanent tenant when he was also described as paracudi, ie, migratory: Mayandi Chettyar v Chokkalingam, (1904) ILR 27 Mad 291, 31 IA 83.

Uraller.—The trustee or manager of a temple in Malabar.

Utbandi.—A system of cultivation in Bengal by which the tenant cultivates for a year or a season only and the rent is fixed by agreement when the crop is on the ground. Hunter's Statistical Account of Bengal cited in Beni Madhub v Bhuban Mohun, (1891) ILR 17 Cal 393.

Ut lite pendente nihil innovetur.—(Latin). Let nothing be altered or renewed while the suit is pending.

Utpat.—A priest attached to the temple at Pandharpur.

Ut res magis valeat quam pereat.—(Latin). Literally rather let the matter prevail than let it perish or rather let it operate than let it be inefficient. A canon of construction, whereby, if a deed is capable of a twofold construction, that construction should be adopted which will uphold the deed.

Varashasan.—(Marathi). An annual allowance paid either by the Treasury or by assignment of the revenues of a village; and assignment or charge on the revenues of a village made by the proprietor.

Verumpattamdar.—A verumpattam tenant. See Verumpattam tenant.

Verumpattam tenant.—A tenant who has taken a lease for the cultivation of land or gardens without any loan or advance. See The Malabar Tenancy Act, Act 14 of 1930 section 3(w).

Vinaya.—A code of ecclesiastical law following the precepts of Buddha and recited by Buddha's, disciple Upali at the first Council after Buddha's death. Rules of discipline for the monastic order.

Vritti.—A Sanskrit word meaning maintenance, means of livelihood or profession. A customary allowance; a payment or a fee to a Brahmin.

Wakf.—The word in Arabic means literally "detention" or "immobilisation". Hence Baillie's definition—"The detention of a thing in the implied ownership of Almighty God in such a manner that its profits may revert to or be applied for the benefit of mankind" Baillie's Mahomedan Law p 558. Hamilton translates the word as appropriation. Hence the definition—"The appropriation of any particular article in such a manner as subjects it to the rules of divine property whence the appropriators right to it is extinguished and it becomes the property of God by the advantages resulting to his creatures." Hamilton's Hedayapp 231. The definition in the Wakf Act is "Wakf means the permanent dedication by a person professing the Mussalman law as religious, pious or charitable." This represents the meaning now attached to the word in the courts.

Glossary

Wajib-ul-arz.—(Arabic). Literally fit or worthy of representation. A record of rights prepared by a Settlement Officer in a co-parcenary village. In the North-West Provinces, it is the most important document relating to the administration of the village: Mussammatt Lali v Murli Dhar, 33 IA 97. It is a register of the shares and holdings in the village and states, the mode of payment of the revenue and the powers and privileges of the Lambardars. It is also an official record of local custom: Balgobin v Badri Prasad, 50 IA 196.

Watan.—The word includes an office held hereditarily for the performance of duties connected with the administration or collection of the public revenue or with village police. The Watan property, if any, the hereditary office, and the rights and privileges attached to them together constitute the Watan. Watan land is land held or assigned for providing remuneration for the performance of the duties of the watandar or person holding the hereditary office. See Bom, Act 3 of 1874.

Yajman.—A person who employs a priest or priests to perform for him either fixed or occasional religious ceremonies; a householder; a head of a family; a master or head of a caste.

Yajmari Vahis.—Books containing names of pilgrims who have visited the shrine in past years.

Yajman virtti.—An obligation imposed upon the purohit or family priest to perform certain religious rites, the performance of which carries with it certain emoluments: Kadulal v Beharilal, (1932) 25 Serv LR 451137 IC 136.

Zarichaharam.—A fourth part of the price; claimed by the zemindar as a perquisite on the sale of a holding.

Zur-i'peshgi.—Literally a payment in advance or a lease for a premium. A usufructuary mortgage in the form of a lease.

PREAMBLE

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > PREAMBLE

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

PREAMBLE

(4 of 1882)

[17th February, 1882]

An Act to amend the law relating to the Transfer of Property by act of parties.

Preamble.—Whereas it is expedient to define and amend certain parts of the law relating to the transfer of property by act of parties; it is hereby enacted as follows:—

The true place of a preamble in a statute was at one time the subject of conflicting decisions. The modern rule is that where the enacting part is explicit and unambiguous, the preamble cannot be resorted to, to control, qualify or restrict it; but where the enacting part is ambiguous, the preamble can be referred to, to explain and elucidate it. This rule has been applied to Indian statutes by the Privy Council,¹ and also by the Supreme Court of India.² The substantive provision of the enactment is to be approached in the light of the policy and purpose deducible from the terms of the long title and the preamble, says the Supreme Court of India.³

(1) Define and Amend

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 (TP Act, 1882) was intended to define and amend the existing law, and not to introduce any new principle.⁴ It embodies principles of equity, justice and good conscience.⁵ The chief objects of TP Act, 1882 were initially to bring the rules which regulate the transmission of property between living persons into harmony with the rules affecting its devolution on death and thus, to furnish and complement the work commenced in framing the law of testamentary and intestate succession; and secondly, to complete the code of contract law so far as it relates to immovable property.⁶

(2) Act not Exhaustive

The Act is not exhaustive, and it does not profess to be a complete code.⁷ This is apparent from the omission of the word “consolidate”, which occurs, for instance, in the preamble to the Indian Evidence Act, 1872.⁸ The preamble to the Indian Contract Act, 1872 is worded in terms similar to the preamble of TP Act, 1882.⁹ In Irrawaddi Flotilla Co v Bhugwandas,¹⁰ which was a case under the Contract Act, the Privy Council observed that the said Act did not profess to be a complete code dealing with the law relating to contracts, that is purported to do no more than to define and amend certain parts of that law, and that the legislature did not intend to deal exhaustively with the law relating to contracts. The facts stated in the Preamble and the Statement of Objects and Reasons appended to any legislation are evidence of legislative judgment. They indicate the thought process of the elected representatives of the people and their cognizance of the prevalent state of affairs, impelling them to enact the law. These, therefore constitute important factors which amongst others will be taken into consideration by the Court in judging the reasonableness of any restriction imposed on the Fundamental Rights of the individuals.¹¹ The Privy Council¹² through the words of Lord Atkin had declared that “when the meaning of the words is plain, it is not the duty of the courts to busy themselves with supposed intentions”. This principle was adhered by Supreme Court of India which also stated that the law has been consistent ever since then.¹³

PREAMBLE

(3) Legislative Competence

Both the Parliament and the state legislature have the power to make laws with respect to “Transfer of Property other than agricultural land”, which matter is included in entry 6 of the concurrent list in the seventh schedule to the Constitution. Legislation relating to the relationship of landlord and tenant, including rent control with respect to non-agricultural land, will come under entry 6 of list III.¹⁴ The subject of transfer of agricultural land is covered by entry 18 of the state list. A State law relating to the transfer of agricultural land may override the provisions of the TP Act, 1882, for instance, as to mortgages of agricultural land.¹⁵ Transfer of agricultural land, whether belonging to scheduled tribes or other persons, would come under entry 18 of list II, which carries with it not only a power to make a law placing restrictions on transfers and alienations of such land including a prohibition thereof, but also the power to make a law to re-open such transfers and alienations.¹⁶ The Supreme Court has held that the Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Act, 1971 in so far it deals with a licensee of premises other than premises belonging to the Central Government, falls in entries 6, 7 and 46 of list III.¹⁷ Likewise, Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, 1988, is not an enactment relating to the transfer of property, but is a law relating to trusts and trustees and, therefore, cannot be related to the legislative head “Transfer of Property” in entry 6 of list III.¹⁸

(4) By Act of Parties

The Supreme Court, in the case of Bharat Petroleum Corp Ltd v P Kesavan,¹⁹ has held:

As would appear from the preamble of the Transfer of Property Act, the same applies only to transfer by act of parties. A transfer by operation of law is not validated or invalidated by anything contained in the Act. A transfer which takes place by operation of law, therefore, need not meet the requirement of the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act or the Indian Registration Act.

These words exclude transfer by operation of law, ie, by sale in execution,²⁰ forfeiture, insolvency or intestate succession. It also limits the scope of the Act to transfers inter vivos, and excludes testamentary succession.²¹

(5) By Operation of Law

The principles embodied in some of the provisions have been applied to transfers by the operation of law in some cases.²²

(6) Rules of Interpretation of Statutes

Before discussing the provisions of the TP Act, 1882 in detail, it is advisable to state the principal rules for the interpretation of statutes:

(1) A cardinal rule of interpretation of statutes, which is often referred to as the golden rule is that the grammatical sense of the words used should be adhered to, technical words being construed according to their technical meaning, and other words in their most ordinary and popular acceptance.²³

(2) It is a sound rule of interpretation to take the words of a statute as they stand and to interpret them ordinarily, but when it is contended that the legislature intended by any particular amendment to make substantial changes in the pre-existing law, it is impossible to arrive at a conclusion without considering what the law was prior to the particular enactment, and to see whether the words used in the statute can be taken to effect the change that is suggested as intended.²⁴

(3) If the meaning is clear, the court is not at liberty to look at the presumed intention of the legislature. The question for the court is not what the legislature meant, but what language of the Act means. In Salomon v Salomon & Co,²⁵ Lord Watson said:

Intention of the Legislature is a common but a very slippery phrase, which properly understood, may signify anything from intention embodied in positive enactment to speculative opinion as to what the Legislature probably would have meant, although there has been an omission to enact it. In a court of law or Equity what the Legislature intended to be done, or not to be done can only be legitimately ascertained from that which it has chosen to enact either in express words or by reasonable and necessary implication.

PREAMBLE

(4) When the literal construction would lead to some absurdity, repugnance or inconsistency, the grammatical sense may be modified so as to avoid that difficulty but no further,²⁶ but it is a well-known rule that a casus omissus cannot be supplied by a court of law.²⁷

(5) The literal construction ought not to prevail if it is opposed to the intention of the legislature as apparent from the statute, and if the words are sufficiently flexible to admit of some other construction by which that intention will be better effectuated.²⁸

(6) The construction should be as far as possible beneficial, ie, to suppress mischief and advance the remedy, if this can be done without violence to the language of the section.²⁹

(7) A general Act must not be construed so as to derogate from a special Act.³⁰ The general maxim is generalia specialibus non derogant. When the legislature has given its attention to a separate subject and made provision for it, the presumption is that a subsequent general enactment is not intended to interfere with the special provision, unless it manifests that intention very clearly. Each enactment must be construed in that respect according to its own subject-matter and its own terms.³¹

(8) Statutes encroaching upon private rights must be strictly construed so as to save those rights as far as possible.³² An intention to take away property without compensation should not be imputed to a legislature, unless it be expressed in unequivocal terms.³³

(9) Statutes affecting substantive law or vested rights are not retrospective, unless expressed to be so; but statutes affecting procedure may properly have retrospective effect attributed to them, unless that construction be textually inadmissible.³⁴ The principles affecting the retrospective operation of statutes have been stated as follows:³⁵

- (a) Legislative enactments have no retrospective effect, unless explicitly stated to be so in the enactments themselves.
- (b) Amending statutes should not be construed as having retrospective effect, if they affect vested rights.
- (c) Statutes which are declaratory or explanatory are to be construed as having retrospective effect as they give an authoritative explanation of the words, phrases or clauses used in a statute, and whenever the statute has to be applied the explanation also should be applied.
- (d) No recital in a declaratory or amending statute can render void that which has been declared by the courts to have been rightly done under the law.
- (e) Statutes which affect a mere procedure are retrospective in their nature.

The TP Act, 1882, however, expressly enacts in section 2(c) that it is not retrospective.

The retrospective operation of changes introduced by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Act, 1929, has been fully considered by the Full Bench of the Patna High Court with reference to section 92 of the TP Act, 1882.³⁶

(10) Proceedings of the legislative council are excluded from consideration in the judicial construction of an Act. The debates in the legislative council reports of Select Committees and statements of objects and reasons annexed to a Bill may not be referred to.³⁷ The Supreme Court has held that though the statement of objects and reasons cannot be taken into account for the purpose of interpreting the words of the section, it gives an indication of what the legislature wanted to achieve.³⁸

(11) Headings of sections or groups of sections in the Act have the effect of preambles to those sections, and may be referred to as an aid to construction.³⁹

PREAMBLE

(12) Marginal notes to the sections are not to be referred to for the purpose of construction. The Supreme Court has held that a marginal note cannot be invoked for construction where the meaning is clear.⁴⁰

(13) Illustrations are instances of the practical application of the written law without which law would amount to nothing.⁴¹ Since they explain the meaning of the section, they are useful as aids to construction, but they cannot control the plain meaning of the section.⁴² The great usefulness of the illustrations which have, although not part of the sections, been expressly furnished by the legislature as helpful in the working and application of the statute, should not be impaired. The Supreme Court holds the same view.⁴³

(14) "It is an error to rely upon punctuation in construing Acts of the Legislature."⁴⁴

(15) Provisos to sections have the effect of excepting out of the preceding portion, or of qualifying it; a proviso cannot be construed as enlarging the scope of the enactment.⁴⁵ It is well-settled that the proviso and the portion of the section must be construed as a whole, each portion throwing light, if need be, on the rest.⁴⁶

Once the Legislature has defined a term in the interpretation clause, it is not necessary for it to use the same expression in other provisions of the Act. It is well settled that the meaning assigned to a term as defined in the interpretation clause unless the context otherwise requires should be given the same meaning.⁴⁷ If two special enactments contain provisions which give overriding effect to the provisions contained therein, then the Court is required to consider the purpose and the policy underlying the two Acts and the clear intendment conveyed by the language of the relevant provisions.⁴⁸

-
- 1 Secretary of State v Maharaja of Bobbili, (1920) ILR 43 Mad 529 : 46 IA 302 : 54 IC 154. "The section must govern."
 - 2 State of Rajasthan v Leela Jain, AIR 1965 SC 1296 [LNIND 1964 SC 228], p 1299; Burakar Coal Co Ltd v UOI, AIR 1961 SC 954 [LNIND 1961 SC 55], pp 956, 957; UOI v Elphistone Spinning & Weaving Co Ltd, AIR 2001 SC 724 [LNIND 2001 SC 104], p 740 : (2001) 4 SCC 139 [LNIND 2001 SC 2915]. For further reference, see Mani Lal Singh v Trustees for the Improvement of Calcutta, (1918) ILR 45 Cal 343 : 44 IC 770; Nepra Sayer Pramanik (1928) ILR 55 Cal 67 : 103 IC 662 : AIR 1927 Cal 763; Sital Chandra Delanney (1916) 20 Cal WN 1158 : 34 IC 450; Keshab Panda Bhubani (1913) 18 Cal LJ 187 : 21 IC 538; Girja Nandan Hanuman Das (1927) ILR 49 All 25 : 99 IC 161 : AIR 1927 All 1.
 - 3 Re: The Kerala Education Bill, AIR 1957 1958 SC 956 : [1959]1 SCR 995.
 - 4 Tajjo Bibi v Bhagwan, (1899) ILR 16 All 295.
 - 5 Nalakath Suinuddin v Kooridakan Sulaiman, (2002) 6 SCC 1 [LNIND 2002 SC 410] , para 21 : AIR 2002 SC 2562 [LNIND 2002 SC 410] .
 - 6 Whitley Stokes, Anglo-Indian Codes, vol I, p 726.
 - 7 HV Low & Co Ltd v Pulin Beharilal Sinha, (1933) ILR 59 Cal 1372 : 143 IC 193 : AIR 1933 Cal 154 ; Satyabadi Harabati (1907) ILR 34 Cal 223, p 228; Shafikul Huq v Krishna Gobinda, (1919) 23 Cal WN 284 : 47 IC 428; Bhupendra Wajihunnissa (1917) 2 Pat LJR 293 : 39 IC 564; Kishori Lal v Krishna Kamini, (1910) ILR 37 Cal 377, p 382 : 5 IC 500; Jatendra v Rangpur Tobacco Co, AIR 1924 Cal 990 , p 991; Venkatalingam v Parthasarathy, AIR 1942 Mad. 558 ; See Irrawady Flotilla Co v Bhugwandass, 18 IA 121, p 129 (a case on the Contract Act where the preamble is exactly in the same terms).
 - 8 Collector of Gorakhpur v Palakdhari, (1890) ILR 12 All 1, p 35.

PREAMBLE

- 9 Preamble to the Indian Contract Act, 1872: "Whereas it is expedient to define and amend certain parts of the law relating to contracts."
- 10 Irrawaddi Flotilla Co v Bhugwandas, (1891) ILR 18 Cal 620, p 628.
- 11 State of Gujarat v Mirzapur Moti Kureshi Kasab Jamat, AIR 2006 SC 212 [LNIND 2005 SC 856] : JT 2005 (12) SC 580 [LNIND 2005 SC 856] : 2005 (8) Scale 661 [LNIND 2005 SC 856] : (2005) 8 SCC 534 [LNIND 2005 SC 856] .
- 12 Pakala Narayana Swami v Emperor, AIR 1939 PC 47 [LNIND 1939 PC 1] : (1939) 9 AWR (PC) 35 : 66 Moo Ind App 66.
- 13 Tamil Nadu State Electricity Board v Central Electricity Regulatory Commission, AIR 2007 SC 1711 [LNIND 2007 SC 509] : JT 2007 (6) SC 74 [LNIND 2007 SC 509] : 2007 (6) Scale 26 [LNIND 2007 SC 509] : (2007) 7 SCC 636 [LNIND 2007 SC 509] .
- 14 Bapalal v Thakurdas, AIR 1982 Mad. 399 [LNIND 1982 MAD 156] .
- 15 See Megh Raj v Allah Rakhia, (1947) FCR 77 , p 86.
- 16 Lingappa Pochanna v State of Maharashtra, AIR 1985 SC 389 [LNIND 1984 SC 331] : (1985) 1 SCC 479 [LNIND 1984 SC 331] .
- 17 Accountant & Secretarial Services Pvt Ltd v UOI, (1988) 4 SCC 324 [LNIND 1988 SC 330] : AIR 1988 SC 1708 [LNIND 1988 SC 330] ; Ashok Marketing Ltd v Punjab National Bank, AIR 1991 SC 855 [LNIND 1990 SC 407] , pp 876, 877 : (1990) 4 SCC 406 [LNIND 1990 SC 407] .
- 18 S Mohammad Anwaruddin v Sabina Sultana, (1989) 179 ITR 442 , p 455.
- 19 Bharat Petroleum Corp Ltd v P Kesavan, (2004) 9 SCC 772 [LNIND 2004 SC 434] , para 12 : AIR 2004 SC 2206 [LNIND 2004 SC 434] .
- 20 Dinendronath Sannyal v Ramcoomar Ghose, (1881) ILR 7 Cal 107 : 8 IA 65, p 75.
- 21 See section 2, clause (d), and notes under section 5.
- 22 See commentary on the sections.
- 23 Queen Empress v Abdullah, (1885) ILR 7 All 385, p 398.
- 24 Abdur Rahim v Mahomed Barkat Ali, (1928) ILR 55 Cal 519 : 55 IA 96 : 108 IC 361 : AIR 1928 PC 16 ; Sales Tax Officer v Mukundlal Saraf, [1959] SCR 1350 [LNIND 1958 SC 107] : AIR 1959 SC 135 [LNIND 1958 SC 107] : [1959] SCJ 53 [LNIND 1958 SC 107] .
- 25 Salomon v Salomon & Co, [1897 AC 22] , p 38 : [1895-9 All ER Rep 33] .

PREAMBLE

- 26 Tirath Singh v Bachittar Singh, [1955] 2 SCR 457 [LNIND 1955 SC 53] : AIR 1955 SC 830 [LNIND 1955 SC 53] .
- 27 Gurdial Singh v Central Board and Local Committee, Amritsar, (1928) ILR 9 Lah 689, p 698 : 113 IC 769 : AIR 1928 Lah 337 .
- 28 Caledonian Rly Co v North British Rly Co, (1881) LR 6 App Cas 114, p 122; R v Halliday, [1917 AC 260] , p 303.
- 29 Bengal Immunity Co Ltd v State of Bihar, [1955] 2 SCR 603 [LNIND 1955 SC 122] : AIR 1955 SC 661 [LNIND 1955 SC 122] .
- 30 Municipal Council, Palai v TJ Joseph, [1964] 2 SCR 87 [LNIND 1963 SC 43] : AIR 1963 SC 1561 [LNIND 1963 SC 43] : [1964] 2 SCJ 759 .
- 31 Barker v Edger, [1898 AC 748] , p 754.
- 32 Suratee Bara Bazaar Co v Municipal Corpn of Rangoon, (1927) ILR 5 Rang 772 : 107 IC 849 : AIR 1928 Rang 87 ; Western Countries Rly Co v Windsor and Annapolis Rly Co, [1882 7 App Cas 178] .
- 33 Commr of Public Works (Cape Colony) v Logan, [1903 AC 355] ; Gopeshwar Pal v Jiban Chandra, (1914) ILR 41 Cal 1125, p 1140 : 24 IC 37.
- 34 Anant Gopal Sheorey v State of Bombay, [1959] SCR 919 [LNIND 1958 SC 80] : AIR 1958 SC 915 [LNIND 1958 SC 80] : [1958] SCJ 1231 [LNIND 1958 SC 80] ; Colonial Sugar Refining Co v Irving, [1905 AC 369] ; Delhi Cloth and General Mills Co v CIT, 54 IA 421, p 425 : 30 Bom LR 60 : 106 IC 156 : AIR 1927 PC 242 [LNIND 1927 BOM 129] ; Mohammad Abdussamad v Kurban, (1904) ILR 26 All 119 : 31 IA 30, p 37.
- 35 Balaji v Gangamma, (1927) 51 Mad LJ 641, p 643 : 99 IC 143 : AIR 1927 Mad. 85 [LNIND 1926 MAD 247] .
- 36 Tika Sao v Hari Lal, (1940) ILR 19 Pat 752 : 189 IC 513 : AIR 1940 Pat. 385 .
- 37 Administrator-General v Premlal, (1895) ILR 22 Cal 788 : 22 IA 107, p 118; Aswini Kumar Ghosh v Arubinda Bose, [1953] 4 SCR 1 .
- 38 Workmen of Firestone Tyre & Rubber Co v Management, AIR 1973 SC 1227 [LNIND 1973 SC 430] , p 1239 : (1973) 1 SCC 813 [LNIND 1973 SC 430] .
- 39 Bhinka v Charan Singh, [1959] 2 SCR 798 (Supp) : AIR 1959 SC 960 [LNIND 1959 SC 303] .
- 40 Western India Theatres Ltd v Municipal Corpn of Poona, [1959] 2 SCR 71 (Supp) : AIR 1959 SC 586 [LNIND 1958 SC 204] .
- 41 Whitley Stokes, Anglo-Indian Codes, vol 1, p xxv.
- 42 Koylash Chunder v Sonatun, (1880) ILR 7 Cal 132.

PREAMBLE

- 43 Jumma Masjid, Mercara v Kodimaniandra Deviah, [1962] 2 SCR 554 (Supp) : AIR 1962 SC 847 [LNIND 1962 SC 4] : [1962] 2 SCJ 303 .
- 44 Maharani of Burdwan v Murtunjoy, (1887) ILR 14 Cal 365, p 372 : 14 IA 30, p 35; Aswini Kumar Ghosh v Arabinda Bose, [1953] 4 SCR 1 : AIR 1952 SC 369 [LNIND 1952 SC 60] .
- 45 Toronto Corp v Attorney-General of Canada, [1946 AC 32] , p 37; Craies, Statute law, 6th Edn, p 217.
- 46 CIT v Indo Mercantile Bank Ltd, [1959] 2 SCR 256 (Supp) : AIR 1959 SC 713 [LNIND 1959 SC 23] ; Tahsildar Singh v State of Uttar Pradesh, [1959] 2 SCR 875 (Supp) : AIR 1959 SC 1012 [LNIND 1959 SC 96] .
- 47 Chairman, Indore Vikas Pradhikaran v Pure Industrial Cock & Chem Ltd, AIR 2007 SC 2458 [LNIND 2007 SC 668] : JT 2007 (7) SC 352 [LNIND 2007 SC 668] : 2007 (8) Scale 110 [LNIND 2007 SC 668] : (2007) 8 SCC 705 [LNIND 2007 SC 668] .
- 48 Employees Provident Fund Commissioner v OL of Esskay Pharmaceuticals Ltd, AIR 2012 SC 11 [LNIND 2011 SC 999] : JT 2011 (13) SC 104 [LNIND 2011 SC 999] : 2011 (12) Scale 479 [LNIND 2011 SC 999] : (2011) 10 SCC 727 [LNIND 2011 SC 999] .

1. Short Title.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 1 Preliminary

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 1 Preliminary

Sections 1–4, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

1. Short Title.—

This Act may be called the Transfer of Property Act, 1882.

Commencement.—It shall come into force on the first day of July, 1882.

Extent.—¹[It extends² in the first instance to the whole of India except ³[the territories which, immediately before the 1st November, 1956, were comprised in Part B States or in the States of Bombay, Punjab and Delhi.]

⁴[But this Act or any part thereof may by notification in the Official Gazette be extended to the whole or any part of the ⁵[said territories] by the ⁶[State Government] concerned].

⁷[And any ⁸[State Government may ⁹[] from time to time, by notification in the Official Gazette, exempt, either retrospectively or prospectively, any part of the territories administered by such State Government from all or any of the following provisions, namely:—

Sections 54, paragraphs 2 and 3, 59, 107 and 123.]

¹⁰Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing part of this section, sections 54, paragraphs 2 and 3, and sections 59, 107 and 123 shall not extend or be extended to any district or tract of country for the time being excluded from the operation of the Indian Registration Act, ¹¹[1908] (16 of 1908) under the power conferred by the first section of that Act or otherwise.]

[s 1.1] Amendment

The only change made by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Act 20 of 1929, is to change the year of Registration Act from 1877 to 1908.

[s 1.2] Power of State Government

The Privy Council in *Empress v Burah*¹² upheld the validity of the power conferred on the provincial governments to vary the extent of the TP Act, 1882. Subsequent to the enactment of the Constitution the Supreme Court has held that such a power is valid, but the state government or the executive cannot modify the TP Act, 1882. As a part of an Act can be extended by an executive authority, it follows that a section or sections also can be picked out and applied.¹³

1. Short Title.—

Though Article 162 of the Constitution extends the executive power of a state to the matters with respect to which the legislature of the state has power to make laws, yet, neither the Central Government, nor state government can exercise its executive powers in relation to the aspects of transfer of property which are covered by the TP Act, 1882.¹⁴

[s 1.3] Application of Provisions of Act, where Act does not Apply, as Rules of Justice, Equity and Good Conscience

The Himachal Pradesh High Court has held that in the territories where the TP Act, 1882 was not in force, the courts can rely upon the various provisions of the TP Act, 1882 for guidance, if such provisions are in consonance with principles of justice, equity and good conscience.¹⁵ However, this rule may not apply to provisions which embody technical rules.¹⁶

1 Subs. by the A.O. 1950, for the original third paragraph.

2 The application of this Act was barred in the Naga Hills District, including the Mokokchang Sub-Division, the Dibrugarh Frontier Tract, the North Cachar Hills, the Garo Hills, the Khasea and Jaintia Hills and the Mikir Hills Tract, by notification under section 2 of the Assam Frontier Tracts Regulation, 1880 (2 of 1880). The Act has been declared to be in force in Panth Piploda by the Panth Piploda Laws Regulation, 1929 (1 of 1929), section 2, and continued in force, with modifications, in the territory transferred to Delhi Province by the Delhi Laws Act, 1915 (7 of 1915), section 3 and Sch. III. It has also been partially extended to Berar by the Berar Laws Act, 1941 (4 of 1941). The Act has been extended with effect from 1st January, 1893, to the whole of the territories, other than the Scheduled Districts, under the administration of the Govt. of Bombay. Sections 54, 107 and 123 have been extended from 6th May, 1925 to all Municipalities in the Punjab and to all notified areas declared and notified under section 241 of the Punjab Municipal Act, 1911 (Pun. Act 3 of 1911), see Punjab Gazette, Extra., 1925, p 27. These sections and section 129 have been extended to certain areas in Delhi Province, see Notifications No. 198/38-III, dated 30th May, 1939, Gazette of India, 1939, Pt. I, p 918, and No. 61/40-Judl., dated 16th November, 1940, Gazette of India, 1940, Pt. I, p 1639, respectively. The Act has been extended to Manipur by the Union Territories (Laws) Amendment Act, 1956 (68 of 1956). It has been rep. as to Government Grants by the Government Grants Act, 1895 (15 of 1895) and rep. or modified to the extent necessary to give effect to the provisions of the Madras City Tenants Protection Act, 1921 (Madras 3 of 1921) in the City of Madras; see section 13 of that Act. It has been amended in Bombay by Bombay Act 14 of 1939, and in Uttar Pradesh by Uttar Pradesh Act 24 of 1954. It has been extended to Pondicherry by Act 26 of 1968, section 3, Sch., Pt I.

3 Subs. by the Adaptation of Laws (No. 2) Order, 1956, for “Part B States”.

4 Subs. by the A.O. 1937, for the original paragraph.

5 Subs. by the Adaptation of Laws (No. 2) Order, 1956, for “said States”.

6 Subs. by A.O. 1950, for “Provincial Government”.

7 Subs. by Act 3 of 1885, section 1, for the original paragraph.

8 Subs. by A.O. 1950, for “Provincial Government”.

1. Short Title.—

- 9 The words “with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council” omitted by Act 38 of 1920, section 2 and Sch. I.
- 10 Added by Act 3 of 1885, section 2 (with retrospective effect). Section 54, paras 2 and 3 and sections 59, 107 and 123 extend to every cantonment—see section 287 of the Cantonment Act, 1924 (2 of 1924).
- 11 Subs. by Act 20 of 1929, section 2, for “1877”.
- 12 Empress v Burah, (1877) ILR 4 Cal 172 : 5 IA 178; State of Bombay v Narottamdas Jethabai, [1951] SCR 51 [LNIND 1950 SC 57] .
- 13 See Rajnarain Singh v Chairman, Patna Administration Committee, [1955] 1 SCR 290 [LNIND 1954 SC 102] .
- 14 See A Citizen of India v State of Karnataka, (1996) ILR Kant 3136 approved in Medical Council of India v State of Karnataka, AIR 1998 SC 2423 [LNIND 1998 SC 609] : (1998) 6 SCC 131 [LNIND 1998 SC 609] .
- 15 Gulab Singh v Dilbaru, AIR 1989 HP 23 [LNIND 1987 HP 16] , p 25.
- 16 Teja Singh v Kalyan Das, (1925) ILR 6 Lah 487 : 91 IC 778 : AIR 1925 Lah 575 ; Kanwar Ram v Ghugi, 108 IC 57 : AIR 1928 Lah 148 ; Ratan Chand v Smail, 149 IC 853 : AIR 1933 Lah 821 ; Melka Singh v Shankari, AIR 1947 Lah 1 ; Ram Gopal v Gurbux Singh, AIR 1955 Punj 215 .

2. Repeal of Acts.—Saving of certain enactments, incidents, rights, liabilities, etc.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 1 Preliminary

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 1 Preliminary

Sections 1–4, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

2. Repeal of Acts.—Saving of certain enactments, incidents, rights, liabilities, etc.—

In the territories to which this Act extends for the time being the enactments specified in the Schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent therein mentioned. But nothing herein contained shall be deemed to affect—

- (a) the provisions of any enactment not hereby expressly repealed;
- (b) any terms or incidents of any contract or constitution of property which are consistent with the provisions of this Act, and are allowed by the law for the time being in force;
- (c) any right or liability arising out of a legal relation constituted before this Act comes into force, or any relief in respect of any such right or liability; or
- (d) save as provided by section 57 and chapter IV of this Act, any transfer by operation of law or by, or in execution of, a decree or order of a Court of competent jurisdiction; and nothing in the second Chapter of this Act shall be deemed to affect any rule of ¹⁷] Muhammadan ¹⁸] law.

[s 2.1] Amendment

The only amendment made in this section by the amending Act 20 of 1929 is to omit the words “Hindu” and or “Buddhist” in the last paragraph of the section. As a result of the amendment, chapter II now also applies to Hindus and Buddhists.

[s 2.2] Nothing herein Contained

These words refer to the whole Act, and not to this section only.¹⁹

[s 2.3] Clause (a)—Enactments not Expressly Repealed

The TP Act, 1882 does not apply to patnis which are governed by the Patni Regulation and Bengal Regulation (8 of 1819) because these Regulations have not been expressly repealed by the TP Act, 1882.²⁰ A surrender of land by razinama and kabulayet under the Bombay Land Revenue Code is not affected by the provisions of the TP Act, 1882, and is not void for want of registration.²¹ The effect of clause (a) is to maintain intact the statutory

2. Repeal of Acts.—Saving of certain enactments, incidents, rights, liabilities, etc.—

force which the legislature has given to local usage in Punjab and Oudh.²² The Andhra Pradesh High Court has held that because of this clause, section 59 of the TP Act, 1882 cannot prevail over O XXI, rule 34 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and that mortgages executed under that rule need not be attested by two witnesses.²³

[s 2.4] Clause (b)—Saving of Incidents of Contract and of Property

A right of partition is an incident of property held in joint tenancy or tenancy in common which is not affected by the Act, and partition may be made orally.²⁴ Another such incident would be a right of pre-emption.

A mortgagee is entitled to be reimbursed for all costs reasonably incurred in respect of the mortgage security;²⁵ and this has been described as an implied term of a mortgage saved by this clause.²⁶

[s 2.5] Zamindar's Right to Share of Sale-price

In certain areas, the zamindar has a customary right to recover one-fourth of the sale consideration for a house sold by the riyaya. This is a customary right of antiquity mentioned in the wajibularz of the village. It is based not on contract or encumbrance, but arises only on sale and is saved by section 2(c) from the operation of section 55. The riyaya has no saleable interest in a house in an agricultural village, but such a right is given to him on the understanding that if he leaves or abandons it, the zamindar gets one-fourth as zare chahorum. This custom was acknowledged because in settling the house, the zamindar had to make certain investments, and thus the custom matured into a legal force. The custom is not unreasonable or opposed to law.²⁷

[s 2.6] Clause (c)—Saving of Rights and Liabilities Created before the Act

This clause follows the general rule that in the absence of a clear indication to the contrary, statutes affecting substantive rights are not retrospective. All rights, liabilities and remedies constituted before the TP Act, 1882 came into force, are left in precisely the same position as if the TP Act, 1882 had not been passed. Thus, a mortgage executed before the TP Act, 1882 is not invalid on the ground that it does not comply with the requirement of section 59 as to attestation.²⁸

The provisions of the TP Act, 1882 do not apply to a tenancy created before the TP Act, 1882 came into force.²⁹ Section 108 (j) is not retrospective, and a tenancy, which was not transferable before the TP Act, 1882, does not become so, by virtue of that section.³⁰ Provisions of section 108 (o) as to waste do not apply to a lease executed before the Act.³¹ Similarly, section 111(d) has no application to leases executed before the TP Act, 1882, and a mokarari lease granted before the TP Act, 1882, is not extinguished by merger in a patni subsequently granted.³²

[s 2.7] Clause (d)—Transfer by Operation of Law

The TP Act, 1882, save and except certain exceptions referred to below, does not apply to transfers by the operation of law, but is limited, as stated in the preamble, to transfers “by act of parties”. A transfer by the operation of law is not validated or invalidated by anything contained in the TP Act, 1882.³³ Transfers by operation of law occur in cases of testamentary and intestate succession, forfeiture, insolvency and court-sales. A purchaser at a court-sale acquires title by operation of law,³⁴ and at such sales, title is transferred without a registered deed;³⁵ a purchaser of a debt at an execution sale is not affected by section 135.³⁶ The title of the auction purchaser is derived from the sale certificate, and not from the dakhalnama which is simply a document of delivery of possession.³⁷

Questions have arisen as to whether transfers between parties under orders or directions issued under legislation such as the Essential Commodities Act are “sales” within the meaning of the Sale of Goods Act. It has been held that there is no sale where the element of mutual assent is absent, as is the case when property is compulsorily acquired.³⁸ The Supreme Court in Vishnu Agencies (Pvt) Ltd v Commercial Tax Officer,³⁹ held that a mere regulatory law even if it circumscribes the area of free choice does not take away the basic character, or the core of sale from the transaction. Such a law which governs a class, may oblige sellers to deal only with parties holding licences who may buy particular or allotted quantities of goods at specified prices, but an essential element of choice is still left to the parties between whom agreements took place. The court held that cases⁴⁰ of compulsory acquisition by the state stand on a different footing since in such cases, there is neither any question of offer and acceptance, nor of consent, either express or implied.

2. Repeal of Acts.—Saving of certain enactments, incidents, rights, liabilities, etc.—

The principle of these decisions must be applied with caution to the provisions of TP Act, 1882, as an involuntary “sale” is not necessarily a transfer by the operation of law. Legislature can modify, annul and substitute the contracts inter-vivos. Therefore, when by a legislative provision parties to the lease are substituted, it cannot be held that there is assignment or transfer of the lease or sub-letting of the premises, by the lessee to the person or authority in whom the leasehold rights are vested by operation of law.⁴¹

However, although section 2(d) makes the TP Act, 1882 inapplicable to transfers by operation of law, the principle of some sections, for instance section 36,⁴² section 44,⁴³ and section 53⁴⁴ has been applied to such transfers.

[s 2.7.1] Exception as to section 57 and chapter IV of the Act

An exception is made with reference to section 57 and chapter IV as the latter provides for the transfer and extinction of a mortgagor's interest by a decree of the court, and the former provides for the discharge of encumbrances by order of a court. With reference to these sections, section 2(d) overrides the provisions of section 5.⁴⁵

[s 2.8] Mahomedan Law

Section 2 says that “nothing in the second Chapter of this Act shall be deemed to affect any rule of Mahomedan law.” The reason for this provision is that some of the rules of law differ from the general rules as to the transfer of property enacted in chapter II. Thus, a Mahomedan may settle property in perpetuity for the benefit of his descendants, provided there is an ultimate gift in favour of charity.⁴⁶

This rule is not affected by section 13 and 14 of the TP Act, 1882. The Mahomedan law of gifts is expressly saved by section 129. Under that law, writing is not essential to the validity of a gift,⁴⁷ but delivery of possession or of such possession as the subject-matter of the gift is susceptible of, is necessary for a transfer by way of gift.⁴⁸

Although section 2 saves rules of Mahomedan law, it does not follow that the general rules in chapter II cannot apply to Mahomedan transfers. These general rules are excluded only if there is an inconsistent rule of Mahomedan law. Where there is no inconsistent rule of Mahomedan law, the sections in chapter II apply proprio vigore, for all that section 2 says is that nothing in chapter II shall be deemed to affect any rule of Mahomedan law. However, in any case not covered either by the sections in chapter II or by Mahomedan law, the English law is applied on the ground of justice, equity and good conscience.⁴⁹

[s 2.9] Hindu Law

The TP Act, 1882 as it stood before the amending Act 20 of 1929, also saved rules of Hindu law. The word “Hindu” has been omitted as the differences between that law and the TP Act, 1882 have now been removed. These differences were:

(1) The rule in *Tagore v Tagore*⁵⁰ and Chundi Churn v Sidheswari,⁵¹ that bequests and transfer in favour of unborn persons are wholly void, was in conflict with sections 13, 14 and 20 of the TP Act, 1882. The Hindu law on this subject had been modified by the Hindu Disposition of Property Act, 1916, Madras Act, 1914, and Act 8 of 1921, which validated such transfers. These Acts have been amended by sections 11, 12 and 13 of Act 21 of 1929, and the effect of the amendments is that subject to the limitations in chapter II of TP Act, 1882 and in sections 113, 114, 115 and 116 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, no transfer inter vivos, or by will of property by a Hindu shall be invalid by reason only that any person for whose benefit it may have been made was not born at the date of such disposition. The TP Act, 1882 is in consonance with these amendments and so the word “Hindu” is omitted in this section.

2. Repeal of Acts.—Saving of certain enactments, incidents, rights, liabilities, etc.—

(2) Another difference was the rule enacted in sections 15 and 16 of the TP Act, 1882 before the amendment in 1929, that if a transfer to a class fails as to some of its members by reason of remoteness, it fails as to the whole class. This was in conflict with Hindu law, and the sections have been amended so as to accord with the law.

[s 2.10] Rule of Damdapat

The Hindu rule of damdupat, under which interest exceeding principal cannot be received at any one time, ceases to operate from the date of a suit on a mortgage.⁵² There are conflicting decisions as to whether the rule applies in the case of mortgages governed by the TP Act, 1882, it being held by Madras High Court that it does not,⁵³ and by Bombay and Calcutta High Courts,⁵⁴ that it does. The amendment of section 2(d) by Act 20 of 1929 does not affect those decisions.

[s 2.11] Buddhist Law

Prior to 1929, the TP Act, 1882 saved rules of Buddhist law, but the words “or Buddhist” which occurred in section 2(d) have now been omitted.

[s 2.12] Government Grants

Government grants are exempted from the operation of the TP Act, 1882 by section 2 of the Government Grants Act, 1895. That Act excludes the operation of the TP Act, 1882 to transfers made by or on behalf of the government.⁵⁵ Thus, the rights and obligations of parties would be governed by the terms of the provisions of the Government Grants Act, 1895, where under the government would be entitled to impose limitations and restrictions upon grants and other transfers made by it or under its authority.⁵⁶

Where there is ambiguity in the document of grant, the terms of the grant have to be construed strictly against the grantor and in favour of the grantee.⁵⁷

¹⁷ The word “Hindu” omitted by Act 20 of 1929, section 3.

¹⁸ The words “or Buddhist” omitted by Act 20 of 1929, section 3.

¹⁹ Ulfat Hossain v Gayani Dass, (1909) ILR 36 Cal 802 : 3 IC 994; Promotho Nath v Kali Prasanna, (1901) ILR 28 Cal 744, p 750; contra Naba Krishna v Mohit Kali, 9 IC 840.

²⁰ Surendra Narain Sinha v Bijoy Singh, (1925) ILR 52 Cal 655 : 89 IC 785 : AIR 1925 Cal 962 .

²¹ Motibhai v Desaibhai, (1917) ILR 41 Bom 170 : 38 IC 838.

²² Whitley Stokes, Anglo-Indian Codes, vol 1, p 746; The Punjab Laws Act, 1872; The Oudh Laws Act, 1876.

2. Repeal of Acts.—Saving of certain enactments, incidents, rights, liabilities, etc.—

- 23 Genamal v Ramaswamy, AIR 1960 AP 465 [LNIND 1959 AP 200] .
- 24 Gyannessa v Mobarakannessa, (1898) ILR 25 Cal 210.
- 25 National Provincial Bank v Games, (1886) 31 ChD 582 .
- 26 Varadarajulu v Dhanlakshmi, (1914) 16 Mad LT 365 : 26 IC 184. See Code of Civil Procedure 1908, O XXXIV, rule 10.
- 27 Lala Badri Prasad v Gouri Shanker, AIR 1973 All 162 .
- 28 Jati Kar v Mukunda Deb, (1912) ILR 39 Cal 227, p 230 : 11 IC 884.
- 29 Hiramoti v Annoda Prosad, (1908) 7 Cal LJ 553 ; Madhab Chandra v Bejoy Chand, (1901) 4 Cal WN 574; Ananda v Gobinda, (1916) 20 Cal WN 322 : 33 IC 565; Chota Nagpur Banking Association v Kamakhya Narayan, (1928) ILR 7 Pat 341 : 109 IC 306 : AIR 1928 Pat. 431 ; Durgi Nikarini v Gobordhan, (1914) 19 Cal WN 525, p 527 : 24 IC 183.
- 30 Hari Nath v Raj Chandra, (1897) 2 Cal WN 122; Madhu Sudan v Kamini, (1905) ILR 32 Cal 1023, p 1029; Umakanta v Kashiram, 23 IC 246; Ananda v Gobinda, (1916) 20 Cal WN 322; Sarda Kanta v Nabin Chandra, (1927) ILR 54 Cal 333 : 97 IC 817 : AIR 1927 Cal 39 ; Sulin Mohan v Raj Krishna, (1921) 25 Cal WN 420 : 60 IC 826 : AIR 1921 Cal 582 .
- 31 Meghlal v Rajkumar, (1907) ILR 34 Cal 358, p 370.
- 32 Hirendra Nath v Hari Mohan Ghosh, (1914) 18 Cal WN 860 : 22 IC 966; Ram Bissen Dutt v Haripada, (1919) 23 Cal WN 830 : 51 IC 389.
- 33 Bharat Petroleum Corpn Ltd v P Kesavan, (2004) 9 SCC 772 [LNIND 2004 SC 434] , paras 12 & 20 : AIR 2004 SC 2206 [LNIND 2004 SC 434] ; Harishchandra Hegde v State of Karnataka, (2004) 9 SCC 780 , pars 13 & 17 : (2005) 11 JT 331 ; Promotho Nath v Kali Prasanna, (1901) ILR 28 Cal 744.
- 34 Dinendronath Sannyal v Ramcoomar Ghose, (1881) ILR 7 Cal 693 : 8 IA 65, p 75.
- 35 Balaji v Dajiba, (1889) 2 CP LR 137.
- 36 Krishnan v Perachan, (1892) ILR 15 Mad 382.
- 37 Krishna Mohan v Balkrishna Chaturvedi, AIR 2001 All 334 [LNIND 2001 ALL 624] , para 26.
- 38 Kirkness v John Hudson & Co Ltd, (1955) AC 696 : [1955] 2 All ER 345 .
- 39 Vishnu Agencies (Pvt) Ltd v Commercial Tax Officer, (1978) 1 SCC 520 [LNIND 1977 SC 352] , the court overruled its earlier decision in New India Sugar Mills Ltd v Commr of Sales Tax, [1963] 2 SCR 459 (Supp) : AIR 1963 SC 1207 wherein they held that under control legislations the seller is compelled to sell and the element of mutual consent is missing. See also Indian Steel and Wire Products v State of Madras, [1968] 1 SCR 479 [LNIND 1967 SC 263] : AIR 1968 SC 478 [LNIND 1967 SC 263] .

2. Repeal of Acts.—Saving of certain enactments, incidents, rights, liabilities, etc.—

- 40 For instance Chhitter Mal Narain Das v Commr of Sales Tax, (1970) 3 SCC 809 [LNIND 1970 SC 284] ; Kirkness v John Hudson & Co Ltd, (1955) AC 696 : [1955] 2 All ER 345 .
- 41 G Sridharamurthi v Hindustan Petroleum Corpn Ltd, AIR 1991 Kant. 249 [LNIND 1990 KANT 210] , p 252; see sections 3, 4, 5(1) of Esso (Acquisition of Undertakings in India) Act, 1974.
- 42 Shivaprasad v Prayag Kumari, (1934) ILR 61 Cal 711 : 154 IC 479 : AIR 1935 Cal 39 .
- 43 Puddipeddi Laxminarasamma v Gadi Rangnayakamma, AIR 1962 Ori. 147 [LNIND 1961 ORI 60] .
- 44 Akramunissa Bibi v Mustafa-un-nissa Bibi, (1929) ILR 51 All 595 : 116 IC 445 : AIR 1929 All 238 ; Chattru Mal v Mt Majidan, (1934) ILR 15 Lah 849 : 150 IC 888 : AIR 1934 Lah 460 .
- 45 Laxmi Devi v S M Kanwar, [1965] 1 SCR 226 : AIR 1965 SC 834 [LNIND 1964 SC 366] : [1965] 2 SCJ 656 .
- 46 See the Wakf Validating Act, 1913, to which retrospective effect was given by the Musalman Wakf Validating Act, 1930.
- 47 See Kamar-un-Nissa v Husaini Bibi, (1880) ILR 3 All 267.
- 48 Sadik Husain v Hashim Ali, (1916) ILR 38 All 627 : 43 IA 212 : 36 IC 104; Chaudhri Medhi Hasan v Muhammad Hasan, (1906) ILR 28 All 439 : 33 IA 68; Mohammad v Fakhr Jahan, 49 IA 195, 209 : 68 IC 254 : AIR 1922 PC 281 .
- 49 Muhammad Raza v Abbas Bandi Bibi, 59 IA 236 : (1932) All LJ 709 : 34 Bom LR 1048 : 63 Mad LJ 180 : 137 IC 321 : AIR 1932 PC 158 .
- 50 Tagore v Tagore, (1872) 9 Beng LR 37.
- 51 Chundi Churn v Sidheswari, (1889) ILR 16 Cal 71 : 15 IA 149.
- 52 Dhondshet v Ravji, (1898) ILR 22 Bom 86; Re Hari Lal Mullick, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 1269.
- 53 Madhwa v Venkata, (1903) ILR 26 Mad 662.
- 54 Jeewanbai v Manordas, (1911) ILR 35 Bom 199 : 8 IC 649; Kunja v Narsamba Debi, (1915) ILR 42 Cal 826 : 31 IC 6. For a fuller discussion of the rule of damdupat, see Mulla's Hindu Law.
- 55 Dwarkaprasad v Kathleen, AIR 1955 Ngp 38 ; West Bengal v Birendra Nath, 59 Cal WN 610.
- 56 Pradeep Oil Corps v Municipal Corp of Delhi, AIR 2011 SC 1869 [LNIND 2011 SC 381] : (2011) 5 SCC 270 [LNIND 2011 SC 381] .
- 57 Shree Gujarati Harijan Co-operative Housing Society v Addl Collector, Bombay, AIR 1992 Bom 263 [LNIND 1991 BOM 115] , p 267; Sahebzada Mohamad Kamgarh Shah v Jagdish Chandra Deo Dhabal Deb, AIR 1960 SC 953 [LNIND

2. Repeal of Acts.—Saving of certain enactments, incidents, rights, liabilities, etc.—

1960 SC 132 ; Delhi Development Authority v Durgachand Kaushish, AIR 1973 SC 2609 [LNIND 1973 SC 254] : (1973) 2 SCC 825 [LNIND 1973 SC 254] .

End of Document

3. Interpretation-clause.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 1 Preliminary

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 1 Preliminary

Sections 1–4, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

3. Interpretation-clause.—

In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,— “immovable property” does not include standing timber, growing crops, or grass;

“instrument” means a non-testamentary instrument;

⁵⁸“attested”, in relation to an instrument, means and shall be deemed always to have meant attested by two or more witnesses each of whom has seen the executant sign or affix his mark to the instrument, or has seen some other person sign the instrument in the presence and by the direction of the executant, or has received from the executant a personal acknowledgment of his signature or mark, or of the signature of such other person, and each of whom has signed the instrument in the presence of the executant; but it shall not be necessary that more than one of such witnesses shall have been present at the same time, and no particular form of attestation shall be necessary;]

“registered” means registered in ⁵⁹⁶⁰[any part of the territories] to which this Act extends] under the law⁶¹ for the time being in force regulating the registration of documents;

“attached to the earth” means—

- (a) rooted in the earth, as in the case of trees and shrubs;
- (b) imbedded in the earth, as in the case of walls or buildings; or
- (c) attached to what is so imbedded for the permanent beneficial enjoyment of that to which it is attached;

⁶²“actionable claim” means a claim to any debt, other than a debt secured by mortgage of immovable property or by hypothecation or pledge of movable property or to any beneficial interest in movable property not in the possession, either actual or constructive, of the claimant, which the Civil Courts recognise as affording grounds for relief, whether such debt or beneficial interest be existent, accruing, conditional or contingent;]

⁶³“a person is said to have notice” of a fact when he actually knows that fact, or when, but for wilful abstention from an inquiry or search which he ought to have made, or gross negligence, he would have known it.

Explanation 1.—Where any transaction relating to immovable property is required by law to be and has been effected by a registered instrument, any person acquiring such property or any part of, or share or interest in, such property shall be deemed to have notice of such instrument as from the date of registration or, where the property is not all situated in one sub-district, or where the registered instrument has been registered under sub-section (2) of section 30 of the Indian Registration Act, 1908, (16 of 1908), from the earliest date on which any memorandum of such registered instrument has been filed by any Sub-Registrar within whose sub-district any part of the property which is being acquired, or of the property wherein a share or interest is being acquired, is situated:]

3. Interpretation-clause.—

Provided that—

- (1) the instrument has been registered and its registration completed in the manner prescribed by the Indian Registration Act, 1908 (16 of 1908), and the rules made thereunder,
- (2) the instrument or memorandum has been duly entered or filed, as the case may be, in books kept under section 51 of that Act, and
- (3) the particulars regarding the transaction to which the instrument relates have been correctly entered in the indexes kept under section 55 of that Act.

Explanation II.— Any person acquiring any immovable property or any share or interest in any such property shall be deemed to have notice of the title, if any, of any person who is for the time being in actual possession thereof.

Explanation III.— A person shall be deemed to have had notice of any fact if his agent acquires notice thereof whilst acting on his behalf in the course of business to which that fact is material:

Provided that, if the agent fraudulently conceals the fact, the principal shall not be charged with notice thereof as against any person who was a party to or otherwise cognizant of the fraud.

[s 3.1] Amendments

The only amendment made in this section by the amendment Act of 1929 is with regard to the definition of “a person is said to have notice”.

[s 3.2] Immovable Property—General

The distinction between movable and immovable property was explained by Holloway J in an old case⁶⁴ decided by Madras High Court, as follows:

Movability may be defined to be the capacity in a thing of suffering alteration of the relation of place immovability in capacity for such alteration. If, however, a thing cannot change its place without injury to the quality by virtue of which it is, what it is, it is immovable. Certain things such as a piece of land are in all circumstances immovable. Other things such as trees attached to the ground are, so long as they are so attached, immovable; when the severance has been effected they become movable.

The definition of “immovable property” in section 3(26) of the General Clauses Act is not exhaustive. That definition is as follows:

3. Interpretation-clause.—

Immovable property shall include land, benefits to arise out of land, and things attached to the earth, or permanently fastened to anything attached to the earth.

The TP Act, 1882 defines the phrase “attached to the earth”, but gives no definition of immovable property beyond excluding standing timber, growing crops and grass. These are no doubt excluded because they are only useful as timber, corn and fodder after they are severed from the land. Before they are so severed, they pass on transfer of the land under section 8 as things attached to the earth.

A “benefit to arise out of land” is an interest in land and, therefore, immovable property. The Registration Act, however, expressly includes as immovable property benefits arising out of land, hereditary allowances, rights of way, lights, ferries and fisheries.

From a combined reading of the definition of “immovable property” in section 3 of the TP Act, 1882 and section 3(5) of the General Clauses Act, it is evident that in an immovable property, there is neither mobility, nor marketability as understood in the excise law.⁶⁵

In the larger definition of “immoveable property” “anything attached to the earth” would normally be treated as immoveable property and a tree which is attached to the earth and seeks its nourishment and sustenance from the soil in which it stands will be deemed to be attached to the earth with the only distinction that if it was tree of a kind which is usually used as timber and was of sufficient size so as it could be used as such and is intended to be severed from the soil reasonably thereafter, it may be treated to be immoveable property. Therefore, apart from the size of the trees, the relevant consideration would be the intention to cut the tree or to let it remain attached to the earth. In the former case, it will be termed as “standing timber” while in the latter it must remain immovable property.⁶⁶

[s 3.3] Various items of Property

The definition of immovable property in the General Clauses Act applies to TP Act, 1882.⁶⁷ Since the definition in the TP Act, 1882 is negative and not exhaustive, section 3(26) of General Clause Act applies except as modified by the definition in the first clause of section 3.⁶⁸ In the absence of a special definition, general definition must prevail.⁶⁹

The following have been held to be immovable property:

A tree (except standing timber),⁷⁰ varashasan or annual allowance charged on land;⁷¹ a right to collect dues at a fair held on a plot of land;⁷² a haat or market;⁷³ a right to possession and management of a saranjam;⁷⁴ a malikana;⁷⁵ a right to collect or jana;⁷⁶ a life interest in the income of immovable property;⁷⁷ a right of way;⁷⁸ a ferry;⁷⁹ a fishery;⁸⁰ a lease of land.⁸¹ The Supreme Court has held that trees, which at the time of agreement for sale, were mere saplings on the land would vest in the transferee.⁸² Right of enjoyment of immovable property under a lease (section 105) is immovable property, and would pass under a will which uses the words “all my movable and immovable properties.”⁸³ The right of enjoyment contemplated by section 105 is an interest in the immovable property. The agreement of lease confers on the lessee the right to possess the immovable property which is subject matter of the lease. Where the words used in the will were “all my movable and immovable properties”, those words would cover a tenancy also.⁸⁴ It has been held by the Supreme Court⁸⁵ that a right to enter upon land and to carry away fish from a lake is a right to profits a pendre and that it amounts to immovable property in India as a benefit arising from land. Therefore, the sale of tank excavated out of fertile land and on which fisheries rights were being exercised has to be made by registered instrument.⁸⁶ Similarly, a right to enter upon land and remove trees has been held by the Supreme Court to require registration.⁸⁷ A right to graze over the land of another is a profit.⁸⁸ Under these decisions, right to profits a pendre are benefits arising from land, and, therefore, immovable property, unless they relate to standing timber, growing crops or grass, which are specifically excluded by section 3. A contract for the purpose of felling, cutting, obtaining and removing bamboo from forest areas “for the purpose of converting the bamboo into paper pulp or for purposes connected with the manufacture of paper or in any connection incidental therewith” was held to be a grant of a profit a pendre, or a benefit to arise out of land.⁸⁹ A right given to rear lac has been held to amount to a loan interest in immovable property,⁹⁰ and so is a right to collect rents from tenants who pay for the use and occupation of land.⁹¹ On the other hand, a royalty is not immovable property;⁹² nor a right to recover maintenance though charged on land;⁹³ nor the right of a purchaser to have the land purchased registered in his name.⁹⁴

3. Interpretation-clause.—

With reference to the Limitation Act, 1963, the Privy Council said that the words “immovable property” were used as something less technical than “real”, and included all that would be real property under English law and possibly more, and that if the nature and quality of the property can only be determined by Hindu law and usage, the Hindu law may properly be invoked for the purpose.⁹⁵ Accordingly, a todayira’s hak or an inamdar’s right to an annual payment from a village is immovable property.⁹⁶ For the same reason, a priest’s right to recover dues at a funeral;⁹⁷ a right granted by the Peshwas to levy toll on exports of grain;⁹⁸ and a right of assessment⁹⁹ have been held to be immovable property. On the other hand, a pala or turn of worship is movable property.¹⁰⁰ A yajman vritti though treated as immovable property, is not immovable property in the proper sense of the word and the assignment of a right to collect offerings from yajmans for a period of years is not a lease.¹⁰¹ Similarly, the amount payable by a yajman to a panda when the former visits the holy place is not immovable property.¹⁰² A vested remainder is immovable property.¹⁰³ Plant and machinery permanently embedded in the earth with an intention to use it as such has to be construed as immovable property.¹⁰⁴ The mere attachment to earth does not qualify a plant to be treated as immovable property and to qualify as immovable property, the attachment has to be for the permanent beneficial enjoyment of the land and should not have separate existence devoid of the land.¹⁰⁵

[s 3.4] Mortgages

An equity of redemption is immovable property,¹⁰⁶ and so is the mortgagee’s interest in the immovable property mortgaged.¹⁰⁷ There are many conflicting decisions as to whether a mortgage debt is immovable property, but since a mortgage debt has been excluded from the definition of an actionable claim by Act 2 of 1900, it seems that a mortgage debt is for all intents and purposes, immovable property,¹⁰⁸ though for the purposes of attachment it is treated as movable property.¹⁰⁹ A Full Bench of the Rangoon High Court has said that a mortgage, being a transfer of an interest in immovable property, is immovable property, and that a suit to enforce a mortgage is a suit for land under the Letters Patent of the Chartered High Courts.¹¹⁰

[s 3.5] Standing Timber

Standing timber are trees fit for use for the purpose of building or repairing houses.¹¹¹ This is an exception to the general rule that growing trees are immovable property.¹¹² In order that trees may be considered to be standing timber, they must first be trees whose wood is suitable for use for building houses, bridges, ships, etc.¹¹³ In English law, this would refer to oak, ash or elm trees;¹¹⁴ and in India, to neem, shisham,¹¹⁵ babul,¹¹⁶ or teak trees.¹¹⁷ If a tree is a growing tree, drawing sustenance from the soil, it is immovable property; where, however, it is to be cut soon, the amount of sustenance it will draw from the soil is negligible, and is to be disregarded. This distinction is well brought out by Sir Edward Vaughan Williams in a passage cited by Lord Coleridge CJ in Marshall v Green:¹¹⁸

The principle of these decisions appears to be this, that wherever at the time of the contract it is contemplated that the purchaser should derive a benefit from the further growth of the thing sold from further vegetation and from the nutriment to be afforded by the land, the contract is to be considered as for an interest in land; but where the process of vegetation is over, or the parties agree that the thing sold shall be immediately withdrawn from the land, is to be considered as a mere warehouse of the thing sold, and the contract is for goods.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

In a separate but concurring judgment in Shantabai v State of Bombay,¹¹⁹ Bose J has adopted the same test; and the same view has been taken in some other decisions.¹²⁰

A fruit-bearing tree would not be standing timber, and would be classed as immovable property;¹²¹ in areas, however, where mango trees are used for building or repairing houses, it may be standing timber.¹²² A mahua tree is not standing timber;¹²³ nor palm or date-trees used for the purpose of drawing toddy.¹²⁴ An agreement to sell standing and fallen mango and jackfruit trees on the estate is an agreement to sell immovable property.¹²⁵ In execution of a decree passed in a money suit, the trees and bamboo clumps in agricultural lands of the plaintiffs, who were having half-share in the land and were not parties to the money suit, were auctioned, treating the trees and bamboo clumps to be movable property (being standing timber). However, for nearly 10 years thereafter, no effort was made by the purchasers to cut the trees as timber, and there was nothing to show that the purchasers made any effort to either seek an auction of trees in order to share half the price for which they may be sold, or in any way to seek partition of same. It could not be presumed that the purchasers actually intended to cut away the trees as timber. Thus, the trees and bamboo clumps must be held to be immovable property and the Small Cause Court did not have jurisdiction to proceed to execute the decree by sale of the trees, treating them as “movable property”.¹²⁶

If all the factors go to indicate that the parties intended to deal with the tree as timber, then it would be called standing timber. Standing timber is not “immovable property” and a document relating thereto, does not require registration.¹²⁷

[s 3.6] Growing Crops

These are not limited to annual crops or emblements as they are called in English law. Growing crops have been held to include all vegetable growths, which have no existence apart from their produce such as pan leaves¹²⁸ and sugarcane.¹²⁹

[s 3.7] Grass

Grass is movable property, but it would appear that a right to cut grass would be an interest in land and, therefore, immovable property. A sale of growing grass to be moved and made into hay by the purchaser has been held in English law to be an interest in land,¹³⁰ but not so, if the vendor has to cut the grass and deliver it to the purchaser.¹³¹ A lease of a mango grove entitling the lessee to the grass growing on the land is a lease in respect of immovable property. In a case decided by Full Bench of Madras High Court case,¹³² Collins CJ said:

It has long been settled that an agreement for the sale and purchase of growing grass, growing timber or underwood, or growing fruit, not made with a view to their immediate severance and removal from the soil and delivery as chattels to the purchaser, is a contract for the sale of an interest in land.

[s 3.8] Movable Property

There is no definition of movable property in the TP Act, 1882. Movable property has been defined in the General Clauses Act to mean “property of every description except immovable property”. The Registration Act defines movable property to include property of every description excluding immovable property, but including standing timber, growing crops and grass.¹³³ Electricity is a movable property.¹³⁴

[s 3.9] Instrument

3. Interpretation-clause.—

The definition of movable property excludes a will. The word instrument is used in the sense defined in *Somu v Rangamma*¹³⁵ as being not only evidence of the transaction, but the transaction itself.

When execution of the Will is fully proved then in order to ascertain the wishes of the testator we have to look to the text of the Will. The intention of the testator has to be discerned from the language used in the Will. If a Will appears on the face of it to have been duly executed and attested in accordance with the requirements of the Statute, a presumption of due execution and attestation applies.¹³⁶ The Supreme Court, in Mathai Samuel v Eapen Eapen (dead) by LRs,¹³⁷ declared that “subsequent events or conduct of parties after the execution of the document shall not be taken into consideration in interpreting a document especially when there is no ambiguity in the language of the document.”

[s 3.10] Attested

The definition of the word “attested” was inserted by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Act 27 of 1926, and was further amended by the insertion of the words “and shall be deemed always to have meant” by the Repealing and Amending Act, 1927, to show that the definition had retrospective effect.

Section 63 of the Indian Succession Act read with section 68 of the Evidence Act and section 3 of the TP Act, 1882 makes a mandatory obligation to have the document attested, and evidence of such attestation be made available before the court at the time of the trial.¹³⁸

In English law, attestation implies that the attesting witness was present at execution, and can testify that the deed was executed voluntarily by the proper person.¹³⁹ Prior to 1912, the courts in India were sharply divided as to whether the word is used in this narrow sense in the TP Act, 1882, or whether it includes attestation on admission of execution as in the case of Indian Succession Act. The Allahabad and Bombay High Courts put the latter wider construction upon the word,¹⁴⁰ while the Madras and Calcutta High Courts favoured the narrow construction,¹⁴¹ subject perhaps to relaxation in the case of pardanashin women.¹⁴² In 1912, however, the Privy Council in the case of Shamu Patter v Abdul Kader,¹⁴³ held that an attesting witness must have seen the executant sign. The Transfer of Property (Validating) Act, 1917 was passed to validate instruments attested on admission of execution in reliance on the decisions by Allahabad and Bombay High Court. Shamu Patter's case was followed until the enactment of Act 27 of 1926, which inserted in the TP Act, 1882 a definition including attestation on acknowledgement of execution.¹⁴⁴ The TP Act, 1882 being declaratory of the law, was held in the undermentioned case¹⁴⁵ to be retrospective. In other cases, however, it was said that the words “attest means” cannot have the same meaning as “attest always meant”,¹⁴⁶ and the legislature by Act, 10 of 1927 further amended the definition by adding after the word “means”, the words “and shall always be deemed to have meant.” This makes it clear that the definition is retrospective.¹⁴⁷

To attest is to bear witness to a fact. It means signing of the document to signify the attessor, and his witness to the execution of the document. An attesting witness is one who signs the document in the presence of the executor after seeing the execution of the document, and after receiving a personal acknowledgment from the executant as regards the execution of the document.¹⁴⁸

The essential conditions of a valid attestation are that two or more witnesses have seen the executant sign the instrument, or have received from him a personal acknowledgement of his signature, and each of them has signed the instrument in the presence of the executant to bear witness to this fact; it is essential that the attesting witness has put his signature animus attestandie, i.e., for the purpose of attesting the signature.¹⁴⁹ Where the attesting witnesses were neither present at the time of execution of the sale deed nor had even seen the executants, the deed is not validly executed.¹⁵⁰

3. Interpretation-clause.—

The essential ingredients of the proof of attestation are that it is necessary that the person relying upon a document must establish that the executant has signed or put thumb impression before the attesting witness, and the attesting witness must sign in presence of executant.¹⁵¹ It is necessary for a party relying upon an attested document to plead specifically both the execution and attestation of it.¹⁵²

The burden is on the propounder to prove due and valid execution of the will. The propounder is required to show by satisfactory evidence that the will was signed by the attestator, and that at the relevant point of time the attestator was in a sound and disposing state of mind, and that he understood the nature and the fact of dispossession when he put his signature to the document out of his own free will.¹⁵³ When such clinching evidence is adduced in support of the will and the witnesses are uninterested and satisfactory, the court would be justified in making the finding in favour of the propounder. If such evidence is brought on record which is clinching and proves the execution and attestation to be genuine and valid, then the burden would shift on the objector.¹⁵⁴

[s 3.11] Who may Attest

Despite importance of attestation, no qualifications are stipulated in the TP Act, 1882 in this regard.¹⁵⁵ An illiterate person may attest the signature of the executant by making his mark.¹⁵⁶ A party to a deed cannot be an attesting witness, for the object of attestation is protection against fraud and undue influence.¹⁵⁷ Where a person executes a deed as a power of attorney or an agent of another, he is a party to the deed, and he cannot attest his own signature.¹⁵⁸ However, a person interested in the transaction, such as a person interested in the money advanced under a mortgage, may be an attesting witness if he is not a party to the deed;¹⁵⁹ and the person who advanced the money may attest a mortgage in favour of his benamidar.¹⁶⁰

The law in India contains well-known principles for the protection of persons, who transfer their property to their own disadvantage, when they do not have the usual means of fully understanding the nature of the effect of what they are doing, on account of certain disabilities. Thus, the disposition of property made by such a disabled person must be substantially understood and must really be the mental act, as against the execution which is a mere physical act of the person who makes it.¹⁶¹ Where the deed was written in English; but both the executants, who was an old illiterate lady and the attesting witnesses did not know English, and no evidence was led to show that the contents of the deed were explained to her; it was held that the execution was invalid.¹⁶²

[s 3.12] Forming Attestation

Attestation need not be in any particular form, a mere signature is sufficient;¹⁶³ it need not be made at any particular place in the deed,¹⁶⁴ but cannot take place before the execution of the deed.¹⁶⁵ Attestation prior to execution of the document is no attestation in the eyes of law.¹⁶⁶ However, the section requires that the attesting witness should have signed in the presence of the executant;¹⁶⁷ otherwise the deed is not validly attested even though the attesting witness did actually witness execution.¹⁶⁸ Where the executant, a pardanashin lady, sitting behind a curtain, put her hand out and made her thumb impression on the deed in sight of the witness and then her husband signed, and then the attesting witnesses signed as such, the Privy Council held that the witnesses signed “in the presence of the executant” and the document was duly attested.¹⁶⁹ However, where one out of two witnesses to a mortgage bond signed his name as an attesting witness for himself and on behalf of the other witness in the latter’s presence, the attestation was valid though the other witness did not make his mark.¹⁷⁰ Where two deeds were prepared and executed as a part of one transaction, but the marginal witnesses were not common, it was held that merely from the circumstance that the disputed agreement had another set of marginal witnesses, it could not be inferred that the document was forged or fictitious.¹⁷¹

[s 3.12.1] Scribe as Attesting Witness

It is necessary that the attesting witness should have signed for the purpose of authenticating the signature of the executant,¹⁷² and not as a scribe,¹⁷³ or as a person merely indicating his consent to the transaction.¹⁷⁴ The

3. Interpretation-clause.—

Supreme Court has held that the effect of subscribing a signature on the part of the scribe is not of the same status as that of the attesting witness. The animus to attest is not available so far as the scribe is concerned: he is not a witness to the will but a mere writer of the will.¹⁷⁵ A scribe who has signed on behalf of a party, e.g. an illiterate mortgagor, cannot be an attesting witness for that would amount to attestation of his own signature.¹⁷⁶ However, where an illiterate mortgagor has made his mark himself and the scribe wrote a description of the mark beside it, he was held to be competent to sign as an attesting witness.¹⁷⁷ In some earlier decisions therefore, it was held that a scribe is not a witness to the will, but a mere writer of the will,¹⁷⁸ and he may sign for him, if so authorised,¹⁷⁹ but not otherwise.¹⁸⁰

A scribe, however, may perform a dual role. He may be an attesting witness as well as the writer. The fact that he signed as an attesting witness, that he did so with the necessary animus to attest, must be duly proved.¹⁸¹ That is also the case with identifying witnesses.¹⁸² A person can be called an attesting witness when he has witnessed the execution of the document, and has put his signature by describing himself as an attesting witness. Where a person had put his signatures on the document both, as a scribe and as an attesting witness, the inference is that he functioned both as scribe and as an attesting witness.¹⁸³

[s 3.13] Registering Officer as Attesting Witness

There was a conflict of decisions as to whether the signature of the registering officer and of the attesting witnesses on the registrar's endorsement made to satisfy the requirements of the Registration Act, constitute a valid attestation if made in the presence of the executant. Some decisions had held such attestations to be valid;¹⁸⁴ but there were contrary decisions.¹⁸⁵ In Abdul Jabbar v Venkata Sastri,¹⁸⁶ the Supreme Court has held that such signatures can only amount to a valid attestation if the attesting witnesses had put their signatures with such animus; the court further held that ordinarily the registering officer put his signature in the performance of his statutory duty, and not with an intention to attest.

[s 3.13.1] Proof of an Attested Instrument

Proof of an attested instrument is according to sections 68 to 71 of the Indian Evidence Act. The amendment of section 68 by Act 31 of 1926 makes it unnecessary to call any attesting witness in the case of a deed, unless the execution of the deed is specifically denied by the person by whom it purports to have been executed.¹⁸⁷ Where execution is specifically denied, at least one attesting witness must be called to prove the deed, if there be one alive, and subject to the process of the court. If the attesting witnesses are dead, their signatures can be proved by evidence of handwriting.¹⁸⁸ This is not necessary if execution is admitted;¹⁸⁹ but the admission must be not only of execution but of due execution;¹⁹⁰ for an admission will not render valid a document which the evidence shows to be invalid in law.¹⁹¹ It has also been held that an admission will not suffice if it is established on evidence that the document has not been duly attested.¹⁹² The admission by one mortgagor will not dispense with the necessity of proof against the other.¹⁹³ However, even where the execution of a mortgage is admitted, the party must prove that it was duly attested.¹⁹⁴

[s 3.14] Attestation as Proof of Consent

Mere attestation does not effect an estoppel, for attestation does not fix an attesting witness with knowledge of the contents of the document.¹⁹⁵ Attestation does not of itself imply consent;¹⁹⁶ though there may be circumstances which show that the attesting witness had knowledge of the contents of the document he attested and consented to.¹⁹⁷ An attesting witness is not estopped by his mere signature, unless it can be established by independent evidence that to the signature an express condition was attached to the effect that it was intended to convey something more than a mere witnessing to the execution, and was meant as involving consent to the transaction.¹⁹⁸

[s 3.15] Registered

The registration must be valid according to the law for the time being in force. Thus, if the description is not sufficient to identify the property,¹⁹⁹ or if there is a fraud on the law of registration;²⁰⁰ or if the property is situated in a different circle;²⁰¹ or if the deed was not presented by the proper person;²⁰² or if the description is insufficient to identify the property,²⁰³ the registration is void.

[s 3.16] Attached to the Earth

3. Interpretation-clause.—

The phrase “attached to the earth” occurs in the definition of immovable property in the General Clauses Act, and also in section 8 of TP Act, 1882 with reference to the legal incidents of immovable property which pass, without express mention, on transfer; and again in section 108(h) with reference to things a lessee may remove. Section 3 defines the expression “attached to the earth” as including:

- (a) things rooted in the earth such as trees;
- (b) things embedded in the earth such as buildings; and
- (c) things attached to what is so embedded, such as doors and windows.

[s 3.17] English and Indian Law of Fixtures

The English law as to fixtures is based on the maxim *quicquid plantatur solo, solo cedit*²⁰⁴ as to trees, and *quicquid inaedificatur solo, solo cedit*²⁰⁵ as to buildings, the application of these maxims is varied by a plethora of exceptions in favour of a tenant, and in favour of trade fixtures. The term “fixture” has no precise meaning in English law and is not found in Termes de la Ley,²⁰⁶ but it is generally applied to something annexed to the freehold. The classification as immovable property of things attached to the earth, bears some analogy to the English law of fixtures, but the maxims on which the English law is founded do not generally apply in India. Long before the TP Act, 1882 was enacted, *Paramanick’s case*²⁰⁷ settled that it was the common law of India that buildings and other improvements do not by the mere accident of their attachment to the soil become the property of the owner of the soil. The general rule laid down by a Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court in the above mentioned case was as follows:

We think it should be laid down as a general rule that, if he who makes the improvement is not a mere trespasser, but is in possession under any bona fide title or claim of title, he is entitled either to remove the materials restoring the land to the state in which it was before the improvement was made, or to obtain compensation for the value of the building if it is allowed to remain for the benefit of the owner of the soil—the option of taking the building, or allowing the removal of the material remaining with the owner of the land, in those cases in which the building is not taken down by the builder during the continuance of any estate he may possess.

The Mahomedan law is the same.²⁰⁸ The Indian legislature has departed from the English law of fixtures in section 2 of the Mesne Profits and Improvements Act, 1855, corresponding to section 51 of TP Act, 1882,²⁰⁹ and again in section 108(h) of T P Act dealing with the lessee’s right to remove fixtures.²¹⁰ The TP Act, 1882 inclines to the law as recognised by Hindu and Mahomedan jurisprudence.²¹¹

[s 3.18] Things Rooted in the Earth

Trees and shrubs rooted in the earth are immovable property according to the definition in the General Clauses Act, but this definition is subject to the exception made in TP Act, 1882 as to standing timber, growing crops or grass. In Rustomjee Edulji Sheth v Collector of Tanna,²¹² the judicial committee said that the trees upon the land were part of the land, and that the right to cut down and sell those trees was incident to the proprietorship of the land. In the case of Suresh Chand v Kundan,²¹³ the Supreme Court has held that the standing trees, as also saplings being embedded in the earth are part of the land, and if there is any transfer of property and, unless there is any expressed or implied different intention appearing in the agreement, the interest in the property would also include anything attached with the land which is agreed to be sold. Trees growing out of a garden wall belong to the owner of the garden,²¹⁴ a mortgage with possession of a fruit bearing tree with the intention that the mortgagee is to enjoy the fruit but not fell the tree, is a mortgage of immovable property.²¹⁵

3. Interpretation-clause.—

Trees and shrubs may be sold apart from the land, to be cut and removed as wood, and in that case, they are movable property.²¹⁶ However, if the transfer includes the right to fell the trees for a term of years, so that the transferee derives a benefit from further growth, the transfer is treated as one of immovable property,²¹⁷ but the fact that a permit to fell trees extends over a period of several years does not necessarily imply that the transferee is to enjoy the benefit of further growth, and a permit to fell and remove trees for four years has been held to be a grant of movable property.²¹⁸ A right to collect lac from trees has been held to be immovable property.²¹⁹

Where under an agreement²²⁰ the plaintiff was given the right to remove soil and earth from the defendant's land, and was to level the plots after removal, it was held to be an agreement for sale of an interest in land. Where, however, there was a contract to draw and remove sludge from a tank and a lagoon, which was continuously being pumped into the tank and the lagoon, the Calcutta High Court held that the sludge was not immovable property as it had not lain long enough to become part of the earth, and had retained its identity.²²¹

[s 3.19] Things Embedded in the Earth

A house being embedded in the earth is immovable property, and this is so even if it is sold for enjoyment as a house with an option to pull it down.²²² Under English law, the general rule is that whatever is annexed to the freehold becomes part of the realty under the maxim quicquid plantatur solo, solo cedit.²²³ This maxim does not apply in India; nevertheless the question whether a chattel is embedded in the earth so as to become immovable property is decided by the same principles as those which determine what constitutes an annexation to the land under English law. This is a question which is difficult to determine. The classic instance is an anchor which may be embedded in the land temporarily to hold a ship, or permanently to support a suspension bridge. In *Holland v Hodgson*²²⁴ Blackburn J said:

There is no doubt that the general maxim of the law is that what is annexed to the land becomes part of the land; but it is very difficult if not impossible, to say with precision what constitutes an annexation sufficient for this purpose. It is a question which must depend on the circumstances of each case, and mainly on two circumstances, as indicating the intention, viz. the degree of annexation and the object of the annexation. When the article in question is no further attached to the land than by its own weight, it is generally to be considered a mere chattel; as was the case in Wiltshire v Cottrell.²²⁵ However, even in such a case if the intention is apparent to make the articles part of the land, they do become part of the land as was the case in D'Eyncourt v Gregory.²²⁶

Thus, blocks of stone placed one on top of another without any mortar or cement for the purpose of forming a dry stone wall would become part of the land, though the same stones if deposited in a builder's yard and for convenience sake stacked on the top of each other in the form of a wall, would remain chattels. On the other hand, an article may be firmly fixed to the land, and yet the circumstances may be such as to show that it was never intended to be a part of the land, then it does not become part of the land. The anchor of a large ship must be very firmly fixed to the ground in order to bear the strain of the cable, yet no one could suppose that it became part of the land, even though it should chance that the ship owner was also the owner of the fee of the spot where the anchor was dropped. An anchor similarly fixed in the soil for the purpose of bearing the strain of the chain of a suspension bridge would be part of the land. Perhaps the true rule is, that articles not otherwise attached to the land than by their own weight are not to be considered part of the land, unless the circumstances are such as to show that they were intended to be part of the land, the onus of showing that they were so intended, lies on those who assert they have ceased to be chattels, and that, on the contrary, an article which is affixed to the land even slightly is to be considered as part of the land unless the circumstances are such as to show that it was intended all along to continue as a chattel, the onus lying on those who contend that it is a chattel.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

The two tests, therefore, are:

- (1) the degree or mode of annexation; and
- (2) the object of annexation.

[s 3.20] Mode of Annexation, English Law

In *Wake v Hall*²²⁷ Lord Blackburn said:

The degree and nature of the annexation is an important element for consideration; for where a chattel is so annexed that it cannot be removed without great damage to the land, it affords a strong ground for thinking that it was intended to be annexed in perpetuity to the land;

and as Lord Hardwicke said in Lawton v Lawton:²²⁸

You shall not destroy the principal thing by taking away the accessory to it. Thus looms attached to the floor and to the beams of a mill,²²⁹ or tip up seats fastened to the floor of a cinema,²³⁰ or advertisement hoardings firmly imbedded in the earth have been held to be part of the land.²³¹ But cisterns merely standing by their own weight,²³² or brewer's vats resting on brick-work and timber,²³³ or tapestries which can be removed without structural injury to the house,²³⁴ or green houses merely resting on the soil,²³⁵ have been held to be chattels.

[s 3.21] Object of Annexation, English Law

The object of annexation is the more important consideration.²³⁶ This is a question of fact to be determined by the circumstances in each case, an important element being the nature of the interest in the land possessed by the person who causes the annexation. Thus, if a tenant for years or a tenant for life fixes tapestry to a wall, it may readily be inferred that he did not intend them to become fixture,²³⁷ though the circumstances may show that he did so intend.²³⁸ Such an intention is more readily inferred in the case of a tenant in fee simple.²³⁹ Articles which may be removed without structural damage and even articles merely resting by their own weight are fixtures, if they are added with the intention of permanently improving the premises. A gas engine fastened by bolts and nuts to a concrete floor by a tenant in fee simple subject to a mortgage,²⁴⁰ and looms in a mill fastened to beams,²⁴¹ and machinery fastened by bolts and nuts to concrete beds have been held to be fixtures.²⁴² Looms in a mill fastened to the floor pass under an assignment of fixed machinery.²⁴³

[s 3.22] The same Tests in Indian Law

The same two tests as to mode of annexation and object of annexation have been applied in India. In a case under the Registration Act, Jenkins CJ held that machinery was not immovable property, as it had been erected by a monthly tenant.²⁴⁴ If the lease contemplates the removal of machinery, it cannot be regarded as having been permanently fixed.²⁴⁵ Greater stress is, however, laid on the mode of annexation. In Chaturbhuj v Bennet,²⁴⁶ the court said that for qualifying as fixture it must be attached to the earth as that expression is defined in section 3 of the TP Act, 1882. A hut is immovable property,²⁴⁷ even if it is sold with an option to pull it down.²⁴⁸ A mortgage of the superstructure of a house though expressed to be exclusive of the land beneath, creates an interest in immovable property,²⁴⁹ as it is permanently attached to the ground on which it is built. Similarly, oil and flour mills and the machinery used in working them, are fixtures.²⁵⁰ In another case,²⁵¹ it has been held that the test is whether the annexation is with the object of the permanent beneficial enjoyment of the land or building; so, machinery for metal-shaping and electro-plating which was attached by bolts to special concrete bases and could not be easily moved, was still held not to be a part of the structure housing it, or the soil beneath it. The court held that the machinery was not attached for the more beneficial enjoyment of either the soil, or the concrete; it was actually a case of the structure being built around the machinery to protect it. A corrugated iron shed which rested by its own weight on the foundation prepared, was held to be a chattel which may be removed by a lessee.²⁵²

3. Interpretation-clause.—

[s 3.23] Trade Fixtures

With a view to encourage trade, English law²⁵³ allows relaxation of the rules with reference to trade fixtures. These are regarded as accessory to the business, and not as an annexation to the premises. Thus, soap boiling vats,²⁵⁴ engines for working collieries,²⁵⁵ and machinery and buildings erected on a colliery by miners working under a local custom²⁵⁶ are not fixtures. Similarly, in India, distillery vats in a house have been held to be movables, as they are for trade purposes, and not for the beneficial enjoyment of the house.²⁵⁷ However, this principle has no application where the articles are affixed by persons who are themselves owners of the land.²⁵⁸

[s 3.24] Hire Purchase Agreement

The existence of a hire purchase agreement does not affect the question of the intention of the annexation.²⁵⁹ This has been decided in cases where the contest was between the mortgagee of the premises, and the person who had hired the machine to the mortgagor.

ILLUSTRATION

A gas engine was let out on the hire-purchase system under an agreement in writing which provided that it should not become the property of the hirer until the payment of all the instalments, and should be removable by the owner on the failure of the hirer to pay any instalment. The engine was affixed to the land of the hirer by bolts and screws to prevent it from rocking, and was used by him for the purposes of his trade. Default having been made in the payment of the instalments, the engine was claimed by the owner, and also by a mortgagee of the land, who took his mortgage after the hiring agreement and without notice of it, and had entered into possession while the engine was still on the land. It was held that the engine was sufficiently annexed to the land to become a fixture, and that any intention to be inferred from the terms of the hiring agreement that it should remain a chattel, did not prevent it from becoming a fixture; and consequently it passed to the mortgagee as part of the freehold.²⁶⁰

[s 3.25] Attached to what is so Embedded

The attachment must be, as the section says for the permanent beneficial enjoyment of that to which it is attached. Thus, the doors, windows and shutters of a house are attached to the house, which is embedded in the earth, for the beneficial enjoyment of the house. They form part of the house, and have no separate existence.²⁶¹ Similar is the case with the movable parts of fixed machinery. However, if the attachment is not intended to be permanent, the articles attached do not form part of the house, e.g. window blinds and sashes,²⁶² and ornamental articles such as glasses and tapestry fixed by a tenant for life.²⁶³

3. Interpretation-clause.—

A curious case is reported in the Solicitors Journal,²⁶⁴ where a hired machine which rested by its own weight on the floor was driven by an engine, which was a fixture embedded in the earth. The machine could be lifted and bodily taken away, but it was claimed that it was a fixture because it was attached to the engine. Eve J however, repelled this contention and said:

With regard to the indirect attachment to the motive power, if I were to hold that that constituted a fixture, then every motive power would be a connection which would change a chattel into a fixture.

The same conclusion would be arrived at under this section, for the machine is not attached for the beneficial enjoyment of the engine, and it is the engine that is subordinate to the machine. If a thing is embedded in the earth or attached to what is so embedded, for the permanent beneficial enjoyment of that to which it is attached, then it is part of the immovable property. Where the attachment is merely for the beneficial enjoyment of the chattel itself, then it remains a chattel, even though fixed for the time being so that it may be enjoyed. The question in each case is to be decided according to the circumstances. An oil engine as part of a cinema on the premises leased;²⁶⁵ a cinema projector, and a diesel oil engine fixed on earth for the purposes of exhibiting shows in a touring cinema are movable properties.²⁶⁶

The machinery of a cotton baling press which was placed in a building to shelter it from the weather, is movable property,²⁶⁷ as although the building is embedded in the earth, the machinery was not put there for the beneficial enjoyment of the building.

[s 3.26] Actionable Claim

The definition of actionable claim was originally contained in section 130. The chapter on actionable claims was remodelled by Act 2 of 1900, and the definition was amended and inserted in this section. The definition is explained in the notes to section 130.

In India, copyright which is chose in action in England, is a beneficial interest in the movable property in the actual or constructive possession of the owner thereof, although strictly not an actionable claim, but capable of being transferred by assignment evidenced by a writing executed by the assignor or by his duly authorised agent.²⁶⁸

[s 3.27] Notice

The equitable doctrine of notice which controls unconscionable transactions is recognised in various sections of TP Act, 1882. For instance, in section 39, if a transfer is made of property out of which a person has a right to receive maintenance, the transferee takes subject to that right if he had notice of it, but not otherwise. Similarly in section 40, if A conveys to C property which he had by a previous contract agreed to sell to B, then B can enforce the contract against C, if C had notice of it, but not otherwise. If C had notice of the prior contract, he purchases with knowledge that it was unconscionable of A to sell to him, and it is, therefore, unconscionable of him to buy. To the same effect is the second illustration to clause (b) of section 27 of the Specific Relief Act, 1872,²⁶⁹ and section 91 of the Trusts Act, 1882. A person having full notice and knowledge of facts of existence of a previous contract, even through public notice published in a newspaper, cannot be held to be a bona fide purchaser without notice.²⁷⁰

3. Interpretation-clause.—

Notice may be either express or constructive, while notice to an agent is sometimes called imputed notice in so far as it affects the principal.

[s 3.28] Express Notice

Express notice, or actual notice is notice whereby a person acquires actual knowledge of the fact. It must be definite information given in the course of negotiations by a person interested in the property, as a person is not bound to attend to vague rumours or statements by strangers.²⁷¹ Notice must be given in the same transaction, as notice given in a previous transaction may have been forgotten.²⁷² Mere casual conversation is not enough, and in Lloyd v Banks,²⁷³ Lord Cairns said that an encumbrancer who alleges that a trustee has notice of his encumbrance must prove “that the mind of the trustees has in some way been brought to an intelligent apprehension of the nature of the encumbrance which has come upon the property, so that a reasonable man, or an ordinary man of business, would act upon the information and would regulate his conduct by it.” A mere statement either in court, or somewhere else, that some person claims title, is not sufficient notice to an auction purchaser of a deed, if it is not disclosed at the auction sale.²⁷⁴ However, when such an assertion is made to the intending purchaser, it is sufficient to put him to further inquiry as to the interest or title claimed,²⁷⁵ and so, it would amount to constructive notice of facts which such enquiry would have disclosed.²⁷⁶

[s 3.29] Constructive Notice

Constructive notice is the equity which treats a man who ought to have known a fact, as if he actually does know it. A well-known case on the subject is *Jones v Smith*²⁷⁷ where the following classic passage occurs in the judgment of Vice-Chancellor Wigram:

It is, indeed, scarcely possible to declare a priori what shall be deemed constructive notice, because, unquestionably, that which would not affect one man may be abundantly sufficient to affect another. But I believe, I may, with sufficient accuracy for my present purpose and without danger assert that the cases in which constructive notice has been established resolve themselves into two classes;

first, cases in which the party charged has had actual notice that the property in dispute was in fact charged, encumbered or in some way affected, and the court has thereupon bound him with constructive notice of facts and instruments, to a knowledge of which he would have been led by an enquiry after the charge, encumbrance or other circumstances affecting the property of which he had actual notice; and secondly, cases in which the court has been satisfied from the evidence before it that the party charged had designedly abstained from enquiry for the very purpose of avoiding notice...

The proposition of law, upon which the former class of cases proceeds, is not that the party charged had notice of a fact or instrument, which in truth related to the subject in dispute without his knowing that such was the case, but that he had actual notice that it did so relate. The proposition of law, upon which the second class of cases proceed, is not that the party charged had incautiously neglected to make inquiries, but that he had designedly abstained from such inquiries for the purpose of avoiding knowledge—a purpose, which if proved, would clearly show that he had a suspicion of the truth and a fraudulent determination not to learn it. Therefore, where there is no actual notice that the property is in some way affected, and no fraudulent turning away from a knowledge of facts which the res gestae would suggest to a prudent mind; if mere want of caution as distinguished from fraudulent and wilful blindness is all that can be imputed to the purchaser—there, the doctrine of constructive notice will not apply; there, the purchaser will in equity be considered, as in fact he is, a bona fide purchaser, without notice.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

However, courts of equity had extended the doctrine from cases of fraudulent turning away to cases of gross negligence, and in a later case,²⁷⁸ Wigram VC stated that there might be a degree of negligence so gross (crassa negligentia) that a court of justice might treat it as evidence of fraud, although morally speaking the party charged might be perfectly innocent. In truth, fraud and negligence are mutually exclusive conceptions, but courts of equity extended their jurisdiction from fraud to negligence and included gross negligence in the doctrine of constructive notice. In this respect the section follows the English law.

The courts have, however, been reluctant to extend the doctrine to cases where there is no real negligence, as the doctrine results in the imputation of knowledge to the person who does not in fact often possess it.²⁷⁹

Constructive notice has been said to arise from an irrebuttable presumption of notice. In Plumb v Fluit,²⁸⁰ Eyre, CB said:

Constructive notice I take to be in its nature no more than evidence of notice, the presumptions of which are so violent that the court will not allow even of its being controverted.

Such a presumption, which is said to be irrebuttable,²⁸¹ can arise only in a case in which the party seeking the benefit of that doctrine has acted innocently. The doctrine of constructive notice will not be applied where the party seeking the benefit of that doctrine has been guilty of secrecy or fraud in the transaction with constructive notice of which he seeks to affect a purchaser; and, therefore, a vendor who is bound to disclose an encumbrance cannot plead that the purchaser had constructive notice of it.²⁸² A decree-holder bringing his judgment debtor's property to sale cannot set up a mortgage to himself which he has not disclosed, and plead that its registration was constructive notice to the purchaser.²⁸³ The doctrine of constructive notice may be applied as against government.²⁸⁴

This legal presumption of knowledge arises from—

- (a) Wilful abstention from an inquiry or search.²⁸⁵
- (b) Gross negligence.²⁸⁶
- (c) Registration
- (d) Actual possession
- (e) Notice to an agent

[s 3.30] Wilful Abstention from an Inquiry or Search

3. Interpretation-clause.—

These words recall the expression used by Wigrani, VC in his judgment in Jones v Smith.²⁸⁷ In the corresponding section 3 of the English Conveyancing Act, 1882, now replaced by section 199 of the Law of Property Act, 1925, the words are: "If such enquiries and inspection had been made as ought reasonably to have been made by him." With reference to the duty of a purchaser to investigate title, Lord Selborne, in Agra Bank v Barry,²⁸⁸ said:

But this, if it can properly be called duty, is not a duty owing to the possible holder of a latent title or security. It is merely the course which a man dealing bona fide in the proper and usual manner for his own interest, ought, by himself or his solicitor, to follow with a view to his own title and security. If he does not follow that course, the omission of it may be a thing requiring to be accounted for or explained. It may be evidence, if it is not explained, or a design inconsistent with bona fide dealing, to avoid knowledge of the true state of the title.

The Calcutta High Court following this case have construed the words "wilful abstention from an enquiry or search" to mean such abstention as would show lack of bona fides.²⁸⁹ Thus, a person refusing a registered letter cannot afterwards plead ignorance of its contents.²⁹⁰ The principle that means of knowledge is equivalent to knowledge, has been applied to a banker's passbook so as to fix a customer with knowledge and ratification of entries therein.²⁹¹ Where a purchaser omits to inspect title deeds, he may be affected with notice of all facts which he would have discovered upon a proper investigation of title.²⁹² Similarly, the omission by a purchaser to inspect entries in the Record of Rights will amount to wilful abstention from inquiry under this section.²⁹³ Where a charge was registered, but the agent of a subsequent mortgagee omitted to look into the register of the Registrar, the mortgagee was deemed to have had constructive notice of the charge.²⁹⁴ However, where a charge was not registered in the Record of Rights, which a purchaser was bound to search, he would not be held to have had constructive notice thereof by his omission to inquire elsewhere, e.g., the Mamlatdar's office.²⁹⁵

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) B borrows money from C and deposits with C, by way of equitable mortgage, the sale deed by which he had purchased a property from A. The sale deed recites that part of the purchase money had been retained by B to pay A's debts. B had not paid these debts and C makes no enquiry as to whether he had done so. C has constructive notice of A's lien for unpaid purchase money, and the mortgage is subject to A's lien.²⁹⁶

Actual notice of a deed is constructive notice of the contents of the deed, and of all other deeds to which it refers as affecting the same property. Thus, when a deed of sale referred to a partition deed under which the house has fallen to the vendor's share, the purchaser was affected with notice of a right of pre-emption reserved in the deed of partition.²⁹⁷ Prior to the passing of the Law of Property Act, 1925, a person taking a lease had constructive notice of restrictive covenants entered into by the freeholder.²⁹⁸ A person who agrees to buy a lease has constructive notice of the covenants in the lease, but only if he had an opportunity of inspecting it.²⁹⁹ The Calcutta High Court, however, has held that a person acquiring a lease by private transfer, should call for the title deed of the vendor, and has constructive notice of a term in the lease providing for a high rate of interest on arrears of rent.³⁰⁰ Where executors borrowed money on an equitable mortgage of the testator's title deeds, the mortgagee was held to have constructive notice of a charge on the property mortgaged, created by the will under which the executors represented the estate, if he had investigated the title, he would have had notice of the will and its contents.³⁰¹ The abstention from inquiry must be designed, as due to a desire to avoid an inquiry which would lead to ultimate knowledge. A mere omission to make enquiries is not sufficient.³⁰²

3. Interpretation-clause.—

(2) S left his house and land to his sons by his first wife and appointed them executors of his will. He left ₹30,000 to his sons by his second wife, charged on the aforesaid house and land. The sons by the first wife borrowed ₹52,000 from the bank and deposited the title deeds of the house and land with the bank by way of equitable mortgage to secure the loan. The will was not among the documents of title deposited. When the bank enforced their mortgage and brought the house and land to sale, the sons of the second wife claimed that their charge had precedence. If the bank had made inquiry as to how the mortgagors derived title from S, they would have had cognizance of the will. The bank had therefore constructive notice of the charge, and the claim of the sons by the second wife prevailed over the mortgage.³⁰³

Where the mortgagors had dealt with the bank as executors, the bank would have been entitled to assume that they were acting for the purpose of administration.³⁰⁴ However, even in that case the bank would have been affected with notice, if the circumstances of the transaction for instance, the fact that the mortgage was to secure advances to the mortgagors personally were such as to afford evidence that the executors were committing a breach of trust.³⁰⁵

On the other hand, notice to a purchaser by his title papers in one transaction, will not be notice to him in a subsequent and independent transaction in which the instruments containing the recitals are not necessary to his title.³⁰⁶ This principle was enunciated by Lord Redesdale in Hamilton v Royse,³⁰⁷ and quoted with approval by Smith MR in Tressilian v Caniffe,³⁰⁸ as follows:

If a man purchases an estate under a deed, which happens to relate also to other lands not comprised in that purchase, and afterwards purchases the other lands to which an apparent title is made, independent of that deed, the former notice of the deed will not of itself affect him in the second transaction, for he was not bound to carry in his recollection those parts of a deed which had no relation to the particular purchase as was then about, nor to take notice of more of the deed than affected his then purchase.

(3) If B buys two properties X and Y from A, leaves part of the purchase money unpaid and then sells X to C and informs C of A's charge for unpaid purchase money, then C's purchase of X will be subject to A's charge. But if in the following year C also purchases Y from B, and B omits to inform C of A's charge, the information C received when purchasing X will not operate as notice so as to make his purchase of Y subject to A's charge.

There is a well recognised distinction between deeds which must affect the property, and deeds which may or may not affect it. Omission to inspect a deed which necessarily affects title and forms a link in the chain of title involves constructive notice, and a purchaser will not be excused even if the vendor has expressly stated that the deed contains nothing affecting title.³⁰⁹ However, a purchaser is not presumed to know instruments which are neither directly, nor presumptively connected with the title and may only by possibility affect it.³¹⁰ Where the deed does not necessarily affect the property, and the purchaser is informed about the same, he may rely on such an assurance.³¹¹ In Jones v Smith,³¹² the intending mortgagee inquired of the mortgagor and his wife if any settlement had been made on their marriage, and was told that a settlement had been made which did not include the husband's property.; the mortgagee accepted his assurance and was not affected with notice that the property mortgaged was in fact included in the marriage settlement.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

Generally speaking, constructive notice will not be inferred, unless some specific circumstance can be shown as a starting point of an inquiry which if prosecuted, would have led to the discovery of the fact.³¹³ If the purchaser is informed that there are charges, he will be affected with notice of all charges which he could have ascertained on inquiry.³¹⁴ If the purchaser knows that rents are paid to some person other than the vendor, he will be affected with notice of that person's right.³¹⁵ Where the purchaser has knowledge that the deeds of the title are in the possession of a third party, he has constructive notice of the same. If the mortgagor says that the deeds are in the possession of the bank for safe custody, and the mortgagee makes no further inquiry of the bank, he will be affected with notice of the pledge, if the deeds prove to be pledged to the bank.³¹⁶

(4) A borrows ₹7,000 from B on an equitable mortgage of 10 bighas of land and deposits the original title deeds with B. A then sells two bighas of the said land to C for ₹4,700 and gives a copy of the title deeds to C for inspection, C asked for the original deeds and A said that he had not got them but promised to show them in a few days. A failed to do so and C made no further inquiry. C is affected with constructive notice of the equitable mortgage.³¹⁷

[s 3.31] Gross Negligence

Mere negligence or “want of caution”, to quote the phrase used by Wigram VC in Jones v Smith,³¹⁸ is not penalised with constructive notice. The phrase “gross negligence” was invented by the courts of equity in order to extend their jurisdiction. Equity cannot interfere with the legal title, except in cases of trusts, fraud or accident. Negligence is not fraud, as negligence implies indolence and indifference, while fraud is active dishonesty. However, in extreme cases, courts of equity overcame the difficulty by assuming that the negligent person had wilfully shut his eyes to circumstances which called for inquiry. On this assumption, gross negligence was evidence of a fraudulent design which gave the Court of Equity jurisdiction to interfere.³¹⁹

Wigram VC has said that gross negligence is:

a degree of negligence so gross (crassa negligentia) that a Court of Justice may treat it as evidence of fraud—impute a fraudulent motive to it—and visit it with the consequences of fraud, although (morally speaking) the party charged may be perfectly innocent.³²⁰

Similarly, in Ware v Lord Egmont,³²¹ Lord Cranworth said:

The question, when it is sought to affect a purchaser with constructive notice, is not whether he had the means of obtaining, and might by prudent caution have obtained, the knowledge in question, but whether not obtaining it was an act of gross or culpable negligence.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

In more modern times, the courts in England have departed from the doctrine thus laid down in the earlier equity cases in two respects. First, the adjectives “gross” and “culpable” as applied to negligence have been subjected to considerable criticism. Lord Cranworth himself said in the later case of Colyer v Finch:³²²

Cases are very difficult to deal with when you are obliged to use vituperative epithets of that sort in order to enunciate a principle.

In *Wilson v Breit*³²³ the same learned judge said that gross negligence is ordinary negligence with a vituperative epithet. Romer J in *Re City Equitable Fire Insurance Company*³²⁴ explained that the real distinction between gross negligence and ordinary negligence lies in the difference between the extent of duty to take care imposed in each case. Secondly, the equitable doctrine that gross negligence is negligence which amounts to fraud has also been departed from. It was criticised by Fry LJ in *Northern Counties of England Fire Insurance Co v Whipp*³²⁵ as involving an inconsistency, fraud “leads men to do or omit doing a thing not carelessly but for a purpose.” Negligence does not import the existence of a duty to the public, as Fry LJ said in the case last cited, title deeds are not analogous to ferocious dogs which the owner is under a general duty to keep in safe custody. Lord Cranworth had said in *Colyer v Finch*³²⁶ that “what constitutes gross negligence is always excessively difficult either to define, or by way of anticipation to illustrate.” In Dixon v Muckleslon,³²⁷ Lord Selborne referred gross negligence to the doctrine of estoppel:

But it must be something, which raises a positive equity against him, upon the principle which in equity, as distinct from law, is conveniently designated by the term “estoppel”. In other words, the man who has conducted himself in such a manner is not entitled to deny the truth of his own representations if it be a case of express representation—he is not entitled to deny being bound by the natural consequences of his own acts, if it be a case of positive acts—he is not entitled to refuse to abide by the consequence of his own wilful and unjustifiable neglect, if that is the nature of the case. By one or other of those means, he may have armed another person with the power of going into the world under false colours; and if it be really and truly the case that by his act, or his improper omissions, such an apparent authority and power has been vested in that other person, he is bound upon equitable principles by the use made of that apparent authority and power.

This is a correct statement of the principle and the rule that is followed in England with reference to the postponement of legal mortgages laid down by Lord Lindley in *Oliver v Hinton*³²⁸ that:

to deprive a purchaser for value without notice of a prior encumbrance of the protection of the legal estate, it is not in my opinion essential that he should have been guilty of fraud; it is sufficient that he has been guilty of such gross negligence as would render it unjust to deprive the prior encumbrancer of his priority.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

This case was followed by the Calcutta High Court in *Lloyds Bank Ltd v P F Guzdar & Co*³²⁹ dissenting from the dictum of Jenkins J in *Monindra v Troylucko Nath*³³⁰ that “gross neglect” in section 78 of TP Act, 1882 means neglect that amounts to evidence of fraud.

Cases of gross negligence which estop a man from denying that he had notice of a fact generally, also fall under the heading “Wilful abstention from an inquiry or search” or under “Registration.” Thus, if a purchaser is informed that the deeds of title are in the possession of a bank for safe custody and he omits to make further inquiry of the bank, that is gross negligence which will affect him with notice if the deeds prove to be pledged with the bank.³³¹ The Privy Council has said that omission to search the register kept under the Registration Act may amount to gross negligence, so as to attract the consequences which result from notice.³³² This ruling has been applied to an omission to search the Revenue Register.³³³ Omission to inspect the title of property which a purchaser has contracted to buy, may amount to gross negligence,³³⁴ but not the omission to inspect the title of an adjoining property which prima facie the vendor is under no obligation to produce.³³⁵

A Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court had held in Nawal Kishore v Agra Municipality,³³⁶ approving *Ramjilal v Municipal Board, Lucknow*³³⁷ and disapproving *Municipal Board v Roop Chand Jain*³³⁸ that a person buying property in a municipal area must be deemed to be aware that municipal taxes are a charge on the property, that there is a possibility of such taxes being in arrears, and that it is his duty to inquire about such arrears; if he fails to do so, he would be deemed to have notice of such taxes. A similar view was also taken by the Calcutta High Court.³³⁹ In Ahmedabad Municipality v Haji Abdul,³⁴⁰ the Supreme Court has disapproved of Nawal Kishore’s case, and held that no such general rule of law can be laid down; and, whether it was the duty of the transferee to inquire about such arrears must be judged on the facts of each case.

ILLUSTRATION

G deposited title-deeds of his house in Calcutta with bank N to secure an overdraft in his account. Subsequently, G represented to the bank that he wished to sell his house in order to clear his overdraft. According to the usual practice, the bank should have delivered the title-deeds to their solicitor in order to arrange for their inspection by the solicitor of the prospective purchaser. But G represented that if the prospective purchaser knew that the deeds were pledged, he would beat him down in price and ask for the deeds to be returned to him. Bank N complied and departing from the usual practice, returned the deeds to G. G then mortgaged the house to another bank L. Bank N was guilty of gross negligence which enabled G to induce bank L to advance money on the house as if it was unencumbered. The mortgage of bank N was postponed to the mortgage of bank L.³⁴¹

[s 3.31.1] Sale of part of property

Under the proviso to section 55(3), on selling part of the property, the seller is entitled to retain all the documents of title. Having regard to this provision, the purchaser of a part would not be held guilty of negligence in allowing the title-deeds to remain with the seller. It would, however, be prudent of a purchaser of a part, not getting the deeds, to stipulate that he should be allowed to endorse notice, of the sale on the deeds retained by the seller. Since registration is constructive notice, the risk to the purchaser is slight, but in the absence of a statutory provision making it compulsory to endorse notice of sale of part of the property on the documents retained, there is scope for the seller committing fraud on a third party, e.g. by depositing title-deeds with intent to create security thereon.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

[s 3.32] Registration as Notice—Explanation I

Explanation I supersedes the former case law as to whether registration of a document under the Registration Act is constructive notice of its contents. The Bombay and Allahabad High Courts had held that registration is notice.³⁴² The Madras High Court had held that registration is not notice on the ground that if the legislature had so intended, it would have said so.³⁴³ The Calcutta High Court in some cases took the same view as Madras High Court;³⁴⁴ but the prevailing view in Calcutta High Court was that whether registration operates as notice depends upon the circumstances of each case, i.e., whether the omission to search the register taken with the facts of the case would amount to gross negligence so as to attract the consequences which result from notice.³⁴⁵ The Privy Council in *Tilakdhari Lal v Khedan Lal*³⁴⁶ reviewed all the Indian decisions, and approved of the decision of Sir Lawrence Jenkins in *Monindra v Troylucko Nath*³⁴⁷ that the question was not one of law, but of fact to be determined according to the circumstances of each case. Their Lordships stated that though registration had been held for two centuries not to operate as notice in England, yet the legislature, when framing different Registration Acts and the definition of notice in the TP Act, 1882, had omitted to enact the principle that registration is notice. This omission has now been supplied. The definite rule now enacted, the effect of which is to oblige all purchasers to exercise diligence in examining titles recorded in the register, avoids the uncertainty and the risk of perjury involved in taking parole evidence as to whether the omission to search the register should in any particular case be attributed to gross negligence. It also fulfils the chief object of registration, which is to provide a record on which every person dealing with property can rely for a full and complete account of all transactions by which his title may be affected.³⁴⁸ The Supreme Court has set at rest all controversies by holding that registered deed is a constructive notice, and is a deemed notice under section 3 of the TP Act, 1882. It was further held that notice is actual as well as constructive, and a plea of bona fide purchaser without notice is not permissible.³⁴⁹ Any person who wants to deal with an immovable property is deemed to have knowledge of all duly registered instruments relating to the said immovable property.³⁵⁰

An unregistered document is unenforceable in the eyes of law for the transfer of property.³⁵¹ As the registration of a document which is compulsorily registrable under law amounts to constructive notice on a person aggrieved by the title or interest created by such document, the registration of the perpetual sub lease produced is deemed to act as a constructive notice to the world at large.³⁵²

In Punjab where the TP Act, 1882 was not in force, it has been held that the question whether registration operates as notice depends upon the facts of each case.³⁵³ Where a document is not compulsorily registrable, its registration does not amount to constructive notice.³⁵⁴ Testamentary documents do not come within the purview of notice as contemplated by section 3, Explanation 1. They are not required to be registered.³⁵⁵

[s 3.33] Any Person Acquiring

These words indicate that registration is notice to transferees subsequent to the registration,³⁵⁶ while the registration of a subsequent transaction is not notice to prior transferees.³⁵⁷

In a case decided by Allahabad High Court,³⁵⁸ Sir John Edge said that any reasonably prudent man who was bringing a suit on a mortgage ought to search the registry in order to ascertain what were the dealings with the property whether the dealings were anterior to, or subsequent to his mortgage. This observation goes too far, and it can only have reference to the joinder of parties to the suit. Subsequent encumbrances cannot affect a title that has been vested. A prior mortgagee ought to join a subsequent encumbrancer in a suit for sale; but if he does not do so, the result is that the decree is not binding on the encumbrancer.³⁵⁹

The registration of a puisne mortgage is not notice to a prior mortgagee.³⁶⁰ Nor is registration of a sub-mortgage notice to the mortgagor.³⁶¹

3. Interpretation-clause.—

ILLUSTRATION

A mortgages property to B, who grants a sub-mortgage to C. A in ignorance of the sub-mortgage, pays the mortgage debt to B. The fact that the sub-mortgage is registered does not amount to notice of the sub-mortgage to A so as to vitiate the payment.³⁶²

An equitable mortgage by deposit of title-deeds is entitled to priority over a subsequently registered mortgage, as it is a perfected conveyance, and not merely an oral agreement to which section 48 of the Registration Act applies.³⁶³ Express provision is now made in this behalf by a proviso inserted in that section of the Registration Act by amending Act 21 of 1929.

[s 3.33.1] Required by law to be registered

Registration is not notice when there is no duty to search the register. A mortgages his goods to B by a registered mortgage, but retains the goods in his own possession. A then sells the goods to C, who is not aware of the mortgage. C acquires a good title to the goods, the law does not require the registration of mortgages of movables, and there was no duty cast upon him to search the register.³⁶⁴

However, an assignment deed that conveys title in property for more than Rs 100/ must be registered.³⁶⁵

[s 3.34] Time from which Registration Operates as Notice

If the instrument has been registered in the same sub-district as that in which the property is situated, it operates as notice from the date of registration. This is because any person seeking to acquire an interest in the property would inspect the register of that sub-district when investigating title. If, however, the property is situated in several sub-districts, or if registration has been effected under section 30(2) of the Registration Act in another district, the registered deed will not operate as notice until memorandum of such registration has been received and filed by the sub-registrar of the sub-district in which the property is situated under section 66 of the Registration Act.³⁶⁶ The reason for this distinction is that, the purchaser cannot be expected to search the registers of other sub-districts. In Alliance Bank of Simla v Bhai Kahan,³⁶⁷ a mortgage-deed affecting properties in more than one sub-district was registered at Lahore, and the chief court held that a purchaser of one of the properties in a different district had notice. The court said:

As to the registration of the deed being effected in Lahore, the force of the argument is weakened when it is remembered that, when a deed affecting properties in more than one district is registered in Lahore, a copy is sent for record to each district in which any part of the property is.

The point as to the time from which the registration operated as notice did not arise in this case, but this is now settled by the amendment made in explanation I by amending Act 5 of 1930.

[s 3.35] Registration is Notice of Registered Instrument

3. Interpretation-clause.—

If an instrument is registered in the manner prescribed by the Registration Act, a party cannot be heard to say that he searched the register without finding it, as he must take the consequences of his want of diligence.³⁶⁸ Notice of a deed is notice of all material facts affecting the property which appear on the face of the deed, or can be reasonably inferred from its contents.³⁶⁹ It is also notice of all documents recited in the deed and which an examination of the deed would have disclosed, provided the deed forms part of the chain of title and so necessarily affects the property.³⁷⁰ Where a mortgage is mentioned in a conveyance, the purchaser has constructive notice of other encumbrances referred to in the mortgage. The report of a very old case—*Bisco v Earl of Banbury*³⁷¹ contains the following passage:

But my Lord Chancellor declared; that there was sufficient notice in law, or an implied notice, for the mortgage to Hewet was excepted in the Defendant's Conveyance, and therefore they could not be ignorant of the Mortgage, and ought to have seen that, and that would have led them to the other Deeds in which, pursued from one to another, the whole case must have been discovered to them.

The High Court of Punjab and Haryana has held that this explanation has no relevance regarding the period of limitation, and does not state that the period starts only from the time when the person concerned came to know of the sale-deeds. The explanation deals with notice of the previous sale to the subsequent purchaser, and has no concern with limitation for pre-emption suits.³⁷²

ILLUSTRATION

A and his half brother B, effected a partition of the family property, and the deed of partition contained a mutual covenant that if either brother agreed to sell his share of the family house, he would give the other a right of pre-emption. B sold his half share of the house to C by a deed which described the share as acquired under a deed of partition. C had constructive notice of the covenant of pre-emption.³⁷³

The Bombay High Court had in some cases held that registration did not operate as notice of unregistered instruments referred to in the registered deed.³⁷⁴ These cases, are no longer good law.

[s 3.36] Provisos to Explanation I

The provisos to explanation I are self-explanatory. The first proviso merely repeats what is enacted in the fifth paragraph of the section, that registration must be according to law. The second and third provisos make it clear that a purchaser will not be affected with notice of any fact which has not been correctly entered in the registers and indexes kept by the sub-registrar. In Gordhandas v Mohunlal,³⁷⁵ the Bombay High Court held that the purchaser was not affected with notice of a registered agreement restricting the use of the property purchased because it was not shown that the agreement was indexed in relation to the property sold.

A mere defect of procedure will not invalidate registration.³⁷⁶ Cases have occurred in which immovable property which ought to be registered in Book No 1 has been registered in the Miscellaneous Register Book No 4. There is a conflict of decisions as to whether such registration is valid,³⁷⁷ or invalid.³⁷⁸ However that may be, the second proviso shows that such misplaced entries will not operate as notice.³⁷⁹

3. Interpretation-clause.—

[s 3.37] Record of Rights

Omission by a purchaser to inspect entries in the record of rights will, as already stated above, amount to wilful abstention from inquiry under the first part of the definition of notice.³⁸⁰

[s 3.38] Actual Possession as Notice of Title—Explanation II

Explanation II settles the law that actual possession is notice of such title as the person in actual possession has. It raises a statutory presumption of “notice” against any person who acquires any immovable property or any interest therein of the title, if any, of the person who is for the time being in actual possession thereof.³⁸¹

In R K Mohammed Ubaidullah v Hajee C Abdul Wahab,³⁸² the Supreme Court has held:

With reference to subsequent purchaser it is essential that he should make an inquiry as to the title or interest of the person in actual possession as on the date when the sale transaction was made in his favour. The actual possession of a person itself is deemed or constructive notice of the title if any, of a person who is for the time being in actual possession thereof. A subsequent purchaser has to make inquiry as to further interest, nature of possession and title under which the person was continuing in possession on the date of purchase of the property.

In Barnhart v Greenshields,³⁸³ Lord Kingsdown delivering the judgment of the Board said:

With respect to the effect of possession merely, we take the law to be, that if there be a tenant in possession of land, a purchaser is bound by all the equities which the tenant could enforce against the vendor, and that the equity of the tenant extends not only to interests connected with his tenancy, as in Taylor v Stibbert,³⁸⁴ but also to interests under collateral agreements, as in *Daniels v Davison*³⁸⁵ and Alien v Anthony,³⁸⁶ the principle being the same in both classes of cases; namely, that the possession of the tenant is notice that he has some interest in the land, and that a purchaser having notice of that fact is bound, according to the ordinary rule, either to inquire what that interest is, or to give effect to it, whatever it may be.

A mortgagor contracted to sell the mortgaged property to the mortgagee who was in possession, and then sold it to a third person. The purchaser having made no inquiries, was held to have had constructive notice of all the equities in favour of the mortgagee.³⁸⁷ Similarly, in Baburam Bag v Madhav Chandra,³⁸⁸ Sir Lawrence Jenkins CJ said:

the occupation of the property by a tenant ordinarily affects one who would take a transfer of the property with notice of that tenant's rights, and if he chooses to make no inquiry of the tenant, he cannot claim to be a transferee without notice.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

A purchaser,³⁸⁹ or a permanent lessee³⁹⁰ of a village, is effected with notice of the rights of cultivating tenants about which he made no inquiry. In H N Narayanaswamy Naidy v Davveramma,³⁹¹ the vendor after executing a sale deed obtained an agreement for reconveyance of the property and while giving possession of the property to vendee, later entered into an agreement with him for the release of his rights under the agreement for reconveyance. Subsequently, a “purchase” of the vendor’s rights (under the agreement for reconveyance) was made by a person who was residing near the property in question. It was held by the Karnataka High Court that the subsequent purchaser would be deemed to have notice of the vendee’s rights with reference to the agreement between the vendor and vendee.

Thus, in the case of unregistered sale deeds, the priority between buyers under interest, if any created by the unregistered sale deed is that the effect of possession under the first unregistered sale deed would terminate and prejudice the second buyer.³⁹²

Where a landlord has released the rent of a tenant and then mortgages the property leased, the possession of the tenant is constructive notice of the release and the mortgagee is not entitled to recover rent from the tenants; but a release after the mortgage is not binding on the mortgagee.³⁹³ The first part of this proposition rests on the principle that the open possession of a tenant is notice, not only of the terms of the tenancy, but of collateral agreements as well, in the absence of all inquiry by the transferee.³⁹⁴ Therefore, a notice of a tenant in possession, in the absence of inquiry, also constitutes constructive notice of the right of the tenant to claim part-performance under section 53-A.³⁹⁵ However, a notice of tenancy is not notice of the tenant’s equitable right to have the tenancy agreement rectified, as although the purchaser was bound to ascertain the terms under which the tenant held the land, he was under no duty to ascertain whether the terms accurately set out the bargain between the parties.³⁹⁶

[s 3.38.1] Presumption of title from long possession will not apply against title holder

The maxim “possession follows title” is applicable in cases where proof of actual possession cannot reasonably be expected; for instance, in the case of waste lands, or where nothing is known about possession one way or another. Presumption of title as a result of possession, can arise only where facts disclose that no title vests in any party.³⁹⁷

[s 3.38.2] Possession to operate as notice must be actual

In order to operate as constructive notice, possession must be actual possession.³⁹⁸ Constructive possession is not notice, and the possession of a tenant is not notice of the title of the lessor,³⁹⁹ unless the purchaser had learnt that the rent was in fact paid to him in a manner inconsistent with the title of the seller.⁴⁰⁰

Thus, if A contracts to sell land to B, and after B has put his tenant in possession, A sells the land to C, then the possession of B’s tenant will not be sufficient to affect C with notice of B’s interest.

It does not matter that the party in possession under a contract of sale had previously been in possession as tenant of the vendor, as the purchaser has no right to assume that the former tenant has not subsequently acquired another title.⁴⁰¹ On the other hand, if a purchaser finds his vendor in possession, he is not affected with notice that he is in possession, as tenant of a third party.⁴⁰²

3. Interpretation-clause.—

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A leased his land on 2 March 1901 to B for seven years. On 1 May 1901, A entered into an agreement with B for the renewal of the lease on the termination of the term. On 11 July, A purported to settle the land with C for seven years from 1 May 1908. C sued to recover possession on the ground that the lease to B had terminated but the court held that C had constructive notice of the agreement as B was in possession and that C was not entitled to possession.⁴⁰³

(2) A leased his land to B, and then in 1875, sold it to him for ₹75 by an unregistered deed of sale. B, who was originally the tenant, continued in possession as owner. In 1876, A sold the land to C by a registered sale deed. C sued B for the rent alleging that B was in possession as tenant. Although C's deed being registered would have priority over B's unregistered deed, yet C is not entitled to rent because having notice of B's possession he had constructive notice of the title on which B held the land.⁴⁰⁴

(3) A sells land to B but remains in possession as tenant of B. The sale deed to B is unregistered, and A afterwards sells the same land to C by a registered deed. C is not deprived of the priority by the doctrine of notice, for he had no reason to suppose that A was in possession otherwise than as owner.⁴⁰⁵

[s 3.38.3] Possession only of a portion where whole property sold

The rule depends upon the principle that when another is in exclusive possession of the property, and such possession would be prima facie inconsistent with the full rights of ownership of the vendor or mortgagor, and the purchaser does not choose to ask what that possession is, he must be taken to have got the information that he would have obtained if he had asked.⁴⁰⁶ However, the doctrine must not be extended to the case of every person who may be on the premises; and possession of a small part of a house will not put a purchaser on constructive notice of that person's rights as to the whole house.⁴⁰⁷ The principle of constructive notice thus, cannot be extended to a case where the person who claims on the basis of prior agreement is in possession of only a small fraction of the property. In such a case, it cannot be said that the person who purchases the property must make an inquiry about the previous contract from the plaintiff or any other tenant in occupation of a portion of the house.⁴⁰⁸

[s 3.39] State of the Property

A purchaser has been held to have notice of the rights of third parties from the state of the property purchased. Thus, the mortgagee of a burial ground has notice of the purposes to which it is devoted, and is bound by the rights of burial, temporary or in perpetuity, granted by his mortgagor, while left in possession.⁴⁰⁹ If there is a shrine or tomb on the land to be sold, the purchaser will be put to an inquiry as to whether the land is a wakf.⁴¹⁰ Where a part of an estate, agreed to be let upon building leases was sold and the purchaser had notice of the existence of an archway, which, on the completion of the buildings was to be the only access to the adjoining land, it was held that the state of the property being such as to put the purchaser upon inquiry, he was fixed with constructive notice of the right of way.⁴¹¹ However, the mere fact of there being windows in an adjoining house, which overlooked a purchased property, is not constructive notice of an agreement giving a right to the access of light to them, as windows are frequently made in situations where they are liable to be obstructed.⁴¹²

[s 3.40] Notice to an Agent

Explanation III amends the law as to notice to an agent. Prior to the amending Act of 1929, the definition of notice included a provision that a person is said to have notice of a fact "when information of the fact is given or obtained by his agent under the circumstances mentioned in section 229 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872. The words "given or obtained" suggested express notice. In a case decided by Calcutta High Court⁴¹³ Pontifex J said "for a purchaser to be affected with constructive notice through his solicitor, the latter himself must have actual notice." The words "given or obtained" have been omitted, and the reference to the section of the Indian Contract Act deleted, and the definition widened so as to include a fact of which the agent has notice, whether express or constructive. This accords with the principle qui facit per alium facit per se, i.e., he who acts through another is deemed to act in person, and that the agent stands in the place of his principal with reference to the business for which he is agent so that his acts and knowledge are the acts and knowledge of his principal.⁴¹⁴

3. Interpretation-clause.—

The expression “imputed notice” was first used by Lord Chelmsford in the following passage from Espin v Pemberton:⁴¹⁵

Constructive notice properly so called, is the knowledge which the courts impute to a person upon a presumption so strong of the existence of the knowledge, that it cannot be allowed to be rebutted, either from his knowing something which ought to have put him upon further inquiry, or from his wilfully abstaining from inquiry, to avoid notice. I should therefore prefer calling the knowledge which a person has either by himself or through his agent, actual knowledge or if it is necessary to make a distinction between the knowledge which a person possesses himself, and that which is known to his agent, the latter might be called imputed knowledge.

The Privy Council has held that it is a rule of law that imputes the knowledge of the agent to the principal, as the agency extends to receiving notice, on behalf of the principal, of whatever is material.⁴¹⁶

An alienation of the property by the father in whose favour a power of attorney has been executed by the son, would bind the latter⁴¹⁷ as it would squarely come under the expression “when a person is said to have notice” as interpreted under section 3 of the Transfer of Property Act and he would be deemed to have notice of the acts and transactions executed by his agent.

[s 3.41] Scope of the Rule as to Imputed Notice

The rule of imputed notice is subject to certain limitations. Notice should have been received by the agent (1) during the agency; (2) in his capacity as agent; (3) in the course of the agency business; (4) in a matter material to the agency business; and (5) should not have been fraudulently withheld from the principal. The first four conditions are implied by the words “whilst acting on his behalf in the course of the business to which that fact is material.” The fifth condition is the subject of the proviso and will be considered separately.⁴¹⁸

[s 3.41.1] During the agency

It is essential that the knowledge should have been acquired by the agent, as agent and while acting in the agency business. Thus, if a canvasser for an insurance company negotiates a policy of insurance for a man who has lost the sight of one eye, against the loss of both eyes; the knowledge obtained by the canvasser, when acting as agent of the company, that the man had already lost one eye, will be imputed to the company.⁴¹⁹ Knowledge obtained before the commencement of the agency will not be imputed to the principal. A mortgagee is not held to have notice of prior charges because his solicitor had previously acted for the prior encumbrancers.⁴²⁰ In Chabildas Lalloobhai v Dayai Mowji,⁴²¹ a mortgagee sold the property mortgaged under a power of sale, and one of the conditions of the sale was a depreciatory condition wholly unwarranted by the state of the mortgagor's title. The purchaser signed the contract the same day, and a few days later employed a solicitor to act for him in the preparation of a conveyance. The High Court set aside the sale on the ground that the solicitor knew enough about the title to see that the condition was unjustifiable. The Privy Council, however, said that this view imputed to the principal the knowledge of an agent not acquired in the business for which he was agent, and to use it to upset a transaction at the date the agency commenced, was an extension of the doctrine of constructive notice with which the Council could not concur. Knowledge acquired by an agent after the agency has terminated, cannot be imputed to the principal.

[s 3.41.2] In his capacity as agent

3. Interpretation-clause.—

It is necessary that the transaction should be such as to constitute the relation of principal and agent. It has been held that notice to the agent of a country solicitor is notice to the person employing the solicitor.⁴²² On the other hand, if a mortgagee allows a mortgagor-solicitor to endorse the deed of mortgage, he does not constitute the solicitor his agent, and is not affected with knowledge of an encumbrance known to him.⁴²³ Where company A lends money to company B, and if a director of company A is by reason of a personal interest in company B aware that the loan is required for an ultra vires purpose, that knowledge will not be imputed to company A, as the director is under no duty to disclose how the money borrowed would be applied.⁴²⁴ However, if a director in his personal capacity has notice of a charge on shares of the company, that will amount to notice to the company.⁴²⁵ Similarly, if a director charges his own shares, notice of the charge will be imputed to the company.⁴²⁶

[s 3.41.3] In the course of the agency business

Employment of a solicitor in one transaction will not make him an agent for receiving notice in a subsequent transaction.⁴²⁷ Where the purchaser employed the same solicitor as the vendor, and the solicitor had heard of certain restrictions in the course of his previous employment by the vendor, notice of the restrictions was not imputed to the purchaser since his solicitor would not have discovered them if he had investigated title in the usual way.⁴²⁸

[s 3.41.4] Material to the business

The knowledge must, of course, be material to the business for which the agent is employed. It is not a part of the duty of an agent to acquire knowledge of a fact which is not material to the business of the agency, nor would it be his duty, if he did acquire such knowledge, to communicate it to his principal.⁴²⁹

[s 3.41.5] Ratification

If a principal ratifies the act of an agent, notice to the agent will be imputed as notice to the principal, as the effect of the ratification is to constitute the agent an agent ab initio.⁴³⁰

[s 3.41.6] Communication by agent not necessary

That the knowledge of the agent is knowledge of the principal has been said by the Privy Council to be a rule of law and an inference of fact.⁴³¹ In the absence of fraud, it does not matter that there has been no communication by the agent.⁴³² In Kettlewell v Watson,⁴³³ Fry LJ said:

The court, therefore, receives evidence of the agency and it receives evidence of the act of the principal, but it will not receive evidence whether the agent recollected the fact at the time, or whether he communicated it to his principal. It deals with those matters by way of irrebuttable presumption when the circumstances are known.

The Privy Council has taken the same view.⁴³⁴

[s 3.42] Proviso as to Imputed Notice: Fraudulent Concealment of Fact by Agent

Fraud on the part of the agent exempts the principal from the rule of imputed notice. Such conduct raises a necessary presumption that the notice has not been communicated, as a fraudulent person will never communicate it to one of his victims. In Cave v Cave,⁴³⁵ it is pointed out by Fry LJ that this exception has been based on two grounds:

3. Interpretation-clause.—

(1) that the act done by the agent is such as cannot be said to be done by him in his character of agent, but is done by him in the character of a party to an independent fraud on his principal, and that it is not to be imputed to the principal as an act done by his agent; and

(2) that circumstances raised the inevitable conclusion that the notice had not been communicated.

In the case already cited,⁴³⁶ Lord Wrenbury (then Buckley J) said:

I understand the law to be this: that if a communication be made to an agent which it would be his duty to hand on to his principals, and if the agent has an interest which would lead him not to disclose to his principals the information which he has thus obtained, and in point of tact he does not communicate it, you are not to impute to his principals knowledge by reason of the fact that their agent knew something which it was not in his interest to disclose and which he did not disclose.

This passage was cited with approval by the judicial committee in Texas Co Ltd v Bombay Banking Co.⁴³⁷ In that case, V who was an agent of the bank, had an overdraft in his private banking account which he discharged with money belonging to the Texas Company, who were his principals in an oil business. It was contended that as V was agent of the bank, knowledge of the ownership of the money should be imputed to the bank. However, Lord Buckmaster said:

It would be straining the doctrine of notice beyond all reasonable limits to hold that in such circumstances moneys received in absolute good faith should be earmarked with some independent ownership, because the debtor, who was also a servant of the company committed a fraud in order to discharge his obligations.

Where a party has connived with the agent and information has been fraudulently withheld from the principal by the agent, he cannot take advantage of his fraud and impute notice to the principal. A common solicitor of both parties colluding with one does not affect the other with notice, "for it would be an encouragement of fraud to apply the rules of notice which were established for the safety of mankind to a transaction like this; it would be sanctioning a scheme to rob a man by colluding with his solicitor".⁴³⁸

ILLUSTRATIONS

3. Interpretation-clause.—

(1) A solicitor, CC, who was trustee of a settlement, purchased with the trust money, land in the name of his brother FC. The brother, FC, mortgaged it to a mortgagee who employed CC, as his solicitor. The mortgagee was no party to the fraud and was not affected with the knowledge of the trust which his solicitor possessed.⁴³⁹

(2) A solicitor acts for a husband and wife seeking to mortgage the wife's property, which is in fact caught by a covenant to settle. He also acts for the intending mortgagee. The solicitor, who has notice of the covenant, tells the mortgagors that he will not disclose it to the mortgagee. The mortgagee is not affected with constructive notice of the covenant.⁴⁴⁰

The exception of fraud, however, will not altogether exclude the doctrine of imputed notice, and if the agent is a fraudulent solicitor, notice will be imputed of anything which an honest solicitor, employed in the place of the fraudulent solicitor, would have discovered in the ordinary course of the business of the agency. In Kennedy v Green,⁴⁴¹ a lady was mortgagee of leasehold property belonging to her solicitor who fraudulently obtained her signature to an assignment of the mortgage to himself. He then raised money on a mortgage of the same property as unencumbered leasehold to another client K. The assignment by the lady to the solicitor was drawn in an informal and irregular manner, which would have excited the suspicion of a professional man, and so money was paid to her. It was held that though K could not be deemed to have notice of the fraud of, yet if an independent solicitor had been employed, an examination of the deed signed by the lady would have at once shown the suspicious character of the transaction. K was, therefore, affected with notice that consideration had not been paid, on the ground that the deed and the endorsed receipt thereon, were drawn in a peculiar form. As Lord Brougham LC said:

For Bostock, had he been wholly free from the guilty knowledge and only employed as a solicitor to act for and advise Mr Kirby must on seeing the deed, have had his attention at once called to the suspicious circumstances under which it was executed.

In this case the fraud was in the obtaining of the deed. There was no attempt to conceal it from K

⁵⁸ Ins. by Act 27 of 1926, section 2 as amended by Act 10 of 1927, section 2 and Sch. I.

⁵⁹ Subs. by Act 3 of 1951, section 3 and sch., for "a Part A State or a Part C State" (w.e.f. 1-4-1951).

⁶⁰ Subs. by the Adaptation of Laws (No. 2) Order, 1956, for "any State".

⁶¹ See the Indian Registration Act, 1908 (16 of 1908).

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 62 Ins. by Act 2 of 1900, section 2.
- 63 Subs. by Act 20 of 1929, section 4 as amended by Act 5 of 1930, section 2 for the original paragraph.
- 64 Sukry Kurdepa v Goondakull, (1872) 6 Mad HC 71.
- 65 Triveni Engineering & Industries Ltd v Commr of Central Excise, (2000) 7 SCC 29 [LNIND 2000 SC 1069] : AIR 2000 SC 2896 [LNIND 2000 SC 1069] .
- 66 Jagdish (deceased by LRs v Mangal Pandey (deceased by LRs), AIR 1986 All 182 [LNIND 1985 ALL 285] : 1985 11 All WC 986 All.
- 67 See section 4 of the General Clauses Act, 1897; Babu Lal v Bhawani, (1912) 9 All LJ 776 : 15 IC 32.
- 68 Tarkeshwar Sia Thakurji v Dar Das Dey Co, (1979) 3 SCC 106 [LNIND 1979 SC 92] .
- 69 Shantabai v State of Bombay, AIR 1958 SC 532 [LNIND 1958 SC 28] , para 28; See also Suresh Chand v Kundan, (2001) 10 SCC 221 , para 6 : (2000) 7 Scale 620 : “As there is no special definition of immovable property, the general definition contained in the General Clauses would prevail.”
- 70 Ibid.
- 71 Keshav v Vinayak, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 22; Collector of Thana v Hari Sitaram, (1882) ILR 6 Bom 546.
- 72 Sikander v Bahadur, (1905) ILR 27 All 462.
- 73 Surendra Narain v Bhai Lal, (1895) ILR 22 Cal 752; Golam Mohiuddin v Parbati, (1909) ILR 36 Cal 665 : 1 IC 520; see also Province of Bengal v Hingul Kumari, (1945) 50 Cal WN 184 : 225 IC 130 : AIR 1946 Cal 217 , where it was held that a haat of the kind then described was not land or immovable property.
- 74 Narayan v Vasudeo, (1891) ILR 15 Bom 247.
- 75 Churaman v Balli, (1887) ILR 9 All 591; Hurmuza Begum v Hirdaynarain, (1878) ILR 5 Cal 921.
- 76 Babu Lal v Bhawani, (1912) 9 All LJ 776; Bhudeb Chandra v Bikshukur Palta-Naik, 196 IC 837 : AIR 1942 Pat. 120 ; Daw Yai v U Men Sin, 187 IC 762 : AIR 1940 Rang 102 .
- 77 Nathha v Dhunbaiji, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 1; Moolla & Sons v Official Assignee, Rangoon, 63 IA 340 : (1936) All LJ 832 : 38 Bom LR 1011 : 163 IC 418 : AIR 1936 PC 230 .
- 78 Bejoy Chandra v Bunku Bihari, (1908) 13 Cal WN 451 : 4 IC 116.
- 79 Krishna v Akilandu, (1885) ILR 13 Mad 54, see also section 2(6) of Registration Act, 1908.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 80 Parbutty v Mudho Paroe, (1876) ILR 3 Cal 276; Fadu Jhala v Gour Mohun, (1892) ILR 19 Cal 544; Ram Gopal v Nurumuddin, (1893) ILR 20 Cal 446; Shibu Haldar v Gupi Sundari, (1897) ILR 24 Cal 449; Bhunda Panda v Pandol Pos Patil, (1888) ILR 12 Bom 221, see also section 2(6) of Registration Act, 1908.
- 81 Ramchandra v Subrayya, AIR 1951 Bom 127 [LNIND 1951 BOM 10] . This passage was approvingly referred to from the 5th Edn of this book by the Supreme Court in State of Orissa v Titaghar Paper Mills Co Ltd, AIR 1985 SC 1293 [LNIND 1985 SC 400] , pp 1335–1336.
- 82 Suresh Chand v Kundan, (2001) 10 SCC 221 , para 6 : (2000) 7 Scale 620 .
- 83 Kenneth Solomon v Dan Singh Bawa, AIR 1986 Del 1 [LNIND 1985 DEL 181] .
- 84 Ibid.
- 85 Anand Behera v State of Orissa, [1955] 2 SCR 919 [LNIND 1955 SC 84] : AIR 1956 SC 17 [LNIND 1955 SC 84] ; Ganesh Chandra v State of West Bengal, AIR 1958 Cal 114 [LNIND 1957 CAL 152] .
- 86 Biranchi Padhan v Collector, Bolangir, AIR 2017 Ori. 154 : LNIND 2017 ORI 244 .
- 87 Shantabai v State of Bombay, [1959] 1 SCR 265 [LNIND 1958 SC 30] : AIR 1958 SC 532 [LNIND 1958 SC 28] .
- 88 White v Taylor, No, 2 (1969) 1 ChD 160 : (1968) 1 All ER 1015 .
- 89 State of Orissa v Titaghar Paper Mills Co Ltd, AIR 1985 SC 1293 [LNIND 1985 SC 400] , p 1337.
- 90 Parmanandy v Birkhu, (1909) 5 Nag LR 21 : 1 IC 903; Kamal Singh v Kali Mahton, AIR 1955 Pat. 402 .
- 91 Udaya Narayan v Badriya Dasi, AIR 1952 Oudh 116 .
- 92 Krishna v Kusunda Collieries, 65 IC 673 : AIR 1922 Pat. 36 .
- 93 Altaf Begam v Brij Narain, (1929) ILR 51 All 612, p 618 : 116 IC 855 : AIR 1929 All 281 .
- 94 Bhikiji v Pandu, (1895) ILR 19 Bom 43.
- 95 Maharana Futtehsangji v Desai Kallinaraiji, (1874) 1 IA 34 , pp 50–51 : 13 Beng LR 254, approving Krishnabhat v Kapabhat, (1870) 6 Bom HC 137 and Balwantrao v Purushotam, (1873) 9 Bom HC 99; Collector of Thana v Krishnanath, (1881) ILR 5 Bom 322.
- 96 Maharana Futtehsangi v Desai Kallianraiiji, (1874) 1 IA 34 , pp 50–51.
- 97 Raghoo v Kasshy, (1883) ILR 10 Cal 73; Sukh Lal v Bishambhar, (1917) ILR 39 All 196 : 37 IC 661.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 98 Krishnaji v Gajanan, (1909) ILR 33 Bom 373 : 2 IC 489.
- 99 Madhavrao v Kashibai, (1910) ILR 34 Bom 287 : 5 IC 599.
- 100 Eshan Chander v Monmohini, (1879) ILR 4 Cal 683; Jati Kar v Mukunda Deb, (1912) ILR 39 Cal 227 : 11 IC 884; Narasingha v Prolhadman, (1919) ILR 46 Cal 455 : 47 IC 25; Nitya Gopal v Nani Lal, (1920) ILR 47 Cal 990 : 56 IC 19; Jagdeo Singh v Ram Saran Pande, (1927) ILR 6 Pat 245 : 97 IC 332 : AIR 1927 Pat. 7 .
- 101 Kodulal v Beharilal, 137 IC 136 : AIR 1932 Sau 60 .
- 102 Balkreshna v Salegram, AIR 1947 All 391 .
- 103 Sothamaya v Vallipallia, AIR 1939 Mad. 802 [LNIND 1939 MAD 122] .
- 104 Duncan Industries v State of Andhra Pradesh, (2000) 1 SCC 633 [LNIND 1999 SC 1096] , para 8 : AIR 2000 SC 355 [LNIND 1999 SC 1096] .
- 105 Commissioner for Central Excise, Ahmedabad v Solid and Correct Engineering Works, (2010) 5 SCC 122 : 2010 (3) Scale 598 : [2010] 4 SCR 476 .
- 106 Mahalavu v Kusaji, (1894) ILR 18 Bom 739; Parashram v Govind, (1897) ILR 21 Bom 226; Kanti Ram v Kutubuddin, (1895) ILR 22 Cal 33.
- 107 Pareesh Nath v Nabogopal, (1902) ILR 29 Cal 1; Sohan Lal v Mohan Lal, (1928) ILR 50 All 986 : 118 IC 177 : AIR 1928 All 726 ; Jang Bahadur v Bhagatram, (1930) ILR 52 All 232 : 122 IC 409 : AIR 1930 All 110 ; Pralhad v Maganlal, AIR 1952 Bom 454 [LNIND 1952 BOM 7] .
- 108 Sakhiuddin v Sonaullah, (1917) 22 Cal WN 641 : 45 IC 986; Perumal v Perumal, (1921) ILR 44 Mad 196 : 61 IC 461 : AIR 1921 Mad. 137 ; Official Receiver v Lakshman, (1921) 41 Mad LJ 453 : 68 IC 752 : AIR 1921 Mad. 681 [LNIND 1921 MAD 169] ; Elumalai v Balakrishna, (1921) ILR 44 Mad 965, p 968 : 66 IC 168 : AIR 1922 Mad. 344 [LNIND 1921 MAD 65] (equitable mortgage); Banarsi Das v Ramchander, 141 IC 421 : AIR 1933 Lah 210 .
- 109 Tarvadi v Bai Kashi, (1904) ILR 26 Bom 305; Nataraja v South Indian Bank, (1914) ILR 37 Mad 51 : 13 IC 91; Debendra v Rup Lal, (1885) ILR 12 Cal 546; Karim-un-nissa v Phul Chand, (1893) ILR 15 All 134; Lal Umrao v Lal Singh, (1924) ILR 46 All 917 : 80 IC 890 : AIR 1924 All 796 .
- 110 VERMNCT Chettyar v ARARRM Chettyar Firm, (1934) ILR 12 Rang 370 : 151 IC 519 : AIR 1934 Rang 250 .
- 111 Krishnarao v Babaji, (1900) ILR 24 Bom 31; Joseph Annamma, (1979) Ker LT 322 .
- 112 Sukry v Goondakull, (1872) 6 Mad HCR 71 .
- 113 See Shantabai v State of Bombay, [1959] 1 SCR 265 [LNIND 1958 SC 30] : AIR 1958 SC 532 [LNIND 1958 SC 28] .

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 114 See Halsbury's Laws of England, 3rd Edn vol 17, p 624; oak, ash and elm trees over 20 years old are standing timber, and not, trees less than six inches in diameter.
- 115 Nanhe Lal v Ram Bharose, (1938) ILR All 115 ; Bajinath v Ramdhar, (1963) All LJ 33 : AIR 1963 All 214 [LNIND 1962 ALL 179] .
- 116 Ram Kumar v Krishna Gopal, AIR 1946 Oudh 106 .
- 117 Kunhikoya v Ahmed Kutty, AIR 1952 Mad. 39 [LNIND 1951 MAD 177] : (1951) 1 Mad LJ 453.
- 118 Marshall v Green, (1875) 1 CPD 35 , p 39.
- 119 Shantabai v State of Bombay, [1959] 1 SCR 265 [LNIND 1958 SC 30] : AIR 1958 SC 532 [LNIND 1958 SC 28] .
- 120 Seeni v Santhanathan, (1897) ILR 20 Mad 58; Ali Hossain Shaik v Jonabali Mondal, (1935) 62 Cal LJ 534 : 167 IC 206 : AIR 1936 Cal 770 ; District Board, Banares v Churhu Rai, 1956 All LJ 872 : AIR 1956 All 680 [LNIND 1956 ALL 46] ; Appalaraju v Yedu Kondala, AIR 1958 Pat. 713 ; Bajinath v Ramadhar, 1963 All LJ 33 per Beg, J dissenting. See however Krishnarao v Babaji, (1900) ILR 24 Bom 31; Rameshwar Singh Bahadur v Bahadur v Basudeva Singh, AIR 1923 Pat. 95 ; Ibadullah v Lachmi Narain, 93 IC 358 : AIR 1926 All 350 ; Nanhe Lal v Ram Bharose, (1938) ILR All 115 ; Bajinath v Ramnadhhar, 1963 All LJ 33, wherein it was held that irrespective of when the trees are intended to be cut they would be covered under the expression "standing trees". The decisions in light of both the legislative intent and the Supreme Court's ruling, it is submitted are incorrect.
- 121 Alisaheb v Mohidin, (1911) 13 Bom LR 874 [LNIND 1911 BOM 84] : 12 IC 375; Katwani v Ram Adhin, (1912) 10 All LJ 516 : 17 IC 910; Sakharam v Vishram, (1895) ILR 19 Bom 207, p 208; Moti Singh v Deoki Singh, 160 IC 1054 : AIR 1936 Pat. 46 .
- 122 Nahanchand v Modi, (1907) ILR 31 Bom 183, p 197; Bodhe Ganderi v Ashloka Singh, (1926) ILR 5 Pat 765 : 98 IC 779 : AIR 1927 Pat. 1 .
- 123 Chandi v Sat Narain, 81 IC 650 : AIR 1925 Oudh 108 .
- 124 Moti Singh v Deoki Singh, 160 IC 1054 : AIR 1936 Pat. 66 ; Sheik Jan Mohammad v Umanath Misra, AIR 1962 Pat. 441 .
- 125 Suresh Chander v Kundan, 2007 (7) Scale 620 .
- 126 Jagdish v Mangal Pandey, AIR 1986 All 182 [LNIND 1985 ALL 285] .
- 127 State of Himachal Pradesh v Motilal Pratap Singh & Co, AIR 1981 HP 8 [LNIND 1980 HP 27] .
- 128 Atmaram v Doma, (1897) 11 CPLR 87.
- 129 Kalka v Chandan, (1888) ILR 10 All 20.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 130 Crosby v Wadsworth, (1805) 6 East 602.
- 131 Washbourn v Burrows, (1847) 1 Exch 107.
- 132 Mahadev Prasad v Enayab Ilahi, AIR 1951 All 608 [LNIND 1950 ALL 362] .
- 133 Seeni Chettiar v Santhanathan, (1897) ILR 20 Mad 58.
- 134 State of Andhra Pradesh v National Thermal Power Corpn Ltd, (2002) 5 SCC 203 [LNIND 2002 SC 311] ; AIR 2002 SC 1895 [LNIND 2002 SC 311] .
- 135 Somu v Rangammal, (1871) 7 Mad HC 13, approved in Lakshmamma v Kameshwara, (1890) ILR 13 Mad pp 281, 286.
- 136 Gurdev Kaur v Kaki, AIR 2006 SC 1975 [LNIND 2006 SC 281] : JT 2006 (5) SC 72 [LNIND 2006 SC 281] : 2006 (4) Scale 436 [LNIND 2006 SC 281] : (2007)1 SCC 546 [LNIND 2006 SC 281] .
- 137 Mathai Samuel v Eapen Eapen (dead) by LRs, AIR 2013 SC 532 [LNIND 2012 SC 726] : JT 2012 (11) SC 364 [LNIND 2012 SC 726] : 2012 (11) Scale 167 [LNIND 2012 SC 726] : (2012) 13 SCC 80 [LNIND 2012 SC 726] .
- 138 N Kamalam v Ayyasamy, (2001) 7 SCC 503 [LNIND 2001 SC 1589] , para 20.
- 139 Freshfield v Reed, (1842) 9 M & W 404; Seal v Claridge, (1881) 7 QBD 516 , p 519.
- 140 Ganga v Shiam Sundar, (1904) ILR 26 All 69; Ramji v Bai Parvati, (1903) ILR 27 Bom 91.
- 141 Girindra v Bejoy, (1899) ILR 26 Cal 246; Abdul v Salimun, (1900) ILR 27 Cal 190; Shamu Patter v Abdul, (1908) ILR 31 Mad 215.
- 142 Harmongal Narain v Ganaur Singh, (1907) 13 Cal WN 40 : 31 IC 109; Surur Jigar Begum v Barada Kanta, (1910) ILR 37 Cal 526 : 5 IC 539.
- 143 Shamu Patter v Abdul Kader, (1912) ILR 35 Mad 607 : 39 IA 218 : 16 IC 250.
- 144 Badri Prasad v Abdul Karim, (1913) ILR 35 All 254 : 19 IC 451; Padarath Halwai v Ram Nain, (1915) ILR 37 All 474 : 42 IA 163 : 30 IC 366; Paramasiva v Krishna, (1918) ILR 41 Mad 535 : 43 IC 983; Sama Rao v Vannajee, (1923) ILR 46 Mad 64 : 71 IC 153 : AIR 1923 Mad. 36 ; Ganga Pershad v Ishri Pershad, (1918) ILR 45 Cal 748 : 45 IA 94 : 45 IC 1.
- 145 Balaji v Gamgamma, (1927) 51 Mad LJ 641 : 99 IC 143 : AIR 1927 Mad. 81 [LNIND 1926 MAD 167] .
- 146 Nepra v Sayer Pramanik, (1928) ILR 55 Cal 67 : 103 IC 662 : AIR 1927 Cal 763 ; Girja Nandan v Hanuman Das, (1927) ILR 49 All 25 : 99 IC 161 : AIR 1927 All 1 , dissenting from Mohammadi Bibi v Kashi, 96 IC 775 : AIR 1925 All 725 . The decision in Balbhaddar v Lakshmi Bai, (1930) 28 All LJ 623 : 125 IC 507 : AIR 1930 All 669 turned on the peculiar facts of the case.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 147 Abinash Chandra v Dasarath, (1929) ILR 56 Cal 598 : 114 IC 84 : AIR 1929 Cal 123 ; Veerappa v Subramania, (1929) ILR 52 Mad 123 : 116 IC 367 : AIR 1929 Mad. 1 [LNIND 1928 MAD 202] ; Motilal v Kasambhai, (1928) 29 Bom LR 1334 : 105 IC 864 : AIR 1928 Bom 16 ; Yacubkhan v Guljarkhan, (1928) ILR 52 Bom 219 : 111 IC 287 : AIR 1928 Bom 267 ; Firm SMARAL v RMMA Firm, (1927) ILR 5 Rang 772 : 109 IC 468 : AIR 1928 Rang 101 ; Balbhaddar v Lakshmi Bai, (1930) 28 All LJ 623 : 125 IC 507 : AIR 1930 All 669 ; Durgawati v Jagannath, (1928) 27 All LJ 1891 : 118 IC 663 : AIR 1929 All 680 .
- 148 P Ramachandran Nair v Suparna Tapan Das, AIR 2003 Bom 457 [LNIND 2003 BOM 455] , para 22 : (2003) 3 All MR 638 : (2003) 3 Bom CR 35 .
- 149 Abdul Jabbar v Venkata Sastri, [1969] 3 SCR 513 [LNIND 1969 SC 37] : AIR 1969 SC 1147 [LNIND 1969 SC 37] : [1969] 2 SCJ 784 : (1969) 1 SCC 573 [LNIND 1969 SC 37] . As to signature and manner of its authentication, see Har Kaur v Gura Singh, AIR 1988 P&H. 41 , p 42.
- 150 B Rajegowda v H B Shankergowda, AIR 2006 Kant. 48 [LNIND 2005 KANT 496] : (2006) 6 Kar LJ 237 [LNIND 2005 KANT 496] : (2006) 1 KCCR 235 [LNIND 2005 KANT 496] .
- 151 Chandan v Longa Bai, AIR 1998 MP 1 [LNIND 1997 MP 172] .
- 152 P Ramachandran Nair v Suparna Tapan Das, AIR 2003 Bom 457 [LNIND 2003 BOM 455] , para 22 : (2003) 3 All MR 638 : (2003) 3 Bom CR 35 .
- 153 Indu Paintal v General Public, (2011) 1 RCR (Civil) 126 : (2011) 97 AIC 761 : LNIND 2010 PNH 2278 .
- 154 Jamunabai v Surendra Kumar, AIR 1995 MP 274 [LNIND 1995 MP 80] : 1996 Civil CC 126 : 1995 Jab LJ 477 : 1996 MPLJ 113 .
- 155 Peddavandla Narayamma v Peddasant Venkata Reddy, AIR 2007 AP 137 [LNIND 2006 AP 1359] : (2007) 2 Andh LD 817 : (2007) 4 Andh LT 260 [LNIND 2006 AP 1359] ; B Rajegowda v H B Shankergowda, AIR 2006 Kant. 48 [LNIND 2005 KANT 496] : (2006) 6 KarLJ 237 [LNIND 2005 KANT 496] : (2006) 1 KCCR 235 [LNIND 2005 KANT 496] .
- 156 Nagamma v Venkataramayya, (1935) ILR 58 Mad 220 : 68 Mad LJ 191 : 154 IC 777 : AIR 1935 Mad. 178 [LNIND 1934 MAD 164] ; MRM Firm v Ma E Nyo, 172 IC 613 : AIR 1937 Rang 293 ; Chiranjilal v Poorna, (1914) 12 All LJ 1114 : 26 IC 84; Hiralal v Gokul, (1944) All LJ 7 : 211 IC 629 : AIR 1944 All 61 .
- 157 Harish Chandra v Bansidhar, [1966] 1 SCR 153 [LNIND 1965 SC 159] , pp 155–56 : AIR 1965 SC 1738 [LNIND 1965 SC 159] : [1966] 1 SCJ 145 [LNIND 1965 SC 159] ; Seal v Claridge, (1881) 7 QBD 516 , p 519; Pearey Mohan v Sreenath, (1909) 14 Cal WN 1046 : 7 IC 735; Saurur Jigar Begum v Barada Kanta Mitter, (1910) ILR 37 Cal 526 : 5 IC 539; Debendra v Bihari, (1911) 16 Cal WN 1075 : 15 IC 666.
- 158 Gomathi Ammal v Krishna Iyer, (1953) 2 Mad LJ 303 : AIR 1954 Mad. 126 [LNIND 1953 MAD 37] .
- 159 Harish Chandra v Bansidhar, [1966] 1 SCR 153 [LNIND 1965 SC 159] : AIR 1965 SC 1738 [LNIND 1965 SC 159] : [1966] 1 SCJ 145 [LNIND 1965 SC 159] ; Balu v Gopal, (1911) 13 Bom LR 944 [LNIND 1911 BOM 90] : 12 IC 531; Durga Din v Suraj Bakshsh, AIR 1931 Oudh 285 .
- 160 Durga Din v Suraj Bakshsh, 134 IC 402 : AIR 1931 Oudh 285 .

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 161 Farid-Unnisa v Munshi Mukhtar Ahmad, AIR 1925 PC 204 .
- 162 Sivakoti Dasaradharam v Sivakoti Yoganandam, AIR 1996 Pat. 273 : (1996) 1 Andh LT 306 : 1996 Civil CC 500.
- 163 Abinash Chandra v Dasrath, (1929) ILR 56 Cal 598 : 114 IC 84 : AIR 1929 Cal 123 .
- 164 Kadarbhai v Fatmabai, AIR 1944 Bom 25 .
- 165 Pran Nath v Jadu Nath, (1905) ILR 32 Cal 729; Sant Lal v Kamala Prasad, [1952] SCR 116 [LNIND 1951 SC 57] : AIR 1951 SC 417 ; Dhiren Bailung v Bhutuki, AIR 1972 Gau 44 ; S T Singh v S K Singh, AIR 1973 Gau 64 ; Tarachand v Kesarimal, AIR 1973 Raj. 123 .
- 166 Virendra Singh Pal v Kashibai, AIR 1998 MP 324 [LNIND 1998 MP 115] : (1998) 2 MPLJ 203 .
- 167 Abinash Chandra v Dasrath, (1929) ILR 56 Cal 596 criticising Radha Mohan v Nripendra Nath, (1928) 47 Cal LJ 118 : 105 IC 422 : AIR 1928 Cal 154 ; Veerappa v Subramania, (1929) ILR 52 Mad 123 : 116 IC 367 : AIR 1929 Mad. 1 [LNIND 1928 MAD 202] ; Zamindar of Pollavaram v Maharaja of Pittapuram, (1931) ILR 54 Mad 163 : 135 IC 17 : AIR 1931 Mad. 140 [LNIND 1930 MAD 103] ; Ramanathan v Delhi Batcha, (1931) 60 Mad LJ 302 : 131 IC 840 : AIR 1931 Mad. 335 [LNIND 1930 MAD 26] ; Venkataramayya v Nagamuru, 136 IC 343 : AIR 1932 Mad. 272 [LNIND 1931 MAD 170] ; Mushrafi Begam v Lala Kundan Lal, (1933) ILR 9 Luck 12 : 144 IC 860 : AIR 1933 Oudh 365 : on app 63 IA 326; Bhikari Charan v Sudhir Chandra, (1938) 42 Cal WN 1055 : 178 IC 992 : AIR 1938 Cal 702 ; Mayurbhanj State Bank v Bhabatosh Das, AIR 1961 Ori. 178 .
- 168 Jadunandan v Surajdeo, (1930) ILR 52 All 434 : 132 IC 37 : AIR 1930 All 223 .
- 169 Lala Kundan Lal v Musammat Mushrafi Begum, 63 IA 326 : (1936) All LJ 810 : 163 IC 156 : AIR 1936 PC 207 .
- 170 Dahu v Jamadar, (1949) ILR 25 Pat 188 : AIR 1950 Pat. 368 .
- 171 Tribhuvan Dutt Tripathi v Ramji Tiwari, AIR 1991 All 268 [LNIND 1991 ALL 272] , p 271.
- 172 Abdul Jabbar v Venkata Sastri, [1969] 3 SCR 513 [LNIND 1969 SC 37] : AIR 1969 SC 1147 [LNIND 1969 SC 37] : [1969] 2 SCJ 784 : [1969] 2 SCA 129 : (1969) 1 SCC 573 [LNIND 1969 SC 37] ; Paramasiva v Krishna, (1918) ILR 41 Mad 535 : 43 IC 983.
- 173 Abinash Chandra v Dasrath, (1929) ILR 56 Cal 598 : 114 IC 84 : AIR 1929 Cal 123 ; Badri Prasad v Abdul Karim, (1913) ILR 35 All 254 : 19 IC 451; Ranu v Luxmanrao, (1909) ILR 33 Bom 44 : 1 IC 464; Rambahadur v Ajodhya, (1916) 1 Pat LJR 129 : 34 IC 370; Dalichand v Lotu, (1920) ILR 44 Bom 405 : 55 IC 616; Jadunandan v Surajdeo, (1930) ILR 52 All 434 : 132 IC 37 : AIR 1930 All 223 . Contra, Radha Kishen v Fateh Ali, (1898) ILR 20 All 532; Raj Narain Gosh v Abdur Rahim, (1901) 5 Cal WN 454; Jagannath v Bajrang, (1921) ILR 48 Cal 61 : 62 IC 97 : AIR 1921 Cal 208 ; Veerapuddayan v Muthukarappan, (1913) 24 Mad LJ 534 : 19 IC 589; Ayyasami v Kylasam, 26 IC 409.
- 174 Sarkar Barnard v Alak Manjary, (1924) 26 Bom LR 737 : 83 IC 170 : AIR 1925 PC 89 .
- 175 N Kamalam v Ayyasamy, (2001) 7 SCC 503 [LNIND 2001 SC 1589] .
- 176 Rajani Kanta v Panchananda, (1918) ILR 46 Cal 522 : 48 IC 820, also cited as Upendra v Hukum Chand; Sristidhar v Rakshakali, (1922) ILR 49 Cal 438 : 63 IC 507 : AIR 1922 Cal 168 ; Paban v Badal, (1921) 26 Cal WN 951 : 66 IC 906 : AIR 1921 Cal 276 ; Ram Samujh v Mainath, 91 IC 176 : AIR 1925 Oudh 737 .
- 177 Govind Bhikaji v Bhau Gopal, (1917) ILR 41 Bom 384 : 39 IC 61; Dinamoyee v Bori Behari, (1902) 7 Cal WN 160; Alagappa Chettiar v Ko Kala Pai, 188 IC 759 : AIR 1940 Rang 134 ; Jagdeo v Deo Chaudhari, AIR 1958 Pat. 566 .
- 178 N Kamalam v Ayyasamy, (2001) 7 SCC 503 [LNIND 2001 SC 1589] , paras 26,27 : AIR 2001 SC 2802 [LNIND 2001 SC 1589] .

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 179 Sasi Bhusan v Chandra, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 861; Lal Bahadur v Rameshwar Prasad, (1928) ILR 3 Luck 113 : 105 IC 581 : AIR 1927 Oudh 510 ; Bishwanath v Baburam, AIR 1957 Pat. 485 .
- 180 Param Hans v Randhir Singh, (1916) ILR 38 All 461 : 35 IC 748.
- 181 Muhammad Ali v Jaffar Khan, (1897) 17 All WN 146; Dinamoyee v Bon Behari, (1902) 7 Cal WN 160; Paramasiva v Krishna, (1918) ILR 41 Mad 535 : 43 IC 983; Nageshwar Prasad v Bachu Singh, (1919) 4 Pat LJR 511 : 53 IC 79; Dharamdas v Ramoomal, 101 IC 715 : AIR 1927 Sau 118 ; Jogendranath Nath v Nitai Churn, (1903) 7 Cal WN 384; VRMRM Firm v Muhammad Kasim, 98 IC 205 : AIR 1926 Rang 145; Alagappa Chettiar v Ko Kala Pai, 188 IC 759 : AIR 1940 Rang 134 ; Venkata Sastri v Rahilna Bibi, AIR 1962 Mad. 111 [LNIND 1960 MAD 174] . Contra Abinash Chandra v Dasrath, (1929) ILR 56 Cal 598.
- 182 Dharamdas Mondal v Kashi Nath, (1959) 64 Cal WN 332 : AIR 1959 Cal 243 [LNIND 1958 CAL 76] .
- 183 Dhruba v Paramanda, AIR 1983 Ori. 24 [LNIND 1982 ORI 4] , pp 25, 26.
- 184 Ram Charan v Bhairon, (1931) ILR 43 All 1 : 131 IC 241 : AIR 1931 All 101 ; Sarada Prasad v Triguna Charan, (1922) ILR 1 Pat 300 : 90 IC 402 : AIR 1922 Pat. 402 ; Ramanathan v Delhi Batcha, (1931) 60 Mad LJ 302 : 131 IC 840 : AIR 1931 Mad. 335 [LNIND 1930 MAD 26] ; Venkataramayya v Nagamma, (1931) Mad WN 1242 : 136 IC 343 : AIR 1932 Mad. 272 [LNIND 1931 MAD 170] ; Neelima Basu v Johanna Sarkar, (1934) ILR 61 Cal 525 : 38 Cal WN 753 : 151 IC 1063 : AIR 1934 Cal 772 ; Harkisandas v Dwarkadas, 161 IC 374 : AIR 1936 Bom 94 ; Kanchadilal v Jabbarsha, 166 IC 686 : AIR 1936 Ngp 171 ; Parshotam Ram v Keshodas, (1943) ILR 25 Lah 495; see also Venkata Sastri v Rahilna Bi, AIR 1962 Mad. 111 [LNIND 1960 MAD 174] .
- 185 Tafaluddi Peada v Mahar Ali, (1899) ILR 26 Cal 78; Chandrani v Lala Sheo Nath, 132 IC 337 : AIR 1931 Oudh 146 ; Lachman Singh v Surendra Bahadur Singh, (1932) ILR 54 All 1051 : 1932 All LJ 653 : 139 IC 1 : AIR 1932 All 527 ; Thien Shin v Ma Ngwe Su, 182 IC 924 : AIR 1939 Rang 211 ; Timmavva v Channavva, (1948) 50 Bom LR 260 : AIR 1948 Bom 322 .
- 186 Abdul Jabbar v Venkata Sastri, [1969] 3 SCR 513 [LNIND 1969 SC 37] : AIR 1969 SC 1147 [LNIND 1969 SC 37] : [1969] 2 SCJ 784 : (1969) 1 SCC 573 [LNIND 1969 SC 37] ; Venkata Sastri v Rahilna Bi, AIR 1962 Mad. 111 [LNIND 1960 MAD 174] ; Tarachand v Kesrimal, AIR 1973 Rang 123 . Ramesh Dutt Sawan v State, (1988) Rajdhani LR 387 : AIR 1989 Del 47 (NOC).
- 187 Yacubkhan v Guljarkhan, (1928) ILR 52 Bom 219 : 111 IC 287 : AIR 1928 Bom 267 ; Bishwanath v Kayastha, Trading and Banking Corpn, (1929) ILR 8 Pat 450 : 119 IC 405 : AIR 1929 Pat. 422 .
- 188 Indian Evidence Act, 1872, section 69; Shankarrao v Ramji, (1904) ILR 28 Bom 58; Uttam Singh v Hukum Chand, (1917) ILR 39 All 112 : 38 IC 651; Raja Venkataramayya v Kamiseti, (1927) 53 Mad LJ 216 : 101 IC 498 : AIR 1927 Mad. 662 [LNIND 1926 MAD 466] .
- 189 Satish Chandra v Jogendra Nath, (1916) ILR 44 Cal 345 : 34 IC 862; Nageshwar Prasad v Bachu Singh, (1919) 4 Pat LJR 511 : 53 IC 79; Jagannath v Ravji, (1923) ILR 47 Bom 137 : 76 IC 73 : AIR 1923 Bom 90 .
- 190 Arjun v Kailas, (1922) 27 Cal WN 263 : 70 IC 532 : AIR 1923 Cal 149 .
- 191 Sheikh Kachu v Mahammad Ali, (1927) 45 Cal LJ 577 : 105 IC 28 : AIR 1927 Cal 926 .
- 192 Ram Nahak v Sita Dakuani, AIR 1970 Ori. 82 [LNIND 1969 ORI 102] .
- 193 Satish Chandra v Jogendra Nath, (1916) ILR 44 Cal 345.
- 194 See notes under section 59.
- 195 Raj Lukhee v Gokool Chunder, (1869) 13 Mad IA 209, p 229 : 12 WR 47; Banga Chandra v Jagat Kishore, (1916) ILR 44 Cal 186 : 43 IA 249 : 36 IC 420; Hari Kishen v Kashi Pershad, (1914) ILR 42 Cal 876 : 42 IA 64 : 27 IC 674; Hamidmiya Sarfudin v Nagindas Jivanji, (1933) ILR 57 Bom 709 : 35 Bom LR 252 : 148 IC 385 : AIR 1933 Bom 217 ; Fazal Hussain v Jivan Shah, (1933) ILR 14 Lah 369 : 141 IC 454 : AIR 1933 Lah 551 ; Sunder Kuer v Shah Udey Ram, AIR 1944 All 42 ; Suraj Khan v Hafiz Abdul, AIR 1944 Lah 1 : 43 PLR 75 : 195 IC 291; Rajammal v Sabapathi, (1945) All LJ 264 : 47 Bom LR 642 : (1945) 1 Mad LJ 397 : 220 IC 257 : AIR 1945 PC 82 ; Gurumukh Singh v Sadhu Singh, AIR 1951 Pepsu 71 .
- 196 Pandurang v Markandeya, (1922) ILR 49 Cal 334 : 49 IA 16 : 65 IC 954 : AIR 1922 PC 20 .

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 197 Tarabag Khan v Nanak Chand, 138 IC 263 : AIR 1932 Lah 566 ; Bhagwat Rai v Gorakh Rai, 150 IC 765 : AIR 1934 Pat. 93 ; Abba Ali Khan v Mahomed Shah, AIR 1951 MP 92 .
- 198 Pandurang v Markandeya, (1922) ILR 49 Cal 334 : AIR 1922 PC 20 .
- 199 Baij Nath v Sheo Sahoy, (1891) ILR 18 Cal 556; Narasamma v Subbarayudu, (1895) ILR 18 Mad 364; Nahar Lal v Baij Nath, (1928) 32 Cal WN 241 : 113 IC 855 : AIR 1928 Cal 385 .
- 200 Harendra Lal v Hari Dasi, (1914) ILR 41 Cal 972 : 41 IA 110 : 23 IC 637; Biswanath v Chandra, (1921) ILR 48 Cal 509 : 48 IA 127 : 63 IC 770 : AIR 1921 PC 8 ; Akshayalingam v Ramayya, 120 IC 876 : AIR 1929 Mad. 426 [LNIND 1928 MAD 248] .
- 201 Jogini Mohan v Bhoot Nath, (1904) ILR 31 Cal 146.
- 202 Mujibunnissa v Abdul Rahim, (1901) ILR 23 All 233 : 28 IA 15; Halima Bee Bee v Khairunnissa, (1925) ILR 3 Rang 398 : 91 IC 644 : AIR 1926 Rang 17 ; Dottie Karan v Lachmi Prasad, (1931) ILR 10 Pat 481 : 58 IA 58 : 131 IC 321 : AIR 1931 PC 52 .
- 203 Nahar Lal v Baij Nath, (1928) 32 Cal WN 241.
- 204 Whatever is planted in the soil falls into, or becomes part of the soil.
- 205 Whatever is built in the soil falls into, or becomes part of the soil. Another reading substitutes fixatur (is fixed to) for inaedificator (is built in).
- 206 Wiltshear v Cottrell, (1853) 1 E1 & B1 674, p 682.
- 207 Thakoor Chunder v Ramdhone, (1866) 6 WR 228 ; approved and followed in Narayan Das Khettry v Jatindranath, (1927) ILR 54 Cal 669 : 54 IA 218 : 102 IC 198 : AIR 1927 PC 135 ; Mirtinjai Bakhsh Singh v Hinga, 145 IC 627 : AIR 1933 Oudh 468 ; Kochunni Kartha v Raman, (1966) ILR 2 Ker 211 : AIR 1967 Ker. 22 .
- 208 Secretary of State v Charlesworth Pilling & Co, (1902) ILR 26 Bom 1 : 28 IA 121.
- 209 Ismail Kani Rowthan v Nazarali Sahib, (1903) ILR 27 Mad 211.
- 210 Chaturbhuj v Rennett, (1905) ILR 29 Bom 323; Beni Ram v Kundan Lal, (1899) ILR 21 All 496 : 26 IA 58; Sitabai v Sambhu, (1914) ILR 38 Bom 716 : 28 IC 140.
- 211 Mafiz Sheikh v Rashik Lal Ghose, (1910) ILR 37 Cal 815 : 6 IC 796.
- 212 Rustomjee Edulji Sheth v Collector of Tanna, (1867) 11 Mad IA 295.
- 213 Suresh Chand v Kundan, (2001) 10 SCC 221 , para 6 : (2001) 7 Scale 620 ; See also Divisional Forest Officer, Sarahan Forest Division v Daut, AIR 1968 SC 612 [LNIND 1967 SC 311] : “The expression right, title and interest of the landowner in the land in section 11 of the Himachal Pradesh Abolition of Big Landed Estates and Land Reforms Act, 1954 is wide enough to include trees standing on the land.”

3. Interpretation-clause.—

214 Iqbal Hasen v Nand Kishore, (1902) ILR 24 All 294.

215 Shiv Dayal v Pattu Lal, (1933) ILR 54 All 437 : 140 IC 491 : AIR 1933 All 50 . See also Manoharlal v State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1959 MP 120 , in which it was held that the right to rear trees and pluck fruit from trees was not an interest in land.

216 Mathura Das v Jadubir, (1906) ILR 28 All 277; Mammikutti v Puzhukkal, (1906) ILR 29 Mad 353; Alisaheb v Mohidin, (1911) 13 Bom LR 874 [LNIND 1911 BOM 84] : 12 IC 375; Natesa v Tangavelu, (1915) ILR 38 Mad 883, p 885 : 23 IC 102.

217 Seeni Chettiar v Santhanathan, (1897) ILR 20 Mad 58; Reference, (1889) ILR 12 Mad 203; Sukry Kurdepa v Goondakull, (1872) 6 Mad HC 71; Jones v Flint, (1839) 10 Ad & El 753.

218 Rajendra v Malhoo Khan, 112 IC 156 : AIR 1929 Oudh 93 .

219 Pannnanandy v Birkhu, (1909) 5 Nag LR 21 : 1 IC 903.

220 Kanjee and Mooljee Bros v Shanmugam, (1933) ILR 56 Mad 169 : 63 Mad LJ 587 : 139 IC 870 : AIR 1932 Mad. 734 [LNIND 1932 MAD 119] .

221 Bengal Agricultural & Industrial Corpn v Corpn of Calcutta, AIR 1960 Cal 123 .

222 Punnayya v Venkatappa, 91 IC 754 : AIR 1926 Mad. 343 .

223 Elwes v Maw, (1802) 3 East 38.

224 Holland v Hodgson, (1872) LR 7 CP 328, p 334 (looms attached to the floor and beams of the worsted mill held to be fixtures); Vaudeville Electric Cinema Ltd v Muriset, (1923) 2 Ch 74 (tip-up seats affixed to the floor of a cinema are part of the building).

225 Wiltshire v Cottrel, (1853) 1 El & Bl 674, a granary resting by its own weight on straddles built into the land.

226 D'Eyncourt v Gregory, (1866) LR 3 Eq 382, tapestry, pictures in panels, statues, heavy vases, garden seats, frames filled with satin and attached to the walls, all essentially part of a mansion house.

227 Wake v Halt, (1883) 8 App Cas 195 , p 204.

228 Lawton v Lawton, (1743) 3 Atk 15.

229 Holland v Hodgson, (1872) LR 7 CP 328.

230 Vaudeville Electric Cinema Ltd v Muriset, (1923) 2 ChD 74  .

231 Provincial Bill Posting Co v Lowmoor Iron Co, (1909) 2 KB 344 .

232 Mather v Fraser, (1856) 2 K&J 536.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 233 Horn v Baker, (1808) 9 East 215.
- 234 Leigh v Taylor, \(1902\) AC 157 : [\[1900–3\] All ER Rep 520](#) .
- 235 Dibble (HE) Ltd v Moore, \(1970\) 2 QB 181 : [\[1969\] 3 All ER 1465](#) .
- 236 Spyer v Phillipson, \(1931\) 2 ChD 183  : [\[1930\] All ER Rep 457](#) .
- 237 Leigh v Taylor, \(1902\) AC 157 : [\[1900–3\] All ER Rep 520](#) .
- 238 D'Eyncourt v Greygory, (1866) LR 3 Eq 382.
- 239 Re Whaley, Whaley v Roerich, \(1908\) 1 ChD 615  .
- 240 Hobson v Gorringe, \(1897\) 1 ChD 182 : [\[1895\] All ER Rep 1231](#) .
- 241 Holland v Hodgson, (1872) LR 7 CP 328.
- 242 Reynolds v Ashby, \(1904\) AC 466 : [\[1904–7\] All ER Rep 401](#) .
- 243 Boyd v Shorrock, (1867) LR 5 Eq 72.
- 244 Macleod v Kikabhoy, (1901) 25 Bom 659, p 666; Teja Singh v Hawer Singh, AIR 1951 Pepsu 31 .
- 245 Lokashan Jain Udyog Mandir v Kalooram, (1964) ILR 14 Raj 1006 : AIR 1965 Raj. 15 [\[LNIND 1964 RAJ 4\]](#) .
- 246 Chaturbhuj v Bennet, (1905) ILR 29 Bom 323.
- 247 Nathu Miah v Nand Rani, (1872) 8 Beng LR 508; Deno Nath v Adhor, (1879) 4 Cal WN 470.
- 248 Punnaya v Venkatappa, 91 IC 754 : AIR 1926 Mad. 343 .
- 249 Narayana Pillay v Ramaswamy, (1875) 8 Mad HC 100.
- 250 Miller v Brindabun, (1877) ILR 4 Cal 946; Amritalal v Keshavlal, (1926) 28 Bom LR 939 : 98 IC 696 : AIR 1926 Bom 495 .
- 251 Jnan Chand v Jugal Kishore, AIR 1960 Cal 331 [\[LNIND 1959 CAL 186\]](#) ; Perumal v Ramaswami, (1969) ILR 2 Mad 329 : (1968) 2 Mad LJ 493 : AIR 1969 Mad. 346 [\[LNIND 1967 MAD 177\]](#) .
- 252 Chaturbhuj v Bennett, (1905) ILR 29 Bom 323.
- 253 South Indian Bank Ltd v Krishna Chettiar, (1975) 2 MJ 431.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 254 Pool's case, (1703) 1 Salk 368.
- 255 Lawton v Lawton, (1743) 3 Atk 15.
- 256 Wake v Hall, \(1883\) 8 App Cas 195 .
- 257 Narayana Sa v Balaguruswami, (1924) 45 Mad LJ 385 : 79 IC 838 : AIR 1924 Mad. 187 [\[LNIND 1923 MAD 125\]](#) ; Veerappa Chetty v Ma Tin, 88 IC 1011 : AIR 1925 Rang 250 .
- 258 Mather v Fraser, (1856) 2 K & J 536; Fisher v Dixon, (1845) 12 Cal & F 312; Climie v Wood, (1869) LR 4 Ex 328.
- 259 Hobson v Gorringe, \(1897\) 1 ChD 182 , p 195 : [\[1895-9\] All ER Rep 1231](#) .
- 260 Hobson v Gorringe, (1897) 1 ChD 182, p 195 : [\[1895-9\] All ER Rep 1231](#) .
- 261 Climie v Wood, (1869) LR 4 328, p 329 (Ex Ch); Peru Bepari v Ronuo, (1884) ILR 11 Cal 164; Queen Empress v Sheikh Ibrahim, (1890) ILR 13 Mad 518; Purshotama v Municipal Council, (1891) ILR 14 Mad 467.
- 262 R v Hedges, (1802) 2 East PC 590 N.
- 263 Leigh v Taylor, \(1902\) AC 157 : [\[1900-3\] All ER Rep 520](#) .
- 264 Northern Press and Engineering Co v Shepherd, (1908) 52 Sol J 715.
- 265 Subramaniam v Chidambaram, (1940) ILR Mad 527 : 51 Mad LW 155 : (1940) Mad WN 38 : 190 IC 825.
- 266 Bamdev Panigrahi v Manormaraj, AIR 1974 AP 226 [\[LNIND 1973 AP 66\]](#) : (1974) 1 AP LJ 32 [\[LNIND 1973 AP 66\]](#) .
- 267 Meghraj v Krishna Chandra, (1924) ILR 46 All 286 : 78 IC 243 : AIR 1924 All 365 ; Jnan Chand v Jugal Kishore, AIR 1960 Cal 331 [\[LNIND 1959 CAL 186\]](#) ; Lokashan Jain Udyog Mandir Ltd v Kalooram, (1964) ILR 14 Raj 1006 : AIR 1965 Raj. 15 [\[LNIND 1964 RAJ 4\]](#) .
- 268 Gramophone Co of India Ltd v Shanti Films Corpn, AIR 1997 Cal 63 [\[LNIND 1996 CAL 125\]](#) .
- 269 The Specific Relief Act, 1963, which repealed the Act of 1872, contains a corresponding provision section 19(b), but the illustrations have been deleted. See Murlidhar Bapuji Valve v Yallappa Lallu Cheugule, AIR 1999 Bom 358 .
- 270 Thomson Press (India) Ltd v Nanak Builders & Investors, AIR 2013 SC 2389 [\[LNIND 2013 SC 1232\]](#) : JT 2013 (3) SC 289 [\[LNIND 2013 SC 1232\]](#) : 2013 (3) Scale 26 [\[LNIND 2013 SC 1232\]](#) : (2013) 5 SCC 397 [\[LNIND 2013 SC 1232\]](#) .
- 271 Bamhart v Greenshields, (1853) 9 Moo PC 18, p 36; Ashiq Husain v Chaturbhuj, (1928) ILR 50 All 328 : 108 IC 152 : AIR 1928 All 159 .
- 272 Warwick v Warwick, (1746) 3 Atk 291, p 294.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

273 Lloyd v Banks, (1868) LR 3 ChD 488, p 490.

274 Nursing v Roghoobar, (1883) ILR 10 Cal 609; Jolland v Stanbridge, (1797) 3 Ves 478.

275 Gobind Chunder v Doorgapersaud, (1874) 22 WR 248 .

276 Jones v Smith, (1841) 1 Hare 43.

277 Ibid; Doorga v Baney Madhub, (1880) ILR 7 Cal 199, p 201.

278 West v Reid, (1843) 2 Hare 249, pp 257–258.

279 Hunt v Luck, \(1902\) 1 ChD 45 , p 48, affirmed \(1902\) 1 ChD 428  : \(1900–3\) All ER Rep 295 ; Caunce v Caunce, \(1969\) 1 All ER 722 : \(1969\) 1 WLR 286 .

280 Plumb v Fluitt, (1791) 2 Anst 432, p 438.

281 Hewitt v Loosemore, (1851) 9 Hare 449, p 455; Ashiq Husain v Chuturbhuj, (1928) ILR 50 All 328 : 108 IC 152 : AIR 1928 All 159 .

282 Honnusji v Mankuvarbai, (1879) 12 Bom HC 262; Morgan v Govt of Haiderabad, (1888) ILR 11 Mad 419.

283 Ramchandra v Jairam, (1898) ILR 22 Bom 686; Dhondo v Raoji, (1896) ILR 26 Bom 290. See notes to Mulla's Code of Civil Procedure 1908, O XXI, rule 66.

284 Secretary of State v Dattatrya, (1901) 3 Bom LR 923 .

285 N Kainath v Arun R Rawwli, AIR 2008 (NOC) 1620 ; Mohideen Sahib v A Ameena Bi, AIR 2007 Mad. 133 [LNIND 2006 MAD 3061] ; Peddavandla Narayanamma v Paddasani Venkata Reddy, AIR 2007 AP 137 [LNIND 2006 AP 1359] ; B Rajamani v Azhar Sultana, AIR 2005 AP 260 [LNIND 2004 AP 1466] : (2005) 2 Andh LD 862.

286 Motilal Jain v Prakash Bhartiya, AIR 2007 (NOC) 377 MP.

287 Jones v Smith, (1841) 1 Hare 43, p 55.

288 Agra Bank v Barry, (1874) LR 7 HL 135, p 157.

289 Joshua v Alliance Bank, (1895) ILR 22 Cal 185, p 203.

290 Latif Ali v Pearee Mohun, (1871) 16 WR 223 ; Jogendro v Dwarka Nath, (1888) ILR 15 Cal 681; Ismail Khan v Kali Krishna, (1902) 6 Cal WN 134, p 137. See, however Vaman v Khanderao, (1935) 37 Bom LR 376 : AIR 1935 Bom 247 ; see also cases noted under section 106 of Transfer of Property Act, 1882.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 291 Balakrishna Pramanik v Bhawanipur Banking Corpn, (1932) ILR 59 Cal 662 : 138 IC 653 : AIR 1932 Cal 521 ; McKenzie v British Linen Co, (1881) ILR 6 Cal 82, p 92; Jacobs v Morris, \(1902\) 1 ChD 816 , p 830.
- 292 Mahomed Yunus Khan v Court of Wards, 167 IC 962 : AIR 1937 Oudh 301 .
- 293 Harilal v Mulchand, (1928) ILR 52 Bom 883 : 113 IC 27 : AIR 1928 Bom 427 .
- 294 Renukabei v Bhavan, 185 IC 33 : AIR 1939 Ngp 132 .
- 295 Lakshman v Secretary of State, AIR 1939 Bom 183 : 41 Bom LR 257 : 182 IC 635.
- 296 Alwar Chetty v Jagannatha, (1928) 54 Mad LJ 109 : 108 IC 291.
- 297 Rajaram v Krishnasami, (1893) ILR 16 Mad 301; Abdul Razak Rowther v Abdul Rahiman Sahib, (1933) 65 Mad LJ 390 : 149 IC 287 : AIR 1933 Mad. 715 [LNIND 1933 MAD 128] .
- 298 Wilson v Hart, (1866) 1 ChD App 463; Patman v Harland, (1881) 17 ChD 353; see also section 44 of Law of Property Act, 1925.
- 299 Reeve v Berridge, \(1888\) 20 QBD 523 ; Molyneaux v Hawtrey, \(1903\) 2 KB 487 : \(1900–3\) All ER Rep 472 .
- 300 Hamiduddin Khan v Ramani Kant Roy, (1933) 56 Cal LJ 590 : 143 IC 117 : AIR 1933 Cal 321 .
- 301 Bank of Bombay v Suleman, (1909) ILR 33 Bom 1 : 35 IA 139 : 1 IC 369.
- 302 Kausalal Ammal v Sankara Muthiah, (1941) Mad WN 621 : 53 Mad LW 744 : (1941) Mad LJ 815 : AIR 1941 Mad. 707 [LNIND 1940 MAD 429] .
- 303 Bank of Bombay v Suleman, (1909) ILR 33 Bom 1 : 35 IA 139 : 1 IC 369.
- 304 Geetaranee De v Narendra Krishna De, (1933) ILR 60 Cal 394 : 144 IC 137 : AIR 1933 Cal 429 .
- 305 Hill v Simpson, (1802) 7 Ves 152; Goolam Hoosein v Bank of Bombay, (1905) 7 Bom LR 407 .
- 306 Bepin Krishna v Priya Brata, (1921) 26 Cal WN 36 : 66 IC 345 : AIR 1921 Cal 730 .
- 307 Hamilton v Royse, (1804) 2 Seh & Let 315, p 327.
- 308 Tressilian v Caniffe, (1855) 4 Ir Ch Rep 399.
- 309 Patman v Harland, \(1881\) 17 ChD 353 .
- 310 West v Reid, (1843) 2 Hare 249, p 261.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

311 English and Scottish Mercantile Investment Co v Brunton, \(1892\) 2 QB 700 .

312 Jones v Smith, (1841) 1 Hare 43.

313 Ramcoomar v McQueen, (1873) 11 Beng LR 46, p 54; Radhai Rai v Ram Rekha, AIR 1964 Pat. 144 .

314 Jones v Williams, (1857) 24 Beav 47.

315 Hunt v Luck, \(1902\) 1 ChD 428  : [\[1900–3\] All ER Rep 295](#) .

316 Imperial Bank of India v U Rai Gyaw, 50 IA 283 : 76 IC 910 : AIR 1923 PC 211 . See also Varden Seth v Luckpathy, (1862) 9 Moo Ind App 307 ; Paras Ram v Mohan Manucha, AIR 1944 PC 22 : (1944) 1 Mad LJ 282 : 48 Cal WN 342 : 211 IC 482.

317 Kshetranath v Harasukhdas, (1927) 31 Cal WN 703 : 102 IC 871 : AIR 1927 Cal 538 .

318 Jones v Smith, (1841) 1 Hare 43, p 55.

319 Martinez v Cooper, (1826) 2 Russ 198, p 217; Farrow v Rees, (1840) 4 Beav 18; Evans v Bicknell, (1801) 6 Ves 174, p 181.

320 West v Reid, (1843) 2 Hare 249, p 257.

321 Ware v Lord Egmout, (1354) 4 De GM & G 460, p 473.

322 Colyer v Finch, (1856) 5 HLC 905, p 924.

323 Wilson v Breit, (1843) 11 M & W 113.

324 City Equitable Fire Insurance Company, (1925) ChD 407 , p 428 : \(1924\) All ER Rep 485 .

325 Northern Counties of England Fire Insurance Co v Whipp, \(1884\) 26 ChD 482 , p 489.

326 Ibid.

327 Dixon v Muckleslon, (1872) 8 Ch App 155, p 160.

328 Oliver v Hinton, \(1899\) 2 ChD 264  , p 274; see also Bailey v Barnes, \(1894\) 1 ChD 25  , p 35.

329 Lloyds Bank Ltd v P F Guzdar & Co, (1929) ILR 56 Cal 868 : 121 IC 625 : AIR 1930 Cal 22 .

330 Monindra v Troylucko Nath, (1898) 2 Cal WN 750.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 331 Imperial Bank of India v U Rai Gyaw, 50 IA 283 : 76 IC 910 : AIR 1923 PC 211 .
- 332 Tilakdhari Lal v Khedan Lal, 47 IA 239 : 57 IC 465 : AIR 1921 PC 112 ; Punjab Banking Co v Muhammad Hasan Khan, (1925) ILR 6 Lah 344 : 89 IC 615 : AIR 1925 Lah 542 ; Parbhu Lal v Chattar, 88 IC 398 : AIR 1925 All 557 ; Kali Din v Madho, 77 IC 862 : AIR 1923 All 169 ; Ghulam Muhammad v Mirza, (1924) ILR Lah 368 : 84 IC 174 : AIR 1925 Lah 25 ; ALRM Chettiar Firm v LPR Chettiar Firm, (1926) ILR 4 Rang 238 : 98 IC 19 : AIR 1926 Rang 195 .
- 333 Vaz v Muni Singh, 117 IC 565 : AIR 1929 Rang 34 .
- 334 Doorga v Baney Madhub, (1880) ILR 7 Cal 199, p 201; Ram Charan v Joy Ram, (1912) 17 Cal WN 10 : 16 IC 825; Mahomed Yunus Khan v Court of Wards, Balarampur Estate, 167 IC 962 : AIR 1937 Oudh 301 .
- 335 Chaturbhuj v Mansukhram, (1925) 27 Bom LR 73 : 86 IC 19 : AIR 1925 Bom 183 .
- 336 Nawal Kishore v Agra Municipality, (1943) All LJ 53 : 205 IC 539 : AIR 1943 All 115 ; Sampat Ram v Baboo Lal, AIR 1955 All 24 [LNIND 1954 ALL 123] .
- 337 Ramjilal v Municipal Board, Lucknow, 164 IC 1034 : AIR 1937 Oudh 31 : AIR 1941 Oudh 305 .
- 338 Municipal Board v Roop Chand Jain, AIR 1940 All 456 .
- 339 Chanduram v Municipal Commr, AIR 1951 Cal 398 .
- 340 Ahmedabad Municipality v Haji Abdul, AIR 1971 SC 1201 [LNIND 1971 SC 183] : (1971) 1 SCC 757 [LNIND 1971 SC 183] .
- 341 Lloyds Bank Ltd v P E Guzdar & Co, (1929) ILR 56 Cal 868 : 121 IC 625 : AIR 1930 Cal 22 .
- 342 Lakshmandas v Dasrat, (1882) ILR 6 Bom 168; Dundaya v Chenbasapa, (1885) ILR 9 Bom 427; Chintaman v Dareppa, (1890) ILR 14 Bom 506; Narayan v Bapu, (1892) ILR 17 Bom 741; Bal Mukundas v Moti, (1894) ILR 18 Bom 444; Chunilal v Ramchandra, (1898) ILR 22 Bom 213; Dina v Nathu, (1902) ILR 26 Bom 538; Churaman v Balli, (1887) ILR 9 All 591; Janki Prasad v Kishen Dat, (1894) ILR 16 All 478; Nand Kishore v Anwar, (1908) ILR 30 All 82; Saiyed Muhammad, (1909) ILR 31 All 523 : 3 IC 506.
- 343 Shan Maun Mull v Madras Building Co, (1892) ILR 15 Mad 268; Madras Building Co v Rowlandson, (1889) ILR 13 Mad 383; Damodara v Somasundara, (1889) ILR 12 Mad 429, p 435; Rangasami v Annamalai, (1908) ILR 31 Mad 7, p 10.
- 344 Inderdawan v Gobind, (1896) ILR 23 Cal 790; Preonath v Ashutosh, (1900) ILR 27 Cal 358, p 362; see also Joshua v Alliance Bank, (1895) ILR 22 Cal 185; Nanda Lal v Abdul Aziz, (1916) ILR 43 Cal 1052, p 1084 : 34 IC 115.
- 345 Monindra v Troylucko Nath, (1899) 2 Cal WN 750; Bunwari v Ramjee, (1902) 7 Cal WN 11; Atul Kristo v Mutty Lal, (1899) 3 Cal WN 30.
- 346 Tilakdhari Lal v Khedan Lal, 47 IA 239 : 57 IC 465 : AIR 1921 PC 112 ; Ashiq Husain v Chaturbhuj, (1828) ILR 50 All 328 : 108 IC 152 : AIR 1928 All 159 ; Maung Halw v MMS Chettyar Firm, 145 IC 118 : AIR 1933 Rang 153 .

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 347 Monindra v Troylucko Nath, (1899) 2 Cal WN 750.
- 348 Ghose, Law of Mortgages, vol 1, p 473; Story, Equity Jurisprudence, Article 534.
- 349 [1999] 3 LRI 506.
- 350 G Raju v Govt of Andhra Pradesh, (2011) 1 Andh LD 310; M Ramakrishna Reddy v Sub-Registrar, Bangalore, AIR 2000 Kant. 46 [LNIND 1999 KANT 97] , para 5.2.
- 351 Pravinbhai Becharbhai Viroja v Bhikhabhai Jethabhai Bagda, 2010 SCC OnLine Guj 5607 : LNIND 2010 GUJ 14811 .
- 352 Lata Chauhan v L S Bisht, (2010) 117 DRJ 715 : (2011) 181 DLT 101 (Delhi).
- 353 DAV College Reg Society v Umrao, 157 IC 92 : AIR 1935 Lah 410 ; Gopal Singh v Thakar Singh, AIR 1935 Lah 313 ; Ghulam Fatma v Kachore Singh, AIR 1940 Lah 269 .
- 354 Hirachand v Kashinath, (1942) 44 Bom LR 227 : AIR 1942 Bom 339 ; Asharfi Devi v Prem Chand, AIR 1971 All 457 .
- 355 24 Parganas Lawyer's Clerks Association v State of West Bengal, AIR 1986 Cal 205 [LNIND 1984 CAL 108] .
- 356 Baba Ramchandra v Kondeo Jagna, 184 IC 797 : AIR 1940 Ngp 7 .
- 357 Tilakdhari Lal v Khedan Lal, 47 IA 239 : 57 IC 465 : AIR 1921 PC 112 .
- 358 Janki Prasad v Kishen Dat, (1894) ILR 16 All 478, p 481.
- 359 Het Ram v Shadi Lal, 45 IA 130 : 45 IC 798 : AIR 1918 PC 34 . See Mulla's Code of Civil Procedure, notes to O 34, r 1.
- 360 Ram Narain v Bandi Pershad, (1904) ILR 31 Cal 737, p 742; see also Ashiq Husain v Chatarbhuji, (1928) ILR 50 All 328 : 108 IC 152 : AIR 1928 All 159 .
- 361 Sahadev v Shekh Papa, (1905) ILR 29 Bom 199; Parbhu Lal v Chattar, 88 IC 398 : AIR 1925 All 557 .
- 362 Sahadev v Shekh Papa, (1905) ILR 29 Bom 199.
- 363 Coggan v Pogose, (1884) ILR 11 Cal 158, p 160; Gokul Das v Eastern Mortgage & Agency Co, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 410, p 422; Stewart v Bank Upper India, 34 IC 937.
- 364 Backer Khorasanee v Ahmed Ismail, (1927) ILR 5 Rang 633, p 634 : 106 IC 355 : AIR 1928 Rang 28 ; Luddlao Heraman v Kashinath, (1942) 44 Bom LR 227 : 1942 ILR Bom 339 .
- 365 Durga Matha Building Constructions Co-op Housing Society Ltd v Sada Yellaiah, AIR 2010 AP 231 [LNIND 2010 AP 503] : LNIND 2010 AP 503 .
- 366 Rajo Kuer v Brij Bihari Prasad, AIR 1962 Pat. 236 .

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 367 Alliance Bank of Simla v Bhai Kahan, 25 IC 856.
- 368 Akhoy Kumar v Kanai Lal, (1912) 17 Cal WN 224 : 16 IC 618; Renukabai v Bhavan, 185 IC 33 : AIR 1939 Ngp 132 .
- 369 Rajaram v Krishnasami, (1893) ILR 16 Mad 301.
- 370 Patman v Harland, \(1881\) 17 ChD 353 ; Bepin Krishna v Priya Brata, (1921) 26 Cal WN 36 : 66 IC 345 : AIR 1921 Cal 730 .
- 371 Bisco v Earl of Banbury, (1676) 1 Cas in Ch 287, 291.
- 372 Vinod Kumar v Suresh Pal, AIR 1985 P&H. 361 .
- 373 Rajaram v Krishnasami, (1893) ILR 16 Mad 301.
- 374 Chunilal v Ramchandra, (1898) ILR 22 Bom 213; Sharfudin v Govind, (1903) ILR 27 Bom 452.
- 375 Gordhandas v Mohunlal, (1921) ILR 45 Bom 170 : 59 IC 506 : AIR 1921 Bom 161 .
- 376 Sah Mukkum Lal v Sah Koondum Lall, 2 IA 210; Ma Pwa May v SRMMA Chettyar Firm, (1929) ILR 7 Rang 624 : 56 IA 379 : 120 IC 645 : AIR 1929 PC 279 .
- 377 Narasamma v Subbarayudu, (1895) ILR 18 Mad 364; Najibulla v Nusir, (1881) ILR 7 Cal 196; Indra Bibi v Jain Sirdar, (1908) ILR 35 Cal 845.
- 378 Parashrampant v Rama, (1910) ILR 34 Bom 202 : 4 IC 588; Subbalakshmi v Narasimiah, (1927) 52 Mad LJ 482 : 102 IC 360 : AIR 1927 Mad. 586 [LNIND 1927 MAD 16] .
- 379 K V Galliara v U Thet, (1929) ILR 7 Rang 118 : 117 IC 580 : AIR 1929 Rang 117 ; Pt Sita Ram v Raj Narayan, 150 IC 145 : AIR 1934 Oudh 283 .
- 380 Harilal v Mulchand, (1928) ILR 52 Bom 883 : 113 IC 27 : AIR 1928 Bom 427 .
- 381 Ram Niwas v Bano, (2000) 6 SCC 685 [LNIND 2000 SC 1033] , para 7.
- 382 R K Mohammed Ubaidullah v Hajee C Abdul Wahab, (2000) 6 SCC 402 [LNIND 2000 SC 924] , p 411.
- 383 Barnhart v Greenshields, (1853) 9 Moo PC 18, p 32.
- 384 Taylor v Stibbert, (1794) 2 Ves 437.
- 385 Daniels v Davison, (1809) 16 Ves 249, p 254 followed in National Bank v Paul Hamilton Joseph, AIR 1920 PC 274 .
- 386 Alien v Anthony, (1816) 1 Mer 282.
- 387 Faki Ibrahim v Faki Gulam, (1921) ILR 45 Bom 910 : 60 IC 986 : AIR 1921 Bom 459 ; Rangappa Goundan v Marappa Goundan, (1958) 1 Mad LJ 188.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 388 Baburam Bag v Madhav Chandra, (1913) ILR 40 Cal 565, p 569 : 19 IC 9.
- 389 Ahmedbhoy v Balkrishna, (1895) ILR 19 Bom 391; Vinayakrao v Gyanoba, (1921) 23 Bom LR 1062 [LNIND 1921 BOM 124] : 64 IC 246 : AIR 1923 Bom 13 .
- 390 Bisheshar v Muirhead, (1892) ILR 14 All 362.
- 391 H N Narayanaswamy Naidy v Davveramma, AIR 1981 Kant. 93 [LNIND 1980 KANT 238] : (1981) 1 Kar LJ 259 [LNIND 1980 KANT 238] .
- 392 Ramesh Vajabhai Rabari v Pratiksha Real Estate, (2014) 12 SCC 190 : AIR 2014 SC 2962 [LNIND 2014 SC 579] : 2014 (4) Scale 555 [LNIND 2014 SC 579] .
- 393 Tiloke Chand Surana v J B Beattle and Co, (1926) 29 Cal WN 953 : 94 IC 538 : AIR 1926 Cal 204 ; Ashburton v Nocton, (1915) 1 ChD 274  .
- 394 Tiloke Chand Surane v J B Beattle and Co, (1926) 29 Cal WN 953; Rama Krishna v Mahadei, AIR 1965 Pat. 467 .
- 395 Mahadeo v S B Kesarkar, (1971) 73 Bom LR 454 : AIR 1972 Bom 100 [LNIND 1970 BOM 55] .
- 396 Smith v Jones, [1954] 2 All ER 823 : (1954) 1 WLR 1089 .
- 397 State of AP v Star Bone Mill and Fertiliser Co, 2013 (9) SCC 319 [LNIND 2013 SC 148] : JT 2013 (3) SC 401 [LNIND 2013 SC 148] : 2013 (2) Scale 728 : (2014) 1 WBLR (SC) 422 : 2013 (3) WLN 68.
- 398 Gunamoni v Bussunt, (1890) ILR 16 Cal 414; Birabaro Rout v Dullabh Raut, (1972) 38 Cut LT 161.
- 399 Banhart v Greenshields, (1853) 9 Moo PC 18; Gunamoni v Bussunt, (1890) ILR 16 Cal 414, p 417.
- 400 Hunt v Luck, (1902) 1 ChD 428  : [1900–3] All ER Rep 295 ; Gunamoni v Bussunt, (1890) 16 ILR Cal 414 , p 417.
- 401 Balchand Mahton v Bulaki Singh, (1929) ILR 8 Pat 316 : 117 IC 170 : AIR 1929 Pat. 284 ; Magu v Bholi Das, (1914) 19 Cal LJ 352 : 20 IC 195.
- 402 Moreswar v Dattu, (1888) ILR 12 Bom 569; Pindee v U Hpa, (1928) ILR 6 Rang 315 : 112 IC 230 : AIR 1928 Rang 237 .
- 403 Baburam Bag v Madhav Chandra, (1913) ILR 40 Cal 565 : 19 IC 9; Kalyani v Krishnan Nambiar, (1932) ILR 55 Mad 519 : 62 MIJ 525 : 138 IC 78 : AIR 1932 Mad. 305 [LNIND 1931 MAD 283].
- 404 Kondiba v Nann, (1903) ILR 27 Bom 408.
- 405 Moreswar v Dattu, (1888) ILR 12 Bom 569.
- 406 Parthasarthy v Subbaraya, (1923) 45 Mad LJ 175 : 72 IC 558 : AIR 1924 Mad. 67 [LNIND 1923 MAD 13] .
- 407 Manji v Hoorbai, (1910) ILR 35 Bom 342 : 8 IC 752; Parthasarthy v Subbaraya, (1923) 45 Mad LJ 175. See also Hari Charan v Kaula Rai, (1971) 2 Pat LJR 513 : 40 IC 142; Muralidhar Marwari v Lalit Mohan, AIR 1962 Ori. 86 [LNIND 1961 ORI 47] ; Hunter v Walters, (1871) 7 ChD 75 .
- 408 Mohd Mustaffa v Haji Mohd Hissa, AIR 1987 Pat. 5 .

3. Interpretation-clause.—

- 409 Moreland v Richardson, (1857) 24 Beav 33.
- 410 Motisha v Hiresha, (1877) PJ 3.
- 411 Davies v Sear, \(1869\) 7 Eq 427.
- 412 Allen v Seckham, \(1879\) 11 ChD 790.
- 413 Greender Chunder v Mackintosh, (1879) ILR 4 Cal 897, p 910.
- 414 Mohori Bibee v Dhurmodas Ghose, (1903) ILR 30 Cal 539 : 30 IA 114, p 121; Renukabei v Bhavan, 185 IC 33 : AIR 1939 Ngp 132.
- 415 Espin v Pemberton, (1859) 3 De G & J 547, p 554.
- 416 Rampal Singh v Balbaddar Singh, (1904) ILR 25 All 1 : 29 IA 203, p 212.
- 417 P T Roy Babu v P T Rajan Babu, LNIND 2017 KER 574.
- 418 The rule is analogous to that in the law of agency. See section 229 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, and Bowstead on Agency, 12th Edn, Article 107, p 242.
- 419 Bawden v London Assurance Co, \(1892\) 2 QB 534. However, see the criticism of this case in Newsholine Bros v Road Transport and General Insurance Co Ltd, \(1929\) 2 KB 356 : [\[1929\] All ER Rep 442](#).
- 420 Re Cousins, \(1886\) 31 ChD 671.
- 421 Chabildas Lalloobhai v Dayai Mowji, (1907) ILR 31 Bom 566 : 34 IA 179.
- 422 Norris v Le Neve, (1743) 3 Atk 26, p 37.
- 423 Espin v Pemberton, (1859) 3 De G & J 547.
- 424 Re David Payne & Co, \(1904\) 2 ChD 608; Re Hampshire Land Co, \(1896\) 2 ChD 743 .
- 425 Rainford v James Keith and Blackman Co Ltd, \(1905\) 2 ChD 147 .
- 426 Re Union Indian Sugar Mills Co Ltd, (1933) ILR 55 All 810 : 146 IC 801 : AIR 1933 All 607.
- 427 Saffron, Walden Building Society v Rayner, \(1880\) 14 ChD 406, p 409; Prakash Narain v Raja Binendra, 132 IC 51 : AIR 1931 Oudh 333.
- 428 Rowell v Satchell, \(1903\) 2 ChD 212 , p 221.
- 429 See Saffron Walden Building Society v Rayner, \(1880\) 14 ChD 406 where notice of an incumbrance was given to a solicitor who was not the general agent of the trustees; Ex parte Warren (1885) 1 TLR 430 where notice of bankruptcy petition was given to man left in possession by sheriff, as the man was only an agent to the sheriff for the purpose of levying, selling the goods, and handing over the proceeds.
- 430 Coote v Mammon, (1724) 5 Bro PC 355.
- 431 Rampal Singh v Balbaddar Singh, (1904) ILR 25 All 1 : 29 IA 203.
- 432 Bradley v Riches, \(1878\) 9 ChD 189; Berwick & Co v Price, \(1905\) 1 ChD 639 ; Rolland v Hart, \(1871\) 6 ChD 678 .
- 433 Kettlewell v Watson, \(1882\) 21 ChD 685, p 705.
- 434 Rampal Singh v Balbaddar Singh, (1904) ILR 25 All 1.

3. Interpretation-clause.—

435 Cave v Cave, [\[1880\] 15 ChD 639](#) .

436 Re David Payne & Co, \(1904\) 2 ChD 608 , p 611.

437 Texas Co Ltd v Bombay Banking Co, 46 IA 250, p 258 : 54 IC 121 : AIR 1919 PC 20 . See also Kwei Tek Chao v British Traders etc Ltd, [\[1954\] 2 QB 459](#) : [\[1954\] 1 All ER 779](#) .

438 Sharpe v Foy, (1868) 4 Ch App 35.

439 Cave v Cave, [\[1880\] 15 ChD 639](#) .

440 Sharpe v Foy, [1868] 4 ChD App 35.

441 Kennedy v Green, [1836] 3 My & K 699, pp 720–1.

4. Enactments relating to contracts to be taken as part of Contract Act and supplemental to the Registration Act.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 1 Preliminary

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 1 Preliminary

Sections 1–4, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

4. Enactments relating to contracts to be taken as part of Contract Act and supplemental to the Registration Act.—

The Chapters and sections of this Act which relate to contracts shall be taken as part of the Indian Contract Act, 1872 (9 of 1872).

⁴⁴²[And section 54, paragraphs 2 and 3, and sections 59, 107 and 123 shall be read as supplemental to the Indian Registration Act ⁴⁴³[1908 (16 of 1908)].]

[s 4.1] Amendment

The only amendment made by the amending Act 20 of 1929 was to change the year of the Registration Act from 1877 to 1908. However, even before this amendment, the reference to the Registration Act, 1877, was by virtue of the General Clauses Act, 1907, construed as referring to the Act of 1908.

The second para was added by the amending Act 3 of 1885.

[s 4.2] Contract Act

The reference to the Indian Contract Act, 1872 is explained by the following passage from the report of the Indian Law Commission on 15 November 1879:

We would declare that all chapters and sections of the bill which relate to contracts should be taken as part of the Contract Act, 1872. When the body of substantive civil law for India is arranged in a more compact and convenient form than that of a series of fragmentary portions from time to time passed by the Legislature, the chapters of Sale, Mortgage, Lease and Exchange, contained, in the present Bill, will probably be placed in close connection with the rules contained in the Contract Act. But till then they may fitly be left in a law containing what the Contract Act does not contain, namely, general rules regulating the transmission of property between living persons.

4. Enactments relating to contracts to be taken as part of Contract Act and supplemental to the Registration Act.—

The Indian Succession Act and the Indian Contract Act had been passed before the TP Act, and, as already stated in the notes to the preamble, one of the objects of the TP Act, 1882 was to bring the rules which regulate the transmission of property between living persons into harmony with the law of testamentary and intestate succession, and to complete the code of contract so far as relates to immovable property.⁴⁴⁴ The provisions of TP Act, 1882 complete the law of contract, as most transfers of property are executed contracts.

In deciding whether a party to a transfer has performed his obligations, the court must consider his obligations under the contract.⁴⁴⁵

[s 4.2.1] Difference between contract and transfer

The section says that the chapters and sections of TP Act, 1882 which relate to contracts are to be taken as part of the Indian Contract Act. Thus, the word “consideration,” wherever it occurs in the TP Act, 1882, is used in the same sense as in the Indian Contract Act.⁴⁴⁶ Section 137 of TP Act, 1882 must be read as part of the Indian Contract Act.⁴⁴⁷ However, it must be observed that the section does not say that the provisions of the Indian Contract Act are to be read in for the TP Act, 1882. There is a clear distinction between a completed conveyance and an executed contract.⁴⁴⁸ Therefore, a conveyance or completed transfer cannot be rescinded under section 39 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, and a mortgagee being a transferee of an interest in property is entitled to enforce his mortgage for the amount he has advanced, although he has failed to advance the whole amount of the mortgage money.⁴⁴⁹

This distinction has been recognised in decisions in Tatia's case, Rashik Lal's case and Dip Narain Singh v Nageshar,⁴⁵⁰ approved by the Supreme Court in *State of Kerala v Cochin Refineries*⁴⁵¹ where the Supreme Court held that a mortgage was valid even though no part of the mortgage-money had been advanced.

[s 4.3] Registration Act

The Registration Act, 1908 (Registration Act) makes registration optional in the case of immovable property of the value of less than ₹100. Thus, while under the Registration Act a sale or mortgage for ₹99 need not be registered, yet under TP Act such a sale (section 54) or mortgage (section 59) may be made either by a registered instrument or by delivery of the property. Similarly, while under the Registration Act, a lease of immovable property other than a lease from year to year, or for a term exceeding one year, or reserving a yearly rent need not be registered, yet under TP Act, 1882, such a lease (section 107) may be made either by a registered instrument, or by oral agreement accompanied by the delivery of possession. Similarly, while under the Registration Act a gift of movable property need not be registered, yet under TP Act such gift (section 123) may either be made by a registered instrument, or by delivery. This inconsistency between the Registration Act and the TP Act, 1882 was noticed by Garth CJ⁴⁵² and the intention of the amending Act of 1885 was to remove this difficulty, and to make the provisions of the TP Act, 1882 as to registration absolute.⁴⁵³ Thus, although equitable mortgages are recognised in the Punjab, yet when section 59 (prior to its amendment in 1929) was applied to an area in the Punjab, the requisition for registration became absolute and an equitable mortgage could no longer be accepted in that area, if the amount secured was not less than ₹100.⁴⁵⁴

[s 4.4] Supplemental

It will be observed that while parts of the TP Act, 1882 are to be “taken as part of the Indian Contract Act” and

4. Enactments relating to contracts to be taken as part of Contract Act and supplemental to the Registration Act.—

are thus, incorporated in it, the provision as to the Registration Act is differently expressed, as the specified sections are to be “read as supplemental to the Registration Act.” It had been held that the effect of the provision as to the Registration Act was merely to add to the list of documents which are compulsorily registrable. It did not go to the length of saying that these supplementary documents were deemed to be included in section 17 of the Registration Act. The provisions of section 49 of the Registration Act, rendering an unregistered document, of which registration is compulsory under section 17, inadmissible as evidence of any transaction affecting such property, were held not to apply to documents in this supplementary list. This was the view taken by a Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court in *Sohan Lal v Mohan Lal*⁴⁴⁵ by Macleod CJ in Dawal v Dharma,⁴⁴⁶ and by a majority of judges in a decision of Full Bench of the Madras High Court.⁴⁴⁷ However, this view seems to be over astute, and to attribute to the different expressions used in the two paragraphs of the section a meaning, which was not intended. The difference of language is probably only due to the difference of subject matter. Parts of the TP Act refer to contracts and these parts might be described as to be “taken as part of the Indian Contract Act”; whereas, a similar expression would not have been appropriate to an extraneous subject like the Registration Act. Those decisions, however, have now been superseded by legislation, as the Act 21 of 1929 by inserting in section 49 of the Registration Act the words “or by any provision of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882,” has made it clear that documents in the supplementary list, i.e., documents of which registration is necessary under the TP Act, 1882 but not under the Registration Act, fall within the scope of section 49, and if not registered are not admissible as evidence of any transaction affecting any property comprised therein, and do not affect any such property.⁴⁴⁸

From a combined reading of sections 4 and 54 of the TP Act, 1882 and, section 17 of the Registration Act, as applicable to the state of Uttar Pradesh, and as amended by Uttar Pradesh Act 57 of 1976, it is clear that every contract of sale of an immovable property shall be made only by a registered instrument.⁴⁴⁹

⁴⁴² Added by Act 3 of 1885, section 3.

⁴⁴³ Subs. by Act 20 of 1929, section 5, for “1877”.

⁴⁴⁴ Whitley Stokes, Anglo-Indian Codes, vol I, p 726.

⁴⁴⁵ Nathulal v Phoolchand, [1970] 2 SCR 854 [LNIND 1969 SC 408] : AIR 1970 SC 546 [LNIND 1969 SC 408] : (1969) 3 SCC 120 [LNIND 1969 SC 408] .

⁴⁴⁶ See section 2(d) of Indian Contract Act, 1872.

⁴⁴⁷ Amerchand v Ramdas, (1914) ILR 38 Bom 255 : 21 IC 343; Ramdas v S Amerchand & Co, (1916) ILR 40 Bom 630 : 43 IA 164 : 35 IC 954; Mercantile Bank of India v Official Assignee of Madras, (1933) ILR 56 Mad 177 : 64 Mad LJ 320 : 143 IC 641 : AIR 1933 Mad. 207 [LNIND 1932 MAD 92] .

⁴⁴⁸ Tatia v Babaji, (1898) ILR 22 Bom 176, p 188.

⁴⁴⁹ Makhan Lal v Hanuman, (1917) 2 Pat LJR 168 : 38 IC 877; Rasik Lal v Ram Narain, (1912) ILR 34 All 273 : 13 IC 573; see also 56(h).

⁴⁵⁰ Dip Narain Singh v Nageshar, (1930) ILR 52 All 338 : 122 IC 872 : AIR 1930 All 1 ; see also Life Insurance Corp of India v Devendrappa Brijjappa Kadali, AIR 1987 Kant. 129 [LNIND 1986 KANT 196] , p 134.

⁴⁵¹ State of Kerala v Cochin Refineries, [1968] 3 SCR 556 [LNIND 1968 SC 86] : AIR 1968 SC 1361 [LNIND 1968 SC 86] : [1969] 1 SCJ 475 : [1969] 1 SCA 67 .

4. Enactments relating to contracts to be taken as part of Contract Act and supplemental to the Registration Act.—

452 Narain Chunder v Dataram Roy, (1882) ILR 8 Cal 597.

453 Makhan Lal v Bunku Behari, (1892) ILR 19 Cal 623.

454 Gurdas Mal v Punjab Singh Bank Ltd, 147 IC 942 : AIR 1933 Lah 972 .

455 Sohan Lal v Mohan Lal, (1928) ILR 50 All 986 : 118 IC 177 : AIR 1928 All 726 .

456 Dawal v Dharma, (1918) ILR 41 Bom 550 : 41 IC 273.

457 Rama v Gowra, (1921) ILR 44 Mad 53 : 59 IC 350 : AIR 1921 Mad. 337 [LNIND 1920 MAD 120] .

458 Raghunath v Kedar Nath, [1969] 3 SCR 497 [LNIND 1969 SC 34] : AIR 1969 SC 1316 [LNIND 1969 SC 34] : [1970] 1 SCJ 63 : (1969) 1 SCC 497.

459 Surendra Kumar v Amarjeet Singh, AIR 2004 All 335 , para 23 : (2004) 4 All WC 3134 : (2004) 97 RD 192.

5. “Transfer of property” defined.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > (A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

5. “Transfer of property” defined.—

In the following sections “transfer of property” means an act by which a living person conveys property, in present or in future, to one or more other living persons, or to himself, ¹[or to himself] and one or more other living persons; and “to transfer property” is to perform such act.

²[In this section “living person” includes a company or association or body of individuals, whether incorporated or not, but nothing herein contained shall affect any law for the time being in force relating to transfer of property to or by companies, associations or bodies of individuals.]

[s 5.1] Amendment

The section has been amended by the Act of 1929.

[s 5.2] Scope

Transfer of Property has been defined in section 5 of the TP Act, 1882 meaning “an act by which a living person conveys property, in present or in future to one or more other living persons and “to transfer property” is to perform such act”.

“Living person” has been defined to include a company or association or body of individuals whether incorporated or not, but nothing herein contained shall affect any law for the time being in force relating to the transfer of property to or by companies, associations or bodies of individuals.³

[s 5.3] Property

The legislature has not attempted to define the word “property”, but it is used in TP Act, 1882 in its widest and most generic legal sense.⁴ Section 6 says that “property of any kind may be transferred”. Thus, an actionable claim is property;⁵ and so is a right to a re-conveyance of land.⁶

5. "Transfer of property" defined.—

Property is not only the thing which is the subject-matter of ownership, but includes also dominium or the right or ownership or of partial ownership, and as Lord Langdale said it is the most comprehensive of all terms which can be used inasmuch as it is indicative and descriptive of every possible interest which the party can have.⁷ It is used in this dual sense of the thing and the right of the thing in section 54 which contrasts, "tangible immovable property" with "a reversion or other intangible thing". Property includes rights such as trademarks, copyrights, patents and personal rights capable of transfer or transmission such as debts. In English real property law, the distinction between tangible and intangible things is expressed as corporeal and incorporeal hereditaments. A share in the company is a movable property freely alienable in absence of any express restrictions under the articles of association of the company, and the vendee of the shares cannot be denied the registration of the shares purchased by him on a ground other than stated in the articles.⁸

It has been observed by J Bhagwati in *Jugalkishore v Raw Cotton Co*⁹ that the words "in present or in future" in section 5 qualify the word "conveys" and not the word "property". A transfer of property not in existence operates as a contract to be performed in the future, which is specifically enforceable as soon as the property comes into existence. Where the operative portion of the sale deed recorded that all rights and privileges in and concerning the property either in present, or accruing in future as vesting in the vendor were the subject matter of the sale, and that the vendor retained no right of any kind, it was held that even the right of the vendor of reconveyance of the property was transferred by the sale deed.¹⁰

[s 5.4] Interests in Property

As ownership consists of a bundle of rights, the various rights and interests may be vested in different persons, eg. a mortgagor and a mortgagee, a lessor and a lessee, or a tenant for life and a remainder man. Absolute ownership is an aggregate of component rights such as the right of possession, the right of enjoying the usufruct of the land, and so on.¹¹

These subordinate rights, the aggregate of which make up absolute ownership, are referred in the TP Act, 1882 as interests in property; and in English law, real rights. A transfer of property is either a transfer of absolute ownership, or a transfer of one or more of these subordinate rights such as a right to transfer of possession.¹² In section 58, however, the word interest is not distinguished from absolute ownership. With reference to an English mortgage it is used to express an absolute interest, i.e., ownership which is not the less absolute because it is subject to a covenant to reconvey.

The term interest is not defined in the Act. In P Ramanatha Aiyar's, The Law Lexicon, the term "interest" is explained thus:

Legal concern, right, pecuniary stake, the legal concern of a person in the thing or property or in the right to some of the benefits or use from which the property is inseparable; such a right in or to a thing capable of being possessed or enjoyed as property which can be enforced by judicial proceedings. The word is capable of different meanings, according to the context in which it is used or the subject-matter to which it is applied. It may have even the same meaning as the phrase "right title and interest" but it has been said also to mean any right in the nature of property, but less than title. The word is sometimes employed synonymous with estate, or property.

5. "Transfer of property" defined.—

The Supreme Court in Zelia M Xavier Fernandes E Gonsalves v Joana Rodrigues,¹³ held that the word "interest" has a basic meaning of participation in advantage, profit and responsibility. "Interest" is a right, title or share in a thing. If a right of fishing is an interest in an immoveable property, it may be said with greater force that a right to rear and appropriate lac from lac bearing trees is an interest in immoveable property.¹⁴

A mortgage is a transfer of an interest in specific immoveable property, and what the mortgagee acquires under the transaction is a mortgagee's interest in specific immoveable property which can only be immoveable property and not moveable property.¹⁵

[s 5.5] Future Interests in Property: Reversion and Remainder

Some interests in property are future, and are called in English law reversions and remainders. A reversion is the residue of an original estate which is left after the grantor has granted a smaller estate. Thus, the interest of a lessor is a reversion, a future estate pending the termination of a lease. A remainder is an interest granted out of the original estate at the same time as, but in succession to a precedent interest. Thus, if an estate is granted to A for life and then to B, the estate of B is the remainder, and the estate of A is the particular estate which supports it. The terms "reversion" and "remainder" are commonly used in judgments of the courts in India. The act uses the word "reversion" in section 54, but it occurs nowhere else in the TP Act, 1882, not even in the chapter dealing with leases. The word "remainder" does not occur in the TP Act, 1882, but in section 13 the phrase "remaining interest" is used instead. A vested remainder is capable of being attached,¹⁶ and so is a contingent interest.¹⁷

[s 5.6] Legal and Equitable Estates

English law recognizes other interests which are not created by transfer or grant. Thus, in a trust of land the legal estate is in the trustee, and the interest of the cestui que trust or beneficiary is an interest in land called the equitable interest, or equitable estate. Similarly, an agreement for the sale of land leaves the legal estate in the seller, but creates an equitable estate in the buyer.

The law in India recognizes no distinction between legal and equitable estates.¹⁸ In Webb v Mac Pherson,¹⁹ the Privy Council said:

The law of India, speaking broadly, knows nothing of that distinction between legal and equitable property in the sense in which it was understood when equity was administered by the Court of Chancery in England.

And in a still later case,²⁰ their Lordships said:

By that law (the law of India), therefore, there can be but one "owner", and where the property is vested in a trustee, the "owner" must, their Lordships think, be the trustee. This is the view embodied in the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, sections 3, 55, 56, etc.

5. "Transfer of property" defined.—

The interest of the beneficiary of a trust is defined in section 3 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 not as an interest in the trust property, but as a right against the trustee as owner of the trust property. Where the trust and the educational institutions started by trust were separate entities, and the property was not the trust property but the property belonging to the educational institution, there would be no bar to transfer such property and the property can be validly transferred.²¹

The mere expectation as to or likelihood of conveyance of title, however well founded does not create any interest in the property.²² Similarly, a contract of sale does not, of itself, create any interest in, or charge on, the property. This is expressly declared in section 54 of TP Act, 1882, while the fiduciary character of the personal obligation created by a contract for sale is recognised in section 2 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963, and in section 91 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882.

The personal obligation created by a contract of sale is described in section 40 as an obligation arising out of contract and annexed to the ownership of property, but not amounting to an interest or easement therein. The section further enacts that the obligation cannot be enforced against a transferee for consideration without notice. Section 63 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 similarly enacts that the rights of a beneficiary of a trust cannot be enforced against a transferee in good faith without notice of the trust.

Therefore, these personal rights resemble the equitable estate or interest of the cestui que trust, and of the person who has agreed to purchase in English law, in that they are liable to be defeated by a purchaser for value without notice. The rule against perpetuity which applies to equitable estates in English law has sometimes been applied to these personal rights by way of analogy. This, it is submitted, is a mistake as explained in the notes to section 14.

[s 5.7] Transfer

The word "transfer" is defined with reference to the word "convey". This word in English law in its narrower and more usual sense refers to the transfer of an estate in land; but it is sometimes used in a much wider sense to include any form of an assurance inter vivos. The word "conveys" in section 5 of the TP Act, 1882 is used in the wider sense referred to above. Transferor must have an interest in the property. He cannot sever himself from it and yet convey it.²³ A lease comes within the meaning of the word "transfer".²⁴ A transfer of property or creation of an interest may be accompanied by conditions, covenants or restraints, unless there is some provision of law which annuls or invalidates such conditions, restraint or limitation.²⁵

There is a discernible difference between a case of settlement of property with reservation of a benefit to the settlor on the one hand, and the case where what is settled is only a share or interest or part of the property—excluding the part of the share corresponding to the benefit that the settlor has chosen to retain. In the latter case, there is no transfer at all.²⁶

A registered settlement deed cannot be cancelled by executing a cancellation deed. If at all the said document is to be cancelled, it has to be done under the provisions of Specific Relief Act, by approaching a competent civil court for cancellation of such document.²⁷ Thus, where a registered sale deed is executed in favour of the transferee for the mining lease with full consent of the owner, the Mines Commissioner is not empowered to pass orders negating the same.²⁸ A "transfer of property" as defined in the present section does not necessarily involve the execution of an instrument of transfer or conveyance. In the case of movables and generally in the case of immovable property of a value of less than ₹100, a transfer may be effected by delivery of possession. Leases other than leases from year to year or for a time exceeding one year or reserving a yearly rent, may be made by oral agreement accompanied by delivery of possession. The fundamental rule is that a transfer cannot be effected in any way not prescribed by the TP Act, 1882.²⁹

5. "Transfer of property" defined.—

The definition of transfer of property in this section does not exclude property situated outside India or in the territories to which the TP Act, 1882 does not apply. It does not matter that the property is situated outside India, or in the territories where the TP Act, 1882 does not apply;³⁰ for if the transfer is effected where the TP Act, 1882 is in force, the rights of the parties are to be determined by the court under the TP Act, 1882 leaving it to the party affected to prove that by the lex rei sitae, i.e., by the law of the land where the property is situated, the transaction is invalid or defective.³¹

If legislative intent of an enactment is to give an extended meaning to the expression transfer, it need not be confined to the statutory concept of transfer under section 5 of the TP Act, 1882. Section 71-A of the Chhotanagpur Tenancy Act contemplated that where possession has passed from one to another and as a physical fact the member of the scheduled tribe who is entitled to hold possession has lost it and a non-member has come into possession, would be covered by transfer. The Supreme Court held that it was not proper to confine the meaning of transfer in section 71-A to transfer as defined in section 5 of the TP Act, 1882.³² Thus the occupancy rights of a tribal cannot be transferred or even bequeathed by any tribal to a non tribal in view of the restriction under section 73 AA of the Bombay Land Revenue Code or section 63 of Bombay Tenancy Act.³³

[s 5.7.1] Auction Sale

Section 5 does not apply in respect of the property sold in auction sale.³⁴

[s 5.7.2] Transfer by or on behalf of the government

The provisions of the Transfer of Property Act shall not be applicable to any grant or other transfer of land or of any interest therein to be made by or on behalf of the Government.³⁵

[s 5.7.3] Charge

A charge is not a transfer of property, for in a charge no right in rem is transferred, but a personal obligation is created—a jus ad rem or a right to payment out of the property specified.³⁶ In the Insolvency Acts, a transfer of property is, however, defined as including a charge.³⁷ That definition is wider because any obligation incurred by a debtor affecting his property may be voidable as a fraudulent preference.³⁸

[s 5.7.4] Compromise

A compromise of doubtful rights is not a transfer, but is based on the assumption that there was an antecedent title of some kind in the parties which the agreement acknowledged and defined.³⁹ The position would be different if such a compromise also transferred properties to a person who has neither a pre-existing title, nor a claim to such title.⁴⁰

[s 5.7.5] Deed of Appointment

A transfer is not necessarily contractual, and included a deed of appointment.⁴¹ The section does not require that the "living person" who conveys should necessarily be the same person as he who owns, or owned, the property conveyed. All that is required is that there should be an act of conveyance by some living person; under the section, there may be a transfer by a person exercising powers over the property of another. Thus,

5. "Transfer of property" defined.—

where the donee of a power of appointment, having power to appoint a beneficial interest in the property, exercises that power, it would amount to a transfer.⁴²

[s 5.7.6] Power of Attorney

A General Power of Attorney (GPA)/WILL or Special Power of Attorney (SA) does not ipso facto constitute an instrument of transfer of an immovable property. GPA Sales or Sale Agreement or Will transfers' are creation of an agency whereby the grantor authorizes the grantee to do the acts specified therein, on behalf of grantor, which when executed will be binding on the grantor as if done by him. It is revocable or terminable at any time unless it is made irrevocable in a manner known to law. Even an irrevocable attorney does not have the effect of transferring title to the grantee.⁴³ A power of attorney given by a fisherman co-operative society to another to manage fishery does not create an interest in the property and therefore would not amount to transfer.⁴⁴ The fixing of different rates of stamp duty when a Power of Attorney is executed in favour of blood relative as against in favour of outsider as agent is not unconstitutional. It is to curb tendency of transferring immovable properties through Power of Attorney and inappropriate documentation and levy of stamp duty on such ostensible documents, whose real intention is to transfer immovable property.⁴⁵

[s 5.7.7] Easement and licence

The creation of an easement⁴⁶ or a right under a licence⁴⁷ does not involve a transfer.

[s 5.7.8] Exchange

An exchange is a mutual transfer of the ownership of one thing for another.⁴⁸

[s 5.7.9] Family Arrangement

It has been held by the Supreme Court that a family arrangement, like a compromise, is "based on the assumption that there is an antecedent title of some sort in the parties and the agreement acknowledges and defines what that title is, each party relinquishing all claims to property other than that falling to his share and recognising the right of the others, as they had previously asserted it, to the portions allotted to them respectively".⁴⁹ It is not necessary that every party taking a benefit under such a settlement must be shown to have, under the law, a share in the property; it is enough if they have a possible claim or even, if they are related, a semblance of a claim.⁵⁰ It may in certain cases include non family members as well.⁵¹ In absence of proof of details of family settlement and any consideration paid in lieu of such settlement, no title can be claimed.⁵² If, however, there is no real dispute or claim at all, the transaction might amount to a transfer.⁵³ Such an arrangement is not a transfer, and requires no conveyance to pass the title. This, of course, only applies to parties to the arrangement and to persons claiming under them.⁵⁴ A deed of family settlement is not required to be compulsorily registered even where it has been reduced to writing and would be admissible in evidence where it was already acted upon by the parties, who acknowledged the antecedent title,⁵⁵ but a mere caption of family arrangement given to the document is not decisive to exempt it from registration. The contents of such document are to be read as a whole to determine whether it is a family arrangement.⁵⁶ A family arrangement cannot override the mode of devolution as reflected in the will indicating the manner of disposition of the property.⁵⁷ Further, if the legal claims are settled by bona fide family arrangement which is fair and equitable, the same is final and binding on the parties.⁵⁸ A memorandum of understanding actuated by desire to resolve disputes can be treated as family settlement.⁵⁹ In M N Aryamurthy v M D Subbaraya Setty,⁶⁰ the Supreme Court laid down three requirements for a family arrangement. In the first place, there must be an agreement amongst the various members of the family intended to be generally and reasonably for the benefit of the family. Secondly, the agreement should be with the object either of compromising doubtful or disputed rights, or for preserving the family property, or the peace and security of the family by avoiding litigation or for saving its honour. Thirdly, being an agreement, there is consideration for the same, the consideration being the expectation that such an agreement or settlement will result in establishing or ensuring amity and good-will amongst the relations. Where the parents had distributed their property under a deed of settlement in 2005 and the plaintiff had enjoyed the property under this settlement and even alienated some of it, his challenge to the family settlement nine years after having benefitted from it on the ground that it was invalid would be not only barred by limitation but would also not be tenable in court.⁶¹ In Saroj Kumari Bandyopadhyay v State of West Bengal,⁶² a mother who was member of a co-operative society transferred property in favour of the son, and the son became member of this society after the acquisition of the land by the society. A notification stipulated that the benefit in it would not be available to the subsequent purchaser of the property from a member. It was held that transfer of share by mother to the son, not by way of succession is transfer inter vivos and is not compulsorily registrable therefore such assignment is not a transfer for the purposes of notification and the son, not being a subsequent purchaser is entitled to benefits under notification.

5. "Transfer of property" defined.—

[s 5.7.10] Partition

A partition is not actually a transfer of property, but is analogous to an exchange. Justice Mookerjee, in a case decided by Calcutta High Court,⁶³ said that partition signifies the surrender of a portion of a joint right in exchange for a similar right from the other co-sharer to co-sharers.⁶⁴

It effects a change in the mode of enjoyment of property, but is not an act of conveying property from one living person to another.⁶⁵ It is only renouncement of existing rights in common properties in consideration of getting exclusive right and possession over the specific plots.⁶⁶ Partition is only a process of mutual renunciation by which common unspecified rights in larger extents are converted into exclusive right over specific plots.⁶⁷ Partition is really a process, in and by which a joint enjoyment is transformed into an enjoyment severally. Each one of the co-sharers had an antecedent title and, therefore, no conveyance is involved in the process, as the conferment of a new title is not necessary.⁶⁸ In Sarin v Popla,⁶⁹ CJ Gajendragadkar has observed that "the true effect of partition is that each coparcener gets a specific property in lieu of his undivided right in respect of the totality of the property of the family". The Supreme Court in that case was considering the provisions of a Rent Control Act, and did not express any opinion on the correctness of certain decisions⁷⁰ holding that a partition is a transfer within the meaning of section 53. The correct view, it is submitted, is that a partition is not a transfer, and therefore, strictly not governed by the TP Act, 1882, but that many of the provisions of the TP Act, 1882 may govern partition as embodying rules of justice, equity and good conscience.⁷¹

In some cases,⁷² it has been held that a partition amounts to a transfer of property; in other cases however, it has been held that a partition is not transfer of property.⁷³ Partition of property does not amount to "transfer" as contemplated by section 5. Doctrine of part performance, therefore, does not apply to partition,⁷⁴ but a case of partition is covered by section 109, as embodying a rule of justice, equity and good conscience.⁷⁵

A partition is possible between two co-owners who may not have absolute or equal rights, but are limited owners. A document executed in settlement of disputes between two persons who are entitled to the same properties and who agree to divide the properties amongst themselves is a partition, and not a settlement.⁷⁶

Where a joint family property is subject to mortgage, there is no transfer of ownership and the coparceners, being its lawful owners, are competent to allot the mortgaged property in an oral partition to any of the coparceners, particularly when such oral partition is not going to interfere with the scheme of the mortgage.⁷⁷ The coparceners to whom the mortgaged property is allotted, becomes its absolute owner and is entitled to redeem the mortgage. Consequently, where the right to redeem is transferred by that coparcener, the transferee is also entitled to redeem the mortgage.

[s 5.7.11] Partition Act

The definition of transfer in this section is not applicable to the Partition Act, where it simply means a change of ownership.⁷⁸

[s 5.7.12] Document transferring plant and machinery

5. "Transfer of property" defined.—

Whether the transfer of plant and machinery fastened to the earth reported to be in a removable condition, when the transferor had no right to title to the land and the transferee having not acquired any interest in the land by reason of such transfer, could be defined as immovable property, was a question which was posed before the Allahabad High Court. It was held that the document regarding such conveyance is a transfer within the meaning of section 5 of the TP Act, 1882.⁷⁹

[s 5.7.13] Razinama and Kabulayet in Collector's books

The effect of a razinama and kabulayet in the Collector's books has been the subject of conflicting decisions, but the better opinion is that it is not necessarily evidence of an intention to transfer, and that its effect depends upon the circumstances of each case.⁸⁰

[s 5.7.14] Entries in revenue records

Entries in the revenue records is neither a proof of title upon the property nor can it be used as a camouflage to defeat the legal right, title or interest of a person, who is the owner of the property in question. Revenue entries neither can confer a title nor can it extinguish the right or title of the owner of the property. Mutation of the property in the revenue record also does not create or extinguish title nor has it any presumptive value on title. It only enables the person in whose favour mutation is ordered to pay land revenue in question. Thus, the correct proof of ownership is a registered sale deed in favour of a person. Revenue entries or revenue receipts have nothing to do with the ownership and they cannot be treated as a conclusive evidence of the ownership of the property.⁸¹

[s 5.7.15] Recitals

Recitals in deeds of mortgage and in petitions to officials do not, of course, amount to a transfer.⁸² Where a partner contributed towards the capital of the firm by bringing in shares held by him in a company, then it is a "transfer" within section 45, Income Tax Act, 1961. To the extent to which exclusive interest is reduced to a shared interest, there is a transfer of interest.⁸³

[s 5.7.16] Release Deed

If the person executing the release deed holds some right, title or interest in the property, release of that interest would amount to conveyance. However, if the transferor is a benamidar releasing the property to the real owner, it is not conveyance.⁸⁴

[s 5.7.17] Dissolution of Partnership

Division of assets following dissolution of partnership firm does not amount to a transfer. Where there is no assigned or definite share in the property of the firm of the partners and shares are assigned on dissolution of the firm, such dissolution and division of shares would not amount to a transfer within the meaning of this section.⁸⁵ However, in absence of any prescribed terms and conditions barring transfer, securities concerned (OFCDs) are transferable and hence marketable.⁸⁶

[s 5.7.18] Relinquishment

A relinquishment is not an alienation,⁸⁷ unless an intention to transfer is found to exist, as when it is in favour of a person having no interest.⁸⁸ A registered instrument styled as a release deed releasing the right, title and interest of the executant in the property in favour of the releasee for valuable consideration may operate as a conveyance.⁸⁹

Where the person in whose favour the "release" is executed gets rights by virtue of the release, the deed may amount to a transfer. Thus, in a case decided by Madras High Court, by a deed of release, the releasor, after getting a sum of money from the person in whose favour release was executed, transferred his right, title and interest in half share of the suit properties absolutely in favour of the latter. The document could not be construed merely as enlarging the right of the latter, but gave him an absolute right in the half share which belonged to the releasor. Hence, it clearly comes under the definition of "transfer" in section 5, and suit to set aside the document as "fraudulent" will come only under section 53 of the TP Act, 1882.⁹⁰

5. "Transfer of property" defined.—

[s 5.7.19] Surrender

A surrender is not a transfer of property as defined in this section.⁹¹ It is the falling of a lesser estate into a greater one.⁹²

A deed of surrender simpliciter cannot affect any transfer of title.⁹³

In the case of surrender by a life tenant in favour of a remainder man, there is no transfer of property. There is merely an effacement or extinguishment of the rights of the former, and an acceleration of the rights of the remainder man. The latter's right are derived from the document executed by the full owner, and when a deed of surrender is executed, full rights accrue to the remainder man in pursuance of the title derived under the settlement, and not from or through the life tenant who makes the surrender.⁹⁴

[s 5.7.20] Will

These words exclude transfers by will, for a will operates from the death of the testator.⁹⁵ A deed executed by husband and wife jointly providing that on the death of either of them, the survivor would retain all rights over the property including that of alienation and upon the death of the surviving executants the property would go to their children would be a will (and not a settlement deed) as there is no transfer of a right in praesenti on the other executants.⁹⁶ Transfer of share or interest in a co-operative society to the nominee of its member operating on his death would also be excluded like transfers by will.⁹⁷ Where the beneficiary is not a living person, the expression used is the creation of an interest in an unborn person contemplated under section 13. A Muslim gentleman executed a document styled as "will". By this document, he divided certain properties amongst his daughter and nephew in his life-time and gave possession to the persons named. It was held that it was a conveyance and not a will, even though it described the beneficiaries as "heirs". Not being a registered document, it was invalid.⁹⁸

[s 5.8] Living Person [s 5.8.1] Corporation

The words "living person" include a juristic person such as a corporation company or association of persons or body of individuals, whether incorporated or not, have been included amongst "living person" in this section.⁹⁹ A court is not a juristic person.¹⁰⁰ The second paragraph has been added by the Amendment Act of 1929 in order to make it clear that the words embrace companies and societies, and that the general provisions of TP Act, 1882 as to transfer do not affect the special provisions of the Companies Act.¹⁰¹

[s 5.8.2] An idol

An idol or God, is a juristic person capable of holding property,¹⁰² but it is not a living person.¹⁰³ Likewise a temple is also not a living person.¹⁰⁴ An idol not being a living person, a dedication of land to an idol does not fall within the terms of section 122, and need not be made in writing or by a registered instrument under section 123 of TP Act, 1882.¹⁰⁵ It has also been said that an idol is only the symbol of the deity, and that it would be contrary to the Hindu religion that a deity should make an acceptance of worldly goods.¹⁰⁶

[s 5.8.3] Wakf

These decisions must be distinguished from a decision of Allahabad High Court where it was held that a

5. "Transfer of property" defined.—

Mahomedan wakf, which is a dedication of property to God, is voidable at the option of creditors, if made with intent to defraud creditors, under section 53 of the TP Act, 1882, there being no rule of Mahomedan law inconsistent with the provisions of that section.¹⁰⁷

[s 5.9] In Present or in Future

A transfer of property may take place not only in present, but also in the future,¹⁰⁸ but the property must be in existence. The words "in present or in future" qualify the word "conveys", and not the word "property".¹⁰⁹ A transfer of property that is not in existence operates as a contract to be performed in the future which may be specifically enforced as soon as the property comes into existence.¹¹⁰ In Rajah Sahib Perhlad v Budhoo,¹¹¹ the Privy Council said:

But how can there be any transfer, actual or constructive, upon a contract under which the vendor sells that of which he has not possession, and to which he may never establish a title? The bill of sale in such a case can only be evidence of a contract to be performed in future, and upon the happening of a contingency, of which the purchaser may claim a specific performance, if he comes into court showing that he has himself done all that he was bound to do.

The Supreme Court in Bharat Nidhi's case held that as soon as the property comes into existence and is capable of being identified, equity taking as done that which ought to be done fastens upon the property, and the contract to assign thus becomes a complete equitable assignment.¹¹²

It has been held that a transfer of non-existent or, as it is conveniently called, after-acquired property, provided it is not of the nature contemplated in section 6(a), is perfectly valid and is to be regarded in a court as a contract to transfer after the vendor acquires the title, and will fasten upon the property as soon as the vendor acquires it.¹¹³ While it is true that the law of India does not recognise equitable assignment or equitable estate, it is difficult to say that the right of the transferee in such circumstances is a purely personal right which can only be enforced under section 18(a) of the Specific Relief Act or by a suit for damages, as upon such a transfer or afterwards acquiring the property, an obligation undoubtedly attaches to the property under section 40, and the transfer also operates under section 43 on the interest acquired by the transferor.¹¹⁴

The interest of the transferee, however, may not prevail against a bona fide transferee for value.

A mortgage of a future crop has been recognised, but such a mortgage will not affect a transferee without notice.¹¹⁵

Transfer of a chance of receiving a gratuitous payment at the discretion of an employer for services being or about to be rendered consists of a possibility, and cannot be transferred.¹¹⁶

5. "Transfer of property" defined.—

- 1 Ins. by Act 20 of 1929, section 6.
- 2 Ins. by Act 20 of 1929, section 6.
- 3 Naranbhai v Suleman, (1975) 16 Guj LR 289.
- 4 Mata Din v Kazim Husain, (1891) ILR 13 All 432, p 473; Bansigopal v V K Banerji, AIR 1949 All 433 .
- 5 Rudra Perkash v Krishna, (1887) ILR 14 Cal 241, p 244; Muchiram v Ishan Chander, (1894) ILR 21 Cal 568.
- 6 Narasingarji v Panaganti, (1921) Mad WN 19 : AIR 1921 Mad. 498 , on app 51 IA 305 : 82 IC 993 : AIR 1924 PC 226 .
- 7 Jones v Skinner, (1835) 5 LJ Ch 87 , p 90.
- 8 V B Rangaraj v V B Gopalkrishnan, (1992) 1 SCC 160 [LNIND 1991 SC 637] , p 164 : AIR 1992 SC 453 [LNIND 1991 SC 637] , p 455. See also S P Jain v Kalinga Tubes Ltd, AIR 1965 SC 1535 [LNIND 1965 SC 6] : 35 COMP CASES 351; Tett v Phoenix Property & Investment Co Ltd, (1986) 2 BCC 99 , p 140; Swaledale Cleaners Ltd, Re, [1968] 1 All ER 1132 .
- 9 Jugalkishore v Raw Cotton Co, [1955] 1 SCR 1369 [LNIND 1955 SC 21] , p 1413 : AIR 1955 SC 376 [LNIND 1955 SC 21] : [1955] SCJ 871 .
- 10 Khiria Devi Jagdish Sao v Rameshwar Sao Parsadi Sao, AIR 1992 SC 1482 , p 1483.
- 11 Indar Sen v Naubat Sen, (1885) ILR 7 All 553, p 556.
- 12 BSE v V S Kandalgaon, (2015) 2 SCC 1 [LNIND 2014 SC 855] : AIR 2015 SC 193 [LNIND 2014 SC 855] : 2014 7 Mad LJ 489 SC : 2014 (11)Scale 442 [LNIND 2014 SC 855] .
- 13 Zelia M Xavier Fernandes E Gonsalves v Joana Rodrigues, AIR 2012 SC 988 [LNIND 2012 SC 103] : JT 2012 (2) SC 373 [LNIND 2012 SC 103] : 2012 (4) MhLj 686 : 2012 (2) Scale 328 [LNIND 2012 SC 103] : (2012) 3 SCC 188 [LNIND 2012 SC 103] .
- 14 Ramlal Ganjhee v Lodha Munda, AIR 1952 Pat. 201 .
- 15 Prahlad Dalsukhray v Maganlal Muljibhai Tewar, AIR 1952 Bom 454 [LNIND 1952 BOM 7] : 1952 (54) BOMLR 519 [LNIND 1952 BOM 7] : ILR 1952 Bom 1090 [LNIND 1952 BOM 7] .
- 16 Umesh Chunder v Zahoor Fatima, (1891) ILR 18 Cal 164 : 17 IA 201; Gulamhusein v Fakirmahomed, (1946) 48 Bom LR 733 : 231 IC 328 : AIR 1947 Bom 185 .
- 17 Ma Yait v Official Assignee, 57 IA 10 : (1930) ILR 8 Rang 8 : 121 IC 225 : AIR 1930 PC 17 .
- 18 Tagore v Tagore, (1872) 9 Beng LR 37.
- 19 Webb v Mac Pherson, (1904) ILR 31 Cal 57 : 30 IA 238, p 245; Rani Chhatra Kumari v Mohan Bikram, (1931) ILR 10 Pat 851 : 58 IA 279 : 133 IC 705 : AIR 1931 PC 196 ; Imperial Bank of India v U Rai Gyaw, (1923) ILR 1 Rang 637 : 50 IA 283 : (1924) ILR 51 Cal 86 : 76 IC 910 : AIR 1923 PC 211 ; Surendra Mohan v Mohendra Nath, (1932) ILR 59 Cal 781 : 140 IC 662 : AIR 1932 Cal 589 .
- 20 Rani Chhatra Kumari v Mohan Bikram, 58 IA 279, p 297 : (1931) ILR 10 Pat 851 : 133 IC 705 : AIR 1931 PC 196 .
- 21 Nair Service Society, Changanacherry v Jnana Ashram, AIR 2017 (NOC) 1103 Ker. : 2017 (3) KHC 916 .
- 22 Mumbai International Airport Pvt Ltd v Regency Convention Centre and Hotels Pvt Ltd, (2010) 7 SCC 417 [LNIND 2010 SC 552] : AIR 2010 SC 3109 [LNIND 2010 SC 552] : 2010 (6) Scale 273 [LNIND 2010 SC 552] : [2010] 7 MLJ 153 [LNIND 2010 SC 552] .
- 23 This passage has been approvingly quoted by the Supreme Court in Krishna Kumar Khemka v Grindlays Bank PLC, (1990) 3 SCC 669 [LNIND 1990 SC 290] , pp 673–674 : AIR 1991 SC 899 [LNIND 1990 SC 290] , p 902; See further Samrathi Devi v Parasuram, AIR 1975 Pat. 140 ; State of Rajasthan v Bhilwara Spinners Ltd, AIR 2001 Raj. 184 , para 35.
- 24 Krishna Kumar Khemka v Grindlays Bank PLC, (1990) 3 SCC 699 , p 674 : AIR 1991 SC 899 [LNIND 1990 SC 290] , p 903.
- 25 Subbegowda v Thimmegowda, (2004) 9 SCC 734 [LNIND 2004 SC 503] : AIR 2004 SC 2428 [LNIND 2004 SC 503] .
- 26 Dipti Narayan Srimani v Controller of Estate Duty, WB AIR 1988 SC 1511 [LNIND 1988 SC 301] , p 1516. See St Anbyn v Attorney General, [1951] 2 All ER 473 , p 496.
- 27 V Ethiraj v S Sridevi, AIR 2014 Kant.. 58 [LNIND 2013 KANT 370] : 2013 (4) AKR 759 : 2014 (1) Kar LJ 273 [LNIND 2013 KANT 370] .

5. "Transfer of property" defined.—

- 28 Shankar Yadav v State of Jharkhand through Secretary-cum-Commissioner, Department of Mines and Geology, Government of Jharkhand, AIR 2012 Jhar 21 [LNIND 2011 JHAR 992] : 2011 (4) JCR JHA 427 : LNIND 2011 JHAR 992 .
- 29 Immudipattam Thirugnana v Periya Dorasami, (1901) ILR 24 Mad 377 : 28 IA 46, p 53; Palikandy v Krishnan, (1917) ILR 40 Mad 302, p 307 : 34 IC 381.
- 30 Prethi Singh v Ganes,h, AIR 1951 All 462 [LNIND 1950 ALL 63] .
- 31 Central Bank of India v Nusserwanji, (1933) ILR 57 Bom 234 : 34 Bom LR 1384 : 142 IC 130 : AIR 1932 Bom 642 ; Varden Seth v Luckpathi, (1862) 9 Moo Ind App 303 .
- 32 Pandey Oraon v Ram Chandra Sahu, (1992) 2 SCC 77 , p 79 (Supp).
- 33 Shamjibhai Keshavjibhai Kansagra v Principal Secretary, Revenue Dept, AIR 2011 Guj 55 [LNIND 2010 GUJ 66] : LNIND 2010 GUJ 66 .
- 34 Krishna Mohan v Bal Krishna Chaturvedi, AIR 2001 All 334 [LNIND 2001 ALL 624]; (2001) 3 All WC 2080.
- 35 Essar Steel Ltd v Superintendent of Stamps, (2010) 51 (1) GLR 744 : (2010) 1 GLH 758; Amar Jyoti Pictures v Himadri Das, 2010 SCC OnLine Cal 948; Bank of Baroda v Mumbai Metropolitan Regional Development Authority, (2010) 3 Mah LJ 819 : (2010) 2 Bom CR 509 [LNIND 2010 BOM 166] : AIR (2010) 4 Bom R 194.
- 36 Gobinda Chandra v Dwarka Nath, (1908) ILR 35 Cal 837; Jawahir Mal v Indomati, (1914) ILR 36 All 201 : 22 IC 973.
- 37 Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, 1909, section 2(i); Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920, section 2 (f).
- 38 Ex Parte Lancaster, Re Marsden, (1883) 23 ChD 311 ; Butcher v Stead, (1875) IR 7 HL 839.
- 39 Khunni Lal v Gobind Krishna, (1911) ILR 33 All 356 : 38 IA 87 : 10 IC 477; Hiran Bibi v Sohan Bibi, (1914) 18 Cal WN : ILR 24 IC 309; PC Basangowda v Irgowdatti, (1923) ILR 47 Bom 597 : 73 IC 196 : AIR 1923 Bom 276; Abbas Bandi Bibi v Muhammad Raza, (1929) ILR 4 Luck 452, p 473, 120 IC 387 : AIR 1929 Oudh 193; Krishna Tankaji v Aba, (1910) ILR 34 Bom 139 : 4 IC 833; Balkrishna v Rangnath, (1950) ILR Nag 618 : AIR 1951 Ngp 171.
- 40 Reddiar, MP v A Ammal, (1971) 1 Mad LJ 225 : AIR 1971 Mad. 182 [LNIND 1970 MAD 71]. And see Hussain Banu v Shivnarayan, AIR 1966 MP 307 [LNIND 1964 MP 77].
- 41 Joshua v Alliance Bank, (1895) ILR 22 Cal 185, p 202.
- 42 U Theta v U Aresena, 199 IC 903 : AIR 1939 Rang 76.
- 43 Joginder Kumar Goyal v Govt of NCT Delhi, 2016 (158) DRJ 241 (Delhi High Court); Suraj Lamp and Industries (P) v State Of Haryana, AIR 2009 SC 3077 [LNINDORD 2009 SC 574] : 2009 (76) ALR 792 : 2010(6) ALT 11 (SC) : 2010 (3) Bom CR 808 : 2011 (6) KarLJ 62 : 2009 (6) MhLJ 11(SC) : 2009 MPLJ 315(SC) : 2009 (9) Scale 36 [LNINDORD 2009 SC 574] : (2009) 7 SCC 363 [LNINDORD 2009 SC 574] : [2009] 10SCR 1048.
- 44 Jayanta Ghosh v State of West Bengal, AIR 2008 (NOC) 303 (Cal).
- 45 State of MP v Rakesh Kohli, (2012) 6 SCC 312 [LNIND 2012 SC 326] : AIR 2012 SC 2351 [LNIND 2012 SC 326] : 2012 (5)Scale 467 [LNIND 2012 SC 326] : LNIND 2012 SC 326.

5. "Transfer of property" defined.—

- 46 See Sital Chandra v Delanney, (1916) 20 Cal WN 1158 : 34 IC 450; Bhagwan Sahai v Narsingh Sahai, (1909) ILR 31 All 612 : 3 IC 615; Konadayya v Veeranna, 92 IC 672 : AIR 1926 Mad. 543; Satyanarayana v Lakshmayya, (1929) 57 Mad LJ 46 : 115 IC 145 : AIR 1929 Mad. 79; See also Transfer of Property Act, 1882, section 6(c).
- 47 Joyden Sen v State of West Bengal, AIR 2010 (NOC) 256 Cal.
- 48 See Transfer of Property Act, 1882, section 118.
- 49 Sadhu Madho Das v Pandit Mukand Ram, [1955] 2 SCR 22 [LNIND 1955 SC 25], pp 42, 43 : AIR 1955 SC 481 [LNIND 1955 SC 25]; [1955] SCJ 417 : [1955] SCA 1057; Venkatarama v Yedu-Kondalu, AIR 1958 AP 147. As to what is family arrangement see Thayyullthil Kunhikannan v Thayyullathil Kathani, AIR 1990 Ker. 226 [LNIND 1989 KER 514], p 234 : 1990 KLJ 114. See also Ganeshi v Ashok, AIR 2011 SC 1340 [LNIND 2011 SC 354]; [2011] 4 SCR 215 [LNIND 2011 SC 354] : (2011) 2 RCR (civil) 892.
- 50 Ram Charan Das v S Girjanandini Devi, [1965] 3 SCR 841 [LNIND 1965 SC 141] : AIR 1966 SC 323 [LNIND 1965 SC 141]; [1966] 1 SCJ 61 [LNIND 1965 SC 141]; Tek Bahadur v Debi Singh, AIR 1966 SC 292, p 295 : [1966] 2 SCJ 290; Golak Behari Biswal v Karunakar Rout, AIR 1987 Ori. 236 [LNIND 1987 ORI 137], p 239; Atava Akkulamma v Gajjela Papi Reddy, AIR 1995 AP 166 [LNIND 1994 AP 469], holding that settlement as a mode of transfer of property is not known under TP Act, 1882.
- 51 Zaheda Begum v Lal Ahmed Khan, AIR 2010 AP 1 [LNIND 2009 AP 582]; (2009) 6 Andh LD 432 : (2009) 6 ALT 565.
- 52 Amrit Lal v Savitri, AIR 2017 P&H. 130 : (2018) 189 PLR 79.
- 53 Sashi Kantha v Promoda Chandra, AIR 1932 Cal 600; Kaulashwari Kuer v Surajnath, AIR 1957 Pat. 456; Kisto Chandra v Anila Bala, AIR 1968 Pat. 487.
- 54 Sadhu Madho Das v Pandit Mukand Ram, [1955] 2 SCR 22 [LNIND 1955 SC 25], pp 42, 43; Venkatarama v Yedu-Kondalu, AIR 1958 AP 147.
- 55 Vikram Singh v Ajit Inder Singh, AIR 2014 Del 173 [LNIND 2014 DEL 482]; 2014 (210) DLT 145 [LNIND 2014 DEL 482] : LNIND 2014 DEL 482.
- 56 Nilkanth Krishnarao Apte v Ramchandra Krishnarao Apte, AIR 1991 Bom 10 [LNIND 1990 BOM 253], p 15.
- 57 Chetti Balakrishnamma v Chetti Chandrasekhar Rao, AIR 1991 Ori. 333, p 336.
- 58 K Jagannathan v AM Vasudevan Chettiar, AIR 2001 Mad. 184 [LNIND 2001 MAD 92], para 23; See also Nani Bai v Gita Bai, AIR 1958 SC 706 [LNIND 1958 SC 50]; 1959 SCR 879; Hansraj Agarwal v CIT, (2003) 2 SCC 295 [LNIND 2002 SC 853].
- 59 Ramdev Food Products Pvt Ltd v Arvindbhai Rambhai Patel, AIR 2006 SC 3304 [LNIND 2006 SC 1102]; JT 2006 (8) SC 393 [LNIND 2006 SC 670]; 2006 (8) Scale 631 [LNIND 2006 SC 670] : (2006) 8 SCC 726 [LNIND 2006 SC 1102].
- 60 M N Aryamurthy v M D Subbaraya Setty, AIR 1972 SC 1279 : (1972) 4 SCC 1 : 1972 (4) UJ 84.

5. "Transfer of property" defined.—

- 61 Jose Floriano Cristovam Pinto v Michelle N Pinto Souza, AIR 2017 Bom 263 : 2017 (6) ABR 245 : 2017 (4) All MR 637.
- 62 Saroj Kumari Bandyopadhyay v State of West Bengal, AIR 2017 Cal 209.
- 63 Atrabanesa Bibi v Safutullaah Mia, (1916) ILR 43 Cal 504, p 509 : 31 IC 189; Rasa Goundan v Arunachala, (1923) 44 Mad LJ 513 : 72 IC 978 : AIR 1923 Mad. 577 [LNIND 1923 MAD 41]; but see Muthuveerran Chetty v Govindan Chetty, (1961) ILR Mad 908 : (1961) 2 Mad LJ 470 : AIR 1961 Mad. 518 [LNIND 1961 MAD 30]. See also Suhasini Poddar v Sreenath Chakravarty, (1945) 49 Cal WN 769; Khironde Sundari v Chunilal, (1945) 49 Cal WN 779.
- 64 See also Gouranga Chandra Roy v Gobinda Ballabh Roy, AIR 2014 Tri 26.
- 65 Indoji Jethaji v Kothapalli, 54 IC 146.
- 66 Sri Aralappa v Jagannath, AIR 2007 Kant. 91 [LNIND 2006 KANT 589]; ILR 2007 Kar 339 [LNIND 2006 KANT 589].
- 67 Venkiteswara Prabhu Ravindranatha Prabhu v Surendranath Prabhu, Sudhakara Prabhu, AIR 1985 Ker. 265.
- 68 A Vasantiben Prahladinayak v Somnath Muljibainayak, (2004) 3 SCC 376 [LNIND 2004 SC 295] : AIR 2004 SC 1893 [LNIND 2004 SC 295].
- 69 Sarin v Poplai, [1966] 1 SCR 349 [LNIND 1965 SC 184] : AIR 1966 SC 432 [LNIND 1965 SC 184]; [1966] 1 SCJ 199 [LNIND 1965 SC 184] : [1966] 1 SCA 285 [LNIND 1965 SC 184].
- 70 See commentry on section 53 of Transfer of Property Act, 1882.
- 71 See notes under section 53.
- 72 Waman Ram Krishna v Ganpat Mahadeo, (1935) ILR 60 Bom 34 : 37 Bom LR 925 : 160 IC 242 : AIR 1936 Bom 10; Sadhu Ram v Pirthi Singh and Co, 161 IC 861 : AIR 1936 Lah 220; Kartar Singh v Ramela, AIR 1950 J&K 18; Banarsilal v Bhagwan, AIR 1955 Raj. 167 [LNIND 1954 RAJ 40]; Raman v Madhavan, AIR 1959 Ker. 235 [LNIND 1958 KER 137]; Dayabhai v State of Bombay, (1960) 62 Bom LR 348; Jagannathpuri Guru v Gocabai, (1968) 70 Bom LR 749 : AIR 1968 Bom 25 [LNIND 1966 BOM 87].
- 73 Gyannessa v Mobarakannessa, (1898) ILR 25 Cal 210; Satya Kumar v Satya Kripal, (1909) 10 Cal LJ 503 : 3 IC 247; Indoji Jethaji v Kothapalli, 54 IC 146; Suhasini Poddar v Sreenath Chakravarty, (1945) 49 Cal WN 769; Khironde Sundari v Chunilal, (1945) 49 Cal WN 779; Kisarsing Mohansingh v Vishnu Balkrishna, (1951) ILR Bom 148 : 52 Bom LR 867 : AIR 1951 Bom 4 [LNIND 1950 BOM 55]; Muthuveeran Chetty v Govindan Chetty, (1961) ILR Mad 908 : (1961) 2 Mad LJ 470 : AIR 1961 Mad. 518 [LNIND 1961 MAD 30], overruling Rasa Goundan v Arunachala, (1923) 44 Mad LJ 513 : 72 IC 978 : AIR 1923 Mad. 577 [LNIND 1923 MAD 41]; Panchali v Panniyodan Manni, AIR 1963 Ker. 66 [LNIND 1962 KER 174], overruling Raman Pillai v Madhavan Pillai, AIR 1959 Ker. 235 [LNIND 1958 KER 137]; Reddiar P v K Reddi, (1966) 1 Nag LJ 333 : AIR 1966 Mad. 419 [LNIND 1965 MAD 203]; Ganu Santu v Shankar Tukaram, (1968) 71 Bom LR 165.
- 74 Chanderwati v Lakhmi Chand, AIR 1988 Del 13 [LNIND 1987 DEL 103]; (1987) 13 DRJ 248 [LNIND 1987 DEL 103].

5. "Transfer of property" defined.—

- 75 Mohar Singh v Devi Charan, AIR 1988 SC 1365 [LNIND 1988 SC 598]: (1988) 3 SCC 63 [LNIND 1988 SC 598].
- 76 Chief Controlling Revenue Authority v Jagadambal, AIR 1976 Mad. 321 [LNIND 1976 MAD 372]: (1976) 2 Mad LJ 123.
- 77 Sita Ram Prasad v Mahadeo Rai, AIR 1980 Pat. 254 : (1981) 29 BLJR 134.
- 78 Sohni v Raj Kumar Singh, (1932) ILR 54 All 840 : 141 IC 118 : AIR 1932 All 678.
- 79 Orai Oil Chemicals Pvt Ltd v State of Uttar Pradesh, AIR 1997 All 92 [LNIND 1996 ALL 308].
- 80 Rachappa v Ningappa, (1925) ILR 49 Bom 847 : 91 IC 349 : AIR 1926 Bom 40; Chandanmal v Bhaskar, (1920) 22 Bom LR 140 : 55 IC 619. But see Venkaji v Gopal, (1914) ILR 39 Bom 55 : 27 IC 613; Imam Valod Ibrahim v Bhau Appaji, (1917) ILR 41 Bom 510 : 40 IC 68; Narso v Nagava, (1918) ILR 42 Bom 359 : 45 IC 492.
- 81 Shankar Yadav v State of Jharkhand, AIR 2012 Jhar. 21 [LNIND 2011 JHAR 992]: (2011) 1 EFLT 795.
- 82 Immudipattam Thirugnana v Periya Dorasami, (1901) ILR 24 Mad 377 : 28 IA 46; Pankajini Debi v Sudhir Datta, AIR 1956 Cal 669 [LNIND 1956 CAL 27].
- 83 Sunil Siddharthabhai v CIT, AIR 1986 SC 368 [LNIND 1985 SC 303]: (1985) 4 SCC 519 [LNIND 1985 SC 303] : 1985 Supp (3) SCR 102.
- 84 Suresh Chand Gupta v Man Mohan Gupta, AIR 2004 Del 282 [LNIND 2003 DEL 866]: 107 (2003) DLT 160.
- 85 Balbir Singh v State of UP, AIR 2012 All 113 [LNIND 2012 ALL 12].
- 86 Sahara India Real Estate Corpn Ltd v SEBI, (2013) 1 SCC 1 [LNIND 2012 SC 517].
- 87 Provident Investment Co v CIT, AIR 1951 Bom 95; Katragadda China Anjaneyulu v KC Ramayya, AIR 1964 AP 177; Ramdas v Pralhad, (1964) 66 Bom LR 499 : AIR 1965 Bom 74 [LNIND 1964 BOM 11].
- 88 Kuppuswami Chettiar v Arumugam, [1967] 1 SCR 275 [LNIND 1966 SC 176] : AIR 1967 SC 1395 [LNIND 1966 SC 176]: [1967] 2 SCJ 5 [LNIND 1966 SC 176]; and see Mammo T v K Ramunni, AIR 1966 SC 337 : [1966] 1 SCJ 138.
- 89 Thayyil Mammo v Ramunniram, AIR 1966 SC 337; K V Subba Rao v District Registrar of Assurances, Guntur, AIR 1986 AP 42 [LNIND 1985 AP 193], p 45.
- 90 Muniappa Pillai v Periasanti, (1975) 1 Mad LJ 236. See also Official Assignee, Madras v Tehmina, AIR 1972 Mad. 187 [LNIND 1971 MAD 192]: (1972) 1 Mad LJ 48.

5. "Transfer of property" defined.—

- 91 Makkan Lal Saha v Nagendranath Adhikari, (1933) ILR 60 Cal 379 : 37 Cal WN 119 : AIR 1933 Cal 467.
- 92 Co Litt, 337 b; see note "surrender" under section 111(e).
- 93 Smrathi Devi v Parasuram Pandey, AIR 1975 Pat. 140.
- 94 Palaniveli v Ouseph Mathai, AIR 1973 Mad. 309 [LNIND 1972 MAD 247]: (1973) 1 Mad LJ 264.
- 95 Jamindar of Bhadrachaan v Venkatdri Appa Rao, AIR 1922 Mad. 457; Surendra Vikram Singh v Munia Kunwar, AIR 1944 Oudh 65; Lala Devi Dass v Panna Lal, AIR 1959 J&K 62; N Ramaiah v Nagraj S, AIR 2001 Kant. 395, para 12.
- 96 Narayani v Sreedharan, AIR 2012 Ker. 72 [LNIND 2011 KER 754]: (2011) 4 KLJ 544.
- 97 For such statutory transfers, see Kusum Debi Jhinjani v Pushpa Devi, AIR 1990 Cal 204 [LNIND 1989 CAL 348].
- 98 Vaizer v Putti Begam, AIR 1986 AP 159 [LNIND 1984 AP 323].
- 99 Hindustan Lever v State of Maharashtra, (2004) 9 SCC 438 [LNIND 2003 SC 999] : AIR 2004 SC 326 [LNIND 2003 SC 999].
- 100 Raghubar Singh v Jai Indra Bahadur Singh, 46 IA 228 : 55 IC 550 : AIR 1919 PC 55; Mehdi Ali Khan v Chunni Lal, (1929) 27 All LJ 902 : 119 IC 81 : AIR 1929 All 834; Syam Sundar v Bajpai, (1903) ILR 30 Cal 1060.
- 101 Essar Steel Ltd v Superintendent of Stamps, (2010) 51 (1) GLR 744 : (2010) 1 GLH 758; Amar Jyoti Pictures v Himadri Das, 2010 SCC OnLine Cal 948; Shamjibhai Keshavjibhai Kansagra (Patel) v Principal Secretary, Revenue Department, AIR 2011 Guj 55 [LNIND 2010 GUJ 66]; Mardia Chemicals Ltd v UOI, (2004) 4 SCC 311 [LNIND 2004 SC 458]; Harish Chandra Hegde v State of Karnataka, (2004) 9 SCC 780; Bharat Petroleum Corp v P Kesavan, (2004) 9 SCC 772 [LNIND 2004 SC 434].
- 102 Pramatha Nath v Pradyumna, (1925) ILR 52 Cal 809 : 52 IA 245, p 250 : 67 IC 305 : AIR 1925 PC 139; Prosunno Kumari v Chand, (1875) 14 Beng LR 450, p 459 : 2 IA 145; Jodhi Rai v Basdeo Prasad, (1911) ILR 33 All 735 : 11 IC 47; Asharfi Devi v Prem Chand, AIR 1971 All 457.
- 103 Shyamal Ranjan Mukherjee v Nirmal Ranjan Mukherjee, AIR 2008 (NOC) 568 All; Jagran Shakya v Gokul Prasad, AIR 2008 (NOC) 359 MP.
- 104 Ragendra v C Gounder, AIR 2007 (NOC) 1325.
- 105 Narasimha v Venkatalingum, (1927) ILR 50 Mad 687 : 103 IC 302 : AIR 1927 Mad. 636 [LNIND 1927 MAD 26]; Harihar Prasad v Sri Gurugranth, 128 IC 791 : AIR 1930 Pat. 610; Ramchandraj Maharaj v Lalji Singh, (1959) ILR 38 [LNIND 1958 RAJ 87] Pat 49 : AIR 1959 AP 305 [LNIND 1958 AP 34], but see Shaukat Begam v Sri Thakurji, 131 IC 442 : AIR 1931 Oudh 14; Kaleka Singh v Shri Radha Kreshnaji, (1946) Oudh WN 264 : 225 IC 32; Ram Kumar and Co v CIT, AIR 1966 All 100.

5. "Transfer of property" defined.—

- 106 Bhupati Nath v Ram Lal, (1910) ILR 37 Cal 128, pp 153, 155 : 3 IC 642; Ramalinga v Sivachaidambara, (1919) ILR 42 Mad 440 : 49 IC 742; Bhopatrao v Shri Ramchandra, 96 IC 1004 : AIR 1926 Ngp 469.
- 107 Ahmad Husain v Kallu, (1929) 27 All LJ 460, p 462 : 117 IC 97 : AIR 1929 All 277.
- 108 Sumsuddin v Abdul Husein, (1909) ILR 31 Bom 165, p 172.
- 109 Jugalkishore v Raw Cotton Co, [1955] 1 SCR 1369 [LNIND 1955 SC 21] : AIR 1955 SC 376 [LNIND 1955 SC 21] : (1955) SC 371 : [1955] SCA 440 [LNIND 1955 SC 21] ; Re Mahomed Hashan, (1922) 24 Bom LR 861 [LNIND 1922 BOM 113] , p 871 : 75 IC 203 : AIR 1923 Bom 107 , p 113; Venkatapathiraja v Subhadrayamma, 37 IC 563; Chief Contr RA v Sudarsanam Picture, (1968) ILR 1 Mad 660 : (1968) 2 Mad LJ 1 : AIR 1968 Mad. 319 [LNIND 1967 MAD 57] .
- 110 Jugalkishore v Raw Cotton Co, [1955] 1 SCR 1369 [LNIND 1955 SC 21] ; Rajah Sahib Perhlad v Budhoo, (1869) 12 Moo Ind App 275 : 2 Beng LR 111 (PC); Ranee Bhobosoonduree v Issur Chunder, (1872) 18 WR 140 (PC); Mohendra v Kali, (1903) ILR 30 Cal 265, p 274; Baldeo v Miller, (1904) ILR 31 Cal 667.
- 111 Rajah Sahib Perhlad v Budhoo, 12 WR 6 : 2 Beng LR 111.
- 112 Holroyd v Marshall, [1862] 10 HLC 191; Collyer v Isaacs, [1881] 19 ChD 342 ; Tailby v Official Receiver, [1888] 13 App Cas 523 ; HV Low and Co v Pulin Beharilal Sinha, (1933) ILR 59 Cal 1372 : 143 IC 193 : AIR 1933 Cal 154 .
- 113 Khobhari Singh v Ram Prosad Roy, (1907) 7 Cal LJ 387 ; Lagdir Nanji v Surendra Mohun, AIR 1938 Cal 606 : 117 IC 920; Purna Chundra v Barna Kumari, AIR 1939 Cal 715 ; Prem Sukh Gulgulia v Habib Ulla, (1945) ILR 2 Cal 375 : (1945) 49 Cal WN 371 : AIR 1945 Cal 355 ; and see Indroloke Studio Ltd v Santi Debi, AIR 1960 Cal 609 .
- 114 See also notes, "second para—contractual obligation" under section 40 and "feeding the estoppel" under section 43.
- 115 Misri Lal v Mozhar Hossain, (1886) ILR 13 Cal 262; Bansidhar v Sant Lal, (1887) ILR 10 All 133; Baldeo v Miller, (1904) ILR 31 Cal 667; Palanippa v Lakshmanan, (1893) ILR 16 Mad 429; RNMK Mutu Kumara Pillay v Veerappa, 131 IC 509 : AIR 1931 Rang 160 .
- 116 Soloman v Official Assignee, 180 IC 399 : AIR 1939 Rang 8 .

6. What may be transferred.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

6. What may be transferred.—

Property of any kind may be transferred, except as otherwise provided by this Act or by any other law for the time being in force,—

- (a) The chance of an heir-apparent succeeding to an estate, the chance of a relation obtaining a legacy on the death of a kinsman, or any other mere possibility of a like nature, cannot be transferred;
- (b) A mere right of re-entry for breach of a condition subsequent cannot be transferred to anyone except the owner of the property affected thereby;
- (c) An easement cannot be transferred apart from the dominant heritage;
- (d) An interest in property restricted in its enjoyment to the owner personally cannot be transferred by him;
- 117[(dd)] A right to future maintenance, in whatsoever manner arising, secured or determined, cannot be transferred;]
- (e) A mere right to sue 118[] cannot be transferred;
- (f) A public office cannot be transferred, nor can the salary of a public officer, whether before or after it has become payable;
- (g) Stipends allowed to military, 119[naval], 120[air-force] and civil pensioners of the 121[Government] and political pensions cannot be transferred;
- (h) No transfer can be made (1) in so far as it is opposed to the nature of the interest affected thereby, or (2) 122[for an unlawful object or consideration within the meaning of section 23 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872 (9 of 1872)], or (3) to a person legally disqualified to be transferee;
- 123[(i)] Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize a tenant having an untransferable right of occupancy, the farmer of an estate in respect of which default has been made in paying revenue, or the lessee of an estate, under the management of a Court of Wards, to assign his interest as such tenant, farmer or lessee;]

[s 6.1] Amendments

This section was amended by the amending Act, 1929.

[s 6.2] Property of Any Kind

These words indicate that transferability is the general rule, and that the right to property includes the right to transfer the property to another person.¹²⁴ The onus of proof is on the person alleging that any kind of property is not transferable.¹²⁵ To this rule, the clauses constitute exceptions. Some of the exceptions are similar to those made in section 60 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908 as to property which cannot be attached, eg a service tenure or a right to future maintenance or a public office or a pension; but decisions under the Code of Civil Procedure 1908 are not always a safe guide,¹²⁶ and a private alienation may be made of property the attachment of which is prohibited, eg the tools of artisans.¹²⁷ The Rajasthan High Court has held that a gift, being a transfer without consideration, is not hit by section 6(h) which, inter alia, invalidates a transfer which hits section 23, Indian Contract Act, 1872. It has further held that where past cohabitation is only a motive and not a consideration for the transfer, the transfer is not void.¹²⁸ It has been held that a property such as coal ash, which is not in existence on the day of the contract, but would be available in due course of time, becomes potential property, and a sale in respect of such a property is established by a contract. The title in such property passes onto the purchaser, although it is held by the seller in the capacity of a trustee.¹²⁹

6. What may be transferred.—

Property of any kind does not include future property,¹³⁰ for a transfer of future property can only operate as a contract which may be specifically performed when the property comes into existence.¹³¹ In a suit for partition, as between the passing of the preliminary and the final decree an assignment of the property is not valid as more property can be added and the principle that each shareholder has a right over every inch of the property applies.¹³² Where through a settlement deed a large portion of property was settled absolutely in favour of the other while a portion of property by way of life interest was retained by him, an absolute settlement made with respect to the retained property later would be void.¹³³

Statutory rights of claimants to compensation which crystallize on assessment and verification of claims are separate rights to property, and cannot vanish or evaporate on the death of the claimant.¹³⁴ In a dispute with regard to area, the boundary of the land or the plot number of the instrument/document would be determinative of the issue.¹³⁵

[s 6.3] Exceptions Made by the Transfer of Property Act

These are set forth in the clauses to the section.

[s 6.4] Exceptions Made by any Other Law

The Supreme Court has held that an embargo upon the owner of the land to transfer the same should not be readily inferred. Right of transfer of land is indisputably incidental to the right of ownership. Such a right can be curtailed or taken away only by reason of a statute.¹³⁶ Restrictions are placed by Hindu law on the transfer of coparcenary property, and of property dedicated to religious uses. Mahomedan law imposes restrictions on the transfer of wakf property. Various local Acts as well as local customs restrict the transfer of agricultural tenancies. This is also the case with land held on service tenures, such as watan land in Bombay, karnam land in Madras, and ghatwal land in Bengal. Service tenures also fall under the exception in clause (d) of this section.

[s 6.5] Clause (a)—Spes Successionis

The possibilities referred to in this clause are bare possibilities, and not possibilities coupled with an interest such as contingent remainders and future interest.¹³⁷ The present interest of a widow in the property inherited by her from her husband can be transferred along with the incidental right of succeeding to the entire estate of the husband on the death of her co-widow.¹³⁸ With reference to a contingent interest, the Judicial Committee said:

It is something quite different from a mere possibility of a like nature of an heir-apparent succeeding to the estate, or the chance of a relation obtaining a legacy, and also something quite different from a mere right to sue. It is a well ascertained form of property—it certainly has been transferred in this country for generations—in respect of which it is quite possible to raise money and to dispose off it in any way the beneficiary chooses.¹³⁹

6. What may be transferred.—

ILLUSTRATION

A Hindu, owning separate property dies leaving a widow B and a brother C. C has only a bare chance of succession in case he survives B, and this spes successionis he cannot transfer. But if A during his lifetime makes a settlement of his separate property to his wife for her life and then to his son if he should have one, and in default of a son to B, B has an interest contingent on A having no son, and that interest is transferable. When the rights of an adopted son are curtailed by an agreement giving the widow of the adoptive father the right to enjoy the property during her lifetime, the interest of the son is not a spes successionis, but is a vested interest, enjoyment and possession only being postponed.¹⁴⁰

[s 6.6] Transfer by Heir-apparent

An heir-apparent is a person who would be the heir if he survived the propositus and if the propositus died intestate. Such a possibility is in English law not an interest or even a contingent title. The law was stated *Re Parsons*¹⁴¹ as follows:

It is indisputable law that no one can have any estate or interest at law or in equity, contingent or other, in the property of a living person to which he hopes to succeed as heir at law or next of kin of such living person. During the lifetime of such person no one can have more than a spes successionis, an expectation or hope of succeeding to his property.

The chance of a Mahomedan heir succeeding is a mere spes successionis, and cannot be the subject of a transfer or a release.¹⁴²

ILLUSTRATION

A has a wife B and a daughter C. C in consideration of ₹1,000 paid to her by A, executes a release of her right to share in the inheritance to A's property. A dies and C claims her one-third share in the inheritance. B resists the claim and sets up the release signed by C. The release is no defence, for it is a transfer of a spes successionis, and C is entitled to her one-third share but is bound to bring into account the ₹1,000 received from her father.¹⁴³

Where however, the transfer is not of the right of expectancy of an heir apparent but of the property itself, it cannot be said to be a transfer of a mere chance to succeed. Thus, when a person is not heard of for a long time and is believed to be dead, an agreement to transfer the property, entered into by his brother who is in enjoyment and possession of the property in dispute, is not a transfer of the right of expectancy, but of the property itself and is not hit by clause (a) of section 6.¹⁴⁴

[s 6.7] Transfer by Hindu Reversioner

By the Hindu law the right of a reversionary heir expectant on the death of a Hindu widow is a spes successionis, and its transfer is a nullity and has no effect in law.¹⁴⁵

6. What may be transferred.—

In *Amrit Narayan v Goya Singh*¹⁴⁶ the Privy Council said:

A Hindu reversioner has no right or interest in praesenti in the property which the female owner holds for her life. Until it vests in him on her death, should he survive her, he has nothing to assign or relinquish or even to transmit to his heirs. His right becomes concrete only on her demise; until then it is mere spes successionis.

For the same reason, a relinquishment by or on behalf of a reversionary heir of the reversionary right to succeed is invalid.¹⁴⁷ This rule of Hindu law was applied to Hindus independently of the present section by the Privy Council.¹⁴⁸ Since the Amending Act of 1929, the present section applies directly to Hindus.¹⁴⁹ If the reversioner purports to release his interests to the widow, her interest is in no way enlarged and the release cannot take effect as vesting in her the absolute estate in the property left by her husband.¹⁵⁰ Such a release might amount to an acknowledgment that the widow had an absolute right,¹⁵¹ but the acknowledgement would not be binding on any one who may be the heir when the succession opens out.¹⁵² But if the widow claims a property as her own, and the reversioner alleges it forms part of her husband's estate, and the dispute is bona fide settled between the parties, the settlement is binding on the whole body of reversioners, though the transaction might appear in one of its aspects as a dealing with a spes successionis.¹⁵³ The reversioner "can relinquish his right to say that the properties in dispute form part of the estate to which he is the reversioner".¹⁵⁴

It was held by the Supreme Court in Jumma Masjid v Kadimaniandra Deviah,¹⁵⁵ that the principle of feeding the estoppel recognised in section 43 of the TP Act, 1882 would apply to a case where a reversioner purports to transfer properties to which he has only a chance of succeeding if he has represented to the transferee that he was absolutely entitled to the properties, and if he subsequently acquires title to the properties. The court overruled a decision of the Madras High Court in Official Assignee of Madras v Sampath Naidu,¹⁵⁶ and held that though section 43 would not apply when the transferee knew the facts, there was no reason why a transferee who was not aware of the true facts and who acted on the fraudulent representation should not have the benefit of the equitable doctrine embodied in section 43.¹⁵⁷

[s 6.7.1] Agreement by Hindu reversioner to transfer

An agreement by reversionary heir to transfer or to relinquish his right of succession is also void.¹⁵⁸ In Annada v Gour Mohan,¹⁵⁹ the Privy Council said that it was impossible for them to admit the common sense of maintaining an enactment which would prevent the purpose of the contract, while permitting the contract to stand as a contract. The Bombay High Court has held that the equitable doctrine which regards that done which ought to be done, is excluded by the express prohibition in this section, and that an agreement by a person not to claim a share of an inheritance when it falls in, is void.¹⁶⁰ In some cases such agreements have (it is submitted erroneously) been held to be valid as agreements to take effect on a contingency.¹⁶¹ The Allahabad High Court has in a series of cases¹⁶² treated such agreement as valid, but the correctness of these decisions was doubted by CJ Piggott in Chahlu v Parmal,¹⁶³ and they must be taken as overruled by Annada v Gour Mohan.¹⁶⁴ The case of *Chahlu v Parmal*¹⁶⁵ was, however, a peculiar one and called for the application of another doctrine. In that case, there were four separated brothers. A, B, C and D. B died and A took his share and remarried his widow. Then D died and A agreed with C not to claim D's share after D's widow should die. But when D's widow died he did claim a share and the dispute was settled by a compromise that A should keep B's share and that C should keep D's share. This was a valid family settlement, and even if A's agreement not to claim D's share was invalid, yet A could not claim that share without bringing B's share into account.

Since an agreement to transfer a reversion is void, the court will not allow such an agreement to be embodied in a consent decree.¹⁶⁶ However, if a suit has been filed on an invalid agreement to assign the reversion, it may become the subject of a valid compromise after the reversion has fallen in.¹⁶⁷ Similarly, although an agreement to transfer a reversion is void, yet an alternative promise may constitute a valid substituted contract under section 58 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872. In Mahadeo Prasad v Mathura,¹⁶⁸ there was an agreement between the mortgagor and the mortgagee by which the mortgagee agreed not to recover the balance due on his mortgage during the lifetime of a Hindu widow, and at her death to accept in discharge either a share of the mortgagor's reversion in three villages owned by the widow, or a share in another village owned by the mortgagor. This was held to be invalid as to the three villages, but valid as to the other village.

6. What may be transferred.—

[s 6.7.2] Estoppel of reversioner

Although both the transfer and the agreement to transfer a reversionary interest are void, yet a reversioner may be estopped from claiming the reversion by his conduct if he has consented to an alienation by a widow or other limited heir.¹⁶⁹

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A Hindu widow executed a deed of gift of a part of her husband's property to D. F., who was then the nearest reversioner joined in the deed. On the widow's death F claimed the property pleading that the gift was invalid. F having consented to the gift is estopped from disputing its validity.¹⁷⁰

(2) Tayava, a Hindu widow, disposed of the greater part of her husband's property by three deeds executed and registered on the same day. The first was a deed of gift to her brother, which was attested by the reversioner. The second was a deed of sale to one Annagowda, and the third was a deed of sale to her son-in-law. All the deeds formed part of the same transaction and were executed with Annagowda's consent. The Privy Council said:

If some other person than Annagowda had been, at the death of Tayava, the nearest heir to her husband, it might have been open to him to question all or any of the three deeds but Annagowda himself being a party to and benefitting by the transaction evidenced thereby was precluded from questioning any part of it.¹⁷¹

This is particularly the case if the reversioner had been a party to a compromise,¹⁷² or after they should be enfranchised in the name of the transferor as an agreement for the transfer of family settlement,¹⁷³ entered into by a widow or other limited heir which involves an alienation of the estate by her and if he has benefited by the transaction. Different considerations prevail, if the renunciation or relinquishment proceeds on a settlement of conflicting claims or bona fide disputes.¹⁷⁴

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A Hindu died leaving as his heirs two daughters. Nevertheless, two separated cousins claimed the inheritance, and the dispute was settled by a compromise under which the property was partitioned and a fourth share was allotted to each cousin and daughter, as absolute owner. On the death of one daughter without issue, the sons of one of the cousins claimed to succeed to her quarter share as reversionary heir. The court held that as they had taken the place of their father and had, ever since his death, enjoyed possession of the share allotted to him, they were estopped from claiming as reversionary heirs.¹⁷⁵

(2) A Hindu governed by the Benares school of law dies leaving a widow and three daughters two of whom have sons. The widow claimed to be absolutely entitled to certain properties which the daughters said belonged to their father. As there was a doubt about their rights, the members of the family agreed and arranged among themselves that the whole property should be divided among the daughters and their sons, the widow surrendering her share. Each daughter accepted the property allotted to her in severality in lieu of the undivided share in the whole estate which would have devolved upon her on the mother's death and abandoned the right of survivorship on the death of either of her sisters. 38 years later, after the death of the mother and two sisters, the third sister sued as heir of her father to recover a property sold to the defendant by one of the deceased sisters. The Privy Council said that in view of the favour shown by the court to family arrangements and the long period of time which had elapsed since the arrangement was made, the plaintiff could not be allowed to repudiate the arrangement and impeach a sale which had been made upon the faith of it.¹⁷⁶

6. What may be transferred.—

Compromises and family arrangements do not operate as transfers of reversionary interest, but as said by the Judicial Committee in *Rani Mewa Kuwar v Rani Hulas Kunwar*¹⁷⁷ and by the Supreme Court in Sadhu Madho Das v Pandit Mukand Ram,¹⁷⁸ are based on the assumption that there was an antecedent title of some kind in the parties, and the agreement acknowledges and defines what that title is. A compromise implies an existing dispute, but a family arrangement may be concluded for the avoidance of future disputes.¹⁷⁹ Where a son had entered into an arrangement with his father that he should be given a certain sum in consideration of his being considered to have separated, the agreement was held to be a family arrangement, and not contrary to section 6(a) of TP Act, 1882.¹⁸⁰ However, a member of the family who has not joined the family arrangement may challenge the same.¹⁸¹

[s 6.8] Mahomedan Law and Transfer of Spes Successionis

The present section does not apply in terms to Mahomedans.¹⁸² The transfer of expectancy is invalid under that law.¹⁸³ It has been held that in the case of Mahomedans the transfer of expectancy by a heir presumptive is void ab initio and that no question of an estoppel can, therefore, arise by reason of the heir renouncing her claim before the expectancy opens.¹⁸⁴ This decision though justified on the facts of the case, errors, it is submitted, in stating the principle thus. The equitable estoppel arises in such cases not because the transfer is voidable, but because of the conduct of the transferor who purports to effect a transfer which is contrary to the provisions of law and, therefore, void.¹⁸⁵

The object of the rule of Muslim law which does not recognise a purported transfer of a spes successionis as legally valid, is not to “prohibit” anything within the terms of section 23 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872 (which invalidates agreements prohibited or opposed to public policy), but merely to make clear what is, and what is not, a transferable right or interest in property. Its purpose could not be to protect those who receive consideration for such a transfer.

Thus ordinarily there cannot be a transfer of spes successionis under Muslim law, but relinquishment of succession rights arising in future is permissible under a family arrangement and under the laws of testamentary succession or by accepting consideration for a future share. It can then operate as estoppel against the expectant heir to claim any share in the estate of the deceased on account of the doctrine of spes successionis. A family arrangement binding on the parties would operate as an estoppel by preventing the parties from resiling from the same or trying to revoke it after having taken advantage of such arrangement. The Supreme Court in *Shehammal v Hassan Khan Rawther*¹⁸⁶ held:

- (i) That a deed of relinquishment executed by an heir apparent could operate as an estoppel to a claim that may be set up by the executor of such deed after inheritance opens on the death of the owner of the property;
- (ii) Upon execution of a deed of relinquishment after having received remuneration for such future share, the expectant heir could be estopped from claiming a share in the inheritance;
- (iii) By means of a family settlement, a Muslim can relinquish his right of spes successionis when he had still not acquired a right in the property.

6. What may be transferred.—

The court drew support from the laws of testamentary succession governing Muslims whereby, despite the fact that a Muslim testator is prohibited from making a will of more than one third of his property, he can do so if the heirs give their consent to such bequest. Giving of such consent, the apex court said actually means renouncing their chances of obtaining a share on intestacy. This enunciation/relinquishment of future inheritance is on one hand forbidden under the TP Act, 1882 and on the other hand accepted as valid under the rules of testamentary succession under Muslim law. Thus having accepted the consideration for having relinquished a future claim or share in the estate of the deceased, it would be against public policy if such a claimant be allowed the benefit of doctrine of spes successionis. In such cases the principle of estoppel would be attracted. In the instant case the question was relating to the validity of five relinquishment deeds executed by the siblings in favour of one brother who stayed with the father under which they relinquished their shares in the property of their father. The court held that the doctrine of estoppel would operate against them so as to prevent them from receiving an advantage for giving up their rights and yet claiming the same rights subsequently. Being opposed to public policy, the heir expectant would be estopped under the general law from claiming a share in the property of the deceased. Similarly, in Hameed v Jameela,¹⁸⁷ a daughter for a consideration relinquished her share of inheritance in the property of her father, but claimed inheritance upon his death. She and her husband had purchased property with the consideration for their relinquishment. The court applied the rules of estoppel and held that she having enjoyed the benefit by her relinquishment cannot claim that she was not bound by the relinquishment. The court clearly said that the receipt of money by an heir apparent in lieu of his/her share in the property of his/her father during his life time would estop the heir apparent from claiming the share of the property of the father upon his demise. Thus, where after relinquishment of her share in her father's property, a Muslim woman bought land with the money that she got in lieu of her relinquishment, and sold the same to X, representing to him that she was competent to do so but later refused to perform her part of the contract on the plea that she was not competent to relinquish her inheritance, the court held that she would be estopped from taking the benefit of section 6(a) and the transfer would be valid.¹⁸⁸

[s 6.8.1] The object

The protection of any party could be the object underlying such a rule—

The protection of possible transferees, so that they may know what is, and what is not, a legally enforceable transfer.¹⁸⁹

[s 6.9] Transfer of Spes Successionis in Punjab

The High Court of Lahore has held that the transfer of an expectancy is valid in Punjab where the TP Act, 1882 does not apply,¹⁹⁰ and that a declaratory suit with reference to a spes successionis is maintainable.¹⁹¹ The law applicable there, is in substance, the rule of English law.

[s 6.10] Chance of a Legacy

The chance of a relation or a friend receiving a legacy is a possibility even more remote than the chance of succession of an heir, and is not transferable.¹⁹²

[s 6.11] Other Possibilities of a Like Nature

The usual illustration of a possibility is the case of a fisherman's net. There is no certainty that any fish will be caught, and the fisherman has no interest in the fish until they are caught. An agreement for the sale of otkarnam lands is a possibility and is, therefore, void.¹⁹³ There is a conflict of decisions as to whether a right to receive future offerings at a temple can be assigned. Some cases take the view that the chance that future worshippers will give offerings is a mere possibility which cannot be transferred,¹⁹⁴ while others hold that the right to receive offerings is not so uncertain, variable and limited as to pass out of the conception of the law.¹⁹⁵ With reference to the right to receive offerings at the sacred shrine of Shri Vaishno Devi Ji (Jammu and Kashmir), it has been held that the right is heritable.

6. What may be transferred.—

The High Court observed:

Although the right to receive the offerings from the pilgrims resorting to the shrine depends upon the chance that future pilgrims and worshippers will give offerings, the right to receive the offerings made is a valuable, definite and tangible right and is not merely a possibility of the nature referred to in section 6(a) of the Transfer of Property Act.¹⁹⁶

Offerings that have actually been made may, of course, be transferred; and the Bombay High Court has held that the priest's share of the utpat or net balance of the offerings to an idol may be attached.¹⁹⁷ Future wages of a servant before they are earned are a mere expectancy which cannot be attached or sold.¹⁹⁸ Prior to the completion of a sale, a vendor's interest in the purchase money is only a possibility which cannot be transferred.¹⁹⁹ However, when land which had been acquired under the Land Acquisition Act, was restored by government to one of the owners on his undertaking to transfer their respective shares to the co-owners, the latter had a beneficial interest in the land, and not a mere possibility.²⁰⁰ As to the words "of a like nature", it has been held that they indicate possibilities of the same kind as the chance of a legacy,²⁰¹ or a chance of being paid a gratuity.²⁰² However, a contract for the sale of a property which is not the vendor's at the time of the contract, but which the vendor thinks of acquiring by purchase later on, is not bad in law.²⁰³ A customary right to scavenge is not a kind of property which can be transferred.²⁰⁴

[s 6.12] Clause (b)—Transfer of Right of Re-entry

A "mere right of re-entry" refers to the right of re-entry which a transferor reserves to himself, after having parted with the whole estate, for breach of a condition subsequent. This is the right referred to in section 111 (g) which the lessor has against the lessee for breach of an express condition, which provides that on its breach the lessor may re-enter. Such a condition is a condition subsequent defined in section 31 which divests an estate which has already vested. A right of re-entry implies an estate of reversion, and cannot be transferred apart from the estate to which it belongs. The transfer of the reversion, i.e., of the lessor's interest, carries with it the right of re-entry. The transfer of a lessor's interest including a right of re-entry is not a transfer of a mere right of re-entry, and is valid.

The expression "mere right of re-entry", therefore, means a right of re-entry apart from any interest in the property. If not accompanied by an interest in property, it is a personal license and not transferable. This is illustrated by the case of Re Davis & Co, ex-parte Rawlings.²⁰⁵ In that case, goods were delivered under a hire purchase agreement which gave the bailor a right to enter the premises where the goods were kept, and take possession in default of payment of any installment. The bailor assigned his rights under the agreement by way of security to his creditor; it was held that the creditor could not enforce the right of re-entry as it was only a personal license which was not assignable.

[s 6.13] Clause (c)—Transfer of Easement

An easement is defined in section 4 of the Easements Act 5 of 1882 as "a right which the owner or occupier of certain land possesses, as such, for the beneficial enjoyment of that land, to do and continue to do something or to prevent and continue to prevent something being done, in or upon, or in respect of, certain other land not his own". An easement includes a profit a prendre, i.e., a right to enjoy a profit out of the land of another.²⁰⁶ An easement cannot be detached from the dominant heritage, but passes with it as a legal incident to the property transferred. This is enacted in section 8 of TP Act, 1882, and in section 19 of the Indian Easements Act, 1882. The present section in effect enacts that there cannot be an easement in gross.²⁰⁷ A thing in gross exists in its own right, and not as an appendage to another thing. An easement cannot be in gross, for it must be a right over one piece of land for the benefit of another piece of land and, therefore, cannot be transferred without the land that has the benefit of it. Right of way which may be enjoyed irrespective of a dominant heritage as sometimes called easement in gross, but this is an incorrect use of the term.²⁰⁸

6. What may be transferred.—

In India there are various rights which resemble easements, but are really not easements. They are customary rights saved by section 2(b) of the Indian Easements Act, 1882,²⁰⁹ such as a kamaki right to collect leaves for manure and to pasture cattle;²¹⁰ a right to use the land of another person for a holi festival;²¹¹ or for a bathing ghat,²¹² or for a burial ground,²¹³ or for the celebration of the mohurram,²¹⁴ or of the ram lila.²¹⁵ Such rights are independent of any dominant heritage.²¹⁶

The section refers to the transfer of an existing easement, and not to the grant of an easement. The grant of an easement is not a transfer of property;²¹⁷ and the provisions of the TP Act, 1882 have no application to the creation of easements.²¹⁸ An easement may be released in favour of the owner of the servient tenement, but such a release effects not a transfer, but an extinction of the easement.²¹⁹ The imposition, acquisition and transfer of easements, is governed by the provisions of chapter II of the Indian Easements Act, 1882 (sections 8–18).

[s 6.14] Clause (d)—Restricted Interests

An interest restricted in enjoyment to the owner personally is by its very nature not transferable, unless the restriction is void under section 10. A transfer of such property would defeat the object of the restriction. For instance, the object of a right of pre-emption is to prevent the introduction to strangers as co-sharers, and the sale of such a right to an outsider would defeat that object. A grant for parwarish is restricted in enjoyment to the grantee, and cannot be alienated.²²⁰ In the case of a religious office J Macpherson said:

Such a sale would practically destroy the endowment, or have the effect of defeating the whole object of its creation. There would be no guarantee that the service would be properly kept up; for the purchaser whoever he might be—even if a Mahomedan or a Christian—would have the right of performing the worship of this Hindu idol.²²¹

Again, with reference to the sale by urallars or trustees of a Hindu temple, the Privy Council said that where the founder of a religious endowment may be supposed to have established a corporation with the distinct object of securing the due performance of the worship, and the due administration of the property, by the instrumentality and at the discretion of its members, they have no power to transfer their right.²²² For this reason, a religious office is not a transferable property.²²³ The office of shebait of a temple,²²⁴ or mahani of a math,²²⁵ or mutwalli of a wakf,²²⁶ cannot be transferred. A vritti is not saleable property;²²⁷ nor the right of village joshi to perform religious ceremonies at the house of his yajman;²²⁸ nor the birt maha brahmani or right to officiate at funeral ceremonies;²²⁹ nor birt khakrobi rights.²³⁰ The life interest holders having a mere right of residence cannot transfer such restricted interest.²³¹

A paid or turn of worship, and the pujari's right to receive offerings, or as a co-sharer,²³² are res extra commercium, and cannot be alienated,²³³ though by custom they may be transferable to another Brahmin.²³⁴ A person gets no right to perform pooja on the basis of a sale deed but he would have a right to share the offerings nevertheless.²³⁵ The sale of vajman vahis or pilgrim visitor's books is not invalid, but the sale carries with it no right to act as guide to the pilgrims.²³⁶ It has been held by the Patna High Court in Zobair Ahmad v Jainandan,²³⁷ following a decision of the Privy Council,²³⁸ and earlier decisions of the same High Court,²³⁹ that the right of a Mahomedan widow to retain possession of her husband's property in lieu of her dower debt is personal to her, and is a restricted interest within the meaning of section 6(d). The court refused to follow certain other decisions²⁴⁰ to the contrary on the ground that those decisions were no longer good law in view of the decisions of the Privy Council. However, where the transferor was the absolute owner of the property gifted and it was not restricted in its enjoyment to herself, the Supreme Court held that section 6(d) was not attracted.²⁴¹

6. What may be transferred.—

It is not correct to say that whatever right the deceased may have had to obtain a lease survived and vested in the heirs after his death. It may be that the heirs and legal representatives, if they are continuing the business or industry of the deceased and have the required qualifications, obtain priority over an earlier applicant on account of special reasons for this preference. But, in each case, they have to apply afresh and set out their own qualifications.²⁴²

[s 6.15] Custom

It has been held in several cases that the inalienable character of a religious office may be affected by custom, and alienation to members of the founder's family or of the priestly family has sometimes been permitted.²⁴³ Chief Justice Rankin in *Panchanan v Surendra Nath*²⁴⁴ said that some of the cases on this point²⁴⁵ ought not to be followed; and pointed out that the Privy Council in *Rajah Vurmah v Ravi Vwmah*²⁴⁶ said that a custom sanctioning the sale of a trusteeship for the pecuniary advantage of the trustees would be bad in law.

The cases cited in this paragraph refer to Hindu religious offices, and were decided before the amending Act of 1929. Now that this chapter of the TP Act, 1882 supersedes the Hindu law, it is open to question whether a customary right of transfer can be recognised, if it conflicts with section 6(d). Possibly where the interest in the enjoyment of the office is by custom restricted not to the incumbent personally, but to the members of his family, a transfer to a member of the family may not be in contravention of this sub-section.

[s 6.16] Service Tenures

In service tenures the interest in the land is the remuneration for the personal service to be rendered. It is, therefore, a necessary incident of such tenures that they should be incapable of alienation. Thus, ghatwal tenures in Bengal, created to provide a local military and police force, are inalienable,²⁴⁷ and cannot be sold in execution of a decree against the ghatwal,²⁴⁸ but if the performance of military service is abolished, as in the case of palyan land in Madras, the alienations would be valid.²⁴⁹ A chowkidar in Bengal who holds chakran lands cannot alienate them beyond the term of his office.²⁵⁰ A watandar in Bombay cannot alienate watan land beyond his lifetime to a person who is not a member of the watan family.²⁵¹ The prohibition against alienation in the Watan Act is not absolute, for section 5 allows alienation with the sanction of the Collector, and a watandar may be estopped from impeaching his alienation.²⁵² Karnam lands in Madras cannot be alienated by the holder of the office to the prejudice of his successor.²⁵³ Inam lands or the performance of swastivachakam service in a temple cannot be alienated.²⁵⁴ However, a right to money charged upon land with the object that religious ceremonies should be performed may be transferred, for if the performance of ceremonies is not a condition precedent to payment, it does not constitute a religious office.²⁵⁵ Muafi lands, i.e., granted with a remission of revenue to certain Brahmins and their descendants on condition that they should give their blessings to the Maharaja of Nepal are transferable.²⁵⁶

Land held on service tenure may lose its character of inalienability. In Radha Bai v Anantrav,²⁵⁷ J West said:

When an estate is freed from its connection with a public office, the reason arising from that connection for the preservation of the estate intact and unencumbered, necessarily fails.

Similarly, in Bhagwal Baksh Ray v Sheo Prosad Sahu,²⁵⁸ it was said that:

On principle, it may well be maintained that when service can no longer be enforced and the tenure consequently ceases to be a service tenure, the land can be alienated.

6. What may be transferred.—

Accordingly, a ghatwal tenure loses its character of inalienability when the services have been commuted by a money payment,²⁵⁹ or the tenure on military service has been abolished.²⁶⁰

[s 6.16.1] Resumption of service tenure

A service tenure may be (1) a grant of an office for which the land is the remuneration; or (2) a grant of land burdened with a condition of service.

In case (1) the land is prima facie resumable, but in case (2) the land is not resumable, unless a condition of resumption is expressed in the terms of the grant or implied from the circumstances under which it was made. The onus is on the grantor to prove such a condition.²⁶¹ However, once the tenure has been established, it is not terminated by obsolescence and desuetude, but it is “necessary to find something done or omitted to be done on the part of the government, as the grantors, which would have the legal effect of a surrender and regrant of the lands on new terms, or, at any rate, of a release of the right to appoint the ghatwal and call for the performance of the services”²⁶²

[s 6.17] Right of Pre-emption Not Transferable

The right of pre-emption, has been defined as a right in the event of a sale to purchase the property upon agreed terms.²⁶³ It can only be exercised as to immovable property. It is a purely personal right, which cannot be transferred to a stranger. The object of the right is to prevent the introduction of strangers as co-sharers, and the right is enforced on the assumption that the introduction of strangers causes inconvenience to the pre-emptive co-sharers. It is a transient right in its very inception and nature, and being a personal privilege cannot be transferred to anyone except the owner of the property affected thereby.²⁶⁴ Where a pre-emptor in anticipation of his success in a pre-emption suit transfers the “pre-emptional” property, he is not entitled to enforce his right of pre-emption.²⁶⁵ However, a plaintiff who has obtained a decree for pre-emption may mortgage his rights under the decree in order to put himself in funds to pay the purchase money for the pre-empted property.²⁶⁶ The right of pre-emption under Muslim law is an enforceable right.²⁶⁷ This law is applied as between Mahomedans as a matter of “justice, equity and good conscience” by all the courts in India, except the erstwhile Madras Presidency where the courts declined to apply it on the ground that it places a restriction on the liberty of transfer.²⁶⁸ Right of pre-emption has received statutory recognition in Punjab by the Punjab Laws Act, 1872, and in Oudh by the Oudh Laws Act, 1876. The right also exists by custom among Hindus in Bihar,²⁶⁹ and certain parts of Gujarat.

The right of pre-emption is sometimes given by contract or covenant. Where a purchaser gave a right of pre-emption to one of his vendors if he could raise the price before a certain day without the help of others, the right was held to be incapable of assignment.²⁷⁰ Where a statute providing for a right of pre-emption lays down that it accrues only when transfer of the property takes place and such transfer is not complete except through a registered deed, a suit filed before the sale deed is executed is premature as the right of pre-emption under the statute did not accrue till the transfer became effective through a registered deed.²⁷¹

[s 6.18] Contract

The benefit of a contract can be assigned as an actionable claim. This is, however, subject to two exceptions in the case of an executory contract, (1) when the contract is one which had been induced by personal qualifications or considerations as to the parties to it; and (2) when the benefit is coupled with an obligation which the assignor is bound to discharge.²⁷²

6. What may be transferred.—

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) Where R agreed with M to grow indigo for him taking the seeds from M's factory and cultivating it according to M's instructions, it was held that the contract was entered into with reference to the personal position and qualifications of M, and that he could not assign it.²⁷³ In such a case, the enjoyment of the benefit of the contract is restricted to the party personally and cannot be transferred.

(2) In a similar case,²⁷⁴ A agreed to manufacture salt for B, and the terms of the contract allowed B credit for payment, and a discretion as to the quantity of salt to be demanded, and it was held that B could not assign the contract.

[s 6.19] Clause (dd)—Transfer of Right to Maintenance

This clause was added by the amending Act of 1929. Prior to the amendment there was a conflict of opinion on whether a right of future maintenance when it was fixed by a decree was transferable? The Madras High Court held that it was,²⁷⁵ but the Calcutta High Court ruled that it was not.²⁷⁶ The amendment supersedes the decisions of Madras High Court. Section 60 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908 also exempts a right of future maintenance from attachment.²⁷⁷

The effect of this clause is that the assignment of a decree for maintenance would be valid as to maintenance already accrued due, but not as to future maintenance.

The words “in whatsoever manner arising, secured or determined” are very comprehensive; and it is submitted that they overrule cases in which when the right has been created by a deed of transfer, it was held that the question whether the right was alienable depends upon the intention of the parties as expressed in the deed.²⁷⁸

The right of a Hindu widow to maintenance is a personal right and from its nature incapable of assignment;²⁷⁹ but arrears of maintenance can be attached and sold like any other debt.²⁸⁰ The interest of a Hindu widow in land which has been allotted to her for her maintenance is not property which can be attached.²⁸¹ However, if land is assigned to a Hindu widow in lieu of maintenance, the transfer of such land is not a transfer of a right of maintenance, and is valid during the widow's lifetime.²⁸² When villages were allotted to a person, under a compromise, for his maintenance and without power of transfer during his brother's lifetime, the Privy Council held that his interest was a right of future maintenance and could not be attached,²⁸³ but a receiver was allowed to be appointed to realise the rents and pay what was sufficient for the maintenance of the judgment-debtor, and the balance to his creditors. Where, however, a Mahomedan widow retains possession of property in lieu of her dower debt, she cannot transfer the property even during her lifetime. A hereditary grant of an allowance of paddy out of the melwaram of land is not a right to future maintenance.²⁸⁴ Grants out of the revenue of an impartible estate for the maintenance of cadets of the family are alienable with a reversion to the grantor on the death of the last male heir.²⁸⁵

A vested life interest under a will in a definite fund or income of a property is transferable.²⁸⁶ An annuity granted by will is not a right to future maintenance, and may be attached or sold.²⁸⁷ There is, however, a difference between a maintenance allowance and an annuity.²⁸⁸ An annuity granted by way of maintenance by deed which creates a charge on land, has been held to be alienable;²⁸⁹ but in view of the words “in whatsoever manner arising, secured or determined” it is doubtful if this decision is still good law. Thus, in Bibi Haliman v Bibi Umadalunmssa,²⁹⁰ the Patna High Court came to the conclusion that a right of this nature though made a charge on immovable property, could not be transferred. When a settlor creates a trust of his property, and reserves an allowance for himself, the allowance is not maintenance within this clause.²⁹¹

[s 6.20] Clause (e)—Transfer of a Mere Right to Sue

6. What may be transferred.—

Prior to the amending Act 2 of 1900 this clause was—"a mere right to sue/or compensation for a fraud or for harm illegally caused cannot be transferred". The amending Act of 1900 widened the clause by omitting the words other than "a mere right to sue", and at the same time restricted the definition of actionable claim (which formerly embraced all claims which a civil court recognised as affording grounds for relief) to debts and beneficial interests in movable property not in possession. The effect of this amendment was to make clear the distinction between property and a right to sue. As before the amendment, a right to sue for damages for breach of contract would have been an actionable claim although such right was not property and not attachable as such. Again the former definition was inadequate, for it was limited to rights of suit for damages for tort. Such rights are undoubtedly not assignable; but there are other rights to sue arising out of contract which also cannot be assigned.²⁹²

In England, what were called bare or naked rights of litigation were regarded not assignable at common law as they savoured of champerty and maintenance. At equity, however, each such transaction was considered on its merits, and if it was found to be tainted with champerty or maintenance it would be struck down.²⁹³ However, equity would not "emulate the hysteria of the common law in smelling out maintenance where no maintenance was".²⁹⁴ It was held that the basis of section 6(e) is this rule of English Law.²⁹⁵ The Supreme Court, in UOI v Sri Sara Mills Ltd,²⁹⁶ has held that:

Section 6(e) of the Transfer of Property Act states that a mere right to sue cannot be transferred. A bare right of action might be claims to damages for breach of contract or claims to damages for tort. An assignment of a mere right to litigation is bad. An assignment of property is valid even although that property may be incapable of being received without litigation. The reason behind the rule is that a bare right of action for damages is not assignable because, the law will not recognise any transaction which may savour of maintenance or champerty. It is only when there is an interest in the subject-matter that a transaction can be saved from the imputation of maintenance. That interest must exist apart from the assignment and to that extent must be independent of it.

A Full Bench of the Andhra Pradesh High Court²⁹⁷ has, in similar words, indicated the true scope of the clause:

The basis of the exception being that (a) transaction savouring of maintenance or champerty should not be recognised, it follows that a transaction not open to the charge would be upheld. Therefore, soon an exception to the rule of a bare right of action being assignable came to be recognised. This exception provides that a right of action may be assigned if it be incidental or subsidiary to a conveyance of property. From the aforesaid historical background it is clear how section 6(e) of the Transfer of Property Act which provides that a mere right to sue cannot be transferred is associated with the exception of the bare right of action not being assignable. It is equally clear that the provision being aimed against transactions which according to English law would amount to champerty and maintenance, whenever a transaction would be free of such charge, it would be valid.

It should also be remembered that the specific rules of English law against champerty and maintenance have not been adopted in India, and English decisions on what is a naked right of action are not always a safe guide in determining cases arising under this clause.²⁹⁸

A right to sue is personal to the party aggrieved, and there can be no assignment of a right to sue for damages

6. What may be transferred.—

for tort or for breach of contract.²⁹⁹ Where an advocate assigned his right to petitioner to sue the defendant and claim compensation for defamation, it was held that right to sue for damages concerning defamation cannot be transferred by one person in favour of another and a pauper application filed at the instance of this other person would not be maintainable.³⁰⁰

Where there is no right vested in the plaintiff of user, permissive or otherwise, merely confirming the right to institute an action cannot be recognized by Court as it “savours of maintenance of champerty” and section 6(e) of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 bars transfer of a mere right to sue.³⁰¹ Similarly, a mere right to sue is not an interest which vests in the receiver in insolvency,³⁰² or which can be attached. However, where a property is transferred along with a right to recover damages or compensation in respect of that property, the assignment of the right is valid, and is not hit by this clause.³⁰³ Similarly, when a company which is a plaintiff in a pending suit is amalgamated with another company, the right of the amalgamated company to be substituted as plaintiff is not hit by this clause.³⁰⁴ The insurer having paid the loss to the insured is entitled to be subrogated. This would mean that the insurer should get any amount that the insured is entitled from the carrier by way of damages for its negligence.³⁰⁵

A claim for compensation for use and occupation against a tenant holding over has been held to be one sounding in damages and, therefore, not transferable.³⁰⁶ The Supreme Court has held that where the testator executed a will which sought to convey to the legatee “the right to plead the said case” and “the right to all debts and credits as may be decided by the courts”, the testator not only sought to transfer the mere right to represent her case in the pending litigation to the legatee, but had also given the legatee her interest in the subject-matter of the litigation and hence, permissible in law.³⁰⁷

Where a minor transfers the property unauthorisedly sold by his guardian, the minor does not transfer a mere right to sue.³⁰⁸ Considering the question whether a transferee from a minor after he attained majority, can file a suit to set aside the alienation made by the minor’s guardian, the Supreme Court held that the right transferred by the minor after he attained majority was an interest in property which was capable of enforcement at the instance of the purchaser in the same way in which it was at the instance of the ex-minor prior to transfer in view of section 8(3) of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956. Such a provision, intended specially for the protection of the interests of the minor, must be read in harmony and consistency with the general provisions contained in section 6 of the TP Act, 1882.³⁰⁹ In the instant case, on the facts, the transfer of the property made by the guardian was a voidable transaction and it was, therefore, open to the minor to challenge it and seek recovery of possession. Such a right of minor is a right or interest in property which he himself or “any person claiming under him” as defined in section 8(3) of the Guardianship Act may enforce by instituting a suit. “Any person claiming under him” must necessarily include a purchaser.³¹⁰ On the other hand, if a manager of a joint hindu family sells joint family property without necessity, it has been held that a coparcener has still an interest in the property which he can sell without suing to set aside the manager’s sale, and that the coparcener’s sale is a transfer of property with an incidental right of suit.³¹¹

A person may have a right to sue by virtue of ownership of property transferred to him. A right to obtain the reconveyance of property is a right to property and may be transferred.³¹²

[s 6.21] Transfer of Mesne Profits, Rents etc

A right to mesne profits is a mere right to sue which cannot be transferred and so a bare right to sue for mesne profits cannot be assigned, as mesne profits are unliquidated damages, and not a debt.³¹³ A transfer of a mining lease along with an assignment of a contract of indemnity pertaining to the premises demised, is not hit by this clause.³¹⁴ So also an attachment of profits which had not become due was held to be an attachment of a mere right to sue which could not be the subject-matter of sale,³¹⁵ but if a sale of land is accompanied with an assignment of mesne profits already accrued due, the assignment is valid,³¹⁶ but not otherwise.³¹⁷ This distinction was not noticed in a case decided by Madras High Court,³¹⁸ but it was pointed out in clear terms in a later case.³¹⁹ So also a transfer of land with rents already accrued due is valid.³²⁰ The Patna High Court has held that a transferee of land and of mesne profits already accrued due, cannot maintain a suit for the mesne profits as such profits are damages, and not a debt.³²¹ It is submitted that this is erroneous and ignores effect of the word “mere” which limits the prohibition to transferees which purport to transfer nothing, but the right to sue.³²² The chief court of Oudh has held that the transferee of a debt may sue to recover the debt, but not for interest before the assignment claimed by way of damages under section 73 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.³²³

6. What may be transferred.—

[s 6.22] Mere Right to Sue Distinguished from Actionable Claim

An actionable claim is property, and the assignee has a right to sue to enforce the claim.³²⁴ B cannot sue for a debt due to A, nor can A assign to B the right to sue for the debt due to A. But if A assigns the debt to B, then B may sue to recover it as a debt due to himself. A right of contribution is not a mere right to sue, but is an actionable claim which may be assigned.³²⁵ The assignment of differences on cross contracts has been held to be valid as an assignment of a debt or an actionable claim, and not of a mere right to sue.³²⁶ In an actionable claim, a letter of subrogation, not being an assignment of a mere right to sue is valid and enforceable.³²⁷

However, a debt or actionable claim must be distinguished from a right to sue for damages. After a breach of contract for the sale of goods, nothing is left but a right to sue for damages which cannot be transferred.³²⁸ But before breach, the benefit of an executory contract for the sale of goods may generally be transferred, and the buyer has the right to sue for the goods.³²⁹

The right to the profits of a village actually accrued due at the date of the transfer, is a debt which may be assigned.³³⁰ If a certain sum of money is due from a person, that sum of money is recoverable on assignment even though a calculation may be necessary to determine the exact amount,³³¹ and the right to recover a definite amount in the hands of an agent may be assigned.³³² So also a right to a sum of money found due on taking an account is assignable.³³³ As to whether the right to recover such money as may be found due on taking an account from an agent can be assigned, the cases are conflicting. In some cases it has been held that such an assignment is not of a mere right to sue, but of money belonging to the principal which is in the agent's hands, and that it is a debt although the amount remains to be ascertained.³³⁴ In others, it has been held that the assignment is a mere right to sue the agent for failure to pay.³³⁵ The distinction between a transfer of a mere right to sue and a transfer of an actionable claim is well illustrated by the Privy Council case quoted in illustration (1) below.

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A's lessee had covenanted to pay the government assessment or in default to be liable to A in damages. A sold the reversion to B and also assigned to B his right to recover from the lessee certain installments of assessment which he had paid owing to the lessee's default. The High Court held the assignment to be void as an assignment of a mere right to sue. But the Privy Council held that the lessee's failure to pay did not give rise to a claim for damages within the meaning of the clause in the lease, but a claim for reimbursement of the precise sum A had paid to meet the obligation. It was therefore valid as an assignment of an actionable claim.³³⁶

(2) A agrees to sell to D a certain quantity of gunny bags deliverable on a future day. There are no circumstances of a personal character in the contract. Before the due date B assigns his beneficial interest in the contract to C. Thereafter, A commits a breach of the contract. This is not an assignment of a mere right to sue but of an actionable claim and is valid. C is entitled to sue for damages for not delivering the gunny bags.³³⁷

Other instances of transfers valid as transfers of an actionable claim are the transfer of the benefit of a contract to reconvey land;³³⁸ the transfer by a dispossessed mortgagee of his right to recover his mortgage money;³³⁹ a partner's unascertained interest in a dissolved partnership;³⁴⁰ a transfer of a right to recover back the price paid on failure of the vendor to deliver possession;³⁴¹ an assignment to the insurer who has paid a claim for short delivery of goods during carriage of all rights of the consignor against the carrier.³⁴² In a case of High Court of Bombay,³⁴³ a partner A released his share in the partnership to his partners and then assigned his share to B. A alleged that the release to his partners had been obtained by fraud. The court held that what was assigned to B was A's right to sue to set aside the release on the ground of fraud, and that such a right could not be assigned. A right to the income of property payable to a beneficiary under a settlement may be assigned. It is not a mere right of suit even though further inquiry is necessary to determine the amount.³⁴⁴

6. What may be transferred.—

[s 6.23] Transfer of Decree

A decree is neither an actionable claim, nor a mere right of suit. When a claim has merged in a judgment and has been decreed, it is no longer a right to sue, and is assignable as a decree although the original cause of action was not assignable. Thus, a decree for mesne profits may be validly assigned.³⁴⁵ Similarly, an order passed by Railways Claims Tribunal has all the incidents of a civil court and is enforceable.³⁴⁶ Even an eviction decree/order may be an asset and the continuation of existence may lie with the transferee landlord company.

347

[s 6.24] Transfer of a Mere Right to Sue and Public Policy

The assignment of a right to sue is as much opposed to public policy as is gambling in litigation. Gambling in litigation is forbidden as opposed to public policy, and when such agreements are extortionate or oppressive,³⁴⁸ they are not enforced, though compensation for legitimate expenses may properly be awarded.³⁴⁹ In the undenoted case,³⁵⁰ the Privy Council condemned the practice of the official assignee selling land which was in possession of a person who claimed to have purchased from the insolvent, as being in substance if not in form nothing more than the sale of a right to litigate. On the other hand, if the transaction is made bona fide with the object of assisting a claim believed to be just, a present transfer by a person who is not in possession, and who has not yet established title thereto is not invalid.³⁵¹ Both in England,³⁵² and in India,³⁵³ a bona fide transfer of the fruits of an action is not illegal, for such an assignment is an assignment of future property.

[s 6.25] Insurance

It is provided in the Marine Insurance Act, 1963 that this clause is not to affect sections 17, 52, 53 and 79 of that Act. Those sections provide for assignment of marine insurance policies, rights of subrogation, etc.

[s 6.26] Clause (f)—Transfer of Public Office

A public office is analogous to the case in clause (d), for a public office is held for qualities personal to the incumbent. A public servant is defined in the Indian Penal Code 1860 and a public officer in the Code of Civil Procedure 1908, but there is no definition in TP Act, 1882. In Henley v Lyme Corp,³⁵⁴ it was said that "every one who is appointed to discharge a public duty, and receives a compensation in whatever shape, whether from the Crown or otherwise, is constituted a public officer". A lien connotes a civil right of the government servant to hold post to which he is appointed substantively i.e., in accordance with law and cannot be transferred.³⁵⁵

It is opposed to public policy that a public officer should transfer the salary of his office, for the salary is given for the purpose of upholding its dignity and the proper performance of its duties.³⁵⁶ In Grenfell v The Dean and Conors of Windsor,³⁵⁷ MR Lord Langdale said:

There are various cases in which public duties are concerned, in which it may be against public policy that the income arising for the performance of those duties should be assigned; and for this simple reason, because the public is interested, not only in the performance from time to time of the duties, but also in the fit state of preparation of the party having to perform them.

6. What may be transferred.—

The percentage a khot receives for collecting assessment is not salary.³⁵⁸

Cases in India have arisen generally with reference to religious and village offices.³⁵⁹ An assignment of a gratuity payable to the legal representative of a public officer is not prohibited.³⁶⁰ If there is a doubt as to who is the proper incumbent, a compromise of the dispute is not contrary to public policy.³⁶¹ A railway servant cannot agree to the attachment of a part of his salary.³⁶² It has, however, been held that a transfer of the turn of worship and the right to recover offerings is valid, though such office may be held to be a public office.³⁶³ It has been held by the Madras High Court,³⁶⁴ that an agreement by which a person agreed to pay a certain proportion of his income to his brother in consideration for his having been maintained and educated by the latter was not hit by this clause merely because that person subsequently became a government servant; the amount agreed to be paid could be paid from his savings or any other source, and the court held that it did not amount to the transfer of a public office.

[s 6.27] Clause (g)—Transfer of Pensions

A pension is a periodical payment of money by the government.³⁶⁵ It is non-transferable,³⁶⁶ and civil and military pensions are also exempt from attachment under section 60(g) of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908. There are similar provisions in The Pensions Act, 1871. In Secretary of State v Khemchand Jeychand,³⁶⁷ J Melville said that the ordinary and well-known meaning of a pension was “a periodical allowance or stipend granted, not in respect of any right, privilege, perquisite, or office, but on account of past services or particular merits or as compensation to dethroned princes, their families, and dependants”. An allowance granted for other considerations is not within the prohibition and can be assigned.³⁶⁸ A bonus or a reward³⁶⁹ or a grant of land or of land revenue even though in lieu of pension³⁷⁰ or a Jagir³⁷¹ or an allowance made in lieu of a presumed grant of lands is not a pension.³⁷² and is, therefore, transferable though the Lahore High Court held that a pension may take the form of an assignment of land revenue.³⁷³

A pension which the Government of India has by treaty with another sovereign power guaranteed to pay, a political pension in its strictest sense;³⁷⁴ and so is an allowance paid to a political prisoner, although the allowance is collected by the Government of India from a foreign state.³⁷⁵ Other instances of political pensions are allowances granted to the “Candyman pensioners” of Ceylon;³⁷⁶ to the members of the Mysore family;³⁷⁷ and to descendants of the Nawab of the Carnatic,³⁷⁸ but a toda giras hak which is an allowance paid to girassias for police services is not a political pension.³⁷⁹

A pension retains its character as long as it is unpaid and in the hands of government, but as soon as it is paid to the pensioner or his legal representative or agent it can be attached or transferred.³⁸⁰

The prohibition does not apply to private pensions, and pensions granted to railway servants can be attached and sold.³⁸¹

This clause does not apply to pensions payable by a foreign state when remitted to a pensioner in India.³⁸² What is provided by clause (g) of section 6 is that stipends allowed to military, naval, air-force and civil pensioners of government and political pensioners, cannot be transferred. What is made non-transferable is, therefore, stipend paid to civil pensioners, and not to pension of civil pensioners.³⁸³

[s 6.28] Clause (h)

Previous clauses have defined the kinds of property that cannot be transferred, but the scope of this clause is difficult to define. Sub-clause (1) seems to state the self-evident proposition that what cannot be transferred is not transferable. Sub-clause (3) states the equally self-evident proposition that there cannot be a transfer without a transferee. Sub-clause (2) states that:

6. What may be transferred.—

No transfer can be made for an unlawful object or consideration within the meaning of section 23 of the Indian Contract Act.

These words mean that the law does not recognise such a transfer. In other words, when such a transfer is made, the courts will give no assistance either to the transferor to revoke it, or to the transferee to enforce it. It has been held that section 23 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872 does not prohibit enforcement of a valid portion of the transfer of property or debt, if it is severable from the invalid portion. Thus, where a part of the mortgage debt was invalid because it was hit by sub-section (2) of section 54-A of the Companies Act, 1913 read with section 23 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, it was held that the invalid portion of the consideration of the mortgage was severable, and the plaintiff-corporation was not entitled to recover the same.³⁸⁴ If the contract of tenancy is hit by section 23 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, the “lease” resulting from such a contract will be void in view of section 6(h) of the TP Act, 1882.³⁸⁵ Similarly, a promoter can charge cost of open parking space and stilt parking space in proportion to carpet area from each flat purchaser but cannot sell the same at all.³⁸⁶

[s 6.29] Sub-clause (1) of clause (h)—Opposed to the Nature of the Interest

Res communes which belongs to nobody, such as light, air and water of rivers of the sea would be things which, from their very nature, cannot be transferred. Things dedicated to public or religious uses are classed as res extra commercium which cannot be bought or sold.³⁸⁷ Regalia, heirlooms, and debutter property³⁸⁸ are, therefore, inalienable. A transfer of a service inam has been held to be void as opposed to the nature of the interest affected, and also as opposed to public policy.³⁸⁹ Similarly, shebaitship is not property which is capable of being disposed off.³⁹⁰ The test is whether the service-holder has placed himself beyond the reach of his income, whether by a sale or a mortgage or by a lease under which he receives no periodical payments. So a lease of such property yielding an annual rent would be valid, though such a lease for a premium may be void.³⁹¹ An alienation of standing crops on such land is, therefore, valid.³⁹² Most of the cases referred to under cl (d) and (dd) would fall under this sub-clause.

[s 6.30] Sub-clause (2) of clause (h)—Consideration

These are the words used in section 23 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872. They are disjunctive, as “object” means purpose or design. An assignment for a money consideration to defeat the provisions of the Insolvency Act is for a valid consideration, but it is for an unlawful object.³⁹³ On the other hand, a transfer of property to a sex worker for future cohabitation is a transfer for a consideration which is unlawful as it is immoral.³⁹⁴ A distinction must, however, be made between the consideration for a transfer, and its motive; in Nagaratnamba v Ramayya,³⁹⁵ the Supreme Court held that a transfer motivated by the fact that the transferor and transferee had cohabited was without consideration, and was, therefore, a gift. Such a transfer is not hit by section 6(h). The Supreme Court approved *Belo v Parbat*³⁹⁶ in which a mortgage said to be in consideration of past cohabitation was held not to be hit by section 6(h), but observed that strictly speaking, past cohabitation was only the motive. However, it would be otherwise when the transfer was in the form of a gift and illicit cohabitation was the motive, and not an object or consideration.³⁹⁷

[s 6.30.1] Where object or consideration partly lawful and partly unlawful

The TP Act, 1882 contains no provision corresponding to section 24 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, with reference to a transfer which is partly lawful and partly unlawful. A transfer of occupancy land is (except in certain circumstances) void under the Agra Tenancy Act 2 of 1901, but a transfer of lands comprising both zamindari land and inalienable occupancy land has been held to be valid as to the zamindari land.³⁹⁸ The cases decided by Allahabad High Court are not consistent, and are cited in the judgment of J Mukerji in Dip Narain Singh v Nageshar.³⁹⁹

[s 6.30.2] Where possession delivered under an unlawful transfer

Transfers for an unlawful object or consideration are void, but if possession has been given in pursuance of a transfer that is void for this reason, the general rule is in pari delicto potior est condition possidentis, and the transferor cannot recover the property he has professed to transfer.⁴⁰⁰ In such a case, the court would not act, but would say “let the estate lie where it falls”.⁴⁰¹ Where, however, the transferee sues to obtain possession, the court will allow the defendant, i.e., the transferor, to set up the plea of fraud; in such case, considerations of public policy demand that the issue be agitated. If the court finds fraud established, the court will let the property stay where it lies. Adopting any other course would have the effect of acting upon an instrument which is void ab initio.⁴⁰² Section 6(h) does not annul this rule of law, but only lays down that the court will not enforce a transfer which will have the effect of carrying out an unlawful object.⁴⁰³ To this general rule that the court will not interfere, there are three exceptions which are enumerated in section 84 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 which is as follows:

6. What may be transferred.—

Where the owner of property transfers it to another for an illegal purpose and such purpose is not carried into execution, or the transferor is not as guilty as the transferee, or the effect of permitting the transferee to retain the property might be to defeat the provisions of any law, the transferee must hold the property for the benefit of the transferor.

In the first case mentioned in section 84 of Indian Trusts Act, 1882, there is a locus paenitentiae until the fraud is carried out, and the transferor may sue to recover his property.⁴⁰⁴ The second case is where the transferor is not as guilty as the transferee. In the analogous case of contract, section 27(l)(h) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963 allows a contract to be rescinded if the defendant is more to blame than the plaintiff. The third case is where permitting the transferee to retain the property would defeat the provisions of any law, eg a transfer which would have the effect of withdrawing the property from the transferor's creditors, and so defeating the law of insolvency.⁴⁰⁵ An exhaustive examination of the case law on this point by J Tekchand will be found in a case decided by Lahore High Court,⁴⁰⁶ where a possessory mortgage which contravened the provisions of the Punjab Land Alienation Act, 1900, because the mortgagee was a non-agriculturist, was executed benami in favour of an agriculturist. The benamidar sued to recover possession, but his suit was dismissed, and the court held that the mortgagors were entitled to show the real nature of the transaction, and differed from a dictum of Sir Lawrence Jenkins that “a deed cannot be avoided on the ground of fraud by a party to the fraud”.⁴⁰⁷

[s 6.30.3] Where transfer is ultra vires

Contracts which are ultra vires are not necessarily illegal.⁴⁰⁸ A contract which is ultra vires of a company is void not because it is illegal, but because the company has no power to enter into it.⁴⁰⁹ A company may be entitled to recover money lent notwithstanding that the loan was ultra vires. In Turner v Bank of Bombay,⁴¹⁰ the bank was held to be entitled to recover on an equitable mortgage despite the prohibition in section 37 of the Presidency Banks Act, and in Ahmed Sail v Bank of Mysore,⁴¹¹ a bank was held entitled to enforce a mortgage although its memorandum of association prohibited loans on mortgage.

[s 6.31] Section 23 of Contract Act

Under section 23 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, a consideration or object is unlawful if (1) it is forbidden by law; or (2) is of such nature that it defeats the provisions of any law; or (3) is fraudulent; or (4) involves or implies injury to the person or property of another; (5) or the courts regard it as immoral or (6) opposed to public policy. The following are instances of transfers invalid under these heads:

Transfers of granted lands in contravention of the terms of the grant or in breach of any law; rule or regulation covering such grant will clearly be voidable. Legislature may provide that transfer of such granted lands will be void and not merely voidable, eg section 4(1) of Karnataka Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prohibition of Transfer of Certain Lands) Act, 1978.⁴¹²

(1) Forbidden by law

A sub-lease of a farm for the retail sale of opium is void, as the sale of opium without a licence by the Collector

6. What may be transferred.—

is forbidden by the Opium Act.⁴¹³ Transfers of occupancy land have been held to be void as being forbidden by section 9 of the North-Western Provinces Act, 1878,⁴¹⁴ or by section 20 of the Agra Tenancy Act, 1901.⁴¹⁵

Forbidden by law does not refer to prohibition by agreement, or decree of court.⁴¹⁶

(2) Defeat the provisions of any law

The following are such transfers:

A collusive assignment to a relation in expectation of insolvency to defeat the provisions of the Insolvency Act;⁴¹⁷ a lease granted by a mortgage under a mortgage forbidden by the Agra Tenancy Act, as the recognition of the lease would defeat the provisions of the Act;⁴¹⁸ a lease granted with the object of defeating the provisions of the Calcutta Rent Act;⁴¹⁹ a transfer by an insolvent to a creditor on condition of his not opposing his final discharge;⁴²⁰ a sale-deed by an accused person to his pleader by way of indemnity for a bail bond executed by the pleader, for the indemnity renders the bail illusory.⁴²¹

ILLUSTRATION

A owes money to B and executes a hathchitta in favour of B promising to repay the debt. B in expectation of being adjudged insolvent assigns the hathchitta to his relation C in order to prevent the debt vesting in the Official Assignee. B is adjudged insolvent but the adjudication is subsequently annulled. Nevertheless, as the Assignment was made for an illegal purpose it is void and C cannot recover the debt.⁴²²

(3) Fraudulent

A transfer to an agent in consideration of the agent granting a lease of land without the knowledge of his principal would be a fraud on the principal and void.⁴²³

(4) Injury to person or property

A payment to a Hindu father in consideration of his giving his son in adoption is void, for the adoption is liable to be set aside and the son would lose his status in both families.⁴²⁴

(5) Immoral

A lease of a house for its use as a brothel is void as the purpose is immoral;⁴²⁵ but not if the lessor was not aware of the intended use.⁴²⁶ A transfer of immovable property to a woman in consideration of future illicit intercourse is void;⁴²⁷ but if the immoral purpose has been carried out the transfer cannot be set aside.⁴²⁸ On the same principle, a bequest in a will conditional on the continuance of immoral relations is void.⁴²⁹ A distinction must be made between the motive for a transaction and its purpose;⁴³⁰ a transfer motivated by the transferor and transferee having cohabited in the past is without consideration and is, therefore, a gift, and is not illegal.⁴³¹

(6) Public policy

A corrupt payment such as a bribe paid to an official is an instance of a transfer void as opposed to public policy.⁴³² Similarly, it is contrary to public policy to stifle a prosecution.⁴³³ In a case of Calcutta High Court,⁴³⁴ the relations of a prisoner executed a mortgage in favour of the prisoner's employer for a large part of the employer's money which the prisoner had misappropriated, in consideration of the employer agreeing not to object to the prosecution being withdrawn by the commissioner of police. The court held that the mortgage was valid, but it is clear from the judgment that the mortgage would have been invalid, if the consideration had been that the employer should himself withdraw the prosecution. The Lahore High Court has held that the purchase by apulwara of land within his circle would create an interest in conflict with his duty, and would be void as contrary to public policy.⁴³⁵ The judgments of the Allahabad High Court on the same point have been conflicting.⁴³⁶ A transfer of land, granted revenue, free upon a condition that the grantees and their descendants should give blessings to the Maharaja of Nepal, is not contrary to public policy.⁴³⁷ Payments to a father or guardian in consideration of a daughter or ward being given in marriage have been held to be opposed to public policy.⁴³⁸ It is now understood that the doctrine of public policy will not be extended beyond the classes of cases already covered by it. No court can invent a new head of public policy; it has been said in the House of Lords that “public policy is always an unsafe and treacherous ground for legal decision”.

6. What may be transferred.—

[s 6.32] Sub-clause (3)—Disqualified to be a Transferee

A transfer is defined in section 5 as an act by which one person transfers property to another. It is, therefore, necessary that the transferor should be competent to transfer as enacted in section 7; and that the transferee should be competent to be transferee as enacted in this section. Any living person is competent to be a transferee, provided he is not subject to a legal disqualification. Such a disqualification is enacted in section 136 which forbids a judge, legal practitioner or officer connected with a court from purchasing an actionable claim. Similarly, O XXI, rule 73 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908, forbids any officer or person having any duty to perform in connection with any sale from acquiring an interest in the property sold.

[s 6.32.1] Minor as transferee

A minor is in English law disqualified to be a transferee of a legal estate in land, but not of an equitable interest in and or other property;⁴³⁹ but in India although a minor's contract is void,⁴⁴⁰ yet a minor is not disqualified to be a transferee⁴⁴¹ and a minor may be a purchaser,⁴⁴² or a mortgagee.⁴⁴³ However, neither the guardian of a minor, nor his manager is competent to bind the minor or his estate by a contract for the purchase of immovable property.⁴⁴⁴ A lease to a minor is void, as a lease imports a covenant by the minor to pay rent and other reciprocal obligations.⁴⁴⁵ This was so decided before the amending Act 20 of 1929, and the present section 107 makes it clear that a lease to a minor must be void because it must be executed both by the lessor and the lessee.

Executive instructions requiring an official certificate of approval to a transfer do not render a person, who does not hold such certificate, legally disqualified to be a transferee.⁴⁴⁶ A Buddhist monk is not disqualified to be a transferee.⁴⁴⁷

[s 6.33] Clause (i)—Untransferable Right of Occupancy

This clause was added by the amending Act 3 of 1885, and is identical with the proviso to section 108(j) exempting certain holdings from the general rule that leaseholds are transferable. In this section, it is also an exception to the general rule that property is transferable.

Some occupancy rights are inalienable either by custom or by local laws such as the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1878, or the Agra Tenancy Act, 1901.⁴⁴⁸ In Motichand v Ikram Ullah,⁴⁴⁹ the Privy Council said that the policy of the Tenancy Act, was to preserve proprietary rights from being transferred otherwise than by gift or by exchange between co-sharers, and that the Act was not to be defeated by ingenious devices or arrangements such as an arrangement to relinquish. Under that Act and under the Oudh Rent Act, 1886, a proprietor, whose proprietary rights are transferred to an outsider, is entitled to retain possession of his sir or home farm lands at a reduced statutory rent as an exproprietary tenant. In the undernoted case,⁴⁵⁰ a proprietor was held to be entitled to this exproprietary tenancy although the rents of the sir lands had been assigned for payment of a maintenance allowance, and although the effect of the exproprietary tenancy was to reduce the amount of that allowance. The rent paid by the cultivators was received by the exproprietary tenant and the person entitled to the maintenance allowance, received only the reduced statutory rent from the exproprietary tenant. A mortgage of an occupancy holding is void under section 20 of the Agra Tenancy Act, and the mortgagee is not entitled even to sue for a money decree on the basis of a personal covenant in the mortgage.⁴⁵¹

Under the law as it stood before the TP Act, 1882, tenancies whether of homestead lands or of agricultural lands in Bengal were not transferable in the absence of a custom to the contrary, or of an express contract to that effect.⁴⁵² Section 2 of the Bengal Tenancy Act (Bengal Act 8 of 1885) enacts that every permanent tenure is (subject to the provisions of the Act) capable of being transferred. Tenures created after the TP Act, 1882 and before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act are transferable.⁴⁵³ Non-permanent tenures created before the passing of the TP Act, 1882 are not transferable.⁴⁵⁴ By section 26B of the Bengal Tenancy Act as amended by Bengal Act 4 of 1928, the holding of an occupancy ryot in Bengal is, subject to the provisions of the Act, capable of being transferred like other immovable property. The landlord is entitled to evict as a trespasser a mortgagee of a holding that is not transferable, if the tenant has abandoned his holding.⁴⁵⁵ Under section 87 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, a landlord is entitled to re-enter when a ryot abandons his holding. If a tenant of a non-transferable holding executes a usufructuary mortgage of his holding and leaves the village, the holding is abandoned and the landlord is entitled to treat the mortgagee as a trespasser.⁴⁵⁶ If a co-sharer landlord purchases a non-transferable holding and takes possession, the transaction is an abandonment of the holding, and the purchasing landlord is a trespasser as to the shares of the other landlord.⁴⁵⁷ This is also the case when the purchase is made by a stranger who afterwards acquires a share in the landlord's right.⁴⁵⁸ A tenant with a right of occupancy under section 36 of the Oudh Rent Act, 1886, or a statutory tenant under section 5 of the said Act has a non-transferable right of occupancy which he can relinquish by the procedure of section 50 of the Act.

6. What may be transferred.—

Transfers of agricultural lands have been restricted or prohibited by Tenancy and other agrarian legislation.⁴⁵⁹

117 Ins. by Act 20 of 1929, section 6.

118 The words “for compensation for a fraud or for harm illegally caused” omitted by Act 2 of 1900, section 3.

119 Ins. by Act 35 of 1934, section 2 and Sch.

120 Ins. by Act 10 of 1927, section 2 and Sch I.

121 The word “Government” successively subs. by the A.O. 1937 and the A.O. 1950 to read as above.

122 Subs. by Act 2 of 1900, section 3, for “for an illegal purpose”.

123 Added by Act 3 of 1885, section 4.

124 Lal Baijnath v Chandrapal, (1925) ILR 47 All 55 : 83 IC 204 : AIR 1924 All 795 ; Katar Singh v Bishambar Sahai, (1929) 27 All LJ 1151 : 116 IC 869 : AIR 1929 All 578 .

125 Mohammad Ali v Madarisah, 102 IC 626 : AIR 1927 Oudh 297 .

126 Brahmadeo v Harjan, (1898) ILR 25 Cal 778 overruled on a different point in Nund Kishore v Kanee Ram, (1902) ILR 29 Cal 355.

127 Palikandy v Krishnan, (1917) ILR 40 Mad 302, p 307 : 34 IC 381.

128 Pyre Mohan v Narayani, AIR 1982 Raj. 43 .

129 Uttar Pradesh State Electricity Board v Ram Berai Prasad, AIR 1985 All 265 [LNIND 1984 SC 342] , p 270.

130 Rajah Sahib Perhlad v Budhoo, (1869) 12 Moo Ind App 275 : 2 Beng LR 111 (PC).

131 See note “In present or in future,” under section 5.

6. What may be transferred.—

- 132 Durga Matha Building Constructions Co-op Housing Society Ltd v Sada Yellaiah, AIR 2010 AP 231 [LNIND 2010 AP 503] : LNIND 2010 AP 503 .
- 133 Sri Siddaraju v Sri Gangadhara, AIR 2012 Kant. 143 [LNIND 2012 KANT 57] : LNIND 2012 KANT 57 .
- 134 UOI v Iqbal Singh, [1976] 2 SCR 988 [LNIND 1975 SC 505] : AIR 1976 SC 211 [LNIND 1975 SC 505] : (1976) 1 SCC 570 [LNIND 1975 SC 505] .
- 135 DLF Outab Enclave Complex Educational Charitable Trust v State of Haryana, (2003) 5 SCC 622 [LNIND 2003 SC 213] , para 36.
- 136 Holy Mother of Aurobindo Ashram of Pondicherry v State of Meghalaya, AIR 2001 Gau 65 [LNIND 2000 GAU 275] ; See also Sheodhyan Singh v Sanichara Kuer, AIR 1963 SC 1879 [LNIND 1961 SC 233] ; KS Nauji and Co v Jatasankar Dossa, AIR 1961 SC 1474 [LNIND 1961 SC 128] ; Roy and Co v Nani Bala Dey, AIR 1979 Cal 50 [LNIND 1978 CAL 424] ; Subromoniam Namboripad v Otheeram Variayathu, AIR 1950 Trav and Coch 19.
- 137 Phulwanti Kunwar v Janeshar Das, (1924) ILR 46 All 575 : 83 IC 782 : AIR 1924 All 625 (contingent interest); Umes Chunder v Zahoor Fatima, (1891) ILR 18 Cal 164 : 17 IA 201 (contingent interest); Ma Yait v Mahomed Ebrahim, (1927) ILR 5 Rang 145 : 102 IC 690 : AIR 1927 Rang 165 (contingent interest); Shujaul v Muhammad, (1927) 25 All LJ 41 (vested remainder); Lachman v Baldeo, 21 OC 312 : 48 IC 396 (vested interest); See note “future interest” in property, under section 5.
- 138 Karpagathachi v Nagarthinathachi, [1965] 3 SCR 335 [LNIND 1965 SC 76] : AIR 1965 SC 1752 [LNIND 1965 SC 486] : [1965] 2 SCJ 445 .
- 139 Ma Yait Official Assignee, (1930) ILR 8 Rang 8 : 57 IA 10, p13 : 121 IC 225 : AIR 1930 PC 17. See Umes Chunder v Zahoor Fatima, (1894) ILR 18 Cal 164 : 17 IA 201; Kali Prashad v Ram Golavi, 167 IC 839 : AIR 1937 Pat. 280.
- 140 Balwant Singh v Joti Prasad, (1918) ILR 40 All 692 : 47 IC 599; Basanta Kumar v Lala Ram, (1932) ILR 59 Cal 859 : 55 Cal LJ 205 : 138 IC 882 : AIR 1932 Cal 600.
- 141 Re Parsons [1890] 45 ChD 51 , p 55; Re Mudge [1914] 1 ChD 115 .
- 142 Abdool v Goolam, (1906) ILR 30 Bom 304; Samsuddin v Abdul Husein, (1906) ILR 31 Bom 304; Asa Beevi v Karuppan, (1918) ILR 41 Mad 365 : 46 IC 35; Marangami v Nagur Meera, (1913) 24 Mad LJ 258 : 18 IC 185.
- 143 Samsuddin v Abdul Husein, (1906) ILR 31 Bom 165.
- 144 Samir Kumar v Nirmal Chandra, (1975) 79 Cal WN 934.
- 145 Venkatanarayana v Subbammal, (1915) ILR 38 Mad 406, p 410 : 29 IC 298 : 42 IA 125, p 128; Janaki Ammal v Narayanasami, (1916) ILR 39 Mad 634, p 638 : 37 IC 161 : 43 IA 207, p 209; Amrit Narayan v Gaya Singh, (1918) ILR 45 Cal 590 : 44 IC 408 : 45 IA 35; Harnath Kuar v Indar Bahadur, (1923) ILR 45 All 179 : 50 IA 69 : 71 IC 629 : AIR 1922 PC 403 ; Annada v Gour Mohan, (1923) ILR 50 Cal 929 : 50 IA 239 : 74 IC 499 : AIR 1923 PC 189 , affirming (1921) ILR 48 Cal 536 : 65 IC 27 : AIR 1921 Cal 501 ; Jagan Nath v Dibbo, (1909) ILR 31 All 53 : 1 IC 818; Nund Kishore v Kanee Ram, (1902) ILR 29 Cal 355; Manickam v Ramalinga, (1906) ILR 29 Mad 120; Muthuveeru v Vythilinga, (1909) ILR 32 Mad 206 : 3 IC 476; Pindiprolu v Pindiprolu, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 486; Ranchandra v Kallu, (1908) ILR 30 All 497; Bhana v Guman, (1918) ILR 40 All 384 : 44 IC 629; Bhagwati v Jagdam, (1921) 6 Pat LJR 604 : 62 IC 933 : AIR 1921 Pat. 260 ; Gurbhaj v Lachhman, (1925) ILR 6 Lah 87 : 88 IC 550 : AIR 1925 Lah 341 ; Buta Singh v Jhandu, (1921) 3 Lah LJ 211 : 61 IC 375 : AIR 1921 Lah 133 ; Anandibai v Rajaram, (1898) ILR 22 Bom 984; Bhagwan v Mannu, 15 OC 122 : 13 IC 495; Dio Chand v Imam Din, (1917) PLR 135 : 41 IC 347; Mahadeo Prasad v Mathura, (1931) All LJ 295 : 132 IC 321 : AIR 1931 All 589 ; Karasinga v Narsaila, AIR 1938 Bom 121 : (1937) ILR Bom 895 : 39 Bom LR 1287 : 174 IC 116; Shah Nawaz v Ghulam Murtaza, (1941) ILR 24 Lah 161 : 44 PLR 87 : 201 IC 292 : AIR 1942 Lah 138 (where, however, the transaction was upheld on the ground of its being in settlement of disputed claims); Wamanrao v Shantabai, (1953) ILR Nag 413 : AIR 1952 Ngp 317 ; Subbareddi v Govindareddi, AIR 1955 AP 49 [LNIND 1954 AP 13] : (1954) 2 Mad LJ 195 (Andh); Ratnamala v State, AIR 1968 Mys 216 ; Eperi Adinarayana Patra v Eperi Ramohar Patra, AIR 1980 Ori. 95 [LNIND 1980 ORI 67] .
- 146 Amrit Narayan v Goya Singh, (1918) ILR 45 Cal 590 : 45 IA 35 : 44 IC 408.
- 147 Amrit Narayan v Gaya Singh, (1918) ILR 45 Cal 590 : 45 IA 35 : 44 IC 408; Dhoorjetti v Dhoorjetti, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 201; Narasimham v Madhavarayudu, (1903) 13 Mad LJ 323; Marangami v Nagur Meera, (1913) 24 Mad LJ 258 : 18 IC 185; Annada v Gour Mohan, (1921) ILR 48 Cal 536 : 65 IC 27 : AIR 1921 Cal 501 ; Dwarka Prasad v Nasir Ahmed, 78 IC 850 : AIR 1925 Oudh 16 .
- 148 See Harnath Kaur v Indar Bahadur, (1923) ILR 45 All 179 : 50 IA 69 : 71 IC 629 : AIR 1922 PC 403 ; Annada v Gour Mohan, 50 IA 239 : (1923) ILR 50 Cal 929 : 74 IC 499 : AIR 1923 PC 189 .

6. What may be transferred.—

- 149 Shevbagavadiranumal v Mupidathi Ammal, AIR 1942 Mad. 720 [LNIND 1942 MAD 205] .
- 150 Dayaram v Bechardas, (1922) 24 Bom LR 351 [LNIND 1922 BOM 51] : 67 IC 936 : AIR 1922 Bom 437 .
- 151 Chetty v Chetty, (1908) ILR 31 Mad 474; Bhana v Guman Singh, (1918) ILR 40 All 384 : 44 IC 629.
- 152 Bahadur Singh v Mohar Singh, (1901) ILR 24 All 94 : 29 IA 1.
- 153 Kamaraju v Venkatalakshmi, (1925) 49 Mad LJ 296, p 297 : 88 IC 982 : AIR 1925 Mad. 1043 [LNIND 1924 MAD 377] .
- 154 Ibid.
- 155 Jumma Masjid v Kadimaniandra Deviah, [1962] 2 SCR 554 (Supp) : AIR 1962 SC 847 [LNIND 1962 SC 4] : [1962] 2 SCJ 303 : [1962] 2 SCA 422 ; Damodaran Kavirajan v TD Rajappan, AIR 1992 Ker. 397 [LNIND 1991 KER 363] , p 401.
- 156 Official Assignee of Madras v Sampath Naidu, (1933) 65 Mad LJ 588 : 145 IC 965 : AIR 1933 Mad. 795 [LNIND 1933 MAD 166] .
- 157 See also Shyam Narain v Mangal Prasad, (1934) ILR 57 All 474 : (1935) All LJ 13 : 153 IC 163 : AIR 1935 All 244 ; Vithabai Dattu Pattar v Malhar Shankar, (1938) ILR Bom 155 : 40 Bom LR 147 : AIR 1938 Bom 228 ; Alamanaya v Murukuti, (1915) 29 Mad LJ 733 : 29 IC 439; Bismilla v Manulal Chabildas, AIR 1931 Ngp 51 ; Ram Japan v Jagesara Kuer, 182 IC 829 : AIR 1939 Pat. 116 .
- 158 Annada v Gour Mohan, (1923) ILR 50 Cal 929 : 50 IA 239 : 74 IC 499 : AIR 1923 PC 189; Samsuddin v Abdul Husein, (1906) ILR 31 Bom 165; Jagannada v Prasada Rao, (1916) ILR 39 Mad 554 : 29 IC 241; Dhoorjeti v Dhoorjeti, (1906) ILR 30 Mad 201; Thakur Singh v Uttam Kaur, (1929) ILR 10 Lah 613 : 118 IC 449 : AIR 1929 Lah 295; Bindeshwari Singh v Har Narain, (1929) ILR 4 Luck 622 : 127 IC 20 : AIR 1929 Oudh 185; Jotilal Shah v Beni Madho, 188 IC 512 : AIR 1937 Pat. 280; Abdul Kadir v Ahmed Jaraganar, AIR 1956 Mad. 681.
- 159 Annada v Gour Mohan, (1923) ILR 50 Cal 929 : 50 IA 239, p 245 : 74 IC 499 : AIR 1923 PC 189.
- 160 Samsuddin v Abdul Husein, (1906) ILR 31 Bom 165.
- 161 Ramnirunjun v Prayag Singh, (1881) ILR 8 Cal 138; Gitabai v Balaji, (1893) ILR 17 Bom 232; Lalita Prasad v Sarnam Singh, 149 IC 491 : AIR 1933 Pat. 165.
- 162 Nasirul Haq v Faiyaz-ul-Rahman, (1911) ILR 33 All 457 : 9 IC 530; Kami Chandra v Ali Nabi, (1911) ILR 33 All 414 : 9 IC 935; Mohammad Hashmat Ali v Kaniz Fatima, (1915) 13 All LJ 110 : 27 IC 701.
- 163 Chahlu v Parmal, (1910) ILR 41 All 611 : 51 IC 919.
- 164 Annada v Gour Mohan, (1921) ILR 48 Cal 536 : 65 IC 27 : AIR 1921 Cal 501.
- 165 Chahlu v Parmal, (1919) ILR 41 All 611 : 51 IC 919.
- 166 Ramasami v Ramasami, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 255; Bhagwan v Mannu, 15 OC 122 : 13 IC 495.
- 167 Durga Prasad v Narain, (1929) ILR 4 Luck 181 : 115 IC 294 : AIR 1929 Oudh 63.
- 168 Mahadeo Prasad v Mathura, (1931) All LJ 295 : 132 IC 321 : AIR 1931 All 589.
- 169 Bajranji v Manokarnika, (1907) ILR 30 All 1 : 35 IA 1; Ramgouda v Bhausahab, (1927) ILR 52 Bom 1 : 54 IA 396 : 105 IC 708 : AIR 1927 PC 227 ; Basappa v Fakirappa, (1922) ILR 46 Bom 292 : 64 IC 214 : AIR 1922 Bom 102 , explaining

6. What may be transferred.—

Bai Parvati v Dayabhai, (1920) ILR 44 Bom 488 : 58 IC 266; Fateh Singh v Thakur Rukmini, (1923) ILR 45 All 339 : 72 IC 8 : AIR 1923 All 387 .

170 Basappa v Fakirappa, (1922) ILR 46 Bom 292 : 64 IC 214 : AIR 1922 Bom 102.

171 Ramgouda v Bhausahab, (1927) ILR 52 Bom 1 : 54 IA 396, p 402 : 105 IC 708 : AIR 1927 PC 227 .

172 Kanhai Lal v Brij Lal, (1918) ILR 40 All 487 : 45 IA 118 : 47 IC 207; Barati Lal v Salik Ram, (1916) ILR 38 All 107 : 31 IC 919; Bahadur Singh v Ram Bahadur, (1923) ILR 45 All 277 : 71 IC 405 : AIR 1923 All 204 ; Moti Shah v Gandharp Singh, (1926) ILR 48 All 637 : 96 IC 595 : AIR 1926 All 715 ; Raghubir Datt v Narain Datt, (1930) 28 All LJ 1541 : 126 IC 24 : AIR 1930 All 498 ; Jagdam Sahay v Rupnarain, 84 IC 208 : AIR 1924 Pat. 736 ; Basangowda v Irgowdatti, (1923) ILR 47 Bom 594 : 73 IC 196 : AIR 1923 Bom 276 .

173 Hardei v Bhagwan Singh, (1919) 24 Cal WN 105 : 50 IC 812 (PC); Pulliah Chetty v Varadharajula, (1908) ILR 31 Mad 474; Kanti Chandra v Ali Nabi, (1911) ILR 33 All 414 : 9 IC 935; Chahlu v Parmal, (1919) ILR 41 All 611 : 51 IC 919; Muthuraman v Ponnuswamy, (1915) 29 Mad LJ 214 : 29 IC 549; Mangal Singh v Ghasita, 116 IC 312 : AIR 1929 Lah 485 .

174 Shah Nawaz v Ghulam Murtaza, (1942) ILR 24 Lah 161 : 44 Punj LR 87 : 201 IC 292 : AIR 1942 Lah 138 .

175 Bahadur Singh v Ram Bahadur, (1923) ILR 45 All 227 : 71 IC 405 : AIR 1923 All 204.

176 Hardei v Bhagwan Singh, (1919) 24 Cal WN 105 : 50 IC 812.

177 Rani Mewa Kuwar v Rani Hulas Kunwar, 1 IA 157, p 166 : 13 Beng LR 312 (PC); Khunni Lal v Gobind Krishna, (1911) ILR 33 All 356 : 38 IC 87 : 10 IC 477 (PC); Hiran Bibi v Sohan Bibi, (1914) 18 Cal WN 929 : 24 IC 309 (PC); Chandar v Das Debi Das, AIR 1951 All 522 ; Rai Kumar Singh v Abbhai Kumar Singh, AIR 1948 Pat. 362 .

178 Sadhu Madho Das v Pandit Mukand Ram, [1955] 2 SCR 22 [LNIND 1955 SC 25] : AIR 1955 SC 481 [LNIND 1955 SC 25] : [1955] SCJ 417 ; Ram Charan Das v Girjanandini Devi, [1965] 3 SCR 841 [LNIND 1965 SC 141] : AIR 1966 SC 323 [LNIND 1965 SC 141] : [1966] 1 SCJ 61 [LNIND 1965 SC 141] ; Ram Charan v Girjanandini Devi, AIR 1959 All 473 [LNIND 1958 ALL 152] ; Mukteswar Rai v Ramkewal Rai, AIR 1962 Pat. 28 .

179 Pokhar Singh v Dulari Kunwar, (1930) ILR 52 All 716 : 125 IC 1 : AIR 1930 All 687 .

180 Rajmal v Parabai, AIR 1954 Bom 153 [LNIND 1953 BOM 15] .

181 Ram Pratap v Indrajit, AIR 1950 All 320 [LNIND 1949 ALL 223] ; See also note on “Transfer” under section 5.

182 See section 2 above.

183 Samsuddin v Abdul Husein, (1906) ILR 31 Bom 165; Indar Pal Singh v Sarman Singh, AIR 1950 All 833 ; Badhur Singh v Hari Bans Singh, AIR 1953 All 213 [LNIND 1951 ALL 190] ; Baekunthi Singh v Malan Singh, AIR 1950 Pat. 188 ; Asa Beeyi v Karuppan, (1918) ILR 41 Mad 365 : 40 IC 35; Abdul Hossain v Golam Hossain, (1905) ILR 30 Bom 304; Hossain Ali v Naro, (1889) ILR 11 All 456; Muranjani v Karupati, (1912) 24 Mad LJ 258 : 18 IC 185; Rebati Mohan v Ahmed, (1909) 9 Cal LJ 50 : 1 IC 590.

184 Abdul Kafoor v Abdul Razack, (1958) 2 Mad LJ 492 : AIR 1959 Mad. 131 [LNIND 1958 MAD 44] ; and see Sulaiman Sahib v Ibrahim Meeral Bivi, (1953) 1 Mad LJ 388 : AIR 1953 Mad. 161 [LNIND 1952 MAD 220] .

185 See Ramgouda v Bhausahab, (1927) ILR 52 Bom 1 : 54 IA 396 : 105 IC 708 : AIR 1927 PC 227 ; also see the discussion under the note “estoppel of reversioner” above.

186 Shehammal v Hassan Khan Rawther, AIR 2011 SC 3709 .

187 Hameed v Jameela, AIR 2010 Ker. 44 [LNIND 2009 KER 796] : (2009) 4 KLT 531 [LNIND 2009 KER 796] .

188 Jameela Beevi v Bashir, AIR 2012 Ker. 107 [LNIND 2012 KER 347] : (2012) 2 Kar LJ 273 [LNIND 2012 KANT 2] .

189 Gulam Abbas v Hozai Koyyum Ali, [1973] 2 SCR 300 [LNIND 1972 SC 442] : AIR 1973 SC 554 [LNIND 1972 SC 442] : [1974] 2 SCJ 173 [LNIND 1972 SC 442] .

190 Naranjan Singh v Dharm Singh, 129 IC 29 : AIR 1930 Lah 928 ; Govind v Chanan Singh, 147 IC 847 : AIR 1933 Lah 378 .

191 Karim Baksh v Rahiman, 144 IC 408 : AIR 1933 Lah 555 .

192 Cf Pag Dat v Chote Singh, (1906) 9 OC 55.

193 Auryaprabhakara v Gummudu, (1925) 48 Mad LJ 598 : 88 IC 557 : AIR 1925 Mad. 885 [LNIND 1925 MAD 20] .

6. What may be transferred.—

- 194 Shoilojanund v Peary Charon, (1902) ILR 29 Cal 470; Puncha Thakur v Bindeswari, (1916) ILR 43 Cal 28; Paragi v Gauri Shanker, 51 IC 86; Nitya Gopal v Nani Lal, (1920) ILR 47 Cal 990 : 56 IC 19.
- 195 Ahmaduddin v Illahi Baksh, (1912) ILR 34 All 465 : 14 IC 587; Sukh Lal v Bishambhar, (1917) ILR 39 All 196 : 37 IC 661; Balmukund v Tular Ram, (1928) ILR 50 All 394 : 13 IC 242 : AIR 1928 All 21 ; Nand Kumar v Ganesh Das, (1936) ILR 58 All 457 : 159 IC 812 : AIR 1936 All 131 ; Zahana Mal v Parmeshri Das, (1942) Punj LR 403 : 203 IC 348 : AIR 1942 Lah 284 ; Subh Ram v Ram Kishan, (1943) 45 Punj LR 284 : 210 IC 262 : AIR 1943 Lah 265 .
- 196 Badri Nath v Punam, AIR 1973 J&K 7.
- 197 Digambar v Hari, (1927) 29 Bom LR 102 : 100 IC 1008 : AIR 1927 Bom 143 .
- 198 Devi Prasad v Lewis, (1909) ILR 31 All 304 : 1 IC 186.
- 199 Ahmaduddin v Majlis, (1881) ILR 3 All 12.
- 200 Lakshman v Babani, (1932) 34 Bom LR 366 : 139 IC 642 : AIR 1932 Bom 244 .
- 201 Pashupati Venkatapathi v Venkata Subhadry-amma, 47 IC 563.
- 202 Solomon v Official Assignee, 180 IC 399 : AIR 1939 Rang 8 .
- 203 Premasukh v Habib Ullah, (1945) ILR 2 Cal 375 : 49 Cal WN 371 : AIR 1945 Cal 355 .
- 204 Radya v Kaivraya, AIR 1951 Bom 120 .
- 205 Re Davis & Co, ex-parte Rawlings, [\[1889\] 22 QBD 193](#) .
- 206 Chundee Churn v Shib Chunder, (1888) ILR 5 Cal 945; Sundrabai v Jayawant, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 397; also see Indian Easements Act, 1882, section 4, illustration (d).
- 207 Sital Chandra v Delanney, (1916) 20 Cal WN 1158 : 34 IC 450.
- 208 Municipal Board of Benares v Behari Lal, (1926) ILR 48 All 560, p 564 : 95 IC 1030 : AIR 1926 All 538 ; Rangeley Midland Rly Co [1868] 3 Ch App 306.
- 209 Municipal Board of Cawnpore v Lallu, (1898) ILR 20 All 200.
- 210 Matilda Fernandez v Pinto, 15 IC 278.
- 211 Ashraf v Jayannath, (1884) ILR 6 All 497.
- 212 Shah Mohammad v Kashi, (1885) ILR 7 All 199.
- 213 Mohidin v Shivlingappa, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 666; Ramrao v Rustumkhan, (1902) ILR 26 Bom 198; Ram Singh v Ali Baksh, 95 IC 458.
- 214 Kuar Sen v Mammon, (1895) ILR 17 All 87.
- 215 Ramdas v Damodhar, 72 IC 218 : AIR 1923 Pat. 346 ; Channu Datta v Swami Gyannandji, AIR 1926 All 130 .
- 216 See Indian Easements Act, 1882, section 18 and illustrations.
- 217 Bhagwan Sahai v Narsingh Sahai, (1909) ILR 31 All 612 : 3 IC 615; Konadayya v Veeranna, 92 IC 672 : AIR 1926 Mad. 543 ; Satyanarayana v Lakshmayya, (1929) 57 Mad LJ 46 : 115 IC 146 : AIR 1929 Mad. 79 .
- 218 Sital Chandra v Delanney, (1916) 20 Cal WN 1158 : 34 IC 450.
- 219 Kristodhone v Nandarani, (1908) ILR 35 Cal 889.
- 220 Mahomed Shabbar v Harnath, 105 IC 196 : AIR 1927 Oudh 436 ; Lachhmeshwar v Moti Rani, AIR 1939 PC 157 : (1939) All LJ 473 : 41 Bom LR 1068 : 43 Cal WN 729 : 181 IC 359.
- 221 Juggernath v Kishen, (1867) 7 WR 266.
- 222 Rajah Vurmah v Ravi Vurmah, (1878) ILR 1 Mad 235 : 4 IC 76.
- 223 Narasimma v Anantha, (1881) ILR 4 Mad 391; Kuppa v Dorasami, (1883) ILR 6 Mad 76; Keyake v Yadatil, (1858) 3 Mad HC 380; Subbarayudu v Kotayya, (1892) ILR 15 Mad 359; Durga Bibi v Chanchal, (1882) ILR 4 All 81; Ram Varma v Roman Nayar, (1882) ILR 5 Mad 89; Rup Narain v Junko, (1879) 3 Cal LR 112 ; Srimati Mallika v Ratanmani, (1897) 1 Cal WN 493; Gnanasambunda v Velu, (1900) ILR 23 Mad 271 : 27 IA 69; Rajaram v Ganesh, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 131.
- 224 Juggernath v Kishen, (1867) 7 WR 266 ; Dubo Misser v Srinibas, (1870) 14 WR 409 ; Gobinda v Debendra, (1907) 12 Cal WN 98; Nagendra v Rabindra, (1926) ILR 53 Cal 132 : 94 IC 212 : AIR 1926 Cal 490 .

6. What may be transferred.—

- 225 Prayad Das v Mohunth Kriparam, (1908) 8 Cal LJ 499 .
- 226 Wahid Ali v Ashraff, (1881) ILR 8 Cal 732; Sarkum v Rahaman, (1897) ILR 24 Cal 83; Munshi Shahed Baksh v Golam Nabi, (1918) 22 Cal WN 996 : 47 IC 117; Haji Ali Muhammad v Anjunman-i-Islamia, (1931) ILR 12 Lah 590 : 135 IC 56 : AIR 1931 Lah 379 .
- 227 Manjunath v Shankar, (1914) ILR 39 Bom 26 : 28 IC 130; Govind v Ramkrishna, (1888) ILR 12 Bom 366; Ganesh v Shankar, (1886) ILR 10 Bom 395.
- 228 Waman v Balaji, (1890) ILR 14 Bom 167.
- 229 Durga Prasad v Shambhu, (1919) ILR 41 All 656 : 51 IC 539; Jhummun v Dinoonath, (1870) 16 WR 171 , contra, Sukh Lal v Bishambar, (1917) ILR 39 All 196 : 37 IC 661.
- 230 Dhandu v Girdhari Lal, (1961) All LJ 565 : AIR 1961 All 518 [LNIND 1960 ALL 172] .
- 231 Sriman Prabahan Mitra v Madhuri Mitra, AIR 1985 Cal 368 [LNIND 1985 CAL 106] , p 378.
- 232 Dani Ram v Jamuna Das, 2010(1) All LJ 706; AIR 2010 (NOC) 524 All.
- 233 Puncha Thakur v Bindeshri, (1916) ILR 43 Cal 28 : 28 IC 675; Nirya Gopal v Nani Lal, (1920) ILR 47 Cal 990 : 56 IC 19.
- 234 Mahamaya Debi v Haridas Haldar, (1915) ILR 42 Cal 455 : 27 IC 400; Jagdeo Singh v Ram Saran Pande, (1927) ILR 6 Pat 245 : 97 IC 332 : AIR 1927 Pat. 7 ; Bharati Majumder v Biswanath Mukherjee, AIR 1985 Cal 42 (NOC).
- 235 Dani Ram v Jamuna Das, AIR 2010 (NOC) 524 All : 2010 1 All WC 22 All : 2009 (77) ALR 708 .
- 236 Gopinath v Jandhu, (1907) 4 All LJ 712.
- 237 Zobair Ahmad v Jainandan, (1960) ILR 39 Pat 1 : AIR 1960 Pat. 147 .
- 238 52 IA 145 : (1925) ILR 47 All 250 : 86 IC 579 : AIR 1925 PC 63 .
- 239 Sheikh Mohammad Zobair v Bibi Sahidan, (1941) ILR 20 Pat 798 : AIR 1942 Pat. 210 ; Ram Prasad Singh v Bibi Khodaijatul, 213 IC 306 : AIR 1944 Pat. 163 ; Abdul Samad v Alimuddin, (1943) ILR 22 Pat 750 : AIR 1944 Pat. 174 .
- 240 Abdul Rahman v Wali Mahommad, AIR 1923 Pat. 267 ; Bibi Makbulunnissa v Bibi Umatunnissa, AIR 1923 Pat. 33 ; Beeju Bee v Moorthuja Sahib, (1920) ILR 43 Mad 214 : AIR 1920 Mad. 666 .
- 241 K Balakrishnan v K Kamalam, (2004) 1 SCC 581 [LNIND 2003 SC 1104] : AIR 2004 SC 1257 [LNIND 2003 SC 1104] .
- 242 MP State Mining Corp Ltd v Sanjeev Bhaskar, 2013 (12) SCC 326 [LNIND 2013 SC 623] : 2013 (3) CGLJ 525 : 2013 (8) Scale 706 [LNIND 2013 SC 623] .
- 243 Sitarambhat v Sitaram, (1870) 6 Bom HCR 250; Mancharam v Pranshankar, (1882) ILR 6 Bom 298; Rangasami v Ranga, (1893) ILR 16 Mad 146; Baroda Charan Dutt v Hemlata, (1908) 13 Cal WN 242 : 3 IC 560; Khetter Chunder v Hari Das, (1890) ILR 17 Cal 557; Mahamaya Debi v Haridas, (1915) ILR 42 Cal 455 : 27 IC 400; Raghunath v Purnanand, (1923) ILR 47 Bom 529 : 72 IC 312 : AIR 1923 Bom 358 .
- 244 Panchanan v Surendra Nath, (1930) 50 Cal LJ 382 : 126 IC 36 : AIR 1930 Cal 180 .
- 245 Mancharam v Pranshankar, (1882) ILR 6 Bom 298; Narayana v Ranga, (1891) ILR 15 Mad 183.
- 246 Rajah Vurmah v Ravi Vwmah, (1878) ILR 1 Mad 235 : 4 IA 76; see Ramaswamy v Venkata, (1869) 9 Moo Ind App 348 .
- 247 Hurlal Singh v Jorawun Singh, (1837) 6 SDA 169 (Cal); Bally Dobey v Genei Deo, (1882) ILR 9 Cal 388; Narain v Badi Roy, (1902) ILR 29 Cal 227; Narayan Singh v Niranjana Chakravarti, (1924) ILR 3 Pat 183 : 51 IA 37 : 79 IC 825 : AIR 1924 PC 5 ; Purna Chandra v Soudamini, (1918) 28 Cal LJ 283 : 48 IC 335.
- 248 Nilmoni Singh v Bakranath Singh, (1883) ILR 9 Cal 187 : 9 IA 104; Joykishen Mookerjee v Collector of East Burdwan, (1866) 10 Moo Ind App 16 : 1 WR 26 (PC); Udoy Kumari v Hari Ram, (1901) ILR 28 Cal 483, p 485.
- 249 Appayasami Naicker v Midnapore Zamindari Co, 48 IA 100 : 60 IC 953 : AIR 1922 PC 154 .
- 250 Ram Kumar v Ram Newaj, (1904) ILR 31 Cal 1021.
- 251 Jagjivandas v Imad Ali, (1882) ILR 6 Bom 211; Radhabai v Anantrav, (1885) ILR 9 Bom 198.
- 252 Narayan v Kalgaunda, (1890) ILR 14 Bom 404; Jayram v Narayan, (1903) 5 Bom LR 652 (mortgage of khoti land).
- 253 Papaya v Ramana, (1883) ILR 7 Mad 85; Venkatarayadu v Venkataramayya, (1892) ILR 15 Mad 284; Seshaiya v Gaouramma, (1870) 4 Mad HC 336.
- 254 Anjaneyalu v Shri Venugopala, (1922) ILR 45 Mad 620 : 70 IC 466 : AIR 1922 Mad. 197 [LNIND 1922 MAD 12] .
- 255 Savitri v Holebasappa, (1932) 34 Bom LR 198 : 137 IC 600 : AIR 1932 Bom 257 .
- 256 Pt Harikishan v Ratan Singh, 151 IC 562 : AIR 1934 All 973 .

6. What may be transferred.—

- 257 Radha Bai v Anantrav, (1885) ILR 9 Bom 198, p 213.
- 258 Bhagwal Baksh Ray v Sheo Prosad Sahu, (1913) 18 Cal WN 297, p 309 : 21 IC 481.
- 259 Bansidhar Sharaff v Thakur Ashutosh Deo, (1925) ILR 4 Pat 272 : 86 IC 163 : AIR 1925 Pat. 346 .
- 260 Appayasami Naicker v Midnapore Zamindari Co, (1921) ILR 44 Mad 575 : 48 IA 100 : 60 IC 953 : AIR 1922 PC 154 .
- 261 Forbes v Meer Mahomed Tuquee, (1870) 13 Moo Ind App 438 : 14 WR 28 (PC); Lakhamgouda v Baswantrao, (1931) 33 Bom LR 974 : 132 IC 736 : AIR 1931 PC 157.
- 262 Narayan Singh v Niranjana Chakravarti, (1923) ILR 3 Pat 183 : 51 IA 37 : 79 IC 825 : AIR 1924 PC 5; Rani Senabati Kumar v Raja Katyanand, (1935) ILR 14 Pat 70 : 157 IC 433 : AIR 1935 Pat. 306.
- 263 Jasudin v Sakharam, (1912) ILR 36 Bom 139, p 143 : 12 IC 693.
- 264 Ibid; Ram Sahai v Gaya, (1885) ILR 7 All 107, p 111.
- 265 Rajjo v Lalman, (1883) ILR 5 All 180, p 183.
- 266 Bela Bibi v Akbar Ali, (1902) ILR 24 All 119; Ram Sahai v Gaya, (1885) ILR 7 All 107.
- 267 Zamir v Daulat Ram, (1883) ILR 5 All 110, p 113.
- 268 Ibrahim v Muni Mir, (1870) 6 Mad HC 26.
- 269 Fakir v Emmambuksh, 1863 Beng LR 35 (Supp); Juda Lal v Janki Koer, (1908) ILR 35 Cal 575, on app (1912) ILR 39 Cal 915 : 39 IA 101.
- 270 Uthandi v Raghavachari, (1906) ILR 29 Mad 307.
- 271 Radhakishan L Toshniwal v Shridhar, AIR 1960 SC 1368 [LNIND 1960 SC 405] ; Rabia Khatoon v State of Bihar, AIR 2003 Pat. 109 .
- 272 Jaffar Meher Ali v Budge-Budge Jute Mills Co, (1900) ILR 33 Cal 702, on app (1907) ILR 34 Cal 289; Nathu v Hansraj, (1907) 9 Bom LR 114 [LNIND 1906 BOM 143] .
- 273 Toomey v Rama Sahai, (1890) ILR 17 Cal 115, p 121.
- 274 Namasivaya Gurukul v Kadir Ammal, (1894) ILR 17 Mad 168; also see "Assignment of contracts" under section 130.
- 275 Ranee Annapurni v Swaminatha, (1911) ILR 34 Mad 7 : 6 IC 439; Thimmanayanim v Venkatappa, 109 IC 872 : AIR 1928 Mad. 713 [LNIND 1927 MAD 210] .
- 276 Asad Ali v Haidar Ali, (1910) ILR 38 Cal 13 : 6 IC 826; Dhanapala Chettiar v Krishna Chettiar, (1955) ILR Mad 1122 : (1955) 1 Mad LJ 72 : AIR 1955 Mad. 165 [LNIND 1954 MAD 163] .
- 277 Haridas v Baroda Kishore, (1900) ILR 27 Cal 38; Asad Ali v Haidar Ali, (1910) ILR 38 Cal 13; Palikandy v Krishnan, (1917) ILR 40 Mad 302 : 34 IC 381.
- 278 Subraya v Krishna, (1923) ILR 46 Mad 659 : 73 IC 584 : AIR 1924 Mad. 22 [LNIND 1923 MAD 76] ; Altaf Begam v Brij Narain, (1929) ILR 51 All 612 : 116 IC 855 : AIR 1929 All 281 ; Tara Sundari v Saroda Charan, (1910) 12 Cal LJ 146 : 7 IC 80; Balkrishna v Paij Singh, (1930) ILR 52 All 705 : 125 IC 468 : AIR 1930 All 593 .
- 279 Narbadabai v Mahadeo, (1880) ILR 5 Bom 99, p 104; Nanak Chand v Kishan Chand, (1900) PLR 209 ; Tara Sundari v Saroda Charan, (1910) 12 Cal LJ 146 : 7 IC 80; Palikandi v Krishnan, (1917) ILR 40 Mad 302; Ashfaq Mahomed Khan v Nazir Bana, (1942) Oudh WN 359 : 20 IC 100 : AIR 1942 Oudh 410 .
- 280 Kasheeshure v Greesh Chunder, (1866) 6 WR 64 (Misc).
- 281 Diwali v Apaji, (1886) ILR 10 Bom 342; see also Bansidhar v Gulab Kaur, (1894) ILR 16 All 443 and Gulab Kuar v Bansidhar, (1893) ILR 15 All 371, on app (1894) ILR 16 All 443 (where the question was left open).
- 282 Dhup Nath v Ram Charitra, (1932) ILR 54 All 366 : 143 IC 65 : AIR 1932 All 662 ; Kamala Chunder v Sushila Bala Dassee, AIR 1938 Cal 405 ; Krishnayya v Raghavulu, (1956) ILR AP 510 : AIR 1958 AP 658 .
- 283 Rajindra v Sundara Bibi, (1925) ILR 47 All 385 : 52 IA 262 : 87 IC 295 : AIR 1925 PC 176 , on app from Sundar Bibi v Raj Indar, (1921) ILR 43 All 617 : 63 IC 181 : AIR 1921 All 120 .
- 284 Vaidyanatha v Eggia, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 279.
- 285 Durgadut v Rameshwar, (1909) ILR 36 Cal 943 : 36 IA 176 : 4 IC 2; Rameswar v Jibender, (1902) ILR 32 Cal 683; Rama Chandra v Mudeshwar, (1903) ILR 33 Cal 1158, p 1161.
- 286 Khemchand v Hemandas, 167 IC 40 : AIR 1937 Sau 306 .

6. What may be transferred.—

- 287 Gopal Lal Seal v FJ Marsden, (1905) 10 Cal WN 1102; Shariff Ahmed v H Hunter, 167 IC 52 : AIR 1937 Oudh 420 .
- 288 Annirudha v Official Receiver, AIR 1942 Cal 241 : (1942) ILR 1 Cal 427 : 74 Cal LJ 528 : 201 IC 568.
- 289 Rajat Kamini v Satyaniranjan, (1919) 23 Cal WN 824 : 53 IC 587.
- 290 Bibi Haliman v Bibi Umadalunmssa, 181 IC 39 : AIR 1939 Pat. 506 .
- 291 Raja of Rammad v Subramaniam Chettiar, (1928) ILR 52 Mad 465 : 116 IC 827 : AIR 1928 Mad. 201 .
- 292 Abu Muhammad v SC Chunder, (1909) ILR 36 Cal 345 : 1 IC 827; Khetra Mohan Das v Biswa Nath Bora, (1924) ILR 51 Cal 972 : 82 IC 411 : AIR 1924 Cal 1047 .
- 293 Prosser v Edmonds, [1835] 1 Y & C 481; Hill v Boyle, [\[1867\] 4 Eq 260](#) . Cases bearing on this extension of the doctrine of champerty are cited in the judgment of J Mc Cardie in County Hotel and Wine Co v London and North Western Railway, [\[1918\] 2 KB 251](#) , p 258.
- 294 Hanbury, Modern Equity, 8th Edn, p 73.
- 295 Jai Narayan v Kishun Dutta, (1924) ILR 3 Pat 575 : 78 IC 105 : AIR 1924 Pat. 551 .
- 296 AIR 1973 SC 281 [\[LNIND 1972 SC 469\]](#) , para 14; See also McDowell and Co Ltd v District Registrar Vishakhapatnam, AIR 2000 AP 374 [\[LNIND 2000 AP 210\]](#) .
- 297 Gangaraju v Gopala, AIR 1957 AP 190 , p 193.
- 298 See note (24) below.
- 299 Abu Mahomed v SC Chunder, (1909) ILR 36 Cal 345 : 1 IC 827; Hirachand v Nemchand, (1923) ILR 47 Bom 719 : 73 IC 465 : AIR 1923 Bom 403 ; Varahaswami v Ramchandra, (1915) ILR 38 Mad 138 : 18 IC 520; Jewan Ram v Ratanchand, (1922) 26 Cal WN 285 : 70 IC 498 : AIR 1921 Cal 795 ; Nazir Hassan v Matinuzzaman, (1925) 11 Oudh LJ 672 : AIR 1925 Cal 299 ; Punjaram v Harisao, 153 IC 447 : AIR 1934 Ngp 268 ; Mohan Lal v Mati Lal, 157 IC 587 : AIR 1935 Ngp 135 ; Manmohan v Bidhu Bhusan, (1939) 69 Cal LJ 188 : 43 Cal WN 295 : 185 IC 5 : AIR 1939 Cal 460 ; Rajamanickam Chetty v Abdul Hakim, (1941) 1 Mad LJ 22 : 53 Mad LW 64 : (1941) Mad WN 37 : AIR 1941 Mad. 389 [\[LNIND 1940 MAD 365\]](#) .
- 300 Sundar v Ramdass, AIR 2013 Mad. 133 [\[LNIND 2012 BMM 1074\]](#) : 2013 1 Mad LJ 399 : LNIND 2012 BMM 1074 .
- 301 Ansul Industries v Vineet Kumar, (2010) 118 DRJ 400 (DB) : (2010) 171 DLT 147 (DB).
- 302 Miller v Budh Singh, (1891) ILR 18 Cal 43; Chandmall v Ranee Soondery, (1895) ILR 22 Cal 259; Liladhar v Nago, 141 IC 479 : AIR 1933 Ngp 6 ; also see Code of Civil Procedure 1908, section 60(1)(c).
- 303 Murlidhar Agarwalla v Rupendra Methere, AIR 1953 Cal 321 [\[LNIND 1951 CAL 162\]](#) : 56 Cal WN 260; Radha Govinda v K Dharmaband Colliery Co, AIR 1963 Pat. 160 ; Bharat Prasad v Paras Singh, AIR 1964 All 15 [\[LNIND 1963 ALL 84\]](#) .
- 304 New Central Jute Mills Co Ltd v Rivers Steam Navigation Co, AIR 1959 Cal 352 [\[LNIND 1959 CAL 33\]](#) ; Merchants Bank Ltd v Dharmasambharthani, (1966) ILR 1 Mad 182 : (1965) 2 Mad LJ 443 : AIR 1966 Mad. 26 [\[LNIND 1965 MAD 46\]](#) .
- 305 Hindustan Corp (Hyd) Pvt Ltd v United India Gen Insu Co Ltd, AIR 1997 AP 347 [\[LNIND 1996 AP 422\]](#) .
- 306 Govindaswami v Ramasami, (1916) 30 Mad LJ 492 : 34 IC 6; Bhupati Bhusan Dey v Hafijuddin Ahmed, AIR 1984 Gau 63 (NOC).
- 307 Kedar Lal v Babu Lal Vyas, (2003) 9 SCC 624 .
- 308 Palanappa v Malappa, AIR 1951 Mad. 817 : (1951) 1 Mad LJ 265 approved by the Supreme Court in Amrithan Kudumbah v Sarnam Kudumban, (1991) 3 SCC 20 [\[LNIND 1991 SC 214\]](#) , p 26; AIR 1991 SC 1256 [\[LNIND 1991 SC 214\]](#) , p 1260.
- 309 Amrithan Kudumbah v Sarnam Kudumban, (1991) 3 SCC 20 [\[LNIND 1991 SC 214\]](#) , p 26 : AIR 1991 SC 1256 [\[LNIND 1991 SC 214\]](#) , p 1260. See JK Cotton Spinning and Weaving Mills Co Ltd v State of Uttar Pradesh, [1961] 3 SCR 185 , p 194 : AIR 1961 SC 1170 [\[LNIND 1960 SC 337\]](#) , p 1174; Ashoka Marketing Ltd v Punjab National Bank, (1990) 4 SCC 406 [\[LNIND 1990 SC 407\]](#) : (1990) 4 SCC 406 [\[LNIND 1990 SC 407\]](#) .
- 310 Amirtham Kudumbah v Sarnam Kudumban, (1991) 44 DLT 357 [\[LNIND 1991 SC 214\]](#) .
- 311 Hanmantappa v Dundappa, (1934) 36 Bom LR 474 : 151 IC 1043 : AIR 1934 Rang 234 .
- 312 Andalammal v Alamelu Ammal, AIR 1962 Mad. 378 [\[LNIND 1961 MAD 129\]](#) .
- 313 Durga Chunder v Koilas Chunder, (1897) 2 Cal WN 43; Shyam Chand Koondoo v The Land Mortgage Bank of India, (1882) ILR 9 Cal 695; Chandrasekaralingam v Naghabhushanam, (1927) 53 Mad LJ 342 : 104 IC 409 : AIR 1927 Mad. 817 .
- 314 Radha Govinda v K Dharmaband Colliery Co, AIR 1963 Pat. 160 .

6. What may be transferred.—

- 315 Jagannath v Jamnaballabh, (1940) ILR Nag 37 : 181 IC 533 : AIR 1939 Ngp 97 .
- 316 Monmatha Nath v Matilal Mitra, (1929) 33 Cal WN 614 : 122 IC 220 : AIR 1929 Cal 719 ; Ganga Din v Piyare, 113 IC 767 : AIR 1929 All 63 ; Shankarappa v Khattombi, (1932) ILR 56 Bom 403 : 34 Bom LR 991 : 141 IC 488 : AIR 1932 Bom 478 ; Susai Lazar Villanarayya v Ramaswami Naidu, 145 IC 228 : AIR 1933 Mad. 710 [LNIND 1933 MAD 144] ; Gangaraju v Gopala, (1957) ILR AP 215 : AIR 1957 AP 190 ; Ucchab v Brundaban, AIR 1969 Ori. 142 [LNIND 1968 ORI 102] .
- 317 Thoma v Govind Achu, AIR 1951 Tr and Coch 180.
- 318 Seetamma v Venkatramanayya, (1915) ILR 38 Mad 308 : 21 IC 387.
- 319 Vendatarama v Ramasami, (1920) ILR 44 Mad 539 : 62 IC 305 : AIR 1921 Mad. 56 [LNIND 1920 MAD 129] .
- 320 Suryanarayana v Venkayya, (1922) Mad WN 822 : 70 IC 38 : AIR 1923 Mad. 177 .
- 321 Jai Narayan v Kishun Dutta, (1924) ILR 3 Pat 575 : 78 IC 705 : AIR 1924 Mad. 551 .
- 322 Jagannath Marwari v Kalidas, (1929) ILR 8 Pat 776, p 781 : 120 IC 626 : AIR 1929 Pat. 245 .
- 323 Indar v Raghubir Singh, (1930) ILR 5 Luck 547 : 125 IC 174 : AIR 1930 Oudh 88 ; Bajinath v Parmeshwari Dayal, (1934) ILR 10 Luck 26 : 149 IC 529 : AIR 1934 Oudh 240 ; also see section 8 below.
- 324 Rudra Perkash v Krishna, (1887) ILR 14 Cal 241.
- 325 Ramaswami Aiyar v Deivasigamani, (1922) 43 Mad LJ 129 : 68 IC 957 : AIR 1922 Mad. 397 [LNIND 1922 MAD 54] .
- 326 Nagappa v Badridas, (1930) 32 Bom LR 894 : 127 IC 410 : AIR 1930 Bom 409 .
- 327 Economic Transport Organization, Delhi v Charan Spinning Mills Pvt Ltd, AIR 2010 SC (Supp) 720 : 2010 (2) Scale 427 [LNIND 2010 SC 183] : (2010) 4 SCC 114 [LNIND 2010 SC 183] .
- 328 Janglimal v Pioneer Flour Mills, (1914) PR 106 : 27 IC 115; Yadavendra v Srinivasa, (1924) ILR 47 Mad 698 : 80 IC 5 : AIR 1925 Mad. 62 [LNIND 1924 MAD 48] ; Gopala v Ramaswami, (1911) 21 Mad LJ 153 : 6 IC 290; Shahrukh v Sheo Prasad, 41 IC 435; Nakhela v Kokaya, 69 IC 238 : AIR 1923 Ngp 67 ; Gerimal v Raghunath, 66 IC 873 : AIR 1921 Sau 59 ; Mati Lal v Radhe Lal, (1933) All LJ 1009 : (1933) ILR 55 All 814 : 147 IC 529 : AIR 1933 All 642 ; Powri v Shiva Paika, 156 IC 487 : AIR 1935 Ngp 2 .
- 329 Jaffer Meher Ali v Budge-Budge Jute Mills Co, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 702, on app (1907) ILR 34 Cal 289; Nathu v Hansraj, (1907) 9 Bom LR 114 [LNIND 1906 BOM 143] .
- 330 Bharat Singh v Bindacharan, 47 IC 634; Girdhari v Ahmad Mirza Beg, 60 IC 690; Ram Charan Das v Nazeeran, (1935) All LJ 348 : 158 IC 4 : AIR 1935 All 461 .
- 331 Vatakkathala Thottungal Chakkui Son Mathu v Achu, (1934) ILR 57 Mad 1074 : 67 Mad LJ 158 : 151 IC 353 : AIR 1934 Mad. 461 [LNIND 1934 MAD 21] .
- 332 Venkata Gurunadha v Kesava Ramiah, (1926) 50 Mad LJ 54 : 92 IC 973 : AIR 1926 Mad. 417 ; Ramaswami v Abdul Kuddus, 97 IC 548 : AIR 1926 Mad. 978 [LNIND 1926 MAD 138] (right to recover licensee fees).
- 333 Khwaja Ajyodin v Jaywant Madhav, (1953) ILR Nag 764 : AIR 1953 Ngp 335 .
- 334 Ramiah v Rukmani, (1913) 24 Mad LJ 313 : 18 IC 138; Madho Das v Ramji Patak, (1894) ILR 16 All 286; Rajeswar Saha v Sheikh Yadali, (1933) 57 Cal LJ 46 : 145 IC 123 : AIR 1933 Cal 461 ; Mathu v Achu, (1934) ILR 47 Mad 1074 : (1934) 67 Mad LJ 158 : 151 IC 353 : AIR 1934 Mad. 461 [LNIND 1934 MAD 21] ; Shaikh Mahomed v Bathunumal Beair, AIR 1949 Mad. 458 .
- 335 Khetra Mohan v Biswa Nath Bora, (1924) ILR 51 Cal 972 : 82 IC 411 : AIR 1924 Cal 1047 ; Kalusa v Madhorao, 96 IC 339 : AIR 1926 Ngp 357 ; Ghisulal v Gambhirmal, (1938) ILR 62 Cal 510 : 39 Cal WN 646 : 164 IC 111 : AIR 1938 Cal 377 .
- 336 Manmatha Nath v Hedait Ali, (1932) ILR 11 Pat 266 : 59 IA 41 : 135 IC 635 : AIR 1932 PC 32 : 36 Cal WN 281 : 55 Cal LJ 152 : 62 Mad LJ 287 : 1932 All LJ 341 : 34 Bom LR 489.
- 337 Jaffer Meher Ali v Budge Budge Jute Mills, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 702; KB Hirachand v Nemchand, (1923) ILR 47 Bom 719 : 73 IC 465 : AIR 1923 Bom 403 , where the transfer was after breach of the contract.
- 338 Sakalaguna Nayudu v Chinna Munnuswami, (1928) ILR 51 Mad 533 : 55 IA 243 : 109 IC 765 : AIR 1928 PC 174 ; Narasingerji v Panuganti, (1921) Mad WN 519 : AIR 1921 Ngp 498 : on app (1924) ILR 47 Mad 729 : 51 IA 305 : 82 IC 993 : AIR 1924 PC 226 ; Akhtar Beg v Haq Newaz, 78 IC 87 : AIR 1924 Lah 709 ; Venkateshwara v Raman, 33 IC 696.
- 339 Murat Singh v Pheku Singh, (1928) ILR 7 Pat 584 : 110 IC 526 : AIR 1928 Pat. 587 ; Shrinath v Kanhaiyalal, 75 IC 817 : AIR 1924 Ngp 145 .
- 340 Thawerdas v Seth Vishindas, 79 IC 384 : AIR 1925 Sau 72 . Proposition set out in the text was approved in Guj Water Supply and Sewerage Board v S H Shivanani, AIR 1991 Guj 170 [LNIND 1990 GUJ 202] , p 173.

6. What may be transferred.—

- 341 Damodar v Allabux, AIR 1943 Ngp 332 : (1943) ILR Nag 762 : (1943) Nag LJ 508 : 210 IC 625.
- 342 UOI v Alliance Insurance Co, AIR 1964 Cal 31 [LNIND 1963 CAL 135] ; Hindustan Corpn (Hyd) Pvt Ltd v United India Fire Gen Insu Co Ltd, AIR 1997 AP 347 [LNIND 1996 AP 422] .
- 343 Dhanaji v Gulabchand, (1925) 27 Bom LR 409 : 87 IC 812 : AIR 1925 Bom 347 .
- 344 Ma Yait v Mahomed Ebrahim, (1927) ILR 5 Rang 145 : 102 IC 670 : AIR 1927 Rang 165 .
- 345 Venkatarama v Ramasami, (1921) ILR 44 Mad 539 : 62 IC 305 : AIR 1921 Mad. 56 [LNIND 1920 MAD 129] ; Hari Prasad v Kodo Marya, (1917) 1 Pat LJ 427 : 37 IC 998; Prasanno Kumar v Ashutosh, (1913) 18 Cal WN 450 : 20 IC 685; For execution of a decree by transferee; see Code of Civil Procedure 1908, O XXI, rules 16, 17.
- 346 Krishan Kumar v UOI, AIR 2011 Ker. 167 .
- 347 Speedline Agencies v T Stanes & Co Ltd, (2010) 6 SCC 257 [LNIND 2010 SC 513] : 2010 (5)Scale 670 [LNIND 2010 SC 513] : LNIND 2010 SC 513 .
- 348 Fischer v Kamala Naicker, (1860) 8 Mad IA 170; Ram Coomar Condoo v Chunder Canto Mookerji, 4 IA 23 : (1876–77) ILR 2 Cal 233.
- 349 Kunwar Ram Lal v Nil Kanth, (1893) ILR 20 Cal 843 : 20 IA 112; Raja Mokum Singh v Raja Rup Singh, (1893) ILR 15 All 352 : 20 IA 127.
- 350 Chockalingam Chetty v Seethal Acha, (1928) ILR 6 Rang 29 : 55 IA 7 : 107 IC 237 : AIR 1927 PC 252 .
- 351 Achal Ram v Kazim Husain, (1905) ILR 27 All 271 : 32 IA 113; Bhagwat Dayal Singh v Debi Dayal Sahu, (1907) ILR 35 Cal 420 : 35 IA 48; Ramanamma v Viranna, (1931) 61 Mad LJ 94 : 131 IC 401 : AIR 1931 PC 100 .
- 352 Glegg v Bromley, [1912] 3 KB 474 : [1911-3] All ER Rep 1138 .
- 353 Vatsavaya v Poosapati, 52 IA 1 : 47 Mad LJ 93 : 80 IC 807 : AIR 1924 PC 162 .
- 354 Henley v Lyme Corp, [1828] 5 Bing 91, p 107.
- 355 State of MP v Sandhya Tomar, (2013) 11 SCC 357 [LNIND 2012 SC 835] : 2012 (12)Scale 561 [LNIND 2012 SC 835] : LNIND 2012 SC 835 .
- 356 Liverpool Corp v Wright, [1859] 28 LJ (Ch) 868 .
- 357 Grenfell v The Dean and Conors of Windsor, [1840] 2 Beav 544, p 549; Davis v Duke of Marlborough, [1818] 1 Swan 74.
- 358 Ravji v Sayajirav, (1889) ILR 13 Bom 673.
- 359 Archaka of a temple—Venkatrayar v Srinivasa, (1872) 7 Mad HC 32; paricharaka of a temple—Narasimma v Anantha, (1881) ILR 4 Mad 391; dharmakarta of a temple —Subbarayudyu v Kottaya, (1892) ILR 15 Mad 389; karaima in a temple—Keyake v Yadatil, (1868) 3 Mad HC 380; miras in a temple—Ramaswami v Ranga, (1893) ILR 16 Mad 146; shebait—Nagendra v Rabindra, (1926) ILR 53 Cal 132 : 94 IC 212 : AIR 1926 Cal 490 ; Girijanand v Sailajanand, (1896) ILR 23 Cal 645; shebati—Gobinda v Debendra, (1907) 12 Cal WN 98; Juggernath v Kishen, (1867) 7 WR 266 ; Dubo Misser v Srinivas, (1870) 14 WR 409 ; muttawalli—Wahid Ali v Ashraff, (1881) ILR 8 Cal 732; Sarkum v Rahaman, (1897) ILR 24 Cal 83; Munshi Shahed Baksh v Golam Nabi, (1918) 22 Cal WN 996 : 47 IC 117; Haji Ali Mahomed v Anjuman-i-Islamia, (1931) ILR 12 Lah 590 : 135 IC 56 : AIR 1931 Lah 379 ; mohunt—Pryad Das v Mohunt Kriparam, (1908) 8 Cal LJ 499 ; vriti—Rajaram v Ganesh, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 131; village joshi —Waman v Balaji, (1890) ILR 14 Bom 167; ghatwal—Narain v Badi Roy, (1902) ILR 29 Cal 227; karnam—Kumari Pillai v Orr, (1897) ILR 20 Mad 145; chowkidar—Ramkumar v Ram Newaj, (1904) ILR 31 Cal 1021.
- 360 Arbuthnot v Norton, (1846) 3 Mad IA 435.
- 361 Girijanand v Sailajanand, (1896) ILR 23 Cal 645, p 669.
- 362 MSM Railway v Rupchand, (1950) ILR Bom 185 : 51 Bom LR 1024 : AIR 1950 Bom 155 [LNIND 1947 BOM 74] .
- 363 Hanmmappa v Hanmantappa, (1947) ILR Bom 789 : 49 Bom LR 867 : AIR 1948 Bom 233 ; Seshacharyulu v Venkatacharyulu, AIR 1957 AP 876 [LNIND 1956 AP 108] . As to attachment of salary of public officers, see Code of Civil Procedure, section 60(i).
- 364 Ananthayya v Subba Rao, (1960) ILR Mad 87 : (1960) 1 Mad LJ 164 : AIR 1960 Mad. 188 [LNIND 1959 MAD 103] .
- 365 Lachmi Narain v Mukund, (1904) ILR 26 All 617, p 621; Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad v Kamani Industrial Bank, (1931) 29 All LJ 495 : 58 IA 215, p 220 : 132 IC 727 : AIR 1931 PC 160 .
- 366 Saundariya Bai Choudhary v UOI, AIR 2008 MP 227 [LNIND 2008 MP 193] : (2008) 3 MPHT 315 : (2008) 4 MPJR 116 : (2008) 2 MPLJ 321 .
- 367 Secretary of State v Khemchand Jeychand, (1880) ILR 4 Bom 432, p 436.

6. What may be transferred.—

- 368 Subraya v Velayudu, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 153; Bhoopal Rai v Shiam Sunder Lal, (1929) 27 All LJ 724 : 124 IC 534 : AIR 1929 All 781 .
- 369 Khasim v Carlier, (1882) ILR 5 Mad 272.
- 370 Lachmi Narain v Mukund, (1904) ILR 26 All 617 (a zamindari grant in reward for past services); Balkrishna v Govind, (1902) All WN 161 (a grant of share of revenue in compensation for enhanced assessment); Amna Bibi v Najm-un-nissa, (1909) ILR 31 All 382 : 2 IC 100 (grant of land in lieu of pension); Balvant v Secretary of State, (1905) ILR 29 Bom 480 (inam land); Kumara Tirumalai v Bangaru, (1898) ILR 21 Mad 310 (inam land); Ganpat Rao v Anant Rao, (1910) ILR 32 All 148 : 5 IC 689 (PC) (grant of the soil); Subraya v Velayudu, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 153 (grant of the soil).
- 371 Duni Chand v Gurmuck Singh, 128 IC 487 : AIR 1930 Lah 816 .
- 372 Shah Muhammad Habibul v Abdul, (1926) 24 All LJ 630 : 95 IC 208 : AIR 1926 All 521 ; Subraya v Velayudu, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 153; Jiban Krishna v Sripati, (1903) 8 Cal WN 665.
- 373 Atma Ram v Kehar Singh, (1930) 31 Punj LR 812 : 132 IC 12 : AIR 1930 Lah 904 following Karar Hasan v Mustafa Hassan, (1914) PR 86 : 26 IC 743; Bhoopal Rai v Shiam Sunder Lal, (1929) 27 All LJ 724.
- 374 Bishambhar Nath v Imdad Ali, (1891) ILR 18 Cal 216 : 17 IA 181.
- 375 Satrapi Dongerchand v Madho Singh, (1927) ILR 50 Mad 711 : 103 IC 339 : AIR 1927 Mad. 604 [LNIND 1926 MAD 486] .
- 376 Muthusami v Prince Alagia, (1903) ILR 26 Mad 423.
- 377 Mahomed v Mahomed, (1867) 7 WR 169 .
- 378 Mahomed v Commandur, (1869) 4 Mad HC 277.
- 379 Secretary of State v Khemchand Jeychand, (1880) ILR 4 Bom 432.
- 380 Valia v Anujani, (1903) ILR 26 Mad 69; Lallu v Mahomed, (1877) PR 87 .
- 381 Bhoynrub v Madhub Chunder, (1880) 6 Cal LR 19 (when railways were not state-owned).
- 382 See Bishambhar Nath v Imdad Ali, (1891) ILR 18 Cal 216 : 17 IA 181.
- 383 Suraj Devi v Sita Devi, AIR 1996 Raj. 6 .
- 384 Life Insurance Corp of India v Devendrappa Bujjappa Kadabi, AIR 1987 Kant. 129 [LNIND 1986 KANT 196] , p 136.
- 385 Nutan Kumar v Il Addl District Judge, Banda, AIR 1994 All 298 [LNIND 1993 ALL 220] .
- 386 Nahalchand Laloochand Pvt Ltd v Panchali Cooperative Housing Society, (2010) 9 SCC 536 [LNIND 2010 SC 819] : AIR 2010 SC 3607 [LNIND 2010 SC 819] : 2010 (8)Scale 710 [LNIND 2010 SC 819] : LNIND 2010 SC 819 .
- 387 Raja Varma Valia v Kettayath, (1875) 7 Mad HC 210, p 219 : on app 4 IA 76.
- 388 Konwar Doorganath v Ramchunder, (1877) ILR 2 Cal 341 : 4 IA 52; Narayan v Chintaman, (1881) ILR 5 Bom 393; Shama v Abdul, (1898) 3 Cal WN 158.
- 389 Anjaneyalu v Sri Venugopala, (1922) ILR 45 Mad 620 : 70 IC 466 : AIR 1922 Mad. 197 [LNIND 1922 MAD 12] .
- 390 Angurbala v Devabrata, AIR 1949 Cal 278 .
- 391 Suryanarayana v Venkata Suryanarayana, AIR 1958 AP 286 .
- 392 Chevendra Venkata Kutumba Rao v Govardhanram, AIR 1957 AP 349 .
- 393 Jaffer Meher Ali v Budge-Budge Jute Mills Co, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 702, p 709 : 34 Cal WN 89; Re Kripendra Kumar Bose, (1929) ILR 56 Cal 1074 : 121 IC 745 : AIR 1930 Cal 171 .
- 394 Deivanayaga v Muthu Reddi, (1921) ILR 44 Mad 329 : 59 IC 1003 : AIR 1921 Mad. 326 ; Ghumna v Ramchandra, (1925) ILR 47 All 619 : 88 IC 411 : AIR 1925 All 437 .
- 395 Nagaratnamba v Ramayya, [1968] 1 SCR 43 [LNIND 1967 SC 207] : AIR 1968 SC 253 [LNIND 1967 SC 207] : [1968] 1 SCJ 648 ; Sardambal v AM Natesa Mudaliar, (1972) 1 Mad LJ 244.
- 396 Belo v Parbati, (1940) ILR All 371 ; Godfrey v Parbati, (1938) ILR 17 Pat 308.
- 397 Istak Kamu v Ranchod Zipru, (1947) ILR Bom 208 : 48 Bom LR 775 : AIR 1947 Bom 198 ; criticised in Nagaratnamba v Ramayya, [1968] 1 SCR 43 [LNIND 1967 SC 207] : AIR 1968 SC 253 [LNIND 1967 SC 207] .
- 398 Bajranji Lal v Ghura Rai, (1916) ILR 38 All 232 : 32 IC 913; Rajendra Prasad v Ram Jatan Rai, (1917) ILR 39 All 539 : 39 IC 785; Dip Narain Singh v Nageshar, (1930) ILR 52 All 388 : 122 IC 872 : AIR 1930 All 1.

6. What may be transferred.—

- 399 Dip Narain Singh v Nageshar, (1930) ILR 52 All 388. See also Life Insurance Corp of India v Devendrappa Brijjappa Kadali, AIR 1987 Kant. 129 [LNIND 1986 KANT 196], p 134.
- 400 Ayerst v Jenkins, [1873] 16 Eq 375 ; Gobardhan v Ritu Roy, (1896) ILR 23 Cal 962; Banka Behari v Rajkumar, (1900) ILR 27 Cal 231; Govinda Kuar v Lala Kishen Prasad, (1901) ILR 28 Cal 370; Sidlingappa v Hirasa, (1908) ILR 31 Bom 405; Raghupati v Nrishingha, (1922) 36 Cal LJ 491 : 71 IC 1 : AIR 1923 Cal 90; Vilayat Husain v Misran, (1923) ILR 45 All 396 : 72 IC 92 : AIR 1923 All 504; Sabava v Yamenappa, (1933) 35 Bom LR 345 : 149 IC 464 : AIR 1933 Bom 209; Lacha Reddi v Venkamma, AIR 1956 AP 225 [LNIND 1955 AP 64]; Sardambai v AM Natesa Mudaliar, (1972) 1 Mad LJ 244. But see Pranballav Saha v Tulshi Bala, (1958) 63 Cal WN 258 : AIR 1958 Cal 713 [LNIND 1958 CAL 139].
- 401 Muckleston v Brown, [1801] 6 Ves 52, p 69; Gascoigne v Gascoigne, [1918] 1 KB 223.
- 402 Immani Appa Rao v Gollappali Ramalingamurthi, [1962] 3 SCR 739 [LNIND 1961 SC 309] : AIR 1962 SC 370 [LNIND 1961 SC 309]; Kanthammal v Venkatakrishna, (1968) 1 Mad LJ 1 : AIR 1968 Mad. 362 [LNIND 1967 MAD 121].
- 403 Deivanayaga v Muthu Reddi, (1921) ILR 44 Mad 329 : 59 IC 1003 : AIR 1921 Mad. 326; Vilayat Husain v Misran, (1923) ILR 45 All 396 : 72 IC 92 : AIR 1923 All 504.
- 404 Kedar Nath Motani v Prahlad Rai, [1960] 1 SCR 861 : AIR 1960 SC 213 : [1960] SCJ 1072; Sham Lall Mitra v Amarendro Nath, (1896) ILR 23 Cal 460; Govinda Kuar v Lala Kishen Prasad, (1901) ILR 28 Cal 370; Judu Nath v Rup Lal, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 967; Munisami v Subbaraya, (1908) ILR 31 Mad 97; Raghupati v Nrishingha, (1922) 36 Cal LJ 491 : AIR 1923 Cal 90 Bai Devmani v Ravishankar, (1929) ILR 53 Bom 321 : 116 IC 236 : AIR 1929 Bom 147.
- 405 Jaffer Meher Ali v Budge-Budge Jute Mills Co, (1904) ILR 33 Cal 702 : 34 Cal WN 289.
- 406 Qadir Bukhsh v Hakam, 139 IC 17 : AIR 1932 Lah 503.
- 407 Sidlingappa v Hirasa, (1907) ILR 31 Bom 405, p 411. For a general survey of the law on this point see Hamson, Illegal Contracts and Limited Interests (1949) 10 Camb LJ 249; Gooderson, Turpitude and Title in England and India (1958) Camb LJ 199; Higgins, Transfer of Property under Illegal Transactions (1962) 25 Mad LR 149. And see Sajan Singh v Sardan Ali, (1960) ILR Cal 167 : [1960] 1 All ER 269; Amar Singh v Kulubya, [1964] AC 142 : [1963] 3 All ER 499.
- 408 Re Coltman, Coltman v Coltman, [1881] 19 ChD 64.
- 409 Ashbury Rly Carriage and Iron Co v Riche, [1875] 7 HL 653.
- 410 Turner v Bank of Bombay, (1901) ILR 25 Bom 52.
- 411 Ahmed Sail v Bank of Mysore, (1930) ILR 53 Mad 771 : 126 IC 612 : AIR 1930 Mad. 512.
- 412 Manchegowda v State of Karnataka, (1984) 3 SCC 301 [LNIND 1984 SC 113] , p 308; Harish Chandra Hegde v State of Karnataka, (2004) 9 SCC 780 : 2003 Supp (6) SCR 1111 .
- 413 Raghunath v Nathu, (1895) ILR 19 Bom 626.
- 414 Durga v Jhinguri, (1885) ILR 7 All 511; Jhinguri v Durga, (1885) ILR 7 All 878.

6. What may be transferred.—

- 415 Har Prasad v Sheo Gobind, (1922) ILR 44 All 486 : 67 IC 793 : AIR 1922 All 134; Dayaram v Thakuri, (1924) ILR 46 All 622 : 83 IC 21 : AIR 1924 All 668. But see the criticism of these cases in Dip Narain Singh v Nageshar, (1930) ILR 52 All 338 : 122 IC 872 : AIR 1930 All 1.
- 416 Wazir Mahomed v Har Prasad, (1912) 15 OC 67 : 13 IC 613.
- 417 Jaffer Meher Ali v Budge Budge Jute Mills, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 702 : on app (1907) ILR 34 Cal 289.
- 418 Ram Sarup v Kishen Lal, (1907) ILR 29 All 327.
- 419 Saleh Abraham v Manekji, (1923) ILR 50 Cal 491 : 75 IC 521 : AIR 1924 Cal 57.
- 420 Naoroji v Kazi Sidick Mirza, (1896) ILR 20 Bom 636.
- 421 Laxmanlal v Mulshankar, (1908) ILR 32 Bom 449.
- 422 Chimni Ram v Shibendra, (1912) 16 Cal LJ 162 : 14 IC 519.
- 423 See Indian Contract Act, 1872, illustration (g) to section 23.
- 424 Narayan v Gopalrao, (1922) ILR 46 Bom 908 : 67 IC 850 : AIR 1922 Bom 382; Eshan Kishore v Haris Chandra, (1874) 13 Beng LR 42.
- 425 Gaureenath v Madhomanee, (1872) 18 WR 445; Ghoga Lal v Pujari, (1909) ILR 31 All 58 : 1 IC 52. But see Pranballav Saha v Tulshi Bala, (1958) 63 Cal WN 258 : AIR 1958 Cal 713 [LNIND 1958 CAL 139].
- 426 Sultan v Nanu, (1877) ILR Rang 22; Putimal v Bhagan, AIR 1898 Rang 2.
- 427 Muthukannu v Shunmugaveli, (1905) ILR 28 Mad 413; Ghumna v Ramchandra, (1925) ILR 47 All 619 : 81 IC 411 : AIR 1925 All 437; Brahmayya Lingam v Kanakamma, (1924) 47 Mad LJ 652 : 82 IC 14 : AIR 1924 Mad. 849 [LNIND 1924 MAD 69]; Sabava v Yamanappa, (1933) 35 Bom LR 345 : AIR 1933 Bom 209; Istak Kamu v Ranchod Zipru, (1946) 48 Bom LR 775 : AIR 1947 Bom 198.
- 428 Lachmi v Wilayati, (1880) ILR 2 All 433, on app Ram Sarup v Bela, (1884) ILR 6 All 313 : 11 IA 44; Deivanayaga v Muthu Reddi, (1921) ILR 44 Mad 329 : 59 IC 1003 : AIR 1921 Mad. 326; Sabava v Yamanappa, (1933) 35 Bom LR 345 : 149 IC 464 : AIR 1933 Bom 209.
- 429 Tayaramma v Sitaramasami Naidu, (1900) ILR 23 Mad 613.
- 430 Nagaratnamba v Ramayya, [1968] 1 SCR 43 [LNIND 1967 SC 207] : AIR 1968 SC 253 [LNIND 1967 SC 207] : [1968] 1 SCJ 648.
- 431 See commentary above, under note (30) “Sub-clause (2) of clause h”.

6. What may be transferred.—

- 432 Protina v Dookhia, (1872) 18 WR 450; Gogan v Janokee, (1873) 20 WR 235.
- 433 Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 23, illustration (b).
- 434 Dwijendra Nath v Gopiram, (1926) ILR 53 Cal 51 : 89 IC 200 : AIR 1926 Cal 59.
- 435 Abdul Rahaman v Ghulam Mahommad, (1927) ILR 7 Lah 463 : 98 IC 673 : AIR 1927 Lah 18.
- 436 Shiam Lal v Chhaki, (1900) ILR 22 All 2207; Sheo Narain v Mata Prasad, (1904) ILR 27 All 73 overruled by Bhagwan Dei v Murari Lal, (1917) ILR 39 All 51 : 36 IC 259; Kamala Devi v Gur Dayal, (1917) ILR 39 All 58 : 36 IC 319.
- 437 Pt Harikishan v Ratan Singh, 151 IC 562 : AIR 1934 All 973.
- 438 Dholides v Fulchand, (1898) ILR 22 Bom 658; Dulari v Vallabhadas, (1889) ILR 13 Bom 126; Venkata v Lakshmi, (1909) ILR 32 Mad 185 : 3 IC 554; Baldeo v Jumna, (1901) ILR 23 All 495. But see Bakshi Das v Nadu Das, (1905) 1 Cal LJ 261; Jogeshwar v Punch Kauri, (1870) 14 WR 154; Ranee Lallun Monee v Nobin Mohan, (1875) 25 WR 32.
- 439 Law of Property Act, 1925, section 19.
- 440 Mohori Bibee v Dhurmodas Ghose, (1903) ILR 30 Cal 539 : 30 IA 114.
- 441 Munni Kunwar v Madan Gopal, (1916) ILR 38 All 62 : 31 IC 792; Raghava v Srinivasa, (1917) ILR 40 Mad 308 : 36 IC 921 overruling Navakotti v Logalinga, (1910) ILR 33 Mad 312 : 4 IC 383.
- 442 Ulfat Rai v Gauri Shanker, (1911) ILR 33 All 657 : 11 IC 20; Narain Das v Dhania, (1916) ILR 38 All 154 : 35 IC 23; Munni Kunwar v Madan Gopal, (1916) ILR 38 All 62; Munia v Perumal, (1915) ILR 37 Mad 390 : 26 IC 195; Subba Reddy v Gurava Reddy, 120 IC 77 : AIR 1930 Mad. 425 [LNIND 1929 MAD 182].
- 443 Raghava v Srinivasa, (1917) ILR 40 Mad 308 : 36 IC 921; Madhab Koeri v Baikuntha, (1919) 4 Pat LJR 682 : 52 IC 338; Thakar Das v Pulti, (1924) ILR 5 Lah 317 : 82 IC 96 : AIR 1924 Lah 611; Zafar Ahsan v Zubaida Khatun, (1929) 27 All LJ 1114 : 121 IC 398 : AIR 1929 All 604.
- 444 Mir Sarwarjan v Fakhruddin Mahomed, 39 IA 1 : (1912) ILR 39 Cal 232 : 13 IC 331.
- 445 Pramila Bali Das v Jogeshwar, (1918) 3 Pat LJR 518 : 46 IC 670; and see Jaykant v Durgashankar, (1969) 11 Guj LR 178 : AIR 1970 Guj 106 [LNIND 1968 GUJ 65].
- 446 Maung Ye v M A S Firm, (1928) ILR 6 Rang 423 : 111 IC 105 : AIR 1928 Rang 136.
- 447 U Pyinnya v Maung Law, (1929) ILR 7 Rang 677 : 121 IC 705 : AIR 1929 Rang 354 overruling U Teza v E Ma Gweye, (1927) ILR 5 Rang 626 : 106 IC 201 : AIR 1928 Rang 3.
- 448 Banmali v Bisheshwar, (1907) ILR 29 All 129; Kedar Nath v Naipal, (1912) ILR 34 All 155 : 12 IC 922 (mandadari tenure); Shanti Prasad v Bachchi Devi, AIR 1948 Oudh 349 .
- 449 Motichand v Ikram Ullah, (1916) ILR 39 All 173 : 44 IA 54 : 39 IC 454.

6. What may be transferred.—

- 450 Akbar Husain v Husain Jahan Begum, 155 IC 40 : AIR 1935 Oudh 309 .
- 451 Har Prasad v Sheo Gobind, (1922) ILR 44 All 486 : 67 IC 793 : AIR 1922 All 134 ; Mukund Lal v Sunita, 132 IC 422 : AIR 1931 All 461 ; Muzaffar v Madad Ali, 132 IC 543 : AIR 1931 Oudh 309 .
- 452 Hanuman Prasad v Deo Charan, (1908) 7 Cal LJ 309 ; Ananda Mohan v Gobinda Chandra, (1916) 20 Cal WN 322 : 33 IC 565; Sulin Mohan v Raj Krishna, (1921) 25 Cal WN 420 : 60 IC 826 : AIR 1921 Cal 582 ; Sarada Kanta v Nabin Chandra, (1927) ILR 54 Cal 333 : 97 IC 817 : AIR 1927 Cal 39 dissenting from Beni Madhab v Jai Krishna, (1870) 12 WR 495 : 7 Beng LR 152; Safar Ali v Abdul Rashid, (1924) 39 Cal LJ 585 : 84 IC 28 : AIR 1924 Cal 1012 ; Madhu Sudan v Kamini, (1905) ILR 32 Cal 1023; Nabu Mondal v Cholim Mullik, (1898) ILR 25 Cal 896; Kamal Mayee Dasi v Nibaran Chandra Pramanik, (1932) 36 Cal WN 149 : 138 IC 72 : AIR 1932 Cal 431 .
- 453 Bhagban Das v Bisweswar, (1927) 44 Cal LJ 434 : 100 IC 302 : AIR 1927 Cal 220 .
- 454 Hiramoti v Annoda Prasad, (1908) 7 Cal LJ 553 ; Kailash Chandra Pal v Hari Mohan Das, (1909) 13 Cal WN 541 : 1 IC 362.
- 455 Rasik Lal v Bidumuki, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 1094.
- 456 Bhairavendra Narain Roy v Rajendra Narain Roy, (1924) ILR 50 Cal 457 : 74 IC 193 : AIR 1924 Cal 45 .
- 457 Sarat Chandra Saha v Bepin Behary Chakerbutty, (1933) 37 Cal WN 256 : 149 IC 1014 : AIR 1933 Cal 687 .
- 458 Amarnath Singh v Har Prasad Singh, (1932) ILR 7 Luck 425 : 136 IC 333 : AIR 1932 Oudh 79 ; Jang Bahadur v Rai Raja, (1907) 7 OC 235.
- 459 For instance, Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act.

7. Persons competent to transfer.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

7. Persons competent to transfer.—

Every person competent to contract and entitled to transferable property, or authorized to dispose off transferable property not his own, is competent to transfer such property either wholly or in part, and either absolutely or conditionally, in the circumstances, to the extent and in the manner, allowed and prescribed by any law for the time being in force.

[s 7.1] Competent to Transfer

Under section 6(h)(3), any person is competent to be a transferee, unless legally disqualified. This section deals with the competency of a transferor. The transferor must be—

- (1) competent to contract; and
- (2) have title to the property, or authority to transfer it if not his own.

[s 7.2] Competent to Contract

This is the same condition as is enacted by section 7 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 for the creation of a trust. Section 11 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872 defines capacity to contract as follows:

Every person is competent to contract who is of the age of majority according to the law to which he is subject, and who is of sound mind, and is not disqualified from contracting by any law to which he is subject.

The power to transfer must depend upon the power to contract, for without an antecedent contract to give and take, there can be no transfer at all.

[s 7.3] Minor as a Transferor

7. Persons competent to transfer.—

The transferor must have attained the age of majority according to the law to which he is subject. As the conditions of validity of a mortgage must entail both parties, mortgagor and mortgagee must be competent to enter into a contract therefore, a minor, being incompetent to contract cannot be a mortgagor or mortgagee.⁴⁶⁰ The essence of nemo dat quod non habet is the transactional exigibility i.e. the binding effect of prior property rights of subsequent transferee irrespective of notice or knowledge of prior property rights on part of subsequent transferees.⁴⁶¹ The Privy Council have held that a contract by a minor is void.⁴⁶² A transfer by a minor, therefore, is also void.⁴⁶³ Prior to the decision of the Privy Council, it was generally assumed that a minor's contract was voidable, and could be ratified. These decisions are now obsolete, and as the contract is void there can be no question of ratification. There are many conflicting decisions as to whether a minor can be estopped by a false representation that he is of age. Before the Privy Council decision that a minor is incapable of contracting, Ameer Ali J said that the rule of estoppel was not applicable, as it would have the effect of enlarging the minor's power to contract.⁴⁶⁴ This is supported by a dictum of the Privy Council in Mahomed Syedol Arifjin v Yeoh,⁴⁶⁵ that the doctrine of estoppel is only applicable to persons who are sui juris, and by the English cases of *Leslie Ltd v Sheill*⁴⁶⁶ and Levine v Brougham.⁴⁶⁷ A Full Bench of the Lahore High Court has after a review of the case law come to the same conclusion.⁴⁶⁸ In Sadiq Ali Khan v Jai Kishore,⁴⁶⁹ the Privy Council observed that a deed executed by a minor was a nullity and incapable of founding a plea of estoppel, and following this decision, a Full Bench of the Bombay High Court has overruled its previous decisions to the contrary.⁴⁷⁰ The principle underlying the decision of the Privy Council is that there can be no estoppel against a statute.

Although a minor is not competent to be a transferor, yet a transfer to a minor is valid.⁴⁷¹

[s 7.4] Lunatic as a Transferor

Under section 12 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, a person is of sound mind for the purpose of making a contract if he is capable of understanding it, and of forming a rational judgment as to its effect upon his interests.⁴⁷² A contract made by a lunatic is void under section 11 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, and so also, a transfer by him of his property is void.⁴⁷³ A lunatic is competent to contract during a lucid interval, and a transfer by a lunatic during a lucid interval would be valid here as in England.⁴⁷⁴ However, a person adjudged a lunatic would be incapable of making a transfer even during a lucid interval.⁴⁷⁵ The unsoundness of mind may be established by proving such conduct as was not in keeping with the character of the person concerned, but such that it could not be explained on any reasonable basis. Burden to prove or establish at least on a balance of probability the transferor's action in executing transfer deed in favour of transferee was the outcome of an unsound mind, is on the person alleging so. However, un rebutted evidence of an unnatural and inexplicable animosity as well as unnatural and inexplicable fixation on selling of all his properties probabilises that the sale was effected by the transferor when he was incapable of rational behaviour. The onus then shifts to the transferee to adduce evidence either to show that the ostensibly irrational conduct of the transferee had a rational explanation, or that the conveyance was executed by the transferor in a lucid interval.⁴⁷⁶

Where the vendors did not have a complete title over suit property and the agreement was not executed by all co-sharers of the partly owned property, the same cannot be enforced by the vendee.⁴⁷⁷ However, if property is transferred for a consideration in good faith without misrepresentation of fraud and transferee had taken reasonable steps to ascertain title of transferor, then such transfer would not be void.⁴⁷⁸ Where before a mortgage is created in respect of immovable property, and borrower had already leased out the same in favour of a lessee either as the owner or as a person competent or authorised to transfer the immovable property, the lessee will have the right to enjoy the leased property in accordance with terms and conditions of lease irrespective of whether a subsequent mortgagee has knowledge of such a lease or not.⁴⁷⁹

[s 7.4.1] Disqualified to contract

A statutory disqualification to contract imports, as in the case of a minor, inability to transfer. Such a disqualification ensues when the owner's property is under the management of the Court of Wards,⁴⁸⁰ or of an officer appointed under Encumbered Estates Act.⁴⁸¹ A judgment debtor whose property is being sold in execution by the Collector is also incompetent to alienate.⁴⁸²

7. Persons competent to transfer.—

[s 7.4.2] Authority to dispose off property

If the transferor has no title to the property, he must have authority to transfer it.⁴⁸³ Also, a person holding limited estate is not competent to transfer.⁴⁸⁴ As instances of authority to transfer the property of another, the following may be cited—an agent acting under a power of attorney; the donee of a power of appointment; the guardian of a minor duly authorised by the court in that behalf; the manager of a Hindu family in case of necessity or for the benefit of the family; the committee or manager of a lunatic; a receiver when empowered by the court; an executor or administrator having authority to dispose off the property of the deceased regulated by section 307 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925.

In all these cases, the authority is defined and limited by personal and statutory laws which are outside the scope of TP Act, 1882. The extent of the power of transfer depends upon the interest of the transferor or the limitation upon his authority. However, whether the power of transfer is limited or absolute, all transfers are subject to the general rules enacted in this chapter.

An agent, who merely manages property, has no authority to transfer it.⁴⁸⁵ It has been held in Shakuntala Devi v State of Jharkhand,⁴⁸⁶ that despite the statutory prohibition to execute a sale deed, the registrar has no authority to refuse registration on the ground that the vendor had no title to the property. He is under a duty to only see whether the document is duly stamped or not. A vendor cannot transfer a title or right better than what he had over that piece of land.⁴⁸⁷ Similarly, if a court of competent jurisdiction has declared a gift deed to be valid, a party cannot be said to be lawfully in possession of land or be a deemed tenant.⁴⁸⁸

[s 7.4.3] Person not authorised to dispose off minor's property

Where the de facto guardian of the minor's property sells it, the sale is invalid, and will be hit by section 11 of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act. Even subsequent ratification by the natural guardian does not validate it.⁴⁸⁹

460 Mathai Mathai v Joseph Mary, (2015) 5 SCC 622 [LNIND 2014 SC 604] : AIR 2014 SC 2277 [LNIND 2014 SC 604] : 2014 (6) Scale 41 [LNIND 2014 SC 604] : 2014 (6) SCJ 715 [LNIND 2014 SC 604] .

461 Harshad Govardhan Sondagar v International Assets Reconstruction Company limited, (2014) 6 SCC 1 . See also Shree Ram Urban Infrastructure Ltd v Court Receiver, High Court of Bombay, (2015) 5 SCC 539 [LNIND 2014 SC 94] : AIR 2014 SC 2286 [LNIND 2014 SC 94] : 2014 (6) Scale 613 [LNIND 2014 SC 94] : 2014 (5) Bom CR 41 [LNIND 2014 SC 94] , 50. wherein it was held that a receiver appointed must act to safeguard the interest of trustees to preserve the suit property. [Continued from p 105].

462 Mohori Bibee v Dhurmodas Ghose, (1903) ILR 30 Cal 539 : 30 IA 114.

463 Raja Balwant Singh v Rao Maharaj Singh, (1912) ILR 34 All 296 : 39 IA 109 : 14 IC 629 (a mortgage); Govinda Kurup v Chowakkaram, (1931) 59 Mad LJ 941 : 129 IC 449 : AIR 1931 Mad. 147 (lease); Indian Cotton Co v Raghunath, (1931) 33 Bom LR 111 : 130 IC 598 : AIR 1931 Bom 178 (a lease).

464 Brohmo v Dharmo, (1898) ILR 26 Cal 381.

465 Mahomed Syedol Arifjin v Yeoh, 43 IA 256 : 19 Bom LR 157 : 39 IC 401 : AIR 1916 PC 242 .

466 Leslie Ltd v Sheill, [1914] 3 KB 607 : [1914-5] All ER Rep 511 .

467 Levine v Brougham, [1909] 25 TLR 265 : 53 Sol J 243.

468 Khan Gul v Lakha Singh, (1928) ILR 9 Lah 701 : 111 IC 175 : AIR 1928 Lah 609 .

469 Sadiq Ali Khan v Jai Kishore, (1928) 30 Bom LR 1346 : 109 IC 387 : AIR 1928 PC 152 ; Balangowda v Bhimangowda, (1929) 31 Bom LR 340 : 118 IC 698 : AIR 1929 Bom 201 .

470 Gadigeppa v Balangowda, (1931) ILR 55 Bom 741 : 135 IC 161 : AIR 1931 Bom 561 .

7. Persons competent to transfer.—

- 471 See note “Disqualified to be a transferee” under section 6(h).
- 472 Sona Bala Bora v Jyotirindra Bhattacharjee, (2005) 4 SCC 501 [LNIND 2005 SC 359] , para 20.
- 473 Amina Bibi v Saiyid Yusuf, (1922) ILR 44 All 748 : 70 IC 968 : AIR 1922 All 449 (lease).
- 474 Selby v Jackson, [1843] 6 Beav 192.
- 475 Re Walker [[1905\] 1 ChD 160](#) ; Re Marshall, Marshall v Whately, [[1920\] 1 ChD 284](#)  : [[1920\] All ER Rep 190](#) . As to transfer of the property of a person who has been adjudged a lunatic, see the Indian Lunacy Act, 1912, sections 47–51, and section 53.
- 476 Sona Bala Bora v Jyotirindra Bhattacharjee, (2005) 4 SCC 501 [LNIND 2005 SC 359] , paras 21, 25.
- 477 Pemmada Prabhakar v Youngmen's Vyasa Association, (2015) 5 SCC 355 [LNIND 2014 SC 778] : 2014 (9) Scale 545 : 2016 (1) MPLJ 1 : 2014 (7) SCJ 467 [LNIND 2014 SC 778] .
- 478 V Chandrashekharan v Administrative Officer, (2012) 12 SCC 133 [LNIND 2012 SC 552] : AIR 1999 SC 436 [LNIND 1998 SC 1080] : 2012 (9) Scale 142 [LNIND 2012 SC 552] : LNIND 2012 SC 552 .
- 479 Harshad Govardhan Sondagar v International Assets Reconstruction Company limited, (2014) 6 SCC 1 : 2014 (4) Scale 484 : 2015 (3) SCJ 641 .
- 480 Jivan Lal v Gokul Das, (1904) 17 CPLR 13.
- 481 Radha Bai v Kamod, (1908) ILR 30 All 38; Gregson v Uday Aditya Deb, (1889) ILR 17 Cal 223 : 16 IA 221.
- 482 Civil Procedure Code 1908, sch III, para 11; Gourishankar v Chinnumaya, (1918) ILR 46 Cal 183 : 48 IC 312 : 45 IA 219 overruling Magniram v Bakubai, (1912) ILR 36 Bom 510 : 16 IC 570; Surju Prasad v Ramsaran, (1931) 29 All LJ 400 : 132 IC 568 : AIR 1931 All 541.
- 483 Chitu v Charan Singh, 77 IC 705 : AIR 1923 All 563.
- 484 Muninanjappa v P Manual, (2001) 5 SCC 363 [LNIND 2001 SC 940] : AIR 2001 SC 1754 [LNIND 2001 SC 940].
- 485 Balai C Mondal v Indurekha Debi, AIR 1973 SC 782 : (1973) 1 SCC 284.
- 486 Shakuntala Devi v State of Jharkhand, AIR 2010 Jhar. 56 [LNIND 2009 JHAR 33].
- 487 UOI v Kamla Verma, (2010) 13 SCC 511 [LNIND 2010 SC 755] : 2010 (8) Scale 443 [LNIND 2010 SC 755] : LNIND 2010 SC 755.
- 488 Bhimappa ChannappaKapali v Bhimappa SatyappaKamagouda, (2012) 13 SCC 759 : ILR 2002 Kant 3055 : 2003 (2) Kant LJ 148.
- 489 K Kamama v Appana, AIR 1973 AP 20.

8. Operation of transfer.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

8. Operation of transfer.—

Unless a different intention is expressed or necessarily implied, a transfer of property passes forthwith to the transferee all the interest which the transferor is then capable of passing in the property and in the legal incidents thereof.

Such incidents include, where the property is land, the easements annexed thereto, the rents and profits thereof accruing after the transfer, and all things attached to the earth; and, where the property is machinery attached to the earth, the movable parts thereof; and, where the property is a house, the easements annexed thereto, the rent thereof accruing after the transfer, and the locks, keys, bars, doors, windows, and all other things provided for permanent use therewith; and, where the property is a debt or other actionable claim, the securities thereof (except where they are also for other debts or claims not transferred to the transferee), but not arrears of interest accrued before the transfer; and, where the property is money or other property yielding income, the interest or income thereof accruing after the transfer takes effect.

[s 8.1] Transfer Passes All Interest of Transferor

Transfer of property passes forthwith to the transferee all the interests, which the transferor is capable of passing in the property and the legal incidents thereof.⁴⁹⁰ Conveyancing in India has never been obscured by the technicalities of English law, and the rule that a conveyance is presumed to be a transfer of all the interest that the transferor is capable of passing, though not fully established in England till 1926, was recognised in India even before the passing of the TP Act. In a case to which the TP Act, 1882 was not applicable, the Privy Council said that the rule before the TP Act, 1882 was that words of grant were calculated to convey all the interest of the grantor, but that it was necessary to read the whole instrument in order to gather the intention.⁴⁹¹ Again in Syed Ashgar v Syed Mahomed,⁴⁹² Lord Lindley said with reference to the construction of a conveyance:

8. Operation of transfer.—

The deed of 1883 contains no words of exception or reservation, and is simple in point of language to pass all Syed Haider Reza's interest in the Zamindary, including the land on which the bazar was situated. His interest in the houses on that land, the profit and the rents derived from them, would pass by the deed in the absence of words showing an intention to retain them.

Therefore, where an owner of a grove sells the grove by declaring that he was selling it with every right that he possessed therein, it follows that his right to the land is also conveyed to the vendor, unless it is especially reserved by him.⁴⁹³ Similarly, where A transfers land on which there are trees or a well, if nothing to the contrary is specified, the trees or well would pass along with the land to the buyer.⁴⁹⁴ Even if the actual possession of the property is not with the transferor, symbolic and de jure possession can be transferred for completing a grant.⁴⁹⁵

The section is a rule of construction which avoids speculation as to the particular interest which was in the mind of the transferor. If he holds under two titles, eg by purchase and by inheritance, or as part owner and as executor, it will be presumed that both the interests have passed.⁴⁹⁶ If the grantor has used unqualified words of conveyance, he cannot afterwards claim to have any rights in the property.⁴⁹⁷ A zamindar mortgaged a taluka in some villages of which he had a sarabarakari interest subordinate to his zamindari right. The deed made no reference to the subordinate interest and in the absence of an express reservation, the mortgage was held to include the sarabarakari interest also.⁴⁹⁸ This section is not intended to lay down any rule as to what words are necessary to effect a transfer of any particular kind of property. What property is actually conveyed by a particular kind of deed depends on its own terms.⁴⁹⁹ Where, on a construction of a document transferring title to hold a property, it is clear that the intention of the parties was to transfer a parcel of land within well-defined boundaries, any erroneous statement of survey number or omission to state it should be rejected as false demonstration.⁵⁰⁰ However, wherever there is any misdescription of the property, the real intention of the party has to be gathered from the surrounding circumstances as well as the sale deed. Though it is not an inexorable principle of law, but ordinarily, it is said that depending upon the facts and circumstances of each case, whenever there is a conflict in the description of the property in a sale deed or any other instrument so far as plot number, khata number and boundaries are concerned, generally speaking, the boundaries are to prevail. Similar opinion was expressed by the Supreme Court in Sheodhyan Singh v Sanichara Kuer,⁵⁰¹ wherein it was held that whenever there is any misdescription ordinarily, the description as per the boundaries may be preferred to represent the correct intentions of the parties.⁵⁰² Where there is a grant of a mining lease and a map is annexed to the grant showing an area lesser than what is stated in the grant, the terms of the grant must prevail over the map.⁵⁰³

With regard to operation of transfer of property, the term of exemption provided in the special law shall apply if clear and unambiguous.⁵⁰⁴ A registered settlement deed cannot be subsequently cancelled by executing a cancellation deed. The deed can be cancelled only by the court upon proof that it was executed through fraud, undue influence mistake or any other ground accepted by the court and not by the settler unilaterally.⁵⁰⁵ In Vitthal Maharu Patil v Fakira Bhavsing Patil,⁵⁰⁶ a registered sale deed was executed in favour of the transferee and possession was handed over to him. After around a gap of 12 years, the transferor alleged that along with the sale deed a deed of reconveyance was also executed in his favor. It was held that the claim would be negated in absence of any endorsement of reconveyance or a registered sale receipt.

With reference to section 8, it has been held that where there is a purported deed of adoption which fails as such deed, it can be treated as a will, if such an intention can be ascertained from the deed.⁵⁰⁷ Rajasthan High Court has held that where a person has purchased the plot of land from a private citizen who was the owner of the land and by such purchase of land, all the rights of the former owner have been transferred to the purchaser, the purchaser would be entitled to all the rights referred in section 8 and section 55(6)(a). Therefore, no conversion charges can be demanded by the government if the purchaser wants to change the use of land.⁵⁰⁸

8. Operation of transfer.—

If the purchaser of land within a scheme area constructed a building thereon knowing well about the execution of scheme, he cannot demand shifting or diversion of transmission line at a belated stage. In Orissa Power Transmission Corp Ltd v Asia School of Management Trust,⁵⁰⁹ after 14 ½ years of publication of Scheme, a parcel of land within scheme area was purchased from its owner by the Trust. It was held that the Trust which constructed building thereon knowing well about execution of scheme by erecting towers in area including the land, cannot demand shifting/diversion of transmission line at a belated stage.

[s 8.2] Where Transferor is Both Part Owner and Executor

An executor has the right to sell the property of the testator in due course of administration. If an executor is also one of the beneficiaries, and he sells the property of the testator together with “all the estate, right, title and interest” of the vendor, the deed conveys the whole title vested in the executor, and not merely his beneficial interest, though he does not purport to convey in his capacity as executor.⁵¹⁰ If the executant had an absolute title, then, it has to be inferred that the executant conveyed his absolute title to the person in whose favour the document was executed.⁵¹¹

[s 8.3] Hindu Law

The Hindu law is the same, for under that law an absolute estate may be conveyed without the words of limitation formerly used in English law to convey an estate of inheritance; and whether the gift passes an absolute or a limited estate, depends upon the terms of the grant.⁵¹² However, if the donee is a female relation who takes a limited estate in property inherited, the Privy Council in *Mahomed Shumsool v Shewukram*⁵¹³ held that the court is entitled to assume, where the property given is immovable, that the donor intended her to take a limited estate only, and in such cases it has been said that the principle of section 8 is not of much practical utility.⁵¹⁴ However, of course, an absolute estate may be conferred upon a woman by express words indicating full proprietary rights.⁵¹⁵ The use of the word malik imports an absolute heritable and alienable estate,⁵¹⁶ unless the context indicates a different meaning.⁵¹⁷ It was supposed at one time by some of the courts in India that, under the Hindu law, in case of immovable property given or devised by a husband to his wife, the wife had no power to alienate, unless the power of alienation was conferred upon her in express terms. However, it has been held by decisions of the Privy Council that the proposition was not sound, and that if words of sufficient amplitude were used conferring the absolute ownership upon the wife, the wife enjoyed the rights of ownership without their being conferred by express and additional terms, unless the circumstances or the context were sufficient to show that such absolute ownership was not intended.⁵¹⁸

In the case of a transfer for consideration to a wife by a Hindu, the Privy Council applied section 8 even before the amendment of section 2, and held that the donee took an absolute estate.⁵¹⁹ A person executed a settlement deed, transferring certain properties in favour of P and directed that the property shall be enjoyed by P and after her lifetime, by S. S and his widow G sued for possession of the properties settled in favour of P. It was held, that subject to the life interest of P, S (the husband of G) had been given absolute estate. The document did not show that P was given absolute interest. S, during his lifetime, acquired a vested right in the properties, which could not be defeated by his death before he obtained possession.⁵²⁰ Even in a family settlement, a restraint on alienation of the property is void. Sections 10 to 14 of the TP Act, 1882 (and the corresponding provisions of the Indian Succession Act) are statutory recognitions of the principles, that to impose total restraint on transfer or to impose restrictions which keep the property out of circulation forever, offends public policy, irrespective of whether such conditions are imposed by a deed or transfer, a will, or a simple contract. A contract against public policy is void. Therefore, such restrictive clauses in a family settlement are inoperative.⁵²¹ Even though the document may use the word “surrender” and even though it may be styled as a “release” yet, if it transfers all the right, title and interests of the person executing it in favour of person accepting it, then it is a sale, if executed for consideration.⁵²²

8. Operation of transfer.—

Where trust deeds conferring similar interest on grandsons in respect of properties of creators of trusts, were executed respectively by a male member and female member of a Hindu family, it was held that the principles of Hindu law governing the devolution of property in case of property passing from father to his son and grandsons, cannot be invoked in such a case.

In the above case, the trust deeds (i) gave properties of the executants of the deeds to grandsons in equal shares on the happening of a particular event; (ii) conferred, on the trustees, a right to exercise an absolute and uncontrolled discretion (on the death of a beneficiary before the happening of the event) to apply the beneficiary's share towards the maintenance of his widow and his male issue, and to accumulate the surplus to the account of the said beneficiary for distribution; and (iii) also provided, that if, before the time of division and distribution of properties, a beneficiary died, leaving only a widow, the widow would get a half of the share belonging to the deceased beneficiaries, and the heirs of other deceased beneficiaries. It was held that the above conditions were sufficient, in themselves, to lead to the conclusion that it was never intended that the properties should pass to the beneficiaries, to be held by them for their respective Hindu undivided families. On the plain terms of the trust deed, the properties were intended to devolve, on the beneficiaries in their individual capacity.⁵²³ A settlement deed is not defined under the TP Act, 1882. It is disposition of the property either for the purpose of settling disputes among the family, or for religious purposes, or in consideration of marriage.⁵²⁴

[s 8.4] Court Sales

The section does not apply to court sales, for such sales effect a transfer by the operation of law.⁵²⁵ The principle of the section was, however, applied in a case decided by Madras High Court⁵²⁶ where a debt for unpaid purchase money on a sale of land was attached and sold, and the auction purchaser was held entitled to the charge which the vendor had under section 55(4)(b) on the property in the hands of the buyer. The court, after observing that the present section did not apply to court sales, said:

The effect of applying section 8 is to strengthen the sale certificate by transferring the lien along with it.

It is difficult to follow this line of reasoning, and these dicta have been treated as obiter in a later case,⁵²⁷ wherein J Madhavan Nair said that section 8 could not override the provisions of the Registration Act, 1908. It is submitted that section 8 cannot apply to court sales. What is sold at a court sale is the right, title and interest of the judgment debtor, and the extent of that interest is a mixed question of fact and law to be decided according to the circumstances of each particular case, and depends upon what the court intended to sell, and the purchaser intended to buy.⁵²⁸ Thus, a court sale of a judgment debtor's interest in property which has been leased, passes rents accrued due at the time of sale, not because rents are incidental to the land, but because the rents were part of the judgment debtor's interest.⁵²⁹ Similarly, an execution sale of a zamindari estate will pass buildings in the zamindari area which are appurtenant to the estate⁵³⁰ and were, therefore, included in the sale, but not indigo factories which though in the estate are not appurtenant thereto.⁵³¹

Revenue sales under the Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act, 1859 stand on a different footing, for the interest of the defaulting proprietor in the land is forfeited or determined, and what is sold is the interest of the government subject to the payment of assessment.⁵³² Accordingly, if he has erected a building on the land, the right to the building would not pass, and he would be entitled to remove the materials, unless the purchaser elected to pay compensation for the building.⁵³³ This is in accordance with the general rule laid down in the case of Thakoor

8. Operation of transfer.—

Chunder v Ramdhone.⁵³⁴

[s 8.5] Different Intention

The general presumption is in favour of a transfer of all the interests of the transferor. A mortgages a mango tree standing on his land to B. A then sells the land to C, and the sale-deed makes no mention of the mortgage. It cannot be inferred that A's interest in the tree did not pass with the sale to C.⁵³⁵

The presumption of a transfer of all the interest can be rebutted by express words or by necessary implication. The words "lease" and "mortgage" of themselves express an intention of transferring an interest less than the transferor is capable of passing. The words "mokarari lease with all rights" express the intention to pass all rights which can be passed by way of lease, but short of an absolute title and the lessee would take permanent lease, but not with subsoil rights in the minerals, for the essential characteristic of a lease is that the corpus does not disappear and minerals must be expressly denominated so as thus to permit the idea of partial consumption of the subject leased.⁵³⁶

In interpretation of agreements, redundant and inapplicable clauses should be ignored in standardized forms adopted by insurance companies, statutory corporations and banks.⁵³⁷ In construing the terms of the contract of insurance, the words expressed by the parties must be given paramount importance.⁵³⁸

The words of the document describing the property must be given due weight. Thus, where it is stated in the deed of settlement that the widow conveyed the property which had passed to her under her husband's will, and the will was invalid, being one executed by a Hindu who had a son living at the time, it cannot be argued that she conveyed also her interest in the property as heir of the son. The recitals showed that the intention was not to transfer all the interest which she was capable of passing, but only the interest acquired under her husband's will. Thus, the deed showed a "different intention" within the meaning of section 8.⁵³⁹

Again, the circumstances of the case may be such as to disclose an intention to restrict the transfer to an interest under one title only. Thus, in Har Prasad v Fazal Ahmed,⁵⁴⁰ a Mahomedan sold two villages to his mother, and left a substantial part of the purchase money with her to be spent in charity. On his death, the mother spent some money in charity and then settled the villages in wakf, subject to a charge for the amount actually paid plus the amount spent in charity. The sale was set aside as being merely a cloak for a gift in fraud of the heirs. The wakf fell with the sale, but it was contended that as the mother was entitled to a third share of the villages as heir to her son, the wakf was operative as to that third share. However, the Privy Council held that the reservation of a charge for what she had paid and spent, showed that the mother had no intention of settling anything of her own or anything except what she thought had been entrusted to her by her son.

An intention to reserve a right may be implied not only from the terms of the deed, but also from the object of the grant. Thus a gift of certain talukas "in order that you may perform those religious ceremonies, celebrate the festivals satisfactorily and may provide for your own support by having the property under your authority and control" was held to confer a life-estate, the Privy Council observing that "the indefinite words of the gift must be limited by the purpose of the gift".⁵⁴¹ In a kharposh gift which is only a grant for life, an intention to reserve mineral rights is implied.⁵⁴² Where the proviso in a lease deed is void as it is unauthorised and the effect of declaring the proviso void will be to leave the rest of the deed whole and intact, the lease without the proviso is valid.⁵⁴³ The different intention may be also to transfer an interest greater than the transferor possesses at the time, and if the property is sold free from encumbrances, the vendor is bound to discharge encumbrances then existing on the property.

8. Operation of transfer.—

[s 8.6] Legal Incidents

The second clause refers to land and defines what is included in its “legal incidents”. An incident is defined in Wharton's Law Lexicon as “a thing necessarily depending upon, appertaining to, or following another that is more worthy—as rent is incidental to a reversion”. The provisions as to legal incidents in the second, third, and fourth paras of this section correspond to section 6 of the Conveyancing and the Law of Property Act, 1881,⁵⁴⁴ where a more detailed list is given. The list in this section is not exhaustive as is shown by the use of the word “includes”.

The following are the legal incidents which pass upon the transfer of property to which they relate:

The benefit of a covenant which runs with the land under section 55(2); or section 65; or section 108(c); a right under section 55(3) to possession of title deeds;⁵⁴⁵ and a right of pre-emption.⁵⁴⁶

[s 8.7] Construction of Deeds

A document has to be construed as a whole. Real intention of the parties has to be gathered, not merely from what ex facie is stated as the description of the property in the schedule, but from the totality of the recitals in the document. Description of the property in the schedule to the document could not be given any overriding importance over the actual area specified in the document as the extent of the land determined upon measurement.⁵⁴⁷ The construction of a document as regards the legal effects will only arise where the document is an instrument of title, or is a contract, or is the direct foundation of legal rights. Where the nature and character of the document are clear, and the only question or dispute is whether the real contract is between the parties is something different from that contained in the document, no question of the construction of the document is involved. There can be no doubt that where the language is plain and unambiguous, the same is to be adhered to.⁵⁴⁸ The construction of a document depends upon the language of the recitals, but not upon its form or nomenclature. The intention of the executant is to be gathered from the words used in the document. To find out whether a document is settlement, gift or a will, the nature of a document has to be examined whether it transferred any interest in property in praesenti, or after the death of the executant. A sale deed that is totally silent on any aspect of reconveyance and pursuant to sale possession was delivered to the buyer, the transfer would amount to a sale and the seller would not be entitled to any reconveyance.⁵⁴⁹ A mere delivery of possession cannot amount to transfer of interest in the property.

[s 8.8] Easements Annexed Thereto

An “easement” is defined in section 4 of the Indian Easements Act, 1882.⁵⁵⁰ The phrase “easements annexed thereto” refers to those easements which at and prior to the transfer were existing easements. It does not refer to an easement which first came into existence as a consequence of transfer.

Under section 19 of the Indian Easements Act, 1882, an easement existing at the date of the transfer passes with the dominant heritage to the transferee. A purchaser of a house acquires a right of way which the vendor has.⁵⁵¹ The illustration to section 19 of the Easements Act, 1882 is that if A owns land to which a right of way is annexed and leases it to B for 20 years, the right of way would vest in B and his legal representatives for so long as the lease continues. A purchaser of land irrigated by the water of a tank is entitled to use the water of the tank for irrigation.⁵⁵²

8. Operation of transfer.—

The words “locks, keys, bars” refer to permanent fixtures and fittings. The words “other thing provided” do not include a right of access by a staircase, when the ownership of the staircase itself is not claimed, and the right of way is not an easement of necessity.⁵⁵³

Apart from legal easements other rights called quasi-easements are created on the severance of property. As to these, section 13 of the Indian Easements Act, 1882, enacts that on partition the grant of an easement of necessity or of an apparent continuous easement shall be implied. The word “annexed” is used in the same sense as the word “appurtenant” in English law,⁵⁵⁴ and indicates that the right is the right of the owner for the time being. The right to a ferry franchise is not necessarily annexed to the land.⁵⁵⁵

Where a common passage was left for the use of the co-sharers in a partition between the members of one family, it was held that such an arrangement did not make the right to a share in the passage a legal incident of the shares allotted to co-sharers.⁵⁵⁶ A purchaser of land cannot claim use of water in a well-constructed in a separate and distinct land. A decree for permanent injunction being one granted for protection of the decree-holder’s statutory easementary right of way appurtenant to his dominant heritage and annexed with the servient tenement of the judgment-debtors, is enforceable in law against the transferee-judgment-debtor, he being the successor-in-interest of the original judgment-debtor.⁵⁵⁷

[s 8.9] Rents and Profits

Rents and profits accrue after the transfer of benefits arise out of the land and are, therefore, within the definition of immovable property. The rents and profits of property mortgaged by an English mortgage form part of the mortgagee’s security.⁵⁵⁸ A buyer’s right to rents and profits, therefore, accrues on the date of the transfer. This is made clear by section 55(4)(a) under which the seller is entitled to the rents and profits of the property until ownership passes to the buyer, and also section 55(6)(a) which declares the buyer entitled to rents and profits when the ownership of the property passes to him. At a court sale, the property vests at the date of sale and so the auction purchaser is entitled to the crops grown between the date of sale and the date of confirmation of the sale.⁵⁵⁹ If the vendor retains possession after the ownership has passed to the buyer, he may be charged for use and occupation. Rents and profits accruing due before the transfer are not legal incidents of the property transferred.⁵⁶⁰ Such arrears of rent are a debt or an actionable claim, and if they are to be transferred, they must be assigned separately.⁵⁶¹ Where additions and alteration in the suit premises were carried out in premises prior to the premises coming into the hands of the original landlord, the landlord cannot pass a better title than what he has and his transferee cannot seek eviction of tenant on grounds of alteration of premises.⁵⁶²

[s 8.10] Attached to the Earth

This phrase is defined in section 3 of TP Act, 1882. What is attached to the earth is immovable property within the definition of the term in the General Clauses Act. What is attached to the earth is part of the land, and passes with it on transfer without express mention.⁵⁶³ In the case of a lease, the right to enjoy the trees and shrubs passes to the lessee.⁵⁶⁴ Trees on an occupancy holding, which is inalienable, are attached to the holding, and cannot be transferred by the occupancy holder.⁵⁶⁵ A house, being embedded in the earth, is immovable property,⁵⁶⁶ and when the land is transferred, buildings erected upon it pass by necessary implication.⁵⁶⁷ However, the owner of the land may not necessarily be the owner of its superstructure,⁵⁶⁸ nor would the subsoil rights form a part of surficial rights of land if the contract so says.⁵⁶⁹ It was held in Ashok Kumar v Chief Controlling Revenue Authority,⁵⁷⁰ that where the owner of the land executed a lease of the land in favor of B for 30 years for construction of a hotel, the ownership rights of this Hotel were not with the owner of the land, but vested in B. It has been held by a Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court, disapproving an earlier Allahabad judgment,⁵⁷¹ that it is a question of fact in each case whether the transfer of an interest in a zamindari also transfers an interest in a residential house.⁵⁷² In case of an auction sale of only the land or a plot, the house built thereupon does not automatically get transferred by virtue of section 8.⁵⁷³ Similarly, a sale of land would pass ownership only in the land and not of the hotel constructed on it by the lessee with the permission of the owner.⁵⁷⁴ All things which are annexed to the property mortgaged are part of the mortgagee's security, and the mortgage need not make mention of structures and fixtures.,⁵⁷⁵ but an iron shed resting on the land by its own weight is not attached to the earth, and is a mere chattel which does not pass on transfer of the land.⁵⁷⁶

8. Operation of transfer.—

Unless a different intention is expressed, a transfer of land would include trees standing on it.⁵⁷⁷ However, no transfer of land can be presumed from transfer of trees.⁵⁷⁸ Failure to mention saplings in the agreement to sell the land, was held to indicate that they were not intended to be sold.⁵⁷⁹

[s 8.11] Minerals

Minerals are embedded in the earth, and pass on sale of the land. In Raja Anand v State of Uttar Pradesh,⁵⁸⁰ the Supreme Court observed that prima facie the owner of the surface is entitled ex jure to everything beneath the land, and held that a transfer of the right to the surface conveys the right to the minerals underneath, unless there is an express or implied reservation in the grant. Whether a lease passes a right to sub-soil minerals depends on the terms of the grant.⁵⁸¹ A permanent lease by a Bengal zamindar does not imply a grant of mineral rights.⁵⁸² In Ali Quadar v Jogendra,⁵⁸³ JJ Prinsep and Hill held that a grant of a patni taluka transfers mineral rights. The Judicial Committee intimated in one case that this decision had not been overruled,⁵⁸⁴ and it has since been followed.⁵⁸⁵ However, the point is now settled against the patnidar, for in *Bejoy Singh Dudhorin v Surendra Narayan Singh*⁵⁸⁶ the Judicial Committee have held that even in the case of a patni tenure the onus is on the patnidar to prove the inclusion of subsoil rights in the grant. As between zamindar and jagirdar, it is well-settled that the zamindar must be regarded as the owner of the minerals.⁵⁸⁷

In Raja Anand v State of Uttar Pradesh State,⁵⁸⁸ the Supreme Court applied the same general principle in construing a sanad granted by the government creating a zamindari and held that as the object was to make the zamindar the owner of the soil, he was entitled to the minerals. It is submitted that this decision was given on the peculiar facts of the case, and was based on the language of the particular sanad and the subsequent conduct of the parties, and does not affect the general principle stated in earlier editions of this work that if the grantor is the government, there is a presumption that mineral rights are reserved.

[s 8.11.1] Shells

An agricultural tenant may dig up shells for the purpose of cultivating his land, but has not the right to appropriate the shells to his own use.⁵⁸⁹

[s 8.12] Machinery as to the Third clause

The section assumes that the machinery is attached to the earth and is, therefore, a fixture, and then enacts that the movable parts of the machine, although they are detachable, pass with the land and the fixed machine. This is an illustration of the principle stated by Lord Hardwicke in *Lawton v Lawton*⁵⁹⁰ that "you shall not destroy the principal thing, by taking away the accessory to it."

[s 8.13] House

The fourth clause merely repeats in regard to a house what has already been enacted in the first and second clauses as to property generally. If the property transferred is a house, the easements annexed to it will also pass not only under this section, but also under section 19 of the Easements Act, 1882. The transferee is also entitled to rents and profits accruing after the transfer. Locks, bars, keys doors and windows have no separate existence from the house.⁵⁹¹

[s 8.14] Debts

8. Operation of transfer.—

The fifth clause relates to debts and other actionable claims. The transfer of a debt or actionable claim raises a presumption that the security for the debt has been transferred. The assignment of the debt will, unless a different intention is expressed or implied, draw the securities after it according to the maxim omne principale trahit ad se accessorium.⁵⁹² The transfer of a debt passes all interest the transferor may have to recover the debt. A promissory note is sometimes described as a security for the debt, but the expression is inaccurate, for a promissory note if not itself the contract of loan, is a conditional payment of the debt. If a mortgagee holds a promissory note for a part of the debt, and retains it after transferring the mortgagee, he will be restrained from suing on it pending a suit for redemption.⁵⁹³ However, a bona fide endorsee for value of the note without notice of the mortgage will be entitled to recover on it.⁵⁹⁴ Where what is transferred is not the debt, but the property in the promissory note, the section does not apply.⁵⁹⁵

The question arose in a case before the Supreme Court⁵⁹⁶ as to whether the transferee of the entire assets of a company including the right to continue a suit filed by the company obtained, by reason of section 8, the right to obtain a decree in the said suit. Justice Das, (as he then was) held that no decree was in existence at the date of transfer, and that section 8 was inapplicable as it only refers to property in existence at the time of transfer. Justice Bhagwati, who concurred in the result held, however, that in such cases there was, by the transfer of the debt, “necessarily involved also, a transfer of the transferor’s right in a decree which may be passed in his favour in pending litigation and the moment a decree is passed in his favour by the court of law, that decree is also automatically transferred in favour of the transferee by virtue of the assignment in writing already executed by the transferor.” Justice Imam who was the third Judge on the Bench, expressed no opinion on this point.⁵⁹⁷

The rule in this section is distinct from the doctrine of subrogation enacted in section 92 by which a co-debtor or a surety is subrogated to the creditor he has paid off. However, the exception made in the parenthesis is similar to that in the last para of section 92. For just as there is no subrogation when a mortgage is partially paid off, so there is no transfer of a security on the payment of a debt when the security covers other debts also.

[s 8.15] Mortgage Debts

Before mortgage debts were excluded from the definition of actionable claims, the assignment of the mortgage debt carried with it an assignment of the mortgage security.⁵⁹⁸ However, since mortgage debts have been excluded from the definition by Act 2 of 1900, section 8 no longer applies, for the word “debt” in this section must be confined to such debts as fall within the general definition of actionable claims.⁵⁹⁹ A mortgage being immovable property can only be transferred by a registered instrument.⁶⁰⁰

In Perumal v Perumal,⁶⁰¹ CJ Wallis said that although a debt secured by a written mortgage could not be assigned without a registered deed, yet in the case of a promissory note secured by an equitable mortgage, the endorsement of the note operates to carry the security with it. The authorities cited were *Cunniah v Gopala Chettiars*⁶⁰² and Nataraja v The South Indian Bank.⁶⁰³ The authorities do not, however, support the conclusion. In the first case, the note was endorsed merely for collection and in the second case, the mortgage debt was attached and sold in execution. Although a mortgage debt is immovable property under the TP Act, 1882, yet it is treated in some cases as movable property under the Code of Civil Procedure 1908—(O XXI, rules 45 and 54)—so that if a mortgage debt is attached and sold, the purchaser acquires not only the debt, but also the right to realise it by enforcement of the mortgage.⁶⁰⁴ Nevertheless, in principle there is no reason to differentiate between a written mortgage and a mortgage by deposit of title-deeds and the dictum of CJ Wallis was dissented from in *Elumalai v Balakrishna*⁶⁰⁵ where it was held that the assignment of a debt secured by a deposit of title-deeds does not pass the security in the absence of a registered assignment of the mortgage.

8. Operation of transfer.—

In the case last cited J Krishnan said:

In my view, it is only if a mortgage debt is transferred as a secured debt that it will carry the securities with it on the principle embodied in section 8, and not otherwise. Even in the case of a mortgage where there is no promissory note it cannot, I think, be said that the law does not allow the mortgagee to transfer the debt as an unsecured or simple debt without a registered instrument if he thinks fit to do so. The security is for his benefit and he can give it up if he likes; and the transferee will then get the right to the debt, but not to the security. Thus, as regards transferability in law as an unsecured debt, a mortgage for which a negotiable instrument has been taken does not seem to me to differ fundamentally from one where none such has been taken. In my view, in either case if the debt is transferred by endorsement or otherwise, without the transferor taking care to transfer the mortgage right by registered instrument, the debt and the security will get dissociated and the security may possibly cease.⁶⁰⁶

In Imperial Bank of India v Bengal National Bank,⁶⁰⁷ the Privy Council went further. The Calcutta High Court had held that a transfer of a mortgage debt failed for want of a registered assignment, but the Privy Council held that the transfer might be treated as the transfer of a debt dissociated from the security, and that it was capable of being transferred under section 6 of the TP Act, 1882. Their Lordships considered that the debt divorced from the security was not an actionable claim, but a species of property for the transfer of which no specific mode was provided in the TP Act, 1882 so that the transferee had to sue in the name of the transferor.

The question of the transfer of a mortgage debt was again considered in the case of Fanny Skinner v Bank of Upper India.⁶⁰⁸ Fanny Skinner had borrowed money from the bank secured by a simple mortgage. The bank went into liquidation, and the liquidator as part of an arrangement of reconstruction executed an unregistered agreement transferring the mortgage debt to a trust. The liquidator then sued to enforce the mortgage. It was held that the agreement had not been completed and that as no transfer had been effected, the liquidator was entitled to sue. In the course of the case an interesting argument was raised and disposed of. It was contended that the agreement being unregistered, it operated as a transfer of the debt, but not of the security, so that the bank was left without the debt but with the security, and that the bank having lost the debt could not enforce the security. This was said to be the effect of the decision in Imperial Bank of India v Bengal National Bank.⁶⁰⁹ Their Lordships explained that that case did not lead to so extraordinary a result. In that case, the mortgage debt were due to the Bengal bank and had been mortgaged by that bank to debenture holders.

The debenture holders could recover from the Bengal bank the moneys they had lent to the bank, and for the security of which the Bengal bank had transferred the mortgage debts due to itself. However, it was only if the debenture holders proceeded to realize the mortgage debts due to the Bengal bank that it was necessary for them to sue in the name of that bank.

[s 8.16] Debt Secured by a Charge

A debt secured by a charge is not a mortgage debt, and may be transferred as an actionable claim by an unregistered instrument. A charge differs from a mortgage in that it does not transfer an interest in property, but creates a right to payment out of the property specified.⁶¹⁰ Nevertheless, it falls within section 17 of the Registration Act, 1908 and the assignment of a charge must be by registered instrument.⁶¹¹ An unregistered assignment of a debt to which a charge was annexed would pass the debt, but not the charge. This is the effect of the decision of the Madras High Court in Rajagopala v Ranganatha.⁶¹² Although in that case the assignment had been construed as an express assignment of the charge as well as the debt, it is submitted that this makes no difference for even if the assignment is not an express assignment of the charge, but merely operates as such an assignment, it comes within section 17(1)(b) of the Registration Act, 1908. In a judgment in an earlier stage of the case last cited, J Madhavan Nair said that section 8 of the TP Act, 1882 cannot override the provisions of the Registration Act, 1908.⁶¹³ Another Madras case must be distinguished, for it referred to a sale certificate which does not require registration.⁶¹⁴ The authority of that judgment is also impaired by an incorrect statement that an assignment of a charge need not be by registered instrument.⁶¹⁵ A case of Calcutta High Court also referred to the assignment of a charge with the debt, but the question of registration was not considered.⁶¹⁶

8. Operation of transfer.—

[s 8.17] Decree

A decree is not an actionable claim, and a purchaser of a money decree for a secured debt cannot be behind the decree and enforce the security.⁶¹⁷

[s 8.18] Interest on Debt

As to the sixth clause—the right of the transferee to the interest or income accrues from the date of the transfer in the same way as the right to rent and profits referred to in the second clause of the section. A transfer of shares, securities and promissory notes carries with it the right to future dividends and interest. If a debt is transferred, interest accruing after the date of the transfer passes as a legal incident of the property transferred, but not arrears of interest. If the debt is time-barred, the court cannot award interest, for interest is an accessory and when the principal is barred, the accessory falls along with it.⁶¹⁸

[s 8.19] Possession

The maxim “possession follows title” is applicable in cases where proof of actual possession cannot reasonably be expected, for instance, in the case of waste lands, or where nothing is known about possession one-way or another. Presumption of title as a result of possession, can arise only where facts disclose that no title vests in any party.

490 Nadupari Narayana v Ijjada Narayana, AIR 2002 AP 387 [LNIND 2002 AP 164] : (2002) 3 ALT 681 .

491 Kalidas v Kanhayalal, (1884) ILR 11 Cal 121, p 131 : 11 IA 218, p 228; UOI v Millenium, Mumbai Broadcasting Ltd, AIR 2006 SC 2751 [LNIND 2006 SC 320] : (2006) 10 SCC 510 [LNIND 2006 SC 320] : 2006 Supp (2) SCR 587 ; Ramchandra v Kalyan Singh, AIR 2006 All 184 : (2006) 1 RD 720; Bishwanath Pratap Singh v Rajendra Prasad, AIR 2006 SC 2965 [LNIND 2006 SC 146] : (2006) 4 SCC 432 [LNIND 2006 SC 146] ; Harbans Singh v Takamani Devi, AIR 1990 Pat. 26 .

492 Syed Ashgar v Syed Mahomed, 30 IA 71, 75 : (1903) ILR 30 Cal 556; Leon Gan Kyu v Maung Gyi, 142 IC 12 : AIR 1933 Rang 24 ; Sheoraj v Gangu Prasad Rai, AIR 1941 Oudh 395 .

493 Mahamed Hasham v Bhekari Lal, AIR 1953 All 705 [LNIND 1953 ALL 93] : (1953) All LJ 391.

494 Arkkani v Subramniam, AIR 2007 (NOC) 2118 Mad..

495 Rajkumar Rajinder Singh v State of Himachal Pradesh, (1990) 4 SCC 320 , p 336 : AIR 1990 SC 1833 .

496 See note (2) below.

497 Tarachand v Lakshman, (1876) ILR 1 Bom 91, p 94.

498 Raja Gour Chandra v Raja Makunda, (1904) 9 Cal WN 710.

499 Jyoti Prasad Singh v Seddon, (1940) ILR 19 Pat 433 : 192 IC 17 : AIR 1940 Pat. 516 ; Bisheshwar Singh v Achhaibar Din, AIR 1941 Oudh 507 . But see Umrao Singh v Kacheru Singh, AIR 1939 All 415 ; and Decota Din v Gur Prasad, (1955) ILR 1 All 718 : 53 All LJ 157 : AIR 1955 All 292 [LNIND 1954 ALL 231] .

500 Chumar v Narayanan Nair, AIR 1986 Ker. 236 [LNIND 1985 KER 294] .

8. Operation of transfer.—

- 501 Sheodhyan Singh v Sanichara Kuer, AIR 1963 SC 1879 [LNIND 1961 SC 233] : [1962] 2 SCR 753 [LNIND 1961 SC 233] .
- 502 Babaji Dehuri v Biranchi Ananta, AIR 1996 Ori. 183 [LNIND 1996 ORI 155] .
- 503 Narain Prasand Singh v State of Bihar, AIR 1983 Pat. 244 , p 245, para 4.
- 504 Delhi Development Authority v Jitender Pal Bhardwaj, AIR 2010 SC 497 [LNINDORD 2009 SC 103] : 2009 (13) Scale 391 [LNINDORD 2009 SC 103] : LNINDORD 2009 SC 103 .
- 505 V Ethiraj v S Sridevi, AIR 2014 Kant. 58 [LNIND 2013 KANT 370] : 2014 (1) Kant LJ 273 [LNIND 2013 KANT 370] : LNIND 2013 KANT 370 .
- 506 Vitthal Maharu Patil v Fakira Bhavsing Patil, AIR 2011 (NOC) 292 Bom : 2011 (5) Bom CR 864 : 2011 (3) MhLJ 910 [LNIND 2011 AUG 40] .
- 507 Mohd Shafri v Talai Ram, AIR 1985 P&H. 121.
- 508 Municipal Corp, Jodhpur v Rajendra Bhandhari, AIR 2001 Raj. 9 .
- 509 Orissa Power Transmission Corp Ltd v Asia School of Management Trust, 2013 (8) SCC 738 [LNINDU 2013 SC 30] : JT 2013 (11) SC 25 : 2013 (4) RCR (Civil) 61 : 2013 (10) Scale 96 [LNINDU 2013 SC 30] .
- 510 Bijroj Napani v Para Sundari, (1915) ILR 42 Cal 56 : 41 IA 189 : 24 IC 296; Gangabai v Sonabai, (1916) ILR 40 Bom 69 : 28 IC 544; Mithibai v Meherbai, (1922) ILR 46 Bom 162 : 64 IC 397 : AIR 1922 Bom 179 (a will); Fazal Ahmad v Har Prasad, (1929) 27 All LJ 620 : 116 IC 1 : AIR 1929 All 465 .
- 511 Kutcherlakota Vijaylakshmi v Radinet Rajaratnamba, AIR 1991 AP 50 [LNIND 1990 AP 71] , p 52.
- 512 Ram Narain v Peary, (1883) ILR 9 Cal 830.
- 513 Mahomed Shumsool v Shewukram, 2 IA 7 : 14 Beng LR 226 : 22 WR 409.
- 514 Sheoraji v Ram Sawari Devi, (1934) All LJ 1013 : 152 IC 387 : AIR 1935 All 43 .
- 515 Hitendra Singh v Maharaja of Darbhanga, (1928) ILR 7 Pat 500 : 55 IA 197 : 109 IC 858 : AIR 1928 PC 112 (to hold the property from generation to generation); Wazir Devi v Ram Chand, (1920) ILR 1 Lah 415 : 58 IC 988 (kulliktiyar wa milkiat); Thakur Jagmohan v Sheoraj, (1928) ILR 3 Luck 19 : 106 IC 593 : AIR 1928 Oudh 49 (owner with power of transfer).
- 516 Lalit Mohun v Chukkun Lal, (1897) ILR 24 Cal 834 : 24 IA 76, p 88; Surajmani v Rabina, (1908) ILR 30 All 84 : 35 IA 17; Naulaki v Jai Kishan, (1918) ILR 40 All 575 : 46 IC 905; Bhaidas v Bai Gulab, (1922) ILR 46 Bom 153 : 49 IA 1 : 65 IC 974 : AIR 1922 PC 193 ; Jagmohan Singh v Sri Nath, 57 IA 291 : 128 IC 270 : AIR 1930 PC 253 ; Saraju Bala v Jyotirmoyee, (1931) 35 Cal WN 903 : 58 IA 270 : 134 IC 648 : AIR 1931 PC 179 .
- 517 Mahomed Shamsool v Shewukram, (1875) 14 Beng LR 226 : 2 IA 7 : 22 WR 409; Motilal v Advocate General of Bombay, (1911) ILR 35 Bom 279 : 11 IC 547; Mithibai v Meherbai, (1922) ILR 46 Bom 162 : 64 IC 397 : AIR 1922 Bom 179 ; Ashurfi Singh v Biseswar, (1922) ILR 1 Pat 295 : 65 IC 977 : AIR 1922 Pat. 362 .
- 518 Shalig Ram v Charanjit, 57 IA 282 : 128 IC 265 : AIR 1930 PC 239 ; Jagmohan Singh v Sri Nath, 57 IA 291 : 128 IC 270 : AIR 1930 PC 253 .
- 519 Hitendra Singh v Maharaja of Darbhanga, (1928) ILR 7 Pat 500.
- 520 A Srinivasa Pai v Saraswati Ammal, AIR 1985 SC 1359 [LNIND 1985 SC 220] : (1985) 4 SCC 85 [LNIND 1985 SC 220] .
- 521 Fatima Sorjini Suresh v K Saraswati Amma, AIR 1986 Ker. 56 [LNIND 1985 KER 21] .
- 522 Subbiah Naidu v Govindraj, AIR 1985 Mad. 57 (NOC).
- 523 CIT, Madhya Pradesh v Maharaja Bahadur Singh, AIR 1987 SC 518 [LNIND 1986 SC 376] : (1986) 4 SCC 512 [LNIND 1986 SC 376] .
- 524 G Narasimhulu Chetti v S Pandurangaiah Chetti, AIR 1996 AP 24 [LNIND 1995 AP 306] : (1995) 3 ALT 193 .
- 525 See Penumetsa Subbaraju v Veegasena Seetharamaraju, (1916) ILR 39 Mad 283 : 28 IC 232; Nandlal v Sunder, AIR 1944 All 17 ; Krishna Mohan v Bal Krishna Chaturvedi, AIR 2001 All 334 [LNIND 2001 ALL 624] : (2001) 3 All WC 2080; Transfer of Property Act, 1882, section 2 (d).
- 526 Sambasiva v Venkatarama, (1926) 51 Mad LJ 95, p 98 : 95 IC 447 : AIR 1926 Mad. 903 [LNIND 1926 MAD 24] .
- 527 Ranganatha v Rajagopala, 142 IC 730 : AIR 1933 Mad. 181 [LNIND 1931 MAD 167] affirmed in Rajagopala v Ranganatha, 152 IC 375 : AIR 1934 Mad. 615 .
- 528 Abdul Aziz v Appayasami, (1904) ILR 27 Mad 131 : 31 IA 1.
- 529 Ma Hawa Bi v Sein Ko, (1927) ILR 5 Rang 808 : 109 IC 151 : AIR 1928 Rang 67 .

8. Operation of transfer.—

- 530 Abu Hasan v Ramzan Ali, (1882) ILR 4 All 381; Deokinandan v Aghorenath, AIR 1945 Rang 400 .
- 531 Durga Singh v Bisheshar Dayal, (1902) ILR 24 All 218.
- 532 Maharaja Suriya Kanta Achariya v Sarat Chandra Roy, (1914) 18 Cal WN 1281 : 25 IC 309 (PC).
- 533 Jatindra Nath Roy Chowdhury v Narayan Das Khettry, (1925) ILR 52 Cal 862 : 90 IC 901 : AIR 1926 Cal 97 .
- 534 Thakoor Chunder v Ramdhone, (1868) 6 WR 228 ; See note under section 3 “English and Indian law of fixtures”.
- 535 Pandurang v Bhimrav, (1898) ILR 22 Bom 610, and see Deota Din v Gur Prasad, (1955) ILR 1 All 718 : 53 All LJ 157 : AIR 1955 All 292 [LNIND 1954 ALL 231] .
- 536 Girdhari Singh v Megh Lal Pandey, (1918) ILR 45 Cal 87 : 44 IA 246 : 42 IC 651 (PC).
- 537 Shanti Budhiya Vesta Patel v Nirmala Jayprakash Tiwari, (2010) 5 SCC 104 [LNIND 2010 SC 379] : AIR 2010 SC 2132 [LNIND 2010 SC 379] : 2010 (4)Scale 182 [LNIND 2010 SC 379] : LNIND 2010 SC 379 .
- 538 Suraj Mal Ram Niwas Oil Mills Pvt Ltd v United India Insurance Co Ltd, AIR 2010 SC (Supp) 23(2) : 2010 (10) Scale 640 [LNIND 2010 SC 983] : (2010) 10 SCC 567 [LNIND 2010 SC 983] .
- 539 K Subbaiah v A Rangaiah, AIR 1972 AP 246 [LNIND 1971 AP 181] .
- 540 Har Prasad v Fazal Ahmed, 60 IA 116 : 37 Cal WN 490 : 64 Mad LJ 514 : (1933) All LJ 331 : 35 Beng LR 496 : 142 IC 217 : AIR 1933 PC 83 .
- 541 Kalidas Mullick v Kanhya Lal, (1884) ILR 11 Cal 121 : 11 IA 218, p 228 (PC).
- 542 Tituram v Cohen, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 203 : 32 IA 185 (PC).
- 543 Kannpura Development Co v Kamakshya Narain Singh, [1956] SCR 325 : AIR 1956 SC 446 [LNIND 1956 SC 31] : [1956] SCJ 511 .
- 544 Now replaced by section 62, Law of Property Act, 1925.
- 545 Bhavani v Devrao, (1887) ILR 11 Bom 485.
- 546 Bhajan v Mushtaq Ahmed, (1883) ILR 5 All 324.
- 547 Sumathy Amma v Sankara Pillai, AIR 1987 Ker. 84 .
- 548 Shyam Sunder Ganeriwalla v Delta International Ltd, AIR 1998 Cal 233 [LNIND 1997 CAL 289] .
- 549 Vitthal Maharn Patil v Fakira Bhavsing Patil, AIR 2011 (NOC) 292 Bom.
- 550 See note “Easements” under section 6(c).
- 551 Nubeen Chunder v Bhoobun, (1871) 15 WR 526 .
- 552 Venkata v Secretary of State, (1902) 12 Mad LJ 432.
- 553 Ahmad Ali v Dhondba, (1937) ILR Nag 204 : 171 IC 496 : AIR 1937 Ngp 179 .
- 554 Wutzler v Sharpe, (1893) ILR 15 All 270, p 288.
- 555 Nityahari v Dunne, (1891) ILR 18 Cal 652; Dhanpat v Raja Pasput, (1931) ILR 53 All 764 : 135 IC 545 : AIR 1931 All 587 .
- 556 Hannda Khatun v Barghageri Paerotaqat, AIR 1947 Pat. 122 .
- 557 Ramachandra Deshpande v Laxmana Rao Kulkarni, AIR 2000 Kant. 298 [LNIND 2000 KANT 284] , para 20.
- 558 Ma Joo Tean v The Collector of Rangoon, (1934) ILR 12 Rang 437 : 155 IC 776 : AIR 1934 Rang 321 .
- 559 Harihar v Narayana, 145 IC 174 : AIR 1933 Mad. 482 [LNIND 1932 MAD 286] ; Kota Narayana v P Suryanarayana, AIR 1973 AP 94 [LNIND 1972 AP 102] ; see also Transfer of Property Act, 1882, section 36.
- 560 Bhogilal v Jethalal, (1928) 30 Bom LR 1588 : 114 IC 262 : AIR 1929 Bom 51 ; Ganesh v Shamnarain, (1879) ILR 6 Cal 213; Muthu v Natravarithi, 58 IC 383; Chandrasekharalingam v Naghabushanam, (1927) 53 Mad LJ 342 : 104 IC 409 : AIR 1927 Mad. 817 ; Poongavanam v Subramanya, (1951) 1 Mad LJ 69 : AIR 1951 Mad. 601 [LNIND 1950 MAD 141] .
- 561 Sheogobind Singh v Gouri Prasad, (1925) ILR 4 Pat 3 : 83 IC 81 : AIR 1925 Pat. 310 ; see also Transfer of Property Act, 1882, section 50.
- 562 Yogesh Verma v Shiv Kumar Agarwal, AIR 2018 (NOC) 278 Sikkim..

8. Operation of transfer.—

- 563 Faqueer Soonra v Khuderson, (1870) 2 NWP 251 (sale of house and compound includes trees standing therein); Fitarat Husain v Liaqat Ali, AIR 1939 All 291 . (Holding that title to trees and shrubs passes with the transfer of proprietary rights in the land.)
- 564 Badam v Ganga, (1897) ILR 29 All 484.
- 565 Imdad Khatun v Bhagirath, (1888) ILR 10 All 159; Kausalia v Gulab, (1899) ILR 21 All 297; Janki v Sheoadhar, (1901) ILR 23 All 211; Nafar Chandra v Ram Lal, (1895) ILR 22 Cal 742.
- 566 Nathu Miah v Nand Rani, (1872) 8 Beng LR 508 : 17 WR 309; Dinonath v Adhor, (1899) 4 Cal WN 470.
- 567 Asgar v Mahomed Medhi Hossein, (1903) ILR 30 Cal 566 : 30 IA 71; Macleod v Kissan, (1906) ILR 30 Bom 250; Balram v Ganga Singh, 93 IC 287 : AIR 1926 Oudh 358 ; Srimati Krishna Kumari v Bhaya Rajendra, (1927) ILR 2 Luck 43 : 104 IC 155 : AIR 1927 Oudh 240 (case of a will).
- 568 Shivashakti Builders and Financial Co Ltd, Re (2010) 158 COMP CASES 237 Pat.
- 569 K Thippanna v Varalakshmi, (2012) 3 SCC 576 [LNIND 2012 SC 1512] : LNIND 2012 SC 142 : 2012 (3)Scale 34 [LNIND 2012 SC 142] : 2012 3 Mad LJ 818 SC.
- 570 Ashok Kumar v Chief Controlling Revenue Authority, AIR 2011 All 142 [LNIND 2011 ALL 61] : LNIND 2011 ALL 61 .
- 571 Umrao Singh v Kacheru Singh, AIR 1939 All 415 .
- 572 Deota Din v Gur Prasad, (1955) ILR 1 All 718 : 53 All LJ 157 : AIR 1955 All 292 [LNIND 1954 ALL 231] .
- 573 Krishna Mohan v Bal Krishna Chaturvedi, AIR 2001 All 334 [LNIND 2001 ALL 624] : (2001) 3 All WC 2080.
- 574 Ashok Kumar v Chief Controlling Revenue Authority, UP, Allahabad, AIR 2011 All 142 [LNIND 2011 ALL 61] .
- 575 Macleod v Kissan, (1906) ILR 30 Bom 250; Hari Pada v Anath Nath, (1917) 22 Cal WN 758 : 44 IC 211.
- 576 Chaturbhuj v Bennet, (1905) ILR 29 Bom 323.
- 577 Divisional Forest Officer v Daut, [1968] 2 SCR 112 [LNIND 1967 SC 311] : AIR 1968 SC 612 [LNIND 1967 SC 311] : [1968] 2 SCJ 322 [LNIND 1967 SC 311] . See also Mahmood Haran Khan v Bhikhari Lal, AIR 1953 All 705 [LNIND 1953 ALL 93] ; Bhoop Singh v Sri Ram, AIR 1940 All 427 ; Ram Chandra v Kalyan Singh, AIR 2006 All 184 : (2006) 1 RD 720.
- 578 See Vishwa Nath v Ramraj, AIR 1991 All 193 [LNIND 1990 ALL 107] , p 195.
- 579 Kundan v Addl District Judge, Bulandshahr, AIR 1990 All 121 [LNIND 1990 ALL 106] , p 123—(this decision should be confined to the facts of its own case particularly in view of the finding in the judgment that a “bare perusal of the agreement to sell... would indicate that only the plot (arazi) was intended to be sold.”
- 580 Raja Anand v State of Uttar Pradesh, [1967] 1 SCR 373 [LNIND 1966 SC 190] : AIR 1967 SC 1081 [LNIND 1966 SC 190] : [1967] 2 SCJ 830 [LNIND 1966 SC 190] : [1967] 1 SCA 591 [LNIND 1966 SC 190] .
- 581 Rowbotham v Wilson, [1860] 8 HLC 348, p 360.
- 582 Giridhari Singh v Megh Lal Pandey, (1918) ILR 45 Cal 87 : 44 IA 246 : 42 IC 651; Sashi Bhusan v Jyoti Prasad, (1917) ILR 44 Cal 585, p 594 : 44 IA 46 : 40 IC 139; Jagat Mohan v Pratab Udai Nath, (1931) ILR 10 Pat 877 : 134 IC 1073 : AIR 1931 PC 302 ; Hari Narayan v Sriram, 37 IA 136 : 6 IC 785 (PC); Tituram v Cohen, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 203 : 32 IA 185; Gobinda Narayan v Sham Lal, (1931) ILR 58 Cal 1187 : 58 IA 125 : 131 IC 753 : AIR 1931 PC 89 ; Nageshar Bux v Bengal Coal Co, (1931) ILR 10 Pat 407 : 58 IA 29 : 130 IC 315 : AIR 1931 PC 186 ; HV Low and Co Ltd v Jyoti Prasad Singh Deo, 58 IA 392 : 35 Cal WN 1246 : 54 Cal LJ 366 : 33 Bom LR 1544 : 61 Mad LJ 699 : (1931) All LJ 1112 : 135 IC 632 : AIR 1931 PC 299 .
- 583 Ali Quadar v Jogendra, (1912) 16 Cal LJ 7 : 16 IC 441.
- 584 Satya Niranjana Chakravarti v Ram Lal Kaviraj, (1925) 4 ILR Pat 244 : 52 IA 109 : 86 IC 289 : AIR 1925 PC 42 .
- 585 Rajeswar Prosad v Anil Kumar, (1928) ILR 55 Cal 35 : 106 IC 117 : AIR 1927 Cal 956 .
- 586 Bejoy Singh Dudhorin v Surendra Narayan Singh, (1928) ILR 56 Cal I : 55 IA 320 : 111 IC 345 : AIR 1928 PC 234 ; Bhupendra v Rajeshwar, 58 IA 228 : 132 IC 610 : AIR 1931 PC 162 .
- 587 Bageshwari Charan v Kumar Kamakya Narain Singh, (1931) ILR 10 Pat 296 : 58 IA 9 : 131 IC 325 : AIR 1931 PC 30 .
- 588 Raja Anand v State of Uttar Pradesh State, [1967] 1 SCR 373 [LNIND 1966 SC 190] : AIR 1967 SC 1081 [LNIND 1966 SC 190] .
- 589 Chaladom v Kakkath Kunhambu, (1902) ILR 25 Mad 669.
- 590 Lawton v Lawton, [1743] 3 Atk 13, p 15; As to when machinery is considered a fixture, see notes under section 3.

8. Operation of transfer.—

- 591 Peru Bepari v Ronuo, (1884) ILR 11 Cal 164; Queen Empress v Sheikh Ibrahim, (1890) ILR 13 Mad 518; Purshotama v Municipal Council, (1891) ILR 14 Mad 467.
- 592 Ghose, Law of Mortgage, p 76.
- 593 Walker v Jones, [1866] LR 1 PC 50.
- 594 Glasscock v Balls, [\[1890\] 24 QBD 13](#).
- 595 Raghuvalu v Rajalingam, AIR 1939 Mad. 846 [\[LNIND 1939 MAD 131\]](#).
- 596 Jugal Kishore Saraf v Raw Cotton Co Ltd, [1955] 1 SCR 1369 [\[LNIND 1955 SC 21\]](#) : AIR 1955 SC 376 [\[LNIND 1955 SC 21\]](#) : [1955] SCJ 371 [\[LNIND 1955 SC 21\]](#).
- 597 A view similar to that of J Bhagwati has been expressed in a different context by the Supreme Court in Bharat Nidhi Ltd v Takhatmal, [1969] 1 SCR 595 [\[LNIND 1968 SC 416\]](#) : AIR 1969 SC 313 [\[LNIND 1968 SC 416\]](#) : [1969] 1 SCJ 367.
- 598 Subramaniam v Perumal, (1895) ILR 18 Mad 454; Perumal v Perumal, (1921) ILR 44 Mad 196, p 200 : 61 IC 461 : AIR 1921 Mad. 137 ; Sakhiuddin v Sonaulah, (1917) 22 Cal WN 641, p 644 : 45 IC 986.
- 599 Arunachellam v Subramania, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 235.
- 600 Perumal v Perumal, (1921) ILR 44 Mad 196, p 200 : 61 IC 461 : AIR 1921 Mad. 137 ; Bank of Upper India etc v Fanny Skinner, (1929) ILR 51 All 494 : 119 IC 241 : AIR 1929 All 161 : on app 62 IA 115 : 155 IC 743 : AIR 1935 PC 108 ; Villa v Petley, 148 IC 721 : AIR 1934 Rang 51 ; Girdhar v Motilal Champalal, (1941) ILR Nag 615 : (1940) Nag LJ 151 : 192 IC 556 : AIR 1941 Ngp 15.
- 601 Perumal v Perumal, (1921) ILR 44 Mad 196 : 61 IC 461 : AIR 1921 Mad. 137.
- 602 Cunniah v Gopala Chettiars, (1919) Mad WN 613 : 52 IC 879.
- 603 Nataraja v The South Indian Bank, (1914) ILR 37 Mad 51 : 13 IC 91.
- 604 Elumalai v Balakrishna, (1921) ILR 44 Mad 965 : 66 IC 168 : AIR 1922 Mad. 344 [\[LNIND 1921 MAD 65\]](#), dissenting from Perumal v Perumal, (1921) ILR 44 Mad 196, p 200 : 61 IC 461 : AIR 1921 Mad. 137.
- 605 Elumalai v Balakrishna, (1921) ILR 44 Mad 965; and see V Vr Bank v KM Bank, AIR 1949 Mad. 52.
- 606 (1921) ILR 44 Mad 965, p 969.
- 607 Imperial Bank of India v Bengal National Bank, (1931) ILR 59 Cal 377 : 58 IA 323 : 35 Cal WN 1034 : 54 Cal LJ 117 : (1931) All LJ 804 : 61 Mad LJ 589 : 33 BLR 1338 : 134 IC 6 : AIR 1931 PC 245.
- 608 Fanny Skinner v Bank of Upper India, 62 IA 115 : 5 IC 743 : AIR 1935 PC 108.
- 609 Imperial Bank of India v Bengal National Bank, (1931) ILR 59 Cal 377 : 58 IA 323 : 35 Cal WN 1034.
- 610 Gobinda Chandra v Dwarka Nath, (1908) ILR 35 Cal 837.
- 611 Imperial Bank of India v Bengal National Bank, (1931) ILR 58 Cal 136 : 131 IC 689 : AIR 1931 Cal 223 reversed on another point in 58 IA 323 : 134 IC 651 : AIR 1931 PC 245.
- 612 Rajagopala v Ranganatha, 152 IC 375 : AIR 1934 Mad. 615.
- 613 Ranganatha v Rajagopala, 142 IC 730 : AIR 1933 Mad. 181 [\[LNIND 1931 MAD 167\]](#).
- 614 Sambasiva v Venkatarama, (1926) 51 Mad LJ 95 : 95 IC 447 : AIR 1926 Mad. 903 [\[LNIND 1926 MAD 24\]](#).
- 615 See Rangampudi v Venkateswarlu, 152 IC 772 : AIR 1934 Mad. 713 where the same learned judge has expressed the opposite opinion.
- 616 Sheonandan Lal v Zainul, (1915) ILR 42 Cal 849 : 29 IC 869.
- 617 Ganpat v Sarupi, (1878) ILR 1 All 446.
- 618 Dhondiram v Taba, (1903) ILR 27 Bom 330; Hollis v Palmer, (1836) 2 Beng NC 713.

9. Oral Transfer.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

9. Oral Transfer.—

A transfer of property may be made without writing in every case in which a writing is not expressly required by law.

[s 9.1] Oral transfer

Writing was not necessary under the Hindu law for the validity of any transfer whatsoever,⁶¹⁹ and in all ancient systems of law, transfer of possession was the only requisite to the transfer of title. The TP Act, 1882 makes writing necessary in the case of a sale of tangible immovable property of the value of ₹100 or upwards, or the sale of a reversion or other intangible thing;⁶²⁰ in the case of a simple mortgage, and in the case of all other mortgages (except a mortgage by deposit of title-deeds) when the principal sum secured is ₹100 or upwards;⁶²¹ in the case of a lease if it is from year to year, or for any term exceeding one year or reserving a yearly rent;⁶²² and in the case of all gifts of immovable property;⁶²³ and of all transfers of actionable claims.⁶²⁴ Exchanges are subject to the same rule as sales;⁶²⁵ and the law as to leases is subject to rules which the local government are empowered to make.⁶²⁶

Where the TP Act, 1882 requires a registered instrument, the transfer cannot be effected in any other way. An unregistered deed of gift of immovable property does not effect a transfer.⁶²⁷ A petition to the Collector admitting a transfer, or recitals in another deed or mutation of names or delivery of possession will not affect a transfer, if the TP Act, 1882 requires a registered deed.⁶²⁸ A transfer of title requires a conveyance, and this cannot be given effect by a mere agreement.⁶²⁹ The Oudh Chief Court has held that a grant by way of guzara, being only a right to enjoy the usufruct, need not be made in writing,⁶³⁰ but the correctness of this decision is doubtful.

Where the law requires a transfer to be made in writing an oral transfer will not convey any right from the transferor to the transferee,⁶³¹ but if no writing is required by the TP Act, 1882, the transfer may be made orally.⁶³² Thus, a partition of joint family property,⁶³³ the relinquishment of a right by a joint family member,⁶³⁴ a surrender of a lease,⁶³⁵ a release by a mother of her interest in joint family property,⁶³⁶ a grant of land for life in discharge of a claim for maintenance, an assignment of immovable property under a court's decree passed on the basis of a family settlement contained in a composite deed,⁶³⁷ may be made orally.⁶³⁸ Even though an oral agreement to sell is possible, the onus is on the person who pleads such oral sale agreement. As an unregistered document is unenforceable in the eyes of law for the transfer of property,⁶³⁹ an assignment deed that conveys title in property for more than Rs 100/ must be registered.⁶⁴⁰

9. Oral Transfer.—

A contract to settle property in consideration of marriage need not be in writing.⁶⁴¹ In Imperial Bank of India v Bengal National Bank,⁶⁴² CJ Rankin said that partition, release and surrender are all forms of transfer, but that so far as the TP Act, 1882 is concerned, they come under no restriction. A right to recover a share of immovable property may be relinquished orally, and without an instrument in writing.⁶⁴³ Oral transfers are valid in Punjab outside the cantonment and municipal limits.⁶⁴⁴

[s 9.2] Part Performance

The doctrine of part performance is an encroachment on the rule that when the Act prescribes the mode of transfer, the transfer may not be made in any other way. The doctrine is now enacted in section 53A and explained in the notes to that section.

⁶¹⁹ Balaram v Appa, (1872) 9 Bom HC 121; Hurprashad v Sheo Dayal, (1876) 26 WR 55 : 3 IA 259, p 278.

⁶²⁰ Transfer of Property Act, 1882, section 54.

⁶²¹ Ibid, section 59.

⁶²² Ibid, section 107.

⁶²³ Ibid, section 123.

⁶²⁴ Ibid, section 130.

⁶²⁵ Ibid, section 118.

⁶²⁶ Ibid, section 107 and section 117.

⁶²⁷ Hiralal v Gaurishankar, (1928) 30 Bom LR 451 : 109 IC 149 : AIR 1928 Bom 250 .

⁶²⁸ Immudipattam v Periya Dorasami, (1901) ILR 24 Mad 377 : 28 IA 46.

⁶²⁹ Jadu Nath v Rup Lal, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 967, p 983; Rajeswar Prasad v Anil Kumar, (1928) ILR 55 Cal 35 : 106 IC 117 : AIR 1927 Cal 956 ; Keshrimal v Sukan Ram, (1933) ILR 12 Pat 616 : AIR 1933 Pat. 264 .

⁶³⁰ Gajraj v Indarpal, 49 IC 406.

⁶³¹ Munnalal v Atmaram, AIR 2008 (NOC) 843 MP; Kantaben Chandulal Shah v Gagiben, AIR 2005 Guj 49 [LNIND 2004 GUJ 411] ; Bishun Mahato v Rahe Khalifa, AIR 2005 Jhar. 85 [LNIND 2004 JHAR 60] : (2004) 4 JCR 94 .

⁶³² Weavers Mills Ltd v Balkis Ammal, (1969) ILR 1 Mad 433 : (1969) 2 Mad LJ 509 : AIR 1969 Mad. 462 [LNIND 1967 MAD 164] .

⁶³³ Gyannessa v Mobaraknassa, (1898) ILR 25 Cal 210; Satya Kumar v Satya Kripal, (1909) 10 Cal LJ 503 : 3 IC 247; Ma Sein Nyun v Maung U, 25 IC 498.

⁶³⁴ Gangubai v Mahagundappa, AIR 2006 (NOC) 42 Kant..

⁶³⁵ Elias Meyer v Manoranjan, (1918) 22 Cal WN 441 : 44 IC 297; Brojo Nath v Maheshwar, (1918) 28 Cal LJ 220 : 46 IC 100; Fowler v Secretary of State, 61 IC 852 : AIR 1921 Mad. 363 .

⁶³⁶ Ramdas v Pralhad, (1964) 66 Bom LR 499 : AIR 1965 Bom 74 [LNIND 1964 BOM 11] .

⁶³⁷ Amteshwar Anand v Virendra Mohan Singh, AIR 2006 SC 151 [LNIND 2005 SC 812] : (2006) 1 SCC 148 [LNIND 2005 SC 812] .

⁶³⁸ Madam Pillai v Badrakale, (1922) ILR 45 Mad 6 : AIR 1922 Mad. 311 [LNIND 1922 MAD 5] .

9. Oral Transfer.—

- 639 Pravinbhai Becharbhai Viroja v State Of Gujrat, 2010 SCC OnLine Guj 5607.
- 640 Durga Matha Building Constructions Co-op Housing Society Ltd v Sada Yellaiah, AIR 2010 AP 231 [LNIND 2010 AP 503] : LNIND 2010 AP 503 .
- 641 Serandaya Pillai v Sankarlingam Pillai, (1959) 2 Mad LJ 502.
- 642 Imperial Bank of India v Bengal National Bank, (1931) ILR 58 Cal 136 : 131 IC 689 : AIR 1931 Cal 223 .
- 643 Lal Singh v Chotey Beti, (1934) All LJ 107 : 148 IC 502 : AIR 1933 All 854 .
- 644 Shankri v Milkha Singh, (1941) 43 Punj LR 656 : 197 IC 282 : AIR 1941 Lah 407 .

End of Document

10. Condition Restraining Alienation.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

10. Condition Restraining Alienation.—

Where property is transferred subject to a condition or limitation absolutely restraining the transferee or any person claiming under him from parting with or disposing off his interest in the property, the condition or limitation is void, except in the case of a lease where the condition is for the benefit of the lessor or those claiming under him:

Provided that property may be transferred to or for the benefit of a woman (not being a Hindu, Muhammadan or Buddhist), so that she shall not have power during her marriage to transfer or charge the same or her beneficial interest therein.

[s 10.1] Principle Underlying the Section

The principle underlying this section is that a right of transfer is incidental to, and inseparable from, the beneficial ownership of property. An absolute restraint on that power is repugnant to the nature of the estate, and an exception to the very essence of the grant.⁶⁴⁵ In Coke upon Littleton, it is said—Also, if a feoffment be made upon this condition, that the feoffee shall not alien the land to any, this condition is void, because when a man is infeoffed of lands or tenements, he hath power to alien them to any person by the law. For if such a condition should be good, then the condition should oust him of all the power which the law gives him, which should be against reason, and therefore such a condition is void.⁶⁴⁶ Re Parry and Daggs,⁶⁴⁷ LJ Fry said:

From the earliest times the courts have always leant against any device to render an estate inalienable. It is the policy of the law always to make estates alienable, and it is immaterial by what device it is attempted to prevent an owner from exercising the power of ownership.

In *Metcalfe v Metcalfe*⁶⁴⁸ J Kekewich said:

10. Condition Restraining Alienation.—

You cannot limit an estate to a man and his heirs until he shall convey the land to a stranger, because it is of the essence of an estate in fee that it confers free power of alienation, and it has long been settled that the same principle is applicable to gifts of personality.

The section incorporates a rule of justice, equity and goods conscience, and governs transfers to which the TP Act, 1882 does not apply.⁶⁴⁹ The High Court of Karnataka has held that a grant made by government (or by its authorised officer) in accordance with law, cannot be treated as a “transfer” within the meaning of section 5. Hence, section 10 of the TP Act, 1882 or the rule against perpetuities does not apply to government grants. Accordingly, a permanent restraint on the alienation of the grant, if authorised by the law applicable to such grant, is valid.⁶⁵⁰

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A, B, C and D effected a partition of joint family property, and agreed that if any one of them should have no issue, he would have no power to sell his share but should leave it for the other sharers. A sold his share and died without issue, B, C and D sued to recover the share. The court held that the condition was void as repugnant to one of the legal incidents of property.⁶⁵¹

(2) The testator devised an absolute estate to his son provided always that if the son, his heirs or devisees, or any person claiming through or under him or them desired to sell the estate in the lifetime of the testator’s wife, she should have the option to purchase the estate for £3000. The value of the estate was £15000. The court held that this was an absolute restraint on alienation in the widow’s lifetime and void.⁶⁵²

[s 10.2] Transfer Subject to a Condition or Limitation

The condition referred to in this section must be a condition subsequent as defined in section 31 which divests an estate which has already vested. “Condition” must be distinguished from “limitation.” The word “limitation” is a term of English law. It refers to words used in a conveyance to limit or define the nature of the estate created.

In Indian law, the question whether the words are words of limitation or words of purchase is a matter of construction. Thus, if the bequest is to “A and his heirs” the words “and his heirs” are words of limitation indicating that A has an absolute estate, but if the bequest is to “A for life and after his death to his heirs” the heirs are direct objects of an independent and distinct gift.⁶⁵³ In an Indian will, the words putra poutradi krama are words of limitation denoting an estate of inheritance.⁶⁵⁴ In Madhavrao v Balahhai,⁶⁵⁵ the property was settled in trust for “my daughter K during her life...and after her death in trust for the male heirs of the said K”. It was contended that this was an attempt to create an estate tail which was bad under the Hindu law, but the Privy Council held that it was an independent gift to the person, who answered the description of heirs at the death of K, i.e., her sons living at her death. Words of limitation which denote an estate of inheritance do not of course imply a restriction on alienation.⁶⁵⁶

If there is a valid transfer, the condition in restraint of alienation is void, and the transfer stands. Thus, a bequest of an absolute estate subject to a condition that neither the devisee, nor his heirs should alienate the estate except for religious purposes is a valid bequest, but the condition is void for repugnancy.⁶⁵⁷ However, limitations may be such as to create an estate not recognized by law, and if that is the case, the transfer fails.

10. Condition Restraining Alienation.—

This distinction was made by the Privy Council in Tagore v Tagore,⁶⁵⁸ where the testator attempted to create an estate in tail not recognized by Hindu law, with the result that the donee took an estate for life, and the heir at law succeeded to the estate at his death.

[s 10.3] Absolute Restraint on Transfer

A restraint on alienation may be absolute or partial. An absolute restraint is void,⁶⁵⁹ a partial restraint is not.⁶⁶⁰

The section says that a condition which absolutely restrains the power of alienation is void. Re Macleay,⁶⁶¹ MR Jessel said that whether the condition took away the whole power of alienation substantially, was a question of substance, not of form thus, Re Rosher, Rosher v Rosher,⁶⁶² the testator devised an absolute estate to his son with a proviso that if he sold during the lifetime of his wife, she should have an option of purchasing the estate at a price which was one-fifth of the market value. This was held to be in effect an absolute restraint, and void. A similar case was *Re Elliot, Kelly v Elliot*⁶⁶³ where a tea plantation was devised absolutely, but a condition was annexed that if the devisee should sell the plantation “I will direct her to pay to my brother the sum of £1,000 out of the proceeds of such sale, also the further sum of £500 out of the proceeds of such sale to (her sister)” — the direction was held to be repugnant and void as a restraint on alienation. A provision in a partition deed prohibiting alienation of the property allotted absolutely to each coparcener without the consent of the other sharers is invalid as an absolute restraint.⁶⁶⁴ A condition in the Will, that the legatee is prohibited from alienating his property would be void and the legatee would be empowered to ignore the condition and sell the property to whomsoever he likes.⁶⁶⁵ Where a husband settled property on his wives, but subject to a condition that they could not alienate without his consent, the condition was held to be void under this section.⁶⁶⁶ The same rule has been applied in Punjab where the TP Act, 1882 is not in force.⁶⁶⁷ After sale of land under a registered sale deed, there was an agreement immediately thereafter between the vendor and the vendee, to the effect that vendee or his heirs will not alienate or dissipate or fritter away the land. It was held that the agreement violated section 10 of TP Act, 1882 and section 23 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872. As the agreement was unregistered, it did not revoke the sale (section 92, proviso, Indian Evidence Act, 1872). Bar of estoppel or waiver would not operate against the vendee.⁶⁶⁸

In terms of section 10 any condition in respect of use of the land is void. Thus where land was sold to the state government subject to the condition that it would be used only for the purpose of establishing a university, but the alienee transferred the land to PUDA for development of a residential complex, the erstwhile landowner who had parted with their land and accepted compensation more than a decade earlier could not be permitted to dispute the transfer of land.⁶⁶⁹

[s 10.4] Restrictions for a Particular Time

As to restrictions for a particular time the case of Rosher v Rosher,⁶⁷⁰ shows that a condition restraining alienation during a lifetime is invalid.

[s 10.5] Partial Restraint on Transfer

A condition only partially restraining alienation is valid.⁶⁷¹ In the case of a partial restraint, section 10 is not attracted.⁶⁷² Conditions restraining alienation for a particular time have already been considered in note (4) above. As to prohibition of alienation to a particular class, the English cases are not consistent. In Attwater v Attwater,⁶⁷³ a condition not to alienate except to particular persons was held to be bad. On the other hand, a condition not to sell out of the family was held good by Lord Ellenborough in Deo d Gill v Pearson,⁶⁷⁴ and by MR Jessel Re Macleay.⁶⁷⁵ Both these decisions were approved by the Privy Council in Muhammad Raza v Abbas Bandi Bibi,⁶⁷⁶ where it was held that a condition restraining the transferee from transferring to a stranger, i.e., outside the family, was not an absolute restriction, and was valid. Cases in which a condition against alienation to a stranger have been held to be an absolute restraint⁶⁷⁷ can no longer be regarded as good law. In the Privy Council case above referred to, their Lordships said that after the passing of the TP Act, 1882, a partial restriction upon the power of disposition would not, in the case of a transfer inter vivos, be regarded as repugnant, and that there was no authority to suggest that a different principle was applied by the courts in India before that Act. A condition in a deed of partition that if any coparcener wished to sell his share in a residential house or if his share were sold in any other way, the other coparcener would be entitled to buy it was held to be valid. An agreement of this sort is proper and is enforceable against the promisor's representatives, and is not hit by section 14.⁶⁷⁸ Thus a restriction on alienation of property to strangers aimed at ensuring that property bequeathed did not go into hands of third party is valid and does not violate the rule of perpetuity.⁶⁷⁹ Similarly, a condition in a deed of partition by joint owners of land that the owner of a share could only sell it to the members of the community has been held valid.⁶⁸⁰ Where the sale-deed permitted the transferee to part with or dispose off his interest in the land to any other person but not within the period of five years, it was held that the sale-deed was not hit by section 10 or 11 of TP Act, 1882.⁶⁸¹

10. Condition Restraining Alienation.—

In a case decided by Bombay High Court, the sale deed of a property included a condition that it should not be sold to anybody outside the family of the vendor. The vendee sold the property to cousins of the vendor. It was held that the first cousins very much belonged to the vendor's stock (family). There was no breach of the covenant. Even assuming that there was a breach of the covenant, it was immaterial because the condition incorporated in the sale deed is void under section 10.⁶⁸²

A condition that if the vendee sells, he shall give the vendor the option of buying back is obviously not an absolute restraint. Cases relating to such a condition have arisen with reference to the rule against perpetuity, and are considered in section 14 below. A provision in the sale deed that in the event of failure to construct a private college in the property sold there under, the property should be reconveyed by the transferee to the transferor for the same consideration would amount to an absolute restraint on alienation.⁶⁸³

A condition in a kharposh grant made by a zamindar in favour of a junior member that the subject-matter of the grant was not liable to be attached, and sold in execution does not amount to an absolute restraint, and is not void.⁶⁸⁴ Similarly, a condition imposed by a bye-law on its members that a member cannot alienate the property to a non-Parsi person would be only a partial restraint and therefore valid and enforceable.⁶⁸⁵

It has been held that a clause in a lease deed, that the interest of the lease holder shall not be transferred without the written permission of the deputy commissioner did not impose a complete ban on transfer and was, therefore, not void under section 10.⁶⁸⁶

[s 10.6] Agreement in Restraint of Alienation

The section refers to a condition restricting the estate transferred, it has no application to an agreement affecting the transferee personally. In a case decided by Allahabad High Court,⁶⁸⁷ the vendee executed a separate agreement that he would not transfer the property purchased to anyone except the vendor, and then at the same price. It was held that this agreement was void as it deprived the purchaser of the right of alienation. It is submitted that this is not correct unless, as in a Bombay case,⁶⁸⁸ the agreement was by a registered instrument and part of the transaction of sale. The true rule was stated in the later Allahabad case of Devi Dayal v Ghasita.⁶⁸⁹ In that case A sold a house to B and on the date of the sale, B executed a separate unregistered agreement that if he wished to sell the house, he would sell it back to A for the same price and would sell it to no one else, unless A declined to purchase. If this had been a condition of the sale it would have been invalid as a restraint on alienation,⁶⁹⁰ but the court said that "this was a special personal contract between the parties which was binding on them and could be enforced against a transferee with notice". It is submitted that the effect of this decision is that an invalid condition in restraint of partition may yet operate as a personal covenant binding the covenantor personally, and creating an obligation enforceable against a transferee from him with notice under section 40. With reference to an award which contained an invalid condition against partition,

10. Condition Restraining Alienation.—

the Privy Council said that it may have bound the parties who agreed amongst themselves to abide by it.⁶⁹¹

[s 10.7] Restriction Against Alienation in Compromise

A compromise is not a transfer to which this section applies. A compromise operates, therefore, not as a transfer, but as an admission that the party has no right to alienate. The title so admitted may be a restricted interest which under section 6 is not transferable. This is explained in Basanowda v Irgodatt,⁶⁹² where under a compromise between a widow and a reversioner, the widow was held to have a limited interest such as is referred to in section 6(d) — now section 6(dd)—which she could not alienate. Similarly, in Diwali v Apaji,⁶⁹³ a case to which the TP Act, 1882 did not apply, there was a compromise of a dispute between a widow and an adopted son under which an allotment of land was made for the maintenance of the widow with a provision in restraint of alienation. It was held that this land could not be attached for her debt as she had no disposing power over it. In Mata Prasad v Nageshar Sahai,⁶⁹⁴ there was a dispute as to succession between a widow and a nephew. This was compromised on terms that the widow was to retain possession for life while the title of the nephew was admitted with a provision restraining him from alienating during the widow's lifetime. The Privy Council upheld this as a family settlement, prudent and reasonable in the circumstances of the case. Similarly, in a Calcutta case,⁶⁹⁵ a document settling a dispute between a Hindu widow and two surviving members of the family provided that any lease given of the family property should be void, unless signed and consented to by both parties, and these provisions were held to be valid.

It has been held by the Punjab High Court, however, that where the TP Act, 1882 does not apply, a condition against alienation in a compromise is void.⁶⁹⁶

[s 10.8] Restraint on Mode of Alienation

If, however, the restraint is on the mode of alienation, it is not restraint within the meaning of this section.⁶⁹⁷

[s 10.9] Restraint Against Alienation in Gift

Under section 126 of the TP Act, 1882, a gift may be made on an agreed condition that it may be revoked on the happening of an event which does not depend upon the will of the donor. However, the condition contemplated by section 126 which is in a chapter dealing with “gifts” should not be repugnant to the provisions of sections 10 & 12 which deal with all “transfers of property by act of parties”. Thus, where a deed of gift provided that the donee or his successor had no right to transfer the property and that if they did transfer, the same would be invalid and the donor or his successor would have a right to revoke the gift, the condition was held to be invalid.⁶⁹⁸ The last paragraph of the section enacts that the condition of revocation does not affect the rights of transferees for consideration without notice. This makes it clear that the condition of revocation operates only as a personal covenant. It does not restrict the interest of the donee, and is not repugnant to the gift under section 10. It has, therefore, been held that if A makes a gift of his property to B, with a condition that A should be at liberty to revoke the gift if B transferred the property without A's consent, the condition does not contravene the provisions of section 10, and is valid.⁶⁹⁹

[s 10.10] Partition and family arrangements

Section 10 per se does not apply to family settlements and partitions,⁷⁰⁰ yet any total restraint on the right of alienation would be void.⁷⁰¹ In Malayalandiyil Kayakool Edakozhi Subair v Kayyalakkakath Kunhamina Umma,⁷⁰² the court held that even though section 10 is not applicable to the case of partition, but, the principle underlined is applicable in the case of partition also depending on the nature of the estate obtained. If the case is of absolute ownership, power of alienation must go along with it and any restraint of that power will be against the public policy and will be deemed void. Cases of restraint on partition are dealt with under section 11.

In Chamaru Sahu v Sona Koer,⁷⁰³ J Mookerjee had to construe a deed of family settlement between reversionary heirs and two Hindu widows by which the reversioners were restrained from alienating during the lifetime of the widows. He considered that the restraint was void if not under section 10 then under section 11, but as the object of the restriction was to protect the rights of the widows to receive maintenance from what had been their husband's property, he held that the alienees of the reversioners who had accepted a mortgage contrary to the provisions of the deed of settlement held the property subject to the rights of maintenance possessed by the widows. It is submitted that the restrictions on the reversioners being the result of a family settlement, was valid, as in Mata Prasad's case. In *Govind Waman v Murlidhar*⁷⁰⁴ the Bombay High Court held that a compromise decree which contained a term contrary to section 10 is not for that reason invalid. The decision was based on the ground that a consent decree is binding on the parties, until it is set aside.

10. Condition Restraining Alienation.—

[s 10.11] Restraint on Transferor

The section only refers to restraint on alienation by the transferee or those claiming under him. It has no bearing on cases where on a transfer a restraint is put on alienation by the transferor. This may occur where the transfer is of a partial interest as in a mortgage. In such cases, it may be a clog on the equity of redemption.⁷⁰⁵

[s 10.12] Exception in the Case of Lease

A lease is an exception to the rule against an absolute restraint on alienation. This exception arises from the very nature of a lease which is a transfer of property for a time, or in perpetuity, but in which the lessor necessarily retains an interest. Thus, a condition in a lease that the lessee shall not sublet or assign is valid—section 108(j) read with the words “in the absence of a contract to the contrary.” It is also immaterial that the lease is a permanent lease.⁷⁰⁶ A condition requiring the lessee to pay a fourth of the purchase money as nazar to the lessor in case he should assign the lease is valid.⁷⁰⁷ A condition in a permanent lease, that should the necessity for alienation by the lessor arise the lessee will surrender the lease to the lessor, is valid.⁷⁰⁸ So also a condition in a perpetual lease that the lessee's right shall be heritable, but not transferable, is not void.⁷⁰⁹

The words in this section “when the condition is for the benefit of the lessor or those claiming under him” seem to be merely explanatory of the reason for the exception. They have been construed to mean that the restriction is invalid, unless accompanied with a right of re-entry.⁷¹⁰ This has been dissented from in a case decided by Madras High Court⁷¹¹ on the ground that every such restriction is for the benefit of the lessor; but that case also held that a restriction without a right of re-entry gives the lessor a right to damages, but was invalid as a condition and does not have the effect of rendering the assignment invalid. The amendment made in section 111(g), by Act 20 of 1929, makes it clear that the breach of a condition against alienation will not work a forfeiture, unless the condition reserves a right of re-entry. A condition that in case of alienation by the lessee, the lease shall be void is not now sufficient to determine the lease, and the case of *Vyankataraya v Shivrambhat*⁷¹² is now obsolete. Unless a right of re-entry is reserved, the breach of such a condition merely gives the lessor a right to an injunction and damages.⁷¹³

The restriction on assignment prevents the lessee from assigning without the consent of the lessor. This is frequently expressed in the lease with the added clause that such consent shall not be unreasonably withheld.

A condition in a darpatni lease that if the darpatni is sold for arrears of rent, derivative tenures created by the darpatnidar would be extinguished, is not a restraint on alienation.⁷¹⁴ According to the Allahabad High Court, right to transfer is not legal in case of perpetual lease.⁷¹⁵

Rent-free grants under the Agra Tenancy Acts—Uttar Pradesh Act 2 of 1901 and Act 3 of 1926—do not convey

10. Condition Restraining Alienation.—

the proprietary title of the grantor landlord. Such grants are like leases exempt from the rule against absolute restraint of alienation embodied in this section. A condition in a rent-free grant restraining the grantee from alienating is, therefore, valid.⁷¹⁶

[s 10.13] Effect of Involuntary Alienation on Conditions Against Alienation in Leases

An involuntary alienation does not constitute a breach of a condition against alienation in a lease. An assignment by the operation of law, such as a sale in execution, or a sale of the property of a company by an official liquidator,⁷¹⁷ or a sale by the official assignee,⁷¹⁸ is not a breach of the condition. In Golak Nath v Mathura Nath,⁷¹⁹ the Calcutta High Court said:

We take it to be clear law in India, as in England, that a general restriction on assignment does not apply to an assignment by operation of law taking effect in invitum as a sale under an execution.

But there may be an express prohibition of alienation in execution, and if so it will be enforced. In a Bombay case⁷²⁰ where the condition was “not to let the land be sold or attached in execution,” CJ Sargent said that if the lessee allowed the land to be attached and sold by not taking measures to satisfy his judgment creditor, there would be a breach both according to the letter and spirit of the provision in the lease. However, a condition in a decree on a compromise that a party shall have no power of alienation, is not broken if the property is sold in execution of a decree against the party.⁷²¹

[s 10.14] Hindu and Mahomedan Law

The prohibition of a condition in absolute restraint on alienation enacted in this section conforms to Hindu and Mahomedan law. Under Hindu law, such a condition either in a gift *inter vivos*⁷²² or in a will,⁷²³ is void. Thus where the person gets the property under a Will, with absolute powers to enjoy it, any condition restraining alienation would be void.⁷²⁴ Even before the amending Act which makes the section directly applicable to Hindus, many cases affecting Hindus were decided with reference to this section.⁷²⁵ In Mahomedan law also, a condition in restraint of alienation attached to a gift is void.⁷²⁶ However, when a Mahomedan widow was restrained from alienating to a stranger as the result of a compromise, the Chief Court of Oudh applied the rule that a compromise is in no sense an alienation, and held that the restraint was valid.⁷²⁷ This case was confirmed on appeal by the Privy Council,⁷²⁸ and their Lordships observed that, apart from the favour with which courts regard family settlements, such a restraint was neither inconsistent with Mahomedan law, nor with section 10 of TP Act, 1882, and was permissible under English law which is applicable as a rule of justice, equity and good conscience.

[s 10.15] Married Woman

The proviso recognizes as another exception the restraint on the power of anticipation in the case of a married woman who is not a Hindu, Mahomedan or Buddhist. This restraint was a clause introduced in marriage settlements whereby property was settled on married women for their separate use without power to sell or charge the corpus of the estate. The English Common law rule that a woman's property became her husband's on marriage was abrogated in respect of marriage after 1 January 1866, by section 4 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865. However, in settlements designed to protect married women from themselves, this clause was retained and received statutory recognition in this section and in sections 56 and 58 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882. The Married Women's Property Act, 1874, was passed to establish the separate property of married women who were married before 1 January 1866 with reference to their own wages and earnings. Section 7 of that Act says that a married woman may sue or be sued in her own name in respect of her separate property. Section 8 provides that a person entering into a contract with a married woman with reference to her separate property may sue and recover against her to the extent of that property. The High Court of Calcutta held that these provisions enabled a creditor to enforce his claim also against property which a married woman is restrained from alienating.⁷²⁹ This decision was followed by J Farran in a case of Bombay High Court⁷³⁰ with great reluctance. The Madras High Court, however, held that full meaning can be given to section 8 of the Married Women's Property Act without imputing to the legislature an intention to ignore conditions in restraint of alienation distinctly recognized in a later Act.⁷³¹ Statutory effect has been given to the Madras view by the amended proviso to section 8 of the Married Women's Property Act, substituted by section 2 of the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Supplement Act, 1929. This expressly provides that decrees passed against a married woman under section 8 cannot be executed by the attachment or sale of property she is restrained from alienating during marriage.

10. Condition Restraining Alienation.—

[s 10.16] Securities and Shares

The definition of "securities" will only take in shares of a public limited company notwithstanding the use of the words "any incorporated company or other body corporate" in the definition. It is evident that for shares of a public limited company to come within the definition of securities they have to satisfy that they are marketable.⁷³²

[s 10.16.1] Statutory Prohibitions

Transfer of property is not always impermissible but subject to conditions prescribed by Government,⁷³³ and the statutory bar on alienation will override the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act.⁷³⁴ Thus there may be a statutory restriction on transfer of land by a member of Scheduled Caste to a person other than Scheduled Caste. Such notification would not be hit by section 10.⁷³⁵ However, when a right of transfer has been provided by provisions of a statute and bar contemplated does not apply to the case at hand, no clause or a condition in original patta granted by zamindar can restrict such a right of transfer.⁷³⁶

[s 10.16.2] Creation of life estate:

A life estate can validly be created under a settlement. In Solomon v Edward Alexander,⁷³⁷ A executed a settlement creating a life estate in favour of B and his wife and upon their death, the property was to vest absolutely in C. B's wife released her right in favour of B and B sold the total property to D. It was held that as they had a life estate, neither his wife was competent to release her life interest to her husband nor was B competent to execute a sale deed of his life estate. Their contention that a restraint on their power of alienation was void in light of section 10 was rejected as what was created in their favour was a life estate and not an absolute estate with restraint on power of alienation.

645 Venkatrammanna v Brammanna, (1809) 4 Mad HC 345; Annatha v Nagamuthu, (1882) ILR 4 Mad 200; Re Rosher, Rosher v Rosher, [1884] 26 ChD 801 (fee simple), Rochford v Hackman, [1852] 9 Hare 475 (life interest); Bradley v Peixoto, [1797] 3 Ves 324; Harbin v Masterman, [1894] 2 ChD 184, pp 196-197.

646 Co Litt, section 360.

647 Parry and Daggs, [1886] 31 ChD 130, p 134.

648 Metcalfe v Metcalfe, [1890] 43 ChD 633, p 639.

649 Chandi Churn v Sidhesawari, (1889) ILR 16 Cal 71 : 15 IA 149 (transfer before the Act); Nand Singh v Pratap Das, 76 IC 16 : AIR 1924 Lah 674 (a case from Punjab, where the TP Act, 1882 is not in force); Ramchandraj Maharaj v Lalji Singh, (1959) ILR 38 [LNIND 1958 RAJ 87] Pat 49 : AIR 1959 Pat. 49 (transfer to a Hindu idol outside the ambit of the TP Act, 1882).

650 Laxmamma v State of Karnataka, AIR 1983 Kant. 237 [LNIND 1983 KANT 2], paras 51, 53 and 57.

651 Venkatrammanna v Brammanna, 1 IC 345

10. Condition Restraining Alienation.—

- 652 Re Kosher, Kosher v Kosher, [\[1884\] 20 ChD 801](#)  followed Re Cockerill Mackaness v Percival, [\[1929\] 2 ChD 131](#) . But see Ratanlal v Ramamijadas, AIR 1944 Ngp 187 in which the Nagpur High Court held that the condition was a partial restraint.
- 653 See Indian Succession Act, 1925, section 97.
- 654 Ram Lal Mukerjee v Secretary of State, (1880) ILR 7 Cal 304 : 8 IA 46.
- 655 Madhavrao v Balahhai, n+(1928) ILR 52 Bom 176 : 55 IA 74 : 107 IC 119 : AIR 1938 PC 33 .
- 656 Rajah Nursing v Roy Koylasnath, 9 IA 55; Vinayak Moreshwar v Baba, (1889) ILR 13 Bom 373.
- 657 Saraju Bala v Jyotirmoyee, (1931) 35 Cal WN 903 : 58 IA 270 : 134 IC 648 : AIR 1931 PC 179 ; Lalit Mohun v Chukkun Lal, (1897) ILR 24 Cal 834 : 24 IA 76.
- 658 Tagore v Tagore, (1872) 9 Beng LR 377; Saraju Bala v Jyotirmoyee, (1931) 35 Cal WN 903.
- 659 Bhavani Amma Kanakadevi v CSI Dekshina Kerela Maha Idavaka, AIR 2008 Ker. 38 [\[LNIND 2007 KER 622\]](#) : (2008) 1 KLJ 28 : (2008) 2 KLT 340 .
- 660 See note below on “Partial restraint on transfer”.
- 661 Re Macleuy [\[1875\] 20 Eq 186](#) , p 189.
- 662 Rosher v Rosher, [\[1884\] 26 ChD 81](#) .
- 663 Kelly v Elliot, [\[1896\] 2 ChD 353](#)  See also Re Cockerill Mackaness v Percival, [\[1929\] 2 ChD 131](#) .
- 664 Mudara v Muthu Hengsu, 154 IC 587 : AIR 1935 Mad. 33 [\[LNIND 1934 MAD 68\]](#) ; TV Sangham Ltd v Shanmugha Sundaram, (1939) ILR Mad 954 : 2 Mad LJ 345 : 50 Mad LW 254 : (1939) Mad WN 812 : 184 IC 187 : AIR 1939 Mad. 709 [\[LNIND 1938 MAD 182\]](#) .
- 665 A Chammal v Rajamanickam Karthikeyan, AIR 2010 Mad. 34 [\[LNIND 2009 MAD 3158\]](#) : (2010) 2 Mad LJ 1210.
- 666 Gomti Singh v Anari Kuar, (1929) 27 All LJ 880 : 118 IC 152 : AIR 1929 All 492 .
- 667 Partap Das v Nand Singh, (1924) 6 Lah LJ 419 : 85 IC 323 : AIR 1924 Lah 729 .
- 668 Brahma Nand v Roshani Devi, AIR 1989 HP 21 .
- 669 Achammal v Rajamanickam Karthikeyan, AIR 2010 Mad. 34 [\[LNIND 2009 MAD 3158\]](#) : 2010 (2) Mad LJ 1210 : LNIND 2009 MAD 3158 .
- 670 Rosher v Rosher, [\[1884\] 26 ChD 801](#) .
- 671 Canbank Financial Services Ltd v Custodian, (2004) 8 SCC 355 [\[LNIND 2004 SC 892\]](#) : AIR 2004 SC 5123 [\[LNIND 2004 SC 892\]](#) ; Mohd Raza v Abbas Bandi Bibi, AIR 1932 PC 158 : 59 IA 236; K Muniswamy v K Venkataswamy, AIR 2001 Kant. 246 [\[LNIND 2000 KANT 310\]](#) ; Thomas v A A Henry, AIR 2008 (NOC) 1414 Ker..
- 672 Jagan Nalk v Cheddi Dholr, AIR 1973 All 307 : 1973 All LJ 202.
- 673 Attwater v Attwater, [1853] 18 Beav 330.
- 674 Deo d Gill v Pearson, 1805] 6 East 173.
- 675 Re Macleay [1875] 20 Eq 186.
- 676 Muhammad Raza v Abbas Bandi Bibi, 59 IA 236 : 36 Cal WN 774 : 55 Cal LJ 510 : (1932) All LJ 709 : 63 Mad LJ 180 : 137 IC 321 : AIR 1932 PC 158 .
- 677 Faiyaz Hussain v Nilkanth, (1901) 4 OC 163; Goya Din v Syed Mumtaz Husain, (1907) 10 OC 136; Teja Singh v Moti Singh, 80 IC 918 : AIR 1925 Oudh 125 ; Asghari Begam v Moula Baksh, (1929) 27 All LJ 515 : 116 IC 90 : AIR 1929 All 381 .
- 678 Aulad Ali v Ali Athar, (1927) ILR 49 All 527 : 100 IC 683 : AIR 1927 All 170 ; Moulvi Ali Hossain Mia v Rajkumar Haldar, (1943) 47 Cal WN 557 : (1943) ILR 2 Cal 605; Ratanlal v Ramanujadasa, AIR 1944 Ngp 187 .
- 679 K Naina Mohamed v A M Vasudevan Chettiar, (2010) 7 SCC 603 [\[LNIND 2010 SC 573\]](#) : 2010 (6) Scale 449 [\[LNIND 2010 SC 573\]](#) : 2010 MPLJ 348 (SC).
- 680 Mahmud Ali v Brikodar Nath, AIR 1960 Ass 178 .
- 681 Loknath Khoud v Gunaram Kalita, AIR 1986 Gau 52 , p 53; See also note on “Agreements and Covenants for Pre-emption” under section 14.
- 682 Manohar Shivram Swami v Mahadeo Guruling Swami, AIR 1988 Bom 116 [\[LNIND 1987 BOM 434\]](#) with respect to the alternative reasoning that the condition is void is not consistent with the Privy Council decision in Muhammad Raza v Abbas Bandi Bibi, AIR 1932 PC 158 .

10. Condition Restraining Alienation.—

- 683 Bhawani Amma Kanakadevi v CSI Dekshina Kerela Maha Idevaka, AIR 2008 Ker. 38 [LNIND 2007 KER 622] : (2008) 1 KLJ 28 : (2008) 2 KLT 340 .
- 684 Shiba Prasad v Lekhray and Co, (1945) ILR 23 Pat 871 : AIR 1945 PC 162 .
- 685 Zoroastrian Co-operative Housing Society Ltd v Dist Registrar, Co-op Societies (Urban), AIR 2005 SC 2306 [LNIND 2005 SC 384] : (2005) 5 SCC 632 [LNIND 2005 SC 384] .
- 686 Bhola Ram Chaudhary v State of Bihar, AIR 1990 Pat. 20 , p 23.
- 687 Dol Singh v Khub Chand, (1921) 19 All LJ 848 : 64 IC 408 : AIR 1921 All 97 .
- 688 Allibhai v Dada, (1931) 33 Bom LR 1296 : 136 IC 509 : AIR 1931 Rang 578 .
- 689 Devi Dayal v Ghasita, (1929) 27 All LJ 1255, p 1256 : 119 IC 836 : AIR 1929 All 607 .
- 690 Gagasi Ram v Shahabuddin, (1935) All LJ 410 : 157 IC 897 : AIR 1935 All 493 .
- 691 Jafri Begam v Syed Ali, (1901) ILR 23 All 383 : 28 IA 111.
- 692 Basanowda v Irgodatti, (1923) ILR 47 Bom 597 : 73 IC 196 : AIR 1923 Bom 276 .
- 693 Diwali v Apaji, (1886) ILR 10 Bom 342; Gulab Kuar v Bansidhar, (1893) ILR 15 All 371, on app Bansidhar v Gulab Kuar, (1894) ILR 16 All 443; Munnisami Naidu v Ammani Ammal, (1904) 15 Mad LJ 7.
- 694 Mata Prasad v Nageshar Sahai, (1925) ILR 47 All 883 : 53 IA 398 : 91 IC 371 : AIR 1925 PC 272 ; Kapura v Madu Sudan Das, (1943) 44 Punj LR 183 : 209 IC 609 : AIR 1943 Lah 168 .
- 695 Kuldip Singh v Khetrani Koer, (1898) ILR 25 Cal 869.
- 696 Gurdit Singh v Babu, (1954) ILR Punj 165 : AIR 1953 Punj 282 .
- 697 Mata Prasad v Nageshar Sahai, (1925) ILR 47 All 883 : 52 IA 398 : 91 IC 370 : AIR 1925 PC 272 .
- 698 Brij Devi v Shiv Nanda Prasad, (1939) ILR All 298 : (1939) All LJ 77 : AIR 1939 All 221 ; Giani Ram v Balmakand, (1956) 58 Punj LR 114 : AIR 1956 Punj 255 ; Ramasamy v Wilson Machine Works, AIR 1994 Mad. 222 [LNIND 1993 MAD 650] (NOC).
- 699 Ma Yin Hu v Ma Chit May, (1929) ILR 7 Rang 306 : 119 IC 737 : AIR 1929 Rang 226 ; Makund v Rajrup, (1907) 4 All LJ 708; See also note “Agreement in restraint of alienation” above.
- 700 K Muniswamy v K Venkataswamy, AIR 2001 Kant. 246 [LNIND 2000 KANT 310] .
- 701 Shyamal Ranjan Mukherjee v Nirmal Ranjan Mukherjee, AIR 2008 (NOC)568 (All).
- 702 Malayalandiyil Kayakool Edakozhi Subair v Kayyalakkakath Kunhamina Umma, 2015 (4) KHC 870 [LNIND 2015 KER 15606] : LNIND 2015 KER 15606 .
- 703 Chamaru Sahu v Sona Koer, (1911) 14 Cal LJ 303 : 11 IC 301.
- 704 Govind Waman v Murlidhar, (1953) ILR Bom 948 : 55 Bom LR 670 : AIR 1953 Bom 412 [LNIND 1952 BOM 113] ; Bai Mangu v Bai Vijli, (1967) 6 Guj LR 915 : AIR 1987 Guj 81 . See also Ramjibhai v Goverdhandas, (1954) ILR Bom 615 : 56 Bom LR 365 : AIR 1954 Bom 370 [LNIND 1954 BOM 2] .
- 705 See notes under section 60.
- 706 Kally Dass Ahiri v Manmohini Dasse, (1897) ILR 24 Cal 440, p 447 approved in Abhiram v Shyama, (1909) ILR 36 Cal 1003 : 36 IA 148 : 4 IC 449; Vyankatraya v Shivrambhat, (1883) ILR 7 Bom 256, p 260; Raja Jagat Ranvir v Bagriden, AIR 1973 All 11 .
- 707 Sardakripa v Bepin Chandra, (1923) 37 Cal LJ 538 : 74 IC 555 : AIR 1923 Cal 679 ; Kumar Chandra v Narendranath, (1930) ILR 57 Cal 953 : 127 IC 76 : AIR 1930 Cal 357 ; Nabjan Sardar v Neburali Molla, (1933) 37 Cal WN 272 : 57 Cal LJ 387 : 144 IC 764 : AIR 1933 Cal 506 ; Parbhu Narain Singh v Ramzan, (1919) ILR 41 All 417; Swarna Kumar v Prahlad Chandra, (1921) 26 Cal WN 874 : 67 IC 719 : AIR 1922 Cal 474 .
- 708 Rama Rao v Thimmappa, (1925) 48 Mad LJ 463 : 87 IC 433 : AIR 1925 Mad. 732 [LNIND 1924 MAD 328] ; Chettu Kuth v Kunhunni, (1910) 9 Mad LT 484 : 9 IC 171.
- 709 Bhairo Singh v Ambika Baksha, (1942) Oudh WN 374; Raja Jagative Ranvir v Baqriden, AIR 1973 All 11 .
- 710 Nil Madhab v Narattam, (1890) ILR 17 Cal 826; Udipi Seshagiri v Seshamma, (1920) ILR 43 Mad 503; Akram Ali v Durga, (1912) 14 Cal LJ 614 : 10 IC 489; Mahananda Saratmani v Saratmani, (1912) 14 Cal LJ 585 : 10 IC 374.
- 711 Parameshri v Vitappa, (1903) ILR 26 Mad 157.
- 712 Vyankataraya v Shivrambhat, (1883) ILR 7 Bom 256.
- 713 See notes under section 108(j).

10. Condition Restraining Alienation.—

- 714 Madhusudan v Midnapore Zemindary Co, (1918) ILR 45 Cal 940 : 46 IC 129.
- 715 Raja Jugal Ranvir v Bagriden, AIR 1973 All 11 .
- 716 Har Dayal v Lal Nauratan, 149 IC 669 : AIR 1934 All 358 . See also, Dinesh Chhapolia v State of Orissa, AIR 2008 (NOC) 844 Ori..
- 717 Re West Hopetown Tea Co (1890) ILR 12 All 192; Tamaya v Timpa, (1883) ILR 7 Bom 262; Subbaraya v Krishna, (1883) ILR 6 Mad 159.
- 718 Deo v Bevan, [1815] 3 M & S 353 : 105 ER 644.
- 719 Golak Nath v Mathura Nath, (1893) ILR 20 Cal 273, p 278; Nil Madhab v Narattam, (1890) ILR 17 Cal 826; Promode Ranjan v Aswini, (1914) 18 Cal WN 1138 : 26 IC 23; Mohendra v Gagan Chandra, 78 IC 802 : AIR 1925 Cal 471 .
- 720 Vyankatraya v Shivrambhat, (1883) ILR 7 Bom 256.
- 721 Bachumal v Vessimal, 99 IC 972 : AIR 1976 Sau 143 .
- 722 Anantha v Nagamuthu, (1882) ILR 4 Mad 200; Bhairo v Parmeshri, (1885) ILR 7 All 516; Muthukumara v Anthony, (1915) ILR 38 Mad 867 : 24 IC 120; Rukhminibai v Laxmibai, (1920) ILR 44 Bom 304 : 56 IC 361; Mahram Das v Ajudhia, (1886) ILR 8 All 452; Khiali Ram v Raghunath Prasad, (1906) 3 All LJ 621; Krishna v Shanmuga, (1872) 6 Mad HC 248.
- 723 Ashutosh v Doorga, (1880) ILR 5 Cal 438 : 6 IA 182; Gokul Nath v Issur Lochun, (1887) ILR 14 Cal 222; Rajkishori v Debendranath, (1888) ILR 15 Cal 409 : 15 IA 37; Chundi Churn v Sidhesawari, (1889) ILR 16 Cal 71 : 15 IA 149; Lalit Mohun v Chukkun Lal, (1897) ILR 24 Cal 834 : 24 IA 76.
- 724 Jagtar Singh v State of Punjab, AIR 1912 P&H. 145 : LNIND 2012 PNH 41 .
- 725 Ambalal v Baldeodas, AIR 1947 Rang 191 .
- 726 Babu Lal v Ghansham Das, (1922) ILR 44 All 633 : 70 IC 84 : AIR 1922 All 205 ; Hussain Khan v Nateri, (1872) 6 Mad HC 356.
- 727 Abbas Bandi Bibi v Saiyed Mohammad Raza, (1929) ILR 4 Luck 452 : 120 IC 387 : AIR 1929 Oudh 193 .
- 728 Muhammad Raza v Abbas Bandi, 59 IA 236 : (1932) All LJ 709 : 34 Bom LR 1048 : 36 Cal WN 774 : 63 Mad LJ 180 : 137 IC 321 : AIR 1932 PC 158 .
- 729 Hippolite v Stuart, (1885) ILR 12 Cal 522.
- 730 Cursetji v Rustomji, (1887) ILR 11 Bom 348.
- 731 Re Mantel and Mantel, (1885) ILR 18 Mad 19; Goudoin v Venkatesa, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 378.
- 732 Bhagwati Developers Pvt Ltd v Peerless General Finance Investment Co Ltd, 2013 (9) SCC 584 [LNIND 2013 SC 648] : (2013) 3 Comp LJ 241 (SC) : JT 2013 (10) SC 583 [LNIND 2013 SC 648] : 2013 (9) Scale 382 [LNIND 2013 SC 648] .
- 733 Laxman Tatyaba Kankate v Taramati Harishchandra Dhatrak, (2010) 7 SCC 717 [LNIND 2010 SC 586] : AIR 2010 SC 3025 [LNIND 2010 SC 586] : 2010 (7) Scale 45 [LNIND 2010 SC 586] : LNIND 2010 SC 586.
- 734 Goa Foundation v UOI, (2014) 6 SCC 590 [LNIND 2014 SC 260]; Gohil Jesangbhai Rayasangbhai v State of Gujarat, (2014) 5 SCC 199 [LNIND 2006 SC 1221]; Gwalior Sugar Co Ltd v Anil Gupta, (2012) 12 SCC 19 [LNIND 2012 SC 1027]. and would also prevail over sections 10 and 7 Dipak Babaria v State of Gujarat, (2014) 3 SCC 502 [LNIND 2014 SC 49] : AIR 2014 SC 1792 [LNIND 2014 SC 49]; 2014 (3) SCJ 673 [LNIND 2014 SC 49] : 2014 (3) All MR 446.
- 735 State of Rajasthan v Aanjaney Organic Herbal Pvt Ltd, (2012) 10 SCC 283 [LNIND 2012 SC 561] : LNIND 2012 SC 561 : AIR 2013 SC 581 [LNIND 2012 SC 561] : 2012 (9)Scale 138 [LNIND 2012 SC 561].
- 736 Gwalior Sugar Co Ltd v Anil Gupta, (2012) 12 SCC 19 [LNIND 2012 SC 1027].
- 737 SA (MD) No 559 of 2014, decided on: 16 February 2017, High Court of Madras (Madurai Bench).

11. Restriction repugnant to interest created.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

11. Restriction repugnant to interest created.—

Where, on a transfer of property, an interest therein is created absolutely in favour of any person, but the terms of the transfer direct that such interest shall be applied or enjoyed by him in a particular manner, he shall be entitled to receive and dispose off such interest as if there were no such direction.

⁷³⁸[Where any such direction has been made in respect of one piece of immovable property for the purpose of securing the beneficial enjoyment of another piece of such property, nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect any right which the transferor may have to enforce such direction or any remedy which he may have in respect of a breach thereof.]

[s 11.1] Amendment

The only amendment made in this section by the amending Act 20 of 1929, is the substitution of the second paragraph for the old second paragraph.

[s 11.2] Principle

This section refers to a restriction on the enjoyment of property, while section 10 refers to a restriction on the transfer of property. Both sections rest on the same principle that a condition repugnant to the interest created is void. Where property is transferred absolutely, it must be transferred with all its legal incidents. The vendor is not competent to sever from the right of property, incidents which the law inseparably annexes to it, and to abrogate the law by a private arrangement. A condition repugnant to the interest created is void when the property is transferred absolutely.⁷³⁹ A “habendum” (the part of the deed of conveyance which defines the nature of the estate granted, beginning with the words “to hold”) cannot override section 54 (which defines “sale”). In a deed of sale, there cannot be created a life-interest in favour of the vendee. Such a limitation would be repugnant to section 11.⁷⁴⁰

[s 11.3] Sections 10 and 11 Compared

Section 11 refers to absolute interest only. A restraint on transfer is repugnant to any interest in property, whether absolute or limited, for the right of transfer is an incident of ownership. A restriction on enjoyment is repugnant to an absolute interest, but may not be repugnant to a limited interest such as a lease-hold or a life-estate.⁷⁴¹

11. Restriction repugnant to interest created.—

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A makes an absolute gift of a house to B with a direction that B shall reside in it. The gift is absolute and the direction is void. B may live in the house or not as he pleases.

(2) A makes a gift of a house to B on condition that the gift will be forfeited if B does not reside in it. The condition is valid, for the gift is not an absolute gift but one subject to a condition of defeasance—section 28 or 31.

(3) A by sale conveys an absolute interest in a farm to B. The sale deed contains a direction that B shall not cut down the trees. The direction is invalid.

(4) A assigns a life interest in a farm to B for her maintenance. The deed contains a direction that B shall not cut down the trees. The direction is valid.

It has been held that the provisions of this section override section 126, and that a gift restraining enjoyment is void.⁷⁴²

Absolute interest fall under both sections 10 and 11, and the words “applied” (section 11) and “disposed” (section 10) show that the sections do to a certain extent overlap. This is well illustrated by the case of Chamaru Sahu v Soma Koer.⁷⁴³ In that case a Hindu widow transferred her husband’s estate to the reversionary heirs with a condition that they should not alienate it in her lifetime. The case was one under section 10, but in view of some observations of MR Jessel Re Macleay,⁷⁴⁴ J Mookerjee doubted if the restraint was absolute within the meaning of section 10, and, therefore, decided the case under this section.⁷⁴⁵

Cases restricting the right of partition fall as much under the section as the other.

[s 11.4] Distinction Between section 11 and section 31

The basic distinction between these two provisions relates to:

- (i) direction envisaged in section 11;
- (ii) a condition envisaged in section 31;
- (iii) an interest being created absolutely under section 11; and
- (iv) an interest being created not qualified by the word “absolutely”; but with a condition superadded in section 31 of TP Act, 1882.⁷⁴⁶

[s 11.5] Indian Succession Act

The section corresponds with section 138 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. The following illustration is annexed to the section in the Indian Succession Act, 1925:

A sum of money is bequeathed towards purchasing a country residence for A, or to purchase an annuity for A, or to place A in any business. A chooses to receive the legacy in money. He is entitled to do so.

[s 11.6] Absolutely

11. Restriction repugnant to interest created.—

The section does not apply, unless the transfer creates an absolute interest in the transferee. For a transferee to deal with interest in the property transferred “as if there was no such direction” regarding the particular manner of enjoyment of the property, the instrument of transfer should evidence that an absolute interest in favour of the transferee has been created. The section rests on the principle that any condition which is repugnant to the interest created is void, and when property is transferred absolutely, it must be done with all its legal incidents.⁷⁴⁷ It does not apply for instance, to a lease which is a transfer of a limited interest, and the lessee is bound by the conditions and covenants expressed or implied in the lease restricting his mode of enjoyment. When a deed of gift gave land to the donees as “they are the descendants of the same stock as my family and there remains nothing now for their support, and the gift was expressed to be for their maintenance, a covenant restrictive of alienation was held not to be void for repugnancy, as the gift was not of an absolute interest, but of usufruct only.⁷⁴⁸ So also, when land is granted only for use and cultivation;⁷⁴⁹ or when a grant is made for life;⁷⁵⁰ or a vendor reserves a subordinate interest for himself.⁷⁵¹ However, when an absolute estate is conveyed, any restriction on its enjoyment is invalid. Thus, when a co-sharer of a village sold his share to another sharer who executed at the same time an agreement not to collect rents, or demand partition, or alienate or encumber, or else the sale would be avoided, the court read the two documents together, and held the agreement to be repugnant to the proprietary interest conveyed by the sale deed.⁷⁵² A stipulation in a sale deed for the payment of a certain amount to the vendor out of the profits of the property by way of rent was held to be illegal.⁷⁵³ In a deed of gift, properties were transferred to the son by his deceased father, on condition to provide maintenance to his dependents. Such a condition is not, in any way, repugnant to the interest created by the instrument. It is not hit by the provisions of section 11. The son was bound to maintain his stepmother, under the express terms of the deed of gift.⁷⁵⁴ Where the property was sold absolutely to B by a registered sale deed but the deed mentioned that the purchaser would not be entitled to have a pukka construction in front of the shop or construct a basement, the restrictions would amount to a restraint within the meaning of section 11 and would be void.⁷⁵⁵

Once an absolute interest is created in favour of a person, no restriction can be placed as to the manner in which such interest is to be enjoyed. Where under a partition deed each coparcener received the property as a full owner thereof, but a condition was incorporated in it preventing a coparcener from alienating his share, it was held that such clause in the partition deed restricting the right of the coparcener over his share would be void and the coparcener can execute a will of the share, bequeath his share and confer a valid title on the legatee.⁷⁵⁶

[s 11.7] Partition

A right to partition is an incident of joint ownership of property. In Umrao Singh v Baldeo Singh,⁷⁵⁷ a testator left his property to his sons jointly with a direction that the property should not be partitioned till all the sons attain majority. The Lahore High Court held that this was an invalid restriction on the right of enjoyment even though it was for a limited time. An agreement not to partition, though it may be binding on the immediate parties, will not bind their successors in interest.⁷⁵⁸ The Bombay High Court has held that such an agreement is inconsistent with the Hindu law, and will not bind even the parties themselves;⁷⁵⁹ and the Allahabad High Court has held that even an immediate party is not bound by an agreement not to partition for an indefinite time.⁷⁶⁰

ILLUSTRATION

An arbitrator made an award between two sisters giving each a half share of an estate and appointing the husband of one sister manager, but directed that neither sister would have a right to claim partition. One sister died and her son sued for partition. The Privy Council held that the clause in restraint of partition afforded no defence to the son's suit for partition. Their Lordship said:

It may have bound the parties who agreed among themselves to abide by it; but as against the present plaintiff, the clause has no effect whatever ... (The arbitrator) had no power to make property which was divisible by law indivisible forever.⁷⁶¹

11. Restriction repugnant to interest created.—

On the other hand, an estate may be impartible by custom, or by the terms of the grant, for the Crown has power to grant or transfer land and by its grant or transfer, to limit in any way it pleases the descent of such lands.⁷⁶²

[s 11.8] Hindu and Mahomedan Law

The invalidity of conditions in restraint of enjoyment of property is recognized both in Hindu and Mahomedan Law. A direction in restraint of partition in a Hindu will;⁷⁶³ or in a Hindu gift⁷⁶⁴ is void. In *Anantha v Nagamuthu*⁷⁶⁵ it was decided under Hindu law that a condition in a gift to Brahmins restrictive of alienation is invalid as being repugnant to the nature of grant; and the same decision was given in *Rukminilal v Laxmibai*⁷⁶⁶ under this section. An estate cannot be made subject to a condition which is repugnant to any of its ordinary legal incidents, and there is nothing in the Hindu law which would permit of a departure from that principle.⁷⁶⁷ Under Mahomedan law when a gift is made subject to a condition which derogates from its completeness, the gift is valid, but the condition is void.⁷⁶⁸

[s 11.9] Restrictions for Beneficial Enjoyment of One's Own Land

This section relates to the enforcement of the restrictions against the transferee, while section 40 refers to the enforcements of the restriction against purchasers from the transferee.

The words “compel the enjoyment”, which occurred in the old section, have been omitted in the section as amended. The omission of those words, however, does not effect any change in the law, for though words have been omitted, the substituted words “to enforce such direction” have the same effect. In other words, the section as amended recognizes as much as did the old section that there may be a covenant which, though affirmative in character, may be enforceable as between the actual parties to the transfer, i.e., the transferor and transferee. Where upon the sale of the property, a portion of the property was retained by the seller and the imposition of a restriction was necessary in order the vendor could enjoy his property, such restriction or condition would be valid and enforceable. However, if the seller fails to demonstrate that the condition imposed in the sale deed was made for the purpose of securing the beneficial enjoyment of his another property the condition would amount to a restriction repugnant to the interest created and thus void.⁷⁶⁹ In *Bhupati Bhushan v Birendra Mohan*⁷⁷⁰ it was held that a condition in a deed by which a vendee agrees to pay an annuity to B for life, and thereafter to the vendor, his heirs and successors forever out of a specific property, such a condition though not a covenant recurring with the land is a perpetual charge binding on the vendee and his heirs. Respondent-transferee is bound by the covenant in the sale deed mentioning the existence of a decree of permanent injunction against the vendors, in the enjoyment of the property purchased by him.⁷⁷¹

In Umashankar Agarwal v Daulatram Sahu,⁷⁷² a shop was sold subject to a condition that purchaser shall not be entitled to construct any basement or any pakka construction but there was nothing to show that this direction was made for the purpose of securing the beneficial enjoyment of vendor's another property. The condition stipulated was held contrary to the mandate of section 11 and hence void.

[s 11.10] Position under section 40

Para 1 of section 40 before its amendment, also contained the words “compel its enjoyment,” which recognized that an affirmative covenant may be enforced even against a purchaser from a transferee. However, those words have now been omitted in that section, and the legislature has adopted the view that an affirmative covenant cannot now be enforced against a purchaser from a transferee. It is only a negative covenant that may be enforced against him, eg a covenant not to build. If there is such a covenant, and the purchaser buys with notice of the covenant, the court may restrain him by an injunction from building. There is no substitution in section 40 of the words “enforce such direction” for the words “compel the enjoyment” as in section 11. A restrictive covenant imposed for the better enjoyment of property cannot be enforced against the covenantor by a stranger, unless such a right can be specifically transferred to him.⁷⁷³

11. Restriction repugnant to interest created.—

The result then is that there is no alteration in the law in section 11. The alteration is in section 40 to the extent mentioned above. In *Nand Gopal v Batuck Prasad*⁷⁷⁴ a covenant to pull down, when required by the vendor, the rooms over a passage between the house of the vendor and the house sold, was held to fall under the second paragraph of section 11, and to be enforceable under section 40 against a transferee from the vendee. The case was decided under the law as it was before the amendment of the two sections. Under the amended sections, the covenant could have been enforced against the vendee under section 11, but being an affirmative covenant it could not have been enforced against a transferee from the vendee.

In determining whether a covenant is negative or positive, the court looks to the substance, and not to the form of expression.⁷⁷⁵ Thus absence of negative words cannot by itself always indicate that the covenant is of a positive character. Thus covenant to leave a space having the width of 12 fingers to the respective side's from a common wall in case of future reconstruction of respective portions of building though positive in form is negative in its essence and character.⁷⁷⁶

[s 11.11] Enforceable Against Whom

A single Judge of the Allahabad High Court has held that the second part of section 11 can be enforced only by the transferor, and not by a transferee of another portion of the property. This is so even though all the transfers have similar conditions imposed, and all were concluded on the same day and the conditions are imposed for the beneficial enjoyment of the portions transferred to such other transferees. A contract binds only the parties thereto. Section 40 also does not apply as it is confined to land burdened with restrictive covenants.⁷⁷⁷

In Santhakumaran v Vivekanandan,⁷⁷⁸ the parents of two sons, S1 and S2 assigned a part of property in the north of the property owned by them and rice mill therein to S2. Since they retained a portion of the property with them, the assignment imposed a few covenants on S2, to prevent the possible nuisance on account of the functioning of the rice mill. By virtue of the covenants, S2, among others, was to construct a compound wall at a height of 8 feet separating the properties given to him and retained by the parents; to keep a gate opening to the property in dispute for entry to the rice mill on the compound wall directed to be constructed; to construct a compound wall on the western boundary of the property and to maintain the gate at the southern boundary of the property for the use of S2 as also the parents by keeping one of its key with him and giving one key to the parents. Later, S1 purchased the residential property retained by the parents. After the parents' death, both the parties obtained rights in the remaining one half of the property in dispute. Thereafter, S2 demolished the compound wall on the western boundary and the gate installed on the southern boundary of the property. The issue was whether a transferee of the covenantor is entitled to enforce the covenants imposed for the beneficial enjoyment of the property acquired by him. The court held that the second part of section 11 saves the restrictions made for the purpose of securing the beneficial enjoyment of the remaining property of the transferor and when the benefit has been once clearly annexed to one piece of land, it passes by assignment of that land and said to run with it. Further, the benefit annexed to the land is available even to an assignee who is not aware of the benefit at the time of assignment. Therefore S2 had to abide by the covenants.

⁷³⁸ Subs. by Act 20 of 1929, section 8, for the original paragraph.

⁷³⁹ Achammal v Rajamanickam Karthikeyan, AIR 2010 Mad. 34 [LNIND 2009 MAD 3158] : 2010 (2) Mad LJ 1210 : LNIND 2009 MAD 3158.

⁷⁴⁰ Manjusha Debi v Sunil Chandra, AIR 1972 Cal 310 [LNIND 1972 CAL 77] : (1972) 1 Cal LT 346 (HC) : ILR 1973 (1) Cal 23.

⁷⁴¹ See note below, "Absolutely".

⁷⁴² N Maneklal v Bai Savita, in CA 959 of 1963, dated 1 October 1965, unreported.

11. Restriction repugnant to interest created.—

- 743 Chamaru Sahu v Soma Koer, (1911) 14 Cal LJ 303 : 11 IC 301; see Manjusha Devi v Sunil Chandra, AIR 1972 Cal 310 [LNIND 1972 CAL 77] : (1972) 1 Cal LT 346 (HC) : ILR 1973 (1) Cal 23 .
- 744 Re Macleay [1875] 20 Eq 186 .
- 745 See note (7) to section 10.
- 746 Govindamma v Secretary of Municipal First Grade College, Chintamani, AIR 1987 Kant. 227 [LNIND 1986 KANT 44] , p 230.
- 747 Indu Kakkar v Haryana State Industrial Development Corp Ltd, (1999) 2 SCC 37 [LNIND 1998 SC 1066] : AIR 1999 SC 296 [LNIND 1998 SC 1066] .
- 748 Jagdeo Baksh v Jwala Prasad, (1913) 15 OC 345 : 15 IC 244, p 246.
- 749 Kateswar Estate v Muhammad Amir, (1918) 5 Oudh LJ 149 : 46 IC 73.
- 750 Sooramma v Venkatraman, (1951) 2 Mad LJ 664 : AIR 1952 Mad. 116 .
- 751 Bejoy Krishna v Ishwar Damodar, AIR 1954 Cal 400 [LNIND 1954 CAL 10] .
- 752 Mahram Das v Ajudhia, (1886) ILR 8 All 452; Official Receiver v Samudravijayan, (1939) 1 Mad LJ 575 : 49 Mad LW 591 : 1939 Mad WN 378 : 185 IC 288 : AIR 1939 Mad. 509 [LNIND 1938 MAD 305] .
- 753 Shiv Nath v Lachhmi Narain, AIR 1938 Oudh 17 ; Lilawati v Firm Ram Dhari, AIR 1971 P&H. 87; State of Rajasthan v Jeo Raj, AIR 1990 Raj. 90 , p 94.
- 754 Panna Lal Hazra v Fulmoni Hazra, AIR 1987 Cal 368 [LNIND 1986 CAL 191] ; see also note (2) above, “Principle”.
- 755 Umashankar Agrawal v Daulatram Sahu, AIR 2011 CHG. 72 .
- 756 Jayawant Baliramji Panchbhai v Anusuyabai Vasantrao Deshmukh, AIR 2017 Bom 178 : 2017 (5) Bom CR 423 : 2017 (5) ABR 77 .
- 757 Umrao Singh v Baldeo Singh, (1933) ILR 14 Lah 353 : 143 IC 615 : AIR 1933 Lah 201 .
- 758 Anand Chandra v Pran Kisto, (1866) 3 Bom LR 14 ; Anath Nath v Mackintosh, (1871) 8 Bom LR 60 ; Rajendra v Sham Chand, (1881) ILR 6 Cal 106; Rup Singh v Bhabhuti, (1920) ILR 42 All 30 : 58 IC 632; Abu Muhammad v Kamiz Fizza, (1905) ILR 28 All 185; Jafri Begam v Syed Ali, (1901) ILR 23 All 383 : 28 IA 111, p 118.
- 759 Ramlinga v Virupakshi, (1883) ILR 7 Bom 538; Radhanath v Tarrucknath, (1896) 3 Cal WN 126.
- 760 Chandar Shekar v Kundan Lal, (1909) ILR 31 All 3 : 1 IC 554.
- 761 Jafri Begam v Syed Ali Raza, (1901) ILR 23 All 383 : 28 IA 111, p 118. See also Sirmohan v MacGregor, (1901) ILR 28 Cal 769, p 786
- 762 Rajindra v Raghubans, (1918) ILR 40 All 470 : 45 IA 134 : 48 IC 213; As to whether a partition is a transfer, see notes under section 5.
- 763 Raikishori v Debendranath, (1888) ILR 15 Cal 409 : 15 IA 37; Mokoonda Lall v Ganesh Chandra, (1876) ILR 1 Cal 104.
- 764 Narayanan v Kannan, (1884) ILR 7 Mad 315.
- 765 Anantha v Nagamuthu, (1882) ILR 4 Mad 200.
- 766 Rukminilal v Laxmibai, (1920) ILR 44 Bom 304 : 56 IC 361; Saraju Bala v Jyotirmoyee, (1931) 35 Cal WN 903 : 58 IA 270 : 134 IC 648 : AIR 1931 PC 179 .
- 767 Smt Ram Kali v Smt Sumitra, AIR 1983 All 429 .
- 768 Moulvi Muhammad v Fatima Bibi, 12 IA 159.
- 769 Umashankar Agrawal v Daulatram Sahu, AIR 2011 CHG. 72 .
- 770 Bhupati Bhushan v Birendra Mohan, (1948) ILR 1 Cal 492.
- 771 Ramachandra Deshpande v Laxmana Rao Kulkarni, AIR 2000 Kant. 298 [LNIND 2000 KANT 284] , para 19.
- 772 Umashankar Agarwal v Daulatram Sahu, AIR 2011 CHG. 72 .
- 773 BD Bamable v Michale K Lal, AIR 1951 Ajmer 75 .
- 774 Nand Gopal v Batuck Prasad, (1932) ILR 54 All 17 : (1932) All LJ 3 : 133 IC 541 : AIR 1932 All 78 .
- 775 Wolverhampton and Walsal Rly Co v London and NW Rly Co, [1873] 16 Eq 433 , p 440; Lord Strathcona Steamship Co v Dominion Coal Co, [1926] AC 108 : [1925] All ER Rep 87 .

11. Restriction repugnant to interest created.—

776 Princy v Jose, AIR 2010 Ker. 1 [LNIND 2009 KER 225] : (2009) 2 KLJ 335 : (2009) 2 KLT 426 [LNIND 2009 KER 225]

777 Bhagwat Prasad v Damodar Das, AIR 1976 All 417 ; Leela v Ambujakshy, AIR 1989 Ker. 308 [LNIND 1989 KER 169] , p 310.

778 Santhakumaran v Vivekanandan, 2016 (1) KLJ 419 : 2016 (1) KLT 841 [LNIND 2015 KER 32227] .

12. Condition making interest determinable on insolvency or attempted alienation.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

12. Condition making interest determinable on insolvency or attempted alienation.—

Where property is transferred subject to a condition or limitation making any interest therein, reserved or given to or for the benefit of any person, to cease on his becoming insolvent or endeavouring to transfer or dispose off the same, such condition or limitation is void.

Nothing in this section applies to a condition in a lease for the benefit of the lessor or those claiming under him.

[s 12.1] Forfeiture on Insolvency

The object of the section is to protect the creditors of the transferee who would otherwise be prevented from having recourse to the property transferred for the satisfaction of their debts. Despite a condition of defeasance on insolvency, the property would vest in the official receiver or the official assignee, as the case may be. The words “dispose off” no doubt refer to settlements, for it would be a fraud on creditors if a man was permitted to settle his property in trust for himself until he should take advantage of the Act for the relief of insolvent debtors, and after that on a near relation.

ILLUSTRATION

A settles property in trust for himself until his death or bankruptcy and then over, on either of these events, on his wife. A is adjudged insolvent. A's life interest vests in the Official Receiver or Official Assignee.

[s 12.2] Forfeiture on Attempted Alienation

In so far as the section invalidates a condition of defeasance on an attempted alienation, it rests on the same principles as sections 10 and 11 as to restrictions repugnant to the interest transferred.

[s 12.2.1] Provident Fund

12. Condition making interest determinable on insolvency or attempted alienation.—

A rule of Provident Fund that a member purporting to transfer or assign his share or interest in the fund should forfeit such share or interest was held to be invalid under this section. The member applied to be declared insolvent. The Calcutta High Court held that though the vesting in the official assignee, which was the effect of the application, was a transfer by operation of law, yet the member's application to be declared insolvent was a voluntary transfer under the rule. However, as the rule was invalid there was no forfeiture to the fund, but the interest did not vest in the official assignee for the benefit of the creditors.⁷⁷⁹

[s 12.2.2] Stock Broker's card

The section has no application to a rule of Stock Brokers' Association forfeiting a defaulting member's card of membership.⁷⁸⁰

[s 12.3] Indian Succession Act, 1925

In this matter, the provisions of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 differ, for a bequest may be made subject to a condition of defeasance in the event of insolvency. Illustration (vii) to section 120 of that Act which is corresponding to illustration (g) to section 107, Indian Succession Act, 1865 are relevant in this respect.⁷⁸¹

[s 12.4] Lease

Leases constitute an exception, for the lessor having the jus dis-ponendi may annex any conditions he pleases to his grant, provided they be not illegal or unreasonable.⁷⁸² A covenant determining a lease in the event of the insolvency of the lessee is valid.⁷⁸³ The condition applies to the insolvency of the person who has the term created by the lease. If the lessee assigns the term and then becomes insolvent, the condition does not apply.⁷⁸⁴ The insolvency of the lessee will not involve a forfeiture, unless there is a provision in the lease that the lessor may re-enter on the happening of such event. This is expressly enacted in the amendment made in section 111 (g) by the amending Act 20 of 1929. The new section 114A provides for relief of forfeiture in such cases.

A kharposh grant of certain property made by the holder of an impartible property in favour of junior for maintenance, is not a lease. A condition in such grant that if the said property is sold in auction for the grantee's debt the grant will come to an end, is not an absolute restraint on alienation and is not invalid under section 10, but is wholly void under section 12.⁷⁸⁵

[s 12.5] For the Benefit of the Lessor

The amendment of section 111(g) makes it clear that these words refer to a condition giving the lessor a right of re-entry.

⁷⁷⁹ Re Earnest Clarence O'Brein, (1933) ILR 60 Cal 1 926 : 37 Cal WN 1050 : 147 IC 422 : AIR 1933 Cal 701; Rochford v Hachman, [1852] 9 Hare 475.

⁷⁸⁰ Official Assignee of Bombay v Shroff, 59 IA 318 : 36 Cal WN 909 : 55 Cal LJ 592 : 63 Mad LJ 623 : 137 IC 766 : AIR 1932 Cal 186.

⁷⁸¹ See notes to section 21 below.

12. Condition making interest determinable on insolvency or attempted alienation.—

782 Roe d Hunter v Galliers, [1787] 2 Term Rep 133 : 1 RR 445.

783 Ex Parte Gould, Re Walker [\[1884\] 18 QBD 454](#)  ; Vyankatraya v Shivrambhat, (1883) ILR 7 Bom 256, p 271.

784 Smith v Gronow, [\[1891\] 2 QB 394](#) .

785 Shiba Prasad v Lekhraj and Co, (1945) ILR 23 Pat 871 : AIR 1945 Pat. 162 .

13. Transfer for benefit of unborn person.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

13. Transfer for benefit of unborn person.—

Where, on a transfer of property, an interest therein is created for the benefit of a person not in existence at the date of the transfer, subject to a prior interest created by the same transfer, the interest created for the benefit of such person shall not take effect, unless it extends to the whole of the remaining interest of the transferor in the property.

ILLUSTRATION

A transfers property of which he is the owner to B in trust for A and his intended wife successively for their lives, and after the death of the survivor, for the eldest son of the intended marriage for life, and after his death for A's second son. The interest so created for the benefit of the eldest son does not take effect, because it does not extend to the whole of A's remaining interest in the property.

[s 13.1] Transfer for Benefit of Unborn Person

A transfer cannot be made directly to an unborn person, for the definition of transfer in section 5 is limited to living persons. Such a transfer can only be made by the machinery of trusts. A trust may thus be created in favour of an unborn person if it satisfies the condition laid down in section 13 even though coming into existence of such a person is uncertain.⁷⁸⁶ Possibly it is intended to express this distinction by the words “for the benefit of,” the trustees being the transferees who hold the property for the benefit of the unborn person.

Under Hindu⁷⁸⁷ law, a child en ventre sa mere is in existence. In a case of Andhra Pradesh High Court, M executed a settlement deed in respect of the suit property, giving a life estate to his son G and, after G's death, to the sons of G, to be born, absolutely. G, in turn, executed a “relinquishment” deed of his estate in favour of his father. It was held that merely because the relinquishment deed was executed before the birth of the sons of G, the gift in favour of the unborn sons would not fail. The invalidity of the transfer must be judged with reference to the original settlement deed, and not by the voluntary act of the donees under the deed itself. A person who obtains the benefit of a deed cannot, by his volition, defeat the terms of the deed under which he obtained the interest. The unborn acquired a vested interest on his birth under section 20. No one can defeat such interest. The life estate holder cannot defeat the interests of the unborn person by transferring the life estate to a third person. In this case, there was no possibility of defeating the interests of the unborn children as violative of the provisions of section 16.⁷⁸⁸ Where A transfers the property in favour of B with his other siblings not in existence on the date of the transfer, the transfer in favour of unborn persons is valid and B would have to share the property with them.⁷⁸⁹

13. Transfer for benefit of unborn person.—

[s 13.2] Subject to a Prior Interest

The estate must vest in some person between the date of the transfer, and the coming into existence of the unborn person. The interest of the unborn person must, therefore, be in every case preceded by a prior interest; and the section in effect says that the interest of the unborn person must be the whole remainder, so that it is impossible to confer an estate for life on an unborn person. In the illustration to the section, the interest created for the benefit of the unborn eldest son is only a life interest and it, therefore, fails. A transfer in favour of an unborn person is therefore valid, provided it is effected through a living person.⁷⁹⁰ Where property was gifted by the owner to his grandson without any power of alienation and after the death of such grandson, the property was to vest in his male children absolutely, such gift would be valid, and the condition restraining alienation by the grandson is valid and therefore alienation by him during his life would be void.⁷⁹¹ Where the property was transferred by the transferor by way of gift deed in favour of the grandson without any power of alienation and the property thereafter was to vest in male children of the grandson, such gift created a life interest in favour of the grandson and absolute interest in favour of his unborn sons, and would be valid under this section. Restraint on powers of alienation of the grandson would be valid and alienation at his behest would be improper. His sons would be entitled to sale consideration received by the father upon such sale.⁷⁹² In R Sakunthala v P Renganathan,⁷⁹³ a testator created a life interest for his sons without right of alienation and after their life time it was to devolve upon their male descendants for life and thereafter their descendants for generations. The recital, it was held fell under the mischief of both section 13 and the rule against perpetuity, which is against public policy hence, the later part of the Will would have no effect. Where through a settlement deed a large portion of property was settled absolutely in favour of the other while a portion of property by way of life interest was retained by himself and his descendants, an absolute settlement made with respect to the retained property later would be void.⁷⁹⁴ In Girish Dutt v Data Din,⁷⁹⁵ A made a gift of her property to B, her nephew's daughter, for life, and then to B's male descendants, if she should have any, absolutely; but if she should have no male descendants then to B's daughter without power of alienation; but if there were no descendants of B, male or female, then to her nephew. B died without issue. The gift to the unborn daughters, being of a limited interest and subject to the prior interest created in favour of B, was invalid under section 13 and the gift to the nephew, therefore, failed under section 16. The illustration to section 113 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, may also be referred to in this connection.

[s 13.3] Indian Succession Act, 1925

The section is almost identical with section 113, Indian Succession Act, 1925. The difference between the two sections is that the former relates to transfer inter vivos, while the latter deals with bequest which take effect only on the death of the testator. The principle underlined in section 113 is that a person disposing of property to another shall not fetter the free disposition of that property in the hands of several generations. The rule is quite distant from rule against perpetuity, though their effects sometimes overlap.

Section 13 controls section 113 and, therefore, both these sections should be read together.⁷⁹⁶

An instance of a bequest held invalid under this section is the case of Putlibai v Sorabji Naoroji.⁷⁹⁷

In Sopher v Administrator-General of Bengal.⁷⁹⁸ The Privy Council, considered the effect of section 113 of the Indian Succession Act in a will which provided for an ultimate bequest in favour of persons not born at the time of the testator's death, and the question that arose for decision was whether the bequest comprised the whole of the testator's remaining interest in the thing bequeathed. Two clauses in the will provided for the forfeiture of the interests of the unborn beneficiaries in certain contingencies. It was held that:

13. Transfer for benefit of unborn person.—

if under a bequest in the circumstances mentioned in section 113 there is a possibility of the interest given to a beneficiary being defeated either by a contingency or by a clause of defeasance, the beneficiary under the later bequest does not receive the interest bequeathed in the same unfettered form as that in which the testator held it and that the bequest to him does not therefore comprise the whole of the remaining interest of the testator in the thing bequeathed.

This decision was considered by Blagden J in Ardeshir v Dadabhoy,⁷⁹⁹ a case where a settlement provided for a gift to the settlor's grandsons who were not yet born and which provided that if the settlor's sons pre-deceased the senior without male issue, the property was to revert to the settlor. The settlement also reserved a power of revocation in the settlor. The learned judge observed:

it does seem unfortunate that their Lordships' attention was apparently focussed entirely on section 113 and 120 of the Indian Succession Act and does not seem ever to have been called to illustration 3 to section 114...

In view of the decision in Sopher's case, questions would arise as to the validity of such settlements in which the settlor reserves a power of revocation or variation or in which the settlor provides for the management of the interests of the unborn persons after their birth and during their minority.

Both these decisions were considered by the Bombay High Court in Framroz Dadabhoy Madon v Tehmina.⁸⁰⁰ The court held that the principle of Sopher's case was inapplicable to trusts of a settlement inter vivos.⁸⁰¹ The court construed the word "extends to the whole of the remaining interest of the transferor in the property" as directed to the extent of the subject-matter and to the absolute nature of the estate conferred, and not to the certainty of its vesting.⁸⁰² This decision has been subsequently followed by the same high court.⁸⁰³

The Bombay legislature has, however, passed the Disposition of Property (Bombay Validating) Act, 1947, by which it is provided that trusts or wills made prior to 1 January 1947, would not be deemed to be invalid by reason of section 13 of the TP Act, 1882 or section 113 of the Indian Succession Act, i.e., by the construction put on those provisions by the Privy Council in Sopher's case.

[s 13.4] Movable

As its position in the TP Act, 1882 shows, the section applies to movable as well as immovable property.⁸⁰⁴

[s 13.5] Hindu Law

According to pure Hindu law, a gift or bequest in favour of an unborn person is void.⁸⁰⁵ However, this rule has been modified by statute. The Madras Act 1 of 1914, Hindu Disposition of Property Act, 15 of 1916, and Act 8 of 1921 validate gifts to unborn persons. These Acts have been amended by sections 11, 12 and 13 of Act 21 of 1929, and the amendments enact that subject to the limitations in chapter II of TP Act, 1882, and in sections 113, 114, 115 and 116 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, no transfer inter vivos or by will of property by a Hindu shall be invalid by reason only that any person for whose benefit it may have been made was not born at the date of such dispositions. The omission of the word Hindu in section 2 makes this section directly applicable to Hindus.⁸⁰⁶

13. Transfer for benefit of unborn person.—

[s 13.6] Mahomedan Law

A gift to a person not in existence is void under Mahomedan law.⁸⁰⁷

-
- 786 Madras Bar Association v UOI, (2014) 10 SCC 1 [LNIND 2014 SC 853] : AIR 2015 SC 1571 [LNIND 2014 SC 853] : 2014 (11)Scale 166 [LNIND 2014 SC 853] : LNIND 2014 SC 853 .
- 787 Tagore v Tagore, (1872) 9 Beng LR 337.
- 788 JV Satyanarayana v Pyboyina Manikyan, AIR 1983 AP 139 [LNIND 1982 AP 274] , paras 9, 12.
- 789 Devaru Ganapathi Bhai v Prabhakar Ganapathi Bhai, (2004) 2 SCC 504 : AIR 2004 SC 2665 .
- 790 P Rajamani Rurukul v Rama, (2010) 4 Mad LJ 47 : AIR 2010 Mad. 197 [LNIND 2010 MAD 1246] : LNIND 2010 MAD 1246 .
- 791 Sridhar v N Revanna, AIR 2012 Kant. 79 [LNIND 2012 KANT 25] : LNIND 2012 KANT 25 : 2012 (2) Kant LJ 202 [LNIND 2012 KANT 25] .
- 792 Sridhar v N Revanna, AIR 2012 Kant. 79 [LNIND 2012 KANT 25] .
- 793 R Sakunthala v P Renganathan, (2017) 3 Mad LJ 303.
- 794 Sri Siddaraju v Sri Gangadhara, AIR 2012 Kant. 143 [LNIND 2012 KANT 57] : LNIND 2012 KANT 57 .
- 795 Girish Dutt v Data Din, (1924) ILR 9 Luck 329 : 147 IC 991 : AIR 1934 Oudh 35 .
- 796 T Subramania Nadar v T Varadharajan, AIR 2003 Mad. 364 [LNIND 2003 MAD 693] , p 368 : (2003) 2 Mad LJ 224.
- 797 Putlibai v Sorabji Naoroji, (1923) 25 Bom LR 1099 [LNIND 1923 BOM 112] : 76 IC 996 : AIR 1923 PC 122 .
- 798 Sopher v Administrator-General of Bengal, 71 IA 93 : 216 IC 53 : 46 Bom LR 86 : AIR 1944 PC 67 .
- 799 Ardeshir v Dadabhoy, (1945) ILR Bom 493 : 47 Bom LR 287 : AIR 1945 Bom 395 .
- 800 Framroz Dadabhoy Madon v Tehmina, (1947) 49 Bom LR 882 .
- 801 See, however, Isaac Nissim v Official Trustee, AIR 1957 Cal 118 [LNIND 1956 CAL 81] .
- 802 See the “parable” cited by J Blagden in Ardeshir v Dadabhoy, (1945) ILR Bom 493 , p 503.
- 803 David Joseph Izra v Sir Alwyn Izra, (appeal 22 of 1947 from suit 310 of 1946).
- 804 Cowasji v Rustomji, (1896) 20 ILR Bom 511 .
- 805 Tagore v Tagore, (1872) 9 Beng LR 377; Mamubai v Dossa, (1891) ILR 15 Bom 443; Sri Raja Venkata v Sri Rajah Suraneni, (1908) ILR 31 Mad 310.
- 806 See note to section 2(d).
- 807 Abdul Cadur v Turner, (1884) ILR 9 Bom 158; Mohamed Shah v Officials Trustee of Bengal, (1909) ILR 36 Cal 431 : 2 IC 291.

14. Rule against perpetuity.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

14. Rule against perpetuity.—

No transfer of property can operate to create an interest which is to take effect after the lifetime of one or more persons living at the date of such transfer, and the minority of some person who shall be in existence at the expiration of that period, and to whom, if he attains full age, the interest created is to belong.

[s 14.1] Principle

The rule against perpetuity is founded on the general principle of policy guiding judges, that the liberty of alienation shall not be exercised to its own destruction, and that all contrivances shall be void which tend to create a perpetuity or place property forever beyond the reach of the exercise of power of alienation.⁸⁰⁸

[s 14.2] “Perpetuity”

A perpetuity, in the primary sense of the word, is a disposition which makes property inalienable for an indefinite period.⁸⁰⁹ In this sense it is concerned with certain interests created in praesenti, which are sought to be made inalienable for an indefinite period. In its modern sense, it is concerned with interest arising in futuro, and not with interest arising in praesenti. The present section, strictly speaking, deals only with the modern rule against perpetuities. In this sense TP Act, 1882 appears to be incomplete.

[s 14.3] Rule as perpetuity in its primary sense

Examples of such interest in praesenti which have been held void under the name of perpetuity or as tending to a perpetuity are, as conveniently classified in *Halsbury's Laws of England*⁸¹⁰ as follows:

- (1) Estates and interests limited in praesenti with an unauthorised mode of devolution, for example an estate of inheritance not known to the common law; an unbarrable entail; an estate in which successive heirs take life estates only; the attempted entail of a chattel made prior to 1926.
- (2) Interests held on perpetual non-charitable trust, where no person or persons can take any benefit, eg trusts to keep in repair a tomb not part of the fabric of a church.
- (3) Gifts to trustees for non-charitable indefinite objects or for non-charitable unincorporated institutions or societies which may last for an indefinite time.

14. Rule against perpetuity.—

As regards the first class, it will suffice to say that even under the Hindu law no estate can be created which is unknown to Hindu law. The principle on which the second class is put has been applied in India in Administrator General v Hushes.⁸¹¹ The cases falling within the third class require consideration.

Their Lordships of the Privy Council in an appeal from Australia⁸¹² cited with approval the following passage from an unreported judgment of Lord Hanworth:

The problem may be stated in this way. If the gift is in truth to the present member of the society described by their society name so that they have the beneficial use of the property and can, if they please, alienate and put the proceeds in their own pocket, then there is a present gift to individuals which is good, but if the gift is intended for the goods not only of the present but of future members so that the present members are in the position of trustees and have no right to appropriate the property or its proceeds for their personal benefit, then the gift is invalid.⁸¹³

An Indian decision on the point is to be found in MAE Halfhyde v CA Saldanha.⁸¹⁴ On the authorities, it seems that the question of validity or otherwise of such a gift has to be approached by stages. The first question is: whether it is a gift to the individual members for the time being constituting the association, or is it a gift to the association. If it is the former, the gift is good. If it is a gift to the association as such, the next question is: whether it is a gift, free and unfettered, or is it a trust. If it is an unfettered gift, the gift is good. If it is a trust, the final question arises: whether it is an endowment so that the donee must hold the corpus for all times to come and cannot deal with the corpus as and when he pleases, or it is an immediate beneficial gift so that the donee can use the corpus and income as and when the donee pleases.⁸¹⁵ If it is an endowment, the gift fails as offending the rule against perpetuities in its primary sense and if not, it is good and valid.

Our section does not in terms deal with “perpetuity” in its primary sense, and therefore, a perpetual gift in praesenti whether free or fettered, will not strictly be within the mischief of section 14. Where husband and wife intend to have a benefit of the property for their life and vested remainder to their unborn children, there is nothing illegal in giving the vested remainder to their unborn children, and creating life interest in themselves. This life interest created in favour of the wife can be enjoyed by her along with her husband, and on his demise for her residue period. This would be an interest created in them to appropriate in praesenti its uses for their own benefit. The life estate so created in favour of the wife does not offend the rule of perpetuity as incorporated in section 14.⁸¹⁶

[s 14.4] Modern rule against perpetuities

The modern rule against perpetuities is thus enunciated by Jarman:⁸¹⁷

Subject to the exceptions to be presently mentioned, no contingent or executory interest in property can be validly created, unless it must necessarily vest within the maximum period of one or more lives in being and twenty-one years⁸¹⁸ afterwards.

The exceptions to the rule are conveniently set out in Halsbury's Laws of England.⁸¹⁹ It is this modern English rule which is with certain modifications, adopted by this section. The only exception to the rule expressly recognised by TP Act, 1882 is that embodied in section 18. It will be presently seen that some of the exceptions recognized by the English law have also been recognized by courts in India.

14. Rule against perpetuity.—

So long as the transferees are living persons, any number of successive estates can be created. A transfer may be made to A for life, and then to B for life, and then to C for life, and so on, provided A, B and C are all living persons at the date of the transfer. However, if the ultimate beneficiary is some one not in existence at the date of the transfer, section 13 requires that the whole residue of the estate should be transferred to him. If he is not born before the termination of the last prior estate, the transfer to him fails under this section. If he is born before the termination of the last prior estate, he takes a vested interest at birth and possession immediately on the last prior estate.

The rule against perpetuities, however, does not require that the vesting shall take place at the birth of the ultimate beneficiary. What it does require is that the vesting cannot be delayed in any case beyond his minority. Thus, if after the life estates to A, B and C, the ultimate beneficiary is the eldest son of C, the limitation would be to C for life with remainder to C's eldest son, in which case the eldest son would take a vested interest at birth, although he may not have been born at the date of the transfer. However, if it is intended that the estate shall not vest in an infant, the limitation would be to C for life and then on trust for such son of C as shall first attain the age of 18; the son of C has then a contingent interest which becomes vested when he attains the age of 18. If the last limitation had been to C for life, and then on trust for such son of C as shall first attain the age of 19, the transfer after C's death would be void. The result of the rule against perpetuity is that the minority of the ultimate beneficiary is the latest period at which an estate can be made to vest.

[s 14.5] Regard Must be Possible and not Actual Events

In deciding questions of remoteness, regard must be possible, and not to actual events.⁸²⁰ This is made quite clear in the corresponding section 114 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, where the words are “may be delayed”.

ILLUSTRATION

R has a share in a village which he sold to the defendant reserving two bighas of land under the following condition: “Two bighas of land which I have excluded from the sale shall remain in my possession for life, and after my death in the possession of my lineal descendants...I and my lineal descendants have no right to transfer the land excluded...If none of my lineal descendants be alive then the land shall be the own property of the vendee.” This was a transfer to take effect on the death of the vendor's last lineal descendant. R had only one son who was alive at the date of the transfer, but who died childless. On actual facts, the transfer operated within the period allowed, but as it was possible that the transfer might have been postponed for 100 or 200 years until the vendor's lien was extinct, the transfer of the two bighas was void.⁸²¹

In the case of special powers of appointment, regard should be had to the facts which are ascertained when the power is exercised.⁸²²

ILLUSTRATION

A testator died in 1872 leaving his property to his wife for life. He also gave his wife power to appoint on trust for their son and his issue in such manner, as she thought fit. The wife died in 1893 leaving a will whereby she appointed the property to her son for life with remainder to such of his children living at her death as shall attain the age of 25. All the son's children attained the age of 25 before the wife died, i.e. before 1893. The appointment was held to be valid.⁸²³

14. Rule against perpetuity.—

[s 14.6] Indian Succession Act

The rule against perpetuity is in section 114 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. The following are the illustrations to that section:

- (i) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life and after his death to B for his life; and after B's death to such of the sons of B as shall first attain the age of 25. A and B survive the testator. Here the son of B who shall first attain the age of 25 may be a son born after the death of the testator; such son may not attain 25 until more than 18 years have elapsed from the death of the longer liver of A and B; and the vesting of the fund may thus be delayed beyond the lifetime of A and B and the minority of the sons of B. The bequest after B's death is void.
- (ii) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B for his life, and after B's death to such of B's sons as shall first attain the age of 25. B dies in the lifetime of the testator, leaving one or more sons. In this case the sons of B are persons living at the time of the testator's decease, and the time when either of them will attain 25, necessarily falls within his own lifetime. The bequest is valid.
- (iii) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B for his life, with a direction that after B's death it shall be divided among such of B's children as shall attain the age of 18, but that, if no child of B shall attain that age, the fund shall go to C. Here the time for the division of the fund must arrive at the latest at the expiration of 18 years from the death of B, a person living at the testator's decease. All the bequests are valid.
- (iv) A fund is bequeathed to trustees for the benefit of the testator's daughters, with a direction that, if any of them marry under age, her share of the fund shall be settled so as to devolve after her death upon such of her children as shall attain the age of 18. Any daughter of the testator to whom the direction applies must be in existence at his decease, and any portion of the fund which may eventually be settled as directed must vest not later than 18 years from the death of the daughters whose share it was. All these provisions are valid.

In *Anandrao Vinayak v Administrator-General of Bombay*⁸²⁴ there was a gift of movable property to a son with a gift of shares in the property to the son's sons when they should attain the age of 21. The gift was held void as offending against perpetuity. Similarly in *Kashinath v Chimnaji*⁸²⁵ a bequest to a son who might at any time be adopted by the life tenant was held to be invalid on the same ground. A disposition by the testatrix providing that the sons were to remain in possession of the properties and thereafter their sons without any power of alienation and further that the great grandsons will get the properties as absolute owners, was held to be not hit by the rule against perpetuity on the ground that the sons of the testatrix and their respective sons were alive.⁸²⁶

[s 14.7] Minority

Minority in India terminates at the end of 18 years. In a Privy Council case,⁸²⁷ the bequest was to the testator's daughters for their lives with remainder to their children at the age of 21. The bequest to the children was held to be void under sections 114 and 115 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. An attempt, however, was made to support the bequest on the ground that if guardians of the children were appointed by the court under the Indian Majority Act, 1875, they would not under that Act attain majority till the age of 21, but the contention failed because at the testator's death, it was not certain that any of the children would have guardians appointed.

[s 14.8] Hindu Law

Since the amendment of section 2 this section applied directly to Hindus. It was applied by the Hindu Disposition of Property Act, 1916, and similar provisions were contained in the Madras Act I of 1914 and in Act 8 of 1921. The amendment made to those Acts by Act 21 of 1929 make transfers by Hindus to unborn persons subject to the limitations contained in chapter II of TP Act, 1882, and bequests by Hindus to unborn persons subject to the rules contained in sections 113, 114, 115 and 116 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. However, irrespective of the statute, a perpetuity is repugnant to Hindu law except in the case of religious and charitable endowments.⁸²⁸ A disposition of shebaitship by creating successive life interests is invalid.⁸²⁹

[s 14.9] Mahomedan Law

With reference to Mahomedan law, the Privy Council held in *Abul Fata Mahomed v Rasamaya*⁸³⁰ that a gift to remote and unborn generations is forbidden by Mahomedan law except in the case of a wakf, and that a wakf is invalid if the gift is illusory. However, the law has since been altered by the Mussalman Wakf Validating Act, 1913, under which a wakf is valid even if the gift to charity is unsubstantial and illusory, provided there is an ultimate gift to charity. To this Act retrospective effect has been given by Act 32 of 1930.

14. Rule against perpetuity.—

In another case a Walf-Alal-aulad was created by a Muslim. The settlor executed a trust, settling properties for the benefit for the family, children or descendants from generation to generation, and thereafter for the maintenance of a holy shrine. It was held that the wakif-settlor made a dedication in perpetuity of the subject-matter of these trusts for purposes which are considered pious under Islamic law. The properties, therefore, ceased to be the properties for the settlor on the creation of the wakfs in 1953. It was further held that when the settlor died in 1967, the property could not form part of his estate as the settlor had divested himself of these properties 14 years prior to his death.⁸³¹

[s 14.10] Movable and Immovable Property

The rule against perpetuity applies to movable as well as to immovable property.⁸³² This is indicated by the position of the section in this chapter.

[s 14.11] Charities

The rule against perpetuity does not apply to charities.⁸³³

[s 14.12] Power of Appointment

A general power of appointment does not tie up land, and, therefore, the period for the application of this section does not begin to run until the date of the exercise of the power.⁸³⁴ Under special powers of appointment, the donee can transfer only to specified persons, and the effect, therefore, of such a power is to tie up land. In the case of a special power the period is to be reckoned from the date of creation of the power.⁸³⁵ In ordinary cases, as already noted in note (5), in applying the section, regard should be had to possible and not actual events, but in the case of special powers, the facts to be regarded are ascertained when the power is exercised.⁸³⁶

In *Re Legh's Settlement Trusts*⁸³⁷ by a deed of arrangement and re-settlement dated 2 October 1891, the trustees were amongst other things, directed to hold the residue of the trust funds and the income thereof upon trust to pay the income thereof to A during his life and after his death to hold the capital and income in trust for all or any one or more of the issues of A whether children or remote issue as A should by deed or by will appoint. A had five children including one daughter D, who predeceased A leaving two children B and C who were born respectively on 13 March 1929 and 12 May 1931. A, died on 5 March 1935, having made his will dated 3 March 1933. By that will A amongst other things, made an appointment of a share to B and C for their joint lives and after the death of either of them to the survivor for life. It will be noted that—

- (1) the power of appointment given to A was a special power;
- (2) that the appointees were persons not in being at the date of the deed of arrangement;
- (3) at the date of the death of A when his will took effect the appointees were in being.

In these circumstances, the appointment in so far as it was to B and C, for their joint lives was quite good for the vesting of that interest must take place immediately upon the death of A and, therefore, could not be delayed beyond a life in being at the date of the deed (i.e. the life of A) and 21 years thereafter. The question was: whether the appointment in so far as it was to the survivor of them for life was hit by the rule against perpetuities. That depended on whether that appointment was a vested, or a contingent one. It was held that it was contingent, for there was no knowing as to who would be the survivor. It was quite possible that both of them might live for more than 21 years after the death of A (the life in being at the date of the deed) and, therefore, the vesting of the life estate to the survivor might be delayed beyond the life in being at the date of the deed and 21 years. In the premises it was held that the reversionary life interest of the survivor being a contingent interest, offended against the rule.

14. Rule against perpetuity.—

[s 14.13] Provisions for Payment of Debts of Settlor

This is dealt with in section 17(2), and in the note “Exception (i)—Payment of debts”.

[s 14.14] Agreement and Rule Against Perpetuities

The rule against perpetuity does not apply to personal agreements,⁸³⁸ i.e., agreements which do not create an interest in the property.

ILLUSTRATION

The shebait of a temple agree to appoint the family of C as pujaris from generation to generation to perform the services of the temple and make provision for the expenses and remuneration of the office. The agreement is valid and not affected by the rule against perpetuity.⁸³⁹

A condition in a mortgage that the mortgagor may redeem whenever he likes, refers only to the exercise of the equity of redemption which is a present interest. It is, therefore, outside the scope of the rule against perpetuity.⁸⁴⁰

[s 14.14.1] Agreement to purchase land: Covenants for Pre-emption

Section 54 enacts that an agreement for the sale of land does not, of itself, create an interest in land. There was a considerable conflict of decisions as to the application of the rule against perpetuity to such agreements. This conflict has been resolved by the Supreme Court in *Ramharan v Tarn Mohit*⁸⁴¹ where it held that a mere contract for sale of immovable property does not create any interest in immovable property; it follows that the rule cannot apply to such contracts, eg a covenant of pre-emption.

Infact, section 14 begins with the words “No transfer of a property can operate ...” and does not, therefore, apply where there is no “transfer” of property, but only a contract which creates no interest in the land.⁸⁴²

In Maharaj Bahadur Singh v Balchand,⁸⁴³ the Privy Council construing an agreement made before the TP Act, 1882, held that a covenant of pre-emption created an equitable interest in land, and is hit by the rule. This decision was later overruled by the Supreme Court in Ram Baran v Ram Mohit.⁸⁴⁴

Similarly, an agreement by a permanent lessee to surrender the lease whenever the land should be required by the landlord is a personal agreement not void for remoteness.⁸⁴⁵ An agreement in a lease granting a perpetual option to renew from time to time is not hit by the rule as it does not create an interest in property.⁸⁴⁶

[s 14.15] Charge and rule against perpetuities

A charge does not amount to transfer of an interest in land and is, therefore, not affected by the rule against perpetuities.⁸⁴⁷ However, if there is no charge on land, a trust for the payment of income to a payee and his descendants from generation to generation is void as offending against the rule of perpetuity.⁸⁴⁸

14. Rule against perpetuity.—

[s 14.16] Mortgage and rule against perpetuities

In *Padmanabha v Sitarama*⁸⁴⁹ it was held that the rule against perpetuities applied only to cases where there was a new interest in immovable property contemplated to be created after the expiry of the time prescribed by the rule, namely the lifetime of a person living and the minority of one who might be in existence then and that in the case of a mortgage, there was no such future interest in property contemplated to be created because it was of the very essence of the mortgage that the equity of redemption was a present interest in the property in exercise of which alone the property was sought to be redeemed. In a case,⁸⁵⁰ by a mortgage deed of 1931, the mortgagor covenanted to repay the mortgage money with interest by 80 half-yearly instalments and also demised the mortgaged premises to the mortgagee for 3000 years with the usual proviso for cesser on repayment of the mortgage money with costs and interests. The mortgagors being desirous of redeeming the mortgage brought an action for a declaration that the mortgagor was so entitled. It was contended on behalf of the mortgagor, amongst other things, that the mortgage which fixed the date of redemption so many years ahead offended the rule against perpetuities. The House of Lords in agreement with both the courts below on this point, held that the rule against perpetuities had no application to mortgages.

808 William's Real Property, 24th Edn, p 485.

809 Jarman on Wills, 8th Edn, vol I, p 284.

810 Halsbury's Laws of England 3rd Edn, vol 29, p 278.

811 Administrator General v Hushes, (1913) ILR 40 Cal 192 : 21 IC 183.

812 Leahy v Attorney-General, [1959] AC 457 : [1959] 2 All ER 300 . See also Re Clarke [1901] 2 ChD 110  ; Re Drummond [1914] 2 ChD 90  ; Re Price (1943) ChD 422 .

813 [1959] AC 483  , p 484.

814 MAE Halfhyde v CA Saldanha, (1944) 49 Cal WN 145.

815 Meggery and Wade, Law of Real Property, 2nd Edn, p 262.

816 United India Insurance Co Ltd v Katukuri Raghavareddy, AIR 1989 AP 33 [LNIND 1986 AP 333] , pp 36, 37.

817 Jarman on Wills, 8th Edn, vol I, p 304.

818 In Indian law, under the TP Act, 1882, the time specified is not 21 years but the minority of a beneficiary that culminates on his attaining 18 years of age.

819 Halsbury's Laws of England 3rd Edn, vol 29, pp 279, 299.

820 Soudaminey v Jogesh, (1877) ILR 2 Cal 262; Ranganadha v Baghirathi, (1906) ILR 29 Mad 412; Ram Newaz v Nankoo, 92 IC 401 : AIR 1926 All 283 ; Kalachand v Jatindra Mohan, (1929) ILR 56 Cal 487 : 117 IC 855 : AIR 1929 Cal 263 ; Nabin Chandra v Rajani Chandra, (1921) 25 Cal WN 901, p 904 : 63 IC 196 : AIR 1921 Cal 162 ; Srimati Bramamayi v Joges Chandra, (1871) 8 Beng LR 400; Rajaramji v Ramnath, 105 IC 54 : AIR 1927 Pat. 412 ; Pan Kuer v Ram Narain, 117 IC 33 : AIR 1929 Pat. 353 , p 357.

821 Ram Newaz v Nankoo, 92 IC 401 : AIR 1926 All 283 .

822 Re Thompson [1906] 2 ChD 199 . See also note below on "Power of Appointment".

823 Re Thompson [1906] 2 ChD 199 .

824 Anandrao Vinayak v Administrator-General of Bombay, (1896) ILR 20 Bom 450; Sivasankara v Soobramania, (1908) ILR 31 Mad 517.

825 Kashinath v Chimnaji, (1906) ILR 30 Bom 477.

826 Veerattalingam v Ramesh, (1991) 1 SCC 489 [LNIND 1990 SC 549] , p 494.

827 Soundara Rajan v Natarajan, (1925) ILR 48 Mad 906 : 52 IA 310 : 92 IC 289 : AIR 1925 Pat. 244 .

14. Rule against perpetuity.—

- 828 Sookhmoy Chunder v Monoharri Dassi, (1885) ILR 11 Cal 684 : 12 IA 103; Vullabdas v Gordhandas, (1890) ILR 14 Bom 360; Kumara Ashina v Kumara Krishna, (1869) 2 Beng LR 11; Chundi Churn v Sidheswari, (1889) ILR 16 Cal 71 : 15 IA 149; Anantha v Nagamuthu, (1882) ILR 4 Mad 200.
- 829 Sitesh Kishore Pandey v Kishore Pandey, AIR 1982 Pat. 339 .
- 830 Kashinath v Chimnaji, (1894) ILR 22 Cal 619 : 22 IA 76; Yusuf Khan v Misal Khan, 73 IC 99.
- 831 Trustees of Sahebzadi Oalia Kulsum Trust v Controller of Estate Duty, AP AIR 1998 SC 2986 [LNIND 1998 SC 690] : (1998) 6 SCC 267 [LNIND 1998 SC 690] .
- 832 Cowasji v Rustomji, (1896) ILR 20 Bom 511.
- 833 See Transfer of Property Act, 1882, section 18.
- 834 Rous v Jackson, [1885] 29 ChD 521 .
- 835 Re Nash Cook v Frederick, [1910] 1 ChD 1 .
- 836 Re Thompson [1906] 2 ChD 199 .
- 837 Legh's Settlement Trusts [1938] 1 ChD 39 : [1937] 3 All BR 823.
- 838 Rambaran v Ram Mohit, [1967] 1 SCR 293 [LNIND 1966 SC 173] : AIR 1967 SC 744 [LNIND 1966 SC 173] ; Walsh v Secretary of State, [1863] 10 HLC 367; London and SW Rly v Gomm, [1882] 20 ChD 562 ; Borlands Trustee v Steel Bros, [1901] 1 ChD 279 ; South Eastern Railway v Associated Portland Cement Manufacturers, [1901] 1 ChD 12, p 33 : [1908–10] All ER Rep 353 ; Nafar Chandra v Kailash, (1921) 25 Cal WN 201 : 62 IC 510 : AIR 1921 Cal 328 .
- 839 Nafar Chandra v Kailash, (1921) 25 Cal WN 201 : 62 IC 510 : AIR 1921 Cal 328 .
- 840 Padmanabha v Sitarama, (1928) 54 Mad LJ 96 : 106 IC 158 : AIR 1928 Mad. 28 [LNIND 1927 MAD 262] , p 33.
- 841 Ramharan v Tarn Mohit, [1967] 1 SCR 293 [LNIND 1966 SC 173] : AIR 1967 SC 744 [LNIND 1966 SC 173].
- 842 Jagar Nath v Chhedi Dhobi, AIR 1973 All 307 : (1973) All LJ 202.
- 843 Maharaj Bahadur Singh v Balchand, 48 IA 376 : 61 IC 702 : 25 Cal WN 770 : AIR 1922 PC 165.
- 844 Ram Baran v Ram Mohit, AIR 1967 SC 744 [LNIND 1966 SC 173] : [1967] 1 SCR 293 [LNIND 1966 SC 173].
- 845 Rama Rao v Thimmappa, (1925) 48 Mad LJ 463 : 87 IC 433 : AIR 1925 Mad. 732 [LNIND 1924 MAD 328]; Raja of Karvetnagar v Velayudu, (1915) 18 Mad LT 83 : 29 IC 435; Ganesh Sonar v Purnendu Narayan, AIR 1962 Pat. 201.
- 846 Kempraj v Barton Son and Co, [1970] 2 SCR 140 [LNIND 1969 SC 302] : AIR 1970 SC 1872 [LNIND 1969 SC 302] : [1970] 1 SCJ 905 : (1969) 2 SCC 594 [LNIND 1969 SC 302].
- 847 Matlub Hasan v Kalwati, 147 IC 302 : AIR 1933 All 934 ; Raja of Ramnad v Sundara Pandiyasami Tewar, 46 IA 64 : 581 IC 704; Bhupati Bhushan v Beradari Mohan, (1948) ILR 1 Cal 492; K Appu v Mary, AIR 1965 Ker. 27 [LNIND 1964 KER 86] .
- 848 Wahajuddin v Ali Ahmad, 153 IC 595 : AIR 1934 All 983 .
- 849 Padmanabha v Sitarama, (1928) 54 Mad LJ 196 : 106 IC 158 : AIR 1928 Mad. 28 [LNIND 1927 MAD 262] , p 33.
- 850 Knightbridge Estates Trusts Ltd v Byrne, [1939] ChD 441 , p 463 : [1938] 4 All ER 618 , p 631 (CA) : affd [1940] AC 613 , p 625 : [1940] 2 All ER 401 , p 408.

15. Transfer to class, some of whom come under sections 13 and 14.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

15. Transfer to class, some of whom come under sections 13 and 14.—

If, on a transfer of property, an interest therein is created for the benefit of a class of persons with regard to some of whom such interest fails by reason of any of the rules contained in sections 13 and 14, such interest fails ⁸⁵¹[in regard to those persons only and not in regard to the whole class.]

[s 15.1] Amendment

Before the amending Act 20 of 1929, the section was as follows:

If, on a transfer of property, an interest therein is created for the benefit of a class of persons with regard to some of whom such interest fails by reason of any of the rules contained in sections 13 and 14, such interest fails as regards the whole class.

Thus, in Raj Bajrang Bahadur Singh v Thakurain Bakhtaraj Kuer,⁸⁵² the Supreme Court held that it was true that no interest could be created in favour of an unborn person, but when the gift was made to a class or a series of persons, some of whom were in existence and some were not, it did not fail in its entirety; it was valid with regard to those persons who were in existence at the time of the testator's death, and was invalid as to the rest.

[s 15.2] Indian Succession Act

The present section of the Act corresponds to section 115 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. The first two illustrations to that section are as follows:

15. Transfer to class, some of whom come under sections 13 and 14.—

ILLUSTRATIONS

(i) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to all his children who shall attain the age of 25. The gift to A's children is a gift to a class. A survives the testator, and has some children living at the testator's death. Each child of A's living at the testator's death must attain the age of 25 (if at all) within the limits allowed for a bequest. But A may have children after the testator's decease, some of whom may not attain the age of 25 until more than 18 years have elapsed after the decease of A. The bequest to A's children, therefore, is inoperative as to any child born after the testator's death and in regard to those who do not attain the age of 25 within 18 years after A's death, but is operative in regard to the other children of A.

(ii) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B, C, D, and all other children of A who shall attain the age of 25. B, C, and D are children of A living at the testator's decease. In all other respects the case is the same as that supposed in illustration (i). Although the mention of B, C and D does not prevent the bequest from being regarded as a bequest to a class, it is not wholly void. It is operative as regards any of the children B, C, or D, who attains the age of 25 within 18 years after A's death.

This section applies only in a case in which the whole class is intended to be benefited. It does not apply where there is no benefit to a class.⁸⁵³

[s 15.3] Hindu Law as to Gift to a Class

Prior to the Acts of 1914, 1916 and 1921, relating to gifts and bequests to unborn persons (section 13), a gift to a person who was not in existence at the date of the gift was void; and so was a bequest to a person who was not in existence at the date of the testator's death. This proceeded on the principle that a person who was not in existence at the material date was incapacitated from taking the bequest. Thus, if a gift was made by a Hindu to his grandsons and none of them was in existence at the date of the gift, none of them had the capacity to take, and the gift was, therefore, void. However, what if a gift was made by a Hindu to his grandson section who was in existence at the date of the gift, and to other grandsons (brothers of S) who might be born after the date of the gift, and some grandsons are born in fact after the date of the gift? It is obvious that the grandsons who were born after the date of the gift could not take; but could section take? In some of the earlier cases it was held on the analogy of the rule in Leake v Robinson,⁸⁵⁴ that the gift having failed as to the other grandsons, it was wholly void, and that section too could not take. However, it was held in later cases and also by the Judicial Committee that the rule in Leake v Robinson was a rule of construction of the English law, and that it did not apply to Hindus, and that the incapacity of the other grandsons to take did not incapacitate section from taking, with the result that section took the whole of the property which was the subject-matter of the gift.⁸⁵⁵ The sections of the TP Act, 1882 and the Indian Succession Act which contain the rule against perpetuity did not then apply to Hindus, and Leake v Robinson, therefore, could not possibly apply to Hindu gifts and bequests and ought not to have been applied to them.

The course of legislation is worth observing. First came the Madras Act of 1914. It validated gifts and bequests in favour of unborn persons, and thus removed the bar of incapacity. It also applied for the first time the rule against perpetuity to cases governed by the Act. Similar provisions were introduced by the Hindu Disposition of Property Act, 1916, and the Hindu Transfers and Bequests (City of Madras) Act, 1921. The result of this legislation was that in the case put above, grandsons other than S, though not in existence at the date of the gift, could also take under the deed.

The Indian Succession Act in force when the three Acts were passed was that of 1865. Section 100 related to bequests for the benefit of unborn persons; it is now section 113 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. Section 101 related to the rule against perpetuity; it is now section 114 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. Section 102 related to bequests to a class; this corresponds to section 115 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, before it was amended in 1929. Another Act in force when the three Acts were passed was the Hindu Wills Act, 1870. Certain sections of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, were made applicable to cases governed by the Hindu Wills Act, one of them being section 102. Section 102 was in the following terms:

15. Transfer to class, some of whom come under sections 13 and 14.—

If a bequest is made to a class of persons, with regard to some of whom it is inoperative by reason of the rules contained in the two last preceding sections, or, either of them, such bequest shall be wholly void.

Though section 101 was incorporated in all the three Acts, section 102 was not, the intention being to keep alive the rule of Hindu law that if a gift or bequest was made to a class of persons with regard to some of whom it was inoperative by reason of the fact that “they were not in existence at the material date”, the gift or bequest failed in regard to those persons only and not in regard to the whole class. However, the legislature, it would appear, overlooked the Hindu Wills Act, and particularly the inclusion in that Act of section 102. This was not noticed until the decision of the Judicial Committee in Soundara Rajan v Natarajan.⁸⁵⁶ The will in that case was governed by the Madras Act of 1914. Amongst the properties disposed off by the will, were some immovable properties situated in the city of Madras. This attracted the applicability of the Hindu Wills Act. The testator died in 1904, leaving three daughters, A, B and C. A had four children, three born before, and one after 1904. B has one child born before 1904. C had six children all born after 1904. By his will the deceased directed his trustees to apportion his residuary trust fund into as many equal shares as there were daughters, to pay the income from each of such shares of the daughters for life respectively, and after the death of each daughter to hold the share appropriated to her “upon trust for the children of such daughter who shall attain the age of 21 years”. The testator was survived by the three daughters. After their death, a suit was brought by the children of the third daughter C, against the children of A and B for construction of the will and for administration of the estate of the testator. The Judicial Committee held that the bequest to the unborn children was invalid under section 101 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, now the Indian Succession Act, 1925, section 114, as it offended the rule against perpetuity, and that the bequest being to a class and being invalid as to some members, it failed also in regard to the children born before the death of the testator under section 102 of that Act (corresponding to the Indian Succession Act, 1925, section 115, before it was amended in 1929). In the case under consideration, the bequest to the children to an unborn person is void, for the Madras Act validated such bequest, but because of the rule against perpetuity contained in section 101. The bequest being void as to some members of the class under section 101, it was wholly void under section 102. This led to the amendment of section 15 of the TP Act, 1882, and section 115 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, in the manner stated above. When a gift to a class was bad in accordance with the ordinary rule of English Law, the members of the class take per capita. In the case of a gift made by a Hindu testator, the will must be construed according to the notions of a Hindu and the Hindu Law of succession, and it can be held that the members of the class take per stirpes.⁸⁵⁷

[s 15.4] Mahomedan Law as to Gift to a Class

The rule in Leake v Robinson mentioned above has been held not to apply to khojas in Bombay.⁸⁵⁸ It has, accordingly, been held that where there is a bequest to a class of persons some of whom are in existence at the testator's death and some are born after his death, the gift fails in regard only to those who were born after the testator's death, and not in regard to the whole class. This decision coincides with the amended section 15. There is no reason why other sects of Mahomedans should be governed by a different rule.

⁸⁵¹ Subs. by Act 20 of 1929, section 9, for “as regards the whole class”.

15. Transfer to class, some of whom come under sections 13 and 14.—

- 852 Raj Bajrang Bahadur Singh v Thakurain Bakhtaraj Kuer, [1953] SCR 232 [LNIND 1952 SC 66] : AIR 1953 SC 7 [LNIND 1952 SC 66] : [1952] SCJ 655 [LNIND 1952 SC 66] : [1953] SCA 369 [LNIND 1952 SC 66] .
- 853 Devaka Prasad v CIT, AIR 1948 Bom 418 .
- 854 Leake v Robinson, [1817] 2 Mer 363.
- 855 Rai Bishen Chand v Asmaida Koer, (1884) ILR 6 All 560 : 11 IA 164; Ram Lall Sett v Kanai Lal Sett, (1886) ILR 12 Cal 663; Bhagabati v Kali Charan, (1911) ILR 38 Cal 468 : 38 IA 54 : 10 IC 41 (affirming SC in (1905) ILR 32 Cal 992); Ranimoni Dassi v Radha Prasad, 41 IA 176 : 23 IC 3 : (1914) ILR 41 Cal 1007; Manajamma v Padmanabhayya, (1889) ILR 12 Mad 393; Rangandha v Baghirathi, (1906) ILR 29 Mad 412; Mangaldas v Tribhuvandas, (1891) ILR 15 Bom 652; Tribhuvandas v Gangadas, (1894) ILR 18 Bom 7; Krishnarao v Benabai, (1896) ILR 20 Bom 571; Khimji v Morarji, (1898) ILR 22 Bom 533; Advocate General v Karmali, (1905) ILR 29 Bom 133, pp 155–156; Kanai Lal v Kumar Purnendu Nath, (1946) 51 Cal WN 227; Rabindranath v Sushil Chandra, AIR 1952 Cal 427 [LNIND 1949 CAL 13] .
- 856 Soundara Rajan v Natarajan, 52 IA 310 : (1925) ILR 48 Mad 906 : 92 IC 289 : AIR 1925 PC 244 . See Sewdayal v Official Trustee, (1931) ILR 58 Cal 768 : 134 IC 436 : AIR 1931 Cal 651 .
- 857 Jabali Krishna Das v Jetendra Nath, (1949) 51 Bom LR 449 .
- 858 Advocate-General v Karmali, (1905) ILR 29 Bom 133.

[16. Transfer to take effect on failure of prior interest.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

859[16. Transfer to take effect on failure of prior interest.—

Where, by reason of any of the rules contained in sections 13 and 14, an interest created for the benefit of a person or of a class of persons fails in regard to such person or the whole of such class, any interest created in the same transaction and intended to take effect after or upon failure of such prior interest also fails.]

[s 16.1] Amendment

This section was amended by the amending Act of 1929.

[s 16.2] Principle

The section follows the English law that a limitation following upon a limitation void for remoteness is itself void even though it may not of itself transgress the rule against perpetuity.

The case of *Girjesh Dutt v Data Din*⁸⁶⁰ cited in the note on section 13 is an illustration of the rule under this section. A made a gift of her property to B her nephew's daughter, for life, and then to B's male descendants, if she should have any, absolutely; but if she should have no male descendants, then to B's daughters without power of alienation; but if there were no descendants of B, male or female, then to her nephew. B died without issue. The gift to the unborn daughters, being of a limited interest and subject to the prior interest of B, was invalid under section 13, and the gift to the nephew, therefore, failed under section 16.

[s 16.3] Prior Interest Otherwise Invalid

The prior interest may be invalid otherwise than under the rules contained in sections 13 and 14. It may depend upon a condition precedent which is invalid under section 25. If so the subsequent interest, if it is to take effect after the prior interest, would fail under section 25, for it would also be dependent on the invalid condition. If the subsequent interest is to take effect upon failure of the prior interest and the prior interest is invalid under section 25, the subsequent interest would fail under the combined effect of sections 25 and 28.

[s 16.4] Prior Interest not Invalid but Subsequently Fails

[16. Transfer to take effect on failure of prior interest.—

If the prior interest is not invalid, but subsequently fails because the condition upon which it depends is not fulfilled, section 27 applies, and the subsequent interest is, as a rule, accelerated.

[s 16.5] Indian Succession Act

This section corresponds to section 116 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925.

[s 16.6] Alternative limitations

The rule does not apply if the subsequent interest is not dependent on the prior interest, but is alternative to it. If there are two alternative limitations, one branch of which is remote and the other capable of taking effect, the court will disregard the void limitation and give effect to that which is legal.⁸⁶¹ An alternative or independent gift or a gift which can take effect independently of a void limitation is valid.⁸⁶² Thus, in Monypenny v Derring,⁸⁶³ the gift was to A for life, then to his first son for life, then to the first son of that first son and his heirs male and in default of such heirs male to other sons of A “and in default of issue of the body of A, or in case of his not leaving any at his decease, for B for life.” Lord St Leonards held that the limitation to the unborn grandson of the unborn son was void, but in the event that actual happened, i.e., A not leaving any issue at his decease, the alternative gift to B was valid. There have been other instances of an alternative gift.⁸⁶⁴

[s 16.7] Vested Gift

The section in terms hits “any interest created in the same transaction and intended to take effect or upon the failure of such prior interest”. Any interest created in the same transaction and intended to take effect immediately and independently of the prior gift, and which does so take effect is clearly not within the mischief of the section. A gift may be vested in interest although it is not vested in possession. An ulterior gift which is vested in interest in praesenti does not fail if the prior gift is bad by reason of sections 13 and 14.

[s 16.8] Hindu Law

Some cases decided under the Hindu law are illustrations of the section. In the *Tagore case*⁸⁶⁵ property was bequeathed to A and his male heirs in tail and after the failure or determination of that estate, to B and his male heirs in tail, and then to C and his male heirs in tail. The limitations in tail male were void both under Hindu law, and the rule against perpetuities. A took an estate for life and though B’s son and C’s grandson were alive at the death of the testator, the estate passed at A’s death to the heir at law. Again, in Brajanath v Anandamayi,⁸⁶⁶ the testator, not having any great-grandsons living at his death, bequeathed his property to great-grandsons on their attaining majority, and in case there were no great-grandsons, to the daughter’s sons. The gift to the great-grandsons was void for remoteness, and the court held that the gift to the daughter’s sons was dependent on and not alternative to it, and, therefore, also failed.

Alternative limitations are also illustrated by Hindu law cases. In Javerbai v Kablibai,⁸⁶⁷ A by will bequeathed his property to his wife and his brother B for their lives, and after the death of the survivor of them to the male issue of B, and in default of such male issue, to such persons as B may appoint. B had no male issue and exercised the power of appointment in favour of his daughter. The gift to the male issue of B was void, but the gift over under the power of appointment was an independent and alternative gift and, therefore, valid. It should be observed that the daughter took from the testator A and not from B, for under a power of appointment, the property is taken not from the donee of the power, but from the grantor of the power.⁸⁶⁸ Another instance is Kumar Tarakeswar Roy v Kumar Shoshi Shikhareswar.⁸⁶⁹ A bequeathed his property to three nephews B, C, and D and their descendants in the male line without power of alienation, with a gift over in the following terms: “If any of the nephews should die without leaving a male child, then his share devolves on the surviving nephews and their male descendants.” Here the attempt to create an estate in tail male failed and such nephew took an estate for life. However, though the estate in tail male which was dependent on each life-estate failed, the independent gift over from one nephew to another was not affected. On the death of B and C without issue their shares passed to D, but only for a life-estate, for the estate in tail male of the surviving nephew was also void. When the donor made gifts to relations and for charitable purposes, the Privy Council have held that the provisions for his relations would fail in so far as they were contrary to law, and the other dispositions would also fail if they were dependent thereupon and inseparable therefrom, but the invalidity of certain of the gifts to relatives would not be fatal to other dispositions apparently separable, and charitable gifts would not be bad because, though substantial, they did not involve a sufficiently large part of the settled property or because the beneficial interest was not given to a specified individual or individuals. The Privy Council further held that though the settlor had certain religious objects, the case was in its general character one of private bounty and educational trusts. Under sections 14, 16, 17 and 18 of the TP Act, 1882 non-charitable dispositions bad for perpetuity would not be validated by the presence of a charitable trust.⁸⁷⁰ Here the gift to charity was not dependent on the gift to the relatives.

[16. Transfer to take effect on failure of prior interest.—

859 Subs. by Act 20 of 1929, section 10, for sections 16 to 18.

860 Girjesh Dutt v Data Din, (1934) ILR 9 Luck 329 : 147 IC 991 : AIR 1934 Oudh 35 .

861 Evers v Challis, [1959] 7 H LC 531.

862 Re Davy [\[1915\] 1 ChD 837](#)  .

863 Monypenny v Derring, [1852] De GM and G 145.

864 Re Curryer's Will Trusts Wyly v Curryer, [\[1938\] 1 ChD 952](#)  : [\[1938\] 3 All ER 574](#) .

865 Tagore case (1872) 9 Beng LR 377.

866 Brajanath v Anandamayi, (1872) 8 Beng LR 208.

867 Javerbai v Kablibai, (1891) ILR 16 Bom 492.

868 Motivahoo v Momoobai, (1897) ILR 21 Bom 709 : 24 IA 93.

869 Kumar Tarakeswar Roy v Kumar Shoshi Shikhareswar, (1883) ILR 9 Cal 952 : 10 IA 51, p 56.

870 Kayastha Pathshala, Allahabad v Bhagwati Devi, 64 IA 5 : (1937) ILR All 3 : (1937) All LJ 379 : 39 Bom LR 322 : 41 Cal WN 262 : (1937) 1 Mad LJ 166 : 166 IC 4 : AIR 1937 PC 4 .

[17. Direction for accumulation.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

871[17. Direction for accumulation.—

- (1) Where the terms of a transfer of property direct that the income arising from the property shall be accumulated either wholly or in part during a period longer than—
- (a) the life of the transferor, or
 - (b) a period of eighteen years from the date of transfer, such direction shall, save as hereinafter provided, be void to the extent to which the period during which the accumulation is directed exceeds the longer of the aforesaid periods, and at the end of such last-mentioned period the property and the income thereof shall be disposed off as if the period during which the accumulation has been directed to be made had elapsed.

- (2) This section shall not affect any direction for accumulation for the purpose of—
- (i) the payment of the debts of the transferor or any other person taking any interest under the transferor, or
 - (ii) the provision of portions for children or remoter issue of the transferor or of any other person taking any interest under the transfer; or
 - (iii) the preservation or maintenance of the property transferred,

and such direction may be made accordingly.]

[s 17.1] Amendment

This section was inserted by the amending Act of 1929.

[s 17.2] Accumulation of Income

A direction which separates the income from the ownership of property so as to form a separate fund, or so as to postpone the beneficial enjoyment of property, is a direction for accumulation. The rule against perpetuities has for its object, the circumscription of the period during which the property might be tied up in such a way as to prevent its being transferred absolutely. Earlier, an accumulation of income could be directed for so long as the property could be tied up without infringing the rule against perpetuities. The object of this section is to make a separate rule further restricting the period for the accumulation of income.

[17. Direction for accumulation.—

A direction for accumulation may be express as well as implied. The question is one of construction, and if the disposition cannot be carried out without an accumulation, the section applies.⁸⁷²

[s 17.3] Void Under the Rule Against Perpetuities

Independently of this section, a direction for accumulation may be void under the perpetuity rule if the accumulation is directed for a period in excess of that allowed by the perpetuity rule. Thus, if A transfers property to B for life and then to the son of B who shall first attain the age of 25, with a direction to accumulate the income till the son attains that age the direction would be void under the perpetuity rule. However, if A transfers property to B for life, and then to the first son of B who shall attain the age of 18 with a direction to accumulate the income during the lifetime of B and until the son attains that age, there is no infringement of the perpetuity rule, and the direction would be valid for one of the statutory periods allowed by this section.

[s 17.4] Void for Repugnancy

Independently of this section, a direction for accumulation may be void for repugnancy. A direction for accumulation is a restriction on enjoyment such as is referred to in section 11. However, while section 11 is limited to transfers which create an absolute interest in the transferee, section 17 refers indifferently to any transfer. Where a transfer is of an absolute interest, the exceptions to this section are also exceptions to section 11. However, if there is an absolute gift, a direction for accumulation for the benefit of the donee, merely postpones enjoyment, and is void for repugnancy. This is illustrated by Indian⁸⁷³ cases. The first illustration to section 56 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, shows that a direction for the accumulation of the income of a minor is determinable when he attains majority.⁸⁷⁴

[s 17.5] Savings Out of Income

The section does not apply to savings out of income made voluntarily by the person entitled to the income, or by the court on behalf of an infant.⁸⁷⁵ Nor does it affect the discretionary power of trustees to make accumulations out of a minor's income under section 41 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882.

[s 17.6] Powers to Accumulate

In England, the law prohibits any person from settling or disposing of property in such a manner that the income thereof, would be accumulated beyond the periods there indicated.⁸⁷⁶ It followed that it hit cases where, though there was no direction to accumulate beyond the permitted periods, there was power to trustees to do so, and where the trustees were in fact accumulating the income beyond the permitted periods or were contemplating doing so. It is submitted that this would not be the case in India where section 17 only prohibits directions providing for an accumulation of income beyond the permitted periods.

[s 17.7] Period

The period are expressed to be in the alternative so that an accumulation cannot be directed during a combination of two periods. The appropriate period is a question of construction, and is the one that best accords with the intention expressed in the instruments.⁸⁷⁷

[s 17.8] Excessive Accumulation

If accumulation is directed to be for a longer time than that allowed by the section, it is invalid for the excess over the appropriate period, and that income for the excess period as well as the interest on the accumulated fund, belongs to persons, who would have been entitled, if there had been no direction to accumulate.⁸⁷⁸

[s 17.9] Failure of Purpose

Where on a true construction of the instrument directing accumulation and investment, the purpose or object to which that accumulation and investment is directed entirely fails, the provision cannot be enforced and the direction for accumulation cannot be read as an independent provision. Thus, where a testator after bequeathing an annuity to his mother directed his trustees out of the income of his residuary estate to pay an annuity to his wife and to accumulate the surplus income during the life of his wife or for 21 years from his death (whichever was the shorter) and directed that at the end of the period of accumulation, the residuary estate including the accumulation for his children should be held on trust for his children, but died without issue, it was held that the testator having died without issue, there was no effective disposal by his will within the meaning of section 49 of the Administration of Estate Act, 1925, of the residuary estate, and that the direction for accumulation was not a direction to which the property not effectively disposed off by the will was subject. The direction for accumulation here came to an end by reason of the failure of its object and purpose, and the widow became entitled to the surplus income as on an intestacy.⁸⁷⁹

[17. Direction for accumulation.—

[s 17.10] Exceptions

The first two exceptions closely follow those in section 164 of the Law of Property Act, 1925. The third exception is not in the English Act, but follows the case of Vine v Raleigh.⁸⁸⁰

[s 17.10.1] Exception (i)—Payment of debts

A provision for the payment of debts, not being the debts of the transferor, but payable on a contingency which might happen outside the perpetuity period would be void as infringing the rule against perpetuities. So also, a transfer contingent on the payment of specified debts, for the debts might not be paid within the perpetuity period.⁸⁸¹ However, directions for the payment of debts or provisions for accumulation of income for that purpose, for however long a period, are not only exempt from the statutory restriction on accumulation, but do not infringe the rule against perpetuities. Such a provision does not tie up property absolutely so as to prevent its being transferred absolutely, because the creditor may at any time insist on payment, or the person indebted can at any time discharge the debt.⁸⁸² A trust or direction to pay a debt is, therefore, if possible, construed as a charge for the payment of debts, and the transferee is considered as taking a vested interest subject to the charge.⁸⁸³ Thus, on an assignment of a lease for 99 years, a trust to accumulate half the rent for the whole term, for the payment of the debts of the transferor, would be valid as creating a charge on the lessee's interest. A direction for the payment of debts has been held to be valid even when it is annexed to and forms part of a series of limitations, all or some of which infringe the rule against perpetuities.

The debts may be existing debts, or contingent liabilities to arise in future.⁸⁸⁴ If the debts are paid not out of income, but out of capital, the exception ceases to apply and the trust for accumulation of income to recoup capital is valid for one of the statutory periods.⁸⁸⁵ If the provision is not made in good faith the exception will not apply.⁸⁸⁶ So a provision to accumulate income against a liability that is not likely to become a debt,⁸⁸⁷ or to retain and set apart income to create a reserve fund against future liabilities in business⁸⁸⁸ is subject to the statutory periods. In order, however, that such a provision falls within the exception, the provision must not be a provision which might or might not be used for the payment of such debts at the discretion of some third person; it ought to be a provision which must be applied for that purpose.⁸⁸⁹

The English exception is wider for it includes the debts of the grantor, settlor, testator or any person and it has been held that the other person may be a stranger.⁸⁹⁰

[s 17.10.2] Exception (ii)—Provision of portions

The word portion ordinarily means a share and points to the raising of something out of something else for the benefit of some children or class of children.⁸⁹¹ It does not apply to the making of additions of income to capital in order to increase the capital for the person to whom it is given.⁸⁹² The exception only applies to provisions which must be applied for the provision of portions; and cannot save provisions which may or may not be so applied at the discretion of some third person.⁸⁹³

[s 17.10.3] Exception (iii)—Preservation and maintenance

The third exception is not in the English Act, but it has, no doubt, been suggested by the case of Vine v Raleigh,⁸⁹⁴ where a trust out of income to maintain houses in good repair was held to be outside the Thellusson Act. A fund provided to meet dilapidations at the end of a lease is within the exception.⁸⁹⁵ A direction which simply keeps the property at its present value is not affected by the rule restricting accumulation of income.⁸⁹⁶

[17. Direction for accumulation.—

[s 17.11] Indian Succession Act

A similar amendment has been made in the corresponding section 117 of Indian Succession Act, 1925.

[s 17.12] Hindu law

As stated above, a direction for accumulation for the benefit of the donee was under Hindu law repugnant to an absolute gift.⁸⁹⁷ The section is not inconsistent with any rule of Hindu law, and is made applicable to Hindus by the amendment of section 2.

The direction is valid, unless the conditions are so unreasonable as to be against public policy, or unless it is given for an illegal object or its effect is inconsistent with Hindu law.⁸⁹⁸ Thus, in *Krishnaramani v Ananda Krishna*⁸⁹⁹ there was a trust of surplus income to be accumulated, and every time the accumulations amounted to three lakhs, they were to be divided among the sons and descendants per stripes. Justice Macpherson said that the direction was part and parcel of a perpetuity and was wholly bad. This is always the case when the trust for accumulation is not accompanied with any disposition of the corpus of the property.⁹⁰⁰ A direction to accumulate surplus income for the benefit of a son to be adopted,⁹⁰¹ or for the payment of debts or the benefit of the minor donee,⁹⁰² or for the marriage expenses of the testator's son,⁹⁰³ has been held to be valid.

In Amrito Lall v Surnomoye,⁹⁰⁴ J Jenkins said that for the period of accumulation under Hindu law "the limit must be that which determines the period during which the course or devolution of property can be directed and controlled by the testator". In Gosavi Shivgar v Rivett-Carnac,⁹⁰⁵ where the devise was to a minor disciple for whom a portion of the income was to be accumulated until he was of the age of 30, it was held that he was entitled to all the income after he attained majority. In the absence of any direction to the contrary, the rule of Hindu Law is that accumulations of income go with the capital.⁹⁰⁶

Registration is mandatory for documents mentioned in section 17.⁹⁰⁷

⁸⁷¹ Subs. by Act 20 of 1929, section 10, for sections 16 to 18.

⁸⁷² Tench v Cheese, [1855] 6 De GM and G 453, pp 462, 473.

⁸⁷³ Cally Nath v Chunder Nath, (1882) ILR 8 Cal 378; Mokoonda Lal v Ganesh Chandra, (1876) ILR 1 Cal 104; Srimati Bramamayi v Joges Chandra, (1871) 8 Beng LR 400.

⁸⁷⁴ See notes "Enjoyment postponed" and "Accumulation of income" under section 19.

⁸⁷⁵ Tench v Cheese, [1855] 6 De GM and G 453, p 463 (CA).

⁸⁷⁶ Re Robb's Will Trusts [1953] ChD 459 : [\[1953\] 1 All ER 920](#) .

⁸⁷⁷ Re Errington, Errington-Turbutt v Errington, (1897) 76 LT 716 .

⁸⁷⁸ Griffiths v Vere, [1903] 9 Ves 127; Re Walpole Public Trustee v Canterbury, [1933] ChD 431 : [\[1933\] All ER Rep 988](#) .

⁸⁷⁹ Re Thornber, Crabtree v Thornber, [1937] ChD 29 : [\[1936\] 2 All ER 1594](#) .

⁸⁸⁰ Vine v Raleigh, [1891] 2 ChD 13.

⁸⁸¹ Re Bewick Ryle v Ryle, [\[1911\] 1 ChD 116](#)  .

[17. Direction for accumulation.—

- 882 Briggs v Oxford, (Earl), [1852] 1 De GM and G 363, p 370; Bateman v Hotchkin, [1847] 10 Beav 426, p 434; Southampton Lord v Hertford (Marquis), [1813] 2 Ves & B 54, p 65; Re Stamford and Warrington (Earl), Payne v Grey, [1912] 1 ChD 343  (CA).
- 883 Bacon v Proctor, [1822] Turn & R 31, p 40.
- 884 Varlo v Faden, [1859] 1 Deg F & J 211, p 224.
- 885 Re Heathcote, Heathcote v Trench, [1904] 1 ChD 224 .
- 886 Mathews v Keble, [1868] 3 ChD App 691.
- 887 Re Mason, Mason v Mason, [1891] 3 ChD 467 .
- 888 Re Cox, Cox v Edwards, [1900] WN 89.
- 889 Re Bourne's Settlement Trusts [1946] 1 All ER 411 : 117 LT 281 : 62 TLR 269 (CA).
- 890 Barrington (Viscount) v Liddell, [1852] 2 Deg M & G 480, p 497.
- 891 Eyre v Marsden, [1838] 2 Keen 564.
- 892 Re Elliot, Public Trustee v Pinder, [1918] 2 ChD 150  : [1918-9] All ER Rep 1151 dissenting from Middleton v Losh, [1852] 1 Sm & Griff 61.
- 893 Re Bourne's Settlement Trusts, [1946] 1 All ER 411.
- 894 Vine v Raleigh, [1891] 2 ChD 13 .
- 895 Re Hurlbatt, Hurlbatt v Hurlbatt, [1910] 2 ChD 553  : [1908–10] All ER Rep 439.
- 896 Re Gardiner, Gardiner v Smith, [1901] 1 ChD 697, p 701.
- 897 Cally Nath v Chunder Nath, (1882) ILR 8 Cal 378; Mokoonda Lall v Ganesh Chandra, (1876) ILR 1 Cal 104; Srimati v Joges Chandra, (1871) 8 Beng LR 400.
- 898 Rajendra Lall v Raj Coomari, (1907) ILR 34 Cal 5; see also Benode Behari v Nistarini Dassi, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 180 : 32 IA 193.
- 899 Krishnaramani v Ananda Krishna, (1872) 4 Beng LR 231.
- 900 Sookhmoy Chunder v Monoharri Dassi, (1885) ILR 11 Cal 684 : 12 IA 103; Kumara Ashima v Kumara Krishna, (1868) 2 Beng LR 11.
- 901 Amrito Lall v Surnomoye, (1897) ILR 24 Cal 589.
- 902 Amrito Lall v Surnomoye, (1898) ILR 25 Cal 662, p 691; Ramlal Sen v Bidhumukhi, (1920) ILR 47 Cal 76 : 56 IC 373; Jamnabai v Dharsey, (1902) 4 Bom LR 893 .

[17. Direction for accumulation.—

903 Nafar Chandra v Ratan, (1910) 15 Cal WN 66 : 7 IC 921.

904 Amrito Lall v Surnomoye, (1897) ILR 24 Cal 589.

905 Gosavi Shivgar v Rivett-Carnac, (1889) ILR 13 Bom 463; Husenbhoy v Ahmedbhoy, (1902) ILR 26 Bom 319.

906 Bissonauth v Bamasoondry, (1867) 12 Moo Ind App 41 , p 60; Sonatun v Juggustsoondree, (1859) 8 Moo Ind App 66 .

907 Ashwatthamma v Ramakka, AIR (2011) 1 Kant. R 829 : (2011) 3 ICC 323.

[18. Transfer in perpetuity for benefit of public.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

[⁹⁰⁸18. Transfer in perpetuity for benefit of public.—

The restrictions in sections 14, 16 and 17 shall not apply in the case of a transfer of property for the benefit of the public in the advancement of religion, knowledge, commerce, health, safety or any other object beneficial to mankind.]

[18.1] Amendment

This section was amended by the amending Act 20 of 1929.

[18.2] Principle

The rules restricting remoteness and perpetuity and against accumulations of income prevent fetters being put upon the free circulation and enjoyment of property. However, when property is given for an object beneficial to the public, it is withdrawn from commerce, and it is generally necessary that it should be kept intact, and its use restricted to the object for an indefinite period.

[18.3] Some Points of Difference Between English and Indian Law Relating to Perpetuities

- (i) The English rule against perpetuities deals with both interests created in praesenti and interests to arise in future; but the rule incorporated in the TP Act, 1882 (section 14) and the Indian Succession Act, 1925 (section 114) deals with interests to arise in future only, and there is no express provision prohibiting or dealing with interests in praesenti which are sought to be made of indefinite duration.
- (ii) There is a difference in the period during which vesting may be delayed, the English law allowing 21 years in gross after life or lives in being, the Indian law allowing only the period of majority after a life or lives in being.⁹⁰⁹
- (iii) Some interests created in praesenti, eg charitable trusts and unfettered present gifts to perpetual institutions are permissible and valid in England, and they are regarded as exceptions to the rule against perpetuities in so far as that rule applies to interests in praesenti. There is no provision in the TP Act, 1882 or the Indian Succession Act expressly prohibiting the creation of perpetual estates or interests in praesenti or providing for any permissible exception thereto.
- (iv) Charitable trusts in futuro are no exceptions to the modern English rule against perpetuities which deals with estates in future. Therefore, charitable trusts, to be valid in England must vest within the period allowed by the English law, and if the vesting may be delayed beyond that period even the charitable trust will fail.⁹¹⁰ However, the position in India is different. Thus the TP Act, 1882, section 18, relaxes the rule against perpetuities embodied in section 14 in the respect of transfer of property for the benefit of the public in the advancement of religion, knowledge, commerce, health, safety, or any other object beneficial to mankind and, therefore, the vesting of such transfers inter vivos may be delayed beyond the period mentioned in section 14. There is no similar relaxation of the rule against perpetuities laid down in section 114 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. On the contrary, section 118 of that Act imposes an additional restriction on charitable or religious bequests by a person who has near relations.

[18. Transfer in perpetuity for benefit of public.—

[18.4] Charitable Trusts

The exception enacted in this section is based on the English law as to charitable trusts. Charitable trusts are trusts for purposes enumerated in the Statute of Charitable Trusts 43 Elix c 4, and those so far analogous as to be within the spirit and intendment of the statute. These purposes have been classified by Lord Macnaghten in the leading case of *CIT v Pemsel*⁹¹¹ as (1) for the relief of poverty; (2) for the advancement of education; (3) for the advancement of religion; and (4) other purposes beneficial to the community not falling under any of the preceding heads. A gift merely for the encouragement of sport is not a charity.⁹¹² However, sport may be beneficial to the community and so a gift of playing fields, parks and gymnasiums to promote the health and welfare of the working classes is a charity.⁹¹³ So also is a gift for the constitution of a regimental fund for the promotion of outdoor sport, as tending to increase the physical efficiency of the army;⁹¹⁴ or a gift to maintain a library for an officers mess, as tending to increase the mental efficiency of the army⁹¹⁵ or to buy a site for building a public hall,⁹¹⁶ but not so a gift for maintenance of property for the benefit of distinguished visitors to neighbourhood.⁹¹⁷ A bequest for relief to the infirm, sick and aged Roman Catholic priests⁹¹⁸ or for the benefit of the choir⁹¹⁹ has been upheld as a charitable bequest as tending to advance religion. However, a gift to “such charitable institution or institutions or other charitable or benevolent object or objects in England” has been held void for uncertainty by the House of Lords.⁹²⁰ A gift for the benefit of a volunteer corps has been held to be a charity.⁹²¹ A gift for feeding poor pilgrims, distribution of oil among them and saying prayers has also been held in India to be for the benefit of the public within the meaning of this section.⁹²² A bequest to two charities and to the respective vicars and wardens of two named churches for “parish work” has been held by the House of Lords as not charitable.⁹²³

[18.5] Indian Succession Act [18.5.1] Illustration of religious or charitable uses

The word “charitable” does not occur in this section, but the transfers to which it refers are the same as those described in section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908, as trusts created for a public purpose of a charitable or religious nature. The illustration to section 118 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, gives the following list of bequests for religious or charitable uses; the relief of poor people; the maintenance of sick soldiers; the erection or support of a hospital, the education and preferment of orphans; the support of scholars; the erection or support of a school; the building and repair of a bridge; the making of roads, the erection or support of a church; the repairs of a church, the benefit of ministers of religion, and the formation or support of a public garden.

Gifts for charitable uses have been the subject of restrictive legislation in England, i.e., the Mortmain Act, 1736, and the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Acts of 1888 and 1891. These Acts do not apply in India:⁹²⁴ but there is a respective provision in section 118 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, designed to prevent deathbed gifts by will to religious or charitable uses by persons having near relations.⁹²⁵ It is rather anomalous, as pointed out by ACJ Ameer Ali in MAF Halfhyde v CA Saldanha,⁹²⁶ that no protection is given to the near relations against death-bed gifts to non- religious or non-charitable uses. inter vivos Thus, in John Vallamattom v UOI,⁹²⁷ the Supreme Court has declared that section 118 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 as unconstitutional and violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India.

Charitable trusts which create interest in praesenti are not subject to the rule against perpetuity in England in the sense that property may be tied up for an indefinite period for a charitable purpose.⁹²⁸ In England property may also be tied up indefinitely for even a non-charitable purpose, eg where there is an unfettered gift in praesenti to a perpetual institution so that the corpus and income may be used by the institution as and when it pleases.⁹²⁹

[18. Transfer in perpetuity for benefit of public.—

In England, these are exceptions to the rule against perpetuities in so far as it deals with estates or interests in praesenti. But charitable trusts to arise in futuro are no exceptions to the English rule which deals with estates or interests in futuro. Therefore, a gift to charity upon a remote event is void,⁹³⁰ except in the one case of a gift over from one charity to another.⁹³¹ This last mentioned exception in English law was followed by a judge of Calcutta High Court in the case of a will where there was a bequest to a charity, and a bequest over upon a remote event to another charity.⁹³² But in later case,⁹³³ a division bench of the same High Court while construing the same will, held that the positive language of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 precluded the application of that exception in English law, and that the rule against remoteness of vesting in section 101 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865 (section 114 of the 1925 Act) applied to charitable bequests. The court further observed that as to gifts inter vivos, the TP Act had relaxed the rule against remoteness of vesting in the case of charities. This is undoubtedly correct. Not only is a gift inter vivos, to charity upon a remote event valid, but as the rule in section 16 is also relaxed, a gift to charity after prior interests which fails under sections 13 and 14 would be valid. Thus, A settles property on his son and his son's intended wife successively for their lives, and then on their eldest son for his life, and then on the eldest son of such eldest son for his life and then to a charity. The gift to charity would be valid though, if the ultimate beneficiary were not a charity, the gift would fail under section 16 as the prior interests of the son and grandson are void under sections 13 and 14.

[18.6] Religion

A gift for the advancement of religion is recognized in the section as entitled to the exemption. A gift in perpetuity for the performance of masses for the soul of the donor was held to be bad in one case,⁹³⁴ and good in another.⁹³⁵

A permanent bequest by a Parsi for the performance of muktad ceremonies is valid, for such ceremonies include prayers for the spiritual welfare of all Zoroastrians, and tend to the advancement of Zoroastrian religion.⁹³⁶

The dedication of the properties which are gifted in contravention of the rule against perpetuities, in cases where properties are given away partly by way of religious endowments, and partly for the benefit of certain individuals for their use, may be stated thus:

If the terms of the document under which the properties or their income are gifted, amount to their complete dedication for religious or charitable purposes, then any part thereof which is given by way of gift to any person contrary to the rules against perpetuities enures to the benefit of the endowment and becomes part of properties endowed. But on the other hand, if the dedication is partial, such part which is hit by the rule against perpetuities reverts to the donor or his heirs.⁹³⁷

[18.7] Health

A bequest by an Englishman to a hospital was held to be exempt from the rule against perpetuity.⁹³⁸

[18.8] Beneficial to mankind

The question whether any particular object is for the benefit of the public so as to exempt it from the rule against perpetuity, must be determined with reference to the terms of this section. It is submitted that the words "beneficial to mankind" must be construed ejusdem generis, and as referring to objects of a nature analogous to those specified.

[18.9] Hindu law

[18. Transfer in perpetuity for benefit of public.—

Since the amending Act of 1929, the section applies to Hindus, but the Hindu law has always regarded gifts for religious or charitable purposes as exempt from the rule against perpetuity.⁹³⁹ Section 18, recognises that the rule against perpetuity under the Act, does not apply to transfer of property for the benefit of public and such exclusion is in-built in Hindu Law itself.⁹⁴⁰ A Hindu can make a permanent endowment for maintaining a sadavrat for giving food to travellers;⁹⁴¹ or to Brahmins;⁹⁴² or for the performance of religious ceremonies;⁹⁴³ or for the endowment of a university,⁹⁴⁴ or of a hospital.⁹⁴⁵ He may even make a permanent gift for the establishment and worship of an idol,⁹⁴⁶ as the English law as to superstitious uses does not apply in India.⁹⁴⁷ A gift in favour of an idol which would be invalid in English law is not only lawful,⁹⁴⁸ but is highly commendable in Hindu law.⁹⁴⁹ However, if the object of the gift is uncertain it cannot take effect; and so the Privy Council have held that a gift for dharam is void, the word meaning law, virtue, legal or moral duty.⁹⁵⁰ For the same reason, a gift for the spread of the Hindu religion has been held to be void.⁹⁵¹ A direction for accumulation of income for charitable purposes is valid in Hindu law, although it infringes the rule against perpetuity.⁹⁵²

[18.10] Mahomedan law

The section does not apply to Mahomedans, but Mahomedan law allows property to be tied up in perpetuity for religious or charitable purposes. A permanent dedication of property to such objects is called a wakf. Instances of wakf are set out in Mulla's Mahomedan Law. Mahomedan law allows property to be tied up in perpetuity by family settlement, provided the ultimate gift after the extinction of the family is to charity. Such illusory wakf were held by the Privy Council to be invalid,⁹⁵³ but the practice has received legislative sanction in the Mussalman Wakf Validating Act, 1913, to which retrospective effect has been given by Act 32 of 1930.⁹⁵⁴ A direction for the accumulation of income infringing the law against perpetuity has been held valid in a wakf.⁹⁵⁵

908 Subs. by Act 20 of 1929, section 10, for sections 16 to 18.

909 For Statutory modifications in England, see Perpetuities and Accumulations Act, 1964.

910 Chanberlayne v Brocket, LR 8 ChD 206, p 211; Re Bowen [1893] 2 ChD 491 [☞]; Re Stratheden and Campbell, [1894] 3 ChD 265 [☞]; Re Swain [1905] 1 ChD 669 [☞].

911 CIT v Pemsel, [1891] AC 531, p 583 following Sir Samuel Romilly's arguendo in Morice v Bishop of Durham, [1805] 10 Ves 522, p 531; Dologovinda Sethi v Kanika Museum, AIR 1989 Ori. 60 [LNIND 1988 ORI 96], p 63.

912 Re Nottage Jones v Palmer, [1895] 2 ChD 649 [☞]; [1895-9] All ER Rep 1203.

913 Re Hadden, Public Trustee v More, [1932] 1 ChD 133 [☞], p 142: [1931] All ER Rep 539.

914 Re Gray Todd v Taylor, [1925] ChD 362: [1925] All ER Rep 250; Re Mariette, Mariette v Governing Body of Aldenham School, [1915] 2 ChD 284 [☞]: [1914-5] All ER Rep 794.

915 Re Good Harington v Watts, [1905] 2 ChD 60 [☞]: [1904-7] All ER Rep 476.

916 Re Spence [1938] ChD 96: [1937] 3 All ER 684.

917 Re Corelli [1943] 1 ChD 332 [☞]: [1943] 2 All ER 509.

918 Re Forster [1939] 1 ChD 22 [☞]: [1938] 3 All ER 767.

919 Re Royce [1940] 1 ChD 514: [1940] 2 All ER 291.

920 Chichester Diocesan Fund v Simpson, [1944] AC 341: [1944] 2 All ER 60.

921 Re Lord Stratheden and Campbell, [1894] 3 ChD 265 [☞].

922 RMS Firm v Muthu Swami, (1940) 2 Mad LJ 803: 52 Mad LW 793: (1940) Mad WN 1180: AIR 1941 Mad. 188 [LNIND 1940 MAD 33].

923 Farley v Westminster Bank, [1939] AC 430: [1939] 3 All ER 491.

[18. Transfer in perpetuity for benefit of public.—

- 924 Mayor of Lyons v East-India Co, [1837] 1 Mad IA 175; Broughton v Mercer, (1875) 14 Beng LR 442.
- 925 Mariana v Rt Rev F Provost, (1941) ILR Rang 410.
- 926 MAF Halfhyde v CA Saldanha, (1944) 49 Cal WN 145.
- 927 John Vallamattom v UOI, (2003) 6 SCC 611 [LNIND 2003 SC 565] : AIR 2003 SC 2902 [LNIND 2003 SC 565].
- 928 Goodman v Saltash Corp, [1882] 7 App Ca 633; Re Christchurch Inclosure Act [1888] 38 ChD 520.
- 929 See note under section 14 “Rule against perpetuity in its primary sense.”
- 930 Re Lord Stratheden and Champbell [1894] 3 ChD 265 .
- 931 Christ's Hospital v Grainger, (1849) 1 Mac and G 560; Re Tyler, Tyler v Tyler, [1891] 3 ChD 252 .
- 932 Administrator General v Hughes, (1913) ILR 40 Cal 192 : 21 IC 183.
- 933 Jones v Administrator-General, (1919) ILR 46 Cal 485 : 47 IC 383.
- 934 Colgan v Administrator-General, (1892) ILR 15 Mad 424.
- 935 Andrews v Jaokim, (1868) 2 Beng LR 148.
- 936 Jamsed v Soonabai, (1911) ILR 33 Bom 122, p 200 : 1 IC 834 dissenting from Limji v Bapuji, (1889) ILR 11 Bom 441.
- 937 The Controller of Estate Duty—WB v Usha Kumar, (1980) 1 SCC 315 [LNIND 1979 SC 466], p 320 : AIR 1980 SC 312 [LNIND 1979 SC 466].
- 938 Broughton v Mercer, (1875) 14 Beng LR 422.
- 939 Bhuggobutty v Gooroo, (1897) ILR 25 Cal 112; Prafulla v Jogendra Nath, (1905) 9 Cal WN 528; Sookhmoy Chunder v Monoharri Dassi, (1883) ILR 11 Cal 684 : 12 IA 103.
- 940 Gopal Singh Visharad v Zahoor Ahmed, 2011 (5) ADJ 281 : 2011 (86) ALR 646 [LNIND 2011 ALL 1718] : (2011) ILR 1 All 387 : [2011 (4) JCR 397 (All)].
- 941 Jamnabai v Khimji, (1890) ILR 14 Bom 1; Jugal Kishore v Lakshmandas, (1901) ILR 23 Bom 659, p 664; Morarji v Neubai, (1893) ILR 17 Bom 351.
- 942 Dwarkanath v Burroda, (1878) ILR 4 Cal 443; Manorama v Kalicharan, (1903) ILR 31 Cal 166; Rajendra Lall v Raj Coomari, (1906) ILR 34 Cal 5.
- 943 Profulla v Jogendra Nath, (1905) 9 Cal WN 528; Lakshmishankar v Vajinath, (1881) ILR 6 Bom 24.
- 944 Manorama v Kalicharan, (1903) ILR 31 Cal 166.
- 945 Fanindra v Administrator-General, (1901) 6 Cal WN 321.
- 946 Bhupati Nath v Ram Lal, (1909) ILR 37 Cal 128 : 3 IC 642; Khusalchand v Mahadevgiri, (1875) 12 Bom HC 214.
- 947 Judah v Judah, (1870) 5 Beng LR 433; Advocate-General v Vishvanath, (1870) 1 Bom HC 9; Khusalchand v Mahadevgiri, (1875) 12 Bom HC 214.
- 948 Juggut Mohini v Sokheemoney, (1871) 14 Moo Ind App 289 .
- 949 Bhupati Nath v Ram Lal, (1909) ILR 37 Cal 128, p 134 : 3 IC 642.

[18. Transfer in perpetuity for benefit of public.—

- 950 Runchordas v Parvatibai, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 725 : 26 IA 71; Parthasarathy v Thiruvengoda, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 340; Devshunker v Motiram, (1894) ILR 18 Bom 136.
- 951 Venkatanarasimha v Subba Rao, (1923) ILR 46 Mad 300 : 73 IC 991 : AIR 1923 Mad. 376 .
- 952 Rajendra Lall v Raj Coomari, (1907) ILR 34 Cal 5; Sarojini Dassi v Gnanendra Nath, (1916) 23 Cal LJ 241 : 33 IC 102.
- 953 Abdul Fata Mahomed v Rasamaya, (1894) ILR 2 Cal 619 : 22 IA 76.
- 954 And see Fazlul Rabbi v State of West Bengal, [1965] 3 SCR 307 [LNIND 1965 SC 72] , p 315 : AIR 1965 SC 1722 [LNIND 1965 SC 489] : [1965] 2 SCJ 833 : [1965] 2 SCA 137 .
- 955 Mutu Ramanandan v Vava, (1914) ILR 40 Mad 116 : 44 IA 21 : 93 IC 235.

19. Vested interest.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

19. Vested interest.—

Where, on a transfer of property, an interest therein is created in favour of a person without specifying the time when it is to take effect, or in terms specifying that it is to take effect forthwith or on the happening of an event which must happen, such interest is vested, unless a contrary intention appears from the terms of the transfer.

A vested interest is not defeated by the death of the transferee before he obtains possession.

Explanation.—An intention that an interest shall not be vested is not to be inferred merely from a provision whereby the enjoyment thereof is postponed, or whereby a prior interest in the same property is given or reserved to some other person, or whereby income arising from the property is directed to be accumulated until the time of enjoyment arrives, or from a provision that if a particular event shall happen the interest shall pass to another person.

[s 19.1] Vested Interest

Vested interests as defined in this section are to be distinguished from contingent interests as defined in section 21. Where an interest is vested, the transfer is complete, but when an interest is contingent, the transfer depends upon a condition precedent. When that condition is fulfilled, the transfer takes effect and the interest is vested. If the condition refers to an event, which is certain to occur, the interest dependent upon it is not contingent, but is vested. If it is an uncertain event, it is contingent, for the condition may never be fulfilled and the transfer may never take effect. Thus, a gift to A on the death of B creates a vested interest in A even during B's lifetime, for there is nothing more certain than death. However, a gift to A on the marriage of B creates only a contingent interest, for B may never marry; but that contingent interest becomes vested if and when B marries.

The distinction between a vested and a contingent interest may seem simple, but in practice, it is not always easy to distinguish the one from the other. The difficulty arises from the fact that a vested interest is not necessarily in possession. An interest may be vested and not yet in possession in any one of the three cases referred to in the explanation, i.e., (1) by a provision postponing enjoyment; or (2) by the intervention of a prior interest; or (3) by a provision for accumulation. Again, an interest may be vested although, it is liable to be divested by a condition subsequent. The difference between a condition precedent and a condition subsequent is that when the condition is precedent, the estate is not in the grantee until the condition is performed, but when the condition is subsequent the estate vests immediately in the grantee, and remains in him till the condition is broken. Conditions subsequent are dealt with in sections 28 and 31. The question whether an interest is vested or contingent arises most frequently in wills, and is best explained by the illustrations to the corresponding section in the Indian Succession Act, 1925 quoted below.

19. Vested interest.—

[s 19.2] Indian Succession Act, 1925—Illustrations of Vested Interest

The corresponding section of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, is section 119. To it are appended the following illustrations:

- (i) A bequeaths to B Rs 100, to be paid to him at the death of C. On A's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B, and if he dies before C, his representatives are entitled to the legacy.
- (ii) A bequeaths to B Rs 100, to be paid upon his attaining the age of 18. On A's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B.
- (iii) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B. On the testator's death, the legacy to B becomes vested in interest in B.
- (iv) A fund is bequeathed to A until B attains the age of 18 and then to B. The legacy to B is vested in interest from the testator's death.
- (v) A bequeaths the whole of his property to B upon trust to pay certain debts out of the income, and then to make over the fund to C. At A's death the gift to C becomes vested in interest in him.
- (vi) A fund is bequeathed to A, B and C in equal shares to be paid to them on their attaining the age of 18, respectively, with a proviso that, if all of them die under the age of 18, the legacy shall devolve upon D. On the death of the testator, the shares vested in interest in A, B and C, subject to be divested in case A, B and C shall all die under 18, and, upon the death of any of them (except the last survivor) under the age of 18, his vested interest passes, so subject, to his representatives.

In illustration (i), the interest of B takes effect on the happening of an event that this is certain, and so it is vested.

In illustration (ii), the interest is one of which the enjoyment is postponed. It illustrates the well-settled rule that the words "to be paid" or "payable" at a certain age do not render a bequest contingent.⁹⁵⁶ On the other hand, a gift stating "at" a certain age, or "if" or "when" a certain age is attained, or upon attaining a certain age, is contingent,⁹⁵⁷ as is shown by the second illustration to section 120 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925.⁹⁵⁸

In illustration (iii), a prior interest intervenes, but the legacy is vested as the determination of that prior interest is a certain event.

In illustration (iv), it might be supposed that B's interest was contingent on his attaining the age of 18, but it is construed as a gift to A for a term of years with remainder to B. It rests on the principle that the law favours the vesting of estates. Re Blackwell,⁹⁵⁹ MR Pollock quoted with approval the following passage from Hawkins on Wills:

In the construction of devises of real estates, it has long been an established rule for the guidance of courts... that all estates are to be holden vested, except estates in the devise of which a condition precedent is so clearly expressed, that the court cannot treat them as vested without deciding in the direct opposition to the terms of the will.

19. Vested interest.—

In this matter the law in India makes no distinction between real and personal property. The rule applies here both to immovable and movable property. In illustration (v), there is a divestment after the payment of debts. Jarman says that such a devise confers an immediately vested interest, the payment of debt constituting only a charge.⁹⁶⁰

In illustration (vi), the words “to be paid” import as in illustration (ii) a vested interest, but that interest, is liable to be divested on the happening of the event specified and vested in another person. This is an instance of a conditional limitation, i.e. an interest liable to be divested by a condition subsequent and vested in someone else. Conditional limitations are the subject of section 28.

[s 19.3] Enjoyment Postponed

A condition postponing enjoyment does not prevent the interest vesting immediately; but it is itself void for repugnancy after the transferee has attained majority.⁹⁶¹ An unequivocal and irrevocable settlement conferring enjoyment rights over the property in present and each getting a specific share in it upon the death of the settlor would create a vested interest in favour of each of the beneficiary.⁹⁶²

ILLUSTRATION

A transfers property to B in trust for C, and directs B to give possession of the property to C when he attains the age of 25. C has a vested interest and is entitled to possession at the age of 18.

The appointment of an executor or guardian during the minority of the devisee with a direction to hand over the property on his attaining majority does not postpone the vesting of the bequest.⁹⁶³ When the rights of an adopted son are curtailed by an agreement giving the widow of the adoptive father the right to enjoy the property during her lifetime, the interest of the son is a vested interest which he can dispose off.⁹⁶⁴

ILLUSTRATION

A executed a deed of gift in favour of B, but directed that B was not to take possession of a portion of the property until after the deaths of A and A's wife. B has a vested interest, enjoyment only being postponed.⁹⁶⁵

[s 19.4] Prior interest

A condition postponing enjoyment⁹⁶⁶ or creation of a prior interest does not postpone the vesting of the subsequent interest. This is the case put in illustration (iii) to section 119 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925: “A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B. On the testator's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B”. The expression “after his death” refers to the time when the gift becomes reduced to possession, and not to the time when the interest vests. A bequest to A from and after his attaining the age of 18 is prima facie contingent, because it is postponed until the happening of an event which may never happen. But a bequest to B for life and then to A from and after the death of B vests immediately in A, for enjoyment is postponed until the termination of a life estate, an event which must happen.⁹⁶⁷ In *Rewun Persad v Radha Beeby*⁹⁶⁸ a case decided under Hindu law, the testator gave his wife a life estate, and after her death one moiety of the estate to his brother B, and the other moiety to his sons C and D. B and C died during the lifetime of the widow, but as their shares were vested, and as C and D took as tenants in common, C's widow was entitled to succeed to C's share. In *Bhagabati v Kali Charan*⁹⁶⁹ the bequest was to the mother for life, then to the wife for her life, and then to the nephews, and it was held that the nephews took a vested and transmissible interest on the death of the testator. In *Chunilal v Bai Mul*⁹⁷⁰ there was a bequest to a widow for life and then to a daughter, and the daughter took an immediate vested interest.

19. Vested interest.—

ILLUSTRATION

Property is settled in trust for A for life with a direction to the trustees to pay A ₹2,000 a year out of rents and profits and to apply the balance to the discharge of a mortgage; and after A's death to convey the land to B. Although B may not survive, yet B's interest is vested in A's lifetime.⁹⁷¹

A question arose before the Supreme Court in *Rajes Kanta Roy v Santi Deb*⁹⁷² as to whether the interest which devolved upon two minor sons under a settlement made by the father was vested or contingent. The settlement provided in substance that the sons would obtain an absolute interest upon the death of the father, and after discharging the debts of the father. The court observed that the settlor clearly contemplated that there would be, as infact, there was, a surplus after the payment of the debts, and held:

Now there can be no doubt about the rule that where the enjoyment of the property is postponed but the present income thereof is to be applied for the benefit of the donee, the gift is vested and not contingent ... This rule operates normally where the entire income is applied for the benefit of the donee. The distinguishing feature in this case is that it is not the entire income that is available to the donees for their actual use but only a portion thereof. But it is to be observed that according to the scheme of the trust-deed, the reason for limiting the enjoyment of the income to a specified sum thereof, is obviously in order to facilitate and bring about the discharge of the debts. As already explained the underlying scheme of the trust-deed is that the enjoyment is to be restricted until the debts are discharged. Whatever may be said of such a provision where a donee is not himself a person who is under any legal obligation aliunde to discharge such debts, the position in this case is different. The two sons are themselves persons who, if the testator died intestate, would be under an obligation to discharge his debts out of the properties which devolve upon them. It is only the surplus which would be legally available for division between them. In such a case, the balance of the income which is meant to be applied for the discharge of the debts is also an application for the income for the benefit of the donees. These arrangements taken together clearly indicate that what is postponed is not the very vesting of the property in the lots themselves but that the enjoyment of the income thereof is burdened with certain monthly payments and with the obligation to discharge debts therefrom notionally pro rata all of which taken together constitute application of the income for his benefit.⁹⁷³

The court also relied on the provision that if either of the sons died before the discharge of the debts, his heirs were entitled to the share of the son, which was a further indication that the interest of the sons was a vested interest. Where A settled property in favour of B authorizing him to collect rent of his house, no vested interest is created in favour of B.⁹⁷⁴

[s 19.5] Accumulation of Income

A direction for accumulation of income if in excess of the period sanctioned by section 17 is invalid for the excess. Within the limits sanctioned by the section, it is a provision for the postponement of enjoyment; and as such it does not postpone the vesting of the interest.⁹⁷⁵ The first illustration to section 56 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 shows that a direction for the accumulation of the income of a minor is ineffective after he attains majority.

[s 19.6] Conditional Limitation

A provision that if a particular event shall happen the interest shall pass to another person is what is called in English law a conditional limitation. A conditional limitation divests an estate which has vested, and vests it in another person. A condition subsequent divests an estate which has vested and reverts it in the grantor.

19. Vested interest.—

Section 28 deals with conditional limitations, while conditions subsequent are dealt with in section 31.

A conditional limitation, therefore, does not prevent an estate from vesting; on the contrary, the condition itself implies that the estate which preceded it had vested. This is explained in Sundar Bibi v Rajendra Narain.⁹⁷⁶ In that case, the terms of a compromise provided that L should have an estate for life, and that after his death R was to be full owner of the estate, if he survived L; but that if he did not survive L, the estate would pass to lineal male descendants of R according to the rule of primogeniture. Before the death of L the question arose whether R had only a contingent interest, or a vested interest which could be attached. Now if the provision had been merely this that the estate would pass to R, if he survived L and nothing more had been said, there can be no doubt that R would have had an estate contingent on his surviving L. But the further provision of a gift over to another person was a conditional limitation, which had the effect of vesting the estate in R. The reason given by the court was that the condition affected the retention of the interest, and not in its acquisition. R, therefore, took a vested interest liable to be divested if he did not survive L. A very similar case is Raja Lal Bahadur v Rajendra Narain.⁹⁷⁷ A compromise between two brothers L and R provided that L was to have a life interest and that if R survived L, R would be “permanent owner with power of transfer and transmitting inheritance”, but that if R did not so survive, “his male descendants according to the rule of lineal primogeniture will be entitled to the said property”. This was held to confer, not contingent, but an immediate vested interest in R, although the estate tail in the event of R not surviving L was probably invalid. A condition precedent followed by a gift over is generally construed as a conditional limitation so as to favour the vesting of the prior estate.

[s 19.7] Time of Vesting

As soon as the transfer is complete, the interest vests. Words are to be construed according to their ordinary meaning, and no particular form of words is necessary to effect a vesting.⁹⁷⁸

[s 19.8] Power of Appointment

A power of appointment confers upon the donee of the power, a right of disposition of the property of the creator of the power, i.e., the appointor. The power may be either general, to appoint to any one the donee pleases, or special, to appoint anyone of a specified class of persons. The appointee or person in whose favour the donee exercises the power derives title from the creator of the power, and not from the donee. However, the property vests when the power is exercised, and not when it is created.⁹⁷⁹ Until the power is exercised the property does not vest in the donee of the power; but if there is an independent gift to a class with a power to apportion the shares of each member of the class, the property vests by virtue of the gift even though the power is not exercised.⁹⁸⁰ Again, the power may be such that it is the duty of the donee to exercise it, and in that case if there is no gift over,⁹⁸¹ the court will imply a gift for the objects of the power.⁹⁸²

[s 19.9] Contrary Intention

The grantor may, however, specify the time of vesting;⁹⁸³ for under section 5 a transfer may be not only in the present, but also in the future.⁹⁸⁴ However, the time of vesting cannot be beyond the period allowed by the rule against perpetuity. A deed of settlement gave life estate to X, with remainder to his children not in existence at the time of settlement. It was held that the interest of the children was a contingent one. Unborn children could be beneficiaries under the trust, but they could claim a vested interest only after the death of the holder of the life estate if such an intention was expressed in the deed.⁹⁸⁵

[s 19.10] Death of Transferee

When an interest is vested, it becomes the property of the transferee and is, under section 6, transferable by him even before he has obtained possession; for a transfer of property not in possession is effective. If the transferee dies, his interest vests in his representatives, irrespective of whether he had obtained possession.⁹⁸⁶ One of the factors for determining whether an interest is vested or contingent, is whether the property devolves on the heirs of the transferee or reverts to the estate.⁹⁸⁷

[s 19.11] Hindu Law

The amendment of section 2 makes section 19 applicable to Hindus. Section 106 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, was applied to Hindu wills by the Hindu Wills Act, 1870; and section 119 of the Indian Succession Act,

19. Vested interest.—

1925 is applied to some Hindu wills by section 57, and Sch III of the same Act. The principle of the section has always been recognised by Hindu law, and some of the cases noted were decided under that law. The case of *Gosling v Gosling*⁹⁸⁸ has been followed in cases decided under Hindu law. Thus, in *Gosavi Shivgar v Rivettcarnac*⁹⁸⁹ there was a bequest of property to a minor with a direction that it should not be given to him till he attained the age of 30, but the direction was held to be inoperative after he attained majority. On the other hand, as there was a charge on the income for the maintenance of another disciple, the trustee was allowed to retain the corpus till the age of 30, paying the devisee the whole income subject to the charge. In Ram Kaur v Atma Singh,⁹⁹⁰ the testator devised his estate to his sons and directed that the widow should manage it during her lifetime, but it had held that the estate vested immediately in the sons, and as the widow was given no prior interest, they were entitled to immediate possession. On the other hand, in Srinivasa v Dandayudapani,⁹⁹¹ there was a bequest to a daughter with a direction to enjoy the income and pass the corpus intact to her son. The daughter took a vested interest, but the direction was ineffective and the son who predeceased her took no interest at all. It has also been held under a Hindu law that the creation of partial trusts and charges will not postpone the vesting in possession.⁹⁹² When a testator made a provision for an allowance to his widow and directed the estate to be divided by the executors between themselves at her death, the executors took an immediate vested interest although they died before the widow.⁹⁹³ A bequest to a daughter of a house after the mortgage debt has been paid is not contingent, but creates a present vested interest.⁹⁹⁴

In Palchuri Hanumayamma v Tadikamalla Kotlingam,⁹⁹⁵ the Supreme Court found section 19 to be inapplicable on facts due to enactment of section 14 of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956. In this case, as per the will, the testator's wife was to manage the property allotted to her daughters during her lifetime, and after her lifetime the properties identified as individual shares of the three daughters were to be inherited by the said daughters. However, during her lifetime, the testator's wife disposed of the entire property to the exclusion of one of the daughters. It was held that due to enactment of section 14 prior to the testator's wife's death, her right got enlarged into an absolute estate and she became an absolute owner of the property and, therefore, section 19 has no relevance.

[s 19.12] Mahomedan Law

Sunni law does not recognise an estate for life with a vested remainder.⁹⁹⁶ There is some doubt as to whether the law on this point has been altered by the decision of the Privy Council in Amjad Khan v Ashraf Khan.⁹⁹⁷ It led to a difference of opinion in a case decided by Bombay High Court.⁹⁹⁸ Such estates are recognised in Shia law,⁹⁹⁹ and in the case of a talukdari estate owned by a Mahomedan family in Oudh.¹⁰⁰⁰ A life estate with a vested remainder is recognised both for Shias and Sunnis by the Mussalman Wakf Validating Act, 1913, in the case of wakfs.

⁹⁵⁶ Re Couturier, Couturier v Shew, [1907] 1 ChD 470 .

⁹⁵⁷ Hanson v Graham, [1801] 6 Ves 239; Leake v Robinson, [1817] 2 Mer 363; Davies v Fisher, [1842] 5 Beav 201; Re Blackwell [1926] 1 ChD 223  : [1925] All ER Rep 498.

⁹⁵⁸ See Transfer of Property Act, 1882, section 21.

⁹⁵⁹ Re Blackwell [1926] 1 ChD 223 , p 231 : [1925] All ER Rep 498 ; Scott v Tyler, [1788] 2 W & TLC 146; Taylor v Graham, (1878) 3 App Cas 1287.

⁹⁶⁰ Jarman on Wills, 8th Edn, p 1373. See also Rajes Kanta Roy v Santi Debi, [1957] 1 SCR 77 [LNIND 1956 SC 100] : AIR 1957 SC 255 [LNIND 1956 SC 100] : [1955] SCJ 197 [LNIND 1954 SC 173].

⁹⁶¹ Sewdayal v Official Trustee, (1931) ILR 58 Cal 768 : 134 IC 436 : AIR 1931 Cal 651 ; Chebrolu Thayaramma v South India Educational Trust, AIR 2008 (NOC) 481 Mad..

⁹⁶² P K Mohan Ram v B N Ananthachary, AIR 2010 SC 1725 [LNIND 2010 SC 241] : (2010) 4 SCC 161 [LNIND 2010 SC 241].

⁹⁶³ Tarachurn Chatterji v Suresh Chunder, (1890) ILR 17 Cal 122 : 16 IA 160; Bachman v Bachman, (1884) ILR 6 All 583.

19. Vested interest.—

- 964 Batwant Singh v Joti Prasad, (1918) ILR 40 All 692 : 47 IC 599; Vithalbhai v Shivabhai, (1950) 52 Bom LR 301 : AIR 1950 Bom 289 [LNIND 1949 BOM 143] .
- 965 Lachman v Baldeo, [1919] 21 OC 312 : 48 IC 396.
- 966 Chebrolu Thayaramma v South India Educational Trust, AIR 2008 (NOC) 481 Mad..
- 967 Helifax v Wilson, [1829] 16 Ves 168.
- 968 Rewun Persad v Radha Beeby, [1846] 4 Moo Ind App 137 .
- 969 Bhagabati v Kali Charan, (1911) ILR 38 Cal 468 : 38 IA 54 : 10 IC 641; Bilaso v Munni Lal, (1911) ILR 33 All 558 : 11 IC 516; Badri Das v Sunder Das, 90 IC 829 : AIR 1927 Lah 166 ; Sree Chand Sarcar v Kasi Chetty, (1933) 66 Mad LJ 170 : 147 IC 383 : AIR 1933 Mad. 885 [LNIND 1933 MAD 198] .
- 970 Chunilal v Bai Muli, (1900) ILR 24 Bom 420; Lallu v Jagmohan, (1898) ILR 22 Bom 409.
- 971 U Zoe v Ma Mya May, 127 IC 170 : AIR 1930 Rang 184 .
- 972 Rajes Kanta Roy v Santi Debi, [1957] 1 SCR 77 [LNIND 1956 SC 100] : AIR 1957 SC 255 [LNIND 1956 SC 100] : [1957] SCJ 197 .
- 973 [1957] 1 SCR 77 [LNIND 1956 SC 100], pp 93–94.
- 974 Kokilambal v N Raman, AIR 2005 SC 2468 [LNIND 2005 SC 412] : (2005) 11 SCC 234 [LNIND 2005 SC 412] .
- 975 Saunders v Vautier, [1841] Cr and Ph 240.
- 976 Sundar Bibi v Rajendra Narain, (1925) ILR 47 All 496 : 86 IC 684 : AIR 1925 All 389 .
- 977 Raja Lal Bahadur v Rajendra Narain, (1934) ILR 9 Luck 173 : AIR 1934 Oudh 454 .
- 978 Hurris v Brown, (1901) ILR 28 Cal 621.
- 979 Marlborough (Duke) v Godolphin (Lord), [1750] 5 Vcs Sen 61.
- 980 Lambert v Thwaites, [1866] LR 2 Eq 151; Bradly v Cartwright, [1867] LR 2 CP 511; Wilson v Duguid, (1883) 24 ChD 244; Re Master's Settlement, Master v Master, [1911] 1 ChD 321  .
- 981 Jenkins v Quinchant, (temp Hardwicke) 5 Ves 596.
- 982 Brown v Higgs, [1799] 4 Ves 708; Salisbury v Denton, [1857] 3 K&J 529, p 535.
- 983 Glanvill v Glanvill, [1816] 2 Mer 38.
- 984 Samsuddin v Abdul Husein, (1906) ILR 31 Bom 165, p 172.
- 985 Rukhamanbai v Shivaram, AIR 1981 SC 881 : (1981) 4 SCC 262 [LNIND 1981 SC 371] .
- 986 See Indian Succession Act, 1925, illustration (i) to section 119.
- 987 See Rajes Kanta Roy v Santi Debi, [1957] 1 SCR 77 [LNIND 1956 SC 100] : AIR 1957 SC 255 [LNIND 1956 SC 100] : [1957] SCJ 197 .
- 988 Gosling v Gosling, (1859) Johns 265.
- 989 Gosavi Shivgar v Rivettcarnac, (1888) ILR 13 Bom 463; Hussenbhoy v Ahmedbhoy, (1901) ILR 26 Bom 319.
- 990 Ram Kaur v Atma Singh, (1927) ILR 8 Lah 181 : 103 IC 506 : AIR 1927 Lah 404 .
- 991 Srinivasa v Dandayudapani, (1886) ILR 12 Mad 411.
- 992 Cally Nath v Chunder Nath, (1882) ILR 8 Cal 378; Jatram v Kuverbai, (1885) ILR 9 Bom 491 (vested interest subject to right of residence).
- 993 Subramaniam v Subramaniam, (1842) ILR 4 Mad 124.
- 994 Ranganatha v Mohankrishna, 93 IC 11 : AIR 1926 Mad. 645 [LNIND 1925 MAD 332] ; Subramaniam v Subramaniam, (1842) ILR 4 Mad 124; Indian Succession Act, 1925, illustration (v) to section 119.
- 995 Palchuri Hanumayamma v Tadikamalla Kotlingam, (2001) 8 SCC 552 [LNIND 2001 SC 1985] .
- 996 Abdul Wahid v Narun Bibi, (1885) ILR 11 Cal 597 : 12 IA 91.
- 997 Amjad Khan v Ashraf Khan, 56 IA 213 : 116 IC 405 : AIR 1929 PC 149 .
- 998 Rasoolbibi v Yusuf Ajam, (1933) ILR 57 Bom 737 : 35 Bom LR 643 : 148 IC 82 : AIR 1933 Bom 324 .

19. Vested interest.—

999 Banoo Begam v Mir Abed Ali, (1908) ILR 32 Bom 172; Siraj Husain v Mushaf Husain, 65 IC 132 : 24 OC 321 : AIR 1922 Oudh 93 ; Muhammad Ahsan v Umardaraz, (1906) ILR 28 All 633.

1000 Abdul Qayum v Abdul Rahman, 146 IC 710 : AIR 1933 Oudh 439 .

20. When unborn person acquires vested interest on transfer for his benefit.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

20. When unborn person acquires vested interest on transfer for his benefit.—

Where, on a transfer of property, an interest therein is created for the benefit of a person not then living, he acquires upon his birth, unless a contrary intention appears from the terms of the transfer, a vested interest, although he may not be entitled to the enjoyment thereof immediately on his birth.

There is no ban on the transfer of interest in favour of an unborn person. Section 20 permits an interest being created for the benefit of an unborn person who acquires interest upon his birth.¹⁰⁰¹

[s 20.1] When Unborn Person Acquires Vested Interest on Transfer for His Benefit

An interest created for the benefit of an unborn person vests as soon as that person is born. Thus, if A settles property on himself and his intended wife for their joint lives and then on the eldest son of their marriage, the son takes a vested interest as soon as he is born. It does not matter that he is not entitled to possession during the lifetime of his parents. Nor will the vesting be affected by a provision that if his parents die during his minority, the trustees should not deliver possession to him until he attains majority.

Under section 13 it is necessary that the estate which vests in the unborn person must be the whole remainder. In English law, it is possible to limit an estate to A for life, then to A's unborn eldest son for life, and then to B. In this case until A's son is born the estate vests in A with a contingent remainder to his son, and with a vested remainder to B. But as soon as the son is born, the estate is in A with a vested remainder to the son, with a vested remainder to B. However, under this Act, the interest of the son fails by reason of section 13, and that of B fails under section 16. Where, however, a disposition by A is to his grandson B, and such of C's sons as were born when B attained majority, the disposition is not hit by section 13. C's son who was born after the disposition, but before B attained majority, obtains a vested interest under this section on his birth.¹⁰⁰² A contrary intention that the estate shall not vest at birth may appear as when the interest is contingent, eg a transfer to A and B for their joint lives, and then to the son of their intended marriage who shall first attain the age of 18 years.

20. When unborn person acquires vested interest on transfer for his benefit.—

Under Hindu law as amended by statute, no transfer or bequest by a Hindu shall be invalid by reason only that any person for whose benefit it may have been made was not born at the date of such disposition.

1001 F M Devaru Ganapathi Bhat v Prabhakar Ganapathi Bhat, (2004) 2 SCC 504 : AIR 2004 SC 2665 .

1002 Konahally Vasanthappa v Konahally Channabasappa, AIR 1962 Mys 98 .

End of Document

21. Contingent interest.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

21. Contingent interest.—

Where, on a transfer of property, an interest therein is created in favour of a person to take effect only on the happening of a specified uncertain event, or if a specified uncertain event shall not happen, such person thereby acquires a contingent interest in the property. Such interest becomes a vested interest, in the former case, on the happening of the event, in the latter, when the happening of the event becomes impossible.

Exception.—Where, under a transfer of property, a person becomes entitled to an interest therein upon attaining a particular age, and the transferor also gives to him absolutely the income to arise from such interest before he reaches that age, or directs the income or so much thereof as may be necessary to be applied for his benefit, such interest is not contingent.

[s 21.1] Contingent Interest

The distinction between a contingent interest and a vested interest has been explained in note (1) to section 19. If the transfer is subject to a condition precedent, there is no transfer at all until the condition is fulfilled. Till then the interest is contingent on the condition being fulfilled. When the condition is fulfilled, the transfer takes effect and the interest becomes vested.¹⁰⁰³

The specified uncertain event may be one which depends upon the will of the intended transferee, eg execution of a deed, or payment of a sum of money. The performance of such conditions is the subject of section 26.

[s 21.2] Indian Succession Act, 1925—Illustrations of Contingent Interest

The corresponding section of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, is section 120. The following are the illustrations to that section:

- (i) A legacy is bequeathed to D in case A, B and C shall all die under the age of 18; D has a contingent interest in the legacy until A, B and C die under 18, or one of them attains that age.
- (ii) A sum of money is bequeathed to A “in case he shall attain the age of 18” or “when he shall attain the age of 18”. A’s interest in the legacy is contingent until the condition is fulfilled by his attaining that age.

21. Contingent interest.—

- (iii) An estate is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B if B shall then be living; but if B shall not then be living to C. A, B and C survive the testator, B and C each take a contingent interest in the estate until the event which is to vest it in one or in the other has happened.
- (iv) An estate is bequeathed as in the last case supposed. B dies in the lifetime of A and C. Upon the death of B, C acquires a vested right to obtain possession of the estate upon A's death.
- (v) A legacy is bequeathed to A when she shall attain the age of 18, or shall marry under that age with the consent of B, with a proviso that, if she neither attains 18 nor marries under that age with B's consent, the legacy shall go to C. A and C each take a contingent interest in the legacy. A on attaining the age of majority, becomes absolutely entitled to the legacy although she may have married under 18 without the consent of B.
- (vi) An estate is bequeathed to A until he shall marry and after that event to B. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until the condition is fulfilled by A's marrying.
- (vii) An estate is bequeathed to A until he shall take advantage of any law for the relief of insolvent debtors, and after that event, to B. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until A takes advantage of such a law.
- (viii) An estate is bequeathed to A if he shall pay Rs 500 to B. A's interest in the bequest is contingent until he has paid Rs 500 to B.
- (ix) A leaves his farm of Sultanpur Khurd to B, if B shall convey his own farm of Sultanpur Buzurg to C. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until he has conveyed the latter farm to C.
- (x) A fund is bequeathed to A if B shall not marry C within five years after the testator's death. A's interest in the legacy is contingent until the condition is fulfilled by the expiration of the five years without B's having married C, or by the occurrence within that period of an event which makes the fulfilment of the condition impossible.
- (xi) A fund is bequeathed to A if B shall not make any provision for him by will. The legacy is contingent until B's death.
- (xii) A bequeaths to B Rs 500 a year upon his attaining the age of 18, and directs that the interest, or a component part thereof, shall be applied for his benefit until he reaches that age. The legacy is vested.
- (xiii) A bequeaths to B Rs 500 when he shall attain the age of 18, and directs that a certain sum, out of another fund, shall be applied for his maintenance until he arrives at that age. The legacy is contingent.

In Illustration (ii), the instances that a bequest “at” a given age,¹⁰⁰⁴ or “upon attaining” or “as” the legatee shall attain, or “after” his attaining a given age is prima facie contingent.¹⁰⁰⁵

In illustration (v), the conditions are in the alternative and it is sufficient if one is fulfilled.¹⁰⁰⁶

In illustration (vii), the condition of defeasance on insolvency is a condition subsequent as regards A, but a condition precedent as regards B. Such a condition is invalid in a transfer inter vivos.¹⁰⁰⁷

In illustration (x), the condition is a negative condition which is discharged by the event becoming impossible. The marriage of B and C would be rendered impossible by the death of either party or by the marriage of B or C with another person.¹⁰⁰⁸

In illustration (xii) and (xiii), the exception to the section is referred to.

In illustration (xiii), the income is of another fund, and so the exception does not apply.

[s 21.3] Additional Instances of Contingent Interest

The following are some of the decisions on contingent interest illustrating contingent interests occurring in wills:

21. Contingent interest.—

- (1) Bequest to a daughter for life and after her death to her lawful children who being a son shall attain the age of 21, or who being a daughter shall attain that age or marry—held that the interest of a son was contingent till he attained the age of 21 and then became vested.¹⁰⁰⁹
- (2) Bequests to five sons in equal shares with a condition that in the event of any son dying without sons or son's sons, his share will be taken by the surviving sons—held that each son gets a life-estate, but the absolute estate of each son was contingent on his leaving a son or a son's son upon death.¹⁰¹⁰
- (3) Bequests to wife and son whom she was empowered to adopt, with a provision that if she died without adopting a son or if the son died in her lifetime, the estate should pass to a sister's son. Held that the nephew had a contingent interest which was vested when the adopted son died without issues in the lifetime of the widow.¹⁰¹¹

[s 21.4] Condition Precedent Construed as a Condition Subsequent

A condition precedent, when followed by a gift over, is sometimes construed as a condition subsequent so that the interest dependent on it is not contingent, but vested. Thus, a devise to A “if” or “when” he attains the age of majority, with a gift over in the event of his dying under that age, has been held to be a condition subsequent so that A takes a vested interest liable to be divested by his death under the age specified. Similarly, a devise to A if or when he shall attain a given age, with a limitation over on his death under that age without issue, confers a vested estate on A defeasible only in the event of his death without issue under the specified age.¹⁰¹² The English Courts have adopted two rules of construction, namely: (1) that the gift of income of the same fund, until the contingency happens, to the very person who will on attaining a particular age take the fund makes the gift of the fund, apparently contingent upon the attainment of that age, a vested interest; and (2) that a gift over upon failure of a prior gift may have the effect of converting the prior gift apparently contingent upon attaining of a particular age into a vested interest, subject to be divested on the death before that age. The first of the above two rules of constructions have been adopted in India by the exception to section 21. The second rule has not been adopted in any section of TP Act, 1882 or the Indian Succession Act, 1925. It is submitted that in such circumstances, there is no reason for importing here the second rule about which the English courts have taken divergent views. This opinion has been expressed in a case of Calcutta High Court.¹⁰¹³

[s 21.5] Spes Successionis

A mere spes successionis is neither a contingent interest, nor a vested interest.¹⁰¹⁴

[s 21.6] Exception

Illustrations of the exceptions are given in section 120 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, and have already been quoted in note (2) above and illustration (xii) and illustration (xiii), and contrasted in illustration (xii) with illustration (xiii). Under the exception, there must be either a gift of the interest, or a direction to apply it. The gift of interest in a legacy involves an immediate gift, for the particular legacy has to be immediately separated from the bulk of the property in order to provide for the interest.¹⁰¹⁵ If there is no gift of the income, there must be a direction to apply it for the benefit of the minor. However, in order that a case falls within the exception, it is necessary that the direction relates to the whole of the income.¹⁰¹⁶

The exception in the corresponding section of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, was considered in a case before the Privy Council.¹⁰¹⁷ A Parsi by will appointed his brother his executor, and directed him to bring up and maintain the child which his wife was expecting, and to maintain himself and the family “out of my property and effects.” If the child was a son, the will directed that he “shall be cherished and maintained and educated and when he comes of age my executor shall make over the whole of my remaining properties to my son”. Their Lordships held that the case was not within the exception because, (1) there is no gift out of any ascertainable fund to the son; (2) the executor was to maintain not only the son, but also the whole family; and (3) he was entitled to spend not only the income, but also the corpus. It has been held that the exception applies only to the case where a fund is given to a person “on his attaining a particular age”. It has no relation to any other contingency eg his surviving a named person.¹⁰¹⁸

21. Contingent interest.—

The exception has no reference to gifts to a contingent class, and it is submitted that in India the principle of the exception cannot be extended to a gift to a contingent class.¹⁰¹⁹

-
- 1003 See Cheena Reddy v Pajau Kesamma, AIR 1954 Hyd 185 ; See also illustrations in note (2) below.
- 1004 Stapleton v Cheales, [1711] Pre ch 315.
- 1005 Leake v Robinson, [1817] 2 Mer 363; Hanson v Graham, [1801] 6 Ves 239; Davies v Fisher, [1842] 5 Beav 201.
- 1006 Austen v Halsey, [1842] 13 Ves 125.
- 1007 See section 12 and the note thereon.
- 1008 See in this connection illustration (ii) to section 136 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, and the note on section 12 above.
- 1009 Ernest William Adams v Gray, (1925) 48 Mad LJ 707 : 90 IC 5 : AIR 1925 Mad. 599 [LNIND 1924 MAD 425] .
- 1010 Soorjeemoney Doossee v Denobundoo Mullick, (1862) 9 Mad IA 123; Gurusami v Sivakami, (1895) ILR 18 Mad 347 : 22 IA 119 (life-estate to daughters, but absolute estate contingent on their having issue); Bai Kamala v Rewashanker, (1924) 26 Bom LR 249 [LNIND 1924 BOM 4] : 80 IC 520 : AIR 1924 Bom 350 .
- 1011 Bhupendra v Amarendra, (1915) ILR 43 Cal 432 : 43 IA 12 : 34 IC 892 : on app from (1913) ILR 41 Cal 642 : 24 IC 458.
- 1012 Phips v Ackers, (1835-42) 9 CI & Fin 583.
- 1013 Kanai Lal v Kumar Purendu Nath, (1946) 51 Cal WN 227.
- 1014 Samsuddin v Abdul Husein, (1906) ILR 31 Bom 165.
- 1015 Vawdry v Geddes, (1830) 1 Russ & M 208 approved by J Buckley Re Nunburnholme (Lord), Wilson v Nunburnholme, [1912] 1 ChD 489  , p 496; Bolding v Strungell, [1918] 43 LJ Ch 208 .
- 1016 Commr of W T v Ashok Kumar, AIR 1967 Guj 161 , relying on Rajes Kanta Roy v Santi Debi, [1957] 1 SCR 77 [LNIND 1956 SC 100] : AIR 1957 SC : [1957] SCJ 197 : [1957] SCA 440 .
- 1017 Dadachanji v Ratanbai, (1925) ILR 49 Bom 167 : 52 IA 95 : 84 IC 892 : AIR 1925 PC 27 ; Kanai Lal v Kumar Purnendu Nath, (1946) 51 Cal WN 227.
- 1018 Sopher v Administrator-General of Bengal, 71 IA 93 : 216 IC 53 : 46 Bom LR 86 : AIR 1944 PC 67 .
- 1019 See note under section 22.

22. Transfer to members of a class who attain a particular age.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

22. Transfer to members of a class who attain a particular age.—

Where, on a transfer of property, an interest therein is created in favour of such members only of a class as shall attain a particular age, such interest does not vest in any member of the class who has not attained that age.

[s 22.1] Contingent Class

The case dealt with in this section is a gift to a contingent class. This is not the same thing as a gift to a class on a contingency. Thus, a gift to the children of A in case B dies without issue, is a gift to a class on a contingency. However, a gift to such of the children of A who shall attain the age of 18, is a gift to a contingent class. No child of A has vested interest until he has attained that age,¹⁰²⁰ and until then he does not completely answer the description of the transferee.¹⁰²¹ Until then his interest is contingent even though there may be a gift over.

[s 22.2] Ascertainment of Class

For the ascertainment of a class, the rule is that the objects of the testator's bounty should be ascertained as soon as possible. In the case of a gift to the children of A when they attain the age of 18, the class is ascertained when the first child of A attains 18, and no child born after that time can take.¹⁰²² Similarly, if the gift is to A for life, and then to such of B's children as attain the age of 18, then if a child of B has attained the age of 18 in A's lifetime, the class is ascertained on the death of A, and no child born after A's death can take.¹⁰²³ In the first case, the class consists of the children of A who are in existence when the first child of A attains the age of 18. In the second case, the class consists of the children of B in existence at the death of A, provided one of them has attained the age of 18 in the lifetime of A. If no child of B has attained the age of 18 in the lifetime of A, any child of B born before the first child of B reaches 18 becomes a member of the class subject to his attaining the age of 18 years.

[s 22.3] Not Contingent

If the gift is to the children of A to be divided among them when they attain the age of 18, there is no contingency at all, and the children take an immediate vested interest,¹⁰²⁴ and enjoyment only is postponed.

[s 22.4] Indian Succession Act, 1925

22. Transfer to members of a class who attain a particular age.—

The corresponding section of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, is section 121. The illustration to that section is as follows:

A fund is bequeathed to such of the children of A as shall attain the age of 18, with a direction that, while any child of A shall be under the age of 18, the income of the share, to which it may be presumed he will be eventually entitled, shall be applied to his maintenance and education. No child of A who is under the age of 18 has a vested interest in the bequest.

[s 22.5] Exception to section 21 Not Applicable to Contingent Class

The above illustration under section 121 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 can be compared with illustration (xii) under section 120 of that Act which explains the meaning of the exception to the last mentioned section. It is clear that the exception to section 120 does not apply in the case of a bequest to a contingent class, for despite the provision for maintenance, the interest is not vested. Although no illustrations are given under sections 21 or 22 of the TP Act, 1882, the meaning of those sections must be the same as those of the corresponding sections 120 and 121 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 as explained by the illustrations. It follows, therefore, that the exception to section 21 does not apply in the case of a contingent class, for despite a provision for maintenance, the share is not vested. It has been so held in a case by Calcutta High Court.¹⁰²⁵ In *De Souza v Vaz*¹⁰²⁶ J Farran said—

The same rule, however, does not apply where there is a gift of an entire fund payable to a class of persons equally upon their attaining a certain age. There a direction to apply the income of the whole fund, in the meantime, for their maintenance does not create a vested interest in a member of the class who does not attain that age.

1020 Bull v Pritchard, (1826) 47 1 Russ 213; Leake v Robinson, [1817] 2 Mer 363; Thomas v Wilberforce, [1862] 31 Beav 299.

1021 Duffield v Duffield, (1825-29) 3 Bli 260.

1022 Whitbread v Lord St John, [1804] 10 Ves 152; Andrews v Partington, [1791] 3 Bro CC 401.

1023 Re Mervin, Mervin v Crossman, [\[1891\] 3 ChD 197](#) .

1024 Williams v Clark, [1851] 4 De G & Sm 472; Maseyk v Fergusson, (1877) ILR 4 Cal 304.

1025 Kanai Lal v Kumar Purnendu Nath, (1946) 51 Cal WN 227.

1026 De Souza v Vaz, (1888) ILR 12 Bom 137, p 146; Re Parker, Barker v Barker, \(1880\) 16 ChD 44.

23. Transfer contingent on happening of specified uncertain event.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

23. Transfer contingent on happening of specified uncertain event.—

Where, on a transfer of property, an interest therein is to accrue to a specified person if a specified uncertain event shall happen, and no time is mentioned for the occurrence of that event, the interest fails unless such event happens before, or at the same time as, the intermediate or precedent interest ceases to exist.

[s 23.1] Subsequent Contingent Interest

The case put in this section is that of a prior interest followed by a subsequent contingent interest. The contingent interest cannot vest until the event on which it is contingent happens. If that happens sometime after the prior interest has determined, there is a gap or interval during which the estate would be in suspense and would be a res nullius. The section, therefore, enacts that the contingent interest will fail or cannot vest, unless the event happens before or at the same time as the prior interest ceases. Thus, if there is a gift for life to A, and then to B in case B gets called to the Bar, the gift to B fails, unless he is called to the Bar in the lifetime of A or at the same time as A dies.¹⁰²⁷

The rule in this section corresponds to the English real property rule that every contingent remainder must vest during the continuance of the particular estate which supports it or eo instanti that such particular estate determines.

In a Madras case,¹⁰²⁸ the testator disinherited his son, and left his estate to the grandson or grandsons who might be born within 10 years after his death. Justice Ramesam said that the result was that there would be an interval of 10 years after the testator's death during which the estate is not vested in any person, and that for this reason the disposition was void. In Gadadhar Mullick v Official Trustee of Bengal,¹⁰²⁹ it was held that the artificial rule of English real property law that every contingent gift must be supported by a prior estate, and that it must vest at least eo instanti the determination of the particular estate which supports it, ought not to be imported to India for Hindu law. *Soorjeemony's case*¹⁰³⁰ and Gadadhar Mullick's case,¹⁰³¹ though cases of contingent bequests in a will, are, it is submitted, applicable to contingent gifts inter vivos governed by Hindu law as unmodified by legislation.¹⁰³²

[s 23.2] Indian Succession Act, 1925

The section corresponds to section 124 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, according to which if no period is specified, a contingent bequest fails, unless the event on which it is contingent happens before the period of distribution.

23. Transfer contingent on happening of specified uncertain event.—

The following are the illustrations to the section:

- (i) A legacy is bequeathed to A, and in case of his death, to B. If A survives the testator, the legacy to B does not take effect.
- (ii) A legacy is bequeathed to A, and in case of his death without children to B. If A survives the testator or dies in his lifetime leaving a child, the legacy to B does not take effect.
- (iii) A legacy is bequeathed to A when and if he attains the age of 18 and, in case of his death, to B. A attains the age of 18. The legacy to B does not take effect.
- (iv) A legacy is bequeathed to A for life, and, after his death to B, “in case of B’s death without children” to C. The words “in case of B’s death without children” are to be understood as meaning in case B dies without children during the lifetime of A.
- (v) A legacy is bequeathed to A for life, and, after his death to B, and, “in case of B’s death” to C. The words “in case of B’s death” are to be considered as meaning “in case B dies in the lifetime of A.”

In Chunilal v Bai Samrath,¹⁰³³ where the testator bequeathed his property to his two sons with a proviso that in case of either dying without male issue, his share was to go to the survivor, the gift over to the surviving son was contingent on the death of the other son without male issue. The Privy Council held that the gift over was effective although the other son died two years after the testator. This was a case to which the Hindu Wills Act did not apply; but in other cases in which section 111 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, was applicable, or was made applicable by the Hindu Wills Act, it was held that the prior gift was absolute and indefeasible on the death of the testator.¹⁰³⁴

[s23.3] Section to be Applied Only to Cases Strictly Coming Within its Scope

In Bhupendra v Amarendra,¹⁰³⁵ the Judicial Committee observed, with reference to section 11 of the Succession Act, 1865, now reproduced in section 124 of the Succession Act, 1925, which corresponds to section 23 of this Act:

section 111 embodies the rule enunciated in Edwards v Edwards.¹⁰³⁶ The rule of construction laid down in that case has been considerably modified by later English decisions. The Indian Act, however, has given it statutory force... Their Lordships think that it should be applied only to cases strictly coming within its scope.

In that case, time was mentioned for the occurrence of the specified uncertain event and consequently, section 111 was not applied, for that section applied only when no time was mentioned for the occurrence of the event. It will be noticed that section 23 is concerned with a gift to a specified person upon certain contingency. Although in section 124 of the Succession Act, 1925, which corresponds to this section, the expression “specified person” is not used, the illustration to that section clearly indicates that the contingent bequest contemplated by that section is one to a specified person. Section 23 of TP Act, 1882 and section 124 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, therefore, like the exceptions to section 21 of TP Act, 1882 and section 120 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, have no reference to a gift or bequest to a contingent class. It has already been submitted that the exceptions to the last mentioned sections do not apply to a gift or bequest to a contingent class. On a parity of reasoning, section 23 of TP Act, 1882 and section 124 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 ought not to apply to a gift or bequest to a contingent class. A gift or bequest to a contingent class does not strictly come within the scope of section 23 of TP Act, 1882 or section 124 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, for those sections are concerned with gifts or bequests to specified persons and, on the authority of the observations of the Judicial Committee quoted above, those sections should not be applied to a gift or bequest to a contingent class.¹⁰³⁷

23. Transfer contingent on happening of specified uncertain event.—

1027 For further illustrations, see note (2) below.

1028 Official Assignee of Madras v Vedavalli Thayarammal, (1926) 51 Mad LJ 182, p 192 : 97 IC 163 : 192 : AIR 1926 Mad. 936 [LNIND 1925 MAD 254].

1029 Gadadhar Mullick v Official Trustee of Bengal, AIR 1940 PC 45 .

1030 Soorjeemony's case (1862) 9 Mad IA 123.

1031 Gadadhar Mullick v Official Trustee of Bengal, AIR 1940 PC 45 .

1032 Kanai Lal v Kumar Purnendu Nath, (1946) 51 Cal WN 227.

1033 Chunilal v Bai Samrath, (1914) ILR 38 Bom 399, p 413 : 23 IC 654 : AIR 1914 PC 60 ; Bolo v Koklan, (1930) ILR 11 Lah 657 : 57 IA 325 : 127 IC 737 : AIR 1930 PC 270 [LNIND 1930 PC 62].

1034 Norendra Nath v Kamalbasini Dasi, (1896) ILR 23 Cal 563 : 23 IA 18; Lala Ramjewan v Dal Koer, (1897) ILR 24 Cal 406; Nawroji Pudumji v Putlibai, (1913) ILR 37 Bom 644 : 19 IC 832; Nistarini Debya v Behary Lal, (1914) 19 Cal WN 52 : 27 IC 239.

1035 Bhupendra v Amarendra, (1915) ILR 43 Cal 432, p 440 : 43 IA 12.

1036 Edwards v Edwards, [1852] 15 Beav 357.

1037 Kanai Lal v Kumar Purnendu Nath, (1946) 51 Cal WN 227.

24. Transfer to such of certain persons as survive at some period not specified.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

24. Transfer to such of certain persons as survive at some period not specified.—

Where, on a transfer of property, an interest therein is to accrue to such of certain persons as shall be surviving at some period, but the exact period is not specified, the interest shall go to such of them as shall be alive when the intermediate or precedent interest ceases to exist, unless a contrary intention appears from the terms of the transfer.

ILLUSTRATION

A transfers property to B for life, and after his death to C and D, equally to be divided between them, or to survivor of them. C dies during the life of B. D survives B. At B's death the property passes to D.

[s 24.1] Gift to Survivor

This section enacts a rule of construction and is best explained by the following passage from the judgment of LJ Turner in White v Barker:¹⁰³⁸

Where there is a bequest to A for life and after his death to B and C or the survivor of them, some meaning must of course be attached to the words "the survivor." They may refer to any one of three events—to one of the persons named surviving the other, or to one of them only surviving the testator, or to one of them only surviving the tenant for life, and in the absence of any indication to the contrary, they are taken to refer to the latter event as being the more probable one to have been referred to.

[s 24.2] Indian Succession Act, 1925

The corresponding section in the Indian Succession Act, 1925, is section 125. Under that section, the period of survivorship is the time of payment or distribution, unless a contrary intention appears from the terms of the will. The general rule is established by the leading case of Cripps v Wolcott,¹⁰³⁹ where VC Leach stated the rule as follows:

24. Transfer to such of certain persons as survive at some period not specified.—

I consider it, however, to be well settled, that if a legacy be given to two or more, equally to be divided between them, or to the survivor of them, and there is no special intent to be found in the will, that the survivorship is to be referred to the period of division. If there be no previous interest given in the legacy, then the period of division is the death of the testator, and the survivors at his death will take the whole legacy...But if a previous life estate be given, then the period of division is the death of the tenant for life, and the survivors at his death will take the whole legacy.

The section in the Indian Succession Act, 1925 has the following illustrations:

- (i) Property is bequeathed to A and B to be equally divided between them or to the survivor of them. If both, A and B survive the testator, the legacy is equally divided between them. If A dies before the testator, and B survives the testator, it goes to B.
- (ii) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and, after his death, to B and C, to be equally divided between them, or to the survivor of them. B dies during the lifetime of A; C survives A. At A's death the legacy goes to C (see the illustration to the present section 24).¹⁰⁴⁰
- (iii) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and, after his death, to B and C, or the survivor, with a direction that, if B should not survive the testator, his children are to stand in his place. C dies during the life of the testator; B survives the testator, but dies in the lifetime of A. The legacy goes to the representative of B.
- (iv) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and, after his death, to B and C, with a direction that, in case either of them dies in the lifetime of A, the whole shall go to the survivor. B dies in the lifetime of A. Afterwards, C dies in the lifetime of A. The legacy goes to the representative of C.

In the first illustration, no antecedent interest precedes the gift, and the period of distribution is the death of the testator. In Ellokasse Dassee v Durponarai,¹⁰⁴¹ the testator left his property to his two sons, an infant grandson, and a widow in equal shares, and directed that "if any of these four persons happen to die, the survivors of them will receive this estate in equal shares; but if there be a son or grandson surviving as heir and representatives of the party dying, such survivor shall succeed to his share;...so long as my infant grandson shall not have attained his majority the whole of my estate shall remain undivided." It was held that the period of distribution was the death of the testator; and if all four persons survived the testator they took vested interests from that date, but that the estate was not divisible until the grandson attained majority.

In the second illustration, the period of division is the death of the life tenant A.¹⁰⁴²

The third illustration is of the "contrary intention" for although there is a prior interest, the time of distribution is the death of the testator.

The fourth illustration is another instance of "contrary intention," for the time of distribution is that of one legatee surviving the other. In the passage already quoted from the judgment in White v Baker,¹⁰⁴³ the Lordship continued:

24. Transfer to such of certain persons as survive at some period not specified.—

But where, as in the present case, the bequest is to A for life and after his death to B and C, and in case either of them dies in the lifetime of A, the whole to the survivor, it is plain that the words in their natural import refer to one surviving the other.

1038 White v Barker, [1860] 2 De GF & J 55, p 64.

1039 Cripps v Wolcott, (1819) ILR 4 Mad 11, p 15; Neathway v Reed, [1853] 3 De GM & G 18; Heani v Baker, [1864] 2 K & J 383; Re Gregson's Trust Estate [1864] 2 De GJ & Sm 428.

1040 Ramchandra v Jagdeshwari Prasad, 168 IC 605 : AIR 1937 Pat. 247 .

1041 Ellokassee Dassee v Durponarai, (1880) ILR 5 Cal 59.

1042 Cripps v Wolcott, (1819) ILR 4 Mad 11.

1043 White v Baker, [1860] 2 De GF & J 55, p 64; see also Scurheld v Howes, [1790] 3 Bro CC 90.

25. Conditional transfer.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

25. Conditional transfer.—

An interest created on a transfer of property and dependent upon a condition fails if the fulfilment of the condition is impossible, or is forbidden by law, or is of such a nature that, if permitted, it would defeat the provisions of any law, or is fraudulent, or involves or implies injury to the person or property of another, or the Court regards it as immoral or opposed to public policy.

ILLUSTRATION

- (a) A lets a farm to B on condition that he shall walk a hundred miles in an hour. The lease is void.
- (b) A gives ₹500 to B on condition that he shall marry A's daughter C. At the date of the transfer C was dead. The transfer is void.
- (c) A transfers ₹500 to B on condition that she shall murder C. The transfer is void.
- (d) A transfers ₹500 to his niece C, if she will desert her husband. The transfer is void.

[s 25.1] Void Condition Precedent

The expression "dependent upon a condition" shows that the section refers to conditions precedent. If the condition precedent to a transfer is of the nature described in this section, the transfer fails. Under section 6(h)(2) of TP Act, 1882, no transfer can be made for an object or consideration which is unlawful within the meaning of section 23 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

A condition the fulfilment of which is impossible may refer to an act which is impossible in itself, as in the first two illustrations. The conditions, the fulfilment of which becomes impossible by the act of the party benefited by the non-fulfilment is dealt with in section 34.

25. Conditional transfer.—

The conditions referred to in this section are conditions which as agreements would be void.

Void conditions subsequent are the subject of section 32. If a condition subsequent is void, the condition fails, but the interest created by the transfer is not affected; while if a condition precedent is void, the transfer fails. A makes a gift of his field to B on condition that he sets fire to C's haystack. This is a void condition precedent, and the gift fails. A makes a gift of his field to B with a proviso that if he does not within a year's time set fire to C's haystack the gift shall be void. This is a void condition subsequent. The gift is a good gift, and is not affected by the void condition.

A gift to which an immoral condition is attached is a good gift, but the condition is void,¹⁰⁴⁴ but a transfer in consideration of future immoral relations is void.¹⁰⁴⁵

Illustration (d) to the section recalls the case of *Wilkinson v Wilkinson*¹⁰⁴⁶ where it was held that a gift on a condition that a woman should cease to live with her husband is void, as the condition is void as against public policy. In a Bombay case,¹⁰⁴⁷ N advanced money to V, a married woman, to enable her to divorce her husband and marry N. He then sued to recover the advances. The court held that the agreement was against public policy and void.

[s 25.2] Indian Succession Act, 1925

The section corresponds to sections 126 and 127 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. A condition in partial restraint of marriage is valid in English law,¹⁰⁴⁸ and this would apparently be so under the Indian Succession Act, 1925.¹⁰⁴⁹ A condition in a will that the testator's sons daughter should not take any interest under the will, if she married before the death of the son, was upheld by the Calcutta High Court as not being intended to penalise her marriage, but as being a reasonable disposition having regard to the son's duty to see to his daughter's marriage during his life time.¹⁰⁵⁰ A condition precedent involving a breach of public duty,¹⁰⁵¹ or in restraint of trade,¹⁰⁵² invalidates a bequest.

An instance of an impossible condition is the case of Rajendra Lal v Mrinalini Dasi.¹⁰⁵³ The testator left a legacy on condition that the legatee should excavate a tank, but as he had himself excavated the tank before his death the bequest failed. Justice Mookerjee said that the performance of the condition was the motive of the bequest, and the impracticability of performance barred the claim of the legatee.

¹⁰⁴⁴ Ram Sarup v Bela, (1884) ILR 6 All 313 : 11 IA 44.

¹⁰⁴⁵ Thasi Muthukannu v Shunmugavelu, (1905) ILR 28 Mad 413; Ghumna v Ramchandra, (1925) ILR 47 All 619 : 88 IC 411 : AIR 1925 All 437 .

¹⁰⁴⁶ Wilkinson v Wilkinson, [1871] 12 Eq 604 ; Bai Vijli v Nansa Nagar, (1886) ILR 10 Bom 152.

¹⁰⁴⁷ Bai Vijli v Nansa Nagar, (1886) ILR 10 Bom 152.

¹⁰⁴⁸ Jarman on Wills, 8th Edn, p 1513.

25. Conditional transfer.—

- 1049 See illustration (x) to section 120 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925.
- 1050 Cohen v Cohen, (1932) ILR 59 Cal 102 : 137 IC 482 : AIR 1932 Cal 350 .
- 1051 Brannegan v Mirbhy, [1896] 1 Ir R 418.
- 1052 Cooke v Turner, (1846) 15 M & W 727, p 736; Mitchell v Reynolds, [1711] IP Wms 181.
- 1053 Rajendra Lal v Mrinalini Dasi, (1921) ILR 48 Cal 1100 : 64 IC 977 : AIR 1922 Cal 116 .

26. Fulfilment of condition precedent.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

26. Fulfilment of condition precedent.—

Where the terms of a transfer of property impose a condition to be fulfilled before a person can take an interest in the property, the condition shall be deemed to have been fulfilled if it has been substantially complied with.

ILLUSTRATIONS

(a) A transfers ₹5,000 to B on condition that he shall marry with the consent of C, D and E. E dies. B marries with the consent of C and D. B is deemed to have fulfilled the condition.

(b) A transfers ₹5,000 to B on condition that he shall marry with the consent of C, D and E. B marries without the consent of C, D and E but obtains their consent after the marriage. B has not fulfilled the condition.

[s 26.1] Performance of Condition Precedent

The law favours the early vesting of estates,¹⁰⁵⁴ and so a condition precedent may be carried out cy pres, and is fulfilled if it is substantially carried out. A contract stipulating the fulfilment of a condition precedent may be a contingent contract under section 26.¹⁰⁵⁵ For the same reason, section 29 enacts that a condition subsequent must be strictly fulfilled in order to prevent the divesting of an estate which was vested. This is well illustrated by a comparison of illustration (a) to this section with illustration (1) to section 132 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, where the same illustration is put in the form of a condition subsequent thus:

A legacy is bequeathed to A, with a proviso that, if he marries without the consent of B, C and D, the legacy shall go to E. D dies. Even if A marries without the consent of B and C, the gift to E does not take effect.

The condition in the above illustration, being a condition subsequent, is strictly construed to prevent the legacy to A being divested; so on the death of D, the condition becomes impossible and void. Therefore, A may neglect it and marry without the consent of B and C. If it were so construed in the illustration (a) to section 26 where it is a condition precedent, A would take nothing, for performance of the condition would be impossible.

26. Fulfilment of condition precedent.—

Therefore, the condition is treated as fulfilled by substantial compliance and the transfer to A takes effect, if he marries with the consent of the survivors B and C.

Illustration (a) recalls the case of Dawson v Oliver-Massey,¹⁰⁵⁶ where the condition was marriage with the consent of parents, and the consent of a surviving parent was held to suffice.

Illustration (b) shows that if the condition is clear it cannot be evaded. Where the condition was marriage with the consent of guardians, and the sole guardian appointed by the will had died, and no guardian was appointed, the condition was not complied with, for the court could have on application appointed a guardian.¹⁰⁵⁷

A condition of residence is valid,¹⁰⁵⁸ and when no manner of residence is prescribed, is complied with by occasional residence.¹⁰⁵⁹ In an Allahabad case,¹⁰⁶⁰ a dispute as to succession between a Mohammedan mother and cousins was compromised on terms that the mother should have an estate for life with power of alienation with the consent of the cousins who were to be the reversionary heirs. After the death of two cousins, the mother effected an alienation with the consent of the survivor. The judges differed as to whether this was a substantial compliance within the meaning of this section. It is submitted, however, that this was not a case of a condition precedent to the vesting of an estate, but merely a condition affecting the mother's authority to alienate, and the section had no application.

[s 26.2] Indian Succession Act

The corresponding section of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, is section 128. The following are the illustrations to the section:

- (i) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C, D and E. A marries with the written consent of B, C is present at the marriage. D sends a present to A previous to the marriage. E has been personally informed by A of his intentions, and has made no objections. A has fulfilled the condition.
- (ii) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. D dies, and A marries with the consent of B and C. A has fulfilled the condition.
- (iii) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A marries in the lifetime of B, C and D, with the consent of B and C only. A has not fulfilled the condition.
- (iv) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A obtains the unconditional assent of B, C and D to his marriage with E. Afterwards, B, C and D capriciously retract their consent. A marries E. A has fulfilled the condition.
- (v) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A marries without the consent of B, C and D, but obtains their consent after the marriage. A has not fulfilled the condition.
- (vi) A makes a will whereby he bequeaths a sum of money to B if B shall marry with the consent of A's executors B marries during the lifetime of A, and A afterwards expresses his approbation of the marriage. A dies. The bequest to B takes effect.
- (vii) A legacy is bequeathed to A if he executed a certain document within a time specified in the will. The document is executed by A within a reasonable time, but not within the time specified in the will. A has not performed the condition, and is not entitled to receive the legacy.

Illustrations (ii) and (v) are the same as those in section 26 of the TP Act, 1882. Illustration (vii), like illustration (v) shows that if the condition is clear it is not to be evaded. In a case decided by the Privy Council, a legacy was bequeathed on condition that the legatee should "humbly apply for subsistence". However, as the legatee

26. Fulfilment of condition precedent.—

claimed as of right maintenance suitable to his rank and position, it was held that there was no substantial compliance with the condition and that the legacy failed.¹⁰⁶¹

1054 Re Blackwell [1926] 1 ChD 223 , p 231 : [1925] All ER Rep 498 ; Scott v Tyler, [1788] 2 W&TLC 146; Taylor v Graham, [1878] 3 App Cas 1287 .

1055 Gian Chand v York Exports Ltd, (2015) 5 SCC 609 [LNINDU 2014 SC 17] : 2014 (6) Scale 35 [LNINDU 2014 SC 17] : AIR 2014 SC 3584 [LNINDU 2014 SC 17] .

1056 Dawson v Oliver-Massey, (1876) 2 ChD 753 .

1057 Re Brown's Will, (1881) 18 ChD 1 ; See also note (2) below for further illustrations.

1058 Wynne v Fletcher, [1857] 24 Beav 430.

1059 Ganendro Mohun Tagore v Rajah Juttendro Mohun Tagore, 1 IA 387 : 22 WR 377; Re Moir Warner v Moir, (1884) 25 ChD 605 .

1060 Beni Chand v Ekram Ahmad, 90 IC 887 : AIR 1926 All 181 .

1061 Veerabhadra v Chiranjivi, (1905) ILR 28 Mad 173 : 32 IA 105.

27. Conditional transfer to one person coupled with transfer to another on failure of prior disposition.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

27. Conditional transfer to one person coupled with transfer to another on failure of prior disposition.—

Where, on a transfer of property, an interest therein is created in favour of one person, and by the same transaction an ulterior disposition of the same interest is made in favour of another, if the prior disposition under the transfer shall fail, the ulterior disposition shall take effect upon the failure of the prior disposition, although the failure may not have occurred in the manner contemplated by the transferor.

But, where the intention of the parties to the transaction is that the ulterior disposition shall take effect only in the event of the prior disposition failing in a particular manner, the ulterior disposition shall not take effect unless the prior disposition fails in that manner.

ILLUSTRATION

(a) A transfers ₹500 to B on condition that he shall execute a certain lease within three months after A's death, and, if he should neglect to do so, to C. B dies in A's life-time. The disposition in favour of C takes effect.

(b) A transfers property to his wife; but, in case she should die in his life-time, transfers to B that which he had transferred to her. A and his wife perish together under circumstances which make it impossible to prove that she died before him. The disposition in favour of B does not take effect.

[s 27.1] Shall fail

These words are important for they indicate that the prior interest is valid, and fails subsequently by reason of the valid condition not being fulfilled. If the prior interest is invalid under section 13 or section 14, the subsequent interest fails also under section 16. If the prior interest is invalid under section 25, the subsequent interest fails also under that section or under the combined effect of section 25 and section 28. This has been explained and illustrated in note (3) under section 16.

[s 27.2] Acceleration

In other cases, i.e., where the prior interest is valid and fails as the valid condition on which it rests has not been fulfilled,¹⁰⁶² this section is applicable. The law favouring the vesting of estates says that the subsequent interest takes effect as if the prior interest has never been in the way. This results in an acceleration of the subsequent interest. In Jull v Jacobs,¹⁰⁶³ there was a bequest to A for life and then to his children. The gift to A failed as he had attested the will; but VC Malins held that the life estate being out of the way, the gift to the children took effect. This case was followed by the Privy Council in a case where there was a bequest to a wife for life, and then to her children.¹⁰⁶⁴ The gift of the wife failed under a local Act for want of registration, but the effect was to accelerate the gift of the children. In Evestaff v Austin,¹⁰⁶⁵ Lord Romilly decided that the rule applied not only to reality, but to personality. The principle of the section was applied in the following case which occurred in Oudh.¹⁰⁶⁶ In that case, the right to manage a Hindu religious endowment was declared by an award to be vested for successive periods of 21 years, first in D, then in R, then in S, then in D's eldest son, then in R's eldest son, and then in S's eldest son. R and S both died in the second period of 21 years which belonged to R. The court held that the turn of management of D's eldest son was accelerated.

27. Conditional transfer to one person coupled with transfer to another on failure of prior disposition.—

The rule has been justified on the ground that it gives effect to the intention of the grantor. In *Lainson v Lainson*¹⁰⁶⁷ Lord Romily said—

Although the expression used was that the estate to the son of John Lainson is only to take effect from and after John Lainson's decease, I am of opinion that the meaning is "from and after the determination of his estate by death or otherwise". In deciding thus I fulfil the intention of the testator.

A failure of a prior gift does not accelerate a subsequent transfer not taking effect on the determination of the prior interest; thus a subsequent gift cannot be accelerated, where the persons who are to take under it are only ascertainable at a future date. It also cannot take effect unless two gifts are dependent on each other.¹⁰⁶⁸

[s 27.3] Exception

The second clause refers to the exceptional case where the intention has been expressed that the gift over shall not take the effect, unless the prior gift fails in the particular manner stated.

[s 27.4] Indian Succession Act

The rule of acceleration is enacted in section 129 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. Two illustrations are annexed, one of which is the same as illustration (a) to section 27 of the TP Act, 1882, and the other is as follows:

A bequeaths a sum of money to his own children surviving him, and if they all die under 18, to B. A dies without having even had a child. The bequest to B takes effect.

The exception to the rule of acceleration is enacted in section 130 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. The section has one illustration which is the same as illustration (b) to section 27 of the TP Act, 1882. An instance of the exception is the case of Official Assignee of Madras v Thayarammal.¹⁰⁶⁹ In that case, the testator wished to disinherit his son, and left his property to any grandson or grandsons who might be born in his lifetime or within ten years of his death, and "if there shall be no such grandsons to be born as aforesaid" the whole estate to his granddaughters. A grandson was born within 10 years of his death, but the gift to the grandson failed not only under the rule in the Tagore case, but also because the estate could not be left in suspense. The question then arose whether the gift having failed in a different manner from that contemplated, the granddaughters could take. It was held that they could not, because the testator's intention was that they should not take if there was a grandson in existence.

27. Conditional transfer to one person coupled with transfer to another on failure of prior disposition.—

[s 27.5] Indian Cases

The following are some Indian instances of the rule:

- (1) The testator's wife was enceinte and the testator left his property to the expected son and made a provision for the maintenance of the daughter should the expected child prove to be a daughter. There was a gift over in case the son died before attaining majority. On the birth of a daughter, the court held that the gift over took effect, although the failure of the gift to the son not in the manner contemplated by the testator.¹⁰⁷⁰
- (2) The testator made a gift to a son to be adopted by his wife and, in case of his death without issue, to his daughters. The power of adoption to be invalid, but although the prior bequest failed the gift over to the daughters took effect.¹⁰⁷¹
- (3) A made a bequest to a minor son, and on his death before attaining majority to the widow for life, and then to the daughters. It was held that the daughters were not deprived of this legacy by the death of the widow before the minor son.¹⁰⁷²

A case decided by Bombay High Court may perhaps be cited here, although it was not decided under the Indian Succession Act, 1925. The bequest was to the widow W for life, and on her death, to the daughter D's sons, but in case D had no sons, then to D for life, and on her death to the testator's cousin. W died in April 1907 and D had a son born in December 1907. The son could not take under Hindu law as he was not in existence at the death of the testator. The court said that although the intention of the testator to give his property to his daughter's son's son was defeated, yet as his next intention was to keep the property in the family, the gift over to the cousin took effect.¹⁰⁷³

1062 Ismail Haji v Umar Abdulla, (1942) ILR Bom 441 : 44 Bom LR 256 : 201 IC 34 : AIR 1942 Bom 155 .

1063 Dawson v Oliver-Massey, \(1876\) 3 ChD 703 .

1064 Ajudhia v Rakhman Kuar, (1883) ILR 10 Cal 482 : 11 IA 1.

1065 Evestaff v Austin, [1854] 19 Beav 591.

1066 Debi Shankar v Nand Kishore, 135 IC 395 : AIR 1932 Oudh 161 .

1067 Lainson v Lainson, (1853) 18 Beav 16, on app [1854] 5 De GM & G 754 (prior bequest revoked by codicil).

1068 Gopaldas v Hemandas, AIR 1942 Sau 145 .

1069 Official Assignee of Madras v Thayarammal, (1926) 51 Mad LJ 182, p 191 : 97 IC 163 : AIR 1926 Mad. 936
[LNIND 1925 MAD 254] .

1070 Okhoymoney Dasee v Nilmoney, (1888) ILR 15 Cal 282.

1071 Radha Prasad v Rani Mani, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 947, but decided on another ground on app (1908) ILR 35 Cal 896 : 35 IA 188.

1072 Durga Pershad v Raghunandan Lal, (1915) 19 Cal WN 439 : 23 IC 597.

27. Conditional transfer to one person coupled with transfer to another on failure of prior disposition.—

1073 Narandas v Bai Saraswati, (1914) ILR 38 Bom 697 : 16 Bom LR 577 : 28 IC 130. See the criticism of this case in Official Assignee of Madras v Dedavalli Thayarammal, (1926) 51 Mad LJ 182, p 191 : 97 IC 163 : AIR 1926 Mad. 936 [LNIND 1925 MAD 254] .

28. Ulterior transfer conditional on happening or not happening of specified event.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

28. Ulterior transfer conditional on happening or not happening of specified event.—

On a transfer of property an interest therein may be created to accrue to any person with the condition superadded that in case a specified uncertain event shall happen such interest shall pass to another person, or that in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen such interest shall pass to another person. In each case the dispositions are subject to the rules contained in sections 10, 12, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25 and 27.

[s 28.1] Conditional Limitation

The ulterior transfer, as it is called in the marginal note to this section, or ulterior disposition, as it is called in sections 27, 29 and 30, is effected by a conditional limitation. A conditional limitation, is one containing a condition which divests an estate that has vested and vests it in another person. As regards the prior interest, it is a condition subsequent, but as regards the ulterior interest, it is a condition precedent.

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A settled property on his second wife for her life, and then on her son if she should have a son; but if she should not have a son, then on the sons by his first wife. The Privy Council held that the sons by the first wife took a vested interest liable to be divested by the birth of a son to the second wife.¹⁰⁷⁴

(2) The terms of a compromise provided that L should have an estate for life, and after her death, R should be full owner if he survived L, and if he did not, the estate would pass to R's, lineal male descendent according to the rule of primogenitur. The court held that the condition affected the retention of the estate and not in acquisition, and construed the compromise as conferring on R a vested interest liable to be divested if he did not survive L.¹⁰⁷⁵

[s 28.2] Specified Sections

The ulterior transfer or conditional limitation, is subject to the rules contained in the sections specified in this section. The application of these sections is best explained by following illustrations:

28. Ulterior transfer conditional on happening or not happening of specified event.—

section 10— A transfers his field to B without power of alienation and in case of B's death without issue, to C also without power of alienation. The restriction is void in both cases.

section 12— A transfers his field to B, and if B becomes insolvent, to C. B becomes insolvent. The field vests not in C but in the Official Receiver of the Official Assignee as the case may be.

section 21— A transfers his field to B, and in case of B's death without issue, to C. C has a contingent interest which becomes vested on B's death without issue.

section 22— A transfers his field to B and on B's death to such of the children of C as shall attain the age of 18. All the children of C who are alive at B's death have an interest, which vests when they attain the age of 18.

section 23— A transfers his field to B for life and then to C, if C goes to England. C does not go to England until a year after B's death. C's interest fails.

section 24— A transfers his field to B and on B's death without issue to the sons of C or the survivor of them. The sons of C who survive B take the field.

section 25— A transfers his field to B on condition that he murders C with a proviso that on B's death without issue the field shall belong to D. The interest both of B and of D fails.

[s 28.3] Indian Succession Act

The corresponding section of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, is section 131. The following illustrations are annexed to the section:

(i) A sum of money is bequeathed to A, to be paid to him at the age of 18 and if he shall die before he attains that age, to B. A takes a vested interest in the legacy, subject to be divested and to go to B in case A dies under 18.

(ii) An estate is bequeathed to A with the proviso that if A shall dispute the competency of the testator to make a will, the estate shall go to B. A disputes the competency of the testator to make a will. The estate goes to B.

(iii) A sum of money is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B but if B shall then be dead, leaving a son, such son is to stand in the place of B. B takes a vested interest in the legacy, subject to be divested if he dies leaving a son in A's life-time.

28. Ulterior transfer conditional on happening or not happening of specified event.—

(iv) A sum of money is bequeathed to A and B, and if either should die during the life of C, then to the survivor living at the death of C. A and B die before C. The gift over cannot take effect, but the representative of A takes one-half of the money, and the representative of B takes the other half.

(v) A bequeaths to B the interest of a fund for life, and directs the fund to be divided at her death equally among her three children, or such of them as shall be living at her death. All the children of B die in B's lifetime. The bequest over cannot take effect, but the interests of the children pass to their representatives.

In the reported cases, divesting conditions in wills have generally been on account of death without issue,¹⁰⁷⁶ or non-residence.¹⁰⁷⁷ In Gooroo Das v Sarat Chunder,¹⁰⁷⁸ there was a gift for life to the widow and then an absolute estate of inheritance to the brothers liable to be divested, if the widow adopted a son; it was held to be a valid conditional limitation.

In Bachman v Bachman,¹⁰⁷⁹ the testator directed his trustees and executors to sell his estate and divide the proceeds between the legatees in certain proportions, but that if any legatee should die in his lifetime or before the division leaving lawful issue, such issue should be entitled to the share his deceased parent would have taken. One legatee died five months after the testator, but before the division had been made, leaving lawful issue. The court held that this legatee took a vested interest which was divested by his death before the division and the gift over to the legatee's issue took effect. The court followed the decision in Johnson v Crook.¹⁰⁸⁰ However, the authority of Johnson's case is very doubtful, for the House of Lords in *Minors v Battison*¹⁰⁸¹ seem to have held that a divesting condition which depends upon the dilatoriness or caprice of a trustee, is void.¹⁰⁸²

In a Madras case,¹⁰⁸³ there was a curious proviso which was held not to operate as a condition of defeasance. The bequest was to a daughter for life and then to her children, and if the daughter should die "leaving no child living at her death" such property "as shall not have become vested" was to go to the testator's son. The daughter had only one child, a son who predeceased her. The son's interest was vested, but it was not divested because the condition subsequent did not on the terms of the will apply to an interest which was vested.

[s 28.5] Repugnancy

A conditional limitation is a condition of defeasance, which terminates the interest of one person and invests another person with it. However, if an estate is given to a named donee in terms which confer an absolute estate, and then a further interest is given merely after or on termination of that donee's interest, and not in defeasance of it; the further interest will be void for repugnancy. Thus, when a testator gave an absolute estate to his wife with power of alienation, and then added a clause that "if, at the time of the death of my widow, there be no adopted son or if no son or wife of the adopted son be alive, then, my heir according to the Hindu shastras who shall be alive at the time shall get the properties which shall remain after disposal by my wife by way of gift or sale of the same"—the gift over was invalid.¹⁰⁸⁴ Similarly, in Anandrao Vinayak v Administrator General of Bombay,¹⁰⁸⁵ the testator made an absolute gift to his son G, and then added "and when the sons of my son G shall attain the age of twenty-one years, the same shall be divided and duly received by G and his sons in equal shares." The gift to the grandsons was void for repugnancy, and the absolute estate of G was not divested. In a Bombay case,¹⁰⁸⁶ however, where the testator gave an absolute estate to R and then added "should R die and should he then leave a son, such his son shall afterwards be the owner"—it was held that R took only a life-estate.

[s 28.5] Hindu Law

The section applies to Hindus, and conditional limitations or grants subject to defeasance with a gift over have always been recognised in Hindu law.

[s 28.6] Mahomedan Law

28. Ulterior transfer conditional on happening or not happening of specified event.—

A gift cannot be made so as to take effect on the happening of a contingency. It follows that, conditional limitations are not recognised in Mahomedan law.

-
- 1074 Umes Chunder v Zahoor Fatin, (1891) ILR 18 Cal 164 : 17 IA 201.
- 1075 L. Sunder Bibi v Lal Rajendra, (1925) ILR 47 All 496 : 86 IC 684 : AIR 1925 All 389 ; Jitendra Nath v Banku, 96 IC 565 : AIR 1926 Cal 496 , p 1177. For other instances, see note (3) below.
- 1076 Soorjemoney Dossey v Denobundoo Mullick, (1862) 9 Moo IA 123 ; Ram Lal Mukerjee v Secretary of State, (1881) ILR 7 Cal 304 : 8 IA 46; Kumur Tarakeswar Roy v Kumar Shoshi Shikhareswar, (1883) ILR 9 Cal 952 : 10 IA 51; Raikishori v Debendranath, (1888) ILR 15 Cal 409 : 15 IA 37; Chunilal v Bai Samarath, (1914) ILR 38 Bom 399 : 23 IC 645 : AIR 1914 PC 60 ; Bhupendra v Amarendra, (1915) ILR 43 Cal 432 : 43 IA 12 : 34 IC 892.
- 1077 Ganendro Mohun Tagore v Rajah Juttendro Mohun Tagore, 1 IA 387 : 22 WR 377; Tin Cowri Dassee v Krishna, (1893) ILR 20 Cal 15; Shyama Charan v Naba Charan, (1912) 17 Cal WN 39 : 14 IC 708.
- 1078 Gooroo Das v Sarat Chunder, (1902) ILR 29 Cal 699.
- 1079 Bachman v Bachman, (1884) ILR 6 All 583.
- 1080 Johnson v Crook, \(1879\) 12 ChD 639 .
- 1081 Minors v Battison, \(1876\) 1 App Cas 428 .
- 1082 See, for a fuller discussion, Jarman on Wills, 8th Edn, p 2050.
- 1083 Ernest William Adams v Gray, (1925) 48 Mad LJ 707 : 90 IC 5 : AIR 1925 Mad. 599 [LNIND 1924 MAD 425] .
- 1084 Sures Chandra v Lalit Mohan, (1916) 20 Cal WN 463, p 465 : 31 IC 405; Thakur Jagmohan v Sheoraj, (1928) ILR 3 Luck 19 : 106 IC 593 : AIR 1928 Oudh 49 ; Karam Singh v Rupwanti, (1924) 6 Lah LJ 412 : 85 IC 296 : AIR 1925 Lah 122 ; Mohah Lal v Niranjana Das, (1921) ILR 2 Lah 175 : 60 IC 619 : AIR 1921 Lah 11 .
- 1085 Anandrao Vinayak v Administrator General of Bombay, (1896) ILR 20 Bom 450, p 453.
- 1086 Gulabaji & Co v Rustomji, (1925) ILR 49 Bom 478, p 483 : 95 IC 299 : AIR 1925 Bom 282 .

29. Fulfilment of condition subsequent.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

29. Fulfilment of condition subsequent.—

An ulterior disposition of the kind contemplated by the last preceding section cannot, take effect unless the condition is strictly fulfilled.

ILLUSTRATION

A transfers ₹500 to B, to be paid to him on his attaining his majority or marrying, with a proviso that, if B dies as minor or marries without C's consent, the ₹500 shall go to D. B marries when only 17 years of age, without C's consent. The transfer of D takes effect.

[s 29.1] Performance of a Condition Subsequent

It follows from the principle that the law favours the vesting of estates, that a condition subsequent, which has the effect of divesting an estate is subject to the rule of strict construction, and that a condition precedent to an estate vesting is deemed to have been fulfilled, if it is substantially complied with. This has been explained in note (1) under section 26 where illustration (a) to section 26 has been contrasted with illustration (i) to section 132 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925.

If the interest has become vested, it is not to be taken away except by clear words.¹⁰⁸⁷ In a case where a Hindu widow was authorised to adopt a son, with a direction that if the first adopted son died before the age of 20, she was to adopt another son to take the place of the deceased adopted son, the Calcutta High Court said that a clause of defeasance in order to be operative, must contain express words or words necessary implication of a gift over to a definite person or persons.¹⁰⁸⁸ The implication of a gift over to the second adopted son was not sufficient to prevent the widow of the first adopted son from inheriting her husband's share.¹⁰⁸⁹

Where the words of the condition are clear, they must be clearly fulfilled. If there is any ambiguity in the condition subsequent, it will be read in the sense most favourable to the vested interest. Accordingly, a gift to A for life and then to his children with a gift over in the event of A's death without leaving children, is construed as a gift over in the event of A's death without having had a child.¹⁰⁹⁰

29. Fulfilment of condition subsequent.—

Ignorance of a condition is no excuse for non-compliance,¹⁰⁹¹ for a person who takes under an instrument, cannot plead want of knowledge of its contents.¹⁰⁹² Similarly, a condition violated under duress will not forfeit the bequest, and a condition requiring residence in a holy place is not broken when the devisee was forcibly removed to another place.¹⁰⁹³

[s 29.2] Indian Succession Act

The corresponding section of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, is section 132. The third illustration to that section is the same as that to section 29 of the TP Act, 1882.

The other illustrations are as follows:

- (i) A legacy is bequeathed to A, with a proviso that, if he marries without the consent of B, C and D, the legacy will go to E. D dies. Even if A marries without the consent of B and C, the gift to E does not take effect.
- (ii) A legacy is bequeathed to A, with a proviso that, if he marries without the consent of B, the legacy shall go to C. A marries with the consent of B. He afterwards becomes a widower and marries again without the consent of B. The bequest to C does not take effect.

Illustration (i) imports the same condition as illustration (a) to section 26 of the TP Act, 1882, or illustration (ii) to section 128 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, but as it is here a condition subsequent, it is subject to strict construction, and is discharged by the death of one of the parties whose consent is required. In the second illustration, the condition once fulfilled is discharged.

1087 Govindraju v Mangalam Pillai, (1933) 63 Mad LJ 911 : 139 IC 867 : AIR 1933 Mad. 80 [LNIND 1932 MAD 143], p 81.

1088 Re Cobbold, Cobbold v Lawton, [[1903\] 2 ChD 299](#) ; Mussorie Bank v Raynor, (1882) ILR 4 All 500 : 9 IA 70, p 80; Tripurari Pal v Jagat Tarini, (1913) ILR 40 Cal 274 : 40 IA 37 : 17 IC 696; Amulya v Kalidas, (1905) ILR 32 Cal 861; Sures Chandra v Lait Mohan, (1916) 20 Cal WN 463 : 31 IC 405; DeSouza v Vaz, (1887) ILR 12 Bom 137, p 147. See Yacob Yohannan v Rebecca Maria, AIR 1973 Ker. 96 .

1089 Amulya v Kalidas, (1905) ILR 32 Cal 861.

1090 Maitland v Chalie, (1882) Mad & G 243.

1091 Re Hodges Legacy [[1873\] 16 Eq 92](#) , p 96; Astley v Essex, (Earl), [[1874\] 18 Eq 290](#) .

1092 Porter v Fry, (1868) 1 Vent 199.

1093 Tin Cowri Dassee v Krishna, (1893) ILR 20 Cal 15; See also, Transfer of Property Act, 1882, section 34.

30. Prior disposition not affected by invalidity of ulterior disposition.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

30. Prior disposition not affected by invalidity of ulterior disposition.—

If the ulterior disposition is not valid, the prior disposition is not affected by it.

ILLUSTRATION

A transfers a farm to B for her life, and, if she does not desert her husband to C. B is entitled to the farm during her life as if no condition had been inserted.

[s 30.1] Subsequent Interest Invalid

When a prior interest is invalid either as offending against the rule against perpetuity, or as being illegal or impossible under section 25, the subsequent interest also fails. This has been explained in the note (2) under section 16. However, if the subsequent interest is invalid, then the prior interest is not affected.

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A transfers his field to B with a proviso that on the death of B's last lineal male descendant the field shall belong to the lineal descendant of C. The ulterior disposition to C is invalid under the rule against perpetuity, but the estate of B is not affected.

(2) A transfers his field to B with a proviso that if R does not within a year set fire to C's haystack, the field shall belong to D. The ulterior disposition to D is invalid under section 25, but the interest of B is not affected.

In Saraju Bala v Jyotirmoyee,¹⁰⁹⁴ there was a gift of an absolute estate to a daughter, with a defeasance clause whereby the property was to revert to the heirs of the grantor in case of the failure of her descendants. The Privy Council held that as the defeasance clause was void, the daughter was entitled to dispose of the property by will. Re Beard, Reversionary & General Securities Ltd v Hall,¹⁰⁹⁵ there was a devise with a condition of defeasance in case the devisee entered the naval or military forces of the Crown, but as the condition was void as opposed to public policy, the devisee took an absolute interest.

30. Prior disposition not affected by invalidity of ulterior disposition.—

[s 30.2] Indian Succession Act, 1925

The same rule is enacted in section 133 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. Three illustrations are annexed to the section of which the second is the same as that in this section. The other two illustrations are as follows:

- (i) An estate is bequeathed to A for his life with condition superadded that, if he shall not on a given day walk 100 miles in an hour, the estate shall go to B. The condition being void. A retains his estate as if no condition had been inserted in the will.
- (ii) An estate is bequeathed to A for life, and, if he marries, to the eldest son of B for life. B, at the date of the testator's death, had not had a son. The bequest over is void under section 105, and A is entitled to the estate during his life.

In Bai Dhanlaxmi v Hari Prasad,¹⁰⁹⁶ there was an absolute bequest to the eldest son with a superadded condition of defeasance in case of failure of male issue, and an attempt to create an estate of inheritance not known to Hindu law. The court held that the original bequest to the son was not affected by the failure of the gift over. In Narsingh Rao v Mahalakshmi,¹⁰⁹⁷ the settlor, whose son was in prison, made a gift in 1875 of his property to his widow with a condition of defeasance in case his son should have a son within 16 years, in which case the property was to go to the grandson. The condition was void under Hindu law as it then was, being in favour of an unborn person, and the widow took an absolute and indefeasible estate. The Privy Council said that:

it is a well settled principle of law, which has now been embodied in sections 28 and 30 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, that in such a case if the ulterior disposition is not valid, the prior disposition is not affected by it.

[s 30.3] Hindu Law

The section now applies to Hindus, and the section of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 applies to wills governed by the Hindu Wills Act. However, the principle of the sections has always been applied to Hindus. Thus, in Tagore v Tagore,¹⁰⁹⁸ where there was a gift to A for life, and after him to his heirs in tail male, the subsequent disposition was invalid, but A's life-estate was not affected. Similarly, in Khetter Mohan Mullick v Gunga Narain,¹⁰⁹⁹ it was held that specific trusts of specific estates good in themselves were not invalidated by a subsequent illegal disposition of the remainder. The case of Saraju Bala v Jyotirmoyee,¹¹⁰⁰ referred to in note (1) was decided under Hindu law.

¹⁰⁹⁴ Saraju Bala v Jyotirmoyee, 58 IA 270 : (1931) 35 Cal WN 903 : 134 IC 648 : AIR 1931 PC 179 .

¹⁰⁹⁵ Beard, Reversionary & General Securities Ltd v Hall, [1908] 1 ChD 383  .

¹⁰⁹⁶ Bai Dhanlaxmi v Hari Prasad, (1921) ILR 45 Bom 1038 : 62 IC 37 : AIR 1921 Bom 262 .

¹⁰⁹⁷ Narsingh Rao v Mahalakshmi, (1928) ILR 50 All 375, p 392 : 55 IA 180 : 109 IC 703 : AIR 1928 PC 156 .

30. Prior disposition not affected by invalidity of ulterior disposition.—

- 1098 Tagore v Tagore, (1872) 9 Beng LR 377; Kristoromoni v Narendro, (1888) ILR 16 Cal 383 : 16 IA 29; Kumar Tarakeswar Roy v Kumar Shoshi Shikhareswar, (1883) ILR 9 Cal 952 : 10 IA 51.
- 1099 Khetter Mohan Mullick v Gunga Narain, (1899) 4 Cal WN 671.
- 1100 Saraju Bala v Jyotirmoyee, 58 IA 270 : 134 IC 648 : AIR 1931 PC 179 .

31. Condition that transfer shall cease to have effect in case specified uncertain event happens or does not happen.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

31. Condition that transfer shall cease to have effect in case specified uncertain event happens or does not happen.—

Subject to the provisions of section 12, on a transfer of property an interest therein may be created with the condition superadded that it shall cease to exist in case a specified uncertain event shall happen, or in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen.

ILLUSTRATION

(a) A transfers a farm to B for his life, with a proviso that, in case B cuts down a certain wood, the transfer shall cease to have any effect. B cuts down the wood. He loses his life-interest in the farm.

(b) A transfers a farm to B, provided that, if B shall not go to England within three years after the date of the transfer, his interest in the farm shall cease. B does not go to England within the term prescribed. His interest in the farm ceases.

[s 31.1] Condition Subsequent

The condition referred to in this section is a condition subsequent which terminates an interest and revests it in the grantor. It is not a conditional limitation, which creates an interest in a third person. The next section requires that the condition subsequent should be valid, otherwise it will not have the effect of terminating the interest to which it is attached. As the section is subject to section 12, it follows that a condition subsequent divesting an estate on the ground of insolvency or of attempted alienation would be void.

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A is under sentence of transportation for life and transfers his field to B with a proviso that in case he returns from Port Blair, B's interest shall cease. A returns from Port Blair. B's interest in the field ceases.¹¹⁰¹

(2) A transfers his field to B with proviso that if B becomes insolvent, B's interest in the field shall cease. B is adjudged insolvent. The field vests in the Official Receiver or the Official Assignee as the case may be.

31. Condition that transfer shall cease to have effect in case specified uncertain event happens or does not happen.—

A condition subsequent requiring residence in a particular house has been held to be valid.¹¹⁰² A condition requiring residence in a holy place was not broken when the devisee was forcibly detained in another place.¹¹⁰³ A gift which is revocable under section 126 is an instance of a transfer subject to a condition subsequent.¹¹⁰⁴

This section applies only to a completed transfer of property creating an interest therein with a condition superadded for its cessor on a certain contingency, but has no application to a contract for transfer with a condition superadded thereto. Thus, where in a sale deed it was provided that if the vendee did not pay the amount of the price retained by him to the creditor of the vendor within a certain time, the sale deed would be deemed to have been cancelled, and the vendee failed to pay the price to the creditor within time and the court gave him further time to pay, it was held that the contract of sale and the act of transfer were embodied in the same deed, and the condition was to be regarded as an integral condition of the contract for sale providing the date for completion of the contract by satisfaction of the balance of the contract price, and not as a condition superadded to the transfer itself, and, therefore, the transfer was not defeated. It was held that there was nothing in section 31, which merely declared that a limitation upon a condition subsequent is a lawful method of grant, to exclude the right of the court to give relief to the vendee who failed to make payment of the price by the date agreed upon in the contract of sale.¹¹⁰⁵ In a case before the Orissa High Court,¹¹⁰⁶ the court was considering a lease to the defendants for the manufacture of salt which provided, inter alia, that the lease stood cancelled if the lessee did “any other business or manufacture of any other kind” on the land. The lessee used the lands for fishing, and the lessor purported to cancel the lease. The court held, relying on the illustrations to section 31, that:

a specified event contemplated under section 31 must be definite and specific and a wide and vague clause of the nature of “any other business” cannot be taken to be a specified event... . We may be inclined to agree if the condition was of the nature that if the lessee carry on business in fish or business in timber, it may come within the operation of the provisions of section 31. But the provisions of the lease being to the effect that if the lessees carry on any other business or manufacture, it cannot be taken to be a specified event¹¹⁰⁷ is Sed quaere, for the section does not prescribe a specific event, but merely specified events, i.e., the section requires that the uncertain event should be definitely and fully set out. In any event, it is difficult to see how the wide, but definite negative concept “any other business” is less specific than the positive examples mentioned.

[s 31.2] Condition Subsequent a Penalty

It has been held that if a condition subsequent involving forfeiture of an estate is in the nature of a penalty, it may be relieved against, and pecuniary compensation may be awarded for non-performance.¹¹⁰⁸

[s 31.3] Indian Succession Act, 1925

This section corresponds to section 134 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. Five illustrations are annexed to the section in the Indian Succession Act, 1925, of which the first and third are the same as those in this section. The others are:

- (ii) An estate is bequeathed to A, provided that, if he marries under the age of 25 without the consent of the executors named in the will, the estate shall cease to belong to him. A marries under 25 without the consent of the executors. The estate ceases to belong to him.

31. Condition that transfer shall cease to have effect in case specified uncertain event happens or does not happen.—

(iv) An estate is bequeathed to A, with a proviso that, if she becomes a nun, she shall cease to have any interest in the estate. A becomes a nun. She loses her interest under the will.

(v) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, after his death, to B, if B shall then be living, with a proviso that, if B shall become a nun, the bequest to her shall cease to have any effect. B becomes a nun in the life-time of A. She thereby loses her contingent interest in the fund.

1101 Venkatarama v Aiyasami, (1922) 43 Mad LJ 340 : 69 IC 673 : AIR 1923 Mad. 67 .

1102 Ambika Charan v Sasitara, (1915) 22 Cal LJ 61 : 30 IC 868; Bhoba v Peary Lal, (1897) ILR 24 Cal 646; Sirish Chandra v Kadambini, (1926) 44 Cal LJ 18 : 97 IC 685 : AIR 1926 Cal 1175 .

1103 Tin Cowri Dassee v Krishna, (1893) ILR 20 Cal 15; Re Hewett [\[1918\] 1 ChD 458](#)  : [\[1918-9\] All ER Rep 530](#) ; Re Whitfield [\[1911\] 1 ChD 310](#)  .

1104 Venkatarama v Aiyasami, (1922) 43 Mad LJ 340 : 69 IC 673 : AIR 1923 Mad. 67 .

1105 Devendra Prasad Sukul v Surendra Prasad Sukul, 63 IA 26 : AIR 1936 PC 24 .

1106 Krishna Chandra v National Chemical & Salt Works, AIR 1957 Ori. 35 [\[LNIND 1956 ORI 19\]](#) .

1107 Ibid, p 37.

1108 Munshi Lal v Ahmed Mirza Beg, (1933) ILR 8 Luck 707 : 144 IC 756 : AIR 1933 Oudh 291 .

32. Such condition must not be invalid.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

32. Such condition must not be invalid.—

In order that a condition that an interest shall cease to exist may be valid, it is necessary that the event to which it relates be one which could legally constitute the condition of the creation of an interest.

[s 32.1] Invalid Condition

If the condition is invalid, it cannot be set up as a condition precedent for crystallisation of the interest created.¹¹⁰⁹ This section is analogous to section 30. Under section 30, an invalid ulterior disposition will not affect a prior interest; and so under this section, an invalid condition subsequent will not divest the interest to which it is attached. A condition which is void as a condition precedent is also void as a condition subsequent.

ILLUSTRATION

A transfers his field to B with a proviso that if B does not within a year set fire to C's haystack his interest shall cease. The condition subsequent is invalid and B's interest is not affected.

Instances of conditions subsequently void as contrary to public policy, are a condition divesting the interest of a devisee if he enters the naval or military forces of his country;¹¹¹⁰ or a condition requiring the donee to obtain a title.¹¹¹¹

A condition that a person shall not become a Christian is valid.¹¹¹²

[s 32.2] Indian Succession Act

The corresponding section of the Indian Succession Act is section 135 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. If the condition is invalid, failure to comply with it does not involve forfeiture. Where a testator bequeathed an

32. Such condition must not be invalid.—

annuity to his wife which would, according to the terms of the will, be forfeited if she did not live in the family house which he intended to build, but died without building, the condition was void for impossibility and the widow was held to be entitled to the annuity, although she lived in her father's house.¹¹¹³

1109 Indu Kakkar v Haryana State Industrial Development Corp Ltd, (1999) 2 SCC 37 [LNIND 1998 SC 1066] : AIR 1999 SC 296 [LNIND 1998 SC 1066] .

1110 Re Beard, Reversionary & General Securities Ltd v Hall, [1908] 1 ChD 383  .

1111 Egenon v Brownlow, (Earl), (1854) 4 HL Cas 1.

1112 Hodgson v Halford, (1879) 11 ChD 959 .

1113 Satish Chandra v Sarat Subdari, 38 IC 103.

33. Transfer conditional on performance of act, no time being specified for performance.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

33. Transfer conditional on performance of act, no time being specified for performance.—

Where, on a transfer of property, an interest therein is created subject to a condition that the person taking it shall perform a certain act, but no time is specified for the performance of the act, the condition is broken when he renders impossible, permanently or for an indefinite period, the performance of the act.

[s 33.1] Time for Performance

When no time is fixed for the performance of a condition subsequent, it is broken not only when the person does an act which renders performance impossible, but also when he does an act by which performance is indefinitely postponed. This is explained by the second illustration to section 136 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, set out in the next paragraph.

[s 33.2] Indian Succession Act, 1925

The corresponding provision is section 136 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. The following illustrations are annexed to the section:

- (i) A bequest is made to A, with a proviso that, unless he enters the Army, the legacy shall go over to B. A takes Holy Orders, and thereby renders it impossible that he should fulfil the condition. B is entitled to receive the legacy.
- (ii) A bequest is made to A, with a proviso that it shall cease to have any effect if he does not marry B's daughter. A marries a stranger and thereby indefinitely postpones the fulfilment of the conditions. The bequest ceases to have effect.

33. Transfer conditional on performance of act, no time being specified for performance.—

The second illustration corresponds to the illustration to section 34 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

A testator bequeathed his property to his daughter's son, in the event of his widow dying without adopting a son, but the interest was conditional on the daughter's son residing in the family house. The daughter's son joined the widow in selling the house. This was a breach of the condition, and he was deprived of the interest given by the will.¹¹¹⁴

1114 Shyama Charan v Naba Chandra, (1912) 17 Cal WN 39 : 14 IC 708.

34. Transfer conditional on performance of act, time being specified.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(A\) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(A) Transfer of Property, whether moveable or immoveable

34. Transfer conditional on performance of act, time being specified.—

Where an act is to be performed by a person either as a condition to be fulfilled before an interest created on a transfer of property is enjoyed by him, or as a condition on the non-fulfilment of which the interest is to pass from him to another person, and a time is specified for the performance of the act, if such performance within the specified time is prevented by the fraud of a person who would be directly benefited by non-fulfilment of the condition, such further time shall as against him be allowed for performing the act as shall be requisite to make up for the delay caused by such fraud. But if no time is specified for the performance of the act, then, if its performance is by the fraud of a person interested in the non-fulfilment of the condition rendered impossible or indefinitely postponed, the condition shall as against him be deemed to have been fulfilled.

[s 34.1] Principle

The principle underlying this section is that no party can take advantage of his own fraud. If performance of a condition, whether subsequent or precedent, is prevented by a person interested in its non-fulfilment, the delay is excused, and the condition is discharged.

[s 34.2] Indian Succession Act, 1925

The corresponding section is section 137 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925.

In a case decided by Calcutta High Court,¹¹¹⁵ the testator directed that if any of the female members of his family lived for more than three months at any place other than a holy place, they would forfeit their interest under his will. The forfeiture was not incurred when they were forcibly removed by their relations.

34. Transfer conditional on performance of act, time being specified.—

End of Document

35. Election when necessary.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > ELECTION

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

ELECTION

35. Election when necessary.—

Where a person professes to transfer property which he has no right to transfer, and as part of the same transaction confers any benefit on the owner of the property, such owner must elect either to confirm such transfer or to dissent from it; and in the latter case he shall relinquish the benefit so conferred, and the benefit so relinquished shall revert to the transferor or his representative as if it had not been disposed of,

subject, nevertheless,

where the transfer is gratuitous, and the transferor has, before the election, died or otherwise become incapable of making a fresh transfer, and in all cases where the transfer is for consideration, to the charge of making good to the disappointed transferee the amount or value of the property attempted to be transferred to him.

ILLUSTRATIONS

The farm of Sultanpur is the property of C and worth ₹800. A by an instrument of gift professes to transfer it to B, giving by the same instrument ₹1,000 to C. C elects to retain the farm. He forfeits the gift of ₹1,000.

In the same case, A dies before the election. His representative must out of the ₹1,000 pay ₹800 to B.

The rule in the first paragraph of this section applies whether the transferor does or does not believe that which he professes the transfer to be his own.

A person taking no benefit directly under a transaction, but deriving a benefit under it indirectly, need not elect.

A person who in one capacity takes a benefit under the transaction may in another dissent therefrom.

Exception to the last preceding four rules.—Where a particular benefit is expressed to be conferred on the owner of the property which the transferor professes to transfer, and such benefit is expressed to be in lieu of that property, if such owner claims the property, he must relinquish the particular benefit, but he is not bound to relinquish any other benefit conferred upon him by the same transaction.

Acceptance of the benefit by the person on whom it is conferred constitutes an election by him to confirm the transfer, if he is aware of his duty to elect and of those circumstances which would influence the judgment of a reasonable man in making an election, or if he waives inquiry into the circumstances.

35. Election when necessary.—

Such knowledge or waiver shall, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, be presumed, if the person on whom the benefit has been conferred has enjoyed it for two years without doing any act to express dissent.

Such knowledge or waiver may be inferred from any act of his which renders it impossible to place the persons interested in the property professed to be transferred in the same condition as if such act had not been done.

ILLUSTRATION

A transfers to B an estate to which C is entitled, and as part of the same transaction gives C a coal-mine. C takes possession of the mine and exhausts it. He has thereby confirmed the transfer of the estate to B.

If he does not within one year after the date of the transfer signify to the transferor or his representatives his intention to confirm or to dissent from the transfer, the transferor or his representatives may, upon the expiration of that period, require him to make his election; and if he does not comply with such requisition within a reasonable time after he has received it, he shall be deemed to have elected to confirm the transfer.

In case of disability, the election shall be postponed until the disability ceases, or until the election is made by some competent authority.

[s 35.1] Election

The foundation of the doctrine of election is that a person taking the benefit of an instrument must also bear the burden,¹¹¹⁶ and that he cannot take under and against the same instrument.¹¹¹⁷ It is, therefore, a branch of the general rule that no one may approbate and reprobate.¹¹¹⁸ However, there must be a will or a deed which conveys title to a person in properties other than those belonging to himself, before he can be put to election. A surrender by a Hindu widow to her immediate reversioner does not amount to such conveyance, for on a surrender taking place the widow, by a legal fiction is assumed as dead and the reversioner takes the estate as the heir of the last full owner, and not as a transferee from the widow.¹¹¹⁹

The doctrine is based on intention to this extent that the law presumes that the author of an instrument intended to give effect to every part of it.¹¹²⁰

[s 35.2] Indian Succession Act, 1925

The rule of election as applied to wills is enacted in sections 180 to 190 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. The following illustrations under section 182 are instances of election:

- (i) The farm of Sultanpur was the property of C. A bequeathed it to B, giving a legacy of Rs 1,000 to C. C has elected to retain his farm of Sultanpur, which is worth Rs 800. C forfeits his legacy of Rs 1,000, of which Rs 800 goes to B, and the remaining Rs 200 falls into the residuary bequest, or devolves according to the rules of intestate succession, as the case may be.
- (ii) A bequeaths an estate to B in case B's elder brother (who is married and has children) shall leave no issue living at his death. A also bequeaths to C a jewel, which belongs to B. B must elect to give up the jewel or to lose the estate.
- (iii) A bequeaths to B Rs 1,000, and to C an estate which will, under a settlement, belong to B if his elder brother (who is married and has children) shall leave no issue living at his death. B must elect to give up the estate or to lose the legacy.
- (iv) A, a person of the age of 18, domiciled in British India but owning real property in England, to which C is heir at law, bequeaths a legacy to C and, subject thereto, devises and bequeaths to B "all my property whatsoever and wheresoever," and dies under 21. The real property in England does not pass by the will. C may claim his legacy without giving up the real property in England.

35. Election when necessary.—

The first illustration is almost identical with a Madras case,¹¹²¹ in which the testator bequeathed a field which belonged to his niece, to his grandson, and at the same time left his niece a legacy of ₹800. The court held that she must elect between the land or the legacy. The second and third illustrations show that the principle applies to all interests whether vested or contingent, immediate or remote.¹¹²²

[s 35.3] Pty Interest

A person is not put to his election, unless he has a proprietary interest in the property disposed of in derogation of his rights.¹¹²³ A creditor is not put to his election, for he has only a personal claim for payment by his debtor.¹¹²⁴ A bequest in the will of a Hindu that “my elder brother V’s self-acquisition to the extent of ₹10,000 is with me, so, that money should be given to him” was treated as a legacy in satisfaction of the debt, and V was not estopped from claiming it by the fact that he had tried and failed to recover the money as a debt.¹¹²⁵ In another case, the testator disposed of his property in favour of his wife and daughter, and then gave away “my own and my wife’s ornaments,” but the court held that this did not raise a question of election as the stridhan ornaments in which his wife had a proprietary interest were not included in the bequest.¹¹²⁶ If the property which the testator professes to dispose of does not belong to the other legatee, no question of election can of course, arise.¹¹²⁷

[s 35.4] Same Transaction

The equity of election does not apply, unless the two donations are part of the same transaction, for if the two are independent, the one which is in the power of the transferor will stand, while the other will fail. In Muhammad Afzal v Ghulam Kasim,¹¹²⁸ government on the death of the Nawab of Tank, when transferring the chiefship to the eldest son, transferred a portion of the cash allowance of the late Nawab to the second son on whom the late Nawab had already made a grant of two villages for maintenance. The Privy Council said that the second son was not put to his election, as the two grants came from independent sources. In another case, a Hindu widow made a gift in excess of her powers and subsequently left a will in the following terms: “Excluding the properties which I have already given away, I will make the following dispositions”. The Madras High Court held that the plaintiff taking under the will was not precluded by the doctrine of election from disputing the prior gift which was not the subject of the will at all.¹¹²⁹

Election may arise when the two donations are conferred by two different instruments, if the two instruments are used to carry out one transaction.¹¹³⁰

[s 35.5] Benefit

The doctrine can only apply if a benefit in the real sense is conferred by the instrument. Where by a will the testator purports to bequeath to his coparcener joint family property, such coparcener who would in any case have been entitled to such property, cannot be said to have derived any benefit under the will, and is not put to election.¹¹³¹

[s 35.6] Doctrine of Election not Available to Cure an Illegality

The doctrine of election cannot be resorted to in order to cure an illegality, and a gift which infringes the rule against perpetuities cannot be used to raise a case for election. A purported release by a Muslim daughter, which was void under section 6(a), cannot be saved by the doctrine of election, for that would amount to curing a manifest illegality.¹¹³² Illustration (iv) to section 182 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, cited in note 2 above, appears to be based on the supposition that a devise by an infant would in English law be a breach of the law, but it may be doubted whether in English law it would be considered as more than a case of incapacity to dispose of the land, in which case the heir would be put to his election. Not only will the doctrine of election not cure an illegality, but as election is a doctrine of equity it will not be applied so as to lead to inequitable results.¹¹³³

[s 35.7] Revert to the Transferor

35. Election when necessary.—

The doctrine in India rests on forfeiture, and the disappointed donee looks to the transferor to compensate him by a charge on the property that has reverted to him. There is no occasion for a charge if the transferor survives and the transfer is gratuitous, for it is open to the transferor to make a substituted gift.

[s 35.8] Belief of the Transferor

The second para corresponds to section 182 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. As already stated, the principle may refer to the implied intention of the testator, but it is not necessary that he should have had in mind the equitable principle of election.¹¹³⁴ It does not matter whether the transferor thought he had the power to convey, or knowing the extent of his authority, intended by an arbitrary execution of power to exceed it.¹¹³⁵ To quote the words of Lord Alvanley “nothing can be more dangerous than to speculate upon what he would have done, if he had known one thing or another”.¹¹³⁶ It is not, therefore, necessary that the author of the instrument should have known that the property did not belong to him or that he intended to put the donee to an election. However, this intention may be expressed, and then the condition is a condition precedent which must be literally performed. This is the case in the exception discussed in note (11) below.

[s 35.9] Indirect Benefit

The third para corresponds to section 184 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 (section 171, Indian Succession Act, 1865).

The section is explained by the following illustration:

The lands of Sultanpur are settled upon C for life, and after his death upon D, his only child. A bequeaths the lands of Sultanpur to B, and 1,000 rupees to C. C dies intestate shortly after the testator, and without having made any election. D takes out administration to C, and as administrator elects on behalf of C's estate to take under the will. In that capacity he receives the legacy of 1,000 rupees and accounts to B for the rents of the lands of Sultanpur which accrued after the death of the testator and before the death of C. In his individual character he retains the lands of Sultanpur in opposition to the will.

On the same principle, it has been held in England that a man may be tenant by courtesy of an estate tail held by his wife in opposition to a will under which he accepts a legacy.¹¹³⁷ The interest which the husband takes in such a case is an incident of the property of his wife, and not a benefit conferred by the transferor so as to raise a case for election.

[s 35.10] Different Capacity

The fourth para corresponds with the first part of section 185 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, which is explained by the following illustration:

The estate of Sultanpur is settled upon A for life, and after his death, upon B. A leaves the estate of Sultanpur to D, and 2,000 rupees to B, and 1,000 rupees to C, who is B's only child. B dies intestate, shortly after the testator, without having made an election. C takes out administration to B, and as administrator elects to keep the estate of Sultanpur in opposition to the will, and to relinquish the legacy of 2,000 rupees. C may do this, and yet claim the legacy of 1,000 rupees under the will.

35. Election when necessary.—

An administrator or trustee may take a benefit qua administrator for the benefit of the estate, or of the beneficiary, and take a benefit for himself without being put to an election. No question of election can arise merely because owing to circumstances two capacities have merged in one person.¹¹³⁸

[s 35.11] Exception

The exception corresponds to the second part of section 186 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, where it is explained by the following illustration:

Under A's marriage settlement, his wife is entitled, if she survives him, to the enjoyment of the estate of Sultanpur during her life. A, by his will bequeaths to his wife an annuity of 200 rupees during her life, in lieu other interest in the estate of Sultanpur, which estate he bequeaths to his son. He also gives his wife a legacy of 1,000 rupees. The widow elects to take what she is entitled to under the settlement. She is bound to relinquish the annuity but not the legacy of 1,000 rupees.

Section 172 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, (corresponding to section 186 of the 1925 Act) was referred to in a Calcutta case,¹¹³⁹ in which a testator bequeathed to his nephew all his property including the share of his brother's widow, and made a provision for the widow's maintenance. The widow recovered the maintenance allowance by suit, and it was held that a subsequent suit for her share of the property was barred by section 172, as she must have known that the allowance was given to her in lieu of other share of the property.

[s 35.12] Acceptance

The fifth para corresponds to section 187 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, which is explained by the following illustrations:

- (i) A is the owner of an estate called Sultanpur Khurd, and has a life interest in another estate called Sultanpur Buzurg to which upon his death his son B will be absolutely entitled. The will of A gives the estate of Sultanpur Khurd to B, and the estate of Sultanpur Buzurg to C. B, in ignorance of his own right to the estate of Sultanpur Buzurg, allows C to take possession of it, and enters into possession of the estate of Sultanpur Khurd. B has not confirmed the bequest of Sultanpur Buzurg to C.
- (ii) B, the eldest son of A, is the possessor of an estate called Sultanpur, A bequeaths Sultanpur to C, and to B the residue of A's property. B having been informed by A's executors that the residue will amount to Rs 5,000, allows C to take possession of Sultanpur. He afterwards discovers that the residue does not amount to more than Rs 500. B has not confirmed the bequest of the estate of Sultanpur to C.

Acceptance of a benefit implies an election,¹¹⁴⁰ but as in English law, there is no implied election except by a party who has full knowledge of the circumstances that would influence the judgment of a reasonable man making the election, and with that knowledge determines to elect.¹¹⁴¹ He waives the inquiry into the circumstances if he wilfully abstains from inquiring into them so that he is affected with constructive notice of them. An election made with full knowledge is final;¹¹⁴² but an election made without such knowledge may be revoked by the representatives of the electing party.¹¹⁴³ Cases have arisen in India in connection with bequests to pardanashin women, and it has been held that it must be proved that they were fully aware of their rights when the acts were done which are said to constitute an election.¹¹⁴⁴ In Sadik Husain v Hashim Ali,¹¹⁴⁵ a Mahomedan executed a voluntary trust deed settling property on his wife in satisfaction of her claim for dower, and the Privy Council observed that "if she was never fully informed of its purport and contents, any election by her to accept the provision made for herself and her children by it in discharge of the unpaid balance of her dower would, of course, be of no avail.”

35. Election when necessary.—

[s 35.13] Two Years’ Enjoyment

The sixth para corresponds to section 188(1) of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. The presumption may be rebutted. A widow who enjoyed a provision made for her under a will in ignorance of her right of dower was held entitled to elect after a lapse of 16 years.¹¹⁴⁶ When the person who has to elect is in possession of both estates, no presumption can be drawn.¹¹⁴⁷

[s 35.14] Status Quo cannot be Restored

The seventh para corresponds with section 188(2) of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. It is sufficiently explained by the illustration to the exception. The section permits an inference of knowledge which may be rebutted by circumstances.

[s 35.15] Time for Election

The eighth para corresponds with section 189 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. If a time is fixed by the instrument, and the party makes default, he is deemed to have elected against the instrument.¹¹⁴⁸

[s 35.16] Disability

The ninth para corresponds with section 190 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925. A minor’s election may be postponed until his majority, or his guardian may elect for him.

[s 35.17] Ratification

Cases of ratification must be distinguished from cases of election. For, ratification properly speaking, refers to acts done on behalf of the ratifier. If done without authority, the principal may elect either to ratify, or to disown them. This has been laid down in section 196 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872. The doctrine of ratification rests, however, on the same principle that a man cannot both affirm and disaffirm the same transaction. Thus, when a widow who had a life-estate for maintenance granted a permanent lease, the reversioner could elect either to ratify it, or to set it aside; and it was held that he was not bound by the lease when he accepted rent for three years in ignorance of the circumstances under which the lease was granted or the terms on which it was held.¹¹⁴⁹ A converse case is *Modhu Sudan v Rooke*¹¹⁵⁰ where the reversioner accepted rent with full knowledge that the widow had granted a patni lease, and he was held to have elected to ratify the lease.

[s 35.18] Hindu Law

The section now applies to Hindus, but the principle has always applied. In Rungama v Atchama,¹¹⁵¹ the Privy Council referred to the “principle not peculiar to English law, but common to all law which is based on the rules of justice, viz, the principle that a party shall not at the same time affirm and disaffirm the same transaction—affirm it as far as it is for his benefit and disaffirm it as far as it is to his prejudice.”

In Shah Mukhun Lal v Sree Kishen Singh,¹¹⁵² the Privy Council said that the principle that you cannot both approbate and reprobate the same transaction was a “maxim founded, not so much on any positive law, as on the broad and universally applicable principles of justice”. The doctrine was directly applied in the case of Mangaldas v Runchhoddas.¹¹⁵³ A Hindu widow devised to K immovable property of her husband and gave the plaintiff, a reversionary heir, a legacy of ₹2000. The plaintiff claimed the legacy under the will and the immovable property as heir. The court said that the doctrine of election applied, and that he must elect to take the one or the other.

[s 35.19] Mahomedan Law

The doctrine of election was applied to Mahomedans by the Privy Council in the case of Sadik Husain v Hashim Ali.¹¹⁵⁴

35. Election when necessary.—

- 1116 Codrington v Lindsay, \(1873\) 8 ChD 578 ; Pickersgill v Rodger, \(1876\) 5 ChD 163.
- 1117 Beepathumma (C) v V S Kadambolithaya, [1964] 5 SCR 836, p 850 : AIR 1965 SC 241; Dillon v Parker, (1818) 1 Swan 359, p 394.
- 1118 Beepathumma (C) v VS Kadambolithaya, [1964] 5 SCR 836; Codrington v Codrington, \(1875\) 7 HL 854, p 861.
- 1119 Venkatarayudu v Narayana, (1941) ILR Mad 551 : (1941) Mad LJ 309 : 53 Mad LW 264 : (1941) Mad WN 208 : AIR 1941 Mad. 430 [LNIND 1940 MAD 402].
- 1120 Re Vardon's Trusts \(1885\) 31 ChD 275, p 279.
- 1121 Ammalu Achi v Ponammal, (1919) Mad WN 144 : 36 Mad LJ 507 : 49 IC 527.
- 1122 Wilson v Townshend, (Lord), (1794) 2 Ves 693, p 697; Cooper v Cooper, \(1871\) 6 ChD 15 , p 21.
- 1123 Dhanpatti v Devi Prasad, (1970) 3 SCC 779; Mahomed Ali v Nissar Ali, 109 IC 835 : AIR 1928 Oudh 67, p 82.
- 1124 Cooper v Cooper, \(1874\) 7 HL 53, pp 66, 72.
- 1125 Rajamannar v Venkata Krishnayya, (1902) ILR 25 Mad 361, p 363.
- 1126 Mamubai v Dossa, (1891) ILR 15 Bom 443.
- 1127 Kamal Kumari v Narendra Nath, (1909) 9 Cal LJ 19 : 1 IC 573.
- 1128 Muhammad Afzal v Ghulam Kasim, (1903) ILR 30 Cal 843 : 30 IA 190.
- 1129 Ramayyar v Mahalaxmi, (1921) Mad WN 434 : 64 IC 481 : AIR 1922 Mad. 357, p 358.
- 1130 Bacon v Cosby, (1851) 4 De G & Sm 261.
- 1131 Valliammai v Nagappa, [1967] 2 SCR 448 [LNIND 1967 SC 17] : AIR 1967 SC 1153 [LNIND 1967 SC 17] : [1968] 1 SCJ 347 [LNIND 1967 SC 17].
- 1132 Abdul Kafoor v Abdul Razack, (1958) 2 Mad LJ 492 : AIR 1959 Mad. 131 [LNIND 1958 MAD 44].
- 1133 Brown v Gregson, [\[1920\] AC 860](#) : [\[1920\] All ER Rep 730](#).
- 1134 Cooper v Cooper, \(1874\) 7 HL 53, p 67.
- 1135 Thellusson v Woodford, [1806] 13 Ves 209; Parker v Sowerby, (1854) 4 De GM & G 321.
- 1136 Whistler v Webster, [1794] 2 Ves 367, p 370.
- 1137 Cavan v Puley, [1795] 2 Ves 544; Grissel v Swinhoe, \(1869\) 7 Eq 291, explained in Cooper v Cooper, \(1874\) 7 HL 53.
- 1138 Deputy Commr of Partabgarh v Ram Sarup, (1917) 20 OC 243 : 42 IC 18.
- 1139 Pramada Dasi v Lakhi Narain Mitter, (1888) ILR 12 Cal 60.
- 1140 Beepathumma (C) v VS Kadambolithaya, [1964] 5 SCR 836 : AIR 1965 SC 241.
- 1141 Dillon v Parker, (1819) 1 Swan 359, p 382; Worthington v Wiginton, (1885) 20 Beav 67; Wilson v Thornbury, \(1875\) 10 ChD 239 .
- 1142 Dewar v Maitland, [\[1866\] 2 Eq 834](#).
- 1143 Kidney v Coussmaker, (1806) 12 Ves 136.
- 1144 Triguna Sundari v Radharani, (1923) 37 Cal LJ 20; Indubala v Manmatha, (1925) 41 Cal LJ 258 : 87 IC 404 : AIR 1925 Cal 724.
- 1145 Sadik Husain v Hashim Ali, 43 IA 212, p 230 : (1916) ILR 38 All 627 : 36 IC 104.
- 1146 Sopwith v Maughan, (1861) 30 Beav 235.
- 1147 Padbury v Clark, (1850) 2 Mac & G 298.
- 1148 Dillon v Parker, (1818) 1 Swan, 359, p 385.
- 1149 Gopi Koei v Raj Roop, 78 IC 191 : AIR 1925 All 190.

35. Election when necessary.—

- 1150 Modhu Sudan v Rooke, (1898) ILR 25 Cal 1 : 24 IA 164.
- 1151 Rungama v Atchama, (1858) 4 Mad IA 1 : 7 WR 57.
- 1152 Shah Mukhun Lal v Sree Kishen Singh, (1869) 12 Mad IA 157, p 186 : 2 Beng LR 44 : 11 WR 19.
- 1153 Mangaldas v Runchhoddas, (1890) ILR 14 Bom 438.
- 1154 Sadik Husain v Hashim Ali, (1916) ILR 38 All 627 : 43 IA 212 : 36 IC 104.

36. Apportionment of periodical payments on determination of interest of person entitled.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > Apportionment

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

Apportionment

36. Apportionment of periodical payments on determination of interest of person entitled.—

In the absence of a contract or local usage to the contrary, all rents, annuities, pensions, dividends and other periodical payments in the nature of income shall, upon the transfer of the interest of the person entitled to receive such payments, be deemed, as between the transferor and the transferee, to accrue due from day to day, and to be apportionable accordingly, but to be payable on the days appointed for the payment thereof.

[s 36.1] Apportionment by Time

This section refers to apportionment by time, while the whole of section 37 refers to apportionment by estate.

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A has let his house at a rent of ₹100 payable on the last day of each month. A sells the house to B on 15 June. On 30 June, A is entitled to ₹50 rent from the 1st to 15th and B is entitled to ₹50 rent from 15th to 30th June. This is apportionment by time.

(2) A has let his house at a rent of ₹100. A sells half the house to B. The tenant having notice of the sale must pay from the date of the sale, rent at the rate of ₹50 to A and ₹50 to B. This is apportionment by estate.

On a transfer of property yielding income, section 8 provides that the transferee is entitled to the interest or income accruing after the transfer takes effect. The interest has in such cases to be divided between the transferor and the transferee. There is no difficulty in respect of interest, for that accrues from day to day. But as to income which does not accrue de die in diem, the rule in section 8 might lead to anomalous results. For instance, rents do not accrue from day to day, but at stated periods,¹¹⁵⁵ and if the rent for the year was payable the day after the transfer, the transferee would be entitled to the whole year's rent. To remove this anomaly, the section enacts that all periodical payments in the nature of rent, annuities, dividends and pensions shall be deemed to accrue from day to day, and be apportioned between the transferor and transferee on that basis.

36. Apportionment of periodical payments on determination of interest of person entitled.—

[s 36.2] Scope of the Indian Rule

The Indian rule is limited, for it is restricted to transfer inter vivos, and does not apply to liabilities. The apportionment which the section contemplates is one following the transfer of the interest of the person entitled to receive the rent, and not the transfer of the interest of the person bound to pay it.¹¹⁵⁶ A lessor transferring his interest to the assignee of the lessee is entitled to an apportionment of rent upto the date of the merger.¹¹⁵⁷ When a decree is passed for the redemption of a mortgage, the apportionment of the rents of the mortgaged property is made as from the date when money is paid for redemption, and not from the date of the decree.¹¹⁵⁸

The section does not apply to transfers by operation of law as these are excluded by section 2(d). A purchaser at an execution sale acquires title by operation of law, and the rule of apportionment does not apply to execution sales.¹¹⁵⁹

ILLUSTRATION

A mortgagee brought the mortgaged property to sale and bought the property himself at the court sale in November 1922. The rent for the year was payable on 1 April 1923. The mortgagor claimed that the rent should be apportioned and that he should receive the rent from 1 April 1922 till November 1922. But as it was an execution sale section 36 did not apply, and the mortgagee was held to be entitled to the whole year's rent payable on 1 April 1923.¹¹⁶⁰

Similarly, it has been held that section 36 does not apply to cases of partition, for a partition is not a "transfer";¹¹⁶¹ nor can the principle of the section be applied to such cases as, unlike cases of execution sales or succession where the transferee acquires a right to the property by the transaction, in the case of a partition, the person to whom a particular portion is allotted always had a right in that portion.¹¹⁶²

Prepaid rent is not rent, but a loan.¹¹⁶³

The section is applicable only between the transferor and transferee.¹¹⁶⁴

[s 36.3] No rule of Apportionment in the Act Apart from Section

These limitations on the section have not always been observed. In one case¹¹⁶⁵ the lessor had only a life interest, and died a month before the rent of the half year was payable. Here there was no question of a transfer, and yet the assignee of the lessor was held to be entitled to an apportionment of rent for the period up to the death of the lessor. Again, in another case¹¹⁶⁶ the liability to pay rent was apportioned between the lessee and his assignee, and in a third case¹¹⁶⁷ the rule of apportionment was applied between a lessor and the purchaser of his interest at an execution sale. This decision has been followed by the Madras High Court.¹¹⁶⁸ The rule has also been applied in the case of devolution of interest on succession.¹¹⁶⁹ In all these cases the rule was applied as an equity. It is submitted, however, that this is erroneous, and that there is no such equity. A general rule of apportionment by time was then introduced by statute. The Indian rule is limited to transfers inter vivos.

36. Apportionment of periodical payments on determination of interest of person entitled.—

[s 36.4] Maintenance

A Hindu widow's right to maintenance accrues from day to day. Therefore, on the death of a Hindu widow, her heirs are entitled to recover the maintenance allowance upto the day of her death, although the allowance has, for the convenience of the parties, been expressed to be payable on a fixed date.¹¹⁷⁰

[s 36.5] "Other Periodical Payment"

The same expression is used in the English Apportionment Act, 1870 and as to it, Lord Selbourne said—"They must be payments which are made periodically, recurring at fixed times, not at variable periods, nor in the exercise of the discretion of one or more individuals, but from some antecedent obligation; and, further, they must be in the nature of income; that is, coming in from some kind of investment".¹¹⁷¹ The expression does not, therefore, include the profits of a partnership which accrue only after the adjustment of accounts,¹¹⁷² nor the profits in a share of a village.¹¹⁷³

Whenever there are periodical payments accruing, and the event which calls for apportionment occurs, the TP Act, 1882 is at once brought into operation and must be applied, and when subsequently the accruing payments become due and payable, they must be distributed in accordance with the TP Act, 1882.¹¹⁷⁴

[s 36.6] Sums Due Before the Event

Sums due in advance and due before the event which calls for apportionment are not apportioned. So where rent was payable quarterly in advance, and the landlord re-entered for non-payment of rent during the quarter, he was entitled to recover the whole rent.¹¹⁷⁵

[s 36.7] Payable

The section makes it clear that the apportionment does not affect the date when the payment is to be made by the person liable. Thus, if under a lease, rent is payable at the end of the year, an assignment by the lessor of his interest in the middle of the year will result in the transferor and the transferee being each entitled to half the rent, but the lessee still remains liable to pay only at the end of the year.¹¹⁷⁶

[s 36.8] Contract or Local Usage

The rule may be excluded by contract or local usage. Similarly, where a managing agent assigned his entire interest in the agency, the court inferred a contract to the contrary, and the transferor had no right to the commission for the period prior to the date of transfer.¹¹⁷⁷

In the case of agricultural rents, the Allahabad High Court makes the apportionment with reference not to the rent of the whole year, but with reference to the rent of the season in which the crop was reaped.¹¹⁷⁸ In a Rangoon case,¹¹⁷⁹ the court observed that agricultural rents are not apportionable as they accrue once and for all when the crops are reaped, and do not accrue from day to day. This, it would appear, is not correct, for it is precisely because rents do not accrue from day to day that the rule of apportionment has been applied to them by this section. A similar observation as to agricultural rents occurs in a Calcutta case,¹¹⁸⁰ but there the apportionment was by estate, and the reference to section 36 seems to have been a mistake. Agricultural rents are excepted from the operation of section 37, but are subject to apportionment by time under section 36.

Under section 225 of the Agra Tenancy Act (Uttar Pradesh Act 3 of 1936) agricultural profits were divisible on fixed dates between the co-sharers. However, on the principle of this section it has been held that the co-sharer's right accrues from day to day. Therefore, his suit for a share of the profits is not premature if filed before the fixed date, and the amount due at the date of suit can be ascertained by apportionment.¹¹⁸¹

36. Apportionment of periodical payments on determination of interest of person entitled.—

-
- 1155 Satyendra Nath v Nilkantha, (1894) ILR 21 Cal 383.
- 1156 Satyendra Nath v Nilkantha, (1894) ILR 21 Cal 383.
- 1157 Mikram Mumar v Mohit Krishna, 64 IC 178.
- 1158 Lala Ganga Ram v Mewa Ram, AIR 1922 All 275 .
- 1159 Subbaraju v Seetharamaraju, (1916) ILR 39 Mad 283 : 28 IC 232; Satyendra Nath v Nilkantha, (1894) ILR 21 Cal 383.
- 1160 U Kyaw Zan v Ah Doe, 84 IC 77 : AIR 1924 Rang 365 ; Subbaraju v Seetharamaraju, (1916) ILR 39 Mad 283.
- 1161 See note under section 5.
- 1162 Manmad Kunhi v Ibrayni Haji, AIR 1959 Ker. 208 [LNIND 1958 KER 48] .
- 1163 De Nicholls v Saunders, (1870) LR 5 CP 589; See also note under section 50 “Rent paid in advance”.
- 1164 Satyabhamadevi v Ram Kishore, AIR 1975 MP 115 [LNIND 1974 MP 59] .
- 1165 Lakshminaranappa v Melothraman, (1903) ILR 26 Mad 540.
- 1166 Kunhi Sou v Mulloli Chathu, (1915) ILR 38 Mad 86 : 17 IC 933.
- 1167 Rangiah Chetty v Vajravelu, (1918) ILR 41 Mad 370 : 43 IC 78; Poongavanam v Subramanya, (1951) 1 Mad LJ 69 : AIR 1951 Mad. 601 [LNIND 1950 MAD 141] .
- 1168 Sendattikalai Pandia v Sanjili Veerappa, (1937) ILR Mad 589; YS David v Bangarth Rangaraju, AIR 1944 Mad. 568 [LNIND 1944 MAD 119] .
- 1169 Aparna Debi v Sree Sree Shiba Prasad, (1924) ILR 3 Pat 367 : 83 IC 623 : AIR 1924 Pat. 451 ; Mahomed Ashkar v Mahomed Abdul, 101 IC 91 : AIR 1927 Oudh 605 ; Shivaprasad v Prayag Kumari, (1934) ILR 61 Cal 711 : 154 IC 479 : AIR 1935 Cal 39 .
- 1170 Rangappa v Shiva, (1933) 65 Mad LJ 410 : 145 IC 961 : AIR 1933 Mad. 699 [LNIND 1933 MAD 134] .
- 1171 Jones v Ogle, (1872) 8 ChD App 192, p 198.
- 1172 Ibid; Cox’s Trusts, \(1878\) 9 ChD 159 .
- 1173 Gobind Rao v Bhagirathi, (1901) 14 CP LR 84.
- 1174 Re Muirhead Muirhead v Hill, [\[1916\] 2 ChD 181](#) : [1917] All ER Rep 771 .
- 1175 Ellis v Rowbotham, [\[1900\] 1 QB 740](#) : [\[1900-3\] All ER Rep 299](#) .
- 1176 Lala Ganga Ram v Mewa Ram, AIR 1922 All 275 ; Satyabhamadevi v Ram Kishore, AIR 1975 MP 115 [LNIND 1974 MP 59] .
- 1177 ED Sassoon & Co v CIT, [1955] 1 SCR 313 [LNIND 1954 SC 94] , p 358 : AIR 1954 SC 470 [LNIND 1954 SC 94] : [1954] SCJ 771 .
- 1178 Nand Kishore v Ram Sarup, (1928) ILR 50 All 18 : 102 IC 144 : AIR 1927 All 569 .
- 1179 Ma Hawa Bi v Sein Ko, (1927) ILR 5 Rang 803 : 109 IC 151 : AIR 1928 Rang 67 .
- 1180 Satva Bhupal v Rajnandini, (1924) 28 Cal WN 1039 : 83 IC 144 : AIR 1924 Cal 1069 .
- 1181 Mahommad Abdul Jalil Khan v Mahommed Abdul Salem Khan, (1932) All LJ 93 : 137 IC 166 : AIR 1932 All 178 .

37. Apportionment of benefit of obligation on severance.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > Apportionment

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

Apportionment

37. Apportionment of benefit of obligation on severance.—

When, in consequence of a transfer, property is divided and held in several shares, and thereupon the benefit of any obligation relating to the property as a whole passes from one to several owners of the property, the corresponding duty shall, in the absence of a contract to the contrary amongst the owners, be performed in favour of each of such owners in proportion to the value of his share in the property, provided that the duty can be severed and that the severance does not substantially increase the burden of the obligation; but if the duty cannot be severed, or if the severance would substantially increase the burden of the obligation the duty shall be performed for the benefit of such one of the several owners as they shall jointly designate for that purpose:

Provided that no person on whom the burden of the obligation lies shall be answerable for failure to discharge it in a manner provided by this section, unless and until he has had reasonable notice of the severance.

Nothing in this section applies to leases for agricultural purposes unless and until the State Government by notification in the Official Gazette so directs.

ILLUSTRATION

(a) A sells to B, C and D a house situated in a village and leased to E at an annual rent of ₹30 and delivery of one fat sheep, B having provided half the purchase-money, and C and D one quarter each. E, having notice of this, must pay ₹15 to B, ₹7.50 to C, and ₹7.50; to D, and must deliver the sheep according to the joint direction of B, C and D.

(b) In the same case, each house in the village being bound to provide 10 days' labour each year on a dyke to prevent inundation, E had agreed as a term of his lease to perform this work for A. B, C and D severally require E to perform the 10 days' work due on account of the house of each. E is not bound to do more than 10 days' work in all, according to such directions as B, C and D may join in giving.

[s 37.1] Apportionment by Estate

This section refers to apportionment by estate, while the last section dealt with apportionment by time.

37. Apportionment of benefit of obligation on severance.—

Prior to the TP Act, 1882, when a tenure was severed by the sale of shares in the reversion, the tenant was still obliged to pay the rent to all the sharers jointly, unless an apportionment had been agreed to by all the parties, or had been ordered in a suit to which all concerned were parties.¹¹⁸² If such an agreement had been arrived at, it was binding on the tenant.¹¹⁸³

However, under the present section, notice to the tenant is sufficient to convert the single obligation to pay rent to all into a several obligation to pay rent to each co-sharer. On receipt of the notice, the tenant is under an obligation to pay each sharer his proportionate part of the rent;¹¹⁸⁴ but if a suit is necessary to enforce this obligation, it is still necessary to join all the sharers as parties.¹¹⁸⁵ If no apportionment is made, the obligation remains single, and the lessor will not be allowed to split the tenancy by recovering the rent of a part only;¹¹⁸⁶ nor can a purchaser of a part insist on payment of rent of his part only.¹¹⁸⁷

If a putnidar pays the land revenue payable to the zamindar direct to the treasury, that is a payment which can be apportioned between the co-sharers in the zamindari.¹¹⁸⁸ If an estate consisting of several villages is apportioned, the division should be made according to the existing rents, and not those at the creation of the original tenure.¹¹⁸⁹ Provision is also made in section 109 for apportionment of rent by agreement between all parties. Payment of rent by a tenant in good faith and without notice of a transfer is protected by section 50.

[s 37.2] Benefit of any Obligation

Rent is not the only instance of the benefit of an obligation attached to property, which is capable of being apportioned. When the lessor sells portions of the property leased, the covenants which run with the land run with the severed portions. The lessee is bound to perform the various obligations imposed upon him in favour of each sharer in the reversion, so far as such obligations are capable of severance, and such performance will not be to his prejudice.¹¹⁹⁰

[s 37.3] Does not Substantially Increase the Burden

This condition is the subject of the second illustration. There is a similar provision in section 30 of the Easements Act, 1882, that the severance into shares of the dominant heritage should not increase the burden on the servient heritage. The principle may be illustrated by a case which is not, however, within the section. An agricultural holding fell to be divided so that the fields were allotted to one co-owner and the appurtenant farmhouse in the abadi to another. The tenant was still entitled to continue to occupy the farmhouse, rent free.¹¹⁹¹

[s 37.4] Provided that the Duty can be Severed

It must of course be possible to perform the duty separately, otherwise it must be performed jointly. This is explained in the first illustration where the duty to deliver a sheep cannot be severed.

[s 37.5] Notice

Notice may be given by the assignor or by the assignee.¹¹⁹² The notice has of course no bearing on the title of the assignee.

[s 37.6] Section not Applicable

The section is subject to section 2(d) and is, therefore, not applicable to involuntary transfers or to cases of succession. The heirs of deceased creditors are only jointly entitled to enforce the right which the deceased, if alive, could singly enforce.¹¹⁹³

37. Apportionment of benefit of obligation on severance.—

[s 37.7] Agricultural Tenancies

These tenancies have been exempted, as the severance of the obligation to pay rent would cause much harassment to agriculturists.¹¹⁹⁴

-
- 1182 Ishwar Chunder v Ram Krishna Dass, (1890) ILR 5 Cal 902; Guni Mahomed v Moran, (1879) ILR 4 Cal 96; Sreenath v Mohesh, (1878) 1 Cal LR 453 .
- 1183 Lootfulhuck v Gopee Chunder, (1880) ILR 5 Cal 941.
- 1184 Sri Raja Simhadri v Prattipatti Ramayya, (1908) ILR 29 Mad 29.
- 1185 Prem Chand v Mokshoda Debi, (1887) ILR 14 Cal 201; Pergash Lal v Akhowri, (1892) ILR 19 Cal 735; Rajnarain v Ekadasi Bag, (1900) ILR 27 Cal 479.
- 1186 Satyesh v Jillar Rahman, (1918) 27 Cal LJ 438 : 45 IC 721.
- 1187 Maharaja Keshava Prasad v Mathura Kuar, 69 IC 704 : AIR 1922 Pat. 608 .
- 1188 Gour Gopal v Gosta Behari, (1917) 21 Cal WN 214 : 34 IC 409.
- 1189 Hari Kishun v Tilukdhari, (1903) 7 Cal WN 453.
- 1190 Sri Raja Simhadri v Prattipatti, (1908) ILR 29 Mad 29, p 36; Godai Mahto v Debu, 145 IC 287 : AIR 1933 Pat. 248 .
- 1191 Saddu v Bihari, (1908) ILR 30 All 282.
- 1192 Peary Lal v Madhoji, (1913) 17 Cal LJ 372 : 19 IC 865.
- 1193 Kandhiya Lal v Chandar, (1885) ILR 7 All 313; Ahinsa v Abdul Kader, (1902) ILR 25 Mad 26, p 34.
- 1194 Alimuddin v Hira Lall, (1896) ILR 23 Cal 87.

38. Transfer by person authorised only under certain circumstances to transfer.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > (B)
TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

38. Transfer by person authorised only under certain circumstances to transfer.—

Where any person, authorised only under circumstances in their nature variable to dispose off immovable property, transfers such property for consideration, alleging the existence of such circumstances, they shall, as between the transferee on the one part and the transferor and other persons (if any) affected by the transfer on the other part, be deemed to have existed, if the transferee, after using reasonable care to ascertain the existence of such circumstances, has acted in good faith.

ILLUSTRATION

A, a Hindu widow, whose husband has left collateral heirs, alleging that the property held by her as such is insufficient for her maintenance, agrees, for purposes neither religious nor charitable to sell a field, part of such property, to B. B satisfies himself by reasonable enquiry that the income of the property is insufficient for A's maintenance, and that the sale of the field is necessary, and acting in good faith, buys the field from A. As between B on the one part and A and the collateral heirs on the other part, a necessity for the sale shall be deemed to have existed.

[s 38.1] Rest of Chapter II Applies to Immovable Property only

This group of sections, i.e., sections 38 to 53, applies to immovable property only. The preceding group, i.e., sections 33 to 37, applies both to immovable and movable property.

[s 38.2] Ltd Power of Transfer

The scope of this section is very restricted. It does not apply to cases falling under section 41 of benamidars or ostensible owners who can give no title except by estoppel; nor to cases under section 64 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, of persons purchasing in good faith for consideration without notice of a trust. However, it refers to cases such as those arising under Hindu law where the power of transfer of the person representing the estate depends upon circumstances in their nature variable. Thus, a Hindu widow under the classical Hindu law had no power to dispose of immovable property except for purposes which the Hindu law recognises as constituting legal necessity. The manager of a joint Hindu family has power to sell or mortgage joint family property only for purposes of legal necessity, or for debts incurred in the family business, or for the benefit of the estate. The father of a joint Hindu family may sell or mortgage joint family property to discharge his own antecedent debt not incurred for an immoral or an illegal purpose. So also, the natural guardian of a Hindu minor has power to sell or mortgage any part of the minor's estate in case of necessity or for the benefit of the estate. A transfer in excess of such limited power is voidable, but the transferee is protected if he has made inquiries with reasonable care, and has acted honestly in the real belief that there were justifying circumstances.

38. Transfer by person authorised only under certain circumstances to transfer.—

The section would appear to be based on the leading case of Hunnooman Persaud v Babooe,¹¹⁹⁵ and particularly the following passage:

The power of a manager for an infant heir to charge an estate not his own, is under the Hindu law, a limited and qualified power. It can only be exercised rightly in case of need, or for the benefit of the estate...The actual pressure on the estate, the danger to be averted, or the benefit to be conferred upon it, in the particular instance, is the thing to be regarded...Their Lordships think that the lender is bound to inquire into the necessities for the loan, and to satisfy himself as well as he can, with reference to the parties with whom he is dealing, that the manager is acting in the particular instance for the benefit of the estate. But they think that if he does so inquire, and acts honestly, the real existence of an alleged sufficient and reasonably-credited necessity is not a condition precedent to the validity of his charge, and they do not think that under such circumstances, he is bound to see to the application of the money.

This principle applies not only to the case of a manager for an infant, but also to alienations by a Hindu widow under the classical Hindu law, or other limited heir,¹¹⁹⁶ and to transactions in which a father in derogation of the rights of his son under Mitakshara law has made an alienation of an ancestral family estate.¹¹⁹⁷ Thus, where upon a settlement made by a Hindu widow, she retained a portion of land for her maintenance in which she had only a life interest and transferred the rest of the property, a sale by her during her lifetime of the life interest would be void.¹¹⁹⁸ It also applies to alienations by a mohunt or shebait of debtor property.¹¹⁹⁹ An executor under pure Hindu law has no greater powers than the manager of a minor's estate.¹²⁰⁰

[s 38.3] Circumstances in their Nature Variable

This expression refers, in cases of Hindu alienations, to the facts that constitute legal necessity in Hindu law. These vary according to the facts of each case, and the status of the transferor. A stepmother purporting to act on behalf of a minor stepson is a person authorized "only under circumstances in their nature variable to dispose off immovable property".¹²⁰¹ The transaction must be judged in the circumstances prevailing at the time it took place, and not by subsequent events.¹²⁰²

[s 38.4] Before Transfer

The section has no application before transfer where the transaction is still incomplete.¹²⁰³

[s 38.5] Onus of Proof

The onus of proving justifying circumstances is on the transferee. Where a mortgagee from a Hindu widow seeks to enforce his mortgage, the onus is on him to prove that the money was borrowed for a legitimate purpose.¹²⁰⁴ One who claims title under a conveyance from a woman, with the usual limited interest which a woman takes, and who seeks to enforce that title against reversioners, is always subject to proving not only the genuineness of his conveyance, but the full comprehension by the limited owners of the nature of the alienation she was making, and also that the alienation was justified by necessity, or at least that the alienee did all that was reasonable to satisfy himself of the existence of such necessity.¹²⁰⁵ Actual proof of the necessity which justified the deed is not essential to its validity; it is only necessary that a representation should have been made to the purchaser that such necessity existed, and that he should have acted honestly and made proper inquiry to satisfy himself of its truth.¹²⁰⁶ If the alienation is by a father for payment of antecedent debts, the burden is on the transferee to prove that the debt existed, or that after proper inquiry he honestly believed that it existed.¹²⁰⁷ The burden is then shifted on the son to show that the debt was contracted for an immoral purpose, and that the transferee had actual or constructive notice of the nature of the debt.¹²⁰⁸ It has been stated in a Madras case¹²⁰⁹ that whereas in the case of an alienation for necessities, the transferee need not actually prove the existence of the necessity, and that he can claim the benefit of section 38 if he shows that he had made reasonable inquiries, in the case of an alienation for an antecedent debt, the transferee must show the existence of the debt as otherwise “it would not be held that the enquiry was full or bona fide”. This distinction would appear to be unsound, for it would be a question of fact whether the transferee had used reasonable care and acted in good faith in the circumstances of each case.

38. Transfer by person authorised only under certain circumstances to transfer.—

Recitals by the transferor are not generally sufficient proof of necessity,¹²¹⁰ for they may only have been inserted at the instance of the transferee.¹²¹¹ They must, therefore, be supplemented by evidence aliunde.¹²¹² A sale deed executed by a Hindu widow recited the payment of family debts as the necessity justifying the sale. But the purchaser made no inquiry of the creditors named in the deed and was, therefore, not protected by this section.¹²¹³ However, as time goes by and the original parties to the transaction and all those who could have given evidence have passed away, recitals assume greater importance, and if the circumstances are such as to justify a reasonable belief that an inquiry would have confirmed their truth, they would be sufficient to support the deed.¹²¹⁴ In such cases presumptions are admissible to fill in details which have been obliterated by time.¹²¹⁵

The lender is not bound to see to the application of the money.¹²¹⁶ In the judgment in Hunooman Persaud's case LJ Knight Bruce said:

The purposes for which a loan is wanted are often future, as regards the actual application, and a lender can rarely have, unless he enters on the management, the means of controlling and rightly directing the actual application. Their Lordships do not think that a bona fide creditor should suffer when he has acted honestly and with due caution, but is himself deceived.

Accordingly, a sale or mortgage may be justified by legal necessity although as to part of the consideration, such necessity has not been established.¹²¹⁷ The Allahabad High Court has held that this was so only when the unaccounted part was small, but not if it was considerable.¹²¹⁸ However, this view was disapproved by the Privy Council, and it was held that if the sale itself is justified by legal necessity, and the purchaser pays a fair price for the property sold, and acts in good faith after due inquiry as to the necessity for the sale, the mere fact that part of the price is not proved to have been applied to the purposes of necessity does not invalidate the sale, and the sale should be upheld unconditionally, irrespective of whether the part proved to have been applied to the purposes of necessity is considerable or small.¹²¹⁹

38. Transfer by person authorised only under certain circumstances to transfer.—

- 1195 Hunnooman Persaud v Babooe, (1856) 6 Mad IA 393, p 423.
- 1196 Debi Prasad v Golab Bhagat, (1913) ILR 40 Cal 721 : 19 IC 273; Rangaswami v Nachiappa, (1919) ILR 42 Mad 523 : 46 IA 72 : 50 IC 498.
- 1197 Kameshwar Pershad v Run Bahadoor, (1881) ILR 6 Cal 843 : 8 IA 8; Sahu Ram v Bhup Singh, (1917) ILR 39 All 437, p 443 : 44 IA 126, p 130 : 39 IC 280.
- 1198 Sri Siddaraju v Sri Gangadhara, AIR 2012 Kant. 143 [LNIND 2012 KANT 57].
- 1199 Prasunno Kumari v Golab Chand, (1875) 14 Bom LR 450 : 2 IA 145; Kunwar Doorganath v Ram Chunder Sen, (1876) ILR 2 Cal 341 : 4 IA 52; Niladri Sahu v Mahant Chaturbhuj Das, (1926) ILR 6 Pat 139 : 53 IA 253 : 98 IC 576 : AIR 1926 PC 112.
- 1200 Jugmohandas v Pallonjee, (1898) ILR 22 Bom 1; Kherodemoney v Doorgamoney, (1879) ILR 4 Cal 455, p 468; Sarat Chandra v Bhupendra Nath, (1898) ILR 25 Cal 103; Amulya v Kalidas, (1905) ILR 32 Cal 861.
- 1201 Balappa v Chenvasappa, (1915) 17 Bom LR 1134 [LNIND 1915 BOM 131], p 1136 : 33 IC 444.
- 1202 Nagamali v Varada Kondar, (1950) 1 Mad LJ 505 : AIR 1950 Mad. 606 [LNIND 1949 MAD 326].
- 1203 Jamsetji v Kashinath, (1901) ILR 26 Bom 326, p 336.
- 1204 Maheshwar v Ratan Singh, (1896) ILR 23 Cal 766 : 23 IA 57.
- 1205 Bhagwat Dayal v Debi Dayal Sahu, (1908) ILR 35 Cal 420 : 35 IA 48; Ravaneshwar v Chandi Prasad, (1911) ILR 38 Cal 721 : 12 IC 931 : on app (1915) ILR 43 Cal 417 : 36 IC 499 : AIR 1915 PC 57.
- 1206 Banga Chandra v Jagat Kishore, (1916) ILR 44 Cal 186 : 43 IA 249 : 36 IC 420; Maharaj Singh v Balwant Singh, (1906) ILR 28 All 508.
- 1207 Chandradeo v Mata Prasad, (1909) ILR 31 All 176, p 198 : 1 IC 479; Sahib Singh v Girdhari Lal, (1923) ILR 45 All 576 : 73 IC 1024 : AIR 1924 All 24 ; Jamna v Nain Sukh, (1887) ILR 9 All 493; Subramanya v Sadusiva, (1884) ILR 8 Mad 75.
- 1208 Girdhari Lal v Kantoo Lal, (1874) 14 Beng LR 187 : 1 IC 321; Suraj Bunsu Koer v Sheo Proshad, (1878) ILR 5 Cal 148 : 6 IA 88; Joharmal v Eknath, (1899) ILR 24 Bom 343.
- 1209 Meenakshi Achi v Manikkam Chettiar, (1959) ILR Mad 1046 : 1960 1 Mad LJ 89 : AIR 1960 Mad. 99 [LNIND 1959 MAD 77].
- 1210 Maharaja of Bobbili v Zamindar of Chundi, (1912) ILR 35 Mad 108 : 8 IC 860.
- 1211 Muhammad v Brij Bihari, (1924) ILR 46 All 656 : 82 IC 5 : AIR 1924 All 939.
- 1212 Brij Lal v Inda Kunwar, (1914) ILR 36 All 187 : 23 IC 715 (PC).
- 1213 Junhabi v Balbhadra, (1910) 15 Cal WN 793 : 10 IC 350.
- 1214 Banga Chandra v Jagat Kishore, (1916) ILR 44 Cal 186 : 36 IC 420 : 43 IC 249.
- 1215 Chintamanibhatala v Rani of Wadhwan, (1920) ILR 43 Mad 541 : 55 IC 538 : 47 IA 6; Ravaneshwar v Chandi Prasad, (1911) ILR 38 Cal 721 : 12 IC 931 : on app (1916) ILR 43 Cal 417 : 36 IC 499 : AIR 1915 PC 57.
- 1216 Hunooman Persaud v Babooe, (1856) 6 Moo Ind App 393, p 424; Uday Chunder v Asutosh, (1894) ILR 21 Cal 190; Dalibai v Gopibai, (1901) ILR 26 Bom 433. See also Radhakrishnan Das v Kaluram, AIR 1967 SC 574 [LNIND 1962 SC 156] : [1963] 1 SCR 648 [LNIND 1962 SC 156]; but see A Subramaniam v Jayadevan, AIR 1985 Mad. 372 [LNIND 1984 MAD 76] : 1985-98-LW 215, wherein it was held that in exceptional cases, he may be required to see actual application of money.
- 1217 Krishn Das v Nathu Ram, (1927) ILR 49 All 149 : 54 IA 79 : 100 IC 130 : AIR 1927 PC 37 overruling Gobind Singh v Baldeo Singh, (1903) ILR 25 All 330 and Ram Dei v Abu Jafar, (1905) ILR 27 All 494 and Dwarka Ram v Jhulai, (1923) ILR 45 All 429 : 72 IC 134 : AIR 1923 All 248.
- 1218 Lal Bahadur v Kamleshwar, (1926) ILR 48 All 183 : 90 IC 988 : AIR 1925 All 624 ; Daulat v Sankhata, (1925) ILR 47 All 355 : 86 IC 91 : AIR 1925 All 324 ; Ghansham v Badiya, (1902) ILR 24 All 547.
- 1219 Niamat Rai v Din Dayal, (1927) ILR 8 Lah 597 : 54 IA 211 : 101 IC 373 : AIR 1927 PC 121.

39. Transfer where third person is entitled to maintenance.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(B\) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

39. Transfer where third person is entitled to maintenance.—

Where a third person has a right to receive maintenance, or a provision for advancement or marriage, from the profits of immovable property, and such property is transferred, ¹²²⁰] the right may be enforced against the transferee, if he has notice ¹²²¹[thereof] or if the transfer is gratuitous; but not against a transferee for consideration and without notice of the right, nor against such property in his hands.

¹²²²]

[s 39.1] Amendment

The original section was amended by the amending Act 20 of 1929.

[s 39. 2] Maintenance not a Charge

The right of maintenance, even of a Hindu widow, is an indefinite right which falls short of a charge.¹²²³ It is not a charge unless it has been made a charge by decree or agreement,¹²²⁴ or unless the widow is in possession of specific property allotted for her maintenance.¹²²⁵ In such cases, notice of the charge is sufficient to bind the transferee. However, in some cases it had been held that a charge for maintenance created by a decree was binding on a transferee irrespective of whether he had notice of the charge.¹²²⁶ Those decisions proceeded on the view that the effect of a charge was similar to that of a mortgage, in that it placed a limitation on the ownership of the property.¹²²⁷ Those decisions, however, were not correct, for even before the Amending Act of 1929 it was clear that a charge did not, like a mortgage, create an interest in property,¹²²⁸ and the amended section 100 expressly enacts that a charge cannot be enforced against a transferee for consideration without notice. This section purports to deal with a right of maintenance or the like which, not having been made a charge by decree or agreement, falls short of a charge.¹²²⁹

[s 39.3] Right under the Amended Section

Under the amended section, the right of the widow is more effectively protected. It is not necessary that the transferee should be aware of an intention to defraud the widow or to defeat her right to maintenance.¹²³⁰ If he is a transferee for consideration, he takes subject to the right if he has notice of it. If he is a gratuitous transferee, he takes subject to the right, irrespective of whether he has notice of it. The amended section is not intended to create a charge where none existed. The effect of the amendment is to make it unnecessary for the widow to prove that the transfer was made with the intention of defeating her right.¹²³¹

39. Transfer where third person is entitled to maintenance.—

[s 39.4] Enhanced Maintenance

It has been held¹²³² that the right to receive maintenance protected by the section is not merely the right to receive such maintenance in the first instance, but also the right to receive enhanced maintenance in the future if there has been a material change in the circumstances.

[s 39.5] Right of Residence

Where, by way of settlement of disputes between the husband and the wife, property is given to the wife by the husband for her separate residence during her lifetime, it is a part of the arrangement for the grant of maintenance. Subsequent alienation by the husband cannot divest her from her possession till her death, and the transferee (from the husband) is not entitled to possession till her death. Section 39 applies to such a situation. The word “maintenance” in the section covers residence also.¹²³³

[s 39.6] Maintenance not Secured by Decree

Under Hindu Law, the maintenance of a wife by her husband is, of course, a matter of personal obligation which attaches from the moment of marriage. From the date of marriage her home is necessarily in her husband's home. He is bound to maintain her in it if she is willing to reside with him and discharge her duties. The doctrine of maintenance of a wife can be traced to the smritis, and the principal Hindu commentaries upon them. These texts enjoin a mandatory duty upon the husband to maintain his wife. It imposes a personal obligation on him enforceable by the sovereign or state. However, this does not mean that the obligation is not referred at all to his property, and that he can alienate all his property and deprive his wife of the right to maintenance from the income of his property. The personal obligation on the part of the husband to maintain the wife is even wider, in the sense that his obligation will exist if he has no properties from which he could derive any income. Even according to the ancient texts, the wife was supposed to be a co-owner of her husband's property, though in a secondary sense. The Hindu female's right to maintenance is a tangible right against property flowing from the relationship between the husband and wife and is recognised, and has been strongly stressed even by the earlier Hindu jurists starting from Yajnavalkya to Manu. Even without a charge, the claim for maintenance is doubtless a pre-existing right enforceable against the property in the hands of alienee with notice of her claim.¹²³⁴

It is not necessary that the right to maintenance should become crystallised in the form of a decree to enable the wife to proceed against the property in the hands of the husband or his transferees. Merely because, at the time when the settlement deed was executed, the wife had not obtained a decree for maintenance would not mean that she will not be entitled to enforce the right of maintenance against the property gratuitously transferred by the husband in favour of a transferee or a gratuitous transferee.¹²³⁵ If the husband gifted the properties in favour of the concubine without making provision for the maintenance of the wife, then the wife will be entitled to have a charge against the very properties, and enforce the same.¹²³⁶ It is not open to a husband to effect an alienation of his properties, when such alienation has the effect of depriving her and other dependants of their maintenance. A wife and children can, therefore, have a charge upon the properties of the husband, and can enforce the same against a gratuitous transferee.¹²³⁷ However, if the husband transfers the property with the knowledge of his wife and children the latter as such would have no claim of maintenance against the transferee.¹²³⁸

[s 39.7] Notice

The provision as to notice marks the difference between the old section and the new. Under the old section, the transferee was not bound, unless he had notice of the intention to defeat the right of the widow. Under the new section, notice of the existence of the right is sufficient to bind the transferee.¹²³⁹ If he is a bona fide transferee for valuable consideration without notice, he is not bound.¹²⁴⁰ Under section 3, the notice may be either actual or constructive. Andhra Pradesh High Court has held that the expression “notice” used should have a broad connotation, and cannot be construed literally to mean an information given. Aptly, it should mean knowledge and awareness. It was held that as long as a right exists under the law, it is obvious notice to one and all.¹²⁴¹ The Kerala High Court has held, on facts, that, when property was alienated to a member of the same family, it cannot be said that the transferee had no notice of the matrimonial dispute.¹²⁴²

39. Transfer where third person is entitled to maintenance.—

[s 39.8] Enforceability as Between the Mother and Son Irrespective of Notice

As a woman is entitled to maintenance not only from the husband, but also from sons who were members of a joint family, the wife has a right to ask for a charge on the entire family property irrespective of whether they had effected division between them. A son cannot plead want of notice about his mother being entitled to get maintenance from out of the income of the joint family property. Partition can have no impact whatsoever on the mother's right.¹²⁴³

[s 39.9] Family Debts

Under the Hindu law, debts contracted for the benefit of the family take precedence over a widow's claim for maintenance,¹²⁴⁴ and if family property is alienated for the discharge of debts binding on the family, the right of the alienee overrides the right of the widow, even if he had notice of her claim for maintenance.¹²⁴⁵ However, when maintenance has been expressly charged on the property, it takes precedence over the right of an execution purchaser even though the decree was for a debt binding on the family.¹²⁴⁶ Although the husband's debts may override the widow's claim for maintenance, she has a right to challenge debts incurred by a coparcener, such as a son or a brother of her deceased husband, and to enforce her rights against the property sold to pay off those debts, unless it be proved that they had been incurred for family necessity.¹²⁴⁷

[s 39.10] Advancement

Provisions for advancement are unknown among Indians.¹²⁴⁸ The rule of English law by which a child who has received an advancement, must bring the amount into hotchpot in the case the father's intestacy had been omitted in the Indian Succession Act, 1925; and has been held not to apply to Parsees.¹²⁴⁹ Among persons subject to English law, a purchase by a father in the name of a daughter is presumed to be an advancement, and not to be benami or colourable.¹²⁵⁰

[s 39.11] Marriage

Under Mitakshara law, joint family property is liable for the legitimate marriage expenses of male members of the family,¹²⁵¹ and their daughters,¹²⁵² but not for the marriage of minors.¹²⁵³ Under this section as amended, a transferee having notice of such liability at the time of transfer would take subject to it section 40.

1220 The words "with the intention of defeating such right" omitted by Act 20 of 1929, section 11.

1221 Subs. by Act 20 of 1929, section 11, for "of such intention".

1222 The illustration omitted by Act 20 of 1929, section 11.

1223 Lakshman v Satyabhamabai, (1877) ILR 2 Bom 494; Bhatpur State v Gopal, (1901) ILR 24 All 160; Ram Kunwar v Ram Dai, (1900) ILR 22 All 326; Somasundaram v Unnamalai, (1920) ILR 43 Mad 800 : 59 IC 398; Ramanandan v Rangammal, (1889) ILR 12 Mad 260; Sorolah v Bhoobun, (1888) ILR 15 Cal 292, p 307.

1224 Ram Kunwar v Ram Dai, (1900) ILR 22 All 326; Jamnabai v Balakrishna, (1927) 53 Mad LJ 176 : 102 IC 101 : AIR 1927 Mad. 1092 [LNIND 1927 MAD 93]; Prosonno v Barbosa, (1866) 6 WR 253 (charge created by will); Gajadhar v Khula Kunwar, (1908) 12 OC 37 : 1 IC 690; Sowbagia v Manicka, (1918) 33 Mad LJ 601 : 42 IC 975; Bharatpur State v Gopal, (1901) ILR 24 All 160, p 163; Nagi v Rajkunwar, (1956) ILR Nag 181 : AIR 1956 Ngp 138 .

1225 Rachawa v Shivayogapa, (1893) ILR 18 [LNIND 1980 SC 525] Bom 679; Imam v Balamma, (1889) ILR 12 Mad 334; Ram Kunwar v Amar Nath, (1932) ILR 54 All 472 : (1932) All LJ 267 : 138 IC 363 : AIR 1932 All 361 .

39. Transfer where third person is entitled to maintenance.—

- 1226 Maina v Bachchi, (1906) ILR 28 All 655; Bhoje Mahadev v Gangabai, (1913) ILR 37 Bom 621 : 21 IC 54; Kallapa v Balwant, (1925) 27 Bom LR 434 : 87 IC 951 : AIR 1925 Bom 343; Mahadev Prasad v Anandi Lal, (1925) ILR 47 All 90 : 92 IC 348 : AIR 1925 All 60; Chaudhri v Gobardhan, (1930) ILR 5 Luck 172 : 117 IC 405 : AIR 1929 Oudh 316; Kuloda Prasad v Jogeshwar, (1900) ILR 27 Cal 194; Hunter, Liquidator of Bank of Upper India v Nisar Ahmed Chawdhari, (1932) ILR 8 Luck 168 : 143 IC 692 : AIR 1932 Oudh 336.
- 1227 Kallapa v Balwant, (1925) 26 Bom LR 434 : 87 IC 951 : AIR 1925 Bom 343.
- 1228 Royzuddi v Kali Nath, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 985; Gobinda Chandra Pal v Dwarka Nath Pal, (1908) ILR 35 Cal 837; Jawahir Mal v Indomati, (1914) ILR 36 All 201 : 22 IC 973; Akhoy Kumar v Corp of Calcutta, (1915) ILR 42 Cal 625 : 27 IC 621.
- 1229 Ghasiram v Kundanbai, (1941) ILR Nag 513 : AIR 1940 Ngp 163.
- 1230 Dattatreya v Julsabai, (1943) ILR Bom 646 : 45 Bom LR 802 : 210 IC 161 : AIR 1943 Bom 412; Pranlal v Chapsey, AIR 1945 Bom 34.
- 1231 Ramamurthi v Kanakarathnam, (1948) ILR Mad 335 : AIR 1948 Mad. 205 [LNIND 1947 MAD 163]; Manikyam v Venkayamma, AIR 1957 AP 710 [LNIND 1956 AP 138]; Chandramma v Maniam Venkatareddi, AIR 1958 AP 396 [LNIND 1957 AP 60]; Vellayammal v Srikumara Pillai, AIR 1960 Mad. 42 [LNIND 1959 MAD 38] (disapproving Parayyammal v Samiappa, AIR 1947 Mad. 376 [LNIND 1947 MAD 84]); Kare Mors Sharabanna v Basappa, AIR 1962 Mys 207. And see Mahesh Prasad v Nunder, (1953) ILR 1 All 284 : (1951) All LJ 39 : AIR 1951 All 141 [LNIND 1950 ALL 153].
- 1232 Kaveri v Parameswari, AIR 1971 Ker. 216 [LNIND 1970 KER 103]. And see Vedavathi Williams v Rama Bai, AIR 1964 Mys 265.
- 1233 Adivappa v Tengawwa, (1974) 2 Kant LJ 45 [LNIND 1974 KANT 38].
- 1234 Banda Manikyam v Banda Venkayamma, AIR 1957 AP 710 [LNIND 1956 AP 138], p 714; Chandramma v Maniam Vankatareddi, AIR 1958 AP 396 [LNIND 1957 AP 60], p 401; V Tulasamma v V Sesha Reddi, AIR 1977 SC 1944 [LNIND 1977 SC 136], pp 1951, 1954, 1960 : (1977) 3 SCC 99 [LNIND 1977 SC 136]; Basudev Dey Sarkar v Chhaya Dey Sarkar, AIR 1991 Cal 399 [LNIND 1991 CAL 25], p 402.
- 1235 Ramamurthi v Kanakarathnam, (1948) ILR Mad 335 : AIR 1948 Mad. 205 [LNIND 1947 MAD 163].
- 1236 Raghavan v Nagammal, (1979) 1 Mad LJ 172.
- 1237 Ramankutty Purushothaman v Amminikutty, AIR 1997 Ker. 306 [LNIND 1997 KER 49] : (1997) 1 KLJ 275.
- 1238 Vijayan v Sobhana, AIR 2007 Ker. 177 [LNIND 2007 KER 119]; Sarwan Singh v Jagir Singh, AIR 2006 P&H. 171.
- 1239 Radhabai v Gopal, (1944) 45 Bom LR 980 : AIR 1944 Bom 50; Vedavathi Williams v Rama Bai, AIR 1964 Mys 265.
- 1240 Kesho Prasad v Upper India Bank Ltd, 141 IC 474 : AIR 1933 Oudh 76; Sheodeni Kuero v Umashankar, (1963) ILR AP 74.
- 1241 C Yemuna v P Manohna, AIR 2004 AP 312.
- 1242 Sathiyamma v Gayathri, 2013 (3) KHC 322 [LNIND 2013 KER 831] : 2013 (4) KLJ 233.
- 1243 S Periasami v Chellamal, (1980) 1 Mad LJ 46.
- 1244 Lakshman v Satyabhamabai, (1877) ILR 2 Bom 494; Ramanandan v Rangammal, (1889) ILR 12 Mad 260; Johurra v Sreegopal, (1876) ILR 1 Cal 470; Jamnabai v Balakrishna, (1927) 53 Mad LJ 176 : 102 IC 101 : AIR 1927 Mad. 1092 [LNIND 1927 MAD 93]; Gur Dayal v Kaunsilla, (1882) ILR 5 All 367; Soorja Koer v Nath Baksh, (1884) ILR 11 Cal 102, p 105; Jayanti v Alamelu, (1904) ILR 27 Mad 45; Brij Raj Kier v Ram Dayal, (1932) ILR 7 Luck 411 : 135 IC 369 : AIR 1932 Oudh 40.
- 1245 Lakshman v Satyabhamabai, (1877) ILR 2 Bom 494; Ramanandan v Rangammal, (1889) ILR 12 Mad 260; Jamnabai v Balakrishna, (1927) 53 Mad LJ 176.
- 1246 Somasundaram v Unnamalai, (1920) ILR 43 Mad 800 : 59 IC 398.
- 1247 Malkarjun v Sarubai, AIR 1943 Bom 187.
- 1248 Kerwick v Kerwick, (1921) ILR 48 Cal 260 : 47 IA 275 : 57 IC 834 : AIR 1921 PC 56; Guran Ditto v Ram Ditto, (1928) ILR 55 Cal 944 : 55 IA 235 : 109 IC 723 : AIR 1928 PC 172; Dharwar Bank v Mahomed Hayat, (1931) 33 Bom LR 250 : 133 IC 241 : AIR 1931 Bom 269; Paul v Nathaniel, (1931) 29 All LJ 417 : 132 IC 573 : AIR 1931 All 596; Sura Lakshmiah v Kothendarana, (1925) ILR 48 Mad 605 : 52 IA 286 : 88 IC 327 : AIR 1925 PC 181; Sahdeo Karan Singh v Usman Ali Khan, 184 IC 113.
- 1249 Dhanjibhai v Navajbai, (1878) ILR 2 Bom 75.

39. Transfer where third person is entitled to maintenance.—

- 1250 Kerwick v Kerwick, (1921) ILR 48 Cal 260 : 47 IA 275 : 57 IC 834 : AIR 1921 PC 56 ; Paschaud v Paschoud Nixon, 128 IC 721 : AIR 1930 Oudh 441 ; Gopee Krist Gosain v Gunga Pershad, (1854) 6 Moo Ind App 53 ; Johnstone v Gopal Singh, (1931) ILR 12 Lah 546 : 133 IC 628 : AIR 1931 Lah 419 .
- 1251 Sundrabai v Shivnarayana, (1907) ILR 32 Bom 81; Bhagirathi v Jokhu Ram, (1910) ILR 32 All 575 : 6 IC 5; Gopal Krishna v Venkatarasa, (1914) ILR 37 Mad 273 : 17 IC 308; Debi Lal v Nand Kishore, (1922) ILR 1 Pat 266 : 65 IC 315 : AIR 1922 Pat. 22 .
- 1252 Vaikuntam v Kallapiram, (1900) ILR 23 Mad 512; Runganaiki v Ramanuja, (1912) ILR 35 Mad 728 : 11 IC 570; Srinivasa v Thiruvengadathaiyangar, (1915) ILR 38 Mad 556 : 23 IC 264.
- 1253 Dev Kishan v Ram Kishan, AIR 2002 Raj. 370 : RLW 2003 (2) Raj 1250 : (2002) 4 WLC 130 : (2002) 4 WLN 481 .

40. Burden of obligation imposing restriction on use of land.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(B\) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

40. Burden of obligation imposing restriction on use of land.—

Where, for the more beneficial enjoyment of his own immovable property, a third person has, independently of any interest in the immovable property of another or of any easement thereon, a right to restrain the enjoyment ¹²⁵⁴[in a particular manner of the latter property,] or

Or of obligation annexed to ownership but not amounting to interest or easement.—Where a third person is entitled to the benefit of an obligation arising out of contract and annexed to the ownership of immovable property, but not amounting to an interest therein or easement thereon, such right or obligation may be enforced against a transferee with notice thereof or a gratuitous transferee of the property affected thereby, but not against a transferee for consideration and without notice of the right or obligation, nor against such property in his hands.

ILLUSTRATION

A contracts to sell Sultanpur to B. While the contract is still in force he sells Sultanpur to C, who has notice of the contract. B may enforce the contract against C to the same extent as against A.

[s 40.1] Amendment

This section was amended by the amending Act of 1929.

[s 40.2] First Paragraph—Right of Transferor Against Purchaser from Transferee

The second para of section 11 relates to right of transferor as against the transferee to (1) enforce the performance of an affirmative covenant; (2) restrain breach of a negative covenant. The first para of present section relates to the right of transferor as against a purchaser from a transferee to restrain the breach of a negative covenant. This paragraph, before it was amended, also recognised the right of the transferor to compel the performance of an affirmative covenant as against a purchaser from the transferee. It contained the words “to compel its enjoyment,” but those words have now been omitted. The effect of the omission is that an affirmative covenant can no longer be enforced against a purchaser from a transferee. The reason for the amendment is explained under section 11.

The “third person” spoken of in the first paragraph is either the original covenantee, or his transferee. For instance, if A owns two properties X and Y, and sells X to B, he may impose a restriction on B that he shall, for the more beneficial enjoyment of Y, keep open a portion of X adjoining Y and not build on it. The “third person” may be A who has no longer any interest in X or any easement thereon, or he may be a purchaser of Y from A whom we shall call C. If B sells X to D, and D has notice of the covenant and D threatens to build on the whole of X, A or C may restrain D from doing so.

40. Burden of obligation imposing restriction on use of land.—

[s 40.3] Restrictive Covenants

In English law, a covenant may be something more than a mere agreement. A covenant may (1) amount to the grant or reservation of an equitable interest in land or an easement; or (2) it may be a personal contract. If the covenant creates or reserves a legal easement, the transferee takes subject to the easement; if it creates or reserves an equitable interest in land, the transferee takes subject to that interest, unless he acquires a legal estate without notice or is protected by want of registration. If the covenant is only a personal contract, the general rule of English common law is that all contracts are personal and the covenant does not bind the transferee. To this general rule that contracts are personal there are two exceptions—(1) leases; and (2) covenants annexed to the land.

The law in India closely follows the law of England as to covenants. The benefit of a covenant for quiet enjoyment in a lease may be enforced by the assignee of the lessee under section 108(c), while the rights and liabilities of the lessor’s transferee are dealt with in section 109.

The principle that a covenant is annexed to the land, if it binds the land in its inception or affects the nature, quality or value of the land, was adopted by the Calcutta High Court in Mathewson v Ram Kanai Singh.¹²⁵⁵ Such covenants are referred to in sections 55(2) (sale), 65 (mortgage), and 108(c) (lease), where it is expressly enacted that the benefit of such covenants runs with the interest of the covenantee.

The equitable rule that the burden of a covenant runs with the land is enacted in this section.¹²⁵⁶ The amendment of the section by Act 20 of 1929 represents the English rule which limits the doctrine to restrictive covenants, for a positive covenant never runs with the land either in law, or in equity.¹²⁵⁷ Even before the amendment, the Bombay High Court doubted if the section applied to affirmative covenants involving the expenditure of money. In Chaturbhuj v Mansukhram,¹²⁵⁸ the owner of four houses and a chowk or courtyard sold three houses and the chowk to the plaintiff, and covenanted to close the window of the fourth house overlooking the chowk, and to slope the eaves so as to prevent rain water falling onto the chowk. The owner then sold the fourth house to the defendant. The plaintiff sued the defendant to enforce the covenants, but the suit was dismissed on the ground that even if the covenants were restrictive covenants (which the court held they were not), the defendant had purchased without notice of the covenants. In this case the vendor was the covenantor, but the more usual case is for the vendor to be the covenantee as in Tulk v Moxhay,¹²⁵⁹ wherein it was held that in equity, a restrictive covenant imposed for the benefit of land retained by the lessor or grantor was binding on a purchaser with notice. In other words, a covenant restricting the user of land runs with the land in equity. This doctrine applies only to restrictive or negative covenants. The doctrine cannot be extended to affirmative covenants such as a covenant compelling a man to lay out money, or to do an act of an active character. The covenant must be one restricting or affecting the user of the land, and the remedy is not the remedy at law by way of specific performance under a specific or implied penalty, but merely in equity by injunction against the violation of the covenant.¹²⁶⁰

The case law in India as to restrictive covenants is meagre, and it has not yet been decided whether a restrictive covenant would be binding on a trespasser, or a mere occupier. The section expressly says that the right of the covenantee is not an interest in the land bound by the covenant, nor an easement. It is not an interest because the TP Act, 1882 does not recognise equitable estates,¹²⁶¹ and it cannot be said as Sir George Jessel said that if the covenant “binds the land it creates an equitable interest in the land.”¹²⁶² But although the section says that the right is not an easement, it would probably be held that the covenantee had a paramount right analogous to an easement and, therefore, binding on an occupier or trespasser.

40. Burden of obligation imposing restriction on use of land.—

[s 40.4] Building Schemes

A covenantor may sometimes be entitled to the benefit of a restrictive covenant as against other covenantors. This may occur when land is sold in plots under a building scheme. The conditions of sale prescribed restrictive covenants to be entered into by the purchasers of each lot, and the presumption is that the covenant is for their mutual benefit.¹²⁶³ In Torbay Hotel v Jenkins,¹²⁶⁴ the court said—

Where an owner of land deals with his land on the footing of imposing restrictive obligations on the use of the various portions of it and as when he alienates them for the common benefit of himself (so far as he retains any land) and of the various purchasers inter se, a court of Equity will give effect to this common intention, notwithstanding the absence of mutual covenants, provided that the intention that there should be a mutual obligation is efficiently established.

If no such intention is established, the benefit of the covenant will not pass, for it would be merely a personal covenant. This was the case in Chambers v Randall,¹²⁶⁵ where the vendor sold plots for building purposes with covenants restrictive of the nature of the building to be erected, and J Sargant said that “the object of the covenant was to enable the vendor to protect his property while he retained it, and to make the most of it when he disposed it off.” On the other hand, if the intention is established, each purchaser or his assignee can enforce the covenant against the other purchasers.¹²⁶⁶ However, there must be reasonably clear definition as to the area within which the mutual obligations are intended to operate.¹²⁶⁷ A covenant by a purchaser not to use burdened property “for any purpose other than that of a single private dwelling house” does not mean that any number of dwelling houses may be erected on the land, provided that each is used only as a single private dwelling house. The contention that any number of private dwelling houses could be constructed was negatived by the court.¹²⁶⁸

[s 40.5] Affirmative Covenants

Affirmative covenants are collateral; they are not annexed to the land and do not run with the land. Covenants to lay out money in building or repairs cannot be enforced against the purchaser from the covenantor.¹²⁶⁹ A positive covenant never runs with the land either in law, or in equity.¹²⁷⁰

In Halsall v Brizell,¹²⁷¹ however, J Upjohn was considering the case of a developed estate in which the developers retained the ownership of roads and sewers. Under certain covenants, the developers were obliged to permit purchasers of properties in the estate to use them, and the purchasers were obliged to contribute towards the cost. The question arose whether the successors of the original purchasers were bound to contribute to the cost of the roads and sewers. The court held that the successors could not be sued on the covenant for it was a positive covenant, which did not run with the land, but that it is “ancient law that a man cannot take benefit under a deed without subscribing to the obligations thereunder”. The court held that the successors had no right to use the roads and sewers except under the deed, and that as they desired to take its benefits, they were bound by the covenants contained in it.¹²⁷²

A covenant of indemnity is a personal covenant, and is, therefore, not a covenant running with the land, and cannot be enforced by a purchaser of the land.¹²⁷³ A covenant in a sale deed by which the vendor retained a certain portion of the land free from payment of land revenue did not amount to a covenant by the vendors or their heirs and transferees to pay the land revenue in respect of the lands retained by the vendor, and that even if it did, it was not binding on the heirs or transferees for it was not a covenant running with land.¹²⁷⁴ A covenant for the reconveyance of a right of easement is also a personal covenant, and does not run with the land.¹²⁷⁵

40. Burden of obligation imposing restriction on use of land.—

A, a Hindu female, sold a plot of land in which she had only a limited interest (as a daughter under Hindu law as interpreted in Madras) to B. Her husband, D executed an agreement of indemnity agreeing to convey to B an equivalent plot of land, in case B should be dispossessed. B sold the land to P who after the death of A was dispossessed by A's son. P then sued D on the agreement of indemnity to recover possession of the equivalent plot of land. The suit was dismissed, as an agreement of indemnity is a collateral agreement and not a covenant running with the land. There was, moreover, no privity of a contract between P and D.¹²⁷⁶

In an Allahabad case,¹²⁷⁷ an affirmative covenant to pull down rooms on a passage was enforced against a transferee from the vendee, but the case was decided on the law as it stood before the amendment of the section.

[s 40.5.1] Leases

Leases have always been an exception to this rule, and a covenant to pay rent is a covenant annexed to the land, and the benefit of it passes to the lessor's assignee—section 109. The lessee's assignee is liable by privity of estate.¹²⁷⁸ On the other hand, in the case of a sale, a covenant to pay money is purely a personal covenant, and cannot run with the land. Should a vendee covenant on behalf of himself, his heirs and assigns, that he or they would pay ₹20 annually for the sheba of a thakur, a subsequent purchaser is not bound by the covenant, for there is no such thing between a vendor and purchaser as a covenant to pay money running with the land.¹²⁷⁹ In an Allahabad case,¹²⁸⁰ a covenant that the vendee would pay the vendor zarichaharam, i.e., a fourth of the purchase money, in case he sold the land, was held not to run with the land. The court dissented from a previous decision,¹²⁸¹ but omitted to notice that it was a case of lease. Between a head lessor and a sub-lessee, there is neither privity of contract, nor privity of estate. A sub-lessee, is therefore, not liable for a covenant in the lease to pay a specified rent, such covenant being an affirmative covenant.¹²⁸²

[s 40.6] Covenant Running with the Land

This is an expression borrowed from English law of real property, where it describes a covenant “annexed to the land” and which is an exception to the general rule that all covenants are personal. A covenant may run with the land (i) at law; or (ii) in equity.

- (i) A covenant runs with the land at law when the benefit of it passes to the assignee of the covenantee or when the burden of it passes to the assignee of the covenantor, and, in either case independently of notice. A grants subsoil rights below his surface land to a colliery company who covenants to pay damages if they cause a subsidence of the surface land. A sells his surface land to B. B can enforce the covenant because it is a covenant the benefit of which runs with the land at law.¹²⁸³ The burden of a covenant only runs at law in the case of an assignment of a lease.
- (ii) A covenant runs with the land in equity when the burden of it can be enforced against the assignee of the covenantor under the rule in Tulk v Moxhay. A sells a park in front of his house to B, who covenants not to build upon it. B sells the park to C who has notice of the covenant. A can enforce the covenant against C, for it is a covenant running with the land in equity.

[s 40.6.1] Indian law

Under the TP Act, 1882, covenants of which the benefit runs with the land at law are covenants for title implied in sales under section 55(2), the covenant implied in mortgages under section 65, and in respect of leases, the covenant for quiet enjoyment implied in section 108(c). A covenant to pay rents and taxes is a covenant that runs with the land;¹²⁸⁴ so also is a covenant in a lease that the lessee will pay the lessor a share of the purchase money if he should assign the lease,¹²⁸⁵ or a covenant in a patni lease that the covenantor shall submit year after year in the landlords' office jamavahipatiaks and lawazama patika;¹²⁸⁶ or a covenant granting to the lessor the right to use certain roads.¹²⁸⁷ As these covenants run with the land at law, they are enforceable by any person in whom the interest in the property of the covenantee is vested, irrespective of notice.

40. Burden of obligation imposing restriction on use of land.—

Under the TP Act, 1882, covenants that run with the land in equity are the restrictive covenants referred to in the first paragraph of this section where the rule in Tulk v Moxhay is followed. As these covenants run with the land in equity, they cannot be enforced against a purchaser for value without notice as stated in the last paragraph of the section.

[s 40.6.2] Pre-emption

Covenants for pre-emption have been described as covenants running with the land.¹²⁸⁸ This use of the expression was deprecated by J Strachey,¹²⁸⁹ and it is altogether incorrect. Such covenants are personal and collateral covenants falling under the second paragraph of the section. This has now been clearly held by the Supreme Court,¹²⁹⁰ and the decisions referred to above to the contrary are no longer good law.

ILLUSTRATION

A sells his field to B who covenants that if he wishes to sell it, he will give A the first refusal. B sells the field to C who has notice of the agreement for ₹1,00,000 A may require C to sell the field to him for ₹1,00,000. This illustration should be contrasted with the two preceding illustrations which were of covenants running with the land at law and in equity. The covenant in this illustration is not annexed to the land at all. It is purely a personal covenant and is enforceable for personal reasons. It was unconscionable of B to break his agreement and sell to C and, as C had notice of the agreement, it was equally unconscionable of him to buy.

[s 40.6.3] Agreement to pay commission on extraction of coal

An agreement to pay commission on coal extracted from a mine and sold, is not a covenant running with the land.¹²⁹¹

[s 40.7] Covenants in a Lease and Assignment

A covenant entered between a lessor and a lessee is personally binding between the two. However, upon an assignment of the reversion or a term, it may be binding on the assignee. Similarly, the benefit of the covenant may pass to them. If the covenant is by the lessor for the benefit of the lessee, and directly touches the land, it runs with the land in favour of the assignee. An option to renew the lease runs with the land. In the case in question both the covenants to put up a building and to renew the lease, run with the land. The liability to put up a building having been discharged by the original lessee, the right to exercise the option of renewing the lease passed to the assignee. The contention that every assignee of a part of the tenement is bound to put up a building on the parcel of the land assigned to him, is unreasonable and by the very nature of things is impossible of performance. The leasehold interest having been served by agreement of the parties, each of the assignees was entitled to enforce the term providing for the renewal so far as his separate part was concerned, irrespective of the others.¹²⁹²

[s 40.8] Contractual Obligation

The right referred to in the first paragraph of the section has come into existence before the transfer, and presupposes ownership of property. The right referred to in the second paragraph has also come into existence before the transfer, but does not presuppose ownership of property. It is a purely personal right arising out of contract, and the person who has the right need not be the owner of any property at all. But the right though personal, must be annexed to the ownership of immovable property. The illustration shows that the purchaser under a contract of sale of land has the right defined in the second paragraph. That right in English law is an equitable estate in land. But, as explained in section 5, the Indian legislature has eschewed the doctrine of equitable ownership. According to section 3 of the Indian Trust Acts, 1882, what would be in English law the equitable estate of the cestui que trust is the benefit of an obligation annexed to the ownership of property. Section 54 of TP Act, 1882 expressly states that a contract of sale of immovable property does not, of itself, create an interest in or charge upon such property, but it creates an obligation, the fiduciary character of which is recognised in section 3 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963, and in section 91 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882. A contract for sale, therefore, does not create an interest in land, but creates a personal obligation of a fiduciary character which can be enforced by a suit for specific performance not only against the vendor, but also against a volunteer and a purchaser for consideration with notice.¹²⁹³ A contract of sale (as provided by last two paragraphs of section 40) creates an obligation annexed to ownership of property.¹²⁹⁴

40. Burden of obligation imposing restriction on use of land.—

A reading of sections 40 and 54 of the TP Act, 1882 and section 91 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 makes it clear that the subsequent transferee with notice stands in a fiduciary capacity and holds the property in trust to the prior agreement holder, but the prior agreement holder cannot automatically become the owner by seeking declaratory relief, and has to necessarily file a suit for specific performance impleading both the vendor and the subsequent transferee.¹²⁹⁵

In some cases, this fiduciary obligation has been held to be a defence to a suit for ejectment although no suit for specific performance had been filed. But these cases are, in effect, overruled by the decision of the Privy Council in Main Pir Bus v Sardar Mahomed Tahar.¹²⁹⁶

An agreement to pay maintenance out of land, which fell short of creating a charge on any specific property has been said to create a contractual obligation under the second paragraph of this section, and not to be enforceable against a purchaser without notice.¹²⁹⁷ However, where an agreement creates a perpetual charge such as for the payment of an annuity out of a specific property, it is binding on the subsequent transferee for value with notice or a volunteer with or without notice.¹²⁹⁸

It has been held that the second para of section 40 does not apply to rights in the nature of easements.¹²⁹⁹ The Supreme Court has held that the liability to pay for the estate under section 5(1) of the Estate Duty Act, 1953, arises upon the death of the real owner and not of the benamidar, who is merely an ostensible owner.¹³⁰⁰

Where a simple mortgage deed was executed in favour of the plaintiff and the mortgagor thereafter sold a part of the mortgaged property to another person by a registered sale deed and the earlier mortgage-deed was registered at a later date, it was held in the suit filed by the plaintiff against the mortgagor and the purchaser to recover the mortgage amount, the purchaser cannot claim that the mortgage was not binding on him on the ground that as the mortgage deed was registered at a date later than the date of sale in his favour, he should be taken to be a purchaser for valuable consideration without notice of the mortgage and, therefore, entitled to protection under second para of section 40. Under section 58 of the TP Act, 1882, mortgage is a mode of transfer by which an interest in property is created. An interest in property then would not remain simplicitor an obligation arising out of a contract and thus, stands excluded from falling within the protection of the second para of section 40.¹³⁰¹

Even under the second para of section 40 there must be a right or obligation for that purpose arising out of a contract and annexed to the ownership of immovable property for the purpose of its enforcement against a gratuitous transferee or a transferee for consideration with the notice of the right or obligation.¹³⁰² Where, even though property was agreed to be sold at ₹3,50,000, it was sold subsequently for ₹61,000, it was held that it is the bounden duty of the purchaser to make all such necessary inquiries and to ascertain all the facts relating to the property to be purchased prior to committing in any manner and hence, he cannot simply come forward to put up a general plea that he is the bona fide purchaser for value and without notice, especially when the purchase is not for the proper value.¹³⁰³

[s 40.9] Attachment

There is a conflict of decisions as to whether the obligation annexed by this section to the ownership of property by a contract of sale will prevail against claims enforceable under an attachment. If after a creditor C has attached A's property, and A sells it to B, the conveyance to B will be subject to the claims of C enforceable under the attachment. This is because under section 64 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908 any private transfer by A after the attachment will be void as against such claims. The question, however, if the subsequent conveyance was in pursuance of an agreement of sale which was before the attachment, whether the claims of C enforceable under the attachment be subject to the obligation created by the contract of sale to B. In Tarakanath v Sanatkumar,¹³⁰⁴ J Cuming held that the contractual obligation could not prevail against the rights of attaching creditor. However, in Madan Mohan v Rebait Mohan,¹³⁰⁵ J Woodroffe held that the contractual obligation prevailed over the attachment. The Madras High Court had taken the same view on the ground that if a creditor attaches property which is subject to a particular obligation, he should not be able to override it.¹³⁰⁶ In the case of an attachment before judgment, this is so expressly provided by O XXXVIII, rule 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908. Again, if after the attachment the vendee filed a suit for specific performance of the contract and the court enforced execution of a conveyance, it is clear that such conveyance would not be a private transfer subject to the provisions of section 64 of the Civil Procedure Code 1908.¹³⁰⁷ The right of a purchaser under section 40 entitling him to the benefit of an obligation arising out of the contract of sale of land by enforcing it against the transferee with notice is an equitable right, though not amounting to interest in immovable property within the meaning of section 53 of TP Act, 1882 which declares that a contract of sale does not create an interest in the property. On this line of reasoning, it was held by the Madras High Court that the purchaser under an antecedent agreement gets a good title despite attachment.¹³⁰⁸ The attaching creditor attaches only the right, title and interest of the debtor, and attachment cannot confer upon him any right higher than what the judgment debtor had at the date of attachment. Hence, under a contract of sale entered into before attachment, the conveyance and after attachment in pursuance of the contract, passes on good title inspite of the attachment.¹³⁰⁹ Even if the property is sold in execution, he can enforce specific performance of his contract against the auction purchaser.¹³¹⁰

40. Burden of obligation imposing restriction on use of land.—

According to a Madras case which reiterates the earlier view of the high court, an attaching decree-holder attaches not the physical property, but only the right of the judgment debtor in the property. That right is, on the date of attachment, qualified by the obligation incurred by him under the earlier agreement to sell or mortgage and the attaching decree-holder cannot ignore that obligation, and cannot bring the property to sale as if it remained an absolute property of the judgment-debtor.¹³¹¹

According to the Punjab and Haryana High Court, a sale in pursuance of a pre-attachment agreement is a private alienation of property which must be regarded as void against the claim of a decree-holder, though not against the claims of other persons. The object of section 64 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908 is the protection of the attaching creditor against a transfer made during the attachment.¹³¹² The Supreme Court disagreeing with the view taken in Mohinder Singh's case has now held that the agreement for sale creates an obligation attached to the ownership of property, and since the attaching creditor is entitled to attach only the right, title and interest of the judgment debtor, the attachment cannot be free from obligations incurred under the contract for sale. The right of the attaching creditor shall not be allowed to override the contractual obligation arising from an antecedent agreement for sale of the attached property.¹³¹³

In a later decision without expressing any opinion with regard to the case of an agreement for sale, the Supreme Court opined that a sale deed having been executed prior to attachment before judgment, though registered subsequently, will prevail over attachment before judgment.¹³¹⁴

[s 40.10] Pre-emption

The nature of a covenant for pre-emption under the TP Act, 1882 has been considered in the commentary on section 14.¹³¹⁵ It was submitted in earlier editions to this work that such a covenant was a personal covenant not creating any interest in property, and that certain decisions to the contrary were incorrect. It is unnecessary to further consider this question as the Supreme Court has clearly upheld the view expressed in earlier editions of this work, and held that such a covenant was a personal covenant.¹³¹⁶ As a personal contract it is binding on the parties thereto and their personal representatives, and it creates an obligation arising out of the contract and is binding on a purchaser for value with notice, and on a gratuitous transferee under the second part of this section.¹³¹⁷ The benefit of the covenant cannot, however, be transferred as it is restricted in enjoyment to the covenantee.¹³¹⁸

40. Burden of obligation imposing restriction on use of land.—

[s 40.11] Notice

Notice of the contractual obligation may be constructive notice.¹³¹⁹ Thus, it is sufficient notice if the contract is entered in the wajib-ul-ars of the village,¹³²⁰ or the contract was for sale to a mortgagee who is in possession.¹³²¹ In a small village, when any transaction takes place, it becomes common knowledge. A subsequent purchaser of land were deemed to have knowledge of an earlier sale agreement when all the parties belonged to the same village.¹³²² A person having full notice and knowledge of facts of existence of a previous contract, even through public notice published in a newspaper, cannot be held to be a bonafide purchaser without notice.¹³²³

[s 40.12] Court Sale

A purchaser at a court sale is a transferee by operation of law, and is, therefore, not a transferee within the meaning of this section. It has been suggested that the principle of the second para of this section might apply to him.¹³²⁴ The point was raised before the Privy Council, but was not actually decided as the purchaser had not an unequivocal notice of the contract. Lord Dunedin, however, observed that “judicial sales would be robbed of all their sanctity if vague references to antecedent contracts could be held to invalidate the buyer’s title.”¹³²⁵ In an Allahabad case, it was assumed that the Official Receiver in whom the property had vested by operation of law was a transferee under this section.¹³²⁶

-
- 1254 Subs. by Act 20 of 1929, section 12, for “of the latter property or to compel its enjoyment in a particular manner”.
- 1255 Mathewson v Ram Kanai Singh, (1909) ILR 36 Cal 675 : 1 IC 626; Kali Charan Chakraborty v Durga Charan Banerjee, AIR 1985 Cal 180 (NOC).
- 1256 Princy v Jose, AIR 2010 Ker. 1 [LNIND 2009 KER 225] : (2009) 2 KLJ 335 : (2009) 2 KLT 426 [LNIND 2009 KER 225].
- 1257 Jogesh Chandra v Asalia Khatun, (1926) 44 Cal LJ 220 : 98 IC 46 : AIR 1927 Cal 41 .
- 1258 Chaturbhuj v Mansukhram, (1925) 27 Bom LR 73 : 86 IC 19 : AIR 1925 Bom 183 .
- 1259 Tulk v Moxhay, (1848) 2 Ph 774.
- 1260 Jagdish Chandra v Mahammad Bhukhbiyar Shah, AIR 1952 Pat. 409 .
- 1261 Kempraj v Barton Son & Co, [1970] 2 SCR 140 [LNIND 1969 SC 302] : AIR 1970 SC 1872 [LNIND 1969 SC 302] : [1970] 1 SCJ 905 [LNIND 1969 SC 302] : (1969) 2 SCC 594 [LNIND 1969 SC 302] .
- 1262 London & South-Western Rly v Gomm, (1882) 20 ChD 562 , p 580.
- 1263 Renals v Cowlishaw, (1878) 9 ChD 125 : 11 ChD 866; Drake v Gray, [1936] 1 ChD 451 ☐ : [1936] 1 All ER 363 ; Baxter v Four Oaks Properties Ltd, [1965] ChD 816 : [1965] 1 All ER 906 ; Re Dolphin’s Conveyance, [1970] ChD 654 : [1970] 2 All ER 664 ; Eagling v Gardner, [1970] 2 All ER 838 ; Venkiah v Krishnamoorthy, (1915) ILR 38 Mad 141 : 19 IC 80.
- 1264 Torbay Hotel v Jenkins, [1927] 2 ChD 225 , p 240.
- 1265 Chambers v Randall, [1923] 1 ChD 149 ☐ , p 156 : [1922] All ER Rep 565 .
- 1266 Nottingham Patent Brick & Tile Co v Butler, (1886) 16 QBD 778 ; Cooverji v Bhimji, (1880) ILR 6 Bom 528.
- 1267 Reid v Bickerstaff, [1909] 2 ChD 305 ☐ : [1908–10] All ER Rep 298 ; Torbay Hotel v Jenkins, [1927] 2 ChD 225 ; Re Wembley Part Estate Co’s Transfer, [1968] ChD 491 : [1968] 1 All ER 457 .
- 1268 Re Enderick’s Conveyance; Porter v Fletcher, [1973] 1 All ER 843 .
- 1269 Haywood v Brunswick Permanent Building Society, (1881) 8 QBD 403 ; Austerberry v Corp of Oldham, (1885) 29 ChD 750 ; Chaturbhuj v Mansukram, (1925) ILR 27 Bom LR 73 : 86 IC 19 : AIR 1925 Bom 183 ; Jones v Price, [1965] 2 QB 618 : [1965] 2 All ER 625 .
- 1270 Jogesh Chandra v Asaha Khatun, (1927) 44 Cal LJ 220 : 98 IC 46 : AIR 1927 Cal 41 .
- 1271 Halsall v Brizell, [1957] ChD 169 : [1957] 1 All ER 371 .

40. Burden of obligation imposing restriction on use of land.—

- 1272 See a note on the case (1957) 73 LQR 154.
- 1273 Banti v Mandu, (1928) ILR 9 Lah 659 : 110 IC 425 : AIR 1928 Lah 357 ; Natesa Vanniyan v Gopalaswami, (1928) ILR 51 Mad 688 : 110 IC 830 : AIR 1928 Mad. 894 [LNIND 1927 MAD 472] ; Daughty v Bowman, [1848] 11 QB 444  , but see Hanwant Rao v Chandi Prasad, (1929) ILR 51 All 651 : 199 IC 243 : AIR 1929 All 293 .
- 1274 Harihar Singh v Kamla Prasad, AIR 1944 Oudh 35 .
- 1275 Zal Rustomjee v Anjuman, (1943) ILR Nag 736 : (1943) Nag LJ 392 : 203 IC 199 : AIR 1943 Ngp 4 .
- 1276 Natesa Vanniyan v Gopalaswami, (1928) ILR 51 Mad 688 : 110 IC 830 : AIR 1928 Mad. 894 [LNIND 1927 MAD 472] .
- 1277 Nand Gopal v Batuk Prasad, (1932) ILR 54 All 17 : 133 IC 541 : (1932) All LJ 36 : AIR 1932 All 78 .
- 1278 Stevenson v Lombard, (1802) 2 East 575; Thethalan v Eralpad Rajah, (1917) ILR 40 Mad 1111 : 40 IC 841.
- 1279 Mohini Mohan Roy v Ramdas Paramhansa, (1924) 28 Cal WN 271 : 80 IC 210 : AIR 1924 Cal 487; Ramadin v Sheoratan, (1903) 6 OC 184.
- 1280 Abdus Shakur v Nandlal, (1931) 29 All LJ 429 : 132 IC 543 : AIR 1931 All 552.
- 1281 Parbhu Narain Singh v Ramzan, (1919) ILR 41 All 417 : 49 IC 865 : AIR 1919 All 235.
- 1282 Ganges Manufacturing Co v Radharani, AIR 1945 Cal 89; Rambriksh v Shyamsundar, AIR 1962 Pat. 193 reversing AIR 1958 Pat. 467; and see Madho Prasad v Raja Jwaleshwari, (1960) All LJ 332 : AIR 1960 All 513 [LNIND 1960 ALL 55].
- 1283 Dyson v Foster, [1909] AC 98 : [1908–10] All ER Rep 212 .
- 1284 Ardeshar v KD & Brothers, (1925) 27 Bom LR 553 : 88 IC 79 : AIR 1925 Bom 330, following South of England Dairies Ltd v Baker, [1906] 2 ChD 631  .
- 1285 Saradakripa v Bepin Chandra, (1923) 37 Cal LJ 538 : 74 IC 555 : AIR 1923 Cal 679; Kumarchandra v Narendranath, (1930) ILR 57 Cal 953 : 127 IC 76 : AIR 1930 Cal 357; Parbhu Narain Singh v Ramzan, (1919) ILR 41 All 417 : 49 IC 865; Madho Prasad v Raja Jwaleshwari, (1960) All LJ 332 : AIR 1960 All 513 [LNIND 1960 ALL 55]. But see Rambriksh v Shyamsunder, AIR 1962 Pat. 193, contra.
- 1286 Hoogly Bank v Mahendra Nath, (1950) 54 Cal WN 327 : AIR 1950 Cal 195.
- 1287 Rajpur Colliery Co v Pursottam, (1959) ILR 38 [LNIND 1958 RAJ 87] Pat 443 : AIR 1959 Pat. 463.
- 1288 Karan Baksh v Phula Bibi, (1896) ILR 8 All 102; Kuar Dat Prasad v Nahar Singh, (1888) ILR 11 All 257; Ram Jiwan v Ratturaj Singh, (1889) All WN 81; Bahadur Singh v Ram Singh, (1904) ILR 27 All 12.
- 1289 See Dalganjan Singh v Kalka Singh, (1899) ILR 22 All 1.
- 1290 Rambaran v Ram Mohit, [1967] 1 SCR 293 [LNIND 1966 SC 173] : AIR 1967 SC 744 [LNIND 1966 SC 173].
- 1291 Manubhai v Cambatta, (1948) ILR Nag 200 : AIR 1948 Ngp 286.

40. Burden of obligation imposing restriction on use of land.—

- 1292 Radha Kamal v Purimuinapabty, AIR 1954 Ori. 110 [LNIND 1953 ORI 19] .
- 1293 Lalji Jetha v Kalidas Devchand, [1967] 1 SCR 873 [LNIND 1966 SC 262] : AIR 1967 SC 978 [LNIND 1966 SC 262] : [1968] 1 SCJ 48 ; Chandmohammad v Murtazakhan, (1958) ILR Bom 234 : 59 Bom LR 1054 : AIR 1958 Bom 194 [LNIND 1957 BOM 99] .
- 1294 Bai Dossibai v Mathuradas, AIR 1980 SC 1334 [LNIND 1980 SC 201] : (1980) 3 SCC 545 [LNIND 1980 SC 201] ; Narayana Pillai Chandrasekharan Nair v Kunju Amma Thankamma, AIR 1990 Ker. 177 [LNIND 1989 KER 273] , p 180.
- 1295 Kondapalli Satyanarayana v Kondapalli Mayulla, AIR 1999 AP 170 [LNIND 1998 AP 874] , para 11.
- 1296 Main Pir Bus v Sardar Mahomed Tahar, 61 IA 388 : 60 Cal LJ 370 : 67 Mad LJ 865 : 36 Bom LR 1195 : (1934) All LJ 912 : 151 IC 326 : AIR 1934 PC 235 .
- 1297 Mohini Debi v Purna Sashi, (1932) 36 Cal WN 153 : 55 Cal LJ 198 : 138 IC 24 : AIR 1932 Cal 451 .
- 1298 Bhupati Bhushan v Birendra Mohan, (1948) ILR 1 Cal 492.
- 1299 Nunia Mal v Maha Dev, AIR 1962 Punj 299 .
- 1300 Controller of Estate Duty, Lucknow v Alope Mitra, (1981) 2 SCC 121 [LNIND 1980 SC 424] , p 134.
- 1301 KR Varadaraja Iyengar v T Laxminarayana Setty, AIR 1985 Kant. 245 [LNIND 1985 KANT 36] , p 248.
- 1302 Leela v Ambujakshy, AIR 1989 Ker. 308 [LNIND 1989 KER 169] , p 311.
- 1303 Sri Brahdambal Agency & Partnership Firm v Ramasanty, AIR 2002 Mad. 252 [LNIND 2001 MAD 1052] , paras 52 & 53.
- 1304 Taraknath v Sanatkumar, (1930) ILR 57 Cal 274 : 122 IC 637 : AIR 1929 Cal 494 .
- 1305 Madan Mohan v Rebait Mohan, (1916) 21 Cal WN 158 : 34 IC 953.
- 1306 Venkata Reddi v Yellappa Chetty, 38 IC 107; Veeraraghavayya v Kamaladevi, (1935) 68 Mad LJ 67 : 157 IC 1104 : AIR 1935 Mad. 193 [LNIND 1934 MAD 387] ; Athinarayana v Subramania, (1941) 2 Mad LJ 722 : 54 Mad LW 474 : 201 IC 307 : AIR 1942 Mad. 67 [LNIND 1941 MAD 85] .
- 1307 Qurban Ali v Ashraf Ali, (1882) ILR 4 All 219, p 225; Sunkari Sitayya v Mudaragaddi, (1924) 46 Mad LJ 361 : 80 IC 388 : AIR 1924 Mad. 610 [LNIND 1924 MAD 4] ; Laxman v Ramchandra, (1932) 34 Bom LR 117 : 139 IC 610 : AIR 1932 Bom 301 .
- 1308 Paparaju Veeraraghayya v Killaru Kamala Devi, AIR 1935 Mad. 193 [LNIND 1934 MAD 387] ; Veerappa Thevar v CS Venkatarama Aiyar, AIR 1935 Mad. 872 [LNIND 1935 MAD 222] .
- 1309 Vannarakal K Sreedharan v Chandramaath Balakrishnan, (1990) 3 SCC 291 [LNIND 1990 SC 137] ; Purna Chandra Basak v Doulal Ali Moullah, AIR 1973 Cal 432 [LNIND 1973 CAL 168] ; Rango Ramchandra Kulkarni v Gurlingappa Chinnappa Muthal, AIR 1941 Bom 198 ; Yeshvant Shankar Dunnakhe v Pyaraji Nurji Tamboli, AIR 1943 Bom 145 ; Kochuponchi Varughese v Ouseph Lopan, AIR 1952 Tr & Coch 467.
- 1310 Purna Chandra Basak v Daulat Ali Mollah, AIR 1973 Cal 432 [LNIND 1973 CAL 168] : 78 Cal WN 352; Vannaralkal K Sreedharan v Chandramaath Balakrishnan, (1990) 3 SCC 291 [LNIND 1990 SC 137] .
- 1311 Angu Pillai v MSM Kasiviswanathan Chettiar, AIR 1974 Mad. 16 [LNIND 1972 MAD 198] ; Vannaralkal K Sreedharan v Chandramaath Balakrishnan, (1990) 3 SCC 291 [LNIND 1990 SC 137] .
- 1312 Mohinder Singh v Nanak Singh, AIR 1971 P & H 381.
- 1313 Vennarkkal K Sreedharan v Chandramaath Balkrishnan, (1990) 3 SCC 291 [LNIND 1990 SC 137] , p 294.
- 1314 Hamda Ammal v Avadiappa Pathar, (1991) 1 SCC 715 [LNIND 1990 SC 679] .
- 1315 See commentary on section 14.
- 1316 Rambaran v Ram Mohit, [1967] 1 SCR 293 [LNIND 1966 SC 173] : AIR 1967 SC 744 [LNIND 1966 SC 173] .
- 1317 See Basdeo Rai v Jhagru Rai, (1924) ILR 46 All 33 : 83 IC 390 : AIR 1924 All 400 ; Aulad Ali v Ali Athar, (1927) ILR 49 All 527 : 100 IC 683 : AIR 1927 All 170 ; Harkisondas Bhagwandas v Bai Dhanu, (1926) ILR 50 Bom 566 : 98 IC 634 : AIR 1926 Bom 497 ; Rakhana Sitaram v Laxman, (1959) ILR Bom 1705 : 61 Bom LR 1170 : AIR 1960 Bom 105 [LNIND 1959 BOM 36] ; K R Nair v K K Nair, AIR 1976 Ker. 22 : (1975) ILR 2 Ker 709.
- 1318 See notes under section 6(d).
- 1319 Jogmaya v Tulsa, (1926) ILR 48 All 12 : 89 IC 444 : AIR 1926 All 70 (covenant of pre-emption is a registered lease); Kameswaramma v Sitaramanuja, (1906) ILR 29 Mad 177.
- 1320 Basdeo Rai v Jhagru Rai, (1924) ILR 46 All 333 : 83 IC 390 : AIR 1924 All 400 .
- 1321 Puthenpurayil v Kondiyal, (1916) Mad WN 31 : 34 IC 906.

40. Burden of obligation imposing restriction on use of land.—

- 1322 Sucha Singh v Paramjit Kaur, AIR 2002 P&H. 46 , para 54.
- 1323 Thomson Press (India) Ltd v Nanak Builders & Investors Pvt Ltd, AIR 2013 SC 2389 [LNIND 2013 SC 1232] : JT 2013 (3) SC 289 [LNIND 2013 SC 1232] : 2013(3) Scale 26 [LNIND 2013 SC 1232] : (2013) 5 SCC 397 [LNIND 2013 SC 1232] .
- 1324 Venkatta Reddi v Yellappa Chetty, 38 IC 107.
- 1325 Nur Mahomed v Dinshaw, (1922) 45 Mad LJ 770 : 71 IC 625 : AIR 1924 PC 393 .
- 1326 Nand Gopal v Batuk Prasad, (1932) ILR 54 All 17 : (1932) All LJ 36 : 133 IC 541 : AIR 1932 All 78 .

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(B\) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

Where, with the consent, express or implied, of the persons interested in immovable property, a person is the ostensible owner of such property and transfers the same for consideration, the transfer shall not be voidable on the ground that the transferor was not authorised to make it:

Provided that the transferee, after taking reasonable care to ascertain that the transferor had power to make the transfer, has acted in good faith.

[s 41.1] Principle

The foundation of the section is the following well-known passage from the judgment of the Judicial Committee in Ramcoomar v Mac-queen:

1327

It is a principle of natural equity which must be universally applicable that, where one man allows another to hold himself out as the owner of an estate and a third person purchases it, for value, from the apparent owner in the belief that he is the real owner, the man who so allows the other to hold himself out shall not be permitted to recover upon his secret title, unless he can overthrow that of the purchaser by showing either that he had direct notice, or something which amounts to constructive notice, of the real title; or that there existed circumstances which ought to have put him upon an enquiry that, if prosecuted, would have led to a discovery of it.

The section is a statutory application of the law of estoppel,¹³²⁸ the general principle of which is thus stated by the House of Lords in Cairncross v Lorimer.¹³²⁹

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

If a man, either by words or by conduct, has initiated that he consents to an act which has been done, and that he will offer no opposition to it, although it could not have been lawfully done without his consent, and he thereby induces others to do that from which they might have abstained—he cannot question the legality of the act he had so sanctioned—to the prejudice of those who have so given faith to his words or to the fair inference to be drawn from his conduct.

The law of estoppel is enacted in section 115 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 and Shepherd and Brown point out that the leading case on that section falls equally under section 41 of the TP Act. In that case,¹³³⁰ the owner transferred property to his wife as benamidar and after his death she mortgaged the property, her son assisting in the transaction and receiving the mortgage money. The son was held to be estopped from disputing the mortgage, while if this section had been applied, the case would have been decided on the ground that by the consent of the son, the mother was the ostensible owner.

The transferee will be protected only if he has acted in good faith after taking reasonable care to ascertain that the transferor has power to make the transfer.¹³³¹ The transferee who willfully shuts his eyes and takes the transfer without any inquiry is not protected. The transferee is also required to show that he had purchased the property after taking care to ascertain that the transferor had power to make the transfer. What is reasonable care depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case, and no hard and fast rules can be laid down.¹³³²

The principle of this section applies to the territory of Delhi.¹³³³ The section makes an exception to the rule that a person cannot confer a better title than he has.¹³³⁴

[s 41.2] Court Sale

The section applies only to voluntary transfers, and has no application to court sales.¹³³⁵ The provisions of sections 41 and 43 logically get engaged in voluntary transfers, and not in involuntary transfers like auction sales.¹³³⁶ Where under a court auction the property was sold and the vendee was directed to hand over the vacant possession to the recovery officer, his claim to be a bonafide purchaser on the basis of sale deed that was not surrendered, would not be accepted and order passed by recovery officer to him to hand over vacant possession of the property would be proper.¹³³⁷

[s 41.3] Requirements of the Section

The following conditions are necessary for the application of the section,¹³³⁸ namely:

- (1) the transferor is the ostensible owner;
- (2) he is so by the consent, express or implied, of the real owner;¹³³⁹
- (3) the transfer is for consideration;
- (4) the transferee has acted in good faith, taking reasonable care to ascertain that the transferor had power to transfer.¹³⁴⁰

If any one of these elements is wanting, the transferee is not entitled to the benefit of the section.¹³⁴¹ The basis of the rule is some representation or act or conduct on the part of the true owner.¹³⁴² The vendor must be the ostensible owner of the property.¹³⁴³ If there is no ostensible owner and/or with a real owner, the principle under this section has no application.¹³⁴⁴ The principle does not apply in case of gifts and other transfers effected without any monetary consideration.¹³⁴⁵ The question whether the section applies to a given set of facts is a question of law.¹³⁴⁶ This is on the principle that “the proper legal effect of a proved fact is necessarily a question of law”.¹³⁴⁷

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

In order to obtain the benefit of this section, the transferee must plead it and set out the relevant facts in his pleading.¹³⁴⁸ An alienee from an ostensible owner is protected under section 41, if the alienee can establish that the sale was with the consent, express or implied, of the true owner, and that it was for consideration, and that the alienee had taken reasonable care to ascertain that the transferor had the power to make the transfer and had acted in good faith.¹³⁴⁹

[s 41.4] Ostensible Owner

An ostensible owner is one who has all the indicia of ownership without being the real owner.¹³⁵⁰ It must be shown that with the consent of the true owner, the ostensible owner was able to represent himself as the owner of the property to the purchaser for value without notice.¹³⁵¹ It has been held that the possession of a manager cannot be treated as ostensible ownership with the consent of the real owner,¹³⁵² and this was held to be so even in a case where the manager's name had been entered in the Municipal House Register as the real owner.¹³⁵³ A professed agent or manager cannot of course be an ostensible owner,¹³⁵⁴ nor can the occupation of a menial servant constitute ostensible ownership.¹³⁵⁵ But section 41 would apply where the plaintiff allowed his mother to act as manager with the right to alienate for necessity.¹³⁵⁶ If the property vests in an idol, it would not be possible to hold that this trustee or the manager of the idol can set himself up as the owner of the property.¹³⁵⁷ A co-sharer in occupation of a joint family residential property cannot be held to be an ostensible owner.¹³⁵⁸ The conduct of co-sharers in permitting one of them to manage the common property does not by itself raise any estoppel precluding them from asserting their rights.¹³⁵⁹ A displaced person who has been allotted land by the government would be an ostensible owner. Where the property was allotted to a displaced person, but his legal heirs fraudulently obtained allotment at another place and sold the allotted property, the sale would be void, as the legal heirs and the alienee would not be entitled to the protection of section 41.¹³⁶⁰ Similarly, where the state government transferred by sale the land belonging to the Panchayat Samiti in absence of evidence that the transfer was with the consent of the Samiti, express or implied, the plea of protection under section 41 will not be entertained.¹³⁶¹

It has been held that a mortgagor is the owner of a limited interest, and not an ostensible owner and, therefore, the purchaser of an equity of redemption is not entitled to the protection of this section against the mortgagee.¹³⁶² This is correct, but the transferee may, it is submitted, in an appropriate case, claim the benefit of the principle behind the section, if he has been led by the conduct of the mortgagee to believe that the property was unencumbered. A donor who has not reserved to himself any power of revocation of the deed of gift cannot be regarded as an ostensible owner even if the deed of gift has been in his possession.¹³⁶³ A Mahomedan son and daughter inherited property, but as the son remained in possession of his sister's share as well as his own for 25 years, had all the property entered in the revenue papers in his sole name, and alone executed mortgages of the whole property, he was treated as ostensible owner of his sister's share.¹³⁶⁴ So also, when the other heirs of a Mahomedan, who lived in another village, left the widow in sole possession and allowed her to deal with it as if she was solely entitled.¹³⁶⁵ Again, a widow, who had a half share in a house and allowed her husband's cousin to deal with it as if it were his own, was estopped as she had held him out as ostensible owner.¹³⁶⁶ On the other hand, the manager of a Hindu family who has the power to alienate family property only in case of necessity or for the benefit of the estate, cannot be treated as an ostensible owner.¹³⁶⁷ A vendor coparcener in occupation of portion of ancestral property, does not become “ostensible owner”.¹³⁶⁸ Where the transferor and the transferee are closely related as uncle and nephew, the transferee is expected to know the real nature of the transaction, and cannot claim the protection of the section.¹³⁶⁹ Nor can a transferee from a Hindu widow claim the protection of section 41, for a Hindu widow holds in her own right, and not as ostensible owner.¹³⁷⁰

The term “ostensible owner” would include transferee from State government or Union government. An allottee under the Displaced Persons Compensation and Rehabilitation Act (Act 44 of 1954), can be treated to be an

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

ostensible owner and the government as the real owner.¹³⁷¹

A benamidar is an ostensible owner, and if a person purchases from a benamidar, the real owner cannot recover, unless he shows that the purchaser had actual or constructive notice of the real title.¹³⁷² A benami transaction in a sense is not a sham transaction. The essence of a benami transfer is to give it the appearance of reality, to cloak a fictitious transfer with all the appearance of a genuine one.¹³⁷³

The benamidar before the enactment of Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, 1988, could not have any right title or interest in the property which the benamidar could convey. A mere declaration by such benamidar in a release deed that he has no right or interest in the property and that he was a mere benamidar of the release, could not operate as a conveyance.¹³⁷⁴

Principles for determining whether transfer is benami are as under:¹³⁷⁵

- (1) The burden of showing that a transfer is a benami transaction lies on the person who asserts that it is such a transaction;
- (2) if it is proved that the purchase money came from a person other than the person in whose favour the property is transferred, the purchase is prima facie assumed to be for the benefit of the person who supplied the purchase money, unless there is evidence to the contrary;
- (3) the true character of the transaction is governed by the intention of the person who has contributed the purchase money; and
- (4) the question as to what his intention was has to be decided on the basis of the surrounding circumstances, the relationship of the parties, the motive governing their action in bringing about the transaction and their subsequent conduct etc.

In benami transactions, the points to be considered are the motive for the transaction, the custody of the title deeds, the payment of considerations and actual possession of the property in dispute. If, there is a plausible explanation as to why the documents are taken in the name of the other party, and if a person setting out a benami theory is in possession of title deeds, he is in possession of the property, and has made payment of consideration then undoubtedly, it is a benami transaction.¹³⁷⁶

The Gujarat High Court¹³⁷⁷ relying upon the decision of the apex court in Bhim Singh v Kan Singh held that by making internal arrangements and getting the sale deed executed in favor of the defendant, there was no intention of either of the parties to have benami transactions, or that the defendant should not have any beneficial interest in the property. For almost 18 years, there was no thought of benami transaction, and it is only at the time of filing of the suit that there was a legal brainwave, and an idea was struck for invoking the benami element. There is no substance in this contention.

[s 41.5] Application to Mortgages

The principle of the section is not restricted to conveyances, and also applies to mortgages. A mortgagee from an ostensible owner acting in good faith and with reasonable care has frequently been allowed the benefit of the section.¹³⁷⁸

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

In the undernoted case;¹³⁷⁹ there was a difference of opinion as to whether an ostensible mortgagee could be treated as an ostensible owner. It is submitted that he is the ostensible owner of the mortgagee's interest. If a purchaser for consideration of that interest, who had acted in good faith and with reasonable care, sought to enforce the mortgage, it seems clear that the mortgagor, who had created that interest, would be estopped.

ILLUSTRATION

A is induced by B to make an colourable conveyance of her house to her granddaughter C who is B's wife. C makes a colourable conveyance to D who is B's brother, 10 years later, D makes a colourable conveyance to B. The names of C and then of D have been registered as owners and B who is in possession, mortgages the house to E. E accepts the mortgage after enquiry with reasonable care, in good faith believing B to be the owner. E obtains a decree for sale of the mortgage and purchases the house. A is barred by section 41 from setting up her title to the house.

[s 41.6] Consent

The real owner is not responsible, unless the apparent ownership of the transferor has been permitted or created by him. He creates or permits the appearance of ownership either by express words of consent, or by acts or conduct which imply consent. It is not necessary that he should have been influenced by a fraudulent intention, for his liability rests upon his having put the transferor in a position which enabled him to commit a fraud. This is on the principle that "when one of two innocent persons must suffer from the fraud of a third, he shall suffer who, by his indiscretion, has enabled such third person to commit the fraud".¹³⁸⁰ The same principle was stated in somewhat wider terms by J Ashurst in Lickbarrow v Mason,¹³⁸¹ that wherever one of two innocent persons must suffer by the acts of a third, he who has enabled such person to occasion the loss must sustain it.

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A husband entered his land in the revenue records in his wife's name and went away on a pilgrimage. Before his departure he had allowed her to mortgage the land. After his departure, she sold the land and the vendee paid off the mortgage. The husband on his return could neither recover the land nor redeem the mortgage.¹³⁸²

(2) A, a Hindu husband, purchased land in the name of his wife, B. The land was then entered in B's name in the revenue records. After A's death B, the widow, mortgaged the land to C who took the mortgage after due enquiry believing in good faith that B was the owner. C obtained a decree for sale on his mortgage and purchased the land. But D was then in possession for D had purchased the land in execution of a money decree against A. C's suit against D for possession was decreed. D was the successor in interest of A who had held out his wife as the ostensible owner and could not defeat the mortgagee who was a transferee in good faith from the ostensible owner.¹³⁸³

(3) A, a Hindu, dies leaving a daughter B who takes a limited estate by inheritance, B makes a statement to the revenue authorities that A's separated brother C is his heir, and allows C to take possession of the estate. On B's death, her son claims to succeed as reversionary heir of A. C is not entitled to the protection of section 41, for his ostensible ownership has not been created by the real owner M, but by the limited owner B.¹³⁸⁴

The consent must be a free consent as defined in section 14 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, and it has been held that it must be an intelligent consent, and not one brought about by a misapprehension of legal rights.¹³⁸⁵ However, a consent based on a mistake of fact had been held to be within the section.¹³⁸⁶ Only those alienees from an ostensible owner are protected, who can establish that the sale in their favour was with the consent, express or implied, of the true owner—and that too, only on proving that it was for consideration, and that they had taken reasonable care to ascertain that the transferor had the power to make the transfer, and that they acted in good faith.

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

A property sold was pre-empted and the pre-emption money was paid by the pre-emptor, but he did not take possession of the property. The prior owners again sold the property to the appellants. On compulsory acquisition of the property, the compensation money was claimed by the respondent, the pre-emptor who was the real owner. The appellants claimed protection under section 41, TP Act, 1882, but were denied the same. It was held that the respondent was concededly minor at the time of sales in favour of the appellants. He, therefore, could not be held to have consented expressly or impliedly to the transaction.¹³⁸⁷

Section 41 does not apply to minors, and a minor's guardian who transfers the property of a minor cannot be treated as an ostensible owner with the consent of the minor,¹³⁸⁸ who, by reason of the disability of infancy, cannot give his consent.¹³⁸⁹ The doctrine of estoppel does not apply to minors,¹³⁹⁰ and still less will the court hold an infant estopped by the acts and omissions of others.¹³⁹¹

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) The owner, a Mohamedan, died leaving a widow and two minor sons. The widow's share was one-eighth, but she got herself registered as owner of one-third. She then mortgaged the one-third share to A. A obtained a decree for sale on his mortgage and purchased the property. A then sold to B. The sons were entitled to recover their proper share from B. A could not be ostensible owner with their consent, express or implied, because they were minors.¹³⁹²

(2) A made a colourable conveyance of his patni estate to B but retained possession of the conveyance and the patni lease. After A's death his widow as guardian of his minor son appointed B as agent to collect the rents. B sold the property to C. The son was not barred by section 41 from asserting his title against C.

This is because—

- (i) appointment as agent did not make B the ostensible owner;
- (ii) even if B was the ostensible owner he was not so with the consent, express or implied, of the son as the son was then a minor; and
- (iii) if C had taken reasonable care, he would have found that B was not in possession of the deeds of title.¹³⁹³

Where the widows of the sons of a deceased mortgagee accepted payment of the debt from the mortgagors and transferred the property to them, the real heirs were not bound, for although the widow's names were entered in the revenue records, they had not consented to the transfer.¹³⁹⁴

Consent of all owners is necessary when a property which is not partitioned, is transferred by one of the owners. In a case where there has been no evidence, either oral or documentary to establish that there has been some partition, the transferee is not a bona fide purchaser and is not entitled to the benefit of section 41.¹³⁹⁵

[s 41.7] Implied Consent

Implied consent is consent evidenced by conduct. Thus, if the real owner knows that another person is dealing with his property as if it were his own, and acquiesces, his inaction will imply consent.¹³⁹⁶ However, consent must be to ostensible ownership, there is no such consent where co-sharers left the management of the property to one of them, whose name was also shown in the revenue records as owner, as the least inquiry would have disclosed the true facts.¹³⁹⁷ In a case where the purchaser of a tenure allowed his vendor to represent himself to be still the tenant and to continue to pay the rent of the landlord, the purchaser was bound by a decree for sale in execution of a decree for rent against the vendor.¹³⁹⁸ But in a similar case where the vendor paid rent because the landlord refused to receive the rent from the purchaser, J Mukerji held that there is no acquiescence, and that the purchaser was not bound by the landlord's decree.¹³⁹⁹ These cases were decided on the principle to section 41 for the transfer was involuntary, and by operation of the law. But silence will not work an estoppel, unless it is such as to induce a belief that the party keeping silence has no rights.¹⁴⁰⁰ When purdanashin ladies left the management of their property in the hands of male members of the family who dealt with it without their active concurrence, the Privy Council held that their conduct had not been such as to mislead the mortgagees of the property.¹⁴⁰¹ However, in another case where two Mahomedan sisters allowed a spendthrift brother to dissipate their share of the property, the Privy Council held that the brother was the ostensible owner with the implied consent of the sisters, and this was because both the sisters had husbands who understood business.¹⁴⁰² The inaction or silence of a real owner at a time when he was not conscious of his own rights would not debar him from urging his own claim against a transferor even if he is one for consideration. It is essential that a person giving consent must be aware of his right.¹⁴⁰³ It has been held in some cases¹⁴⁰⁴ that silence or inactivity can never amount to implied consent, even where the real owner is aware of his rights and of the transfer. This seems doubtful, for considerations of equity would require that a party keeping silent ought to be estopped if such silence induces a belief that he has no rights in the property.¹⁴⁰⁵ When the real owner, by his conduct, allowed the world at large to believe that he has no right in the property, and infact was not in possession of the property and transactions reflected in the revenue record and in the registered documents fully supported the ostensible title and the possession of the ostensible owner, the purchasers under such circumstances are entitled to protection under section 41.¹⁴⁰⁶ Where the owner executes a power of attorney authorizing his attorney to sell the property, which he did for consideration through a registered deed, it was held that a suit for injunction was barred by section 41.¹⁴⁰⁷

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

A mortgage contained so inaccurate a description of the property that a purchaser from the mortgagor did not discover the mortgage on a search of the register. This inaccuracy was held to be due to gross negligence on the part of the mortgagee, which enabled the mortgagor to hold himself out as ostensible owner so that the purchaser acquired a title free from the mortgage.¹⁴⁰⁸ But in a similar case, it was doubted whether such negligence would amount to implied consent.¹⁴⁰⁹

It has been said that the words “with the consent express or implied” govern the word “transfers”.¹⁴¹⁰ This is erroneous for if the real owner consented to the transfer he would be estopped under section 115 Indian Evidence Act, 1872, irrespective of this section.¹⁴¹¹ Moreover, the section applies when the person, who, with the consent express or implied of the real owner, in the position of an ostensible owner, makes a transfer of which the real owner is unaware.¹⁴¹²

[s 41.8] Attestation

Attestation does not by itself imply consent.¹⁴¹³ Attestation estops a man from denying nothing whatsoever, except that he has witnessed the execution of the deed.¹⁴¹⁴ It may, of course, be proved that attestation took place in circumstances, which involved knowledge of, or consent to, the transaction;¹⁴¹⁵ and it has been said that the ordinary practice in India is to require attestation in token of consent.¹⁴¹⁶ But this practice has been condemned by the Privy Council. Lord Buckmaster said:

If in fact there be a practice, as is suggested from the evidence, that when the consent of parties to a transaction is required, it can be obtained by inducing them by one means or another to attest a signature of the executing parties, the sooner that practice is discontinued the better it will be for the straightforward dealing essential in all business matters.¹⁴¹⁷

[s 41.9] Reasonable Care

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

Reasonable care has been explained to mean such care as an ordinary man of business would take.¹⁴¹⁸ Reasonable care is to be expected from every one who claims to have purchased free from a really existing right.¹⁴¹⁹ Revenue records are not documents of title, and it is not safe to rely on the entry of the transferor's name in the revenue registers. A transferee who does so and omits to inquire into title is not protected by this section.¹⁴²⁰ This also applies to entries in Municipal and Police registers.¹⁴²¹ Mere entrusting of an inquiry to a solicitor does not amount to reasonable care.¹⁴²² A discrepancy in the sale certificate between the description of the property by its name and delineation by boundaries ought to put the transferee on guard.¹⁴²³

[s 41.10] Possession and Entries in Revenue Records

It may be that on the facts of a case, it is sufficient if the purchaser ascertains that his vendor is in possession and is entered in the revenue records¹⁴²⁴ (illustrations 1 and 2), but this does not dispense with the duty to make the usual inquiry into title (illustration 3).¹⁴²⁵

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) Three grandsons were heirs of one-third of an estate, but they took possession of the whole and entered the whole in their names in the revenue registers, and mortgaged the whole property to a mortgagee who took in good faith. The other heirs to one-thirds of the property were barred by section 41 from disputing the mortgage of their share.¹⁴²⁶

(2) A assigned a lease of town land to B, but A remained in possession and the land was not transferred to the name of B in the Government register. A leased a plot of the land to C who took the lease finding A in possession and the land standing in his name. B was barred by section 41 from asserting his title against C.¹⁴²⁷

(3) A gave a usufructuary mortgage of land to B in 1867 and B's name was erroneously entered in the revenue records as owner. B, in 1914, mortgaged the land to C, part of the mortgage money being reserved to pay off a prior sub-mortgage of 1902. A sued to redeem the mortgage of 1867. C pleaded that B was in possession, was registered as owner and represented himself to be the owner and that he had not been liable on the mortgage of 1867. If C had made enquiry into title, he would have found that in the mortgage of 1902, B had described himself as mortgagee. C was not entitled to the protection of this section.¹⁴²⁸

(4) A tahsildar, being forbidden by departmental rules from acquiring land within the limits of his tahsil, purchased land in the name of his minor sons and entered it in their names in the revenue records. The sons afterwards sold and mortgaged the land to a person who acted in good faith and in reliance on the entries in the revenue papers. Nevertheless, the purchasers and mortgagees were not entitled to the protection of this section, as they should not have been satisfied with entries in the revenue records.¹⁴²⁹

(5) A is the owner of property which is entered in the revenue records in the name of B. B mortgages the property to C who accepts the mortgage relying on the revenue register. If C had made further enquiry, he would have found that A had objected to the entry of the property in B's name and that the property had been left to A by will. C is not protected by this section.¹⁴³⁰

[s 41.11] Inquiries into Title

The transferee must show that he has made the usual inquiry into title; otherwise he is not entitled to the protection of this section.¹⁴³¹ In this connection, the courts have frequently quoted a well-known passage from Lord Lindley's judgments in Bailey v Barnes:¹⁴³²

A purchaser of property is under no legal obligation to investigate his vendor's title. But in dealing with real property, as in other matters of business, regard is had to the usual course of business; and a purchaser who wilfully departs from it in order to avoid acquiring a knowledge of his vendor's title is not allowed to derive any advantage from his wilful ignorance of defects which would have come to his knowledge if he had transacted his business in the ordinary way.

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A and his brother B formed a joint and undivided Hindu family. A out of self-acquired funds purchased a house and took the conveyance in his own name. After A's death, his representatives sold the house to C. It appears that A had thrown the house into the common stock of the joint family, so that his representatives could only sell a half share. C claimed to have acquired title to the whole under section 41. But as he had made no enquiry into title at all, and had not even seen the main deed of title passing the property to A, he was not entitled to the protection of this section.¹⁴³³

(2) W owned a house in Cawnpore. In 1912 she went on a pilgrimage to Mecca leaving the house in charge, to a relation B. In 1915, B applied to the Municipality that he was not aware of W's whereabouts and nor whether she was dead or alive, and prayed that the house was entered in his name as he was her heir. The application was granted and two years later B sold the house to the defendant who purchased in good faith after inspecting the Municipal register W returned to Cawnpore in 1918 and claimed the house. The defendant was not entitled to the protection of section 41 for he knew that W was the original owner, and if he had carried his enquiries further, he would have ascertained that B had admitted in his application to the Municipality that he did not know whether W was dead or alive and the presumption of death could not be made before the lapse of seven years.¹⁴³⁴

(3) The male member of a Mahomedan family, who had adopted the Hindu religion in matters of worship, mortgaged family property without consulting the female members of the family. The mortgagee, a pleader, was under the impression that the parties were governed by Hindu law and that the females had no proprietary interest. The males had on previous occasions dealt with the property without the concurrences of the females. Nevertheless, as the mortgagees made no enquiry of the females or of their husbands, and as the former were purdanashin ladies who usually leave the management of property in the hands of male relations, the mortgagee was not protected by section 41.¹⁴³⁵

(4) Where vendor, being a member of the Scheduled Caste, had no right to alienate the land for a period of twenty years in view of rule 6(8) of the Punjab Package Deal Properties (Disposal) rules, 1976, it was held that the purchaser is not entitled to the protection of section 41 since had he made a reasonable enquiry, he could have ascertained the bar created by rule 6(8) and also would have found out the red ink entry in the jamabandi, which clearly indicated that the land in dispute could not be sold for twenty years.¹⁴³⁶

The title may be so clear that no particular inquiry is called for. In an Allahabad case,¹⁴³⁷ CJ Stanley said:

We think that where a person is found in possession of property, and is recorded as owner, and holds the title deeds of the property and deals with a third party in respect of it, there is nothing to suggest a want of good faith in such third party in dealing with him in respect of the property.

However, there may be circumstances which demand further inquiry; and as to these it is not sufficient to assert generally that inquiries should have been made, or that a prudent man would have made inquiry, but some specific circumstances should be pointed out as a starting point of an inquiry, which would have led to some result.¹⁴³⁸ The transferee cannot be held to have acted without reasonable care if there was no clue existing to suggest that the transferor was not the real owner.¹⁴³⁹ It is always necessary to make a particular inquiry if the transferor is the karta of a joint family,¹⁴⁴⁰ or if the land is in possession of a person other than the transferor.¹⁴⁴¹ A person who takes a mortgage from one whom he knows to be the sister's son or grandson of the original owner ought to inquire if there are any collaterals in existence.¹⁴⁴² When oral transfers were permitted by law in the state of Punjab, inspection of records in the registration office was not sine qua non while granting protection to the alienee under section 41 of the TP Act, 1882.¹⁴⁴³

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

Where the real owner is a woman who has allowed her male relations to deal with her property or her share of the property, her right may be defeated by the operation of this section, if the transferee has acted bona fide, and has taken reasonable care to investigate title. Such cases turn on their own facts. In Azima Bibi v Shamalanand,¹⁴⁴⁴ a case already referred to, the Privy Council held that purdanashin ladies who had left the management of their property to their male relations were not bound by a mortgage of family property executed by them alone. In an Allahabad case,¹⁴⁴⁵ J Mukerji observed that in Mahomedan families, the names of female heirs are never entered in the revenue records and that:

if we are to say that Mahomedan sons, simply because their names alone are down in the khewat, are entitled to give a good title to a transferee, and the mother and the sisters shall be precluded from claiming their shares, it would be disastrous indeed.

Similarly, in a Nagpur case,¹⁴⁴⁶ two Mahomedan brothers and a sister inherited property, and the sister allowed it to be entered in the revenue in the names of the brothers who sold it without consulting the sister; but the court said that “the facts that the transferors were Mahomedans ought to have put the present defendant and his predecessors in interest on enquiry as to whether there was a female heir in addition to the two transferors.” In Mubarakunissa v Muhammad Raza,¹⁴⁴⁷ the property of a deceased Mahomedan was inherited by three grandsons and two daughters. The grandsons took possession of the whole property, entered it in their own names in the register, and two years later mortgaged it. The daughters first heard of the mortgage when the mortgagee brought the property to sale, and although it does not appear that they had husbands to protect their interests, their claim was held barred by section 41. In Macneill & Co v Saroda Sundari,¹⁴⁴⁸ two Hindu brothers managed the property in which their mother had a third share, and the mother’s share was held bound by a permanent lease which they had granted without reference to her. The court distinguished the Privy Council case of *Azima Bibi v Shamalanand*¹⁴⁴⁹ on the ground that Hindu women do not as a rule succeed to property by inheritance.

[s 41.13] Good Faith

These words mean that the transferee had acted honestly, and in the real belief that the ostensible owner is the real owner. Reasonable care is not enough if there is absence of good faith. A person may act without negligence, but at the same time without honesty. A purchaser may have made a reasonably careful inquiry, but if, after ascertaining the true facts, he chooses to ignore them, he is not protected.¹⁴⁵⁰ But when a man purchased a possessory title believing in good faith that his vendor was the real owner, and any inquiry that he could have made would only have confirmed him in that belief, the court held he was protected by this section.¹⁴⁵¹ The court is slow to believe in the good faith of a transferee who lives in the same village as the real owner, and is acquainted with all the circumstances of his family.¹⁴⁵² Knowledge of the infirmity of the title of the transferor, deprives the transferee of the protection of this section.¹⁴⁵³ Mere misconception of the rights of the transferor will not avail. So, when a person bought property belonging to a female, who had been outcasted for unchastity, believing that her interest was forfeited, he was not protected by this section.¹⁴⁵⁴ So also, mere good faith is not sufficient. The purchaser must establish that he made reasonable inquiries.¹⁴⁵⁵ In a Punjab case, the allotment of land to a person (who had migrated from Pakistan to India) in lieu of the land owned in Pakistan, was cancelled by the rehabilitation authorities. Thereafter, the allottee took the land on lease from the rehabilitation authorities and started paying the lease money to them. The land was later auctioned and purchased by the defendants. On application by the allottee, the land was re-auctioned and at the time of re-auction, the allottee competed in the bid with the defendants. When he was unsuccessful in outbidding the defendants, he filed the suit challenging the order cancelling his allotment. However, he had not appealed against the order cancelling the allotment. It was held that the defendants were entitled to the benefit of section 41, and to the principle of estoppel. The conduct of the plaintiff was such that the defendants were led to a belief that the plaintiff consented to the sale of the property, and the purchasers acted in good faith in purchasing it at the time of auction. The plaintiff’s participation in the auction, and earlier payment of lease money to the rehabilitation authorities, made defendants believe that no dispute had been left between the plaintiff and the rehabilitation authorities. That conduct of the plaintiff was such that a purchaser at the time of auction could take it in good faith that the plaintiff did not claim the property.¹⁴⁵⁶ The Patna High Court has held that if the transaction is a sham one, the section cannot apply, since the transferee would then have knowledge of reality.¹⁴⁵⁷

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

Plaintiff vendor alleged that sale deed was as security for loan advanced by defendant. Plaintiff continued in possession despite the sale deed. The defendant admitted during cross-examination, that on many occasions he has entered into a sale transaction of the land to keep it as security. Therefore, it was held that sale deed was security for loan advanced, and not an outright sale.¹⁴⁵⁸

Where the transferee fails to prove that he acted in good faith taking reasonable care to ascertain that the transferor had the power to transfer the land he is not entitled to protection of section 41.¹⁴⁵⁹ Where the property was jointly owned by the three co-owners and the property was undivided, without a partition, and one of them transferred the property but the transferee had neither ascertained from any other person whether the transferor had the capacity to transfer the property, he cannot claim the benefit of being a bonafide transferee without notice and no protection under section 41 would be available to him.¹⁴⁶⁰ Similarly, a transferee pendente lite cannot seek the protection of section 41 as he cannot be considered a bonafide transferee without notice.¹⁴⁶¹

In a suit for declaration, a co-sharer with vendor could not be said to be the owner of share of his sister by way of adverse possession. Where the property was owned by the brother and a sister of their respective shares, and the plaintiff had not ousted the sister from the suit land and the vendor had also not abandoned her share in suit property, the subsequent vendees having made inquiry from revenue records and on satisfying themselves that as per revenue record vendor was owner of half of the share in the suit property had purchased the same, in such circumstances the subsequent vendees would be entitled to protection under section 41 being bonafide purchasers for consideration.¹⁴⁶²

Where the transferee knew it fully well that property belonged to “A” and the transferor, the grandson of A had no title over the property, a consent letter executed by A would neither convey any title nor create any interest in favour of the transferee in any land as the transferor had no right to sell the land and the transferee had knowledge of it. The transfer of property through sale would thus be not proper.¹⁴⁶³ In determining whether the relationship was based on trust or confidence, then the court shall consider the factual context.¹⁴⁶⁴

[s 41.13.1] When section 41 has no application

In case of failure to mention in the pleadings that the transferor was an ostensible owner with consent of the original owner of the land, the claim of the plaintiff for right, title in land on account of transfer of land by a person other than owner to him would not be accepted. Section 41 has no application where transfer is held invalid under sections 19 and 24 of the Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation Act, (Act 44 of 1954)), as no estoppel can be pleaded against provisions of a statute. It would be within right of subsequent purchasers to challenge order of cancellation on merits, but sale in their favour cannot be protected under section 41 of the Transfer of Property Act. The subsequent vendee can only claim refund or damages from his vendor. Section 41 cannot be applied for the benefit of a transferee pendente lite as he would not be a bonafide transferee without notice.¹⁴⁶⁵

[s 41.13.2] Limitation in a Suit for Cancellation of the Sale Deed

Where right from the execution of the sale deed and whenever the transferee had tried to get the mutation done in his name the co-owners had been objecting to it and ultimately an order was passed by the court that gave them the cause of action, a suit filed within three years from this order would be within the period of limitation.¹⁴⁶⁶

[s 41.14] Partial Interest

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

The section also applies to cases where the transferor has actually some interest and the appearance of an interest greater than he really has. In one case, the plaintiff granted a mortgage by conditional sale by two contemporaneous deeds, one a sale and the other an agreement of reconveyance. The plaintiff retained the agreement of reconveyance, and the mortgagee who was in possession sold the land after the lapse of 42 years to the defendant, who on inspection of the sale deed believed the mortgagee to be a vendee. The plaintiff sued to redeem the defendant, but section 41 was held to bar the suit.¹⁴⁶⁷ It may be observed, in passing, that such a case could not occur since the amendment of section 58(c) which requires a condition of reconveyance in a mortgage to be engrossed in the same deed. Cases in which the transferor is a mortgagor or one of several heirs have already been cited.

[s 41.15] Onus of Proof

The section is an exception to the general rule that no person can dispose of an interest in property that is not vested in him and, therefore, the onus is, in the first place, on the transferee to show that the transferor was the ostensible owner, and that he (the transferee) had acted in good faith, and with reasonable care.¹⁴⁶⁸ The person who alleges that the property conveyed to another really belongs to him must prove his allegation.¹⁴⁶⁹

This burden of proving a transaction to be a benami one is on the person who alleges the same to be benami, because the apparent state of affairs must be taken to be real, unless the contrary is proved. In a suit for declaration of title to the suit property on a plea that the defendant was a benamidar of the plaintiff, the initial burden is on the plaintiff to prove the benami nature of the transaction.¹⁴⁷⁰ The burden, however, does not continuously rest in one place, but may shift to the other side. Where it is not possible to obtain evidence which conclusively establishes or rebuts the allegation, the case must be dealt with on reasonable probabilities and legal inferences arising from proved or admitted facts.¹⁴⁷¹ The decision must be based on legal grounds, and not mere suspicion.¹⁴⁷²

The onus is then shifted on the party seeking to defeat the transferee's title to show that there was something to call attention and invoke inquiry. This is because the real owner having created the appearance of title in another person, it is incumbent on him, or on those who derive title from him to show something which amounts to constructive notice of the real title, some specific circumstance as the starting point of an inquiry which would have led to the discovery of it.¹⁴⁷³ The same rule was applied in a case where the ostensible owner had a lien on the property.¹⁴⁷⁴ If notice by the purchaser is pleaded by the real owner, the burden is on him (the real owner) to prove such notice. He must show that the purchaser had direct notice, or something which amounts to constructive notice of the real title, or that there existed circumstance which ought to have put the purchaser on an inquiry which, if prosecuted properly, could have led to discovery of the real title.¹⁴⁷⁵

To substantiate a case of benami, several factors have to be taken into consideration by the court. The relevant factors are:

- (a) the consideration;
- (b) possession and enjoyment of the property;
- (c) possession of the title deeds;
- (d) motive, and
- (e) mutation in the public records.

Further, if the benamidar and the real owner were related as wife and husband, the payment of consideration

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

may not be decisive, for, it is most likely that the husband intended to benefit the wife.¹⁴⁷⁶

[s 41.16] Subsequent Transferee

The section is not limited to the immediate purchaser from an ostensible owner, but extends to subsequent purchasers also. Even if the immediate purchaser had notice, yet the ultimate purchaser, if he purchases bona fide and with reasonable care, is protected.¹⁴⁷⁷ A is the real owner of property and leaves it in the possession of B as ostensible owner. B sells it to C, who has constructive notice of A's title. C then sells it to D, who is not aware of the fact which gave C constructive notice. D buys from C in good faith and after inquiry with reasonable care, D is entitled to the protection of the section. Where a sale deed and power of attorney in favour of the defendant purchaser was duly registered and the purchaser had also created the third party rights by subsequent sale of suit property by virtue of the power of attorney and sale deed, it was held that such third party's rights have to be protected and the plaintiff having failed to prove loan transaction would not be entitled to get the relief of suit for title and cancellation of power of attorney and sale deed.¹⁴⁷⁸

[s 41.17] Section 52 Excludes section 41

In a case decided by Allahabad High Court the property was in the possession of three illegitimate sons whose names were entered in the revenue records. The rightful heir filed a suit to recover possession and obtained a decree. But a few days after he filed the suit, the illegitimate sons mortgaged the property, and the mortgagee, relying on their ostensible ownership, claimed that the rightful heir was bound by the mortgage. The mortgagors whose names were entered in the revenue records and who were in possession were no doubt ostensible owners; but as the real owners had filed a suit against them, it is clear that they were not, on the date on which the mortgage was made, ostensible owners with their consent, express or implied. In Ishwar Das v Bir Singh,¹⁴⁷⁹ the property in dispute initially belonged to A, who gifted some landed property to W, but pursuant to the suit filed by his sons, it was found that the gifted land also included the ancestral property and W was entitled to only a 1/6 of the same and not 1/3. During the pendency of the suit regarding the ancestral property, B purchased the part of property of W; claimed himself as a bonafide purchaser; and prayed for a decree for declaration and protection of his joint possession to the extent of 1/3 of the ancestral property. The court held that B was not entitled to the protection contemplated under section 41 of the Act for the reasons that section 52 of the Act has an overriding effect on section 41 and the person having purchased property during the pendency of the suit is not entitled to the protection of section 41 of the Act. The doctrine of lis pendens under section 52, therefore, excludes the doctrine of ostensible ownership under this section.¹⁴⁸⁰

[s 41.18] Registration Act, 1908

Section 41 should not be read so as to conflict with section 47 of the Registration Act, 1908. A sells his property to B, and before the sale deed is registered sells it again by a registered sale deed to C. B's sale deed, though registered later, has priority. C cannot claim that A was the ostensible owner with the consent of B so as to bar B's claim under section 41.¹⁴⁸¹

[s 41.19] Code of Civil Procedure 1908

A transferee from a certified purchaser at a court sale is, by virtue of section 66 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908, protected from a suit on the ground that his transferor was a benamidar.¹⁴⁸²

[s 41.20] Reliance on Recitals

The inaccuracy in the recitals describing the property cannot whittle down the effect of clear recitals in the documents about the property to be sold thereby.¹⁴⁸³

[s 41.21] Prohibition of Benami Transactions

The Parliament has enacted the Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, 1988 prohibiting benami transactions under section 3(1), and making them punishable under section 3(3). The prohibition does not, however, apply to the purchase of property by any person in the name of his wife or unmarried daughters and it shall be presumed, unless the contrary is proved, that the said property had been purchased for the benefit of the wife or the unmarried daughters. Benami transaction is defined under section 2(1) so as to mean any transaction in which property is transferred to one person for consideration paid or provided by another person. Nothing in the Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act shall affect the provisions of section 53 of the TP Act, 1882 as laid down in section 6. The Supreme Court has held that the Benami Transaction (Prohibition) Act is a piece of prohibitory legislation, and it prohibits benami transactions subject to stated exceptions and makes such transactions punishable, and also prohibits the right to defences against recovery of benami transactions as defined in section 2(a) of that Act.¹⁴⁸⁴

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

-
- 1327 Ramcoomar v Mac-queen, (1872) 11 Beng LR 46, p 52, followed in Seshumull M Shah v Sayed Abdul Rashid, AIR 1991 Kant. 273 [LNIND 1990 KANT 366], p 278.
- 1328 Hoorbai v Aishabai, (1910) 12 Bom LR 457 [LNIND 1910 BOM 36] : 6 IC 898; Satyanarayan Murthi v Pydaya, (1943) 1 Mad LJ 219 : AIR 1943 Mad. 459 ; Lulsingh v Granth Saheb, AIR 1950 Pepsu 104 .
- 1329 Cairncross v Lorimer, (1860) 3 Macq 827, p 829.
- 1330 Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder, (1893) ILR 20 Cal 296 : 19 IA 203.
- 1331 Sonal Singh v Hukum Singh Chouhan, AIR 2007 (NOC) 2054 (Utr); Kashmir Singh v Panchayat Samiti, (2004) 6 SCC 207 [LNIND 2004 SC 487] : AIR 2004 SC 2438 [LNIND 2004 SC 487] ; Layak Ram v Daramvati, AIR 2010 P&H. 95 .
- 1332 Laxman Sakhrum Salvi v Balkrishna Balwant Ghatage, AIR 1995 Bom 190 [LNIND 1994 BOM 647] : (1995) 2 Bom CR 678 [LNIND 1994 BOM 647] .
- 1333 Kanhya Lal v Deepchand, AIR 1947 Lah 199 .
- 1334 Kanhu Lal v Palu Sahu, (1920) 5 Pat LJR 521 , p 535 : 57 IC 353; Maung Sin Ba v Mating Kyme, (1934) ILR 12 Rang 55 : 150 IC 667 : AIR 1934 Rang 90 ; Nainsukhdas v Goverdhandas, (1947) ILR Nag 510 : AIR 1948 Ngp 110 ; Drigpal Singh v Wife of Laldhari Ojha, AIR 1985 Pat. 110 , p 112; Controller of Estate Duty Lucknow v Alope Mitra, (1981) 2 SCC 121 [LNIND 1980 SC 424] , p 134. For a similar exception as to movable property, see sections 27 to 29 of the Indian Sale of Goods Act, 1930 (replacing section 108 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, and sections 178 and 178A of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, as amended by Act 4 of 1930).
- 1335 Vaman Pandu v Tikaram, (1927) 29 Bom LR 471 : 102 IC 64 : AIR 1927 Bom 368 ; Shahar Bano v Raj Bahadur, 149 IC 357 : AIR 1934 Oudh 233 dissenting from Naraprath v Parambali, 34 IC 494; Puran Mal v Shiva Lal, (1934) All LJ 1260 : 150 IC 86 : AIR 1935 All 234 ; Dwarka Halwai v Sitha Prasad, AIR 1940 All 256 : (1940) ILR All 344 : (1940) All LJ 166 : 188 IC 784; Lalit Mohan v Thakurain Luchmi, AIR 1946 Oudh 213 ; Nandlal v Sunderlal, AIR 1944 All 17 .
- 1336 Jote Singh v Ram Das Mahto, AIR 1996 SC 2773 [LNINDORD 1996 SC 189] .
- 1337 Amrit Kaur v Recovery Officer, AIR 2012 (NOC) 418 P&H..
- 1338 Gholam Siddique v Jogendra Nath, (1926) 31 Cal WN 205 : 96 IC 199 : AIR 1926 Cal 916 ; Nand Lal v Karam Bibi, 146 IC 210 : AIR 1933 Lah 258 ; Baba Ramchandra v Kondeo Jagna, 184 IC 797 : AIR 1940 Ngp 7 ; CMP Convent v Subanna Govindan, AIR 1948 Mad. 320 [LNIND 1947 MAD 270] . See also Sadiq Hussain v Co-operative Central Bank, Yetmal, AIR 1952 Ngp 64 , p 106; B Sitaram Rao v Bibhushana, AIR 1978 Ori. 222 [LNIND 1978 ORI 25] .
- 1339 Abdul Gaffer v Nawab Ali, AIR 1949 Assam 17 .
- 1340 Chandi Prosad Ganguly v Gadadhar Singh Roy, AIR 1949 Cal 666 : 53 Cal WN 349; Sonal Singh v Hukum Singh Chouhan, AIR 2007 (NOC) 2054 (Utr); Kashmir Singh v Panchayat Samiti, (2004) 6 SCC 207 [LNIND 2004 SC 487] : AIR 2004 SC 2438 [LNIND 2004 SC 487] ; Layak Ram v Daramvati, AIR 2010 P&H. 95 .
- 1341 Ballu Mal v Ram Kishan, (1921) ILR 43 All 263 : 64 IC 14 : AIR 1921 All 311 ; Partap Chand v Saiyida Bibi, (1901) ILR 23 All 442, p 447; Macneill & Co v Saroda Sundari, (1928) 48 Cal LJ 374 : (1929) 33 Cal WN 526 : 114 IC 142 : AIR 1929 Cal 83 , p 86; Motimul Sowcar v Visalakshi Ammal, AIR 1965 Mad. 432 [LNIND 1964 MAD 373] ; B Sitaram Rao v Bibhushana, AIR 1978 Ori. 222 [LNIND 1978 ORI 25] .
- 1342 Ramrao v State of Bombay, [1963] 1 SCR 322 (Supp) : AIR 1963 SC 827 [LNIND 1962 SC 312] .
- 1343 Kammana Sambamurthy v Kalipatnapu Atchutamma, (2011) 11 SCC 153 [LNIND 2010 SC 978] : AIR 2011 SC 103 [LNIND 2010 SC 978] : LNIND 2010 SC 978 : 2010 (10) Scale 666 [LNIND 2010 SC 978] .

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

- 1344 Maragathammal v M Kandasamy, Second Appeal No, 21 of 1997, decided on: 9 January 2017, High Court of Madras.
- 1345 Padam Chand v Lakshmi Devi, (2010) 173 DLT 604 (Delhi) : 2011 (1) Ren CR (Rent) 39; Atal Shrivastava v Devprasad, AIR 2012 CHG. 117 : 2012 (1) CGBCLJ 411.
- 1346 Mul Raj v Fazal Imam, (1923) ILR 45 All 520 : 74 IC 307 : AIR 1923 All 583 dissenting from Jamna Das v Uma Shankar, (1914) ILR 36 All 308 : 25 IC 158.
- 1347 Nafar Chandra Pal v Shukur, 45 IA 183 : (1919) ILR 46 Cal 189 : 51 IC 760.
- 1348 Sheogobind Ram v Anwar Ali, 116 IC 779 : AIR 1929 Pat. 305 ; Sonur Kapri v Saligram, (1949) ILR 28 Pat 542; Ramsaran v Harihar Prasad, AIR 1961 Pat. 314 ; Gauri Shankar v Jwalamukhi, AIR 1962 Pat. 392 .
- 1349 Ved Kumari v UOI, AIR 1989 P&H. 136 (NOC).
- 1350 Kannashi Vershi v Ratanshi Nenshi, AIR 1952 Kutch 85 ; Samay Singh v Hukum Singh Chouhan, AIR 2007 (NOC) 2054 (Utr); Binapani Paul v Pratima Ghosh, AIR 2008 SC 543 [LNIND 2007 SC 560] ; Kashmir Singh v Panchayat Samiti, (2004) 6 SCC 207 [LNIND 2004 SC 487] : AIR 2004 SC 2438 [LNIND 2004 SC 487] ; Layak Ram v Daramvati, AIR 2010 P&H. 95 .
- 1351 Crystal Developers v Asha Lata Ghosh, AIR 2004 SC 4980 [LNIND 2004 SC 1032] : (2005) 9 SCC 375 [LNIND 2004 SC 1032] .
- 1352 Jamnadas v Uma Shankar, (1914) ILR 36 All 308 : 25 IC 158 followed in Seshumull M Shah v Sayed Abdul Rashid, AIR 1991 Kant. 273 [LNIND 1990 KANT 366] , p 278.
- 1353 Muhammad Sulaiman v Sakina Bibi, (1922) ILR 44 All 674 : 69 IC 701 : AIR 1922 All 392 .
- 1354 Dambar Singh v Jawitri, (1907) ILR 29 All 292; Abdullah Khan v Bundi, (1912) ILR 34 All 22, p 24 : 11 IC 710; Maung Bya v Maung San, 10 IC 779.
- 1355 Chooni Lal v Nilmadhab, (1925) 41 Cal LJ 374 : 86 IC 734 : AIR 1925 Cal 1034 .
- 1356 Kuttappa Nair v Kuttisankaran Nair, (1957) 2 Mad LJ 603.
- 1357 Ratan Sen v Suraj Bhan, AIR 1944 All 1 ; Sri Thakur Krishna v Kanhayalal, AIR 1961 All 206 [LNIND 1960 ALL 61] .
- 1358 Lakshmibai v Ravji, AIR 1949 Kutch 34 ; Savithri v Kuriyakose, AIR 1958 Ker. 325 [LNIND 1957 KER 173] ; but see Chandi v Anant Bali, AIR 1963 Oudh 398 .
- 1359 Suraj Rattan Thirani v Azamabad Tea Co, AIR 1965 SC 295 [LNIND 1964 SC 4] ; Kanji Ganesh v Pannanand, AIR 1992 MP 208 [LNIND 1991 MP 172] , p 212.
- 1360 Niranjan Kaur v Financial Commissioner Revenue and Secretary to Government, Punjab, AIR 2011 P&H. 1 . (FB).
- 1361 Kasmir Singh v Panchayat Samiti, (2004) 6 SCC 207 [LNIND 2004 SC 487] : AIR 2004 SC 2438 [LNIND 2004 SC 487] .
- 1362 Narayan v Purshottam, (1931) 27 Nag LR 144 : 134 IC 676 : AIR 1931 Ngp 144 ; Hira Singh v Afzal Khan, AIR 1941 Pesh 51 ; Vasdev v Jugraj Prasad, AIR 1948 Ori. 247 ; Bisseswar Poddar v Nabadwib Chandra, (1961) 64 Cal WN 1067 : AIR 1961 Cal 300 [LNIND 1960 CAL 133] .
- 1363 Aukamma v Narsaya, AIR 1947 Mad. 127 [LNIND 1946 MAD 86] .
- 1364 Mul Raj v Fazal Imam, (1923) ILR 45 All 520 : 74 IC 307 : AIR 1923 All 583 .
- 1365 Mohammad Shakur v Shah Jehan, 63 IC 125.
- 1366 Thakuri v Kundan, (1893) ILR 17 All 280.
- 1367 Rangaswami v Sundarapandya, 110 IC 543 : AIR 1928 Mad. 635 [LNIND 1928 MAD 17] . But see Kuttappa Nair v Kuttisankaran Nair, (1957) 2 Mad LJ 603.
- 1368 Ramchandra v Balla Singh, AIR 1986 All 193 [LNIND 1985 ALL 221] .
- 1369 Mengha Ram v Makhma, AIR 1941 Lah 416 : 43 Punj LR 424 : 198 IC 609.
- 1370 Shib Deo Misra v Ram Prasad, (1924) ILR 46 All 637 : 87 IC 938 : AIR 1925 All 79 ; Pancham Singh v Balak Ram, (1930) 28 All LJ 686 : 127 IC 418 : AIR 1930 All 374 ; Kapura v Madhu Sudan Das, AIR 1943 Lah 168 : 45 Punj LR 183 : 209 IC 609; Abdul Samad v Girdhari Lal, (1942) ILR All 259 : 200 IC 269 : (1942) All LJ 179 : AIR 1942 All 175 .
- 1371 Niranjan Kaur v The Financial Commissioner, Revenue and Secretary to Government, Punjab, AIR 2011 P&H. 1 (FB) : 2010 (4) RCR (Civil) 610 [LNIND 2010 PNH 88] .

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

- 1372 Jokhu v Mehdi, (1881) All WN 67; Luchmun Chander v Kalli Churn, (1873) 19 WR 292 ; Bhugwan v Upooch, (1869) 10 WR 185 ; Brojonath v Koylash, (1868) 9 WR 593 ; Ram Sundar v Ram Narain, 48 IC 936; Swaminatha v Krishna, AIR 1942 Mad. 28 [LNIND 1941 MAD 351] ; Arta Rout v Bhagabat, AIR 1957 Ori. 157 . For test where benami question is raised, see Gangadara Ayyar v Subramania Sastrigal, AIR 1949 FC 88 ; UOI v Moksh Builders & Financiers Ltd, AIR 1977 SC 409 [LNIND 1976 SC 394] ; Bhim Singh v Kan Singh, AIR 1980 SC 727 [LNIND 1979 SC 501] ; Girindra Nath Mukherjee v Saumen Mukherjee, AIR 1988 Cal 375 [LNIND 1988 CAL 73] . See also Rajesh Kumar v Virendra Kumar Agarwal, AIR 1994 All 135 [LNIND 1993 ALL 211] (distinction between benami and sham transactions).
- 1373 Raj Narain Agarwal v Baij Nath Khanna, AIR 1984 Del 155 [LNIND 1983 DEL 180] , p 157.
- 1374 Ratanlal Bansilal v Kishorilal Goenka, AIR 1993 Cal 144 [LNIND 1992 CAL 349] , p 177.
- 1375 Raj Ballar Das v Haripada Das, AIR 1985 Cal 2 [LNIND 1983 CAL 163] . See also Bhim Singh v Kan Singh, AIR 1980 SC 727 [LNIND 1979 SC 501] : (1980) 3 SCC 72 [LNIND 1979 SC 501] .
- 1376 Parakkate Shankaran Keshavan v TA Sukumaran, AIR 1997 Bom 381 [LNIND 1997 BOM 131] : (1997) 3 Bom CR 260 [LNIND 1997 BOM 131] : (1997) 4 All MR 176.
- 1377 Heirs of Vrajlal J Ganatra v Heirs of Parshottam S Shah, AIR 1996 Guj 147 [LNIND 2007 GUJ 151] : (1996) 2 GLR 361 . The court relied upon the decision of SC in Bhim Singh v Kan Singh, AIR 1980 SC 727 [LNIND 1979 SC 501] : (1980) 3 SCC 72 [LNIND 1979 SC 501] .
- 1378 Khwaja Muhammad v Muhammad Ibrahim, (1904) ILR 26 All 490; Baidya Nath v Alef Jan, (1922) 36 Cal LJ 9 : AIR 1923 Cal 240 ; Annoda Mohan v Nilphamari, (1922) 26 Cal WN 436 : 65 IC 245 : AIR 1921 Cal 549 ; Karamat Khan v Sami-ud-din, (1886) ILR 8 All 409; Ghulam Fatima v Gopal Din, AIR 1940 Lah 269 : 190 IC 599 : on app 45 Punj LR 143 : 209 IC 75 : AIR 1943 Lah 113 ; Fakruddin Saib v Ramayya Sethi, AIR 1944 Mad. 299 .
- 1379 Jogendra v Salamat Khan, (1930) 33 Cal WN 994 : 125 IC 863 : AIR 1930 Cal 92 ; Parvati Ammal v Anga Muthu, AIR 1942 Mad. 730 [LNIND 1942 MAD 197] .
- 1380 By CJ Savage in Root v French, (1835) 13 Wendell 570 approved by Lord Halsbury in Farquharson Bros v King, (1902) AC 325 , p 332 : [[1900-3\] All ER Rep 120](#) ; and J Mookerjee, in Baidya Nath v Alef Jan, (1922) 36 Cal LJ 9 , p 20 : 70 IC 194 : AIR 1923 Cal 240 ; Cf American Jurisprudence, vol 19, p 641: "...the author of a misfortune shall not himself escape the consequences and cast the burden on another."
- 1381 Lickbarrow v Mason, (1787) 5 Term Rep 683 : 1 Smith LC 11th Edn, 693.
- 1382 Niras Purve v Tetri Pasin, (1916) 20 Cal WN 103 : 32 IC 82; Maung Po Sin v Ma Myit, 146 IC 1063 : AIR 1933 AP 361 .
- 1383 Annoda Mohan v Nilphamari, (1922) 26 Cal WN 436 : 65 IC 245 : AIR 1921 Cal 549 ; Chapalavala v Sarat Kumari, AIR 1941 Cal 318 .
- 1384 B Sambhu Prasad v Mahadeo Prasad, (1933) ILR 55 All 554 : (1933) All LJ 1185 : 144 IC 293 : AIR 1933 All 493 .
- 1385 Dungariya v Nand Lal, (1906) 3 All LJ 534.
- 1386 Ramprosad v Imratbai, 65 IC 477 : AIR 1922 Ngp 79 ; Shori Lal v Damodar Das, AIR 1938 Lah 86 : 175 IC 832.
- 1387 Gurcharan Singh v Punjab State Electricity Board, Patiala, AIR 1989 P&H. 127 .
- 1388 Abdulla Khan v Bundi, (1912) ILR 34 All 22 : 11 IC 710; Dambar Singh v Jawitri, (1907) ILR 29 All 292; Dalibai v Gopibai, (1902) ILR 26 Bom 433; Maung Sin Ba v Maung Kyme, (1934) ILR 12 Rang 55 : 150 IC 667 : AIR 1934 Rang 90 .
- 1389 Shankar v Daooji, (1931) ILR 53 All 290 : 58 IA 206 : 132 IC 602 : AIR 1931 PC 118 ; Satyanarayana Murthi v Pydayya, AIR 1943 Mad. 459 : (1943) 1 Mad LJ 219; Kalsum Begum v Ismail, AIR 1936 Lah 161 ; Pooran Chand v Radha Raman, AIR 1943 All 197 ; Kanhialal v Deep Chand, (1947) ILR Lah 199.
- 1390 Sadiq Ali Khan v Jai Kishori, (1928) 30 Bom LR 1346 : 109 IC 387 : AIR 1928 PC 152 ; Gadigeppa v Balangauda, (1931) ILR 55 Bom 741 : 135 IC 161 : AIR 1931 Bom 561 . See note "Minor" under section 7.
- 1391 Ram Charan v Joy Ram, (1912) 17 Cal WN 10 : 16 IC 825.
- 1392 Abdullas Khan v Bundi, (1912) ILR 34 All 22 : 11 IC 710.
- 1393 Ram Charan v Joy Ram, (1912) 17 Cal WN 10 : 16 IC 825.
- 1394 Sarupa v Dhundan, (1930) 11 Lah LJ 219 : 120 IC 544 : AIR 1930 Lah 286 .
- 1395 Manjari Devi v Usha Devi, AIR 2014 CHG. 22 : 2014 (1) CGLJ 636 .

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

- 1396 Sara Chunder v Gopal Chunder, (1893) ILR 20 Cal 296 : 19 IA 203; Ananda v Parbati, (1907) 4 Cal LJ 198 , p 207; Mulchand Hazarimal v Hassomal, 171 IC 127 : AIR 1937 Sau 177 ; Shamez-un-Nissa v Sh Ali Asghar, (1935) Oudh WN 1376 : 159 IC 780 : AIR 1936 Oudh 87 .
- 1397 Suraj Ratan Thirani v Azamabad Tea Co, [1964] 6 SCR 192 [LNIND 1964 SC 4] : AIR 1965 SC 292 .
- 1398 Mahanta Bhagaban v Bisweswar, (1927) 44 Cal LJ 434 : 100 IC 302 : AIR 1927 Cal 220 .
- 1399 Ali Mahamud v Aftahuddin, (1915) 20 Cal WN 355 : 341 IC 251.
- 1400 Joy Chandra v Sreenath, (1902) ILR 32 Cal 357 (PC); Mohamad Sujat v Chandbi, 97 IC 988 : AIR 1927 Ngp 4 I; Kanchadilal v Kanhai, 140 IC 390 : AIR 1932 Ngp 165 ; Tejmal Josumal v Rochalbai, (1940) ILR Kar 403 : 191 IC 558 : AIR 1940 Sau 212 ; Nagorao Nimbaji v Jogeshwar Murlidhar, AIR 1944 Ngp 20 .
- 1401 Azima Bibi v Shamalanand, (1913) ILR 40 Cal 378 : 17 IC 758 (PC).
- 1402 Zarif-un-nisa v Shafiq-uz-zaman Khan, (1928) ILR 3 Luck 372 : 55 IA 303 : 113 IC 113 : AIR 1928 PC 202 ; Firm Bhagat Amirchand v Bibi Fatima, 169 IC 958 : AIR 1937 Pesh 58 .
- 1403 Shamsher Chand v Bakshi Meher Chand, AIR 1947 Lah 147 .
- 1404 Gurbinder Singh v Lal Singh, (1958) ILR Punj 2258 : 60 Punj LR 528 : AIR 1959 Pat. 123 relying on Shamsher Chand v Bakshi Meher Chand, AIR 1947 Lah 147 ; Sarju Kari v Panchananda Sarma, (1957) ILR 9 Ass 465 : AIR 1959 Assam 15 ; Jit Singh v Kalapati, AIR 1962 Punj 46 ; Gulam Ahmed v Basheer Ahmed, (1960) 2 Mad LJ 570 : AIR 1960 Mad. 99 [LNIND 1959 MAD 77] . (The actual decisions in these cases are probably correct on other grounds).
- 1405 Gurcharan Singh v Punjab State Electricity Board, Patiala, AIR 1969 P&H. 127 .
- 1406 Neelakanth v Sidalingayya, AIR 2004 Kant. 258 [LNIND 2003 KANT 640] : (2004) 1 KCCR 432 [LNIND 2003 KANT 640] ; See also Syed Abdul Khader v Rami Reddy, AIR 1979 SC 553 [LNIND 1978 SC 352] : (1979) 2 SCC 601 [LNIND 1978 SC 352] .
- 1407 Samay Singh v Hukum Singh Chauhan, AIR 2007 (NOC) 2054 (Utr).
- 1408 KV Galliar v U Thet, (1929) ILR 7 Rang 118 : 117 IC 580 : AIR 1929 Rang 117 .
- 1409 Pt Sita Ram v Raj Narayan, 150 IC 45 : AIR 1934 Oudh 283 .
- 1410 Shafiquallah v Samiullah, (1930) ILR 52 All 139 : 123 IC 101 : AIR 1929 All 943 .
- 1411 Fazal Hussain v Muhammad Kazim, (1934) All LJ 544 : (1934) ILR 56 All 582 : 150 IC 81 : AIR 1934 All 193 . See also Fakruddin Saib v Ramayya Sethi, AIR 1944 Mad. 299 ; Jesa Ram v Ghulaman, AIR 1936 Lah 816 ; Satyanarayana Munhi v Pydaya, (1943) 1 Mad LJ 219 : AIR 1943 Mad. 459 .
- 1412 Gurcharan Singh v Surjit Kaur, AIR 2006 P&H. 18 : (2005) 141 PLR 232 [LNIND 2005 PNH 90] .
- 1413 Banga Chandra v Jagat Kishore, (1916) ILR 44 Cal 186 : 43 IA 249 : 36 IC 420; Hari Kishen v Kashi Pershad, (1914) ILR 42 Cal 876 : 42 IA 64 : 27 IC 674; Raj Lukhee v Gokool Chunder, (1869) 13 Mad IA 209 : 12 WR 47 (PC).
- 1414 Pandurang v Markandeya, (1922) ILR 49 Cal 334 : 49 IA 16 : 65 IC 954 : AIR 1922 PC 20 ; Fazal Hussain v Jivan Shah, (1933) ILR 14 Lah 369 : 141 IC 454 : AIR 1933 Lah 551 .
- 1415 Tarabag Khan v Nanak Chand, 138 IC 263 : AIR 1932 Lah 566 ; Bhagwat Rai v Gorakh Rai, 150 IC 765 : AIR 1934 Punj 93 ; Sundar Koer v Udey Ram, AIR 1944 All 42 .
- 1416 Kandasami v Nagalinga, (1913) ILR 36 Mad 564 : 16 IC 30; Narayana v Rama Aiyar, (1915) ILR 38 Mad 396 : 20 IC 625.
- 1417 Pandurang v Markandaya, (1922) ILR 49 Cal 334, p 344; Mollaya v Krishnaswami, (1924) 47 Mad LJ 622 : 85 IC 855 : AIR 1925 Mad. 95 [LNIND 1924 MAD 58].
- 1418 Kanhu Lal v Palu Sahu, (1920) 5 Pat LJR 521 : 57 IC 353; Siddappa v Vishwanathsa, (1943) 45 Bom LR 825 : AIR 1943 Bom 419 ; Beyas Singh v Ramjanam, (1961) ILR AP 16.
- 1419 Zungabai v Bhawani, (1907) 9 Bom LR 388 [LNIND 1907 BOM 20] .
- 1420 Nageshar Prasad v Raja Pateshri, (1915) 20 Cal WN 265 : 34 IC 673 (PC); Partap Chand v Saiyida Bibi, (1901) ILR 23 All 442; Thungavellu Chetty v Mangathaye Ammal, (1913) Mad WN 674 : 21 IC 21; Maung Po v Maung Mye, (1915) 8 Bur LT 85 : 27 IC 777; Sheogobind v Anwar Ali, 116 IC 779; Mohamad Sujat v Chandbi, 97 IC 988 : AIR 1927 Ngp 41 ; Ram Chalitra v Shivnandan, 150 IC 922; Hargovind Prasad v Babu Ambika Dutt Ram, (1934) ILR 9 Luck 571 : AIR 1934 Oudh 165 ; Har Narain v Ashiq Husain, (1942) ILR 17 Luck 636 : IC 808 : 199 AIR 1942 Oudh 313 ; Ram Kissan v Muktinath, AIR 1956 Assam 154 ; Kanji Ganesh v Parmanend, AIR 1992 MP 208 [LNIND 1991 MP 172] , p 213.

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

- 1421 Kartar Singh v Mehr Nishan, (1934) ILR 16 Lah 313 : 155 IC 1064 : AIR 1934 Lah 885 .
- 1422 Purnendu Nath v Hanut Mull, (1940) 71 Cal LJ 520 : 44 Cal WN 813 : 192 IC 416 : AIR 1940 Cal 565 .
- 1423 Himprastha Financiers v UOI, AIR 1976 HP 29 [LNIND 1975 HP 30] .
- 1424 Mubarakunnissa v Muhammad Raza, (1924) ILR 46 All 377 : 79 IC 174 : AIR 1924 All 384 ; Makkama v Masambi, (1925) 27 Bom LR 208 : 86 IC 876 : AIR 1925 Bom 299 ; Muhammad Din v Sardar Bibi, 104 IC 394 : AIR 1927 Oudh 448 ; PLTAR Chettiar Firm v Maung Kyaing, (1929) ILR 7 Rang 276 : 119 IC 217 : AIR 1929 Rang 333 ; Mahomed Shakar v Shehajan, 63 IC 125; Mathura Prasad v Anandi, (1923) 21 All LJ 498 : 74 IC 911 : AIR 1924 All 63 ; Udho Das v Mehr Baksh, 144 IC 340 : AIR 1933 Lah 262 .
- 1425 Muhammad Shafi v Muhammad Said, (1930) ILR 53 All 248 : 122 IC 871 : AIR 1930 All 807 ; Muhammad Sulaiman v Sakina Bibi, (1922) ILR 44 All 674 : 69 IC 701 : AIR 1922 All 392 ; Chittabala Kundu v Sailen Behari Paul, 92 Cal WN 398 : AIR 1988 Cal 68 [LNIND 1987 CAL 22] (NOC).
- 1426 Mubarakunnissa v Muhammad Raza, (1924) ILR 46 All 377 : 79 IC 174 : AIR 1924 All 384 .
- 1427 PLTAR Chetty Firm v Maung Kyaing, (1929) ILR 7 Rang 276 : 119 IC 217 : AIR 1929 Rang 333 .
- 1428 Muhammad Shafi v Muhammad Said, (1930) ILR 53 All 248 : 122 IC 871 : AIR 1930 All 847 .
- 1429 Partap Chand v Saiyida Bibi, (1901) ILR 23 All 443.
- 1430 Nageshar Prasad v Raja Pateshri, (1915) 20 Cal WN 265 : 34 IC 673 (PC).
- 1431 Rajani Kanta v Bashiram Mestari, (1929) 49 Cal LJ 532 : 121 IC 409 : AIR 1929 Cal 636 ; Lala Jagmohan Dass v Lala Indar Prasad, (1929) ILR 4 Luck 597 : 115 IC 97 : AIR 1929 Oudh 160 ; Zungbai v Bhawani, (1907) 9 Bom LR 388 [LNIND 1907 BOM 20] ; Rahiman Beebi v Khatoon Bee, 35 IC 569; Vyankapacharya v Yamanasami, (1911) ILR 35 Bom 269, 271, p 10 IC 817; Kasturi Bibi v Balliram, AIR 1923 Ngp 15 : 68 IC 732; Maung Hmwe v Ma Lun, 11 IC 85; Maung Than v Ma, On, 12 IC 858; Kanchadilal v Kanhai, 140 IC 390 : AIR 1932 Ngp 165 ; Khatun Fatima v Shib Singh, (1933) All LJ 1036 : 147 IC 840 : AIR 1933 All 917 ; Sadha Singh v Mangal Singh, 142 IC 860 : AIR 1933 Oudh 166 ; U Po Shin v Edward, 150 IC 898 : AIR 1934 Rang 139 ; Jamshedji v Dorabji, (1933) 35 Bom LR 1091 : 149 IC 317 : AIR 1934 Bom 1 .
- 1432 Bailey v Barnes, [1894] 1 ChD 25  , p 35.
- 1433 Rajani Kanti v Bashiram Mestari, (1929) 49 Cal LJ 532 : 121 IC 409 : AIR 1929 Cal 636 .
- 1434 Muhammad Sulaiman v Sakina Bibi, (1922) ILR 44 All 674 : 69 IC 701 : AIR 1922 All 392 .
- 1435 Azima Bibi v Shamalanand, 1913 (15) BomLR 423 .
- 1436 Jit Singh v Piara, AIR 2003 P&H. 258 .
- 1437 Khwaja Muhammad v Muhammad Ibrahim, (1904) ILR 26 All 490, p 493; Ramsaran v Harihar Prasad, (1961) ILR AP 314.
- 1438 Ramcoomar v Macqueen, 18 WR 166 : 11 Beng LR 46; Baidya Nath v Alef Jan, (1922) 36 Cal LJ 9 : 70 IC 194 : AIR 1923 Cal 240 ; Rajani Kanta v Bashiram Mestari, (1929) 49 Cal LJ 532 : 121 IC 409 : AIR 1929 Cal 636 ; Gholam Siddique v Jogendra Nath, (1926) 31 Cal WN 205 : 96 IC 199 : AIR 1926 Cal 916 ; Sheotahal v Lal Narain, 124 IC 413 : AIR 1930 All 422 ; Jasodar Dusadhin v Sukurmani, 170 IC 1005 : AIR 1937 Pat. 353 .
- 1439 Maung Po Lu v Bank of Chettinad, 154 IC 249 : AIR 1934 Rang 313 ; Shiam Lal v Mata Din, 151 IC 576 : AIR 1934 Oudh 460 ; DAV College Reg Society v Umrao, 157 IC 92 : AIR 1935 Lah 410 ; Mazhir Hasan v Mukhtar Hasan, AIR 1938 All 64 : (1937) All LJ 1356 : 173 IC 360.
- 1440 Kanhu Lal v Ram Singh, (1920) ILR 5 Pat LJR 521 : 57 IC 353.
- 1441 Vyankapacharya v Yamanasami, (1911) ILR 35 Bom 269 : 10 IC 817.
- 1442 Ballu Mal v Ram Kishan, (1921) ILR 43 All 263 : 64 IC 14 : AIR 1921 All 311 ; Fazal Hussain v Muhammad Kazim, (1934) All LJ 544 : (1934) ILR 56 All 580 : 152 IC 81 : AIR 1934 All 193 .
- 1443 Avtar Singh v Hazura Singh, AIR 1984 P&H. 211 , p 215; Shamsher Chand v Bakshi Mehr Chand, AIR 1947 Lah 147 .
- 1444 Azima Bibi v Shamalanand, (1913) ILR 40 Cal 378 : 17 IC 758 (PC).
- 1445 Rasulam Bibi v Nand Lal, (1930) All LJ 1091, p 1093 : 124 IC 757 : AIR 1930 All 521 ; Amir Jahn v Khadim Hassain, 132 IC 74 : AIR 1931 Oudh 253 .
- 1446 Mahmad Sujat v Chandbi, 97 IC 988 : AIR 1927 Ngp 41 , p 42.
- 1447 Mubarakunnissa v Muhammad Raza, (1924) ILR 46 All 377 : 79 IC 174 : AIR 1924 All 384 ; Mul Raj v Fazal Imam, (1923) ILR 45 All 520 : 74 IC 307 : AIR 1923 All 583 .

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

- 1448 Macneill & Co v Saroda Sundari, (1928) 48 Cal LJ 374 : 114 IC 142 : AIR 1929 Cal 83 : (1929) 33 Cal WN 526.
- 1449 Azima Bibi v Shamalanand, (1913) ILR 40 Cal 378.
- 1450 Hakiman v Badr-un-Nissa, 148 IC 742 : AIR 1934 Lah 658 ; Laxman Sakharan Salvi v Balkrishna Balwant Ghatage, AIR 1995 Bom 190 [LNIND 1994 BOM 647] held that a transferee who willfully shuts his eyes and takes the transfer without any inquiry, is not protected.
- 1451 Chandra Kanta v Bhagjur, 1 IC 525.
- 1452 Gurbaksh Singh v Nikka Singh, [1963] 1 SCR 55 [LNIND 1962 SC 128] (Supp) : [1963] 2 SCJ 285 [LNIND 1962 SC 299] : AIR 1963 SC 1917 [LNIND 1962 SC 299] ; Pateshri Pertab v Nageshar, (1911) 8 All LJ 358 : 10 IC 961 : on app (1916) 20 Cal WN 265 : 34 IC 673 (PC); Beyas Singh v Ramjanam, AIR 1961 Pat. 16 .
- 1453 Lala Jagmohan Dass v Lain Indar Prasad, (1929) ILR 4 Luck 597 : 115 IC 97 : AIR 1929 Oudh 160 ; Mollaya v Krishnaswami, (1925) 47 Mad LJ 622 : 85 IC 855 : AIR 1925 Mad. 95 [LNIND 1924 MAD 58] ; Ragho v Dwarka Das, 79 IC 687 : AIR 1924 Lah 738 ; Abbas Bandi v Saiyid Muhammad, (1929) ILR 4 Luck 452 : 120 IC 387 : AIR 1929 Oudh 193 .
- 1454 Angammal v Venkata, (1903) ILR 26 Mad 509.
- 1455 Khwaja Afzal v Md Saheb, (1936) ILR Nag 177 : 165 IC 177 : AIR 1936 Ngp 214 ; Layak Ram v Dharmavati, AIR 2010 P&H. 95 .
- 1456 Qandhara Singh v UOI, AIR 1984 P&H. 51 .
- 1457 Rai Sunil Kumar v Thakur Singh, AIR 1984 Pat. 80 , p 86, para 13.
- 1458 Bimbadhar Rout v Kuna Senapati, AIR 1995 Ori. 258 [LNIND 1995 ORI 187] .
- 1459 Baby Rani Deb v Manik Dey, AIR 2014 Gau 56 [LNIND 2013 GAU 347] : 2014 (1) Gau LT 138 : LNIND 2013 GAU 347 .
- 1460 Manjari Devi v Usha Devi, AIR 2014 CHG. 22 Layak Ram v Dharamwati, AIR 2010 P&H. 95 .
- 1461 Lakhwinder Singh v Dilbagh Singh, AIR 2010 (NOC) 1113 P&H..
- 1462 Layak Ram v Dharamwati, AIR 2010 P&H. 95 .
- 1463 Atal Shrivastava v Devprasad, AIR 2012 CHG. 117 : 2012 (1) CGBCLJ 411.
- 1464 Marcel Martins v M Printer, (2012) 5 SCC 342 [LNIND 2012 SC 262] : AIR 2012 SC 1987 [LNIND 2012 SC 262] : LNIND 2012 SC 262 : 2012 (5) Mad LJ 645.
- 1465 Baby Rani Deb v Manik Dey, AIR 2014 Gau 56 [LNIND 2013 GAU 347] : 2014 (1) Gau LT 138 : LNIND 2013 GAU 347 .
- 1466 Manjari Devi v Usha Devi, AIR 2014 CHG. 22.
- 1467 Sethumadhava v Bacha, 111 IC 539 : AIR 1928 Mad. 778 . But see Sahodra v Badri Prasad, 122 IC 593 : AIR 1929 All 737 .
- 1468 Gurbaksh Singh v Nikka Singh, [1963] 1 SCR 55 [LNIND 1962 SC 128] (Supp) : [1963] 2 SCJ 285 [LNIND 1962 SC 299] : AIR 1963 SC 1917 [LNIND 1962 SC 299] ; Suraj Ratan Thirani v Azamabad Tea Co, [1964] 6 SCR 192 [LNIND 1964 SC 4] : AIR 1965 SC 295 [LNIND 1964 SC 4] ; Crystal Developers v Asha Lata Ghosh, AIR 2004 SC 4980 [LNIND 2004 SC 1032] ; Maung Sin Ba v Maung Kyme, (1934) ILR 12 Rang 55 : 150 IC 667 : AIR 1934 Rang 90 ; Sunder Kuer v Uday Ram, (1944) ILR All 42 ; Hajarkhan v Kesarkhan, (1967) 9 Guj LR 1066 : AIR 1968 Guj 229 [LNIND 1967 GUJ 106] .
- 1469 Maung Po Kun v Maung Poshein, AIR 1926 PC 77 ; Jaydalal Poddar v Bidi Hazra, AIR 1974 SC 171 [LNIND 1973 SC 313] ; Krishnanand Agnihotri v State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1977 SC 796 ; Girindra Nath Mukherjee v Soumen Mukherjee, AIR 1988 Cal 375 [LNIND 1988 CAL 73] , p 383; Rama Kanta Jain v M S Jain, AIR 1999 Del 281 [LNIND 1999 DEL 238] : (1999) 50 DRJ 232 [LNIND 1999 DEL 238] : 1999 IIIAD (Delhi) 32.
- 1470 Bhupendra Kumar R Parikh v M K Lakshmi, AIR 1990 Mad. 46 [LNIND 1989 MAD 81] , p 59 : 1989-2-LW 294 .
- 1471 Radheyshyam v Maharaj Bahadur Singh, AIR 1982 Cal 571 [LNIND 1981 CAL 276] .
- 1472 Ibid.

41. Transfer by ostensible owner.—

- 1473 Rajani Kanta v Bhashiram Mestari, (1929) 49 Cal LJ 532 : 121 IC 409 : AIR 1929 Cal 636 ; Baidya Nath v Alef Jan, (1922) 36 Cal LJ 9 : 70 IC 194 : AIR 1923 Cal 240 ; Ramcoomar v Macqueen, 18 WR 166; Mohamad Sujat v Chandbi, 97 IC 988 : AIR 1927 Ngp 41 .
- 1474 Raja of Karvetnagar v Saraavana, 35 IC 893.
- 1475 Dhuruba v Puma, AIR 1973 Ori. 192 [LNIND 1973 ORI 23] .
- 1476 Andalammal v Rajeswari Vedachalam, AIR 1985 Mad. 321 [LNIND 1984 MAD 398] , p 329.
- 1477 Gholam Siddique v Jogendra Nath, (1926) 31 Cal WN 205 : 96 IC 199 : AIR 1926 Cal 916 ; Baidya Nath v Alef Jan, (1922) 36 Cal LJ 9 ; Purenendu Nath v Hanut Mull, (1940) 71 Cal LJ 520 : (1940) 44 Cal WN 813 : 192 IC 416 : AIR 1940 Cal 565 .
- 1478 Trilok Nath v Khem Chand, AIR 2018 (NOC) 104 Del.
- 1479 Ishwar Das v Bir Singh, RSA No 439 of 2002, decided on: 27 November 2015, High Court of HP, Shimla.
- 1480 Shafiquallah v Samiullah, (1930) ILR 52 All 139 : 123 IC 101 : AIR 1929 All 943 ; Gendmal v Laxman, AIR 1945 Ngp 86 ; Kanshi Rum v Kesho Ram, AIR 1961 Punj 299 (a case from the Punjab, where the TP Act, 1882 does not apply); Manickchand v Gangadhar, (1961) 63 Bom LR 163 : AIR 1961 Bom 288 [LNIND 1960 BOM 90] .
- 1481 Mathura v Ambika, (1914) 12 All LJ 993 : 25 IC 725.
- 1482 Manji v Hoorbai, (1911) ILR 35 Bom 342 : 8 IC 752.
- 1483 I A Nalvade v D S Surati, AIR 1995 SC 2486 [LNIND 1995 SC 783] : 1995 Supp (3) SCC 541 .
- 1484 Mithilesh Kumari v Prem Behari Khare, AIR 1989 SC 1247 [LNIND 1989 SC 96] , p 1253. See also Ouseph Chacko v Raman Nair Raghavan Nair, AIR 1989 Ker. 317 [LNIND 1989 KER 150] (a sham transaction cannot be treated as a new class of benami having any statutory protection under section 4 of the Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, 1988).

42. Transfer by person having authority to revoke former transfer.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(B\) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

42. Transfer by person having authority to revoke former transfer.—

Where a person transfers any immovable property, reserving power to revoke the transfer, and subsequently transfers the property for consideration to another transferee, such transfer operates in favour of such transferee (subject to any condition attached to the exercise of the power) as a revocation of the former transfer to the extent of the power.

ILLUSTRATION

A lets a house to B, and reserves power to revoke the lease if, in the opinion of a specified surveyor, B should make a use of it detrimental to its value. Afterwards A, thinking that such a use has been made, lets the house to C. This operates as a revocation of B's lease subject to the opinion of the surveyor as to B's use of the house having been detrimental to its value.

[s 42.1] Principle

The principle of the section is that if a person has a right to transfer property, after exercising a right to revoke a previous transfer, a transfer of such property by him will imply an exercise of the right of revocation. The illustration shows that if the power of revocation is subject to a condition, the transfer is subject to the same condition.¹⁴⁸⁵

If the first transfer is a gift and is revocable at the will of the donor, it is void under section 126 of TP Act, 1882.

42. Transfer by person having authority to revoke former transfer.—

End of Document

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(B\) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

Where a person fraudulently or¹⁴⁸⁶ erroneously represents that he is authorised to transfer certain immovable property and professes to transfer such property for consideration, such transfer shall, at the option of the transferee, operate on any interest which the transferor may acquire in such property at any time during which the contract of transfer subsists.

Nothing in this section shall impair the right of transferees in good faith for consideration without notice of the existence of the said option.

ILLUSTRATION

A, a Hindu, who has separated from his father B, sells to C three fields, X, Y and Z, representing that A is authorised to transfer the same. Of these fields Z does not belong to A, it having been retained by B on the partition; but on B's dying A as heir, obtains Z. C, not having rescinded the contract of sale, may require A to deliver Z to him.

[s 43.1] Amendment

The words “fraudulently or” were inserted by the amending Act 20 of 1929.

[s 43.2] Scope

The Supreme Court in *Jumma Masjid Mercara v Kodimaniandra Deviah*¹⁴⁸⁷ has held that section 43 embodies a rule of estoppel, and enacts that a person who makes a representation shall not be heard to allege the contrary as against a person who acts on such representation. It is immaterial whether the transferor acts bona fide or fraudulently in making the representation. It is only material to find out whether in fact the transferee has been misled, where the transferee knows as a fact that the transferor does not possess the title which he represents he has, then he cannot be said to have acted on it when taking a transfer. Section 43 would then have no application, and the transfer will fail.

[s 43.3] Feeding the Estoppel and the English Law

By the English law of estoppel, “where a grantor has purported to grant an interest in land which he did not at the time possess, but subsequently acquires, the benefit of his subsequent acquisition, goes automatically to the earlier grantee, or as it is usually expressed, feeds the estoppel".¹⁴⁸⁸ The principle is based partly on the common law doctrine of estoppel by deed, and partly on the equitable doctrine that a man who has promised more than he can perform must make good his contract when he acquires the power of performance.

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

Under the common law doctrine, if a man sells property which does not belong to him and afterwards acquires such title as enables him either wholly or partially to perform his contract, he is bound to do so; and the subsequently acquired estate feeds the estoppel which arises out of the vendor's covenants for title, express or implied. In Tilakdhari Lal v Khedan Lal,¹⁴⁸⁹ Lord Buckmaster stated the rule of estoppel by deed as follows—

If a man who has no title whatever to property grants it by a conveyance which in form would carry the legal estate, and he subsequently acquires an interest sufficient to satisfy the grant, the estate, instantly passes.

The words "the estate instantly passes" are important, for under the common law rule the estate passed without any further act of the transferor, and the estoppel prevailed even against a purchaser for value. The application of the common law rule is complicated by many curious technicalities,¹⁴⁹⁰ and it is fortunate that it does not apply in India.¹⁴⁹¹

The law of estoppel in the case of real property is different from the law of estoppel as between persons. It is the law which operates where a grantee of land has had a conveyance of the whole interest in land from a grantor who himself at that time had only a partial interest. The former then has a right when the grantor gets the entire interest in the land, to say as against all the world that, that interest had passed to him. It does not then depend upon the mere representation by the grantor that he had the whole interest. The estate feeds the estoppel and, therefore, becomes an interest. From the moment, therefore, the transfer commences to operate on the interest acquired by the transferor in the property, it is no longer in the region of estoppel, but becomes an interest and the commencement of that interest is from the date when the transferor had acquired interest in the property.¹⁴⁹²

[s 43.4] Indian Law and the Specific Relief Act

The equitable doctrine is an application of the equity enunciated in Holroyd v Marshall,¹⁴⁹³ *Collyer v Issacs*¹⁴⁹⁴ and Tailby v Official Receiver,¹⁴⁹⁵ and which regards that as done, which ought to be done. Under the English equity, as soon as the property is afterwards acquired, an equitable estate in it passes to the transferee. Under the Indian system, as soon as the property is afterwards acquired, no estate passes (section 54), but an obligation is annexed to the property (section 40), and the transferor becomes trustee of it for the transferee. This equitable rule is enacted in section 13(l)(a) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963, which is as follows:

Where a person contracts to sell or lets certain immovable property having no title or only an imperfect title, the purchaser or lessee (subject to the other provisions of this Chapter), has the following rights, namely: if the vendor or lessor has subsequently to the contract acquired any interest in the property, the purchaser or lessee may compel him to make good the contract out of such interest.

Section 43 follows the common law rule of estoppel. The rule is that if a man, who has no title whatever to the property, grants it by a conveyance which in form carries the legal estate, and he subsequently acquires an interest sufficient to satisfy the grant, the estate instantly passes. Thus, where a person having a partial interest in certain property passes a larger interest, and subsequently acquires that interest, the section applies and the transferee is entitled to the interest acquired by the transferor.¹⁴⁹⁶ Where a person having no title represents that he has a present and transferable title and the transferee (acting on it) takes a transfer, and the transferor subsequently acquires the property, the section applies.¹⁴⁹⁷ However, it departs from the common law rule in two respects. For (1) the estate does not pass instantly, but only at the option of the transferee; and (2) the transferee may be defeated by a purchaser for value without notice. As no estoppel can be pleaded contrary to the provisions of a statute, this “rule of feeding the estoppel” shall apply only in absence thereof, according to which ‘where a grantor has purported to grant an interest in land which he did not at the time possess, but subsequently acquires, the benefit of his subsequent acquisition, goes automatically to the earlier grantee, or as it is usually expressed, feeds the estoppel’.¹⁴⁹⁸

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

Section 43 follows the equitable rule in that, until the option is exercised, it treats the transferee as the beneficiary of a trust who may be defeated by a purchaser for value without notice. However, it departs from the equitable rule in that it does not require the transfer to be effected by a further conveyance. The word “deliver” in the illustration is significant of the meaning of the section. If the transferee were enforcing the contract under section 13(l)(a) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963, the transferor would be required to execute a further conveyance. But under section 43 the exercise of the option, or the mere requisition of the transferee is sufficient to bring the subsequent interest within the scope of the original transfer. The section is a species of estoppel, and cannot be availed of by a person who knowing the facts was not misled. Questions of knowledge and belief are material and the other side must be given a chance of raising its defence, if and when the section is pleaded.¹⁴⁹⁹

Comparison between (13)(l)(a) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963—then section 18(a) of the old Act—and section 43, has been shown in Silla Chandra Sekharam v Ramchandra Sahu.¹⁵⁰⁰

[s 43.5] Sections 41 and 43 Compared

There is a substantial difference between the ambits of sections 41 and 43. Section 41 provides that a transfer by an ostensible owner cannot be avoided on the ground that the transferor was not authorised to make it, and the rule is made subject to an express provision that the transferee should take reasonable care to ascertain that the transferor had power to make the transfer, and to act in good faith before he can claim its benefit. On the other hand, section 43 enables a transferee to whom a transferor has made a fraudulent or erroneous representation to lay hold, at his option, of any interest which the transferor may subsequently acquire in the property, provided by doing so he does not adversely affect the right of any subsequent purchaser for value without notice.¹⁵⁰¹ The provisions of sections 41 and 43 logically get engaged in voluntary transfers, and not in involuntary transfers, like auction sales.¹⁵⁰²

[s 43.6] Principle Applied to Hindu Conveyances

The principle of the section has been held to apply to Hindu conveyances and to transactions before 1872, when the Indian Evidence Act enacted the equitable rule of estoppel in section 115.¹⁵⁰³

[s 43.7] Fraudulently or Erroneously Represents

The English common law doctrine of estoppel by deed was extended by equity to estoppel by representation. This extension dates from Pickard v Sears.¹⁵⁰⁴ The rule in India is the rule as extended by equity, and it is enacted in section 115 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, and is explained in the leading case of Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder.¹⁵⁰⁵ As the equitable doctrine of estoppel requires a man to make his representation good, the words “fraudulently or erroneously represents” have been said to make estoppel the foundation of the section, and in the absence of such representation, the section does not apply.¹⁵⁰⁶ Thus the sine qua non for application of section 43 is that at the initial stage the person should have fraudulently or erroneously represented that he is authorized to transfer certain immovable property or professes to transfer such property for consideration. Only if this pre-condition is satisfied, the question of option of the transferee arises in case the transferor acquires any interest in the property at any time during which the contract of transfer subsists.¹⁵⁰⁷ The representation need not be intentionally false.¹⁵⁰⁸ It requires an erroneous misrepresentation or a fraudulent representation,¹⁵⁰⁹ and whether it is erroneous is a question of fact.¹⁵¹⁰ It need not be in a particular form. It can be by word of mouth or by a document.¹⁵¹¹ Where a vendor sold as agent of a Hindu widow and then became

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

her heir, the section did not operate, for he had sold as agent and had made no erroneous representation.¹⁵¹² However, when a Mahomedan mortgaged his wife's property purporting to act on a power of attorney which was not proved, the share which he inherited at her death was liable for the mortgage.¹⁵¹³ A ghatwal mortgaged land which he held on restricted tenure alleging it to be his jagheer, and subsequently got a mokarari lease of it. He was estopped from pleading his subsequent title, and the mortgagee got the benefit of the mokarari interest.¹⁵¹⁴ Two brothers mortgaged their interest in a tank in which their cousin had a half share. They subsequently acquired their cousin's share by inheritance, but the mortgagee who had got a decree for sale on his mortgage, purchased the property and sold it to the plaintiff. The plaintiff did not get the benefit of the cousin's share as there had been no representation, erroneous or fraudulent.¹⁵¹⁵ But when the head of a joint Hindu family mortgaged joint family property representing that he had a right to do so, he was bound to make good his representation to the extent of a share which came to him afterwards on partition.¹⁵¹⁶ Again, the father of a joint family consisting of himself and two sons sold family property representing that it was his self-acquisition. The vendee sued for possession and pending the suit one of the sons died. The vendee got the benefit of this accession to the father's estate, and was awarded half of the property.¹⁵¹⁷ So also, where a member of a joint Hindu family mortgaged his undivided share in the joint property in favour of another person, alleging that he was separate from the rest of the members, and thereafter there was a partition giving such member certain property, it was held that the mortgage lien would be transferred to the property which fell to such member's share.¹⁵¹⁸ No fraudulent or erroneous representation was found when the sale showed that transferor had 8 anna share in the land and he sold only that much.¹⁵¹⁹

ILLUSTRATION

A and B were two brothers and effected a partition at which the equity of redemption of a mortgage shop was allotted to A. In 1903, A had disappeared and B sold the equity of redemption to C, erroneously representing that it was ancestral property to which he was solely entitled. In 1924, C sued to redeem the mortgage of the shop and was met with the defence that he got no title from B as A was alive in 1903 and the equity of redemption belonged to him. It was proved that A died in 1914 leaving no heir except B. C was entitled to redeem as he was owner of the equity of redemption by virtue of this section.¹⁵²⁰

A lady who had already executed a settlement of the suit property in favour of V on certain conditions cancelled it (though no such power had been reserved), and executed a sale-deed in favour of G. Thereafter, the settlement lapsed because of non-fulfilment of the conditions of V. The purchaser from G filed a suit for declaration of title and possession. It was held that there was an erroneous representation by the lady to G that the lady was authorised to transfer the property. As the lady (by failure of the settlement) subsequently acquired an interest in the property, the transferee was entitled to that interest, as he had not rescinded the transfer which was still subsisting. The case squarely fell within the terms of the section.¹⁵²¹ Similarly, a Muslim woman transferring property that she purchased with the consideration received after relinquishing her spes successionis would not be allowed to claim her ineligibility to transfer the same and the transfer would be valid.¹⁵²² Where the son sold the property belonging to his mother under a registered deed on her behalf and delivered the possession to B despite the fact that he was not authorized to make the said transfer, it was held that the transferee was entitled to benefit of section 43, containing the rule of estoppel, as he had acted on the representation made by the son and paid consideration.¹⁵²³

Where the mother sold property in which her minor son had half share and the son successfully challenged the alienation of his share and obtained a decree but died thereafter, it was held that though the mother inherited the property of her son on his death, the vendee could not invoke section 43 in respect of his share as the original contract did not subsist in view of the decree which was obtained by the son.¹⁵²⁴ Where a person mortgages property which he has no right to mortgage and the property subsequently becomes vested in him, the mortgage will operate against him under the provisions of this section.¹⁵²⁵ When a lessor erroneously represents that he is authorized to lease a property and grants a lease of it, and afterwards acquires that property, the lessee is entitled to have the property from the lessor.¹⁵²⁶ Where a partner sells the property of the firm in his own right and subsequently on the dissolution of the firm is allotted the same property, this section would apply.¹⁵²⁷ Where the holder of "sir" land ("sirdar") proposes to acquire bhumidhari rights by depositing money, he does not acquire title immediately on deposit of money, but acquires it only when the bhumidhari certificate is issued. Nevertheless, if he effects the sale after such deposit, then section 43 applies, if he makes an erroneous representation that he was authorised to sell. In such a case, the transfer cannot be challenged by the son of the transferor.¹⁵²⁸ In a case where one of the daughters of the original owner was in exclusive possession of the property which she purported to transfer; the Supreme Court held that the transferee was entitled to the property under section 43, which substantially satisfies the equitable principle of feeding the grant by estoppel. The partition, between the daughters could be presumed to have been made with the consent of the other. In any case, after the death of her sister, the last limited owner, (transferor) got exclusive possession of the entire estate, and section 43 would apply.¹⁵²⁹

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A Hindu wife executed a mortgage of her husband's property as if it belonged to her, five years after he had disappeared. The mortgage was invalid as the presumption of the death does not arise until seven years. But when the mortgagee filed a suit more than seven years later, the mortgage was valid, as she then had acquired a widow's estate.¹⁵³⁰

(2) A, B and C owned a property in equal shares. A and B leased the whole property to B as if they were entitled to it to the exclusion of C. C died and bequeathed his share to A and B. D's title as lessee of the whole property was perfected.¹⁵³¹

(3) A obtained property from B by way of exchange. At the time of the exchange B had only a half share although he professed to transfer the whole. When B subsequently purchased the remaining half it was available to perfect A's title.¹⁵³²

(4) A seller, who had no Bhumidhar rights on date of sale made an erroneous statement in sale deed to the effect that he had these rights. After 13 years, he acquired the Bhumidar rights.

It was held that such rights would enure to the transferee as sale deed remained intact for the said period.¹⁵³³

Transferee is not entitled to protection under section 43 when there has been no pleading that there was fraudulent or erroneous representation by transferor consequent to which no issue was framed.¹⁵³⁴ One must make a specific pleading regarding fraudulent or erroneous representation made. Where the tenant knew that the person inducing him is not the landlord and hence, was never misled by any false or erroneous representation, it was held that section 43 has no application.¹⁵³⁵

[s 43.8] Transferee Acts on the Representation

The section does not expressly provide that the transferee should have been misled by the erroneous representation, for, as has been said, there is no estoppel by a false statement when the truth is known to both parties.¹⁵³⁶ The right of a transferee arises from the fact that he has not got what he has paid for. If he knew that he was buying a defective title, he has paid less, and got what he bargained for.¹⁵³⁷ That is also the position at common law, where it is well-settled that no estoppel can arise where the true position is apparent in the document itself.¹⁵³⁸ If both parties are aware of the title of the transferor, section 43 does not apply.¹⁵³⁹ A transferee is entitled to the benefit of section 43 if he believed in the representation made by the vendor and was not aware of the true interest of the vendor, with reference to the property.¹⁵⁴⁰ Where it was found that there were no fraudulent or erroneous representations and the parties were fully aware of the on-going proceeding in revenue court, merely because the land reverted to the vendor making him the owner, would not entitle the vendee, the protection of section 43.¹⁵⁴¹

Where one brother having only the leasehold right in his favour sold property in favour of another brother who had knowledge of the fact that he does not have absolute ownership but only the leasehold rights, he cannot later claim the benefit of section 43 and pray that newly acquired absolute rights be transferred in his favour.¹⁵⁴² In Muraj v Indar Singh,¹⁵⁴³ it was observed that the word "represents" used in section 43 clearly shows that the transferee must have acted on the representation, and it has been so held in numerous decisions.¹⁵⁴⁴ It is submitted that the same conclusion can perhaps be based on the words “fraudulently or erroneously represents”; a false statement known to be so can certainly not be fraudulent, and it is difficult to describe it even as an erroneous representation. In two cases, however, the contrary view has been taken. In Parma Nand v Champa Lal,¹⁵⁴⁵ a Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court overruled Mulraj v Indar Singh,¹⁵⁴⁶ and Jagernath v Dhanpati,¹⁵⁴⁷ and held that a transferee of a certain shop, who knew that the transferor was only the owner of a half-share in the shop, was entitled under section 43 to the other half-share when the transferor became entitled to it. The court held that there was nothing in section 43 which excluded its operation where the transferee was aware of the true position. A similar view has also been expressed by the Andhra Pradesh High Court.¹⁵⁴⁸ Both these judgments held that the knowledge of the transferee is immaterial, unless it is found that the transfer was illegal or collusively entered into to defeat the provisions of law or is opposed to public policy. It is submitted, with respect, that both these judgments are erroneous. In any event, it is difficult in practice to conceive of many cases where a transferee would, with the knowledge of the true position, enter into such a transaction except to circumvent a provision of the law, or for some other purpose opposed to public policy.¹⁵⁴⁹

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

ILLUSTRATION

A mortgaged to B a half-share in family property in which he was entitled only to a third share. Subsequently, A's father died and A became owner of a half-share. But as B knew that A had only a third share he could only enforce his mortgage against a third share.¹⁵⁵⁰

Similarly, when a mortgagee of land attached to a deshgat watan knew that the mortgagor could only convey a life interest, the subsequent enlargement of the mortgagor's interest did not enure for his benefit, for he only took the estate the mortgagor was capable of conveying at the date of the mortgage.¹⁵⁵¹ Where evidence regarding the representation is vague and the facts are known to the purchasers, section 43 cannot apply.¹⁵⁵² Where the transferee knows as a fact that the transferor does not possess the title which he represents he has, then he cannot be said to have acted on it when taking a transfer, and in such a situation section 43 would have no application.¹⁵⁵³

It is no defence to the person estopped to plead that the transferee made no proper inquiry.¹⁵⁵⁴

Section 43 does not, like section 41, impose upon the transferee the duty of taking reasonable care.¹⁵⁵⁵ No duty is cast on the vendee to make any inquiry and notice to the vendee of encumbrance does not bar the application of the section.¹⁵⁵⁶ In Bloomenthal v Ford,¹⁵⁵⁷ Lord Halsbury said that a person who has made a mis-statement of fact that has been acted upon has no right to say “I told you so and so you ought not to have believed me. You were too great a fool. I had a right to mislead you because you were too great a fool.”

ILLUSTRATION

A transfers property to B falsely representing that he is solely entitled to it. B believes A, but if he had made proper inquiry into the title, he would have discovered that A's cousin is owner of a share. A inherits his cousin's share. In spite of his negligence, B is entitled to the share.

[s 43.9] For Consideration

The section does not apply if the transfer is not for consideration;¹⁵⁵⁸ it does not apply to a transaction of gift.¹⁵⁵⁹

[s 43.10] Invalid Transfer

In order to get the benefit of the section, two conditions which must be satisfied are— (1) the contract of transfer was made by a person who was competent to contract; and (2) the contract would be subsisting at the time when a claim for recovery of the property is made.¹⁵⁶⁰ The section will not apply if the transfer is invalid as being forbidden by law or contrary to public policy. This follows from the principle that there can be no estoppel against an Act of the legislature and when considerations of public interest are involved.¹⁵⁶¹ Thus, if a minor transfers, the section has no application.¹⁵⁶² Sale by a lunatic being void from its inception, the purchaser cannot get any relief under section 43.¹⁵⁶³ So also, when the transfer required the previous permission of the Collector, and no such permission was obtained.¹⁵⁶⁴ Where the settlement was invalid and inoperative not on account of any fraudulent or erroneous representation, but on account of the subsisting lease in respect of the land and as the landlord could not superimpose a second lease in respect of the tenanted property, it was held that no interest could be created under the subsequent document, and, therefore, there could be no question of feeding the estoppel.¹⁵⁶⁵ In *Barrow's case*¹⁵⁶⁶ VC Bacon said that:

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

estoppel only applies to a contract inter partes, and it is not competent to for the parties to estop themselves or anybody else in the face of an Act of Parliament.

No equities can arise out of a transaction that is forbidden on grounds of public policy.¹⁵⁶⁷ In Annada v Gour Mohan,¹⁵⁶⁸ J Mookerjee said that the principle of feeding the estoppel has no application when the contract of assignment refers to property which has been expressly rendered inalienable by the legislature. The interest of a Hindu reversioner is a spes successionis, and is not transferable. An agreement to transfer, or a transfer of, such an interest does not become effective when the succession opens out.¹⁵⁶⁹ However, in two cases the Madras High Court has held that if the reversioner transfers, not his reversionary interest, but the land in praesenti as if he were absolutely entitled, section 43 will apply to validate the transfer when he succeeds to the property.¹⁵⁷⁰ This distinction seems to have the support of the illustration to the section where A transfers field Z as to which he has only an expectancy of succession. In another case,¹⁵⁷¹ the Madras High Court has dissented on the ground that such a distinction would defeat the provisions of section 6(a). The Allahabad High Court, however, has followed the earlier case decided by Madras High Court holding that the illustration to section 41 is not repugnant to section 6 of the TP Act, 1882.¹⁵⁷²

The provisions of sections 6(1) and section 43 “operate on different fields, and under different conditions, and there is no ground for reading a conflict between them or for cutting down the ambit of one by reference to the other; both of them can be given full effect on their own terms, in their respective spheres.”¹⁵⁷³

A case decided by Rajasthan High Court, though it does not purport to be a case on section 41, is of interest. It holds that where a landlord is given possession by mistake of court (in disregard of a stay order staying execution of the eviction decree passed, against the tenant), the landlord's possession is illegal, and any new tenant inducted by the landlord cannot claim restitution as a bona fide transferee.¹⁵⁷⁴

It was held by Supreme Court in Jumma Masjid v Kodimaniandra Deviah,¹⁵⁷⁵ affirming a Full Bench decision of the Madras High Court, that the section applies to all transfers which fulfil the conditions prescribed therein, “and it makes no difference in its application, whether the defect of title in the transferor arises by reason of his having no interest whatsoever in the property, or of his interest therein being that of an expectant heir”.¹⁵⁷⁶ In that case, the Supreme Court held that even where a person having a mere spes successionis represents that he is the owner thereof, and transfers it to another, he is precluded from questioning the validity of the transfer, if he later on succeeds thereto, or acquires an interest therein. In Delhi Development Authority v Ravindra Mohan Aggarwal,¹⁵⁷⁷ a plot of land within the green belt zone was auctioned. The vice-chairman of Delhi Development Authority accepted the bid. Subsequently, the zonal plan was changed, and the said plot of land was converted for residential purpose. The Supreme Court held that since the initial auction was bad in law, and since there cannot be any estoppel against statute, the subsequent conversion would not entitle the bidder, the protection of section 43.

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

The section does not apply to transfers forbidden by law on grounds of public policy. Thus a mortgage by a proprietor disqualified under the Jhansi Encumbered Estates Act, 1882, cannot be enforced after the disqualification has been removed.¹⁵⁷⁸ A purchaser of service inam land acquires no title after the land has been enfranchised.¹⁵⁷⁹ The court cannot under the guise of section 43 uphold a transfer forbidden by law, but if the restriction on alienation is not an absolute restriction founded on considerations of public policy, but is only imposed by agreement, grant, or decree of court, the section will apply.¹⁵⁸⁰

A mortgage by a judgment debtor of property which is the subject of execution by the Collector is absolutely void, and is not effective against any residue that might be left after the Collector's regime has ended.¹⁵⁸¹ On the other hand, a mortgage by an undischarged insolvent becomes effective if the property reverts in the insolvent after his discharge.¹⁵⁸²

Where grant is subjected to statutory restrictions which bar alienation of the granted land, the transferee would not get a valid title to the land by invoking the doctrine of feeding the estoppel, or by virtue of section 43.¹⁵⁸³ If a particular piece of property has been declared by a statute to be specifically inalienable such as Bhumidar land, section 43 does not apply.¹⁵⁸⁴

[s 43.11] Punjab

The principle of the section has been applied to Punjab where a transfer of a spes successionis is valid (section 6(a)). Therefore, a mortgage of property to which the mortgagor has only a reversionary interest becomes effective when the succession opens out.¹⁵⁸⁵

[s 43.12] Covenants for Title

In Basava Sankaran v Anjaneyulu,¹⁵⁸⁶ an Official Receiver sold property before an order vesting it in him had been made, and the implied covenant of title was treated as an erroneous representation, and under section 43 the title of the purchaser was held to be complete when the vesting order was subsequently made. It would appear, however, that the representation under this section should be distinct from the transfer and the covenant in the transfer.

[s 43.13] When there is no Representation

As stated above, the section does not apply to cases where there has been no erroneous or fraudulent representation as there is no estoppel if truth is known to both the parties.¹⁵⁸⁷ But the section has its origin in two different equities, one of which does not involve misrepresentation. These are—

- (1) The equity of estoppel with regard to the passing of property whereby the transferor is estopped from saying that the after-acquired interest did not pass; and
- (2) the equity with regard to the personal obligation which compels the transferor to perform his contract when he is able to do so on the acquisition of the subsequent interest.

The first equity compels a man to make good his representation, and this comes very near the second equity which compels a man to perform according to his ability when performance becomes possible. The apex court has held that if a person pretends to be the owner of the property and subsequently becomes the owner, the transfer by him conveys a good title.¹⁵⁸⁸ Cases under the second equity where there is no representation may, therefore, bear a very close resemblance to cases under the section. The following are instances of the application of this second equity which is outside the rule of estoppel. In Viraya v Hanumanta,¹⁵⁸⁹ a Hindu coparcener agreed to sell family property as if he was the owner. The purchaser sued to enforce the transfer, and pending the suit one of the two other coparceners died. The purchaser was entitled to half the property. In Goya Din v Kashi,¹⁵⁹⁰ the plaintiff was suing for pre-emption, and in order to raise money for the litigation, in anticipation of a decree, mortgaged the suit property. After he obtained a decree and got possession, equity treating that as done which ought to be done, gave the mortgagee a charge on the property and placed him in the position of a mortgagee. In Deb Nath Moral v Sashi Bhusan Moral,¹⁵⁹¹ a landlord made a settlement of a non-transferable holding. The settlement was invalid at the time it was made because the raiya had not abandoned the holding. But the subsequent abandonment of the holding by the raiya validated the settlement. In Loot Narain v Showkie Lal,¹⁵⁹² a ghatwal mortgaged his ghatwal land by zuripeshgi lease, and shortly after the mortgage the zamindar got a decree by which the ghatwal tenure was extinguished and the mortgagee evicted. Some years later, the zamindar granted the ghatwal a permanent lease of the same land. The ghatwal was held liable to make good the zuripeshgi lease out of his new estate. In Surendra v Rajendra,¹⁵⁹³ a ghatwal mortgaged property which he held on restrictive tenure. The restriction was subsequently removed and as to the enlarged interest J Mookerjee said that the deed was operative as an executory agreement which attaches to the property the moment the restriction is removed, and is transferred by equity to the mortgagee. This case is very similar to Mokhoda Debi v Umesh Chandra,¹⁵⁹⁴ which has already been referred to, but in which there was an erroneous representation by the ghatwal and which was, therefore, decided under section 43. However, where the plaintiff knew that the suit land that he had purchased did not belong to the vendor but to his grandmother and consequently, he had no title to the property section 43 would have no application and the plaintiff would not have any benefit of section 41 or section 43.¹⁵⁹⁵ Similarly, where the vendor was the cultivating tenant of the land in question and the plaintiff vendee was very much aware of absence of title in vendor vis-a-vis land, once he had chosen to transact with vendor, knowing fully well that latter did not hold title to land, he cannot seek enforcement of agreement to sell and subsequent acquisition of title by vendor would not enure to benefit of plaintiff.¹⁵⁹⁶

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

A very good instance of the distinction between the section and this equity is the case of Rustom Ali v Abdul Jubbur.¹⁵⁹⁷ A transferred a field to his wife B in satisfaction of dower and another debt. But at the time of the transfer, the owner of the field was C, the sister of A. C sold the field to a party who sold it back to A. The lower appellate court had held that B was entitled to A's after-acquired interest in the field under section 43. This decision was objected to in second appeal on the ground that there was no finding that A had made an erroneous representation. The high court, however, thought it unnecessary to remand the appeal for a finding on this issue because the wife was entitled to it under the equity enunciated by J Mookerjee in Surendra v Rajendra.¹⁵⁹⁸ Similarly, where a lessee assigned his interest in a lease which was contingent upon the demised property being derequisitioned by the military authorities, he was required to carry out the assignment after the property was derequisitioned.¹⁵⁹⁹ This equity will not apply when the professed transfer is by a person incompetent to transfer, eg if the mortgagor is a judgment debtor whose property is being sold by the Collector in execution of a decree.¹⁶⁰⁰

This equitable interest (like that under section 43) is not available against a transferee for value without notice. A, an undivided coparcener in a Mitakshara family, made a mortgage to B of the family property which he was not authorised to make. Subsequently, there was a partition and a share of the family property was allotted to A. This share should have been liable to B's mortgage, but as A had sold it to C who had no notice of the mortgage, B could not enforce his mortgage against C.¹⁶⁰¹

[s 43.14] Mortgages

In the case of transfer by way of mortgage, a discharge by a mortgagor of an encumbrance,¹⁶⁰² or of a prior mortgage,¹⁶⁰³ enures for the benefit of the mortgagee. When the mortgagor of a chak acquires the mokarari interest, that interest is an accession to the security, and passes with it to the purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree on the mortgage.¹⁶⁰⁴ In a Calcutta case,¹⁶⁰⁵ three coparceners mortgaged family property in which an aunt had a share reciting in the deed that "the properties are owned and possessed by us." After the mortgagee's suit the aunt died, and CJ Rankin held that the increased share of the mortgagors became liable to the mortgage not only under section 43, but also on the principle that any enlargement of the mortgagor's interest enures for the benefit of the mortgagee—section 70. In Basar Khan v Moulvi Syed Leakat,¹⁶⁰⁶ the mortgage was of a mokarari interest which had been granted to the mortgagor by the widow of the owner. That interest failed as the widow proved to be only a benamidar. Nevertheless, as the mortgagor had inherited a share of the same estate from the real owner, the Privy Council held that the mortgage was binding to the extent of that share.

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

[s 43.15] Any Interests which the Transferor may Acquire

The section applies to all transfers except gifts, and it applies whatever the nature of the after-acquired interest may be. It applies when the transferor has no interest and subsequently acquires one, as in the case cited of the mortgage of the subject-matter of a pre-emption suit.¹⁶⁰⁷ When the transferor has no interest, but subsequently acquires a charge upon part of the property, the benefit of that charge will pass to the transferee.¹⁶⁰⁸ The section applies also when the transferor having a limited interest transfers a larger interest to the transferee on a misrepresentation and subsequently acquires a larger interest,¹⁶⁰⁹ or the interest is enlarged by the removal of a restriction on alienation,¹⁶¹⁰ or by the discharge of an encumbrance,¹⁶¹¹ or of a prior mortgage¹⁶¹² or when a maufi tenure ripens into a proprietary right.¹⁶¹³ In this connection *Zollikofer & Co v Official Assignee*¹⁶¹⁴ is an instructive case. A mortgaged property to B, erroneously representing that he was the sole owner, when as a matter of fact, a quarter share belonged to C. The whole property was subject to a prior mortgage which A then redeemed. A obtained a decree for contribution in respect of one-fourth of the money due to him on the prior mortgage against C, and the decree made this a charge on C's quarter share. B discovered the defects in A's title and A delivered the decree against C to B. The delivery of the decree did not amount to an assignment, nevertheless the charge was a subsequent acquisition to which B became entitled. Therefore, on C's insolvency, B was entitled to a charge on C's quarter share as against the creditors of the insolvent. In Gurmail Singh v Udham Kaur,¹⁶¹⁵ when the transferor who was husband of the opposite party had subsequently acquired half share in property on death of his wife, it was held that the transferee would be entitled to get benefit of section 43 so far the said half share was concerned. Property sold at the time when transferor had no title to it but the title later acquired through a settlement would also result in the validation of the transfer.¹⁶¹⁶

The section, of course, has no application if the transferor does not acquire a further interest in the property transferred,¹⁶¹⁷ or if such further interest is acquired not by the transferor, but by his successor-in-interest.¹⁶¹⁸ The section cannot apply where the transferor never became owner of the property and the same had been acquired by the parties in their own rights, and not as heirs of the persons who had contracted.¹⁶¹⁹

[s 43.16] In such Property

The section applies when the transferee acquires an interest in the property which is the subject of the transfer. It does not apply to an interest acquired in any other property,¹⁶²⁰ or where no grant or interest in immovable property is involved.¹⁶²¹ In P Chellamuthu v Abinaya Muthusamy,¹⁶²² the property owned by A was under a notification to be acquired by the authorities. He challenged the said notification but lost. During the period of challenge, he executed a power of attorney in favour of B, who sold the property on the very same day to C. Next day A revoked the power of attorney issued in favour of B and instead sold the property to D. B, on the other hand petitioned to the authorities to cancel the land acquisition and accepting his case, the authorities re-conveyed the land in favour of B, instead of A, the original owner from whom they had acquired the land. Meanwhile C had also sold the property to three different persons, at whose instance the suit was brought to the court. On the issue of application of section 43, the court held that at the time when A had sold the property to D, he did not have any interest as the property was acquired by the government. On its re-conveyance, the title in favour of C was perfected. B on the other hand had no right to have the land re-conveyed in his favour as he was merely a power of attorney holder that was cancelled by the original owner.

[s 43.17] Subrogation

The principle of this section overrides the rule of subrogation enacted in section 92. A mortgages his property first to B and then to C and lastly, to D. If D redeems B, he is subrogated to the rights of B, and C is still subject to B's mortgage now held by D. But if A himself redeems B he is not subrogated to the rights of B and interest so acquired enures for the benefit of C and D, and has the effect of enlarging their security.¹⁶²³ A mortgagor paying a debt for which he is liable cannot set up a charge against a subsequent encumbrance.¹⁶²⁴

[s 43.18] Third Parties

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

In cases of persons who contract to sell property, but with no title, the purchaser can take advantage of the subsequent acquisition of such title by the vendor and the law compels the vendor to convey the property if, by a supervening act or otherwise, his imperfect title or no title is perfected. This is the well known principle of feeding the grant by estoppel. If third persons are interested in the bargain and if the vendor can compel such persons to join in the transfer of such property over which he had no title or had only an imperfect title, then the purchaser can compel the vendor to procure such concurrence or compel such third parties to procure such a conveyance.¹⁶²⁵

[s 43.19] Execution Sales

The section has of course no application to execution sales.¹⁶²⁶ An execution sale stands on a different footing. The decree holder does not guarantee the title of the judgment debtor, and the intending purchaser knows that under the law he can acquire nothing beyond the right, title and interest of the judgment debtor.¹⁶²⁷ So when a ghatwal tenure was sold pending negotiations for its enfranchisement, the sale was invalid and the execution purchaser got nothing although the tenure was subsequently enfranchised.¹⁶²⁸

[s 43.20] At the Option of the Transferee

Subsequent acquisition of the title by the transferor does not automatically invest the transferee with the title so acquired; he must exercise the option.¹⁶²⁹ The word “option” implies that the transferee may take the after-acquired interest, but that it cannot be forced upon him. The title in the after-acquired property does not pass the instant it is acquired, but only on demand made by the transferee, when the transferee exercises the option and the title passes, it does not vest in the transferee from the date of execution of the original document.¹⁶³⁰ The option need not be exercised in any particular form.¹⁶³¹ It is not necessary that the transferee must give notice immediately to the transferor that he holds him bound by the agreement. It is not the exercise of the option that the subsequent transferee must have notice of, before he can be bound. It is not necessary to establish that the second transferee has known that the transferor’s title was defective at the date of the first transfer, that the transferor later acquired interest which he had previously purported to transfer, and that the transferee had elected to hold the transferor bound by the agreement. The words “notice of the existence of the option” have been used, as the first transferee who had an equitable interest only has nothing more than an option to proceed against the property included in his transfer, it being merely an equitable right, and not a transfer of legal interest. The second transferee must be deemed to have notice of the said option, if he has knowledge of the previous transactions.¹⁶³² Any action by the transferee, indicative of the exercise of the option, will suffice. A “demand” is not required.¹⁶³³

The word “option” in the section shows that the law has specified only one of the various remedies open to the transferee. The transferee can repudiate the contract, or he may elect to ask for damages. That he can do under the general law. The relief provided by the first paragraph is additional, and enables him to get at the property itself provided the contract subsists at the date.¹⁶³⁴

[s 43.21] At Any Time when the Contract of Transfer Subsists

The option of the transferee to require that the transfer should operate on any subsequently acquired interest can only be exercised while the contract subsists. If the transferee has rescinded the contract and elected to seek a remedy in damages, the contract is not in existence, and the transferee can have no interest in the subject-matter of the contract. If he had taken such partial interest as the transferor can convey, the contract has not been fully executed, and is still executory as to the remaining interest; and when that interest is acquired, the transferee can claim it.

A contractual obligation becomes extinguished by merger when it becomes the subject of a decree. Accordingly, it has been held that the option cannot be exercised after the transferee has obtained a decree on the contract. In an Allahabad case,¹⁶³⁵ a Hindu mortgaged his own share and his brother’s share. He had no authority to dispose of his brother’s share, but he inherited that share on his brother’s death, after the mortgagee had obtained a decree on the mortgage. It was correctly held that the inherited share was not liable to the mortgage.

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

It has been held by the Madras High Court¹⁶³⁶ that though a contract of mortgage merges in the judgment and decree passed in the mortgage suit, "it must be held to subsist all the same, till the mortgage is satisfied and the mere fact of the share in question having devolved on respondent subsequent to the decree appears to me to be no reason for holding section 43 of the Transfer of Property Act to be inapplicable".¹⁶³⁷ This decision has been reaffirmed and followed by the same High Court in Arulayi v Jagadeesiah,¹⁶³⁸ wherein it was held that the mortgage must be held to subsist for the purposes of section 43 until the property is actually sold. As the mortgagor is entitled to redeem until the sale of the property,¹⁶³⁹ the mortgage undoubtedly subsists in that sense.

After the sale of the property, section 43 would be inapplicable, but the purchaser may still invoke section 115 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, read with the representation of title implied under section 65(a).¹⁶⁴⁰

[s 43.22] Proviso

The proviso protects transferees in good faith without notice of the option.¹⁶⁴¹ The option can be exercised against an heir of the transferor, and all persons claiming under him except a purchaser in good faith for consideration without notice of the existence of the option.¹⁶⁴² This is because until the option is exercised the transferee's right to the after-acquired property is only a contractual obligation, and the transferor holds the interest as his trustee.¹⁶⁴³ If property is transferred for a consideration in good faith without misrepresentation of fraud and transferee had taken reasonable steps to ascertain title of transferor, then such transfer would not be void.¹⁶⁴⁴

A representing that he had a transferable interest in property in which he had no such interest mortgaged it to B. A subsequently acquired the transferable interest which he transferred to C who had no notice of B's mortgage. The transfer was made before B had exercised his option, and, therefore, B's mortgage was subject to the rights of C.¹⁶⁴⁵ In an Oudh case,¹⁶⁴⁶ A mortgaged to B a share in property to which he had no title representing himself to be the owner. Subsequently, he acquired a charge over it by paying off a prior mortgage decree. Before B exercised his option, A assigned the charge to C. The court held that as C was not aware of B's option, he was not affected by the mortgage. But as the report shows that C was aware of B's mortgage, it is difficult to understand how he was unaware of the option, unless he was not aware that A had no title when he mortgaged.

[s 43.23] Other Cases of Estoppel

There may be other cases of estoppel operating in the realm of property law. Thus, a person who assents to a deed may be estopped from challenging the transaction. In a particular case, attestation may imply consent.¹⁶⁴⁷

¹⁴⁸⁶ Ins. by Act 20 of 1929, section 13.

¹⁴⁸⁷ Jumma Masjid Mercara v Kodimaniandra Deviah, AIR 1962 SC 847 [LNIND 1962 SC 4] , p 852; Kartar Singh v Harbans Kawi, AIR 1993 P&H. 186 , p 188.

¹⁴⁸⁸ Rajapakse v Fernando, [1920] AC 892 , p 897; Fernando v Gunatillaka, [1921] 2 AC 357 , p 366.

¹⁴⁸⁹ Tilakdhari Lal v Khedan Lal, (1920) ILR 48 Cal 1, p 20 : 47 IA 239, p 254 : 57 IC 465 : AIR 1921 PC 112 .

¹⁴⁹⁰ See the criticism of Sir George Jessel in General Finance etc Co v Liberator etc Society, (1878) 10 ChD 15 .

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

- 1491 Zamindar Bomaya v Virappa, (1864) 2 Mad HC 174; Dooli Chund v Brij Bhookun, (1880) 6 Cal LR 528 ; Uday v Ladu, (1870) 13 Mad IA 585; Tilakdhari Lal v Khedan Lal, (1920) ILR 48 Cal 1 : 47 IA 239 : 57 IC 465 : AIR 1921 PC 112 .
- 1492 Sankari Ammal v Ramachandra, (1954) ILR Mad 791 : (1954) 2 Mad LJ 569 : AIR 1954 Mad. 861 [LNIND 1953 MAD 223] .
- 1493 Holroyd v Marshall, (1862) 10 HLC 191.
- 1494 Collyer v Issacs, (1881) 19 ChD 342 .
- 1495 Tailby v Official Receiver, (1888) 13 App Cas 523 .
- 1496 Abdul Kadar v Jamebie Khatun, (1951) ILR AP 815; Ram Bhawan Singh v Jagdish, (1990) 4 SCC 309 [LNIND 1990 SC 443] , pp 313–314; Renu Devi v Mahendra Singh, (2003) 10 SCC 200 [LNIND 2003 SC 1262] : AIR 2003 SC 1608 [LNIND 2003 SC 1262] .
- 1497 EA Patra v ER Patra, AIR 1980 Ori. 95 [LNIND 1980 ORI 67] .
- 1498 Jharu Ram Roy v Kamjit Roy, 2009 (4) SCJ 155 : (2009) 4 SCC 60 [LNINDORD 2009 SC 300] .
- 1499 Kesau v Seharam, (1951) ILR Nag 12 : AIR 1951 Ngp 8 .
- 1500 Silla Chandra Sekharam v Ramchandra Sahu, [1964] 7 SCR 858 [LNIND 1964 SC 155] : AIR 1964 SC 1789 [LNIND 1964 SC 155] .
- 1501 Sundariah v Ramasastry, (1955) ILR Mys 1 : AIR 1955 Mys 8 .
- 1502 Jote Singh v Ram Das Mahto, AIR 1996 SC 2773 [LNINDORD 1996 SC 189] : (1996) 5 SCC 524 [LNINDORD 1996 SC 189] .
- 1503 Krishna Chandra v Rasik Lal, (1916) 21 Cal WN 218 : 33 IC 568.
- 1504 Pickard v Sears, (1837) 6 A&E 469.
- 1505 Sarat Chunder v Gopal Chunder, (1893) ILR 20 Cal 296 : 19 IA 203 (PC).
- 1506 Jagan Nath v Dibbo, (1908) ILR 31 All 53 : 1 IC 818; Pandiri Bangaram v Karumoory, (1910) ILR 34 Mad 159 : 8 IC 388; Ladu Narain v Gobardhan, (1925) ILR 4 Pat 478 : 86 IC 721 : AIR 1925 Pat. 470 ; Krishna Paramada v Dharendra, (1929) ILR 56 Cal 813 : 56 IA 74 : 113 IC 465 : AIR 1929 PC 50 ; Jabedali v Prasanna, (1923) 27 Cal WN 433 : 75 IC 281 : AIR 1923 Cal 423 ; Ram Bharosey v Bhagwan Din, AIR 1943 Oudh 196 : (1943) Oudh WN 5 : 204 IC 543; Kanthimathinatha v Vayyapuri, AIR 1963 Mad. 37 [LNIND 1962 MAD 54] ; Abdul Qadamiya Sheikh v Jagannath Murlidhar Rathi, AIR 2002 Bom 413 [LNIND 2002 BOM 235] .
- 1507 Agricultural Produce Marketing Committee v Bannamma, (2015) 5 SCC 691 [LNIND 2014 SC 727] : AIR 2014 SC 3000 [LNIND 2014 SC 727] : 2014 (8) Scale 707 [LNIND 2014 SC 727] .
- 1508 Hattikudur v Andar, (1915) 28 Mad LJ 44 : 27 IC 785.
- 1509 Jamuna Mayee v Koimaindra, AIR 1953 Mad. 427 .
- 1510 Saradamoyi v Atul Chandra, 68 IC 203 : AIR 1923 Cal 165 .
- 1511 Ganeshdas v Kamlabai, AIR 1952 Ngp 29 .
- 1512 Syed Nurul Hossein v Sheosahai, (1893) ILR 20 Cal 1 : 19 IA 221.
- 1513 Aisha Bibi v Mahfuz-un-nissa, (1924) ILR 46 All 310 : 78 IC 180 : AIR 1924 All 362 . See also Hanuman Das v Gursahay Singh, (1913) 18 Cal LJ 181 : 21 IC 700.
- 1514 Mokhoda Debi v Umesh Chandra, (1907) 7 Cal LJ 381 .
- 1515 Saradamoyi v Anil Chandra, 68 IC 203 : AIR 1923 Cal 165 .
- 1516 Kamla Prasad v Nathuni, 66 IC 149 : AIR 1922 Pat. 347 ; Ram Ratan v Chaudhri, (1923) 26 OC 245 : 71 IC 581 : AIR 1923 Oudh 265 ; Ramaswamy Pattamali v Lakshmi, (1962) ILR 2 Ker 130 : AIR 1962 Ker. 313 [LNIND 1961 KER 343] .
- 1517 Muthuswami Pillai v Sandana Velan, (1927) 53 Mad LJ 218 : 101 IC 619 : AIR 1927 Mad. 649 [LNIND 1926 MAD 497] ; Cf Sundar Lal v Ghissa, (1929) 27 All LJ 1087 : 118 IC 705 : AIR 1929 All 589 .
- 1518 Kharag Narayan v Janki Rai, (1936) ILR 16 Pat 230 : 169 IC 906 : AIR 1937 AP 546 .
- 1519 Krishna Laxman Bhatkar v Vithal Ganesh Athavale, AIR 2004 Bom 418 [LNIND 2003 BOM 860] : (2004) 3 Bom CR 835 [LNIND 2003 BOM 860] : (2004) 1 All MR 406.
- 1520 Sundar Lal v Ghissa, (1929) 27 All LJ 1087 : 118 IC 705 : AIR 1929 All 589 .
- 1521 Velluswami Thevar v Ganesa Thevar, (1976) 2 Mad LJ 115.

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

- 1522 Jameela v Basheer, AIR 2012 Ker. 107 [LNIND 2012 KER 347] : (2012) 2 Kar LJ 273 [LNIND 2012 KANT 2] .
- 1523 Tulsa v Sita, 2015(6) ABR 565 [LNIND 2015 NGP 321] .
- 1524 Kartar Singh v Harbans Kaur, AIR 1993 P&H. 186 , p 189.
- 1525 Sarju Prasad v Bindeshri, (1911) ILR 33 All 382 : 9 IC 298; Eshaq Lal v Balla, 122 IC 177 : AIR 1930 All 115 ; Villa v Petley, 148 IC 721 : AIR 1934 Rang 51 ; Ram Japan v Jagesara Kuer, 182 IC 829 : AIR 1939 Pat. 116 ; Subbarayudu v Venkatasubbiah, AIR 1960 AP 592 [LNIND 1959 AP 280] .
- 1526 Protab Chandra v Judisthir Das, (1914) 19 Cal LJ 408 : 23 IC 69; Aditya Prasad v Parmananda, (1919) 4 Pat LJR 505 : 53 IC 96; Jyoti Prasad v Chandra Kanta, 171 IC 438; Jagmohan Tewari v Rain Pher Tewari, (1955) 53 All LJ 760; Rusi v Goodale, [1957] ChD 33 : [[1956\] 3 All ER 373](#)] .
- 1527 Peyarelal v Misri, (1940) ILR All 674 : (1940) All LJ 592 : 192 IC 281 : AIR 1940 All 453 .
- 1528 Rampyari v Ram Narain, AIR 1985 SC 694 [LNIND 1985 SC 55] : (1985) 2 SCC 162 [LNIND 1985 SC 55] .
- 1529 Brahma Sonathan Dhanna Mahamandal v Prem Kumar, AIR 1985 SC 1102 [LNIND 1985 SC 195] : (1985) 3 SCC 350 [LNIND 1985 SC 195] .
- 1530 Mahadeo v Har Buksh, 106 IC 489 : AIR 1928 Oudh 13 .
- 1531 Sulin Mohan v Raj Krishna, (1921) 25 Cal WN 420 : 60 IC 826 : AIR 1921 Cal 582 .
- 1532 Bhairab Chandra v Man, (1921) 33 Cal LJ 184 : 60 IC 819 : AIR 1921 Cal 748 .
- 1533 Sachchidand Pandey v Ram Phar Singh, AIR 2004 All 232 .
- 1534 Ganesh Patra v Banabihari Patra, AIR 2004 Ori. 23 [LNIND 2003 ORI 61] : (2003) 96 CLT 436 .
- 1535 Sri Narayan Chandra Saha v Dipali Mukherjee, AIR 2002 Cal 229 [LNIND 2002 CAL 72] : (2002) 2 Cal LT 5 : (2002) 2 CHN 14 .
- 1536 Mohori Bibee v Dhurmodas Ghose, (1905) ILR 30 Cal 539 : 30 IA 114; Prasanna Kumar v Srikantha Rout, (1913) ILR 40 Cal 173 : 16 IC 365; Dwarka Prasad v Nasir Ahmed, 78 IC 850 : AIR 1925 Oudh 16 ; Bhagwan Din v Muhammad Unus Khan, (1934) ILR 9 Luck 359 : 148 IC 367 : AIR 1934 Oudh 112 ; Maina v Bhagwati Prasad, (1936) All LJ 1230 : 164 IC 193 : AIR 1936 All 557 ; Ouseph v Govindan Kutty, AIR 1972 Ker. 96 [LNIND 1971 KER 102] .
- 1537 See, however, Parma Nand v Champa Lal, (1956) ILR 1 All 313 : (1956) All LJ 1 : AIR 1956 All 225 [LNIND 1955 ALL 238] .
- 1538 Halsbury's Laws of England, 3rd Edn, vol 15, p 216; American Jurisprudence, p 612.
- 1539 EA Patra v ER Patra, AIR 1980 Ori. 95 [LNIND 1980 ORI 67] .
- 1540 Banwari Lal v Sudhakaran Dayal, AIR 1973 SC 814 ; Trilochan Behera v Naiko Behra Subhadra, AIR 1991 Ori. 80 [LNIND 1990 ORI 48] , p 82.
- 1541 Abdul Dadamiya Shaikh v Jagannath Muralidhar Rath, AIR 2002 Bom 413 [LNIND 2002 BOM 235] : (2003) 1 Bom CR 537 [LNIND 2002 BOM 235] .
- 1542 Ashok Chinnappa Metagud v Annapurna, AIR 2018 Kant. 1 : 2016 (1)MhLJ 561 [LNIND 2015 NGP 321] : [LNIND 2015 NGP 321] .
- 1543 Mulraj v Indar Singh, (1926) ILR 48 All 150 : 92 IC 471 : AIR 1926 All 102 .
- 1544 Pandiri Bangaram v Karumoory, (1933) ILR 34 Mad 159 : 8 IC 388; Lakshmi Narasayyar v Meenakshi, (1913) Mad WN 707 : 52 IC 992; Chakrapani v Gayamoni, 48 IC 228; Hattikudur v Andar, (1915) 28 Mad LJ 44 : 27 IC 785; Kodi v Moidin, (1918) 35 Mad LJ 120 : 49 IC 147; Dwarka Prasad v Nasir Ahmed, 78 IC 850 : AIR 1925 Oudh 16 ; Gopi Nath v Rup Ram, (1930) 28 All LJ 926 : AIR 1930 All 786 ; Sundar Lal v Ghissa, (1929) 27 All LJ 1087 : 118 IC 705 : AIR 1929 All 589 ; Ladu Narain v Gobardhan, (1925) ILR 4 Pat 478 : 36 IC 721 : AIR 1925 Pat. 470 ; Contra Jag Mohan v Sita Raj, 20 IC 72 : 39 IC 186.
- 1545 Parma Nand v Champa Lal, (1956) ILR 1 All 313 : (1956) All LJ 1 : AIR 1956 All 225 [LNIND 1955 ALL 238] .
- 1546 Mulraj v Indar Singh, (1926) ILR 48 All 150 : 92 IC 471 : AIR 1926 All 102 .
- 1547 Jagernath v Dhanpati, 151 IC 809 : AIR 1934 All 969 .
- 1548 Veeraswami v Durga Venkata Subbarao, AIR 1957 AP 288 [LNIND 1956 AP 132] . The observations are obiter.
- 1549 Some of the illustrations given by J Agarwala in Parma Nand's case (1956) ILR 1 All pp 316–317 are, it is submitted, of transfers designed to defeat the provisions of law.
- 1550 Pandiri Bangaram v Karumoory, (1911) ILR 34 Mad 159 : 8 IC 388.

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

- 1551 Gangabai v Baswant, (1910) ILR 34 Bom 175 : 5 IC 866; Cf Kunwar Bahadur v Gilsher Khan, AIR 1937 All 287 .
- 1552 Banwarlal v Subhadarshan Dayal, AIR 1973 SC 814 .
- 1553 Jumma Masjid v Kodimaniandra Deviah, AIR 1962 SC 847 [LNIND 1962 SC 4] ; Ram Pyare v Ram Narain, AIR 1985 SC 694 [LNIND 1985 SC 55] ; Johri v Mahila Draupati, AIR 1991 MP 340 [LNIND 1990 MP 162] , pp 344, 345. See also Ganeshdas v Kamlabai, AIR 1952 Ngp 29 ; Jagat Narain v Laljee, AIR 1965 All 504 .
- 1554 Gopi Nath v Rup Ram, (1930) 28 All LJ 926 : 133 IC 17 : AIR 1930 All 786 ; Madirazu v Bommadevara, AIR 1946 Mad. 107 [LNIND 1945 MAD 246] .
- 1555 Maung Ba Tin v Maung Po Kin, (1935) 14 Bur LR 329; Ganga Prasad v Raghubansa, (1936) Oudh WN 1241 : 165 IC 793 : AIR 1937 Oudh 127 .
- 1556 Zogu Ram v Venkata Kreshnayya, AIR 1946 Mad. 107 [LNIND 1945 MAD 246] : (1945) 2 Mad LJ 478 : 224 IC 425.
- 1557 Bloomenthal v Ford, [1897 AC 156] , p 162.
- 1558 Jagga Nath v Dibbo, (1908) ILR 31 All 53 : 1 IC 818; Deoman v Atmaram, AIR 1948 Ngp 122 ; Sadhu Saran v Sheo Prasad, (1959) ILR 37 Pat 1078 : AIR 1959 Pat. 278 .
- 1559 Ganga Baksh v Madho Singh, (1955) ILR 1 All 587 : (1955) All LJ 162 : AIR 1955 All 587 .
- 1560 Sheo Ram v Ganesh Shanker, (1954) All LJ 92 : AIR 1954 All 452 [LNIND 1953 ALL 293] .
- 1561 Delhi Development Authority v Ravindra Mohan Aggarwal, AIR 1999 SC 1256 [LNIND 1999 SC 276] .
- 1562 Ajudhia Prasad v Chandan Lal, AIR 1937 All 610 .
- 1563 Johri v Mahila Draupati, AIR 1991 MP 340 [LNIND 1990 MP 162] , p 345.
- 1564 Deoman v Atmaram, AIR 1948 Ngp 122 .
- 1565 Ram Bhawan Singh v Jagdish, (1990) 4 SCC 309 [LNIND 1990 SC 443] , p 314.
- 1566 Barrow's case [1880 14 ChD 432] , p 441; Sitharama v Krishnaswami, (1915) ILR 38 Mad 374; Sanjib Chandra v Santosh Kumar, (1922) ILR 49 Cal 507 : 69 IC 877 : AIR 1922 Cal 436 .
- 1567 Sannamma v Radhabhayi, (1918) ILR 41 Mad 418 : 43 IC 935; Ramasami v Ramasami, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 255; Ramayya v V Jagannadham, (1916) ILR 39 Mad 930 : 30 IC 889; Gopala Dasu v Rami, (1921) ILR 44 Mad 946, p 948 : 64 IC 328 : AIR 1921 Mad. 410 ; Ramayya v Dhara Satchi, (1913) 25 Mad LJ 635 : 21 IC 600.
- 1568 Annada v Gour Mohan, (1921) ILR 48 Cal 536 : 59 IC 476 : AIR 1921 Cal 501 : on app (1923) ILR 50 Cal 929 : 50 IA 239 : 74 IC 499 : AIR 1923 PC 189 .
- 1569 Jagannada v Rajah Prasada Rao, (1916) ILR 39 Mad 554 : 29 IC 241; Dwarka Prasad v Nasir Ahmed, 78 IC 850 : AIR 1925 Oudh 16 ; Bhairon v Baldeo, (1903) 7 OC 98; Bindeshwari Singh v Har Narain, (1929) ILR 4 Luck 622 : 127 IC 20 : AIR 1929 Oudh 185 ; and see Jagat Narain v Laljee, (1965) All LJ 255 : AIR 1965 All 504 ; Annapurna v Munshi, (1967) All LJ 315 : AIR 1967 All 531 [LNIND 1966 ALL 145] .
- 1570 Alamanaya v Murukuti, (1915) 29 Mad LJ 733 : 29 IC 439; Vellayammal v Palaniyandi Ambulam, (1933) 65 Mad LJ 772 : 147 IC 381 : AIR 1933 Mad. 856 [LNIND 1933 MAD 15] .
- 1571 Official Assignee of Madras v Sampath Naidu, (1933) 65 Mad LJ 588 : 145 IC 965 : AIR 1933 Mad. 795 [LNIND 1933 MAD 166] ; Ram Bharosey v Bhagwan Din, AIR 1943 Oudh 196 : (1943) Oudh WN 5 : 204 IC 547.
- 1572 Shyam Narain v Mangal Prasad, (1935) All LJ 13 : 153 IC 163 : AIR 1935 All 244 .
- 1573 Jumma Masjid v Kodimaniandra Deviah, AIR 1962 SC 847 [LNIND 1962 SC 4] , p 850; Damodaran Kavirajan v T D Rajappan, AIR 1992 Ker. 397 [LNIND 1991 KER 363] , p 401.
- 1574 Mangi Lal v Kailash Chand, AIR 1982 Raj. 269 .
- 1575 Jumma Masjid v Kodimaniandra Deviah, [1962] 2 SCR 554 (Supp) : AIR 1962 SC 847 [LNIND 1962 SC 4] ; affmg (1953) ILR Mad 427 : (1953) 1 Mad LJ 388 : AIR 1953 Mad. 637 [LNIND 1952 MAD 261] and overruling Official Assignee of Madras v Sampath Naidu, (1933) 65 Mad LJ 588; Arulayi v Jagadeesiah, (1963) 2 Mad LJ 365 : AIR 1964 Mad. 122 [LNIND 1963 MAD 65] .
- 1576 [1962] 2 SCR 554 , p 561 (Supp).
- 1577 Delhi Development Authority v Ravindra Mohan Aggarwal, AIR 1999 SC 1256 [LNIND 1999 SC 276] : (1999) 3 SCC 172 [LNIND 1999 SC 276] .
- 1578 Radha Bai v Kamod, (1908) ILR 30 All 38.

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

- 1579 Sannamma v Radhabhai, (1918) ILR 41 Mad 418; Ramayya v Dhara Satchi, (1913) 25 Mad LJ 635 : 21 IC 600; Narahari v Korithan, (1913) 24 Mad LJ 462 : 19 IC 881; Ramayya v Jagannadhan, (1916) ILR 39 Mad 930 : 30 IC 889.
- 1580 Balbhaddar v Kusehar Das, (1928) ILR 3 Luck 636 : 110 IC 357 : AIR 1928 Oudh 344 ; Kusehar v Balbhaddar, 107 IC 872 : AIR 1928 Oudh 153 .
- 1581 Gaurishankar v Ghinnumaya, (1918) ILR 46 Cal 183 : 45 IA 219 : 48 IC 312 dissenting from Magniram v Bakubai, (1912) ILR 36 Bom 510 : 16 IC 570.
- 1582 Rup Narain Singh v Har Gopal Tewari, (1933) ILR 55 All 503 : (1933) All LJ 475 : 143 IC 836 : AIR 1933 All 449 ; Diwan Chand v Manakchand, (1934) ILR 16 Lah 392 : 155 IC 938 : AIR 1934 Lah 809 .
- 1583 M C Lakshminarasappa v Asstt Commr, Chikkaballapur, AIR 1993 Kant. 326 [LNIND 1992 KANT 304] , p 331.
- 1584 Ramkali v State of Uttar Pradesh, AIR 2009 (NOC) 190 All.
- 1585 Autar Singh v Lal Singh, 155 IC 880 : AIR 1934 Lah 996 .
- 1586 Basava Sankaran v Anjaneyulu, (1927) ILR 50 Mad 135 : 99 IC 8 : AIR 1927 Mad. 1 [LNIND 1926 MAD 267] followed in Muthiah Chettiar v Doraswami, (1927) Mad WN 794 : 106 IC 641 : AIR 1927 Mad. 1091 [LNIND 1927 MAD 489] ; Cf Narasimudu v Basava Sankaram, (1925) 47 Mad LJ 749 : 85 IC 439 : AIR 1925 Mad. 249 [LNIND 1924 MAD 276] .
- 1587 Jharu Ram Roy v Kanijet Roy, (2009) 4 SCC 60 [LNINDORD 2009 SC 300] ; See also Shanti Sports Club v UOI, (2009) 15 SCC 705 [LNIND 2009 SC 1724] : (2009) 11 JT 311 , wherein it was held that the rule “no one can pass a better title than what he himself possesses”, applies in cases property is transferred after its acquisition. Such transfers are void and the remedy in those cases is to claim compensation.
- 1588 Hardev Singh v Gurmail Singh, AIR 2007 SC 1058 [LNIND 2007 SC 120] : (2007) 2 SCC 404 [LNIND 2007 SC 120] .
- 1589 Viraya v Hanumanta, (1890) ILR 14 Mad 459; Randhir Singh v Bhagwan Das, (1913) ILR 35 All 541 : 21 IC 654.
- 1590 Goya Din v Kashi, (1907) ILR 29 All 163; Ram Lal v Shiama Lal, (1913) 29 All LJ 73 : 131 IC 38 : AIR 1931 All 275 ; Bansidhar v Sant Lal, (1888) ILR 10 All 133.
- 1591 Deb Nath Moral v Sashi Bhusan Moral, (1934) 37 Cal WN 1144 : 58 Cal LJ 145 : 149 IC 1099 : AIR 1934 Cal 82 .
- 1592 Loot Narain v Showkie Lal, (1878) 2 Cal LR 382 .
- 1593 Surendra v Rajendra, (1918) 27 Cal LJ 289 : 43 IC 740.
- 1594 Mokhoda Debi v Umesh Chandra, (1907) 7 Cal LJ 381 .
- 1595 Atal Srivastava v Dev Prasad, AIR 2012 CHG. 117 .
- 1596 S Kanaka Durga Manikyhamba v Ramapragada Surya Prakasa Rao, AIR 2010 AP 99 [LNIND 2009 AP 838] : 2010 (2) Andh LD 480.
- 1597 Rustom Ali v Abdul Jubbur, 76 IC 499 : AIR 1923 Cal 535 .
- 1598 Surendra v Rajendra, (1918) 27 Cal LJ 289 : 43 IC 740.
- 1599 Indraloke Studio Ltd v Santi Debi, AIR 1960 Cal 609 .
- 1600 Gaurishankar v Chinnumaya, (1918) ILR 46 Cal 183 : 45 IA 219 : 48 IC 312 : AIR 1918 PC 168 dissenting from Magniram v Bakubai, (1912) ILR 36 Bom 510 : 16 IC 570 (where section 43 was wrongly applied.)
- 1601 Bhagannah v Chandi Singh, (1911) 14 OC 295 : 13 IC 466.
- 1602 Shyama v Ananda, (1880) 3 Cal WN 323.
- 1603 Manjappa v Krishnayya, (1908) ILR 29 Mad 113.
- 1604 Surja v Nandal Lal, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 1212.
- 1605 Behary Lal v Indra Narayan, (1927) 31 Cal WN 985 : 104 IC 206 : AIR 1927 Cal 665 .
- 1606 Basar Khan v Moulvi Syed Leakat, (1919) 23 Cal WN 841 : 50 IC 678 : AIR 1919 PC 14 .
- 1607 Goya Din v Kashi, (1907) ILR 29 All 163.
- 1608 Mohan Singh v Sewa Ram, 75 IC 579 : AIR 1924 Oudh 209 .

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

- 1609 Prem Nath Khanna v State of Orissa, AIR 2009 Ori. 166 [LNIND 2009 ORI 59] : 107 (2009) CLT 741 : (2009) 1 Ori LR 416 .
- 1610 Mokhoda Debi v Umesh Chandra, (1907) 7 Cal LJ 381 .
- 1611 Shyama v Ananda, (1880) 3 Cal WN 323.
- 1612 Manjappa v Krishnayya, (1908) ILR 29 Mad 113.
- 1613 Balbhaddar v Kusehar Das, (1928) ILR 3 Luck 636 : 110 IC 357 : AIR 1928 Oudh 344 .
- 1614 Zollikofer & Co v Official Assignee, (1926) ILR 4 Rang 532 : 100 IC 261 : AIR 1927 Rang 100 .
- 1615 Gurmail Singh v Udham Kaur, AIR 1999 P&H. 300 : (1999) 122 PLR 747 .
- 1616 Bhawari Bai v B C Sudhakar, (2017) 3 Mad LJ 300.
- 1617 Ramkrishna v Anasuyabai, (1924) 26 Bom LR 173 [LNIND 1923 BOM 198] : 86 IC 265 : AIR 1924 Bom 300 .
- 1618 Ramdeo v Deputy Director, AIR 1968 All 262 [LNIND 1966 ALL 127] .
- 1619 Anand Padhan v Dhuba Mohanty, AIR 1979 Ori. 5 .
- 1620 Babu Lal v Noor Mohammad, 149 IC 313 : AIR 1934 All 731 .
- 1621 Panchanon v Nirode, AIR 1962 Cal 12 [LNIND 1960 CAL 153] .
- 1622 Second Appeal Nos 549, 1004, 1005 of 2006 and CMP Nos. 6827 of 2006, 204 of 2009, 63 of 2009 and 1 of 2006; decided on: 17 February 2017. High Court of Madras.
- 1623 Manjappa v Krishnayya, (1908) ILR 29 Mad 113; Badan v Murari Lal, (1915) ILR 37 All 309 : 28 IC 973 : 13 All LJ 407; Chelamanna v Parameswaran, AIR 1971 Ker. 3 .
- 1624 Syed Lutf Ali Khan v Futteh Bahadoor, (1890) ILR 17 Cal 23 : 16 IA 129 (PC).
- 1625 Rajendrakumar Bhandari v Poosamal, (1975) 2 Mad LJ 59 : AIR 1975 Mad. 379 [LNIND 1974 MAD 221] .
- 1626 Alukmonee Dabee v Banee Madhub, (1877) ILR 4 Cal 677; Nanak Chand v Gandu Ram, AIR 1938 Lah 360 : 40 Punj LR 202 : 177 IC 746; Kama Rai v Nona Keshore, AIR 1952 All 287 [LNIND 1950 ALL 301] .
- 1627 Prasanna Kumar v Srikantha Rout, (1914) ILR 40 Cal 173 : 16 IC 365.
- 1628 Purna Chandra v Soudamini, (1918) 28 Cal LJ 283 : 48 IC 335.
- 1629 Krishnadhan v Kanailal, AIR 1973 Cal 422 [LNIND 1973 CAL 64] : 77 Cal WN 450.
- 1630 Hardev Singh v Gurmail Singh, AIR 2007 SC 1058 [LNIND 2007 SC 120] : (2007) 2 SCC 404 [LNIND 2007 SC 120] ; Sachidanand Pandey v Ram Phar Singh, AIR 2004 All 232 ; Lakhwinder Singh v Paramjit Kaur, AIR 2004 P&H. 6 : (2003) 135 PLR 837 ; Narayan v Laxmikant, (1955) ILR Nag 204.
- 1631 Gomathy Ammal v Rukmini Amma, (1966) ILR 2 Ker 221 : AIR 1967 Ker. 58 [LNIND 1966 KER 33] .
- 1632 Girja Shanker v Jagannath, AIR 1952 All 301 [LNIND 1950 ALL 188] .
- 1633 Krishnadhan v Kanailal, AIR 1973 Cal 422 [LNIND 1973 CAL 64] : 77 Cal WN 450.
- 1634 Ganeshdas v Kamlabai, (1952) ILR Nag 629 : AIR 1952 Ngp 29 .
- 1635 Jadu Bans v Sheojit Singh, 10 IC 443.
- 1636 Ajjuddin v Sheik Budan, (1895) ILR 18 Mad 492, foll in Durga Das v Muhammad, (1908) All WN 155; Sinclair v Sitab Khan, (1890) 3 CPLR 72.
- 1637 Ajjuddin v Sheik Budan, (1895) ILR 18 Mad 492.
- 1638 Arulayi v Jagadeesiah, (1963) 2 Mad LJ 365 : AIR 1964 Mad. 122 [LNIND 1963 MAD 65] .
- 1639 See Sukhi v Ghulam Safdar, 48 IA 465 : (1921) ILR 43 All 469 : 65 IC 151 : AIR 1922 PC 11 ; and see note "By decree of a Court", under section 60.
- 1640 Arulayi v Jagadeesiah, (1963) 2 Mad LJ 365 : AIR 1964 Mad. 122 [LNIND 1963 MAD 65] .
- 1641 Durga Das v Muhammad, (1908) All WN 155.
- 1642 Beni Rai v Natabar Sirkar, 33 IC 975; Hanuman Das v Gurschay Singh, (1913) 18 Cal LJ 181 : 21 IC 700; Cheta Bahira v Purna Chandra, (1914) 19 Cal WN 1272 : 27 IC 982, p 987.
- 1643 See note (2) above, "Feeding the estoppel".
- 1644 V Chandrashekharan v Administrative Officer, (2012) 12 SCC 133 [LNIND 2012 SC 552] : 2012 (9) Scale 142 [LNIND 2012 SC 552] : JT 2012 (9) SC 260 [LNIND 2012 SC 552] .

43. Transfer by unauthorised person who subsequently acquires interest in property transferred.—

- 1645 Cheta Bahira v Purna Chandra, (1914) 19 Cal WN 1272.
- 1646 Mohan Singh v Sewa Ram, 75 IC 579 : AIR 1924 Oudh 209 .
- 1647 A S Muthiah v Peter Nadar, (1974) 2 Mad LJ 404.

44. Transfer by one co-owner.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(B\) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

44. Transfer by one co-owner.—

Where one of two or more co-owners of immovable property legally competent in that behalf transfers his share of such property or any interest therein, the transferee acquires as to such share or interest, and so far as is necessary to give effect to the transfer, the transferor's right to joint possession or other common or part enjoyment of the property, and to enforce a partition of the same, but subject to the conditions and liabilities affecting at the date of the transfer, the share or interest so transferred.

Where the transferee of a share of a dwelling-house belonging to an undivided family is not a member of the family, nothing in this section shall be deemed to entitle him to joint possession or other common or part enjoyment of the house.

[s 44.1] Transfer by One Co-owner

The principle of this section is that of subrogation or substitution. When one of several co-owners transfers his share, the transferee stands in the shoes of the transferor. He acquires as against the other co-owners the same rights that the transferor had, and is subject to any condition and liabilities affecting the share at the date of the transfer. The section may be compared with section 74 where the ownership of the property is not divided between co-sharers, but between a mortgagor and a first and second mortgagee. The second mortgagee paying off the first mortgagee has all the rights the first mortgagee had against the mortgagor.

The object of this section as well as of section 4 of the Partition Act, 1893 is to keep off strangers who may purchase the undivided share of a co-sharer of an immovable property, so far as dwelling houses are concerned to make it possible for a co-sharer who has not sold his share to buy off the stranger purchaser.¹⁶⁴⁸ Thus where the property is in the nature of a dwelling unit, and is inherited by two brothers, the sale by one brother without partition would be improper even if the boundaries of the property are clearly mentioned or the question of possession was mentioned in the sale deed.¹⁶⁴⁹ Merely because, the plaintiff's ancestor was once a co-sharer of the alienee's predecessor-in-interest, it cannot be said that the plaintiff was a co-sharer in respect of the dwelling house so as to attract the provisions of section 44 of the TP Act, 1882.¹⁶⁵⁰ However, a person purchasing a share of a tenancy right is not entitled to a declaration of title to an exclusive possession of specific portion of the land.¹⁶⁵¹ Where the property is jointly owned by more than one owner, an individual owner cannot sell the property in excess of the share that she owns. Where one co-owner sells the portion of property belonging to the co-sharer it would be illegal and the vendee cannot claim relief of title on basis of the said sale deed. The ground of unsubstantiated oral relinquishment would still make the sale illegal and invalid.¹⁶⁵²

44. Transfer by one co-owner.—

This section assures the transferee the right to joint possession or common enjoyment of the property, but does not confer on him any right to exclusive possession without enforcing partition.¹⁶⁵³

ILLUSTRATION

A, B and C are co-owners of a field that is subject to a mortgage. C transfers his share to D. D has a right to joint possession with A and B, and has also a right to claim partition and separate possession of his share. But the share D has acquired is still subject to the mortgage.

The transferee of a co-sharer acquires the rights of his transferor so far as is necessary to give effect to the transfer, and no further. However, if a co-sharer is in exclusive possession of any portion of an undivided holding not exceeding his own share, he cannot be disturbed in his possession until partition. If instead of remaining in possession himself, he transfers the possession of his joint khata, the transferee will have the same rights and cannot be disturbed by other co-sharers until the final partition. In such a case, other co-sharers are only entitled to a declaration that the possession of the transferee will be that of a co-sharer subject to an adjustment at the time of partition.¹⁶⁵⁴ A co-owner who is not in actual physical possession or exclusive occupation over a parcel of land cannot transfer a valid title to that portion of the property. The remedy of the transferee, in such cases would be to get a share from out of the property to be allotted to that co-sharer in partition or to get a decree for joint possession or claim compensation from the co-sharer.¹⁶⁵⁵ The transferee of a Hindu coparcener may acquire a right to joint possession or to ascertain his share by partition, but he will not acquire the status of a coparcener in the family. Where a suit was filed for cancellation of the sale deed by A on the ground that he as the son of the owner of the property had a right of pre-emption, but he could neither prove the relationship, nor any right of pre-emption, his claim to the property as a co-heir and co-sharer would not be maintained. He would neither be entitled to any right of pre-emption nor to be substituted in the sale deed in place of the purchasers.¹⁶⁵⁶

[s 44.2] Hindu Law

The section applies to Hindus, but it does not alter any rule of Hindu law. The rights of the transferee of a coparcener both as to joint possession, and as to partition vary in different schools of Hindu law and in different provinces. These differences are not affected by the section, for they are saved by the words "subject to the conditions and liabilities affecting, at the date of the transfer, the share or interest so transferred." In Madras, a purchaser from a coparcener is in no case entitled to joint possession. The Madras High Court has said that section 44 does not override this rule.¹⁶⁵⁷ It is submitted that the saving clause as to conditions and liabilities shows that the section is not intended to override any such rule. The purchaser of an undivided coparcener's interest in a joint Hindu family property is not entitled to possession of what he has purchased. His only right is to sue for partition and for allotment to him of that which, on partition, might be found to fall to the share of the coparcener whose share he has purchased. His right to partition would date from the period when a specific allotment was made in his favour. The fact that his transferor has executed a rent note is immaterial, since the rent note does not specify any specific portion of the house in occupation of the family; estoppel under section 116 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 is also not attracted.¹⁶⁵⁸

A Full Bench of the Madhya Pradesh High Court has held that according to the Mitakshara law, as administered in Madhya Pradesh, a coparcener can alienate for value of his undivided interest in coparcenary property without the consent of the other coparcener, but he has no right to alienate, his interest in any specific property belonging to the coparcenary, for no coparcener can before partition claim any such property as his own, and if he does alienate, the alienation is valid to the extent only of his own interest in the alienated property.¹⁶⁵⁹

44. Transfer by one co-owner.—

The purchaser of the interest of a Hindu coparcener takes that interest subject to any charges or encumbrances affecting the coparcenary property, or interest at the time of the transfer.¹⁶⁶⁰

A Hindu coparcener filing a suit for partition must bring all the joint property into hotchpot, and his purchaser acquires the right to enforce partition, but is under the same obligation of suing for general partition.¹⁶⁶¹ The Allahabad High Court had held that the purchaser is entitled to partition of the specific property purchased without bringing a suit for general partition.¹⁶⁶² The section, however, is not merely restrictive in its operation, but while taking away a right of a stranger transferee of a share in a dwelling house to ask for joint possession, it also creates a right in favour of the other co-sharers to institute a suit for injunction restraining such transferee from exercising any act of joint possession in respect thereof.¹⁶⁶³ This decision was always doubtful law, and must now be treated as superseded by the section. A purchaser of the undivided interest of a son in joint family property takes that interest subject to the Hindu law liability attaching to that interest of paying his father's personal debts not tainted with immorality.¹⁶⁶⁴

[s 44.3] Transfers his Share or Interest

The section applies to all transfers including sales and mortgages. However, partition must be necessary to give effect to the mortgage, if the transfer is in the nature of a mortgage.¹⁶⁶⁵ A lessee of an undivided share can maintain a suit for partition, if partition is necessary to give effect to the lease.¹⁶⁶⁶ Even a monthly tenant was allowed to enforce a partition when there was no probability of the lease being determined.¹⁶⁶⁷ In a suit for partition there must be unity of possession and unity of title,¹⁶⁶⁸ and a lessee of a share fulfils these conditions, for it is not necessary that the title should be of the same degree.¹⁶⁶⁹ A lessee does not lose his right to partition because the lease is liable to forfeiture in certain contingencies.¹⁶⁷⁰ When these conditions are fulfilled, the only ground on which partition can be refused is that of inconvenience.¹⁶⁷¹ Where, however, a co-owner has executed a usufructuary mortgage of his share in favour of another person, it is that person and not the original co-owner who is entitled to the unity of possession with other co-owners. So long as the mortgage subsists, the original co-owner cannot exercise any right to joint possession.¹⁶⁷² A usufructuary mortgagee from a coparcener, if not given possession, has to sue for partition and separate possession.¹⁶⁷³

It has been held that the section applies to all transferees; it is irrelevant whether a transferee is a defendant or a plaintiff.¹⁶⁷⁴ Where several co-sharers enter into a contract to convey a joint property belonging to them, the contract can be enforced against one of them if the others are unable to convey their shares.¹⁶⁷⁵ Where after entering into an agreement for sale of property jointly owned by several persons, with some of them, the transferee paid a sum of money to avoid a distress sale of the property by the bank, it was held that alienation of such undivided interest was valid and the transferee would get a good title to it.¹⁶⁷⁶

[s 44.4] Conditions and Liabilities

As the transferee acquires the rights of the co-sharer, he is also bound by any conditions and liabilities affecting the share at the date of the transfer. Instances have already been cited under note "Hindu law" above, with reference to a purchaser of a share of a Hindu coparcener. A purchaser of a share is of course not liable for the damage caused to the rest of the property by the transferor after the date of the transfer.¹⁶⁷⁷

[s 44.5] Dwelling House

The transferee of a share of a dwelling house of an undivided family cannot be put into joint possession.¹⁶⁷⁸ This exception follows the opinion of CJ Westropp in a Bombay case,¹⁶⁷⁹ that such a procedure would be inconvenient, and lead to breaches of peace. The remedy is a suit for partition.¹⁶⁸⁰ The proper course is to direct delivery of possession by partition in execution proceedings, or to leave the purchaser to his remedy by separate suit for partition.¹⁶⁸¹ Thus, where one co-sharer in the dwelling house sells his share to a stranger, the transferee cannot force his way into dwelling house but has to seek partition and obtain an order from court or make a settlement with co-owners who have not transferred their shares.¹⁶⁸²

44. Transfer by one co-owner.—

The applicability of this proviso for specific performance of agreement of sale of house would not be applicable where the vendor's wife had half-share in undivided property.¹⁶⁸³ Similarly, where the dwelling house does not belong to an undivided family, section 44 of the TP Act, 1882 does not apply.¹⁶⁸⁴

The Partition Act, 1893, gives the co-sharer the option of buying out the transferee at a valuation to be made by the court. So a member of the family who has not transferred his share may purchase the transferee's share when the transferee files a suit for partition.¹⁶⁸⁵ With reference to the Partition Act, 1893 it has been held that the term "dwelling house" includes not only the structure of the building, but also adjacent buildings, curtilage, court yard, garden or orchard, and all that is necessary to the convenient occupation of the house;¹⁶⁸⁶ and that the phrase "undivided family" is not limited to Hindus,¹⁶⁸⁷ but includes any group of persons related in blood who live in one house under one head, and that it applies if they are undivided qua the dwelling house which they own.¹⁶⁸⁸ The same construction applies to the words used in this section,¹⁶⁸⁹ and it is not necessary that the family should have constantly lived in the dwelling house.¹⁶⁹⁰ The test in order to determine whether a particular house is a family dwelling house is whether the family had abandoned all ideas of occupying the house as a residential house.¹⁶⁹¹

In an earlier decision of the Madras High Court, it was held that the expression "dwelling house" has a plain meaning, and did not necessarily connote a dwelling house occupied by an undivided family, owning it. The legislature might quite easily have used the term "family dwelling house" if it had wished to do so, but it contended itself with the simple word "dwelling-house". So also, the words "belonging to an undivided family" are quite unqualified and do not per se, at all import that the house must be occupied permanently or even temporarily by the undivided family.¹⁶⁹² In a later decision, however, the same high court disagreed with the view that a house which was completely let out to tenants could fall within the expression "dwelling house" belonging to an undivided family.¹⁶⁹³

A "dwelling house" obviously is a house with the superadded requirement that it is dwelt in or the dwellers in which are absent only temporarily, having animus revertendi and the legal ability to return:

The existence of someone being able to go of his own right to all the rooms of the premises is one of the hallmarks of a dwelling house.¹⁶⁹⁴

If a person had abandoned his house as his residence, it would no longer be his dwelling house. Where the property lost the character of a typical dwelling-house as per section 44, as once a stranger comes in, section does not apply, the purchaser cannot be ousted from the second floor of the property and the registered sale deed would be final as regards the transfer of title and related rights.¹⁶⁹⁵ In a right of exercise of pre-emption suit against the stranger purchaser, where a stranger purchaser was put in possession of his vendor's flat since purchase, the other co-sharers of the said dwelling house complex had a right to resist the possession under section 44 of the Transfer of Property Act, however the co-sharers cannot exercise their right of pre-emption in absence of the claim of partition by stranger purchaser.¹⁶⁹⁶ Where a dwelling house belonging to an undivided family is let out to the tenants, no question of the transferee stranger coming into joint possession or other common or part enjoyment of the house as such can arise, since it would be in exclusive possession and enjoyment of the tenants. If the members of the undivided family owning such a house, are in a position to obtain a decree of eviction and possess the requisite animus to dwell in the house, then the stranger transferee of a share of one of such co-owners will not be in a position to obtain joint possession or common enjoyment of the house with the members of the family. Even if an undivided family owns more than one dwelling house, the transferee of a share in a dwelling house in which the members of the family may not be actually residing at all points of time, will not be able to claim joint possession or common enjoyment of the house with the members of the undivided family so long they have not abandoned the house as their residence, and have animus revertendi and the legal ability to return to that house.

44. Transfer by one co-owner.—

Where the house in question was not in use as a dwelling or for residential purposes but was used for commercial purposes it would not be a dwelling house for the purposes of section 44, and the purchaser of the share of the co-owner of the house can obtain and remain in joint possession of the house. He does not have to necessarily file a suit for separate possession of his share or for its separation.¹⁶⁹⁷ The nature of construction of the building as one unit and the land underneath remaining undivided, cannot lead to the conclusion that it is an undivided family dwelling house. If this is accepted for the purpose of attracting section 4 of the Partition Act, 1893, there will be hardly any case where this provision will not apply.¹⁶⁹⁸ The character of a house as a dwelling house belonging to an undivided family is not altered by the mere fact that an undivided share is transferred to a stranger who comes into possession, and collects rents from a portion of the tenants.¹⁶⁹⁹

The section has, however, no application to a dwelling house a part of which is occupied by strangers after a partition.¹⁷⁰⁰ The provision is of a negative nature. It affords a defence to the members of a joint family, but does not create a positive right in them. It gives discretion to the court to grant the relief.¹⁷⁰¹

While construing the words “dwelling house” belonging to an undivided family within the meaning of section 44 of the TP Act, 1882, the Supreme Court has held the ratio of the decisions rendered under section 4 of the Partition Act equally applicable to the interpretation of the second para of section 44, as the provisions are complementary to each other, and the terms “undivided family” and “dwelling house” have same meaning in both the sections.¹⁷⁰²

[s 44.6] Section 44 of TP Act, 1882 and Section 4 of Partition Act, 1893

The Supreme Court in *Gautam Paul v Debi Rani Paul*¹⁷⁰³ has held that:

There is no law which provides that co-sharer must only sell his/her share to another co-sharer. Thus strangers/outsideers can purchase shares even in a dwelling house. Section 44 of the Transfer of Property Act provides that the transferee of a share in a dwelling house, if he/she is not a member of that family, gets no right to joint possession or common enjoyment of the house. Section 44 adequately protects the family members against intrusion by an outsider into the dwelling house. The only manner in which an outsider can get possession is to sue for possession and claims separation of his share. In that case, section 4 of the Partition Act comes into play. Except for section 4 of the Partition Act, there is no other law which provides a right to a co-sharer to purchase the share sold to an outsider.

44. Transfer by one co-owner.—

It may be noted that to avail the benefit of section 4 of the Partition Act, 1893, conditions laid down in *Ghanteshwar Ghosh v Madan Mohan Ghosh*¹⁷⁰⁴ have to be fulfilled.

[s 44.7] Involuntary Sales

The principle underlying this section can be applied to involuntary sales as a rule of equity, justice and good conscience.¹⁷⁰⁵

[s 44.8] Injunction against Stranger Transferees

Once it is held that the plaintiff is entitled to protection under the second part of section 44 and the stranger purchasers are liable to be restrained, it would follow that even if the defendants have been put in possession or have come jointly to possess, they can be kept out by injunction. The remedy of the stranger purchaser is actually one of partition and until then, he is obliged to keep out from asserting joint possession. Denying an injunction against such transferee would prima facie cause irreparable injury to the other members of the family. Thus, where the purchasers were inducted in the premises in a hurried and clandestine manner defeating the appellants' attempt to go to court for appropriate relief, the Supreme Court held that in such circumstances, it is but just and necessary that the respondent purchasers be directed by an interlocutory mandatory injunction to undo what they have done.¹⁷⁰⁶

-
- 1648 Daral Chandra Chatterji v Gartha Behari Metra, (1954) ILR 1 [\[LNIND 1953 RAJ 83\]](#) Cal 384 : (1952) 56 Cal WN 681 : AIR 1953 Cal 259 [\[LNIND 1952 CAL 97\]](#) ; Dorab Cawasji Warden v Coomi Sorab Warden, AIR 1990 SC 867 [\[LNIND 1990 SC 77\]](#) , p 877 : (1990) 2 SCC 117 [\[LNIND 1990 SC 77\]](#) ; Bulu Sarkhel v Kali Prasad Basu, AIR 2012 Cal 67 [\[LNIND 2011 CAL 1081\]](#) .
- 1649 Anjan Barman Choudhury v Ranjan Barman Choudhury, AIR 2013 Gau 42 [\[LNIND 2012 GAU 94\]](#) : 2013 (1) Gau LR 107 [\[LNIND 2012 GAU 94\]](#) : 2012 5 Gau LT 340 : LNIND 2012 GAU 94 .
- 1650 Golaka Chandra Nayak v Gobinda Nayak, AIR 1996 Ori. 189 [\[LNIND 1996 ORI 161\]](#) .
- 1651 Bolaram v Dondiram, AIR 1950 Ass 1 .
- 1652 Baldev Raj Sharma v Kanta Devi, AIR 2017 P&H. 119 .
- 1653 Lalita James v Ajit Kumar, AIR 1991 MP 15 , p 17. See also Ramdayal v Maneklal, AIR 1973 MP 222 [\[LNIND 1973 MP 44\]](#) .
- 1654 Chanda Singh v Santa Singh, AIR 1954 Pepsu 6 ; as to inter-se rights and liabilities of co-owners, see Om Prakash v Chhaju Ram, AIR 1992 P&H. 219 , p 221; Bhartu v Ram Sarup, (1981) Punj LJ 204; Sant Ram Nagina Ram v Daya Ram Nagina Ram, AIR 1961 Punj 528 . For the proposition a co-owner cannot appropriate to his exclusive use any portion of the joint property, see Muthu v Ammalu, AIR 1993 Ker. 272 ; IGouri v CH Ibrahim, AIR 1980 Ker. 94 [\[LNIND 1979 KER 128\]](#) , p 97.
- 1655 Baldev Singh v Darshani Devi, AIR 1993 HP 141 [\[LNIND 1993 HP 20\]](#) .
- 1656 Kailashchandra v Sant Ramtaram Guru Sant, AIR 2017 (NOC) 1060 Raj. : LNIND 2017 RAJ 57 .
- 1657 Kota Balabadra v Khetra Doss, (1916) 31 Mad LJ 275 : 37 IC 168; Permanayakam v Sivaraman, (1952) ILR Mad 835 : AIR 1952 Mad. 419 [\[LNIND 1951 MAD 94\]](#) : (1952)1 Mad LJ 308.
- 1658 Sheo Nath Seth v Krishna Kumari Devi, AIR 1973 All 496 .
- 1659 Ramdayal v Manualal, AIR 1973 MP 222 [\[LNIND 1973 MP 44\]](#) ; Maharu v Dhansai, AIR 1992 MP 220 [\[LNIND 1991 MP 322\]](#) , p 222. See also Ramdas v Sitabai, AIR 2009 SC 2735 [\[LNIND 2009 SC 1367\]](#) : (2009) 7 SCC 444 [\[LNIND 2009 SC 1367\]](#) .
- 1660 Udaram v Ranu, (1875) 11 Bom HC 76; Narayan v Nathji, (1904) ILR 28 Bom 201; Venkureddi v Venku Reddi, (1927) ILR 50 Mad 535, p 538 : 100 IC 1018 : AIR 1927 Mad. 471 [\[LNIND 1926 MAD 417\]](#) .

44. Transfer by one co-owner.—

- 1661 Udaram v Ranu, (1875) 11 Bom HC 76; Murarrao v Sitaram, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 184; Shivmurteppa v Virappa, (1900) ILR 24 Bom 128; Ishrappa v Krishna, (1922) ILR 46 Bom 925 : 67 IC 833 : AIR 1922 Bom 413 ; Venkatarama v Meera, (1890) ILR 13 Mad 275; Palani v Masakonan, (1897) ILR 20 Mad 243; Manjava v Shanmugu, (1915) ILR 38 Mad 684 : 22 IC 555.
- 1662 Ram Mohan v Mul Chand, (1906) ILR 28 All 39.
- 1663 Lal Behari Samanta v Gour Charan, (1951) ILR 2 Cal 266 : AIR 1952 Cal 253 .
- 1664 Venkureddi v Venku Reddi, (1927) ILR 50 Mad 535.
- 1665 Hariharayyar v Ahammadunni, (1940) 51 Mad LW 511 : (1940) Mad WN 59 : 191 IC 57 : AIR 1940 Mad. 491 [LNIND 1938 MAD 220] .
- 1666 Muhammad Jaffer v Mazhar-ul-ashan, (1906) 3 All LJ 474.
- 1667 Rajanimohan v Sambhunath, (1930) ILR 57 Cal 715 : 126 IC 121 : AIR 1929 Cal 710 .
- 1668 Durga Charan v Khundkar, (1918) 27 Cal LJ 441 : 45 IC 705; Maung Ba Tu v Ma Thet Su, (1927) ILR 5 Rang 785 : 108 IC 809 : AIR 1928 Rang 73 .
- 1669 Bhagwat Sahai v Bepin Behari, (1910) ILR 37 Cal 918 : 37 IA 198 : 7 IC 549.
- 1670 Ibid.
- 1671 Hemadri Nath Khan v Ramani Kanta Roy, (1897) ILR 24 Cal 575; Rajanimohan v Sambhunath, (1930) ILR 57 Cal 715 : 126 IC 121 : AIR 1929 Cal 710 .
- 1672 Haranandan Das v Muhammad Kalim, AIR 1944 Pat 341 .
- 1673 Balwant Rai v Gurdas Rai, AIR 1974 P&H. 160 .
- 1674 Udaynath v Ratnakar, AIR 1967 Ori. 139 [LNIND 1967 ORI 1] .
- 1675 KS Krishan v Krishan, AIR 1993 Ker. 134 [LNIND 1992 KER 329] , p 139.
- 1676 Syscon Consultants Pvt Ltd v Primella Sanitary Prod Pvt Ltd, 2016 (9) Scale 26 : (2016) 7 Mad LJ 820 : LNIND 2016 SC 382 .
- 1677 Chandra Shekar v Abidalli, 80 IC 920 : AIR 1925 Ngp 68 .
- 1678 Bulu Sarkhal v Kali Prasad Basu, AIR 2012 Cal 67 [LNIND 2011 CAL 1081] ; Ram v Ram Kishan, AIR 2010 All 125 [LNIND 2010 ALL 356] : (2010) 5 All WC 4634.
- 1679 Balaji v Ganesh, (1881) ILR 5 Bom 499.
- 1680 Lal Behari Samanta v Gorari Charan, (1951) ILR 2 Cal 266 : (1950) 54 Cal WN 912 : AIR 1952 Cal 253 ; Paresh Nath v Kamall Krishna, (1957) 61 Cal WN 776 : AIR 1958 Cal 614 [LNIND 1957 CAL 140] ; Uma Shankar v Dhaneshwari, AIR 1958 Pat. 550 .
- 1681 Girija Kanta v Mohin Chandra, (1916) 20 CalWN 675 : 35 IC 294.
- 1682 Sunil Gupta v Nargis Khanna, 2012 IAD (Delhi) 277 : 185 (2011) DLT 760 : 2011(126) DRJ 97 [LNIND 2011 DEL 1009] : ILR (2011) Supp(5) Delhi 59.
- 1683 Kammana Sambamurthy v Kalipatnapu Atchutamma, (2011) 11 SCC 213 : [2011] 1 Mad LJ 404.
- 1684 Ram Bilas Tewari v Shiv Rani, AIR 1977 All 437 : (1977) All LJ 1013.
- 1685 Ram v Ram Kishan, AIR 2010 All 125 [LNIND 2010 ALL 356] : LNIND 2010 ALL 356 : 2010 (80) ALR 346 [LNIND 2010 ALL 356] : 2010 AIHC 3308 .
- 1686 Kshirode Chunder v Saroda Prosad, (1911) 12 Cal LJ 525 : 7 IC 436; Nilkamal v Kamakshaya, 109 IC 67 : AIR 1928 Cal 539 ; Pran Krishna v Surath Chandra, (1918) 45 Cal 873 : ILR 45 IC 604.
- 1687 Sultan Begam v Debi Prasad, (1908) ILR 30 All 324; Kalka Prasad v Bankey Lal, (1906) 9 OC 156; Nilkamal v Kamakshaya, 109 IC 67 : (1911) 12 Cal LJ 525 ; Dorab Cawasji Warden v Coomi Sorab Warden, AIR 1990 SC 867 [LNIND 1990 SC 77] , p 875 : (1990) 2 SCC 177 .
- 1688 Kshirode Chunder v Saroda Prosad, 7 IC 436; Sivaramayya v Kapa Venkata Subbama, (1930) ILR 53 Mad 417 : 126 IC 593 : AIR 1930 Mad. 561 [LNIND 1929 MAD 354] .
- 1689 Masitullah v Umrao, 119 IC 523 : AIR 1929 All 414 ; Bala Krishna v Akhoy Kumar, AIR 1950 Cal 111 ; Sundari Bewa v Ranka Behara, (1968) ILR Cut 134 : AIR 1968 Ori. 134 [LNIND 1968 ORI 53] .
- 1690 Pakija Bibi v Adhar Chandra, 118 IC 574 : AIR 1929 Cal 231 .
- 1691 Janakiammal v PAK Natarajan, AIR 1989 Mad. 88 [LNIND 1987 MAD 237] , p 94; Bhagirath v Afag Rasul, AIR 1952 All 207 [LNIND 1951 ALL 199] ; Ramanathan Chettiar v L Narataja Chettiar, (1955) 1 Mad LJ 118.

44. Transfer by one co-owner.—

- 1692 Subramania Sastri v Shaikh Ghannu, AIR 1935 Mad. 628 [LNIND 1934 MAD 331] .
- 1693 Janakiammal v PAK Natarajan, AIR 1989 Mad. 89 , p 91.
- 1694 St Catherine's College v Poring, [1979] 3 All ER 250, p 255 (CA).
- 1695 Sunil Gupta v Nargis Khanna, 2012 IAD (Delhi) 277 : 185 (2011) DLT 760 : 2011(126) DRJ 97 [LNIND 2011 DEL 1009] : ILR (2011) Supp (5) Delhi 59 .
- 1696 Bulu Sarkhel v Kali Prasad Basu, AIR 2012 Cal 67 [LNIND 2011 CAL 1081] : LNIND 2011 CAL 1081 .
- 1697 Hafizulla Sheikh Barakatullah v Puran Chand Jain, AIR 2017 (NOC) 1086 MP : LNIND 2017 MP 165 .
- 1698 Harinder Pal Singh Chawla v Nirmal Daniere, (1993) 51 DLT 191 [LNIND 1993 DEL 322] .
- 1699 Nirupama Basak v Baidyanath Paramanik, AIR 1985 Cal 406 [LNIND 1984 CAL 356] .
- 1700 Bhim Singh v Ratnakar, AIR 1971 Ori. 198 [LNIND 1970 ORI 70] .
- 1701 Jugendra Nath v Adheed Chandra, (1951) 55 Cal WN 589 : AIR 1951 Cal 412 .
- 1702 Dorab Cawasji Warden v Coomi Sorab Warden, AIR 1990 SC 867 [LNIND 1990 SC 77] , p 876 : (1990) 2 SCC 117 [LNIND 1990 SC 77] , p 131.
- 1703 Gautam Paul v Debi Rani Paul, (2000) 8 SCC 330 [LNIND 2000 SC 1349] .
- 1704 Ghanteshwar Ghosh v Madan Mohan Ghosh, (1996) 11 SCC 446 [LNIND 1996 SC 1485] .
- 1705 Jagatbandhu Biswas v Iswer Chandra, (1948) 52 Cal WN 411 : AIR 1948 Cal 61 ; Puddipeddi Laxinarasamma v Gadi Ranganaya Kamma, AIR 1962 Ori. 147 [LNIND 1961 ORI 60] .
- 1706 Dorab Cowasji Warden v Coomi Sorab Warden, AIR 1990 SC 867 [LNIND 1990 SC 77] , p 878 : (1990) 2 SCC 117 [LNIND 1990 SC 77] , pp 131, 134; Udaynath Sahu v Ratnakar Bej, AIR 1967 Ori. 139 [LNIND 1967 ORI 1] , pp 141-142; Ashim Ranjan Das v Bimla Ghosh, AIR 1992 Cal 44 [LNIND 1991 CAL 82] , p 47.

45. Joint transfer for consideration.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(B\) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

45. Joint transfer for consideration.—

Where immovable property is transferred for consideration to two or more persons and such consideration is paid out of a fund belonging to them in common, they are, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, respectively entitled to interests in such property identical, as nearly as may be, with the interests to which they were respectively entitled in the fund; and, where such consideration is paid out of separate funds belonging to them respectively, they are, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, respectively entitled to interests in such property in proportion to the shares of the consideration which they respectively advanced.

In the absence of evidence as to the interests in the fund to which they were respectively entitled, or as to the shares which they respectively advanced, such persons shall be presumed to be equally interested in the property.

[s 45.1] Co-owners' Interests

Where a transfer for consideration to two or more persons jointly makes them co-owners of the property transferred, their interests are in proportion to the shares of the consideration that they have been advanced. If the consideration is paid out of a common fund, their shares would be the same as their interests in that common fund. Although a mortgage is indivisible as between the mortgagor and the mortgagee, yet as between the mortgagees inter se their interests in the property would be proportionate to the shares of the mortgage money they had advanced. Joint transfer for consideration rules as embodied in this section applies when payment (consideration) is made out of one fund.¹⁷⁰⁷ In such cases where ownership is admitted, the concerned parties would be entitled to shares in the property, in accordance with the proportion of payment (of consideration) made by them for acquiring it.¹⁷⁰⁸ Where four mortgagees advanced money in equal shares, and the fourth mortgagee consented to the mortgagor redeeming the other three mortgages, he could only recover one-fourth share of the mortgage money by sale of one-fourth of the property mortgaged.¹⁷⁰⁹ In an Allahabad case, there was a recital in a sale deed that the plaintiff had contributed one half of the consideration for the suit property, but his share was shown as 1/21. It was held that in view of section 45, his share would be one half. Since the dispute was not between vendor and vendee, but between two co-purchasers, section 92 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 would not come in the way.¹⁷¹⁰ If two or more persons purchase a property out of common fund, the share of each of those persons would be the same as their interest in the common fund, then the rule in section 45 would be automatically attracted. The fact that the property was purchased in the name of one of the co-owners would not make a serious dent on the above rule of good conscience provided, however, it is established by acceptable evidence that such purchase in the name of the co-owner was by consent, and that the consideration for such purchase emanated from common fund.¹⁷¹¹ This section applies only where two or more persons purchase a property or an interest in property, and is of no assistance in ascertaining the position when one person purchases a property partly from ancestral, and partly from self-acquired funds.¹⁷¹²

45. Joint transfer for consideration.—

Section 45 has nothing to do with the method of creating common ownership, or the manner in which several persons can become co-owners in respect of a single property. It really deals with the quantum of interest, and its determination where there are several joint purchasers of immovable property.¹⁷¹³ Admissions made by co-sharers in income-tax and wealth-tax proceedings can be relied upon to ascertain the shares which they were having in the property in question for the purpose of section 45.¹⁷¹⁴

Co-ownership is a relationship which springs from consensus and contract. Legislation has only imprinted, on the concept of co-ownership, certain rights which have a supervening effect which are declaratory of the rights inter se as between co-owners. The legal relationship (in co-ownership) is always knitted in a framework of jointness, and no one interested therein can predicate, with certainty, as to what portion of the property held in common is his, and an element of inseparability is inherent in the doctrine of co-ownership. What can be predicated by reason of section 45 and by invoking the principle of quasi-trust under the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 is the quantum of rights of such co-owners in the entirety of the property. Such quantification of rights of each of the co-owners in a given property depends on the facts and circumstances of each case. It is for the purpose of providing a just rule for weighing and appreciating the value or interest of a co-owner in joint property that the rule of equity is laid down in section 45. If the source of the purchase price or the consideration for the investment in a joint enterprise emanates from a common fund, then the shares of each of the co-owners or co-entrepreneurs would be the same as their interest in that common fund. This equitable right is, of course, subject to an intent to the contrary.¹⁷¹⁵

[s 45.2] Ejectment of One by the Other—Permissibility

A partnership business was carried on by tenants A and B in the premises with shares in it. Subsequently, the firm was dissolved. In a suit by tenant A, the tenants B and A were declared to be in possession of three-fourth and one-fourth part of the premises respectively. It was held that A could not eject B or his successor.¹⁷¹⁶

[s 45.3] Joint Tenancy or Tenancy in Common

The section does not deal with the question whether the transferee takes as joint tenants, or as tenants in common. A joint tenancy connotes unity of title, possession, interest and commencement of title; in a tenancy in common, there may be unity of possession and commencement of title, but the other two features would be absent.¹⁷¹⁷

The rule of English law is to presume that a transfer to a plurality of persons creates a joint tenancy with a right of survivorship, unless there are words of severance.¹⁷¹⁸ This principle is adopted in section 106 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, replacing section 93 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865; and a joint tenancy has been recognised in a gift by will of an Indian Christian,¹⁷¹⁹ Parsee,¹⁷²⁰ and Muslim.¹⁷²¹

The Hindu rule is the opposite. In Jogeswar Narain v Ram Chand Dutt,¹⁷²² the Privy Council said:

The principle of joint tenancy appears to be unknown to Hindu law, except in case of coparcenery between members of an undivided family.

45. Joint transfer for consideration.—

This has been approved by the Supreme Court in Venkatakrishna v Satyavathi.¹⁷²³ Even if the grantees are members of a coparcenery, they will take as tenants in common,¹⁷²⁴ unless a contrary intention appears from the grant.¹⁷²⁵ It is held that in India the court must always lean against holding a bequest or a grant to be a joint bequest or grant, and the presumption must always be in favour of a tenancy in common.¹⁷²⁶ Words in a will that possession should be in the hands of both, and that both should enjoy the property in their lifetime is not enough evidence of a contrary intention.¹⁷²⁷

A joint tenancy may be severed and converted into a tenancy in common by one of the joint tenants disposing of or contracting to sell his interest, or by mutual agreement, or by a course dealing by all the joint tenants sufficient to indicate a severance.¹⁷²⁸

A tenant in common is entitled to joint possession, and if excluded from such possession may sue for a declaration of his right. However, if there is no exclusion or denial of his right, a tenant in common who gives up joint possession has no right of suit for his share of the joint profits.¹⁷²⁹ Entry by one co-tenant, in the absence of clear proof to the contrary, enures for the benefit of all. The presumption under section 45 is not attracted when there is a joint business, and there is no partition of house and all members are staying in the house, and source of money for plot of land purchased appears to be the joint earning.¹⁷³⁰

If A and B are co-tenants of property of which A is in actual possession, and B sells his share to C, the possession of A is the possession of C.¹⁷³¹ But in a case where A and B were tenants in common, each in possession of a moiety and A took possession of B's share on B's death by right of inheritance, his possession was adverse to a purchaser from B.¹⁷³²

[s 45.4] Presumption of Equity

The second paragraph of this section lays down that in the absence of evidence as to the interests in the fund to which the co-owners are respectively entitled or as to shares which they respectively advanced, such persons shall be presumed to be equally interested in the property.¹⁷³³ Thus, in the absence of specific mention about the shares of co-owners in any share deed, all co-owners will have equal shares in the properties thereunder.¹⁷³⁴ Similarly, in State of Maharashtra v BE Billimoria,¹⁷³⁵ the Supreme Court has held two persons to be owners of equal shares in the plot as there was no evidence to the contrary.

In a case where a common share which had been forfeited, was brought in by the Collector out of a fund contributed by the co-sharers, it was presumed that the Collector had debited an equal amount to each co-sharer, and that each co-sharer had an equal interest in the share when it was recovered,¹⁷³⁶ but when a person can produce evidence of the amount of his share, but fails to do so, he cannot avail himself of this presumption of equality.¹⁷³⁷

[s 45.5] Involuntary Sales

It has been held that the principle of this section applies to property purchased at an involuntary sale as it embodies a rule of justice, equity and good conscience.¹⁷³⁸

45. Joint transfer for consideration.—

-
- 1707 Kalpanaben Hasmmukhbhai Patel v Urvashiben Rajnikant Patel, 2010 SCC OnLine Guj 6730 : LNIND 2010 GUJ 11172 .
- 1708 Dinesh Kumari Mishra v Ranjana Mishra, (2011) 177 DLT 577 (Delhi) : LNIND 2012 DEL 12173 .
- 1709 Pertab v Nihal Singh, 96 IC 134 : AIR 1926 All 676 .
- 1710 Mohan Lal v Board of Revenue, AIR 1982 All 273 , p 275.
- 1711 M Printer v Marcel Martines, AIR 2002 Kant. 191 [LNIND 2001 KANT 208] .
- 1712 Mangal Singh v Harkesh, (1957) All LJ 752 : AIR 1958 All 42 .
- 1713 Guruswami Asari v Raju Asari, AIR 1973 Mad. 473 [LNIND 1973 MAD 10] : (1973) 2 Mad LJ 203.
- 1714 Chiranjitlal v Bhagwan Das, AIR 1991 Del 325 , p 332.
- 1715 CV Ramaswami Naidu v CS Shyamala Devi, (1978) 1 Mad LJ 505.
- 1716 Sher Singh v Mohd Ismail, AIR 1981 All 114 .
- 1717 Ram Awalamb v Jata Shankar, 1968 All LJ 1108 : AIR 1969 All 526 .
- 1718 Morley v Bird, (1798) 3 Ves 628.
- 1719 Arakal v Domingo, (1911) ILR 34 Mad 80 : 6 IC 7.
- 1720 Navroji v Perozbai, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 80.
- 1721 Mahamad Jusali v Fatima, AIR 1948 Bom 53 .
- 1722 Jogeswar Narain v Ram Chand Dutt, 23 IA 37, p 44; Bahu Rani v Rajendra Baksh Singh, 60 IA 95, p 101.
- 1723 Venkatakrishna v Satyavathi, [1968] 2 SCR 395 [LNIND 1967 SC 342] : AIR 1968 SC 751 [LNIND 1967 SC 342] : [1968] 2 SCJ 337 [LNIND 1967 SC 342] .
- 1724 Bai Diwali v Patel Bechardas, (1902) ILR 26 Bom 445; Kishori DubainvMundra Dubain, (1911) ILR 33 All 665 : 10 IC 565; Ram Piari v Krishna, (1921) ILR 43 All 600 : 63 IC 301 : AIR 1921 All 50 ; Janakiram v Nagamony, (1926) ILR 49 Mad 98 : 93 IC 662 : AIR 1926 Mad. 273 [LNIND 1925 MAD 162] .
- 1725 Yethirajulu v Mukunthu, (1905) ILR 28 Mad 363; Narpad Singh v Mahomed Ali, (1884) ILR 11 Cal 1 (PC).
- 1726 Mahamed Jusali v Fatimabai, (1948) ILR Bom 53 : 49 ILR Bom LR 505 : AIR 1949 Bom 33 ; Venkayya v Subbarao, AIR 1957 AP 619 [LNIND 1955 AP 202] .
- 1727 Venkatakrishna v Satyavathi, [1968] 2 SCR 395 [LNIND 1967 SC 342] : AIR 1968 SC 751 [LNIND 1967 SC 342] : [1968] 2 SCJ 337 [LNIND 1967 SC 342] .
- 1728 Williams v Hensman, (1861) 1 John and H 546; Tan Chew Hoe Neo v Chee Swee Cheng, 56 IA 112 : 56 Mad LJ 643 : 116 IC 385 : AIR 1929 PC 72 .
- 1729 Radhakanta Pal v Manmohinee Pal, (1933) ILR 60 Cal 292 : 144 IC 193 : AIR 1933 Cal 397 .
- 1730 Rajeshwari v Bakhand Jain, AIR 2001 MP 179 [LNIND 2000 MP 83] : (2001) 2 MPLJ 505 .
- 1731 Biswanath v Rabija Khatun, (1929) ILR 56 Cal 616 : 117 IC 593 : AIR 1929 Cal 250 .
- 1732 Krishnachandra Das v Poornachandra Das, (1935) ILR 62 Cal 305 : (1935) 39 Cal WN 159 : 60 Cal LJ 232 : 155 IC 987 : AIR 1935 Cal 195 .
- 1733 Saiyad Abdullah v Saiyad Ahmad, (1929) 27 All LJ 1196, p 1199 : 122 IC 666 : AIR 1929 All 817 .
- 1734 Durlabhji D Patel v Competent Authority & Dy Collector, Surat, AIR 1996 Guj 197 [LNIND 2007 GUJ 244] : (1996) 2 GLR 640 .
- 1735 State of Maharashtra v BE Billimoria, (2003) 7 SCC 336 : AIR 2003 SC 4368 .
- 1736 Debi PershadvAklio, (1899) 4 Cal WN 465.
- 1737 Ram Pher v Ajudhia Singh, 87 IC 17 : AIR 1925 Oudh 369 .
- 1738 Balai Chandra v Raisuddin Naskar, (1956) 60 Cal WN 270 : AIR 1956 Cal 58 [LNIND 1955 CAL 162] .

45. Joint transfer for consideration.—

End of Document

46. Transfer for consideration by persons having distinct interests.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(B\) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

46. Transfer for consideration by persons having distinct interests.—

Where immovable property is transferred for consideration by persons having distinct interests therein, the transferors are, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, entitled to share in the consideration equally, where their interests in the property were of equal value, and, where such interests were of unequal value, proportionately to the value of their respective interests.

ILLUSTRATION

(a) A, owning a moiety, and B and C, each a quarter share, of mauza Sultanpur, exchange an eighth share of that mauza for a quarter share of mauza. There being no agreement to the contrary, A is entitled to an eighth share in Lalpura, and B and C each to a sixteenth share in that mauza.

(b) A being entitled to a life-interest in mauza Atrali and B and C, to the reversion, sell the mauza for ₹1,000. A's life-interest is ascertained to be worth ₹600, the reversion ₹400. A is entitled to receive ₹600 out of the purchase-money. B and C to receive ₹400.

[s 46.1] Distinct Interest

This section is the converse of section 45. That section refers to interests in the property of several purchasers, while this section refers to the shares in the consideration of several vendors. Tenants in common have joint possession, but distinct interests. A tenant for life and a remainderman have distinct interests, and so have a mortgagee and a mortgagor, and a lessee and a lessor.¹⁷³⁹ The value of the interest of a mortgagee is the mortgage money, and when a mortgagee and a mortgagor join in a conveyance, then, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, the mortgagee is entitled to the mortgage money as the price of his interest, and the mortgagor to the balance as the price of the equity of redemption. The shares of the transferors in the consideration are in proportion to their respective interests in the property transferred. The second illustration is that of a tenant for life and a remainderman, where it is necessary to have the respective interests valued.

46. Transfer for consideration by persons having distinct interests.—

1739 Morris v Debenham, \(1876\) 2 ChD 540 .

End of Document

47. Transfer by co-owners of share in common property.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(B\) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

47. Transfer by co-owners of share in common property.—

Where several co-owners of immovable property transfer a share therein without specifying that the transfer is to take effect on any particular share or shares of the transferors, the transfer, as among such transferors, takes effect on such shares equally where the shares were equal, and, where they were unequal, proportionately to the extent of such shares.

ILLUSTRATION

A, the owner of an eight-anna share, and B and C, each the owner of a four-anna share, in mauza Sultanpur, transfer a two-anna share in the mauza to D, without specifying from which of their several shares the transfer is made. To give effect to the transfer one-anna share is taken from the share of A, and half-an-anna share from each of the shares of B and C.

[s 47.1] Transfer by Tenants in Common

When owners who hold an estate as tenants in common transfer a part of the estate, the share of each co-owner is proportionately reduced. If the shares are equal, each share is reduced equally. If the shares are unequal, there is a greater reduction in the greater share, and a lesser reduction in the lesser share. If each co-owner had a distinct plot, it would not be a case of a tenancy in common, and there could be no question of a transfer of a share of the whole. The word “value” is more appropriate in section 46 which includes interests in land which have to be valued, while the word “extent” in this section means only the fraction that each share bears to the whole. The same fraction would determine the share of the consideration that each co-owner would be entitled to under section 46. All co-owners have equal rights and coordinate interest in the property, though their shares may be either fixed or indeterminate. Each co-owner has, in theory, interest in every infinitesimal portion of the subject-matter and each has the right, irrespective of the quantity of his interest, to be in possession of every part and parcel of the property jointly with others.¹⁷⁴⁰

The principle of this section was applied in a Sind case,¹⁷⁴¹ where two Mahomedan zamindars who held an estate as tenants in common in equal shares sold an undivided half of it. One of the zamindars had been under the protection of the manager, encumbered estates, and was by virtue of the Sind Encumbered Estates Act (Bombay Act 20 of 1891) incapable of alienating beyond his lifetime. After his death his heirs sued for partition,

47. Transfer by co-owners of share in common property.—

and it was held that the vendee had taken one-fourth from each zamindar, so that the heirs were entitled to one-fourth. Where a sale of joint property was effected by the widow of brother of plaintiff from joint property without informing such brother and neither the sale deed bore the signatures of co-sharer in the joint property but the registration of the deed also violated section 30 of the Registration Act, it was held that the sale deed was not valid as the purchaser had not applied for maturation for over five years and no hearing was given to the plaintiff at the time of quashing of order for mutation by the deputy commissioner.¹⁷⁴²

1740 Kochkunju Nair v Koshy Alexander, (1999) 3 SCC 482 [LNIND 1999 SC 300] : (1999) 3 SCC 482 [LNIND 1999 SC 300] .

1741 Mir Ali Nawaz v Mir Ali Ashar, 97 IC 124 : AIR 1927 Sau 62 .

1742 State of Jharkhand v Lalita Devi Kejriwal, AIR 2018 Jhar. 7 : 2017 (4) AJR 448 : 2018 (1) JLJR 71 .

48. Priority of rights created by transfer.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(B\) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

48. Priority of rights created by transfer.—

Where a person purports to create by transfer at different times rights in or over the same immovable property, and such rights cannot all exist or be exercised to their full extent together, each later created right shall, in the absence of a special contract or reservation binding the earlier transferees, be subject to the rights previously created.

[s 48.1] Priority

The transferor cannot prejudice the rights of the transferee by any subsequent dealing with the property. This self-evident proposition is expressed in the equitable maxim qui prior est tempore potior est jure. The application of this maxim in English law is complicated by the preference given to the legal estate over the equitable interest. This complication does not occur in Indian law, but the rule in India is subject to certain exceptions which will presently be noticed.

[s 48.1.1] Qui prior est tempore potior est jure

The literal meaning of the maxim qui prior est tempore potior est jure is “he who is prior in time is better in law”. The one who has the advantage in time should have precedence in law as well is the basis of this rule where two successive transfers of the same property have been effected. The section embodies the rule of priority founded on law and justice. Determination of the right of priority in case of successive transfers over the same immovable property calls for a combined operation of section 48 of the TP Act, 1882 and sections 47 and 49 of the Registration Act.

In a case where two deeds of transfer over the same property or one involving portions of property covered by other as well, were executed on the same day, it must be proved which deed was in fact executed first. However, if the deeds themselves show an intention either that they shall take effect pari passu or even that the later deed shall take effect in priority to the earlier, it will be presumed that the deeds were executed in such order as to give effect to that intention. Where two or more deeds were executed on the same day and the order of their execution cannot be ascertained, all the deeds will take effect at once and pari passu. The rule of priority is subject to the equitable principle of estoppel. In a case where the first transferee was aware of the second transfer and also the contents of the deed there under, necessarily any claim by him on the right of priority has to be examined with reference to the principles of equity and also rule of estoppel.¹⁷⁴³

48. Priority of rights created by transfer.—

The essence of nemo dat quod non habet is the transactional exigibility ie, the binding effect of prior property rights of subsequent transferee irrespective of notice or knowledge of prior property rights on part of subsequent transferees.¹⁷⁴⁴

[s 48.1.2] Registered deed

A transfer operates from the date of execution of the deed, although it may have been registered at a later date.¹⁷⁴⁵ This is the effect of section 47 of the Registration Act, 1908.

[s 48.2] Successive Transfers

If there are successive transfers of the same property, the latter transfer is subject to the prior transfer.

Thus, if A mortgages his property to B, and subsequently sells it to C, C purchases only the equity of redemption.¹⁷⁴⁶ Similarly, in the case of two successive mortgages, the later or puisne mortgage is subject to the prior mortgage. The puisne mortgagee is only an assignee of the equity of redemption of the prior mortgage, and as such may sue to redeem it section 91(a).

A puisne mortgagee may sue for sale on his mortgage, but the property will be sold subject to the prior mortgage.¹⁷⁴⁷ If he sues for sale making the prior mortgagee a party, but claiming no relief against him, the prior mortgagee is in the position of a holder by title paramount outside the controversy.¹⁷⁴⁸ If the mortgagor gives two usufructuary mortgages of the same property, the prior mortgagee is entitled to possession.¹⁷⁴⁹

A mortgage by deposit of title deeds is a completed transfer, and not an oral agreement. This is now made clear by section 58(f) of TP Act, 1882. The proviso to section 48 of the Registration Act, 1908 as inserted by Act 21 of 1929, enacts that a mortgage by deposit of title deeds shall take effect as against any mortgage deed subsequently executed and registered relating to the same property; similarly, an earlier mortgage by deposit of title deeds would have priority over a subsequent sale.¹⁷⁵⁰ Mortgages by deposit of title deeds are sometimes described as equitable mortgages. The judgment in an old Bombay case¹⁷⁵¹ suggests that a formal registered mortgage being a legal “mortgage” would have priority over an “equitable mortgage.” In *Imperial Bank of India v U Rai Gyaw*¹⁷⁵² Lord Dunedin said:

It is to be observed that there is here no distinction between a legal and equitable mortgages as in English law, where the legal mortgage will always prevail against the equitable unless the holder of the legal had done or omitted to do something which prevents him in equity from asserting his paramount rights.

A charge is not a transfer of an interest in property, and an oral non-possessory charge has no priority over a subsequent mortgage if the mortgagee has no notice of it. This is the effect of section 100 of TP Act, 1882. In a case in which section 100 was construed as not having retrospective effect, the same conclusion was arrived at

48. Priority of rights created by transfer.—

by reference to section 48 of the Registration Act, 1908.¹⁷⁵³ Where pursuant to a loan taken by the borrower from Bank, a charge is created in favour of the Bank, and the property is sold for a higher amount after a one time settlement offer is made to the borrower by the Bank for the settlement of the entire debt due to it, the first charge holder is entitled to recover the entire amount due to it, and any amount remaining after the recovery of amount by the first charge holder can be realized by second charge holder.¹⁷⁵⁴

A Raja made a grant of certain villages to the defendant as maintenance for life, and then gave a putni of the villages to the plaintiff on the allegation that the grant to the defendant had been revoked. However, as the grant had not been revoked, the court held that the putni took effect after the death of the defendant.¹⁷⁵⁵

Where loan was taken by borrower from the bank creating first charge over the bank, whereupon one time settlement offer was made to borrower by the bank for settlement of entire debt due to it, and the property was sold for higher amount, in determining the extent of claim of the charge holder in a property, the first charge would be entitled to recover the entire amount due to it and any amount remaining after recovery of amount by the first charge holder can be realised by the second charge holder.¹⁷⁵⁶ In SFL Industries Ltd v Reliance Capital Ltd,¹⁷⁵⁷ M/s SFL Industries Ltd the Company (in liquidation) was ordered to be wound up by a court order and an official liquidator was appointed to complete the winding up process. A and B were the first and the second charge holders respectively in the fixed assets of the company. B contended that they were not called by the officials of the company for determination of claim, but A argued that a lot of attempts have been made to communicate with B that were never reciprocated. On the issue with respect to the rights of priorities over the mortgaged assets, the court held that since special statute is silent qua dealing with the contractual and other statutory rights between the different kinds of secured creditors, then in that eventuality the specific provisions contained in the statute shall prevail. The first charge holders will have the right to recover first along with claims of the other workmen and borrowers if some amount is left with the second charge holder would be entitled to their statutory claims.

[s 48.3] Same Date

If two mortgages are executed on the same date, evidence may be taken as to which was executed first, and the first has priority. If this cannot be determined, the mortgagees take as tenants in common, or joint tenants.¹⁷⁵⁸

[s 48.4] Exceptions

There are several exceptions to the rule of priority. Section 50 of the Registration Act, 1908 gives a subsequently registered deed priority over a prior unregistered deed of which registration is optional. This exception is subject to the doctrine of notice,¹⁷⁵⁹ and only applies when the deeds are antagonistic, and not when effect can be given to one without infringement of the other.¹⁷⁶⁰ However, since optional registration has been abolished by TP Act, 1882 as regards sale deeds by section 54, and as to mortgage deeds by section 59 as amended by Act 6 of 1904, the scope of this exception is very limited, being applicable only to those territories to which TP Act, 1882 does not extent.

Under section 98 of the Bengal Tenancy Act (Bengal Act 8 of 1885) a previous mortgage by a co-owner of his share was subject to a subsequent charge created by a manager over the whole estate.¹⁷⁶¹

Similarly, in a suit for partition, if a receiver, under the direction of the court mortgages the whole or part of the estate, the mortgagee would be entitled to priority over an execution creditor by whom the property was attached after the commencement of the suit for partition.¹⁷⁶² Again, when a court for the purpose of preserving the property in suit, directs the receiver to execute a mortgage, it has jurisdiction to order that the mortgage shall take precedence over prior charges.¹⁷⁶³ This is an application of the equity which gives salvage liens, ie, liens for money advanced for the purpose of saving the property from destruction or forfeiture, priority over all their encumbrances. With regard to such liens the general rule is reversed, and they are entitled to priority in inverse order to their dates.¹⁷⁶⁴ Salvage liens are confined in English law to maritime liens. A salvage lien was claimed in an old Calcutta case¹⁷⁶⁵ in respect of an advance made for the purpose of carrying on an indigo factory, and again in another case¹⁷⁶⁶ in respect of an advance made to enable the mortgagor to pay the rent of the premises mortgaged, but in both cases the claim was repelled.

48. Priority of rights created by transfer.—

The lien of a co-sharer for owelty money on partition is entitled to precedence over prior mortgagees of property allotted to the co-sharer who is liable to pay owelty.¹⁷⁶⁷

[s 48.5] Priority Forfeited

Priority is forfeited by fraud, misrepresentation or gross negligence.¹⁷⁶⁸

If a prior mortgage is to secure future advances and expresses the maximum to be secured, a puisne mortgagee who has notice of the prior mortgage is not entitled to priority over subsequent advances by the prior mortgagee within the amount of the expressed maximum.¹⁷⁶⁹

1743 Xavier v John, AIR 2011 Ker. 103 [LNIND 2010 KER 767].

1744 Harshad Govardhan Sondagar v International Assets Reconstruction Co Ltd, (2014) 6 SCC 1 : 2014 (4) Scale 484 : 2015 (3) SCJ 641 : 2014 (3) KLJ 495; P Chellamuthu v Abinaya Muthusamy; Second Appeal Nos. 549, 1004, 1005 of 2006 and C M P Nos 6827 of 2006 : 204 of 2009 : 63 of 2009 and 1 of 2006; decided on 17 February 2017. High Court of Madras.

1745 KJ Nathan v SV Maruthi Rao, AIR 1965 SC 430 [LNIND 1964 SC 35]; Thakur Kishan Singh v Arvind Kunar, AIR 1995 SC 73 [LNINDORD 1994 SC 24]; (1994) 6 SCC 591 [LNINDORD 1994 SC 24]; Mahendra Kar v Babul Kumar Ghosh, AIR 2001 Gau 29 [LNIND 2000 GAU 270]; Motichand v Sagun, (1905) ILR 29 Bom 46; Mathura v Ambika, (1914) 12 All LJ 993 : 25 IC 725; Bindeshri v Somnath, (1916) 14 All LJ 382 : 35 IC 347; Gopal Ram v Lachmi, 95 IC 138 : AIR 1926 All 549; Rumuswami Pillai v Ramasami Naicker, AIR 1960 Mad. 396 [LNIND 1959 MAD 106]; Kuldip Singh v Balwant Kaur, AIR 1991 P&H. 291, p 297.

1746 Sobhagchand v Bhaichand, (1882) ILR 6 Bom 193, p 208.

1747 Kanti Ram v Kutubuddin, (1895) ILR 22 Cal 33.

1748 Radha Kishun v Khurshed Hossein, (1920) ILR 47 Cal 662 : 47 IA 11 : 55 IC 959; Official Assignee of Calcutta v Jagabandhu Mullick, (1934) ILR 61 Cal 494 : (1934) 38 Cal WN 492 : 150 IC 321 : AIR 1934 Cal 552 .

1749 Sukhdeo Misra v Sheodial, (1901) All WN 52.

1750 Bisseswar Poddar v Nabadwib Chandra, (1906) 64 Cal WN 1067 : AIR 1961 Cal 300 [LNIND 1960 CAL 133] .

1751 Dayal v Jivraj, (1877) ILR 1 Bom 237.

1752 Imperial Bank of India v U Rai Gyaw, 50 IA 283, p 289 : (1923) ILR 1 Rang 637 : 76 IC 910 : AIR 1923 PC 211 .

48. Priority of rights created by transfer.—

- 1753 Chhaganlal v Chunilal, (1934) 36 Bom LR 277 : 152 IC 267 : AIR 1934 Bom 189 .
- 1754 Karnataka State Financial Corp, Bangalore v State Bank of India, AIR 2011 Kant. 130 [LNIND 2011 KANT 892] .
- 1755 Cheta Bahira v Purna Chandra, (1915) 19 Cal WN 1272 : 27 IC 982.
- 1756 Karnataka State Financial Corp, Bangalore v State Bank of India, AIR 2011 Kant. 130 [LNIND 2011 KANT 892] .
- 1757 SFL Industries Ltd v Reliance Capital Ltd, AIR 2015 P&H. 116 .
- 1758 Ram Ratan v Bishun Chand, (1906) 11 Cal WN 732.
- 1759 Hathisingh v Kuvarji, (1886) ILR 10 Bom 105; Moreshwar v Dattu, (1888) ILR 12 Bom 569; Abdool Hossein v Raghu Nath, (1886) ILR 13 Cal 73; Harnandun Singh v Jawad Ali, (1900) ILR 27 Cal 468; Bhikhi Rai v Udit Narain, (1903) ILR 25 All 366.
- 1760 Sobhagchand v Bhaichand, (1882) ILR 6 Bom 193, p 208; Bapuji v Satyabhamabai, (1882) ILR 6 Bom 490, p 493; Ramaraja v Arunachala, (1884) ILR 7 Mad 248; Ishri Prasad v Gopi Nath, (1912) ILR 34 All 631, p 635 : 17 IC 19.
- 1761 Amarchunder Kundu v Sohi Bhusan Ray, (1904) ILR 31 Cal 305 : 31 IA 24.
- 1762 Herumbo Nath Banerjee v Satish Chandra, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 1175.
- 1763 Giridhari Lal v Dharendra, (1906) ILR 34 Cal 427; cf Strapp v Bull, [1895] 2 ChD 1 ; Re Glasdir Copper Mines Ltd, [1906] 1 ChD 365  .
- 1764 Giridhari Lal v Dharendra, (1906) ILR 34 Cal 427.
- 1765 Moran v Mittu Bibee, (1877) ILR 2 Cal 58; Baldeo v Miller, (1903) ILR 31 Cal 667.
- 1766 Hari Mohan v Girish Chandra, (1877) 1 Cal LJ 152 .
- 1767 Shahebzada v Hills, (1908) ILR 35 Cal 388; Poovamalingam Servai v Veerayi, 92 IC 1055 : AIR 1926 Mad. 186 .
- 1768 See section 78 and notes thereon.
- 1769 See section 79 and notes thereon

49. Transferee's right under policy.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(B\) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

49. Transferee's right under policy.—

Where immovable property is transferred for consideration, and such property or any part thereof is at the date of the transfer insured against loss or damage by fire, the transferee, in case of such loss or damage, may, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, require any money which the transferor actually receives under the policy, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be applied in reinstating the property.

[s 49.1] Insured Property

If the property is at the date of the transfer insured against loss or damage by fire, the section enacts that the transferee may require the transferor to apply the insurance money, in case of damage by fire, to the restoration of the premises. If the transfer is a mortgage, the mortgagor, as the insured would receive the insurance money, and the mortgagee would have the right to require it to be applied as the section directs, in reinstating the security;¹⁷⁷⁰ and he can do so against a creditor of the mortgagor who has attached the insurance money.¹⁷⁷¹ If the mortgagor failed to do so the mortgagee would have the right, under section 68(b), to sue for his mortgage money. In the case of a lease the lessor would receive the insurance money, and the lessee would under this section require the lessor to restore the property. If the property were wholly destroyed or rendered unfit for the purpose for which it was leased, the lessee has the option of avoiding the lease under section 108(e), and in that case he would have no right under this section.

In Gnana Sundaram v Vulcan Insurance Co,¹⁷⁷² the Rangoon High Court held that a contract to purchase confers upon the intending purchaser an insurable interest; but it is submitted that this is a misapplication of the English doctrine of equitable ownership.

The purchaser cannot himself claim the insurance money from the insurance company.¹⁷⁷³

49. Transferee's right under policy.—

- 1770 Re Barker, Ex parte Gorely, (1864) 4 De GJF & Sm 477.
- 1771 Sinnott v Bowden, [\[1912\] 2 ChD 414](#)  : [1911-3] All ER Rep 753 .
- 1772 Gnana Sundaram v Vulcan Insurance Co, (1931) ILR 9 Rang 452 : 134 IC 221 : AIR 1931 Rang 210 .
- 1773 V Chetty Firm v Motor Union Insurance Co, 67 IC 777 : AIR 1923 Rang 6 .

50. Rent bona fide paid to holder under defective title.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(B\) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

50. Rent bona fide paid to holder under defective title.—

No person shall be chargeable with any rents or profits of any immovable property, which he has in good faith paid or delivered to any person of whom he in good faith held such property, notwithstanding it may afterwards appear that the person to whom such payment or delivery was made had no right to receive such rents or profits.

ILLUSTRATION

A lets a field to B at a rent of ₹50, and then transfers the field to C. B, having no notice of the transfer, in good faith pays the rent to A. B is not chargeable with the rent so paid.

[s 50.1] Rents Paid Bona Fide

This section protects rents paid bona fide to a holder under a defective title. Similar provisions occur in section 109 of TP Act, 1882, and in section 148 of the Agra Tenancy Act (Uttar Pradesh Act 12 of 1881); and as regards to actionable claims, in section 130 of TP Act, 1882. In a Bombay case,¹⁷⁷⁴ the lessor's interest passed on his death first to his brother and then to his sister, but the lessor's widow collected the rents when the person entitled was the sister. Nevertheless, as the payments were made in good faith and without notice of the sister's interest, the tenant was not chargeable. A mortgage of tenanted property operates as an assignment of the lessor's interest, and the mortgagee is entitled to recover the rent from the date of the mortgage; but rents paid bona fide to the mortgagor without notice of the mortgage are protected.¹⁷⁷⁵

The illustration refers to the case of a transfer by a lessor, as to which section 109 enacts that if the lessee not having reason to believe that such transfer has been made, pays rent to the lessor, the lessee shall not be liable to pay such rent over again to the transferee.

There is no statutory obligation on the assignee to give notice of the assignment to the lessee, but if he omits to do so and the lessee pays rent to the assignor, the assignee will not be entitled to recover it from the lessee.¹⁷⁷⁶ On the other hand, if the assignee of the lessor gives notice to the lessee, he will be entitled to the rent after the

50. Rent bona fide paid to holder under defective title.—

assignment.¹⁷⁷⁷

[s 50.2] Rent Paid in Advance

In order to get the benefit of section 50 the tenant must have paid the rent, as rent, and not in advance, for a payment in advance is treated as a loan.¹⁷⁷⁸ The reason is that section refers to the fulfilment of an obligation imposed by law to pay rent, while payment in advance is a loan to the landlords with an agreement that on the day when the rent becomes due such loan will be treated as the fulfilment of the obligation. Rent that is payable in advance by the terms of the lease is of course paid as rent, and not as a loan.¹⁷⁷⁹

The definition of “lease” in section 105 is wide enough to cover a lease accompanied with payment of advance rent. As the rent note was registered under the Registration Act, 1908, the plaintiff must, by virtue of the definition of “notice”, be deemed to have notice of all the contents of the registered document. Since the defendant tenant had paid in advance the rent to the predecessor in title of the plaintiff, section 50 of the TP Act, 1882 (rent bona fide paid to holder under defective title not to be charged again) operates so as to protect the defendant tenant in such cases. Section 18 of the Bombay Rent, Hotel and Lodging House Rents Control Act, 1947 does not prevent the application of section 50, and plaintiff could not recover the rent claimed by them.¹⁷⁸⁰

[s 50.3] Good Faith

The payment is not protected unless it is made in good faith. In *Sivaswami Odayar v Subramania Aiyar*¹⁷⁸¹ the court of execution erroneously refused to stay a sale although the judgment debtor had applied under the Provincial Insolvency Act to be declared insolvent. The Official Receiver declined to recognise the sale and granted a lease of the property that had been sold. The lessee paid rent in good faith to the Official Receiver and was not chargeable again with rent by the court auction purchaser. But if a tenant knowing that there is a dispute between two persons claiming to be landlords, arbitrarily chooses to pay one, he does so at his own risk.¹⁷⁸² A payment to the transferor after notice is not a valid payment.¹⁷⁸³

¹⁷⁷⁴ Kaveriamma v Lingappa, (1909) ILR 33 Bom 96 : 1 IC 654; Chatri v Bahadur Singh, (1888) All WN 45.

¹⁷⁷⁵ Cook v Guerra, (1872) LR 7 CP 132; Kiran Chandra v Dutt & Co, (1925) 29 Cal WN 94 : 85 IC 522 : AIR 1925 Cal 251 ; Tiloke Chand Surana v JB Beattie & Co, (1926) 29 Cal WN 953 : 94 IC 538 : AIR 1926 Cal 204 ; Rustomji v Keshavji, (1926) 28 BomLR 1162 : 98 IC 436 : AIR 1926 Bom 567 ; Butto Kreosto v Govindram Marwari, (1939) IC 132 .

¹⁷⁷⁶ Tiloke Chand Surana v JB Beattie, (1926) Cal WN 953; Kiran Chandra v Dutt & Co, (1925) 29 Cal WN 94; Madan Mohan v Holloway, (1884) ILR 12 Cal 120, p 555.

¹⁷⁷⁷ Collector v Hursoondery, (1864) WR 6 ; Ram Lal v Mahadeo, 63 IC 587.

¹⁷⁷⁸ Ram Lal v Mahadeo, 63 IC 587; Tiloke Chand Surana v JB Beattie, (1926) 29 Cal WN 953 : 94 IC 538 : AIR 1926 Cal 204 ; Official Assignee v Abdul Hussein, 107 IC 209 : AIR 1928 Sau 95 ; Cook v Guerra, (1872) LR 7 CP 132; De Nicholls v Saunders, (1870) LR 5 CP 589; Pale Zabaing Rural Co-operative Society v Maung Thu Daw, (1931) ILR 9 Rang 470 : 135 IC 646 : AIR 1931 Rang 292 ; Govind Rao v Gopal Rao, (1901) CPLR 65; Rameshwar Lal v Butto Kristo Rai, (1934) ILR 13 Pat 396 : 152 IC 992; Kantha Bhatt v Chotey Lal, (1959) ILR 9 Raj 190 : AIR 1960 Raj. 19 .

¹⁷⁷⁹ Toon Chan v PC Sen, 24 IC 693.

¹⁷⁸⁰ Lachmandas Bansilal Rathod v Sumberlal Surajmal Gandhi, (1973) 75 Bom LR 678 .

¹⁷⁸¹ Sivaswami Odayar v Subramania Aiyar, (1932) ILR 55 Mad 316 : 62 Mad LJ 68 : 136 IC 338 : AIR 1932 Mad. 95 [LNIND 1931 MAD 162] .

50. Rent bona fide paid to holder under defective title.—

1782 Gambhiraya v Sakharam, 101 IC 647 : AIR 1927 Ngp 237 .

1783 Nobin Chandra v Surendra, (1905) 7 Cal WN 454; Peary Lal v Mudhoji, (1913) 17 Cal LJ 372 : 19 IC 865;
Mohammad Azim v Pateshwari Prasad, AIR 1943 Oudh 105 : (1942) Oudh WN 613 : 203 IC 361.

51. Improvements made by bona fide holders under defective titles.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(B\) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

51. Improvements made by bona fide holders under defective titles.—

When the transferee of immovable property makes any improvement on the property, believing in good faith that he is absolutely entitled thereto, and he is subsequently evicted therefrom by any person having a better title, the transferee has a right to require the person causing the eviction either to have the value of the improvement estimated and paid or secured to the transferee, or to sell interest in the property to the transferee at the then market value thereof, irrespective of the value of such improvement.

The amount to be paid or secured in respect of such improvement shall be the estimated value thereof at the time of the eviction.

When, under the circumstances aforesaid, the transferee has planted or sown on the property crops which are growing when he is evicted therefrom, he is entitled to such crops and to free ingress and egress to gather and carry them.

[s 51.1] Improvements by Holder of Defective Title

This section is an application of the equitable maxim that he who seeks equity must do equity.

The equity involved in this section was enforced by the Privy Council in Kidar Nath v Mathu Mal,¹⁷⁸⁴ a case from Punjab, and not governed by the TP Act, 1882. A Hindu widow sold property in which she had only a widow's estate without legal necessity, and the reversioner, at whose instance the sale was set aside and the vendee evicted, was put on terms to compensate the vendee for the improvements he had made. The section was applied by the Privy Council in a case in which a Hindu widow made a gift to a stranger of property inherited by her, and the donee sold the property, and the purchaser effected improvements believing in good faith that he was the owner.¹⁷⁸⁵

The section is almost identical with section 2 of the Mesne Profits and Improvements Act, 1855. There are similar provisions with reference to tenants' compensation in the Bengal Tenancy Act.

The section does not rest upon estoppel, and, therefore, stands clear of the line of cases headed by Ramsden

51. Improvements made by bona fide holders under defective titles.—

*v Dyson*¹⁷⁸⁶ in which the owner is put on equitable terms by the doctrine of estoppel by acquiescence.

[s 51.2] Scope of the Section

The scope of the section is limited, as it applies to a transferee who in good faith believes himself to be absolutely entitled. It is essential not only to plead that the transferor thought that he was absolutely entitled to the property, but also that the transferee knew that the transferor so thought and was led by the transferee's inaction so to think.¹⁷⁸⁷ Where a husband builds on the land belonging to his wife knowing he has no right to do so, the latter is entitled to the building.¹⁷⁸⁸ Section 51 of the TP Act, 1882 has no application where the transfer of land granted was null and void under section 4(1) of the Karnataka Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes Act, 1978.¹⁷⁸⁹

As a general rule, improvements made to the property by a life tenant thereof attach to the estate, and pass to the reversioner or remainderman at the expiration of the life estate without any liability on his part to make compensation thereof. The same holds true of improvements made by a purchaser from one who holds a limited interest, for it is presumed that such purchaser knows the title which he acquires.

[s 51.2.1] Lessee

A lessee cannot appeal to this section,¹⁷⁹⁰ even if he is a permanent lessee.¹⁷⁹¹ When a Hindu widow granted a permanent lease, the lessee, when evicted by the reversioner, was not entitled to compensation for improvements he had made, for he could not have believed himself to be absolutely entitled.¹⁷⁹² In a case¹⁷⁹³ decided by Madras High Court it was held that a perpetual lessee is entitled to the benefit of this section, but it is submitted that the judgment confuses the rule in this section with the doctrine of equitable estoppel. The correctness of this decision has since been doubted in a later Madras case¹⁷⁹⁴ where J Wadsworth referred to the author's comments in the last sentence with approval. A lessee may, however, be entitled to relief under the rule of estoppel by acquiescence.¹⁷⁹⁵

[s 51.2.2] Mortgage

The improvements made by a mortgagee qua mortgage is now codified in section 63A.

Law prior to insertion of section 63A: An assignee of the equity of redemption with knowledge of the mortgage cannot invoke section 51 as he could never have believed that he was absolutely entitled to the property.¹⁷⁹⁶ A mortgagee is not a person absolutely entitled, but in some cases it has been held that he may in good faith believe himself to be absolutely entitled.¹⁷⁹⁷ As to the facts which may induce such a belief, the cases are not consistent. In Gopi Lal v Abdul Hamid,¹⁷⁹⁸ a mortgage of 1859 contained a stipulation that in default of payment within two and a half years, the mortgagee was to be the owner of the property. The suit for redemption was filed nearly 60 years after the due date, but the court observed that the rule "once a mortgage always a mortgage" was as clear in 1859 as it was today, that the mortgagee could not have believed himself to be absolutely entitled, and so refused compensation for a building which the mortgagee had erected. However, in a somewhat similar case from Madras,¹⁷⁹⁹ where a condition converting a mortgage into a sale was held to be a clog on the equity of redemption, the mortgagee who was misled by the condition into believing himself to be the absolute owner, was allowed compensation for improvements. Compensation was also allowed in a Punjab case,¹⁸⁰⁰ where the mortgagee who made improvements was misled by a term of the mortgage that after five years the transaction was to be treated as a sale. In Narayan v Ganesh,¹⁸⁰¹ the Bombay High Court allowed compensation to a mortgagee who was misled by an erroneous order of the court, and believed himself to be absolutely entitled. In Ramappa v Yellappa,¹⁸⁰² the mortgagee was not allowed compensation. Justice Madgavkar said:

In regard to improvements, section 51 of the Transfer of Property Act does not appear to have been relied upon in the lower courts. But in any case, the respondents must be taken to have had notice of the existence of Kristappa (one of the mortgagors) so that they could not be said to have believed in good faith that they were entitled to the whole.

51. Improvements made by bona fide holders under defective titles.—

Other Bombay cases seem to have been decided irrespective of this section, and to refer to improvements made by a mortgagee qua mortgagee. In one case,¹⁸⁰³ a Hindu widow mortgaged property without legal necessity, and the mortgagee with her consent reconstructed a building on the mortgaged property which had been destroyed by floods. On the death of the widow, the reversioner was allowed to redeem without compensating the mortgagee. But in a subsequent case,¹⁸⁰⁴ where the facts were similar, CJ Macleod said that though the position of the mortgagee was not the same as that of a person who thinks he has an absolute title to the property by sale, yet there was an equity in his favour.

[s 51.3] Conditions to be fulfilled

Two conditions must be fulfilled before the equity enacted in this section arises. These are:

- (1) the person evicted must be a transferee; and
- (2) he must have made the improvements believing in good faith that he was absolutely entitled.

[s 51.4] Transferee

The following are instances of transferees who have been given the benefit of the section: a purchaser who purchased bona fide in ignorance of a mortgage;¹⁸⁰⁵ a purchaser from a de facto guardian of a minor who erroneously believed that the guardian had authority to sell;¹⁸⁰⁶ a purchaser of a life estate who believed that his vendor was absolutely entitled;¹⁸⁰⁷ a purchaser who was put in possession of a larger area than he was entitled to and who in ignorance of the mistake made improvements on the excess area;¹⁸⁰⁸ a transferee under an oral sale of immovable property worth ₹100 or more;¹⁸⁰⁹ and the successors-in-title of the last surviving coparcener of a Hindu joint family who were divested by reason of a subsequent adoption.¹⁸¹⁰ However, when a tenant raises a plea of estoppel under the section, it is incumbent upon him to show that the conduct of the landlord whether consisting of abstention from interference or in active intervention, was sufficient to justify the legal interference that he had by plain implication contracted that the right of tenancy under which the lessee originally obtained possession should be changed into a perpetual right of occupation.¹⁸¹¹

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A purchased the property of a Mahomedan minor from his mother who was acting as de facto guardian, believing in good faith that she had authority to sell. When A was evicted by the minor he was entitled to compensation for improvements that he had made.¹⁸¹²

(2) A grantee of land from a Tahsildar, believing himself to be absolutely entitled, improved the land by laying out a casuarina plantation. The Collector revoked the grant and evicted the grantee, but the latter was entitled to compensation for the improvements.¹⁸¹³

In all these cases, the rule was applied when the transferee was evicted by the better title. But the principle of the section was applied to a case¹⁸¹⁴ where there was no direct eviction, and no better title. A purchaser had erected a building on land which was subject to a mortgage of which she was unaware. The court directed the mortgagee to pay the cost of the improvement as a condition precedent to bringing the property to sale in enforcement of his mortgage.

Again, a purchaser who had made improvements to property which he was under covenant to reconvey was allowed compensation when sued in specific performance of his covenant.¹⁸¹⁵

51. Improvements made by bona fide holders under defective titles.—

In a Bombay case,¹⁸¹⁶ a de facto guardian of a minor sold the minor's house to the defendant who, believing that he had become absolutely entitled, pulled down the house, and built a new one. The guardian had no authority to sell and when the minor attained majority and evicted the defendant, the latter was allowed compensation for the improvement. The case was exactly under the section, for the minor had the better title and had evicted the transferee who had made improvements in good faith. Chief Justice Marten, however, observed that the section applied even when the evictor is the transferor. This dictum was not necessary as the minor was not the transferor, his case being that the guardian did not represent him. It is submitted that the dictum is too broadly stated, for if the evictor were the transferor, other considerations would arise, and the transferor might be estopped from derogating from his own grant.

In an Allahabad case,¹⁸¹⁷ a Hindu father sold his son's share in a house without legal necessity, and when the vendee was evicted by the son he was allowed compensation for improvements made in good faith. Justice Ashworth seemed to think that section 51 would neither apply to a defeasible title, nor to a defective title. It is submitted that this is a distinction without a difference. The case was one of eviction by better title.

The section is not applicable to a son governed by the Dayabhaga law, who makes improvements on the ancestral property.¹⁸¹⁸ Nor is the section applicable to a case in which a person makes improvements on the land of another, not under a mistake as to his right or where he is not encouraged in such a mistake by the inactivity of the owner of the land. The section does not apply where an allottee of a plot by government erroneously enters upon and improves another plot.¹⁸¹⁹

The section is of course not applicable to improvements made by the transferor, and when a purchaser from a Hindu widow is evicted by the reversioner, he cannot claim compensation for improvements made by the widow.¹⁸²⁰ It has been held by the Calcutta High Court¹⁸²¹ that the section does not apply to a person who has not himself made the improvements, but has purchased the property from the improver, the Madras High Court has, however, expressed a contrary view.¹⁸²²

A purchaser making improvements with the knowledge that the property does not belong to him cannot claim the benefit of section 51.¹⁸²³ Similarly, the section has no application to a case where the person making improvements does not hold under a perpetual lease, and does not claim an absolute title to the land.¹⁸²⁴ Benefit of section 51 cannot be availed of by a person who was merely in permissive possession of the licensee,¹⁸²⁵ whose licence was terminated, and was not a bona fide occupant in his own right.¹⁸²⁶ Similarly, where a person takes the possession of the property under an oral agreement of sale but never attempted to get it enforced through any judicial proceedings; did not pay the money to the owner despite enjoying the property for a long time, he cannot claim relief under this section but would be entitled to remove the improvements made by him in the property.¹⁸²⁷

[s 51.4.1] Trespasser

A trespasser is not a transferee, and is not entitled to compensation for improvements,¹⁸²⁸ made on government land.¹⁸²⁹ If, however, a trespasser acting bona fide erects a structure, he is upon ejection, entitled to remove the materials.¹⁸³⁰ If he, in good faith, plants trees, he is entitled to its usufruct thereof. The owner can claim compensation for the use, and occupation of the land in which the trees are planted.¹⁸³¹ Where there was no evidence that the plaintiff had encouraged the defendant to trespass and to incur expenses, the trespasser must be evicted.¹⁸³²

51. Improvements made by bona fide holders under defective titles.—

There are no equities in favour of a trespasser,¹⁸³³ or of a person fraudulently in possession.¹⁸³⁴ In fact, the construction of buildings by such a person is only an aggravation of the trespass for which the appropriate remedy is an injunction for their removal.¹⁸³⁵ However, a person who encroached by mistake on adjoining land and cleared it of jungle, believing it to be his own, was held to be entitled to compensation when evicted.¹⁸³⁶

In a Madras case, in a suit for declaration and possession of vacant land, the allegation was that the defendant had trespassed on the land, and had put up superstructures on it. However, nothing had been done by the owner of the land to stop it. This acquiescence of the owner, resulted in the owner being held liable to compensate him.¹⁸³⁷

Similarly, a person cannot be held to be a bona fide purchaser for valuable consideration on the basis of defective title to attract the provisions of section 51 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, and therefore, where the property is mortgaged to third party for valuable consideration through a registered deed, in absence of enquiry as regards to a valid transfer of title subsequent purchaser of such property cannot be held to be a bonafide purchaser for valuable consideration and would not be entitled to demand protection under this section.¹⁸³⁸

[s 51.5] Good Faith

The words “believing in good faith that he is absolutely entitled to” are important portions of the section.¹⁸³⁹ In order to entitle an occupant of land to claim compensation, as a general rule, it is necessary that he must have held possession under colour of title, his possession must not have been by mere permission of another, but adverse to the title of the true owner and he must be under an honest belief that he has secured good title to the property in question and is the owner thereof.¹⁸⁴⁰

Good faith is here used in the sense of the phrase as defined in the General Clauses Act, 1897, ie, “A thing shall be deemed to be done in “good faith” where it is in fact done honestly, whether it is done negligently or not.” It will be observed that the requirement of reasonable care, which occurs in sections 38 and 41, is omitted in this section. That requirement would be appropriate, for if the defect in title were due to want of authority or ostensible ownership and reasonable care had been exercised, the defective title would be cured by estoppel and the question of compensation could not arise.¹⁸⁴¹ The expression “believing in good faith” merely means honestly believing.¹⁸⁴² Honest belief is not incompatible with negligence,¹⁸⁴³ or with a mistake of law.¹⁸⁴⁴ On the other hand, as said by Lord Selbourne in Agra Bank v Barry,¹⁸⁴⁵ omission to investigate title may be evidence, if it is not explained, of a design, inconsistent with bona fide dealing, to avoid knowledge of the title. Accordingly, it has been said that if a person consciously avoids making an inquiry, though he may have a belief in the matter, it would not be a belief in good faith.¹⁸⁴⁶ Thus, a purchaser from a Hindu widow who omits to making inquiry as to the circumstances justifying the sale cannot be said to believe in good faith that he has acquired an absolute title.¹⁸⁴⁷ Similarly, a person having notice of the property being subject to a mortgage and without making enquiry as regards to valid transfer of title cannot demand payment of improvements made by him over alleged property as a subsequent purchaser.¹⁸⁴⁸ However, this is not a rule of law, for the state of a man’s mind is a question of fact¹⁸⁴⁹ and in exceptional cases, a purchaser from a Hindu widow who sold without necessity, or after her estate was divested by an adoption, has been held to have believed in good faith in his absolute title.¹⁸⁵⁰ It has been observed that good faith may be inferred from the very fact that the transferee expended a large sum of money on the improvements.¹⁸⁵¹

Compensation has also been allowed where the gift was for the religious benefit of the widow’s husband’s soul, and the donee believed himself to be absolutely entitled.¹⁸⁵²

A person who makes improvements in anticipation of a grant cannot be said to have believed himself to be

51. Improvements made by bona fide holders under defective titles.—

absolutely entitled.¹⁸⁵³ A person who is aware that his title is terminable is not entitled to the benefit of the section.¹⁸⁵⁴ The test is whether the transferee had acted in the bona fide belief that he was absolutely entitled.¹⁸⁵⁵

A purchaser with notice of a prior contract of sale by his vendor is not entitled to compensation for improvements when evicted.¹⁸⁵⁶ Improvements made pending litigation are not made in good faith, for the party knows he is running a risk and if he is in possession under a decree, he must be aware that the decree may be reversed on appeal.¹⁸⁵⁷

[s 51.6] Court Sale

The section does not apply to a purchaser at a court sale,¹⁸⁵⁸ and a purchaser at a court sale who has made improvements is entitled to compensation irrespective of any question of bona fides, when the judgment is reversed and the sale becomes invalid.¹⁸⁵⁹

[s 51.7] Operation of Law

Section 51 applies to inter vivos transfers. It does not apply to a transfer made by operation of law. In Harishchandra Hegde v State of Karnataka,¹⁸⁶⁰ land was granted by the government in favour of one person who in turn sold it to the transferee, who allegedly invested a lot of money for improvement of the land. However, by section 5 of the Karnataka Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe (Prohibition of Transfer of Certain Land) Act, 1978, all lands were resumed and restored to the original grantee. The Supreme Court held that if a judicial order is passed restoring the land back to a member of the scheduled tribe in terms of the purpose and object of the said Act, the provisions of the TP Act, 1882 cannot be applied since the latter is governed by a special statute.

[s 51.8] Option as to Compensation

The transferee may, on eviction, be compensated in two ways:

Either by being paid the value of the improvements; or by buying out the better title at a valuation of the property irrespective of the improvements.

It is settled law that the option as to the mode of compensation is that of the evictor, who can either pay the value of the improvements and take the land, or sell the land instead of evicting the transferee.¹⁸⁶¹ A mortgagee who has erected a building on the property mortgaged and who was not entitled to the benefit of the section was allowed by the Allahabad High Court to remove the building materials.¹⁸⁶² It is submitted that this is correct, for the equity under this section does not affect the right recognised before the TP Act, 1882 in Paramanick's case.¹⁸⁶³ The Rangoon High Court had disagreed on the ground that this section is an exception to the principle quicquid plantatur solo, solo credit.¹⁸⁶⁴ But this maxim does not generally apply in India.¹⁸⁶⁵ In a case¹⁸⁶⁶ where the evictor did not have the means to pay for the improvements, the Allahabad High Court made an order requiring him to sell the property. A transfer was made by a limited owner, which was challenged by the reversioners. Questions arose regarding improvements. Compensation was valued by the trial court, but the high court (on appeal) remanded the case to the trial court, to give opportunity to the plaintiffs to make a choice under section 51. On appeal, the Supreme Court held that as the transferee had made valuable constructions involving an expense of Rs 5 to 6 lakh, in the circumstances, it would not be equitable to re-open the matter of compensation, and to call upon the transferee to pay the present market price. Further, the acceptance, by the high court, of the amount fixed by the trial court was, in the circumstances of the case, held to amount to a choice within the first part of section 51.¹⁸⁶⁷

[s 51.9] Improvements

51. Improvements made by bona fide holders under defective titles.—

Ordinary operations of agriculture such as manuring and levelling land are not improvements within the meaning of this section.¹⁸⁶⁸ Section 63A refers to improvements by a mortgagee, and the phrase there includes necessary repairs. But under this section repairs are not improvements,¹⁸⁶⁹ and it has been held that putting a new staircase into an old house is an ordinary repair, and not an improvement.¹⁸⁷⁰

A silence by the owner for a period of 12 years after the possession was taken by the defendants under an oral agreement will not extinguish the rights of the owner in his property but the defendants would be liable to remove all improvements made by them in property.¹⁸⁷¹

[s 51.10] Valuation

The valuation of improvements would be, as pointed out in *Kidar Nath v Mathmal*¹⁸⁷² not the amount expended in making the improvement, but the extent to which the value of the property as a marketable subject has been enhanced thereby. It has been observed by a single Judge of the Bombay High Court that a transferee is even entitled to the general rise in prices since the date of transfer,¹⁸⁷³ sed quaere.

The valuation has to be made as on the date of actual eviction, and not the date of the exercise of the option by the real owner.¹⁸⁷⁴

[s 51.11] Executing Court

The executing court cannot go behind the decree fixing compensation according to the Kerala High Court.¹⁸⁷⁵

[s 51.12] Crops

If the transferee has grown crops upon the land in the bona fide belief that he is absolutely entitled, he has the right to remove them on eviction. Ancillary to that right he has the right of free ingress and egress to gather and carry them away. This right constitutes no bar to eviction, but after the eviction the transferee has the right to carry away the crops.¹⁸⁷⁶ A similar right is reserved to a lessee of uncertain duration when evicted for no fault of his own (section 108(i)).

The ordinary rule is that the right to growing crops passes with the sale of the land and when a mortgagee in possession brings the land to sale, he cannot recover the value of the crops he has grown, from the purchaser.¹⁸⁷⁷

[s 51.13] Lien

The transferee has no lien on the land for the value of improvements.¹⁸⁷⁸

[s 51.14] Mesne Profits

Even if a transferee is not entitled to compensation under this section, yet if a decree for mesne profits is passed against him, he will be entitled to credit for profits due to his improvements. This is expressly enacted in section 2(12) of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908, and for the reason that mesne profits are in the nature of damages. An instance of such an order is to be found in the case of Raja Rai Bhagwat Dayal v Ram Ratan Sahu.¹⁸⁷⁹

[s 51.15] Equitable Estoppel by Acquiescence

In some cases¹⁸⁸⁰ section 51 has been treated as an extension of the equitable doctrine of estoppel by acquiescence. In spite of a superficial similarity, the two cases rest on totally different principles of foundation. Estoppel by acquiescence occurs when the person having the better title knows a fact unknown to the other persons acting in violation of the right which that fact gives, and does not inform them about it, but lies by and lets them run into a trap.¹⁸⁸¹ The distinction between this class of case and section 51 is as follows:

51. Improvements made by bona fide holders under defective titles.—

- (1) Estoppel by acquiescence looks to the conduct of the prospective evictor, while section 51 looks to the conduct of the person evicted.
- (2) Estoppel by acquiescence does not merely put the evictor upon equitable terms, but compels him to make good his representation and prevents him from eviction. Section 51 merely puts the evictor upon equitable terms as to compensation. The one denies the right; the other admits the right, but raises a plea in mitigation of it.
- (3) Estoppel by acquiescence rests on the doctrine of estoppel, while section 51 rests on the maxim that he who comes unto equity must do equity.
- (4) To invoke the concept of estoppel, defendant has to plead each act or omission that constitutes representation from the plaintiff and consequential acts by the defendant and prove them. However, section 51 can be invoked when the defendant who is found to have made improvements on the property is neither a trespasser, nor has he pleaded and established estoppel.¹⁸⁸²

[s 51.16] Ramsden v Dyson

In Ramsden v Dyson,¹⁸⁸³ Lord Kingsdown said:

The rule of law applicable to the case appears to me to be this: If a man, under a verbal agreement with a landlord for a certain interest in land, or what amounts to the same thing, under an expectation created or encouraged by the landlord, but he shall have a certain interest, takes possession of such land, with the consent of the landlord, and upon the faith of such promise or expectation, with the knowledge of the landlord, and without objection by him, lays out money upon the land, a court of equity will compel the landlord to give effect to such promise or expectation.

This principle was applied by the Privy Council in Forbes v Ralli.¹⁸⁸⁴ In that case, the landlord granted a lease to the defendant “for the purpose of erecting buildings for trade.” The defendant then asked permission to erect a residence for his manager. The plaintiff replied that the lease was a permanent lease which gave the tenant the right to erect buildings, but that the rent was liable to enhancement. Relying on this assurance, the defendant built the residence. The plaintiff then sought to evict the defendant, but the Privy Council held that whatever the nature of the tenancy in its inception, the plaintiff was estopped from questioning its permanency. Mr Ameer Ali delivering the judgment of the Board said:

Estoppel prevents the plaintiff from evicting from their holding the defendants, whom he, the plaintiff, induced by his representation and conduct to believe that they had a fixity of tenure, although not of rent, in the lands that had been leased to them. It gives effect to the representation that induced them to act as they did.

The equity of *Ramsden v Dyson*¹⁸⁸⁵ has been approved by the Supreme Court in *Collector of Bombay v Bombay Municipal Corp*¹⁸⁸⁶ and UOI v Indo-Afghan Agencies,¹⁸⁸⁷ though the latter was a case more of promissory estoppel.

51. Improvements made by bona fide holders under defective titles.—

The rule in Ramsden v Dyson is, in India, subject to the exception that a party building on the land of another is allowed to remove the building. The right of course does not exist, when the action is malafide and tortious, but when there is acquiescence and bona fide belief.¹⁸⁸⁸ In Lala Beni Ram v Kundan Lal,¹⁸⁸⁹ the Privy Council has observed that:

the owner of land cannot sue for ejectment where he sees another person erecting buildings upon it, and knowing that such other person is under the mistaken belief that the land is his own property, purposely abstains from interference with the view of claiming the building when it is erected.

The Supreme Court has also held that:

no man, who knowing fully well that he has no title to the property spends money on improving it can be permitted to deprive the original owner of his right to possession of the property except upon the payment for the improvements which were not effected with the consent of that person.¹⁸⁹⁰ Where the owner of the property kept quiet for several months when the trespasser was putting up a portion of his main building, acquiescence may be presumed.¹⁸⁹¹ In Nundo Kumar v Banomali Gayan,¹⁸⁹² the doctrine is explained to be outside the scope of section 51.

English cases where this rule has been applied are cases where the true owner stood by while his manager forged a mortgage;¹⁸⁹³ where the true owner permitted an adjoining owner to build a garage on his property, which the latter believed to be his own;¹⁸⁹⁴ and where a lessee, who erroneously represented that a portion of the property was part of the property demised to him, was forced, under a covenant to repair, that portion even though it was found to be outside the lease.¹⁸⁹⁵

[s 51.17] Implied Contract and Equitable Estoppel

There is a class of cases which is sometimes referred to as equitable estoppel, although it is really one of implied contract. The defendant has a limited interest as lessee or mortgagee and is aware of the plaintiff's rights, but the plaintiff's conduct has led him to believe that those rights will not be enforced against him, and the defendant has erected buildings or altered his position in consequence of such belief. In such a case, a promise to compensate the defendant is implied. In Lala Beni Ram v Kundan Lal,¹⁸⁹⁶ yearly tenants erected substantial buildings and then contended that they could not be evicted, but the Privy Council rejected this contention saying that in order to raise the equitable estoppel against the lessors it was incumbent on the lessees "to show that the conduct of the owner, whether consisting in abstinence from interfering or in active intervention, was sufficient to justify the legal inference that they had by plain implication contracted that the right of tenancy under which the lessees originally obtained possession of the land should be changed into a perpetual right of occupation." In many such cases, the conduct of the landlord is construed as an implied agreement to compensate the tenants when evicted.¹⁸⁹⁷ Where a mortgagee spent money in repairing a well, the consent of the mortgagor was implied.¹⁸⁹⁸ Similarly, when the original grant was lost and the tenant had been 25 years in possession and had erected buildings to the knowledge of the lessor, the court presumed that the grant was of a permanent tenancy for building purposes.¹⁸⁹⁹ However, if there is no implied promise, and the tenant had made improvements or erected buildings merely in the hope that he will not be dispossessed, the landlord cannot be deprived of his right to take back his property with all the improvements imprudently made by the tenant.¹⁹⁰⁰ Thus, in special circumstances, he may be allowed to remove all improvements made by him in the property.¹⁹⁰¹

51. Improvements made by bona fide holders under defective titles.—

-
- 1784 Kidar Nath v Mathu Mal, (1913) ILR 40 Cal 555 : 18 IC 946 : 15 Bom LR 467 : (1913) 17 Cal WN 797 : 25 Mad LJ 176 (PC); Quaim v Ghulam Din, 146 IC 36 : AIR 1933 Lah 540 .
- 1785 Narayanaswami Ayyar v Rama Ayyar, 57 IA 305 : 128 IC 261 : AIR 1930 PC 297 .
- 1786 Ramsden v Dyson, (1865) LR 1 HL 129. See also note “Acquiescence” below.
- 1787 Govardhan v Mukharai, (1949) ILR Nag 465.
- 1788 KK Das v Amina Khatun, (1940) ILR 1 Cal 161 : (1940) 44 Cal WN 247 : 189 IC 161 : AIR 1940 Cal 356 .
- 1789 Chennappa v State of Karnataka, AIR 1993 Kant. 188 , p 193. See section 2 of the Government Grants Act, 1895, which excludes applicability of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882; also see Serajuddin v State of Orissa, AIR 1969 Ori. 152 [LNIND 1969 ORI 105] .
- 1790 Nundo Kumar v Banomali Gayan, (1902) ILR 29 Cal 871; Narasayya v Raja of Venkatagiri, (1914) ILR 37 Mad 1 : 7 IC 202; Naina Pillai v Ramanathan, (1917) 33 Mad LJ 84 : 41 IC 788; Buneshwar v Lal Bahadur, 51 IC 380; BanmalivNihal, 48 IC 354; Rajrup Kunwar v Gopi, (1925)ILR 47 All 430 : 87 IC 44 : AIR 1925 All 261; Madan Gopal vSundaram, 189 IC 735 : AIR 1940 Rang 172; Darbari v Raneeganj Coal Assn, (1943) ILR 22 Pat 554 : AIR 1944 Pat. 30; Subhan v Madhavrao, (1951) ILR Nag 895 : AIR 1952 Ngp 394; Hiralal v Bastocella Colliery Co, (1957) ILR AP 331; Bastocella Colliery Co v Bandhu Beldar, (1961) ILR 39 Pat 140 : AIR 1960 Pat. 344; Gokulapathy v KRV Sarma, (1971) 2 Mad LJ 320 : AIR 1972 Mad. 54 [LNIND 1971 MAD 122]; Board of Wakf v Subramaniam Naicker, (1976) Andh WR 391 (lessee cannot claim in good faith an absolute title).
- 1791 Rajrup Kunwar v Gopi, (1925) ILR 47 All 430; Preumal Gramani v Mahomad Kasim, 28 IC 840; Venkatappier v Ramaswami, (1919) Mad WN 548 : 52 IC 517; Ambika Devi v Scahita Nandan, (1960) ILR AP 289; contra Raja Pratab v Debi Pershad, (1905) 8 OC 13.
- 1792 Rajrup Kunwar v Gopi, (1925) ILR 47 All 430; Sidha Natha v Har Narain, 170 IC 508 : AIR 1937 Oudh 446. This decision reverses the decision at p 75 of the same report.
- 1793 Subba Rao v Veeranjaneyaswami, 126 IC 279 : AIR 1930 Mad. 298 [LNIND 1929 MAD 21].
- 1794 Pandarasannadhi v Anantha Krishnaswami, (1939) 48 Mad LW 894 : (1938) Mad WN 1236 : 183 IC 609 : AIR 1939 Mad. 247 [LNIND 1938 MAD 397].
- 1795 See note “Acquiescence” below.
- 1796 Santhankumar v Indian Bank, [1967] 2 SCR 613 [LNIND 1967 SC 35], p 617 : AIR 1967 SC 1296 [LNIND 1967 SC 35]; [1967] 2 SCJ 36.
- 1797 Pandulal v G Daniel, AIR 1951 Ajm 16; Sidde GowdavNadakala, (1952) ILR Mys 384 : AIR 1952 Mys 117.
- 1798 Gopi Lal v Abdul Hamid, (1928) 26 All LJ 887 : 116 IC 91 : AIR 1928 All 381; Hansraj v Somni, (1922) ILR 44 All 665 : 67 IC 314 : AIR 1922 All 261; BechuvBhabhuti Prasad, (1930) ILR 52 All 831 : 124 IC 731 : AIR 1931 All 201; Bimal Chandra v Manmath Nath, AIR 1954 Cal 345 [LNIND 1954 CAL 28].
- 1799 Pandiyan v Vellayappa, (1917) 33 Mad LJ 316 : 42 IC 438.
- 1800 Mussammat Ram Kaur v Partab Singh, (1919) PR 58 : 51 IC 689; Ludha Mal v Jagannath, (1888) PR 123.

51. Improvements made by bona fide holders under defective titles.—

- 1801 Narayan v Ganesh, (1926) 28 Bom LR 993 : 97 IC 700 : AIR 1926 Bom 599.
- 1802 Ramappa v Yellappa, (1928) ILR 52 Bom 307 : 109 IC 532 : AIR 1928 Bom 150.
- 1803 Vrijbhukandas v Dayaram, (1908) ILR 32 Bom 32; Parashar v Ganu, (1903) 5 Bom LR 643.
- 1804 Shiddappa v Pandurang Vasudeo, (1923) ILR 47Bom 696 : 72 IC 626 : AIR 1923 Bom 385.
- 1805 Narayana Rao v Basarayappa, AIR 1956 SC 727 .
- 1806 Harilal v Gordhan, (1927) ILR 51 Bom 1040 : 105 IC 722 : AIR 1927 Bom 611 (Hindu guardian); Durgozi Row v Fakeer Sahib, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 197 (Mahomedan guardian).
- 1807 Nanjamma v Nacharammal, (1907) 17 Mad LJ 622.
- 1808 Natesa Thevan v District Board of Tanjore, 95 IC 789 : AIR 1926 Mad. 921 [LNIND 1925 MAD 312] .
- 1809 Topanmal v Chanchalmal, 188 IC 223 : AIR 1940 Sau 77 .
- 1810 Mahadeo v Rameshwar, (1968) 70 Bom LR 89 : AIR 1968 Bom 323 [LNIND 1967 BOM 47] .
- 1811 Cheddi Manjhi v Mahipal, AIR 1951 Pat. 600 , p 601.
- 1812 Durgozi Row v Fakeer Sahib, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 197.
- 1813 Chennapragada v Secretary of State, (1925) 48 Mad LJ 682 : 90 IC 555 : AIR 1925 Mad. 963 [LNIND 1924 MAD 423] .
- 1814 Kalyan Das v Jan Bibi, (1929) ILR 51 All 454 : 112 IC 765 : AIR 1929 All 12 .
- 1815 Chinakal v Chinnathambi, (1934) 67 Mad LJ 635 : 152 IC 634 : AIR 1934 Mad. 703 [LNIND 1934 MAD 84] .
- 1816 Harilal v Gordhan, (1927) ILR 51 Bom 1040 : 105 IC 722 : AIR 1927 Bom 611 .
- 1817 Lachmi Prasad v Lachmi Narain, (1927) 25 All LJ 926 : 107 IC 36 : AIR 1928 All 41 .
- 1818 Dhanna Das v Amulyadhan, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 1119.
- 1819 Ijjabba v Ijjinabha, AIR 1964 Mys 24 .
- 1820 Meenatchi v Manicka, 24 IC 918.
- 1821 Nagendrabala Dasee v Punchanan Mourie, (1934) ILR 60 Cal 1388 : 150 IC 42 : AIR 1934 Cal 290 .
- 1822 Mohamed Naziruddin v Govindarajulu, (1971) Mad LJ 28 : AIR 1971 Mad. 44 [LNIND 1970 MAD 14] .
- 1823 State of J & K v Ghulam Rasool, (1978) Kash LJ 260 .
- 1824 Ponniah Pillai v Pannai, AIR 1947 Mad. 282 [LNIND 1946 MAD 201] .
- 1825 Durga Devi v Beni Prasad, AIR 2008 (NOC) 570 AP.
- 1826 Lucy George v Nagpur Roman Catholic Diocesan Corp Pvt Ltd, AIR 1986MP 27, p 29.
- 1827 Brigopal Lumani v Mothey Anja Ratna Rajkumar, AIR 2010 (NOC) 570 AP.
- 1828 Daya Ram v Shyam Sundari, [1965] 1 SCR 231, p 237 : AIR 1965 SC 1049 [LNIND 1964 SC 221]; [1966] 1 SCJ 6 [LNIND 1964 SC 221]; Secretary of State v Dugappa, 95 IC 789 : AIR 1926 Mad. 921 [LNIND 1925 MAD 312]; LA Creet v Gangaraj, (1937) ILR 1 Cal 203 : 64 Cal LJ 280 : AIR 1937 Cal 129; Alexander KC v State of Kerala, AIR 1965 2 Ker. 173 : (1966) ILR Ker 72; Mohammed A Kadar v District Collector, (1971) 2 Mad LJ 267 : AIR 1972 Mad. 56 [LNIND 1971 MAD 108].
- 1829 KC Alexandar v State of Kerala, AIR 1973 SC 2498 [LNIND 1973 SC 237]; Emerald Valley Estate Ltd Badagulli v State of Kerala, AIR 2001 Ker. 29 [LNIND 2000 KER 306].
- 1830 Krishna Prasad v Adyanath Ghatak, AIR 1944 Pat. 77.

51. Improvements made by bona fide holders under defective titles.—

- 1831 Pannalal v Gokarna Das, (1949) ILR All 757.
- 1832 Arjun Lal Gupta v Mriganka Mohan Sur, AIR 1975 SC 207, p 208 : (1974) 2 SCC 586.
- 1833 Mudhoo Soodun v Juddooputty, (1869) 9 WR 115; Thakoor Chunder v Ramdhone, (1868) 6 WR 228; Ganga Din v Jagat, (1914) 12 All LJ 1026 : 25 IC 198.
- 1834 Musadee Mahomed v Meerza Ally, (1854) 6 Moo Ind App 27, p 50; Sadashiv v Dhakubai, (1881) ILR 5 Bom 451; Murlidhar v Parmanand, (1932) 34 Bom LR 164 : 137 IC 560 : AIR 1932 Bom 190.
- 1835 Jethalal v Lalbhai, (1908) ILR 28 Bom 298.
- 1836 Bhupendra v Pyari, 40 IC 464.
- 1837 RS Muthuswami Gounder v A Annamalai, (1981) 1 Mad LJ 258.
- 1838 Vasanthamma v Siddaveerappa, AIR 2011 Kant. 54 [LNIND 2010 KANT 360] : LNIND 2010 KANT 360 : 2010 (3) KCCR 2047 [LNIND 2010 KANT 360].
- 1839 Ismail Hajee Essa Trust v Muslim Educational Society (Registered), 2017 (1) KHC 916 : 2017 (1) KLJ 962 : 2017 (1) KLT 843 ; Durga Devi v Beni Prasad, AIR 2008 (NOC) 570 AP.
- 1840 Emeral Valley Estate Ltd, Badaguli v State of Kerala, AIR 2001 Ker. 29 [LNIND 2000 KER 306] , para 13.
- 1841 See the judgment of J Mukerji in Lachmi Prasad v Lachmi Narain, (1927) 25 All LJ 926 : 107 IC 36 : AIR 1928 All 41 .
- 1842 Chennapragada v Secretary of State, (1925) 48 Mad LJ 682 : 90 IC 555 : AIR 1925 Mad. 963 [LNIND 1924 MAD 423] ; Narayana Aiyar v Sankaranarayana Aiyar, 24 IC 940; Moitheensa v Apsa Bivi, (1913) ILR 36 Mad 194 : 12 IC 444; Furزند Ali v Aka Ali, (1879) 3 Cal LR 194 .
- 1843 Nanjappa v Peruma, (1909) ILR 32 Mad 530 : 4 IC 18; Rama Aiyar v Narayanaswami Aiyar, (1926) 51 Mad LJ 313 : 96 IC 483 : AIR 1926 Mad. 609 [LNIND 1925 MAD 446] ; Shahabuddin v Vahidbux, (1920) 14 Serv LR 12 : 56 IC 492; Narayana Aiyar v Sankaranarayana Aiyar, 24 IC 940.
- 1844 Harilal v Gordhan, (1927) ILR 51 Bom 1040 : 105 IC 722 : AIR 1927 Bom 611 ; Durgozi Row v Fakeer Sahib, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 197; Rama Aiyar v Narayanaswami Aiyar, (1926) 51 Mad LJ 313; Sidde Gowda v Nadakala, (1952) ILR Mys 384 : AIR 1952 Mys 117 .
- 1845 Agra Bank v Barry, (1874) LR 7 HL 135, p 157.
- 1846 Abhoy Churn Ghose v Attarmoni, (1910) 13 Cal WN 931 : 31 IC 415; Shubraton v Shabbirali, 187 IC 317 : AIR 1940 Oudh 266 . See Bemal Chandra Das v Manmatha Nath, (1954) 58 Cal WN 760 : AIR 1954 Cal 345 [LNIND 1954 CAL 28] .
- 1847 Nanjappa v Peruma, 4 IC 18; Kandarpa v Jogendra Nath, (1910) 12 Cal LJ 391 : 6 IC 141; Nandi v Sarup Lal, (1917) ILR 39 All 463 : 40 IC 71; Hans Raj v Somni, (1922) ILR 44 All 665 : 67 IC 314 : AIR 1922 All 194 ; Muddasami Sidappa v Lakshmi, (1915) Mad WN 631; Etizad Husain v Bani Bahadur, 45 IC 242; Suleman v Perichavala, 86 IC 195 : AIR 1925 Mad. 670 [LNIND 1924 MAD 518] ; Jogeshwar v Janki Bai, 95 IC 265 : AIR 1926 Ngp 384 ; Raj Kishore v Jaint Singh, (1914) ILR 36 All 387 : 23 IC 364; Kochunni Kartha v Raman, (1966) ILR 2 Ker 211 : AIR 1967 Ker. 22 .
- 1848 Vasanthamma v Siddaveerappa, AIR 2011 Kant. 54 [LNIND 2010 KANT 360] : (2010) 3 KCCR 2047 [LNIND 2010 KANT 360] .
- 1849 Girdharlal v Jethmal, AIR, 1963 Pat 177.
- 1850 American Baptist Mission v Amalanadhuni, 48 IC 859; Gangadhar v Rachappa, (1929) 31 Bom LR 453 : 119 IC 182 : AIR 1929 Bom 246 ; Narayanaswami Aiyar v Rama Aiyar, (1930) ILR 53 Mad 69 : 57 IA 305 : 128 IC 261 : AIR 1930 PC 297 .

51. Improvements made by bona fide holders under defective titles.—

- 1851 Ram Charan v Bhagwan Dei, AIR 1955 All 339 [LNIND 1951 ALL 201] .
- 1852 Panachand v Manoharlal, (1917) ILR 42 Bom 136, p 144 : 43 IC 729.
- 1853 Davaramani v Padda Bhinaka, (1915) Mad WN 148 : 28 IC 51.
- 1854 Onkar Mal v Secretary of State, 56 IC 813. See also Harnaman v Dasondhi, (1920) ILR 1 Lah 210 : 56 IC 733.
- 1855 Sitha v Samiuddin, 42 IC 428; Ramappa v Yellappa, (1928) ILR 52 Bom 307 : 109 IC 532 : AIR 1928 Bom 150 .
- 1856 Haradhan v Bhagabati, (1914) ILR 41 Cal 852 : 23 IC 214; Ramaji v Manohar, (1960) 62 Bom LR 322 : AIR 1961 Bom 169 [LNIND 1959 BOM 127] .
- 1857 Velusami v Bommachi, (1913) 25 Mad LJ 324 : 21 IC 219; Raman Ittiyathi v Pappy Bhaskaran, AIR 1990 Ker. 112 , p 118.
- 1858 Lalta Prasad v Bramhanand, AIR 1950 All 449 [LNIND 1950 ALL 15] .
- 1859 Moitheensa v Apsa Bivi, (1913) ILR 36 Mad 194 : 12 IC 444.
- 1860 Harishchandra Hegde v State of Karnataka, (2004) 9 SCC 780 : AIR 2004 SC 315 .
- 1861 Rama Aiyar v Narayanaswami Aiyar, (1926) 51 Mad LJ 313 : 96 IC 483 : AIR 1926 Mad. 609 [LNIND 1925 MAD 446] ; Narayan v Ganesh, (1926) 28 Bom LR 993 : 97 IC 700 : AIR 1926 Bom 599 ; Motichand v British India Corp, (1932) 30 All LJ 54 : 136 IC 78 : AIR 1932 All 210 ; Kasipathi v Subba Rao, (1961) ILR Mys 62; Nararatnamba v Ramayya, AIR 1963 AP 177 [LNIND 1962 AP 25] .
- 1862 Hans Raj v Somni, (1922) ILR 44 All 665 : 67 IC 314 : AIR 1922 All 194 ; Venkatappier v Ramaswami, (1919) Mad WN 548 : 52 IC 517.
- 1863 Paramanick case, (1868) 6 WN 228 .
- 1864 Maung Aung v Ma Nyun, 117 IC 56 : AIR 1928 Rang 141 .
- 1865 See note “English and Indian law of fixtures” under section 3.
- 1866 Lachmi Prasad v Lachmi Narain, (1927) 25 All LJ 926 : 107 IC 36 : AIR 1928 All 41 .
- 1867 Brahma Sanathan Dharam Mahamandal v Prem Kumar, AIR 1985 SC 1102 [LNIND 1985 SC 195] .
- 1868 Sudala Muthu v Sankara, 24 IC 879; Mariappa Thevar v Kaliammal, AIR 1971 Mad. 198 [LNIND 1970 MAD 267] .
- 1869 Meenatchi v Manicka, 24 IC 918, p 920; Bimal Chandra Das v Manmatha Nath, (1954) 58 Cal WN 760 : AIR 1954 Cal 345 [LNIND 1954 CAL 28] .
- 1870 Sidramappa v Shidappa, (1929) 31 Bom LR 461 : 119 IC 650 : AIR 1929 Rang 230 .
- 1871 Brijopal Lumani v Mothey Anja Ratna Rajkumar, AIR 2010 (NOC) 570 AP.
- 1872 Kidar Nath v Mathmal, (1913) ILR 40 Cal 555 : 19 IC 946; Kunhi v Kunkan, (1896) ILR 19 Mad 384; Gangadhar v Rachappa, (1929) 31 Bom LR 453 : 119 IC 182 : AIR 1929 Bom 246 .
- 1873 Shripati Raoji v Vishwanath, (1955) ILR Bom 1033 : 57 Bom LR 840 : AIR 1955 Bom 457 .
- 1874 Narayana Rao v Basarayappa, AIR 1956 SC 727 .
- 1875 Ammalu v Kothambari Vellachi, (1974) ILR Ker 116.
- 1876 Deo Dai v Ram Autar, (1886) ILR 8 All 502.
- 1877 Ramalinga v Samiappa, (1890) ILR 13 Mad 15.
- 1878 Dharma Das v Amulyadhan, (1906) ILR 33 Cal 1119, p 1130.
- 1879 Raja Rai Bhagwat Dayal v Ram Ratan Sahu, (1922) 24 Bom LR 336 [LNIND 1921 BOM 176] : (1922) 26 Cal WN 257 : 65 IC 69 : AIR 1922 PC 91 .
- 1880 Cf Bhupendra v Pyari, 40 IC 464; Collier v Baron, (1906) 2 Nag LJ 34 ; Gangadhar v Rachappa, (1929) 31 Bom LR 453 : 119 IC 182 : AIR 1929 Bom 246 ; Subba Rao v Veeranjanyaswami, 126 IC 279 : AIR 1930 Mad. 298 [LNIND 1929 MAD 21] .
- 1881 Russell v Watts, (1883) 25 ChD 559 , p 576.
- 1882 Syed Ale Mossa Raza v Razia Begum, AIR 2003 AP 2 [LNIND 2002 AP 449] : (2004) 1 Andh LD 19 : (2003) 1 ALT 100 .

51. Improvements made by bona fide holders under defective titles.—

- 1883 Ramsden v Dyson, (1866) LR 1 HL 129, p 170.
- 1884 Forbes v Ralli, (1925) ILR 4 Pat 707 : 52 IA 178, p 187 : 87 IC 318 : AIR 1925 PC 146 ; Ahmad Yar Khan v Secretary of State for India, (1901) ILR 28 Cal 693 : 28 IA 211; Algarswami Kone v TJ Andhoni, (1961) 1 Mad LJ 158 : AIR 1961 Mad. 293 [LNIND 1960 MAD 116] .
- 1885 Ramsden v Dyson, (1866) LR 1 HL 129.
- 1886 Collector of Bombay v Bombay Municipal Corp, [1952] SCR 43 [LNIND 1951 SC 55] : AIR 1951 SC 469 [LNIND 1951 SC 55] : [1951] SCJ 752 [LNIND 1951 SC 55] .
- 1887 UOI v Indo-Afghan Agencies, [1968] 2 SCR 366 [LNIND 1967 SC 334] : AIR 1968 SC 718 [LNIND 1967 SC 334] : [1968] 2 SCA 31 .
- 1888 Abdul Razak v Nandlal, (1938) ILR Nag 506.
- 1889 Lala Beni Ram v Kundan Lall, (1899) ILR 21 All 496 : 26 IA 58.
- 1890 Madanappa (RS) v Chandramma, [1965] 3 SCR 283 [LNIND 1965 SC 71] : AIR 1965 SC 283. See also Ismail Khan Mahomed v Jaigun Bibi, (1900) ILR 27 Cal 570; Nundo Kumar v Banomali Gayan, (1902) ILR 29 Cal 871; Etizad Hussain v Bani Bahadur, 45 IC 242; Narasayya v Raja of Venkatagiri, (1914) ILR 37 Mad 1 : 7 IC 202; B Stocking v Tata Iron and Steel Co, (1917) 2 Pat LJR 600 : 41 IC 175; Syed Ali Kazemini v Manik Chandra, (1923) 27 Cal WN 969 : 80 IC 580 : AIR 1924 Cal 156; Shyam Kresto v Ganesh, 124 IC 634; Karan Singh v Budh Singh, AIR 1938 All 342 : (1938) All LJ 465 : 176 IC 135; Budsu Dubari Lal Mudi v Raneeganj Coal Association, (1943) ILR 22 Pat 554 and Subodh Chandra v Bhagwandas, (1946) 50 Cal WN 851 : AIR 1947 Cal 353; Venkata Swami v Muriappa Mudaliar, AIR 1950 Mad. 83.
- 1891 S Palanvelu v K Veradammal, AIR 1977 Mad. 342 [LNIND 1977 MAD 47] : (1978) 1 Mad LJ 212.
- 1892 Nundo Kumar v Banomali Gayan, (1902) ILR 29 Cal 871.
- 1893 Fuing Kai Sun v Chan Fui Hing, AIR 1951 Cal 489 [LNIND 1951 CAL 31] : (1951) 2 TLR 47 ; and see Ward v Kirkland, [1967] Ch 194 : [1966] 1 All ER 609 .
- 1894 Hopgood v Brown, [1955] 1 All ER 550 : (1955) 1 WLR 213 (CA).
- 1895 Perrot (JF) & Co Ltd v Cohen, [1951] 1 KB 705 : [1950] 2 All ER 939 (CA).
- 1896 Lala Beni Ram v Kundan Lall, (1899) ILR 21 All 496 : 26 IA 58, p 63.
- 1897 Dattatrya v Shridhar, (1893) ILR 17 Bom 736; Yeshwadabai v Ramchandra, (1894) ILR 18 Bom 66; Ramchandra v Vishnu, (1920) 22 Bom LR 948 [LNIND 1920 BOM 16] : 58 IC 323; Kunhammed v Narayanan, (1889) ILR 12 Mad 320; Mahalatchmi AmmalvPalani Chetti, (1871) 6 Mad HC 245.
- 1898 Durga Singh v Naurang, (1895) ILR 17 All 282.
- 1899 Yeshwadabai v Ramchandra, (1894) ILR 18 Bom 66.
- 1900 Naunihal v Rameshar, (1894) ILR 16 All 328.
- 1901 Brijgopal Lumani v Mothey Anja Ratna Rajkumar, AIR 2010 (NOC) 570 AP.

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(B\) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

During the [pendency]¹⁹⁰² in any Court having authority^{1903 1904}[[within the limits of India excluding the State of Jammu and Kashmir] or established beyond such limits] by [the Central Government]¹⁹⁰⁵[]¹⁹⁰⁶ of [any]¹⁹⁰⁷ suit or proceeding which is not collusive and in which any right of immovable property is directly and specifically in question, the property cannot be transferred or otherwise dealt with by any party to the suit or proceeding so as to affect the rights of any other party thereto under any decree or order which may be made therein, except under the authority of the court and on such terms as it may impose.

¹⁹⁰⁸[Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, the pendency of a suit or proceeding shall be deemed to commence from the date of the presentation of the plaint or the institution of the proceeding in a Court of competent jurisdiction, and to continue until the suit or proceeding has been disposed off by a final decree or order and complete satisfaction or discharge of such decree or order has been obtained, or has become unobtainable by reason of the expiration of any period of limitation prescribed for the execution thereof by any law for the time being in force.]

[s 52.1] Amendments

This section has been amended by the amending Act 20 of 1929.

[s 52.2] State Amendment: Gujarat and Maharashtra

Section 52 was amended in Bombay by Bombay Act 4 of 1939 to read as follows:

52. (1) During the pendency in any court having authority within the limits of India excluding the State of Jammu and Kashmir established beyond such limits by the Central Government, of any suit or proceeding which is not collusive and in which any right to immovable property is directly and specifically in question, if a notice of the pendency of such suit or proceeding is registered under section 18 of the Indian Registration Act, 1908, the property after the notice is so registered cannot be transferred or otherwise dealt with by any party to the suit or proceeding so as to affect the rights of any other party thereto under any decree or order which may be made therein, except under the authority of the court and on such terms as it may impose.

(2) Every notice of pendency of a suit or proceeding referred to in sub-section (1) shall contain the following

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

particulars, namely:—

- (a) the name and address of the owner of immovable property or other person whose right to the immovable property is in question;
- (b) the description of the immovable property the right to which is in question;
- (c) the Court in which the suit or proceeding is pending;
- (d) the nature and title of the suit or proceeding; and
- (e) the date on which the suit or proceeding was instituted.

Explanation: (As in the original Act.) This amendment was declared by Bombay Act 57 of 1959 to be in force in the whole of the then recognised State of Bombay and is, therefore, in force in the whole of the present State of Gujarat and Maharashtra. Under section 2 of the Bombay Act of 1939, however, the amended section only applies to immovable properties situated wholly or partly in Greater Bombay; but the State Government is empowered to extend its application to other areas by notification. A suit regarding immovable properties situated outside areas so notified is not, of course, affected by the amendment.¹⁹⁰⁹ In view of the amendment, the rule of lis pendens under section 52 of the Act will operate in the notified areas provided the lis is registered in the manner required by the local amendment.¹⁹¹⁰

The Bombay Amendment requiring publication of notice of lis pendens and also registration under the Registration Act is also applicable to state of Gujarat and therefore a transaction entered into after such amendment will require publication of notice of lis pendens and also registration under the Registration Act.¹⁹¹¹

[s 52.3] Lis Pendens

The section enacts the doctrine of lis pendens which is expressed in the maxim "ut lite pendente nihil innovetur."¹⁹¹² It imposes a prohibition on transfer or otherwise dealing of any property during the pendency of a suit, provided the conditions laid down in the section are satisfied.¹⁹¹³ The scope of the section is discussed in the undernoted cases.¹⁹¹⁴ The principle on which the doctrine rests is explained in the leading cases of Bellamy v Sabine,¹⁹¹⁵ where LJ Turner said:

It is, as I think, a doctrine common to the Courts both of Law and Equity, and rests, as I apprehend, upon this foundation—that it would plainly be impossible that any action or suit could be brought to a successful termination, if alienations pendente lite were permitted to prevail. The plaintiff would be liable in every case to be defeated by the defendant's alienating before the judgment or decree, and would be driven to commence his proceedings de novo, subject again to be defeated by the same course of proceeding.

The principle of "lis pendens" is in accordance with the equity, good conscience or justice because they rest upon an equitable and just foundation that it will be impossible to bring an action or suit to a successful termination if alienations are permitted to prevail. A transferee pendente lite is bound by the decree just as much as he was a party to the suit.¹⁹¹⁶ The litigating party is exempted from taking notice of title acquired during pendency of litigation. Where part of the land was acquired during the pendency of the litigation and the land formed the suit property vesting of the acquired land and taking its possession would not affect any right due to pendency of litigation. Land owners having right to receive compensation and the state would be bound by the final decree.¹⁹¹⁷ An alienation during the pendency of the suit would be subject to the decision of the suit.¹⁹¹⁸ The Supreme Court has held that transfer pendente lite is neither illegal nor void ab initio but remains subservient to right eventually determined by court in pending litigation. The decision of the court in a suit is binding not only on litigating parties but also on those who derive title pendente lite.¹⁹¹⁹ In a Calcutta case, J Mookerjee speaking of the application of the doctrine of suits for specific performance of contracts to transfer immovable property, said that if, when the jurisdiction of the court had once attached, it could be ousted by the transfer of the defendant's interest, there would be no end to litigation, and justice would be defeated.¹⁹²⁰ Delhi High Court held that the principle of section 52 applies even where the TP Act, 1882 does not apply, because the section is based on justice, equity and good conscience.¹⁹²¹ Similar is the view of the Gujarat High Court.¹⁹²² Where an interest larger than that possessed by the transferor is transferred during the pendency of litigation, the transfer is affected by the principle of lis pendens. The transferee would still be a representative-in-interest of the judgement debtor.¹⁹²³

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

Section 52 creates only a right to be enforced to avoid a transfer made pendente lite, because such transfers are not void, but voidable—and that too, at the option of the affected party to the proceedings, pending which, the transfer is effected. Ex hypothesi, the right accrues only to such parties, and in such circumstances as are expressly envisaged under section 52. One who claims the right must establish the same, before he can enforce it. It in essence forbids transferring rights in third party during the pendency of litigation. If any decree or order is passed in such proceedings any transfer of right during “inter regnum” shall be determined as non est in the eyes of law.¹⁹²⁴ The right contemplated under section 52, no doubt, can be used both as a sword and a shield, depending on such facts as to (i) what right or interest is transferred; (ii) who the affected party is; and (iii) how and, in what manner the “transfer” is likely to “affect” any party to the pending “proceeding”. It can be used as a shield in a subsequent of the same proceeding between the same parties. Any person who would like to use it as a sword must, however, first establish his right to do so when, in any subsequent proceedings, objection is taken to his claim to do so. Indeed, if the transfer was not avoided by any of the parties to the earlier proceeding likely to be affected by such transfer, the transferee is not prevented from claiming that the right to avoid the transfer was lost, and that nothing survived to be enforced.¹⁹²⁵ Story in his work titled Equity Jurisprudence says, in a passage that is frequently quoted by the courts in India, that the effect of the maxim is not to annul the conveyance, but only to render it subservient to the rights of the parties to the litigation.¹⁹²⁶ The section merely declares what was already law, for the doctrine was acted upon in many cases before the passing of the TP Act, 1882.¹⁹²⁷ Transferees pendente lite are not entitled to claim rights in the suit property by claiming to be bonafide purchaser for value without notice, because, there is an absolute bar to transfer of a suit property pendente lite by virtue of section 52. Merely because a person did not know of pendency of a suit, and therefore did not or could not seek to be impleaded, it cannot mean that the bar of section 52 will not operate. The transferee pendente lite cannot use the provision pertaining to filing objections under O XXI rule 97, rule 99 etc. of Code of Civil Procedure, against the judgment and decree.¹⁹²⁸

If the parties pray for a permission to transfer the proeprty pendente lite, the Court while granting permission may authorize transfer pending the suit upon such terms as it may deem just.¹⁹²⁹

[s 52.4] Notice how far Material—State Amendments

Lord Cranworth in Bellamy v Sabine explained that the doctrine did not rest on the ground of notice. His Lordship said:

It is scarcely correct to speak of lis pendens as affecting a purchaser through the doctrine of notice, though undoubtedly the language of the courts often so describes its operation. It affects him not because it amounts to notice, but because the law does not allow litigant parties to give to others, pending the litigation, rights to the property in dispute, so as to prejudice the opposite party.

These judgements were quoted and followed by the Privy Council in Faiyaz Husain Khan v Prag Narain,¹⁹³⁰ which is the leading case on the doctrine of lis pendens in India. The doctrine of lis pendens is intended to strike at attempts by parties to a litigation to circumvent the jurisdiction of a court in which the dispute on rights or interests in immovable property is pending, by private dealings that may remove the subject matter of litigation from the ambit of the power of the court to decide a pending dispute, or which may frustrate its decree.¹⁹³¹

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

The rule is, therefore, based not on the doctrine of notice, but on expediency, ie, the necessity for fine adjudication.¹⁹³² It is immaterial whether the alienee pendente lite had, or had not, notice of the pending proceeding.¹⁹³³ This is, of course, no longer the case in England, or in Gujarat and Maharashtra, where the doctrine only affects transactions pendente lite if the lis has been duly registered.¹⁹³⁴

The principle of lis pendens, embodied in section 52, being a principle of public policy, no question of good faith or bona fides arises.¹⁹³⁵ The defence of bona fide transferee for value without notice is not available.¹⁹³⁶ As section 52 forbids to transfer right in third party during pendency of litigation therefore the sale is illegal even if the purchaser pendente lite had no idea of status quo.¹⁹³⁷ Similarly where during the pendency of a suit for specific performance, the suit land was purchased, this transfer would be hit by rule of lis pendens and the question of good faith, essential for establishing any relief would be irrelevant.¹⁹³⁸ A transferee pendente lite cannot seek the protection of section 41 as he cannot be considered a bonafide transferee without notice.¹⁹³⁹ Similarly, where the property is sold during the pendency of the restraint order, the suit filed by the subsequent purchaser would be dismissed more so because all the parties belonged to the same village and he had notice of the pendency of the litigation.¹⁹⁴⁰

It has been held by the Supreme Court that a plea of lis pendens will be allowed to be raised even though the point is not taken in the pleadings or raised as an issue.¹⁹⁴¹ However, Madras High Court has held that the plea of lis pendens cannot be raised for the first time in second appeal in absence of any issue framed by the trial court and appellate court.¹⁹⁴²

[s 52.4.1] Registration

It need hardly be said that it makes no difference to the operation of the rule that the transfer is by registered deed while the suit is on an unregistered instrument.¹⁹⁴³

[s 52.5] Lis pendens between co-defendants

At the same time, the party whose rights are affected must be a party between whom and the party alienating, there is an issue for decision. As in res judicata, the rule of lis pendens will not apply between co-defendants, unless the relief claimed in the suit involves a decision between them.¹⁹⁴⁴ This is illustrated by the following case.¹⁹⁴⁵ The plaintiff sued for a declaration that he was not bound by his sale to A, nor by A's mortgage to B. In the suit, A and B made common cause against the plaintiff and a decree was passed affirming the sale, but declaring that the plaintiff had a lien for unpaid purchase money in priority to B's mortgage. During the pendency of the suit, the property was purchased in execution of a money decree against A. After the suit, B filed a suit, to enforce his mortgage and contended that the execution purchase was barred by lis pendens from disputing it. But the court held that the rule of lis pendens did not apply, as there was no issue between A and B.

[s 52.6] Compromise or Consent Decree

The fact that a suit results in a consent decree is no bar to the application of the doctrine of lis pendens.¹⁹⁴⁶ As was observed in a Calcutta case:¹⁹⁴⁷ unless a compromise is collusive, the very fact that there is a compromise shows that the suit was in its origin and nature contentious, otherwise there would be nothing to compromise.

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

However, if the compromise had not been fairly and honestly obtained, the suit which ended in the compromise will not operate as a lis pendens.¹⁹⁴⁸ If, however, the suit is withdrawn and a compromise is then recorded in a conveyance between the parties, such compromise would not be protected by the doctrine of lis pendens.¹⁹⁴⁹ It is hardly necessary to add that when a compromise includes matters which do not relate to the suit, the compromise would not be protected as to such extraneous matter. The broad principle underlying the section is to maintain the status quo unaffected by the act of any party to the litigation pending its determination and the expression—“decree or order” includes a decree or order made pursuant to the agreed terms of compromise. When a mortgage was effected by one of the parties during the pendency of a suit between the parties in which the claim to the property was the subject matter of the suit, it was held to be bad.¹⁹⁵⁰ In a partition suit, a compromise decree was passed. During the pendency of suit, a transfer by way of gift was made. The transferor who was the plaintiff in the suit had admitted the claim of contesting the opposite party regarding the share in property. It was held that the transferee could not claim any right. The fact that it was a compromise decree, did not matter. The transferee is as much bound by the decree, as when he was a party to the suit. He puts himself in “privity with the suit”, and cannot be treated as a stranger.¹⁹⁵¹

[s 52.7] Not Collusive

The substitution of the words “any suit or proceeding which is not collusive” for the words “a contentious suit or proceeding” does not import any change in the law. It only gives effect to the judgment of the Privy Council in Faiyaz Hussain Khan v Prag Narain,¹⁹⁵² and these are the very words used by Sir Lawrence Jenkins in Krishnappa v Shivappa.¹⁹⁵³ Thus, if during the pendency of a collusive maintenance suit by a Hindu wife against her husband, a person bona fide purchases the property of her husband, the charge subsequently created in favour of the wife on such property cannot be allowed to prevail against the purchaser’s superior rights.¹⁹⁵⁴ The doctrine, therefore, comes into operation from the very moment of the institution of a bona fide suit which is in no way collusive.¹⁹⁵⁵ Merely because the defendant in the suit admitted the plaintiff’s claim, it would not render the suit non-contentious within the meaning of the section, as it stood before the amendment.¹⁹⁵⁶

A collusive suit, it has been held by the Supreme Court,¹⁹⁵⁷ differs from a fraudulent suit. The court referred to the definition of “collusion” in Wharton’s Law Lexicon and observed:

In such a proceeding, the claim put forward is fictitious, the contest over it is unreal and the decree passed therein is a mere mask having the similitude of a judicial determination and worn by the parties with the object of confounding third parties. But when a proceeding is alleged to be fraudulent, what is meant is that the claim made therein is untrue, but that the claimant has managed to obtain the verdict of the court in his favour and against his opponent by practicing fraud on the court. Such a proceeding is started with a view to injure the opponent, and there can be no question of its having been initiated as the result of an understanding between the parties. While in collusive proceedings, the combat is a mere sham, in a fraudulent suit it is real and earnest.¹⁹⁵⁸

A suit may be collusive in its very inception, or a decree may be obtained by collusion in a suit which has honestly begun. Where the parties to a suit entered into an agreement for the express purpose of defeating the rights of a transferee and obtained a decree in terms of the agreement, the rule of lis pendens did not apply.¹⁹⁵⁹ Where a compromise decree passed in an appeal arising from a partition suit did not indicate shares allotted to each branch and it showed that in spite of knowledge that properties were alienated during the pendency of civil suit, the party praying for setting aside such alienation insisted for allotment of alienated portion in its favour and there was delay of four years in presentation of the said decree before trial court despite knowledge of fact that mutation of properties was effected in name of alienees, it was held that decree was obtained in collusion and hence, section 52 is not applicable.¹⁹⁶⁰ With reference to the word “contentious” in the old section, it has been suggested that the doctrine of lis pendens does not apply to friendly suits brought by agreement of parties to obtain a declaration by the court of their rights.¹⁹⁶¹ However, such suits are neither fraudulent, nor collusive, and there can be no doubt but that they fall within the scope of the section. A collusive proceeding is binding on the immediate parties, but not on their transferees.¹⁹⁶²

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

[s 52.8] Suits Decided Ex Parte

It is now settled law that, in the absence of fraud or collusion, the doctrine of lis pendens applies to a suit which is decided ex parte.¹⁹⁶³

[s 52.9] During the Pendency—Explanation

The section has now been simplified by the omission of the words “active prosecution,” and it applies to transfers during the entire “pendency” of the suit. The question then arises, for what period is the suit pending. There are many decisions on this point, but these have lost much of their importance, for the question is, to a great extent answered by the explanation now added by the amending Act 20 of 1929; and the rule laid down in the explanation has been applied as a rule of justice, equity and good conscience in Punjab, where the TP Act, 1882 is not in force.¹⁹⁶⁴ The explanation was added to affirm the correct view to be taken regarding the application of the rule of lis pendens.¹⁹⁶⁵

In applying the doctrine of lis pendens, the period for which the proceeding is considered to be pending would be deemed to continue till expiration of period of limitation prescribed for filing appeal.¹⁹⁶⁶ The suit would be deemed to be pending till the final disposal of the case and would not come to an end upon the disposal of the first appeal and a transfer of the suit property after the disposal of the first appeal would be hit by doctrine of lis pendens as the pendency would continue till the decree is satisfied.¹⁹⁶⁷

[s 52.10] Commencement of Suit

A suit is commenced by the filing of a plaint, and appeals and execution proceedings are a continuation of the suit. A miscellaneous proceeding commences with the presentation of a petition or application. Where an application to sue in forma pauperis is admitted, it relates back to the date of presentation of the application to the court,¹⁹⁶⁸ but not so if it is rejected.¹⁹⁶⁹ In decisions before the explanation was enacted, it had been held that when a plaint is presented in a higher court, and is returned for presentation to the court of the lowest grade competent to try it, the suit is pending from the time of the first presentation, for section 15 of the Civil Procedure Code 1908 is only a matter of form.¹⁹⁷⁰ Similarly, it had been held that an alienation effected in the interval between the presentation of a plaint to a lower court and its rejection and re-presentation before a court of higher grade competent to try it, is affected by lis pendens.¹⁹⁷¹ It is submitted that the later case is no longer good law after the amending Act of 1929, for the explanation clearly provides that a suit is deemed to commence from the date it is presented or instituted in a court of competent jurisdiction. Where there is inherent lack of jurisdiction in a court, any decree pronounced by it would be a nullity,¹⁹⁷² and alienation made pending such proceedings cannot, it is submitted, be affected by section 52. The position may well be different where the proceedings are instituted in a higher court, for the failure to institute them in the court of the lowest grade competent to try it, may be regarded as a mere irregularity. This view has been adopted in two cases decided after 1929.¹⁹⁷³

On the other hand, it has been held that if the plaint is insufficiently stamped and is rejected and is then re-presented after making good the deficiency, an alienation between the two dates of presentation would not be subjected to lis pendens.¹⁹⁷⁴ If however, the court does not return the plaint, but recovers the deficit fee, the principle of lis pendens would apply.¹⁹⁷⁵ If a suit is dismissed for default and then restored, the order of restoration relates back and a transfer after dismissal and before restoration is subjected to lis pendens.¹⁹⁷⁶ However, an amendment of the plaint will not relate back for the purpose of lis pendens.¹⁹⁷⁷ So also, if a suit is instituted into a wrong court which had no jurisdiction and was returned for presentation to the proper court, an alienation effected before its presentation to the proper court is not affected by lis pendens.¹⁹⁷⁸ In an Allahabad case,¹⁹⁷⁹ the suit was to cancel a deed of gift, but the plaint omitted reference to a particular property which the defendant sold before it was included in the suit by an amendment of the plaint. The court held that the sale

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

was not affected by the doctrine of lis pendens. Where, however, the property is transferred after an application has been made for amendment to include the property, but before the order for amendment has actually been made, the section will apply, for the order for amendment will relate back to the date of the application. This will be so even when the transfer is made by the heir of a deceased defendant before such heir has been brought on record.¹⁹⁸⁰

[s 52.11] Conclusion of Suit—Appeal and Execution

An appeal or execution proceeding is a continuation of the suit, and lis pendens continues during the appeal or execution.¹⁹⁸¹ The explanation to section 52 of the TP Act indicates that the pendency of a suit would encompass the stage after the final decree till complete satisfaction and discharge of such decree or order. It is, therefore, obvious that legislature for different contingencies had thought it fit to extend the scope and ambit of the terminology “suit” even for covering the execution proceedings with decree passed in such suits.¹⁹⁸² A lease from a decree holder will not bind his adversary if the decree is reversed on appeal.¹⁹⁸³ Even after the dismissal of a suit, a purchaser is subject to lis pendens, if an appeal is afterwards filed.¹⁹⁸⁴ There is a case from Bombay which seemed to hold that lis pendens terminated with the decree.¹⁹⁸⁵ With this exception, cases under the old section recognized that lis pendens may continue after the decree. A suit for sale on a mortgage is pending after the preliminary decree for sale,¹⁹⁸⁶ and until the security is realised for the satisfaction of the judgment creditor.¹⁹⁸⁷ A suit for foreclosure is pending until the decree is absolute for foreclosure.¹⁹⁸⁸ A suit to enforce a mortgage by sale continues after the decree nisi for sale or the preliminary decree for sale, and a purchaser,¹⁹⁸⁹ or a lessee;¹⁹⁹⁰ or a subsequent mortgagee;¹⁹⁹¹ after a preliminary decree for sale takes subject to the rights of the auction purchaser at the execution sale. A theatre was attached in execution of a decree against the owner. A lease of the theatre executed in favour of a company during the attachment, was held to be hit by the doctrine of lis pendens and also by section 64, Code of Civil Procedure 1908. In this case, the plaintiff was the holder of a mortgage decree in respect of the theatre as also the assignee of the money decree in execution of which the theatre was attached.¹⁹⁹² Similarly, where the property was attached following non redemption of an equitable mortgage, an alienation pending such attachment would be hit by lis pendens.¹⁹⁹³ A third person purchasing property from judgment debtor during pendency of proceedings cannot have a right to object execution in view of section 52.¹⁹⁹⁴ Legal representatives of original judgment debtor cannot raise objection for transfer of property to the auction purchaser by claiming tenancy right in such property specially when alleged lease created in favour of legal representative was subsequent to the passing of the decree.¹⁹⁹⁵

A single judge of the Punjab and Haryana High Court has held¹⁹⁹⁶ that an appeal by special leave under Article 136 of the Constitution being an “extra-ordinary” appeal, a transfer pending the grant of such leave would not be affected by lis pendens. This view was, however, reversed by the same high court in a later judgment.¹⁹⁹⁷

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A mortgaged property to B. B sued on the mortgage and obtained a decree nisi for foreclosure. Before the decree was made absolute, A sold the property to C. The decree for foreclosure was made absolute and it was held that C was not entitled to redeem. If he had purchased before the suit, he would have been entitled to redeem though not made a party. But as his purchase was pendente lite, he was bound by the decree.¹⁹⁹⁸

(2) A mortgaged property to B. B sued A on the mortgage and obtained a decree for sale. While this decree was in execution, A leased the property to C for 10 years. B brought the property to sale and purchased it himself. As C’s lease was affected by the rule of lis pendens, it was held that B was entitled to evict C.¹⁹⁹⁹

(3) A mortgaged property to B. B sued on his mortgage and obtained a preliminary decree for sale. A then made a usufructuary mortgage of the same property in favour of C. B obtained a final decree for sale and in execution, the property was sold and purchased by D. C’s usufructuary mortgage was invalid as against D under the rule of lis pendens. D was entitled to recover possession from C and to recover also all rents collected by C from the date of D’s purchase.²⁰⁰⁰

(4) A, as executor of the deceased owner mortgaged an entire taluk to B. Afterwards C, an co-sharer of one-fourth in the taluk mortgaged his one fourth share to D. B filed a suit on his mortgage but did not implead D. During the pendency of B’s suit, E purchased one-sixth share from one of the co-sharers. B obtained final decree for sale in his suit and purchased the property in the court sale, and transferred his interest to E. D then filed his suit on his mortgage and obtained a final decree for sale and purchased the mortgaged property, ie, one-fourth share himself at a court sale. D then filed a suit against B and E for redeeming B's mortgage of the whole taluk. Held that as between B and D, D was entitled to redeem the whole taluk and not merely the one-fourth share, because not having been impleaded as a defendant in B's suit, his right of redemption remained intact. Held further that, E having purchased one-sixth share during the pendency of B's suit, as between B and E, E's right was subject to B's rights as purchaser in the court sale in execution of the final decree in B's suit but as between D who was not a party to B's suit and there was no question of lis pendens and E's right to redeem remained intact and E having stepped into B's right, D could only be entitled to redeem five-sixth of the taluk.²⁰⁰¹

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

A purchaser from a defendant, who is being sued for possession and against whom a decree for possession and mesne profits is made, takes subject to the decree, and the decree for mesne profits may be executed against him as from the date on which he enters into possession.²⁰⁰² Where, however, the decree for mesne profits does not create a charge on the properties transferred, it is a mere money decree, and cannot affect the transfer.²⁰⁰³

The explanation enacts what had already been decided, namely, that the doctrine of lis pendens applies not only during the pendency of the suit, but also of the appeal which finally disposes off the suit; and if the decree is executory, until satisfaction of the decree by execution or until further execution is barred by limitation.²⁰⁰⁴

[s 52.12] Application for Review or Revision

The explanation would appear to exclude applications for review or revision. An alienation in the interval between a final decree and an application for review or revision would not, it seems, be subject to the rule of lis pendens. However, an alienation while such an application was pending would no doubt be subject to the order made thereon. There is one case on the point, but it is a curious case, for although the application for review was successful, and a money decree was altered into a mortgage decree, yet the court refused to apply the principle of the section as there had been a delay in applying for a review.²⁰⁰⁵

[s 52.13] Writ Petition

Any action taken during the pendency of writ petition shall be hit by the principle of lis pendens.²⁰⁰⁶ It has been held that a proceeding instituted under Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution which is not collusive and in which only a right to immovable property is directly and specifically in question, will be a proceeding attracting section 52 of the TP Act, 1882, and as such the property concerned cannot be transferred or otherwise dealt with by any party to the proceeding so as to affect the rights of any other party thereto under an order which may be passed therein, except under the authority of the high court, and on such terms as it may impose.²⁰⁰⁷

[s 52.14] Meaning of Proceeding

A proceeding before a settlement officer is not a proceeding which can operate as a lis pendens under this section.²⁰⁰⁸ However, a Registrar of Co-operative Societies is a court, and a proceeding under rule 14 of the Co-operative Societies Act, 1912 operates as a lis pendens.²⁰⁰⁹ The principle of the section has been applied to revenue proceedings by the Orissa High Court.²⁰¹⁰ However, the Madhya Pradesh High Court has held that since the restitution proceedings which were filed before the revenue court for restoration of possession were not in the nature of suit and the restitution application was neither the continuation of the suit, nor an application for execution of any decree and is only a summary proceeding, sale during the pendency of such proceeding is not affected by the doctrine of lis pendens.²⁰¹¹

[s 52.15] Any Party

These words are not merely descriptive, but refer to the time when the transaction takes place. A puisne mortgagee who is not joined as a party in a prior mortgagee's suit is not a party and an assignment by him during the suit is not affected by lis pendens although the assignee is subsequently joined in the suit.²⁰¹² A transferee pendente lite is a representative in interest of the transferor who is a party to the suit and is also a person bound by the decree, even though he was not made a party to the suit.²⁰¹³ No person who has entered into possession through the party obtaining an ex-parte decree or order can resist or obstruct restitution on the ground that he is a bona fide transferee without notice.²⁰¹⁴

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

During the pendency of the suit for sale filed by a mortgagee, three of the defendant mortgagees were declared insolvents, and their share vested in the official receiver. A decree was passed in the suit without impleading the official receiver. It was held that a sale by the official receiver was not bad on the ground of lis pendens.²⁰¹⁵

A party to a suit whose name is struck off as a party by consent is not bound by the decree, actually or constructively, and is not, therefore, affected by the doctrine of lis pendens.²⁰¹⁶

The plea of lis pendens cannot, however, be availed of by the person who himself transfers the property pendente lite.²⁰¹⁷ The same principle has been applied to involuntary sales, where the interest of the plaintiff in the suit property was sold in execution of a money decree, and purchased by the defendant.²⁰¹⁸

[s 52.16] Any Other Party

ILLUSTRATION

A brought a suit against B as a legal representative of the deceased C and obtained a decree. Subsequently, D who was another legal representative of C, filed a suit for a declaration that the decree passed against B was not binding on the property of C. During the pendency of that suit, the property was sold in execution of the decree in the first suit. It was held that section 52 had no application as D was not any other party, but a legal representative of C.²⁰¹⁹

It may be true that a decree for injunction compels personal obedience, and in appropriate cases would not be enforced against the legal representatives. However, this proposition must have a qualification, and the qualification is that when the injunction relates to doing or not doing something in a property that was the subject matter of the earlier suit, and the act of complaint was on the basis of ownership of an adjacent property or a right claim in the property of the other side, then such a decree for injunction would be binding not only against the judgment debtor personally, but against all those who claim through him.²⁰²⁰ A transferee of a transferee from the judgment debtor is also bound by the principle of lis pendens since at best, he can step into the shoes of his vendor.²⁰²¹

Call it the principle of lis pendens or call it by any other name, the policy of our law is that normally an assignee or a legal representative is bound by the decree obtained by the assignor or the predecessor in interest. This is the policy underlying our procedure, and is recognised by section 146; O XXI, rule 16 and the explanation to that rule; section 11 and section 50 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908; and section 52 of the TP Act, 1882.²⁰²² Even without impleading the assignee pendente lite, the suit could proceed with his vendor on record. The decree in the suit will bind the assignee pendente lite as well.²⁰²³

However, the Apex court in Bengal Ambuja Housing Development Ltd v Pramila Sanfui,²⁰²⁴ held that temporary injunction can be granted against only the parties to the suit property, and therefore the sale of the suit property by not the parties to the suit but their heirs is not hit by section 52 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882.

[s 52.17] Affect the Rights

The purchaser pendente lite is bound by the result of the litigation.²⁰²⁵ If the other party has assented to the transfer, he cannot afterwards object to it on the ground of lis pendens.²⁰²⁶ In an Allahabad case,²⁰²⁷ A sued to recover possession of an immovable property from B. While this suit was pending, A mortgaged the property to C. The suit for possession ended in a compromise, by which half the property was allotted to A and the other half to B, and one of the terms of the compromise was that B should discharge the mortgage. C then sued to enforce his mortgagee's half share and was of course liable; but as the mortgage was executed pendente lite, the half share of B was not liable. If B had assented to the mortgage, his share would have been liable. But his agreement to discharge the mortgage was subsequent to the mortgage and created a personal liability, not to C, but to A. C could recover on the personal liability against A and then A could sue B for an indemnity.

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

A compromise of a dispute as to the transfer of an equity of redemption, after a redemption suit had been filed, was held not to affect the rights of the mortgagee, as both the transferor and the transferee were parties to the redemption suit.²⁰²⁸ A compromise of a partition suit by which a father surrenders his interest to his minor sons and appoints trustees to manage the property for their benefit and to pay the family debt, is not within the scope of this section.²⁰²⁹

In a Madras case,²⁰³⁰ a creditor sold property of a deceased debtor in execution of a decree against the widow as his legal representative. The sale was held pending by a legatee in which his right to represent the deceased debtor was established. The court held that as the widow was also a legal representative of the deceased and as the legatee claimed the property as representing the deceased, his rights were not affected. This is true, but the legatee's suit was to establish a personal right, and could not operate as a lis pendens. The section expressly provides for all cases of decrees in a suit relating to immovable property, whether they involve a mortgage or a charge or recovery of possession. It makes no exception in favour of a bona fide transferee for value without notice.²⁰³¹ The principle is of public policy, and no question of good faith arises.²⁰³² An estoppel under section 41 cannot override the provisions of section 52.²⁰³³

Section 52 is, of course, not attracted where a transfer is in pursuance of a document, and the decree is subject to the said document, as such a transfer does not affect the rights of any person under the decree.²⁰³⁴

Section 52, does not make the transaction void. It merely makes any right created by it inoperative against the party to the suit.²⁰³⁵ The doctrine of lis pendens does not prohibit a transfer; it however mandates the transferee will be bound by decree that may be passed against his transferor. Thus a purchaser pendente lite cannot question the legality of decree and propriety of the court in passing such a decree.²⁰³⁶ The transfer is good and operative as between the parties thereto except to the extent that it might conflict with rights decreed under the decree or order.²⁰³⁷ The apex court has held that the effect of section 52 is not to wipe out the transfer altogether but to subordinate it to the rights based on the decree in the suit. As between the parties to the transaction, however, it was perfectly valid and operated to vest the title of the transferor in the transferees.²⁰³⁸

The purpose of section 52 is not to defeat any just and equitable claim, but only to subject them to the authority of the court which is dealing with the property to which claims are put forward.²⁰³⁹

The Supreme Court repelling the contention that purchase pendente lite was void and conferred no title, has held that the words "so as to affect the rights of any other party thereto under any decree or order which may be made therein", make it clear that the transfer is good except to the extent that it might conflict with rights decreed under the decree or order. The effect of section 52 is not to wipe such sale out altogether, but to subordinate it to the rights based on the decree in the suit. It is in this view that transfers pendente lite have been held to be valid and operative as between the parties thereto.²⁰⁴⁰ It appears that the decision of the Supreme Court in Nagubai's case was not noticed by a Full Bench of the Kerala High Court²⁰⁴¹ when it held that the transfer of a suit property pendente lite was void as against the decree holder. The Orissa High Court has disagreed with this view expressed by the Full Bench of the Kerala High Court holding that a transferee pendente lite to the extent he has acquired interest from the defendant is vitally interested in the litigation and though the plaintiff is under no obligation to implead him, the court has discretion in the matter and an alienee would ordinarily be joined as a party to enable him to protect his interests.²⁰⁴²

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

[s 52.18] Transfer before Suit

A transfer, including a mortgage,²⁰⁴³ before the suit is not subject to lis pendens.²⁰⁴⁴ In Umesh Chunder v Zahoor Fatima,²⁰⁴⁵ property was sold in execution of a decree of a prior mortgagee. The plaintiff claimed under puisne mortgages, executed, some before, and some after, the prior mortgagee's suit. He had not been made a party and sued to redeem the prior mortgagee. The Privy Council held that the right to redeem could be exercised only by virtue of the puisne mortgages executed before the suit. As to the puisne mortgages executed during the pendency of the suit, their Lordships said:

But if the transfer took place pendente lite, the transferee must take his interest subject to the incidents of the suit; and one of those is that a purchaser under the decree will get a good title against all persons whom the suit binds.

A deed of sale executed before the institution of a suit for specific performance of a prior contract for sale of the same property registered thereafter,²⁰⁴⁶ an agreement to sell executed in favour of a third party prior to filing of suit for specific performance of an oral agreement to sell,²⁰⁴⁷ or a transfer by a person before he is made a party is not affected by the rule of lis pendens.²⁰⁴⁸ In Nirmal Kumar Neogi v Samar Ghosh,²⁰⁴⁹ the suit property included primarily 1/3rd share of A. B and C, created a trust of their 2/3rd share in the property. As this property was transferred prior to the institution of the suit, it was held that such transfer would not be invalidated being transfer pendente lite as the sale deed was executed without affecting the 1/3rd share of the plaintiff which was the subject matter of litigation. But a transfer by a person who is the legal representative of a deceased defendant in a pending suit made prior to his being substituted in the place of the deceased defendant is hit by the doctrine.²⁰⁵⁰ The transfer to which the provisions of this section apply is the creation of the mortgage itself, and not the subsequent sale in execution.²⁰⁵¹

ILLUSTRATION

A makes a gift of land to B. C sues A for possession of the land. While this suit is pending, B transfers the land to D. A dies and C obtains a decree for possession against B as legal representative of A. Is D's title affected by the rule of lis pendens so as to be subject of C's decree? No, because (1) A's gift was before the suit; and (2) B was not a party to the suit at the time of the transfer by B to D.²⁰⁵²

The onus of proving that the suit had been filed when the transfer took place is on the person invoking this section;²⁰⁵³ where the suit was filed on the very day the transfer took place, it must be shown that the plaint was filed earlier for there is no presumption that the plaint must have been filed during the earliest part of the day.²⁰⁵⁴

Where a mortgage deed was existing prior to the suit, but sale deeds were drawn during the pendency of the suit, it was held that the mortgage would merge with the sale of suit land, and the transfer is not prior to the suit.²⁰⁵⁵

[s 52.18.1] Subsequent registration

It matters not that the deed was registered after the suit, if the deed was executed before the filing of the suit.²⁰⁵⁶ This is because under section 47 of the Registration Act, 1908, deed operates from date of execution, and not from date of registration.

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

[s 52.19] Right before Suit

When the rule is applied to a transfer pendente lite, it will not affect a right existing before the suit. If a puisne mortgagee sues for sale on his mortgage, the property will be sold subject to the rights of the prior mortgagee.²⁰⁵⁷ A sale in pursuance of a decree on a mortgage executed before the suit is not affected by lis pendens.²⁰⁵⁸

ILLUSTRATION

A mortgages property first to B, and then to C. C sues A on his mortgage and pending the suit A sells the property to B. The sale having been made pendente lite, is subject to the decree in C's suit. But A's right under his prior mortgage is not affected.²⁰⁵⁹

A release by the vendee (during a suit for pre-emption) is affected by the rule of lis pendens, even though the sale be to the original vendor,²⁰⁶⁰ but if the purchaser has a superior right of pre-emption, that right will not be affected.²⁰⁶¹ It had been held by the Allahabad High Court²⁰⁶² that where the purchaser has an equal right of pre-emption, the proper procedure is to divide the property equally. The Lahore High Court had, however, held that the doctrine of lis pendens does not hit a purchase where the purchaser has an equal right of pre-emption;²⁰⁶³ and this view has been approved by the Supreme Court in *Bishan Singh v Khazan Singh*²⁰⁶⁴ as such a sale is a transfer in recognition of a pre-existing and subsisting right; the position would, of course, be different if the pre-existing right had become unenforceable by reason of its being time-barred for in such a case the transfer, though ostensibly made in recognition of such a right, in fact created a new right pendente lite.²⁰⁶⁵

A mortgagee who has an express power of sale within the intervention of the court does not lose his remedy on the mortgagor filing a suit for redemption.²⁰⁶⁶

A mere agreement to sell is not sufficient to defeat the suit for another pre-emptor, and a sale executed after the institution of such a suit is bad on the ground of lis pendens.²⁰⁶⁷ Such an agreement does not defeat lis pendens; the observations of the Supreme Court in *Bishan Singh v Khazan Singh*²⁰⁶⁸ to pre-existing rights must be confined to rights of pre-emption.²⁰⁶⁹

[s 52.20] Attachment before Suit

In Anundo Moyee v Dhonendro Chunder,²⁰⁷⁰ the defendant purchased property in execution of a money decree against the mortgagor while a suit for foreclosure was pending, but the Privy Council held that as the property had been attached in execution proceedings before the execution of the mortgage, the defendant held by title paramount, and was not affected by lis pendens. In this case, however, the property was in the mofussil and the decree was a decree for sale made by the Supreme Court at Calcutta in its equity jurisdiction, and as equity acts in personam the decree was in substance a decree that the parties should concur in conveying and selling the property to the purchaser. The court had no jurisdiction over the property and, therefore, the suit could not operate as a lis pendens. Otherwise the principle of *Motilal v Karabuldin*²⁰⁷¹ would have applied, for in that case it was held that an attachment before suit does not prevent the operation of the doctrine of lis pendens.

[s 52.21] Transfer after Suit

A transfer after the dismissal of suit would not be hit by the rule of lis pendens. In Amrit Lal Jalan v Haryana Urban Development Authority,²⁰⁷² the appellant's allotment was cancelled, and plot was resumed by the authority on 26 October 1984. The appeal was dismissed on 19 April 1985. Plot was, thereafter, allotted to a third party on 29 January 1986. In the above facts, it was held that the doctrine of lis pendens has no application.

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

[s 52.22] Section 52 Excludes section 41

A purchaser pendente lite who makes improvements cannot, it is submitted, claim the benefit of section 52. The point was raised but not decided in *Motichand v British India Corp.*²⁰⁷³ It was specifically held in a Punjab case that the alienee who is hit by section 52 cannot claim compensation for improvements made by him.²⁰⁷⁴

[s 52.23] Indian Court

A suit in a foreign court cannot operate as a lis pendens.²⁰⁷⁵ Similarly, the section cannot apply to properties situated outside India.²⁰⁷⁶ The section also does not apply, unless the suit is pending in a court exercising jurisdiction in India (excluding Jammu & Kashmir) or a court established outside India under the Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1947. The Privy Council is not a foreign court for it exercised jurisdiction in British India.²⁰⁷⁷ The court must also be a court having jurisdiction, ie, competency to try the suit.²⁰⁷⁸ A High Court is empowered under the Letters Patent to try a suit for land in the mofussil if part of the land is within the local limits of its jurisdiction and leave of the court has been obtained. In such a case, a mortgage suit for land partly situated in the mofussil and filed in the high court will operate as a lis pendens.²⁰⁷⁹ But a suit on a mortgage of land in the mofussil tried in the Supreme Court of Calcutta in its equity jurisdiction, did not constitute a lis pendens, as the court had no jurisdiction over the land and its decree was in personam, and did not affect title to immovable property.²⁰⁸⁰ Similarly, when a Hindu widow gave a lease of land in the mofussil while an equity suit against her husband's executor was pending in the Supreme Court at Calcutta, the lease was not affected by the doctrine of lis pendens as the Supreme Court had no jurisdiction over land in the mofussil.²⁰⁸¹ If the court had jurisdiction, it matters not that under section 15 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908, the suit should have been filed in a court of lower grade.²⁰⁸²

[s 52.24] Movables

The doctrine of lis pendens does not apply to movables.²⁰⁸³ If ornaments are pledged pending a suit for their recovery, the pledge does not take subject to the decree.²⁰⁸⁴ The provisions of this section cannot apply to standing timber which is not immovable property.²⁰⁸⁵

[s 52.25] The right to Immovable Property must be Directly and Specifically in Question

It is of the essence of the rule of lis pendens that a right to immovable property is directly and specifically in question in the suit.²⁰⁸⁶ Therefore, when the dispute for money, where no property is in dispute, is referred to arbitration and an award is made creating a charge for payment of the amount and a judgment is passed on such an award, the doctrine of lis pendens does not apply.²⁰⁸⁷ Not only must the right to immovable property be directly and specifically in question in the suit, but the description of the property in the pleading must be sufficient to identify the property.²⁰⁸⁸ On the other hand, it is not sufficient to specify the property if the right to it is not directly in issue. Thus, when a Hindu widow sued her stepson for maintenance, and merely specified the item of property in his possession, it was held that the suit did not operate as lis pendens.²⁰⁸⁹ Where the widow not only specified the property, but claimed that her maintenance should be charged upon it, it was held that the suit did operate as lis pendens.²⁰⁹⁰ Though a charge under section 100 of the TP Act, 1882 does not involve transfer of an interest to immovable property, it creates a right to immovable property for the purpose of executing the decree and a charge within the meaning of section 100, would attract the provisions of section 52.²⁰⁹¹

The doctrine is not applicable in favour of a third party. Where the only point which arises for decision in the suit was whether a deed of settlement was true or false, it cannot be said that any right to immovable property was in question, and, therefore, section 52 cannot apply. Nor can it be invoked by a party who was not a party to the suit.²⁰⁹² A suit for a declaration of a charge upon specific immovable property falls within the purview of this section.²⁰⁹³

The property transferred or dealt with must be property actually in litigation.²⁰⁹⁴ Thus, if A files a suit against B

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

to establish a right of pre-emption in respect of a purchase by B of property X, and B during the pendency of the suit acquires property Y by gift from another co-sharer, and so himself becomes a co-sharer not liable to be pre-empted, no question of lis pendens can arise, for the property in suit has not been transferred.²⁰⁹⁵

[s 52.25.1] (i) Suit in which no right to immovable property is in question

Suits in which no right to immovable property is in question are outside the scope of the section. Such suits are suits for debt or damages where the claim is limited to a money demand,²⁰⁹⁶ or a suit for the recovery of specific movables;²⁰⁹⁷ or a suit for an account;²⁰⁹⁸ or a suit for rent of an agricultural holding;²⁰⁹⁹ or an application for a personal decree under O XXXIV, rule 6 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908, when the net sale proceeds are insufficient to satisfy the mortgage decree.²¹⁰⁰ A transfer of immovable property during a suit for debt or damages may, however, be attacked under section 53 as a fraud on creditors. A sues B for debt. During the pendency of the suit B makes a gift of his immovable property to C in order to put it out of the reach of A and other creditors. The transfer by gift is not subject to lis pendens, but it may be attacked as a fraud on creditors under section 53.

[s 52.25.2] (ii) Suit for maintenance

A suit by a Hindu wife for maintenance against her husband is ordinarily a personal suit, and any purchaser of the family property during the pendency of the suit is not affected by the rule of lis pendens.²¹⁰¹ But the doctrine of lis pendens does apply to a suit for maintenance by a Hindu widow in which either a charge is claimed on specific immovable property²¹⁰² or she claims to have her maintenance made a charge on specific immovable property and a decree is passed creating a charge on such property, for in such a case, a right to immovable property is directly and specifically in question.²¹⁰³ The property would, of course, be different where no charge is claimed in the plaint at all.²¹⁰⁴ When a decree creating a charge for maintenance remains unsatisfied, the purchaser of the property charged is bound by lis pendens.²¹⁰⁵

[s 52.25.3] (iii) Creditor's suit against heirs

A creditor's suit against an heir in his representative capacity to recover a debt out of the assets of a deceased debtor does not create a charge so as to affect with lis pendens a mortgage of the heir.²¹⁰⁶ A transfer pending a suit by a Mahomedan woman for dower claiming a charge on her husband's property generally is not affected by lis pendens.²¹⁰⁷ This is because the specific property transferred is not in suit. However, a transfer by an heir pending an administration suit by a Mahomedan widow to recover her dower debt out of immovable property left by her husband and her share in his estate is affected by lis pendens, if a decree is passed in the suit creating a charge on the property for payment of the dower.²¹⁰⁸

[s 52.25.4] (iv) Administration suit

A suit for the administration of the estate of a deceased person may be brought by a creditor, or an heir, or a residuary legatee under the will of the deceased. The suit again may be brought against an heir in possession of the estate or against the executor or administrator of the estate of the deceased. The general rule as regards administration suits was thus stated by the Privy Council in Cutterput Singh v Maharaj Bahadoor.²¹⁰⁹

When the estate of a deceased person is under administration by the court or out of court, a purchaser from a residuary legatee or heir buys subject to any disposition which had been or may be made of the deceased's estate in due course of the administration. In fact, the right of the residuary legatee or heir is only to share in the ultimate residue which may remain for final distribution after the liabilities of the estate, including the expenses of administration, have been satisfied.

The above passage was quoted by the High Court of Calcutta²¹¹⁰ in an administration suit by a creditor against the heirs of the deceased, of which the facts are stated in illust (1) below.

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

As to administration suits against an executor or administrator, the rule followed by the High Court of Rangoon²¹¹¹ was as follows:

Where a creditor or one of the next-of-kin institutes an administration action against an executor or administrator, the mere institution of the action or obtaining of mere administration decree does not ordinarily deprive the executor or administrator of the general power to dispose off assets, unless and until the plaintiff has obtained an order appointing a receiver of the estate or at least an injunction restraining the executor or administrator from exercising the powers vested in the executor or administrator.

A transfer, therefore, by an executor or an administrator pending the suit, had been held not to be subject to the rule of lis pendens. If the case is governed by section 307 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, the administrator may not transfer any immovable property without the previous permission of the court by which the letters of administration were granted; a transfer without such permission is voidable under the same section at the instance of any other person interested in the property.²¹¹² Chutterput Singh v Maharaj Bahadoor, mentioned above, was applied by the Judicial Committee in a later case.²¹¹³ The suit in that case was to ascertain and administer the trust under a deed. A decree was passed in the suit declaring one of the parties as entitled to a one-sixth share in the surplus income, and that the trustees should have their costs out of the trust property. The beneficiary thereupon mortgaged his share. Under a later order in the suit, part of the property was sold to realise the trustees' costs. It was held that the mortgagee's rights were subject to the sale, and the mortgage was consequently not an encumbrance upon the title of the purchaser. In delivering the judgment of the Board, Viscount Sumner said:

The principle laid down in Chutterput Singh v Maharaj Bahadoor applies equally to the suit now in question as to the case of a suit for the administration of the estate of a deceased person, which was the matter then before their Lordships.

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A lends money to B on a pledge of jewels. B dies intestate leaving three sons. A sues the sons for repayment of the loan, for sale of the jewels, and, if necessary, for administration of B's estate. In April 1919, a decree is passed for sale of the jewels with liberty to apply for an administration order in case there is a deficit on the sale. The jewels are sold and there is a deficit. A applies for an administration order. On 2 July 1920, a preliminary decree is made for the administration of the estate. During the pendency of the suit, some of the properties forming part of B's estate are mortgaged by his sons. The mortgages subsequent to 2 July 1920 are subject to lis pendens. The mortgages before that date are not subject to lis pendens. As to these mortgages, the court said that a transfer of property could not be subject to the rule of lis pendens, unless the specific property was mentioned in the pleadings and the right to such property was directly and specifically in question, and that these conditions were not present in the case. The court also observed that it could not be said merely because there was a general prayer, that if it became necessary an order for administration should be made that there was a right to immovable property directly and specifically in question in the suit.²¹¹⁴

(2) A, an heir of the intestate, filed a general administration suit against another heir in possession of the estate, and the court made a preliminary decree for the administration of the estate. So far there was no lis pendens. But in the course of proceedings before the Commissioner, a plot of land in the possession of B was claimed as a part of the estate and the Commissioner reported in favour of the claim. After the report, B sold the land. The sale was subject to lis pendens as the Commissioner's report put the right to the land specifically in question.²¹¹⁵

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

[s 52.25.5] (v) Suit for cancellation of the deed of trust

A suit for the cancellation of a deed of trust and for reconveyance of the immovable property specified in the deed is within the rule of lis pendens,²¹¹⁶ but a suit in which the only question was whether a deed of settlement was true or false, is not a suit within the rule.²¹¹⁷

[s 52.25.6] (vi) Suit for specific performance

The rule of lis pendens is applicable to suits for specific performance of contracts to transfer immovable property.²¹¹⁸ Section 52 of the TP Act, 1882 is not subject to section 19(b) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963, which provides that specific performance of contract cannot be enforced against the transferee for value, who has paid his money in good faith, without notice of the original contract. The subsequent transferee, even though he may have obtained the transfer without notice of the original contract, cannot set up, against the agreement holder any right defeating the rule of lis pendens, which is founded upon public policy.²¹¹⁹

ILLUSTRATION

A was in possession of land as tenant of B. But B on 8 February 1907, agreed to grant a permanent lease of the same land to C. C sued for specific performance of the agreement of lease, and while this suit was pending against him, B sold the land to A. The suit was decreed and C's title as permanent lessee related back to 8 February 1907. The sale to A was subject to C's decree, and C as assignee of the reversion was entitled to recover rent from A from that date.²¹²⁰

[s 52.25.7] (vii) Suit on mortgage

The rule applies to suits on mortgages;²¹²¹ but a suit which is based on a mortgage and in which a money decree is given, is not as long as the decree stands unreversed, a suit in which a right to immovable property is directly and specifically in question.²¹²² A lessee from a mortgagor during the pendency of a suit to enforce the mortgage is not entitled to resist the claim for possession of the auction purchaser at the sale in execution of the decree on the mortgage.²¹²³ He can, however, apply to be joined as a party to the suit, and ask for an opportunity to redeem the property; if he does not, he cannot resist the claim of the auction-purchaser.²¹²⁴ However, where the Agra Tenancy Act, 1926 applies, he can only be evicted under the provisions of that Act.²¹²⁵ As the rule of lis pendens prevents a mortgagor from creating any lease during the pendency of mortgaged suit so as to effect the right of a mortgagee or the purchaser and a mortgagee, who has purchased a mortgaged property in execution of his mortgage decree is entitled to avoid a transfer on the ground that it was mortgaged by the mortgagor during the pendency of a mortgage suit.²¹²⁶ A payment of rent by a lessee to a mortgagor on a lease granted pending the mortgagee's suit to enforce the mortgage is not binding on the mortgagee.²¹²⁷ A puisne mortgagee who purchases the equity of redemption during the pendency of foreclosure proceedings by a prior mortgagee is affected by lis pendens. If he does not redeem the prior mortgagee, the foreclosure decree may be executed against him.²¹²⁸ In a case before the TP Act, 1882, an application to file an award directing the sale of mortgaged property was held to operate as a lis pendens.²¹²⁹ Where the land was mortgaged by deposit of title deeds, and was sold during the pendency of the litigation, ie, a suit for foreclosure, the same would be hit by doctrine of lis pendens.²¹³⁰

A suit to enforce contribution to a mortgage debt under section 82 of TP Act, 1882 constitutes a lis pendens and the purchaser of the property pending the suit will be subject to the right of contribution decreed against it.²¹³¹

[s 52.25.8] (viii) Suit for partition

A partition suit operates as *lis pendens*²¹³² with the result that the purchaser of an undivided share pending the suit takes only that property which is allotted on partition to his vendor.²¹³³ Since a partition suit between coparceners raises a direct and specific question in immovable property, therefore creation of tenancy during pendency of a partition suit would be hit by the rule of lis pendens.²¹³⁴ A contrary decision in Calcutta, proceeds on an erroneous view of the word "contentious".²¹³⁵ In that case, two defendants granted a lease for seven years of one of the properties pending a suit for partition and the plaintiff to whom the property was allotted by the decree was held to be bound by the lease. This was erroneous and contrary to the principle that any dealing with the property during the pendency of the suit should be without prejudice to the rights of the parties. In a later case, the Calcutta High Court held that if co-sharers mortgage their interests pending a partition suit, the mortgage is subject to, and the purchaser at the sale under the mortgage will be bound by all the proceedings in the partition suit.²¹³⁶ Again, in another case,²¹³⁷ the same high court applied the rule of lis pendens to a partition suit. A member of an undivided Hindu family consisting of six sons and a mother governed by the Bengal school, sued for partition. One of the sons sold his share to a stranger during the pendency of the suit. On partition, the mother's inchoate right to a share ripened into an absolute right and the vendee was, therefore, entitled only to a seventh share. The mother's right accrues only when the property is partitioned. Therefore, when a mortgagee obtained a preliminary decree for sale before the partition suit was filed, and then purchased the property, the purchase was of the interest of all the parties and the mother could not claim a share, for no partition had been effected.²¹³⁸

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

The Supreme Court has held that execution of batai patra during the pendency of suit for partition would not confer any rights as it is hit by the principles of lis pendens.²¹³⁹ Private sale of family property by a karta, pending a suit for partition instituted by a member, is hit by section 52 and does not bind the family.²¹⁴⁰ When A mortgages property pending a partition suit between him and B, the mortgage was effective as to the share allotted to A, but void as to the share allotted to B.²¹⁴¹

[s 52.25.9] (ix) Suit for pre-emption

A suit for pre-emption involves a right to specific immovable property and is, therefore, within the section.²¹⁴² No dealing with the property after a pre-emption suit has been filed can affect the rights of the plaintiff.²¹⁴³

ILLUSTRATION

A sells land to B in respect of which C has a right of pre-emption. C files a suit to pre-empt the land, against A and B. A week after the institution of the suit, B re-sells the land to A, and files a written statement that C has no cause of action. The re-sale was pendente lite and could not affect C's rights. C's suit was decreed.²¹⁴⁴

The customary right of pre-emption, according to the decisions of the Allahabad High Court,²¹⁴⁵ must subsist upto the date of the decree, and this rule received statutory recognition in section 19 of the Agra Pre-emption Act, 1922. Accordingly, an acquisition by the defendant by gift, during a pre-emption suit, of a share in the mahal will defeat the plaintiff pre-emptor's suit.²¹⁴⁶ In Hans Nath v Ragho Prasad,²¹⁴⁷ the Privy Council pointed out that the doctrine of lis pendens is limited to a dealing with the immovable property actually in suit and, therefore, does not apply to the acquisition by a party of a different property to establish a status of co-sharer not liable to be pre-empted. The Agra Pre-emption Act, 1922 was amended by Uttar Pradesh Act of 1929, section 5 of which enacts that a right of pre-emption cannot be defeated by a gift subsequent to the suit.

Where a plaintiff files a pre-emption suit against the defendant and, while that suit was pending, B, who had an equal right of pre-emption as the plaintiff, files a pre-emption suit against the same defendant and the latter suit is compromised, the validity of the compromise decree in favour of B is not affected by the doctrine of lis pendens, since B had an equal right with the plaintiff.²¹⁴⁸

[s 52.25.10] (x) Suit for rent

A suit for rent is primarily a suit for money, and does not constitute a lis pendens for no right to immovable property is directly and specially in question.²¹⁴⁹ This is so even when, as between a zamindar, a patnidar and a darpatnidar, the decree for rent is a charge on the property. For, a suit for rent cannot be regarded as a suit to claim a charge on specific property.²¹⁵⁰ A purchase made during the pendency of execution proceedings in a suit for arrears of rent is not affected by the rule of lis pendens.²¹⁵¹

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

[s 52.25.11] (xi) Award proceedings

Where a private award creates a charge for maintenance, the presentation of an application to file the award must be regarded as a plaint, and the commencement of a lis pendens.²¹⁵² Res judicata prevails over the doctrine of lis pendens and once a judgment is pronounced by a competent court in regard to the subject-matter of the suit to which the doctrine of lis pendens applies, that is res judicata and binds not only the parties thereto, but the transferee pendente lite.²¹⁵³

[s 52.25.12] (xii) Suit on an unregistered agreement

Where in a suit on an agreement, seeking specific performance and alternatively a charge on the property in question, a compromise decree providing in substance for the relief of charge is passed, the decree comes within the expression “any decree or order, which may be made therein” and the fact that the plaintiffs by the terms of the compromise relinquished their rights under the agreement could not lead to a different conclusion. In the same case, the Privy Council also remarked that the broad purpose of this section is to maintain the status quo unaffected by the act of any party to the litigation pending its determination. The applicability of the section cannot depend on matters of proof or strength or weakness of the case on one side or the other in bona fide proceedings. Further, nothing can depend on the question whether a suit was based on a registered or unregistered agreement.

[s 52.25.13] (xiii) Easement suit

The section applies to a decree which relates to easements.²¹⁵⁴

[s 52.26] Suit for Injunction

Where the suit initially was only for an injunction and before it was converted into one for specific performance, the suit property was sold, it was held that the provisions of section 52 could be invoked by the plaintiff who even in the suit as it was initially filed claimed that there was a valid sale agreement in his favour and, therefore, the right to the disputed property was directly and specifically in question.²¹⁵⁵

[s 52.27] Lease by a Mortgagor

As already stated, a lessee from a mortgagor, on a lease granted pending the mortgagee's suit for sale, is not entitled to resist a claim for possession by the auction purchaser at the court sale.²¹⁵⁶ In some cases it has been held that yearly leases by a mortgagor in possession are not within the rule as they are not prejudicial to the mortgagee's security.²¹⁵⁷ A mortgagor in possession has now a statutory power to lease under section 65A and a lease granted by a mortgagor under this statutory power pending a suit by the mortgagee would be subject to the rules of lis pendens, for otherwise it would convert the mortgagee's estate into one expectant on the term created by the lease.²¹⁵⁸

It is held that section 52 and section 65-A of the TP Act, 1882 operate in different spheres. Section 52 deals with the cases of transfer or anything otherwise dealing with any immovable property after any suit or proceeding in which any right to such immovable property is directly and specifically in question, has been filed. Section 65-A deals with the powers of the mortgagor to grant a lease of the mortgaged property while the mortgagor remains in lawful possession of the same. Section 65-A is not made subject to the provisions contained in section 52 of the TP Act, 1882. If, however, the mortgagor grants a lease during the pendency of a suit for sale by the mortgagee, the lessee is bound by the result of the litigation.²¹⁵⁹ If a mortgagor in possession executes a lease of the property in the ordinary course of management as the agent or bailee of the mortgagee during the pendency of a suit by the mortgagee to enforce the mortgage, a question may arise whether such a lease is in the eye of law a lease granted by the mortgagee through his agent and, therefore, binding on him. This question was left open by the Supreme Court in the two undernoted cases.²¹⁶⁰

However, where it was found that such rights could not be affected, it was held that the lease was not invalid.²¹⁶¹ In Anaji Thamaji Patil v RB Patil,²¹⁶² a Full Bench of the Bombay High Court has, in effect, overruled Ramdas Popatlal v Fakira Pandu.²¹⁶³ and held that section 52 prevails over section 65-A. The court, however, held that a simple mortgagee has no right to possession, his rights are not affected by a lease granted by the mortgagor, and such a lease, if granted, pending a suit by the mortgagee, is not hit by section 52.

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

In Sunita Jugal kishore Gilda v Ramanlal Udhoji Tanna (D) through LRs,²¹⁶⁴ the Supreme Court held that Rule of lis pendens applies to suit on mortgage section 52 prevents a mortgagor from creating any lease during the pendency of the mortgage suit so as to affect the rights of a mortgagee or the purchaser. Law is well settled that a mortgagee, who has purchased a mortgaged property in execution of his mortgage decree is entitled to avoid a transfer on the ground that it was mortgaged by the mortgagor during the pendency of a mortgage suit.

[s 52.28] Misdescription

A misdescription of the land in the pleadings will prevent the operation of the doctrine of lis pendens,²¹⁶⁵ but not if despite misdescription, the land is sufficiently identified.²¹⁶⁶ An alienee who is aware of the identity of the property will be affected by lis pendens despite the misdescription.²¹⁶⁷

[s 52.29] Transferred or Otherwise Dealt with

The word “transferred” refers to sales, mortgages, leases and exchanges. The phrase “otherwise dealt with” includes such transactions as a release²¹⁶⁸ or a partition,²¹⁶⁹ or a surrender.²¹⁷⁰ They have been held to include a contract of sale,²¹⁷¹ a partition between co-defendants,²¹⁷² and the putting up of constructions.²¹⁷³ They also include the handing over of possession,²¹⁷⁴ but not, according to the Punjab High Court, the forcible taking of possession.²¹⁷⁵ They also apply to any collusive decree,²¹⁷⁶ or compromise²¹⁷⁷ by which the title of a party is affected during the pendency of a suit, for the principle underlying the section is that a litigating party is exempted from taking notice of a title acquired during the litigation. Creation of tenancy rights during the pendency of a suit for partition of the property between coparceners, would be hit by the rule of lis pendens and no right would be created in favour of transferee pendente lite.²¹⁷⁸ The doctrine applies not merely to actual transfers of rights which are subject-matter of litigation but to other dealings with it by any party to the suit or proceeding, so as to affect the right of any other party thereto.²¹⁷⁹ The principle of the section has even been applied when in execution of a decree for an injunction to remove an obstruction to a passage, it is found that another obstruction has also been erected after the suit was filed. This other obstruction was also removed in execution, so that the plaintiff should not be compelled to file another suit.²¹⁸⁰ An adoption, however, stands on a different footing and cannot be treated as a dealing with property pendente lite.²¹⁸¹ An admission before a Sub-Registrar of execution of a sale deed is not a dealing with property.²¹⁸²

The Supreme Court had held that the act of taking illegal possession of property, or the continuance of wrongful possession of property does not amount to “otherwise dealing with the property” so as to attract section 52, even if the wrong-doer be a party to the suit.²¹⁸³

An extinction of title is also not hit by the doctrine simply because such extinction is during the pendency of the suit. An extinction of title which takes place by an application of the specific and mandatory provisions of the Limitation Act, 1963 falls outside the scope of section 52. It would not be governed by the provisions of the TP Act, 1882 relating to “transfer” defined by section 3, but by the Limitation Act, 1963 exclusively.²¹⁸⁴

[s 52.30] Involuntary Alienations—Court Sales

Section 52 is limited by section 2(d), and, strictly speaking, does not apply to court sales.²¹⁸⁵ Some old cases do so limit the application of the rule.²¹⁸⁶ However, it is now settled law that though the section itself may not apply to involuntary alienations, the principle of lis pendens applies to such alienation. This is the effect of three Privy Council cases,²¹⁸⁷ which have been approved and followed by the Supreme Court.²¹⁸⁸ That was also the view adopted in a large number of high court cases.²¹⁸⁹

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

Merely because a holder of a decree for money is not, as such, a party to a decree in a maintenance suit creating a charge for maintenance on the disputed property; he cannot claim that he is not bound by the decree passed in the suit in which a charge had been prayed for. The decree holder for money cannot contend that he was a bona fide purchaser for value without notice, and the court sale in his favour cannot prevail over the court sale in favour of the purchaser under the maintenance decree.²¹⁹⁰ The principle of the doctrine of lis pendens applies to involuntary sales held for the recovery of revenue demands.²¹⁹¹ The provisions of section 52 do not apply to an execution sale, but the principle of lis pendens applies. The Allahabad High Court has so held,²¹⁹² following a Supreme Court decision.²¹⁹³ The High Court of Punjab and Haryana has, however, held that the doctrine of lis pendens is not applicable where the transfer is not by an act of the parties, but by an order of the Collector under the Redemption of Mortgages (Punjab) Act, 1913. The court points out that the definition of “transfer of property” in section 5 is confined to an act of a party, and does not cover a statutory order.²¹⁹⁴

During the pendency of a suit for specific performance of a contract for the sale of certain property, the property was purchased by an auction purchaser in the execution of a decree in a suit filed on the basis of a promissory note. The execution sale, it was held, would be hit by the principle of lis pendens embodied in section 52, and section 2(d) would not exclude the applicability of section 52. The sale was ab initio hit by section 52. Confirmation of the sale by the court could not make the sale valid, and no title could be given to the person in whose favour the sale was confirmed.²¹⁹⁵ However, the doctrine cannot be applied as between parties to suit who are arrayed on the same side, and between whom there is no dispute to be adjudicated upon. It is the duty of the auction purchaser or the decree holder to specify the interest of the judgment-debtor in the property in the sale proceedings. Until this is done, the doctrine cannot be invoked in court sale proceedings;²¹⁹⁶ but in a sale by the Official Receiver of the property of the insolvent in a private sale and is governed by section 52.²¹⁹⁷

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A has mortgaged property to B. B sues A on the mortgage and obtains a decree for sale. While B's suit is pending, a third person obtains a money decree against A and the property is sold in execution of the money decree and purchased by C. C's purchase is subject to lis pendens. In fact, he is the representative in interest of the judgment debtor A, and B's decree can be executed against him.²¹⁹⁸

(2) A is a tenant on B's land. B mortgages the land to C. C sues B on the mortgage and obtains a decree for sale. A purchases the land at the sale on B's decree. While this mortgage suit was pending, D purchased the land at a sale in execution of a money decree against B. D then sues A for rent, but as D's purchase was during the pendency of B's suit A is entitled to show that this tenancy has merged in his higher title as proprietor.²¹⁹⁹

[s 52.30.1] Sales for recovery of taxes

As to sales for the recovery of land revenue or other taxes, there is a conflict of decisions. Sales for the recovery of land revenue under section 13 of the Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act, Bengal Act 11 of 1859, have been held to be subject to the rule of lis pendens,²²⁰⁰ and the Patna High Court has said that there is no distinction between execution sales, and sales for the realisation of government revenue.²²⁰¹ On the other hand, the view of the Rangoon High Court is that it would be a dangerous extension of the doctrine to apply it to sales for the recovery of government taxes and local rates.²²⁰² The Madras High Court has applied lis pendens to sales for the recovery of income tax²²⁰³ and abkari dues,²²⁰⁴ but not to revenue sales which enforce a paramount claim of the Crown.²²⁰⁵ The Bombay High Court has applied the rule to a sale of the property of an absconding offender under section 88 of the Code of Criminal Procedure 1898.²²⁰⁶ The Travancore & Cochin High Court has, however, held that the principle underlying the section is applicable to involuntary sales; it does not apply to revenue sales for arrears of land revenue or other dues which constitute a first charge on the property.²²⁰⁷

If property is sold for arrears of government revenue while proceedings in the execution of a money decree are pending, the rule cannot apply, for no right to immovable property is in issue in the suit.²²⁰⁸ In *Jayaram Mudaliar v Ayyaswami*²²⁰⁹ CJ Sikri concurring, held that section 52 applies to revenue sales. The effect of the section would, however, depend upon the provisions of law under which a sale is held. Section 52 does not affect pre-existing rights. As such tax laws confer a charge on the property, a purchaser at a revenue sale would not be affected by lis pendens.

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

[s 52.30.2] Insolvency

The doctrine of lis pendens does not apply when the defendant becomes insolvent during the pendency of a suit and the estate vests in the Official Assignee or Official Receiver, as the case may be. In such a case there is no transfer.²²¹⁰ So also, in a case when there is a devolution of property in favour of the official receiver under section 28(2) of the Provincial Insolvency Act.²²¹¹ The Official Assignee must be joined as a party under O XXII, rule 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure, otherwise he is not bound.²²¹²

[s 52.30.3] Attachment

An attachment creates no lien or charge on the property attached, and so an execution purchaser who buys the property after the suit is filed is not protected merely because he had attached the property before the suit was filed.²²¹³

[s 52.30.4] Revenue proceeding

A revenue officer acting under the Central Provinces Tenancy Act is a Revenue Court and the proceedings under section 82B of the Act operates as lis pendens.²²¹⁴

[s 52.30.5] Sale to protected tenant

It has been held by a single Judge of the Bombay High Court²²¹⁵ that a sale to a protected tenant under the provisions of the Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act, 1948, is not affected by lis pendens on the ground that such a sale is involuntary, sed quaere.

[s 52.31] Lis Pendens in the Same Suit

In a case from Bombay,²²¹⁶ CJ Jenkins said that the doctrine “does not defeat a purchaser under a decree or order for sale when the lis pendens is the very suit in which that decree or order is passed.” In that case, a house which belonged to a joint family consisting of an adult and two minors was mortgaged by the adult member. The mortgagee got a decree for sale against all three and sold the house while an appeal by the minor members was pending. The Court of Appeal dismissed the suit as against the minors holding that their interests were not affected. Nevertheless, the court held that the auction purchaser was not affected by lis pendens, and dissented from a judgment of J Phear.²²¹⁷ This is on the principle that bona fide purchase at sales by a court having jurisdiction are not affected by a subsequent reversal of the decision.²²¹⁸ It is on the same principle that restitution cannot be ordered under section 144 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908 against a bona fide purchaser for value at a sale held by a court having jurisdiction.²²¹⁹ In a Calcutta case,²²²⁰ a darpatnidar filed a suit to prevent a court sale of a putni. The Privy Council held that the putni was not saleable; but before that decision was given, the putni had been sold. The court held that as the lis pendens was a different suit to that in which the sale had been ordered, the doctrine applied, and the sale was set aside.

[s 52.31.1] Status of transfer pendente lite

A pendente lite purchaser would be entitled to or suffer same legal rights and obligations of his vendor as may be determined by the court. Mere pendency of a suit does not prevent one of the parties from dealing with the property constituting the subject matter of the suit as the law simply postulates a condition that the alienation will in no manner, affect the rights of the other party under any decree which may be passed in the suit unless the property was alienated with the permission of the court. The transferee cannot deprive the successful plaintiff of the fruits of the decree if he purchased the property pendente lite,²²²¹ as he is bound by the decree just as much as he was a party to the suit,²²²² and a litigating party is exempted from taking notice of a title acquired during the pendency of the litigation¹⁵ even if he was not aware of the status quo¹⁶. The alienation will, in no manner, affect the rights of the other party under any decree which may be passed in the suit unless the property was alienated with the permission of the Court,²²²³ and the title acquired by the purchase of property would stand extinguished by the sale held in execution of the charge decree by operation of section 52 of the Transfer of Property Act.²²²⁴

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

In Haji Abdul Mateen v Sheikh Haji Firozuddin,²²²⁵ the Delhi High court has held that a transfer pendente lite is void as against the successful plaintiff and transferee pendente lite cannot claim protection under section 52.

[s 52.32] Authority of the Court

A transfer during the pendency of the suit may be authorized by the court, and the sanction of the court will exclude it from the rule of lis pendens. The sanction must be of the court in which the suit is pending.²²²⁶

[s 52.33] Sale under Order XXI, Rule 83 of Code of Civil Procedure 1908

Lis pendens does not apply to sales under this rule.²²²⁷

[s 52.34] Lis pendens in the Code of Civil Procedure 1908 [s 52.34.1] Claim in Execution Proceedings

The rule of lis pendens is recognised in O XXI, rule 102 of the Code of Civil Procedure, which does not allow a transferee pendente lite of the judgment-debtor to make a claim in execution proceedings. But this bar will not apply if the transferee has a title to possession irrespective of his purchase. This occurs when the purchaser pendente lite is subrogated to the rights of a usufructuary mortgagee by redemption of a usufructuary mortgage of a date before the suit.²²²⁸ A transferee pendente lite is a representative in interest of the party from whom he got the transfer. Such a transferee is not entitled to raise any claim against the decree or order that may ultimately be passed in the action.²²²⁹

[s 52.34.2] Right of transferee pendente lite to be made a party in proceedings

Under O 22, rule 10, an alienee pendente lite may be joined as party, unless permitting impleadment and recognising the alienation/assignment would amount to defeating the ends of justice and the prevalent public policy.²²³⁰ The plaintiff is not bound to make him a party,²²³¹ and the alienee has no absolute right to be joined as a party.²²³² But the court has a discretion in the matter which must be judicially exercised,²²³³ and an alienee will ordinarily be joined as a party to enable him to protect his interest.²²³⁴

The Supreme Court has held that a transferee of property, who purchased property during the pendency of suit, and who was entitled to be, but was not brought on record under O 22, rule 10 in a pending suit, is entitled to prefer an appeal against the decree or order passed therein, if his assignor could have filed such an appeal in view of section 146, Code of Civil Procedure 1908.²²³⁵ Further, a lis pendens transferee, though not brought on record under O XXII, rule 10, is entitled to move an application under O IX, rule 13 to set aside a decree passed against his transferor, the defendant in a suit.²²³⁶ The Supreme Court in *Sarvinder Singh v Dalip Singh*²²³⁷ has held that since the alienation pendente lite is hit by the doctrine of lis pendens by operation of section 52, alienee cannot be considered to be either a necessary or proper party to the suit. In Dhurander Prasad Singh v Jai Prakash University,²²³⁸ which was later followed in Bibi Zubaida Khatoon v Nabi Hassan Saheb,²²³⁹ the Supreme Court has held: "Where a party does not ask for leave, he takes the obvious risk that the suit may not be properly conducted by the plaintiff on record, yet he will be bound by the result of the litigation even though he is not represented at the hearing unless it is shown that the litigation was not properly conducted by the original party or he colluded with the adversary."

The Karnataka High Court has also held that a transferee pendente lite is not entitled to come on record as a matter of right and there is no absolute rule that such a transferee pendente lite should in all cases be allowed to come on record as a party. Such a transferee pendente lite is bound by the decree just as much as he was a party to the suit.²²⁴⁰ Therefore, no transfer of any immoveable property during the pendency of any suit or proceeding in relation to that property can take place except with the authority of the Court in which such suit or proceeding is pending. Once lis pendens is registered, the subsequent transferee would be bound by the decision, namely, the final order or decree that may be passed by the concerned Court.²²⁴¹ In EN Chandran v Valsan Matathil,²²⁴² A filed a suit for declaration of title as against B, and both A and B transferred their rights in favour of C and D during the pendency of the litigation. The contention of C that a decree cannot be passed without joining him as a necessary party in the suit was rejected by the court, as he was a transferee pendente lite.

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

In Rajeev Berry v Additional District Judge,²²⁴³ A, filed a suit against B seeking a permanent injunction restraining B from interfering with his peaceful possession. The trial court after filing of the written statement directed the parties to maintain status quo over the property in question. However, A sold the property to X and X filed an application seeking permission of his impleadment in the main suit. The court held that since the property was transferred by the party to the suit during the pendency of the litigation and that too without the permission of the court, X was not entitled to be impleaded in the suit for permanent injunction. Where in a suit for specific performance, the vendor subsequently entered into an agreement to sell the suit property to two other purchasers to frustrate the rights and title of the plaintiff purchaser, these suit purchasers would not be called bonafide purchasers as purchasing property without leave of the court and it would not vest them with any title. Moreover the said purchasers of the property pendente lite would not have a right of impleadment as the court held that an effective decree can be passed in absence of the subsequent purchaser and he is neither a necessary nor a proper party and thus not entitled to join as a defendant in the suit.²²⁴⁴

When an assignee pendente lite is joined as a party, the suit is not a new suit, but the same suit continues by or against him and if he is made a party in an appeal, he cannot raise any defence which his assignor could not have put forward.²²⁴⁵ He, further, cannot take a stand contrary to the one taken by his predecessor-in-interest.²²⁴⁶

After the decree, the transferee pendente lite, if not joined as a party, is under section 47 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908, a representative of the judgment debtor in all matters relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree.²²⁴⁷ In a Bombay case,²²⁴⁸ the plaintiff obtained a decree for partition against his brother, who, however, sold part of the property which was the subject of the suit pendente lite. The purchasers were not made parties to the suit, and after the decree the plaintiff filed a fresh suit against the purchasers to recover possession of his share. The court held that the purchasers were not entitled to plead section 47 as a bar to a second suit by the decree-holder, and that section 52 forbid their doing so. In another Bombay case,²²⁴⁹ the decree was for a personal injunction restraining the judgment debtor from interfering with the rights of the decree-holder as owner of an immovable property. The rule of law is that the decree-holder cannot execute the decree against a purchaser from the judgment debtor as an injunction does not run with the land.²²⁵⁰ Nevertheless, the court in execution proceedings granted an injunction against the purchaser as he was a purchaser pendente lite. Transferee pendente lite can be added as proper party, if his interest in the subject matter of the suit is substantial.²²⁵¹

A transferee pendente lite cannot question nor put obstruction in the execution of the court order. He cannot as the judgement debtor call upon the court to decide his obstruction like a suit or question the legality of the decree and propriety of the court in passing such a decree. Thus where a suit presented for recovery of possession of the property covered by a sale deed was decreed in favour of A but during execution of the decree the same was resisted by B, who was a transferee pendente lite, the suit filed by B to challenge the order of the court in the first suit during which he purchased the suit property that was hit by lis pendens would be dismissed.²²⁵²

[s 52.35] Estoppel

A party may be estopped from raising the plea of lis pendens. A, in execution of a decree against B, brought B's property to sale and purchased it. At B's instance the sale was set aside. A filed an appeal against the order setting aside the sale, and pending the appeal B sold the property to C. C deposited the amount of the decree in court. A withdrew this amount in full satisfaction of his decree. A having elected to take the money was estopped from pleading that the sale to C was subject to lis pendens.²²⁵³ Having taken the money he could no longer claim the land. This is on the principle that when a litigant has two remedies which are alternative, his adoption of one bars the other.²²⁵⁴

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

[s 52.36] Res Judicata

The rule of res judicata prevents the owner from dealing during lis pendens and once a judgment is pronounced by a competent court in regard to the subject-matter of the suit in which the doctrine of lis pendens applies, the decision is res judicata and binds not only the parties to the suit, but the transferee pendente lite.²²⁵⁵

If the earlier suit was dismissed for default and no issue was heard and decided finally the plea of res judicata and lis pendens, would not be applicable. In Marakkal v SG Kannappan,²²⁵⁶ the suit, which was pending transfer of the property was dismissed for default and since no right was decided in favour of the appellants in that suit, the transfers pendent lite are held as perfectly valid.

[s 52.37] Lis Pendens and Temporary Injunction

Notwithstanding the rule of lis pendens in section 52 of TP Act, 1882, there can be occasion for the grant of injunction restraining pendente lite transfers in a fit and proper case. Thus, in a suit for specific performance of sale of the property, if the defendant is not restrained by an injunction from selling the property to a third party and accordingly, the third party purchases the same bona fide for value without any notice of the pending litigation and spends a huge sum for the improvement thereof or for construction thereon, the equity in his favour may intervene to persuade the court to decline, in its discretion, the equitable relief of specific performance to the plaintiff and to award damages only.²²⁵⁷

Invoking powers under O 39 rules 1, 2, arises only in rare cases where plaintiff demonstrates that rule of lis pendens is inadequate to protect his interests.²²⁵⁸ While considering balance of inconvenience and irreparable loss, Civil Courts would have to see as to what is the preventive relief sought or what mischief is sought to be prevented. If the title of the pendent lite transferor is recognized or accepted only in regard to a part of the transferred property, then the transferee's title will be saved only in regard to that extent and the transfer in regard to the remaining portion of the transferred property to which the transferor is found not entitled, will be invalid and the transferee will not get any right, title or interest in that portion and it was held that a suit ought not to have been dismissed in entirety even if the sale by the second respondent in favour of appellant was hit by the doctrine of lis pendens.²²⁵⁹

However, a temporary injunction cannot be declined on the basis that alienation will be subject to law of lis pendens²²⁶⁰ and while passing an interim order of injunction under O 39 rules 1 and 2 CPC, the Court is required to consider three basic principles, namely, (i) prima facie case; (ii) balance of convenience and inconvenience; and (iii) irreparable loss and injury.²²⁶¹ In Santokh Singh v Shagun Farm Pvt Ltd,²²⁶² the court held that there was unusual delay by the plaintiff in filing the court fees and his chances of obtaining the suit for specific performance in his favour were very remote, and therefore, the principle of lis pendens would be inapplicable to the property subject matter of the suit and the defendant, notwithstanding the pendency of the suit which will have to be put to trial, would be entitled to deal with the property.

Section 52 of the Act, and O 39, rules 1, 2 operate in different spheres in two different fields. Section 52 does not afford adequate and effective protection as afforded by O 39, rules 1,2.

From the perspective of the litigating parties, the doctrine of lis pendens and order of Temporary injunction have different effects. The apprehension of action under the Code of Civil Procedure 1908 of attachment of property and the punishment of contempt of courts act as a deterrent to the party against whom an order of injunction is running. This deterrent has the further effects of avoiding multiplicity of transactions and proceedings. The doctrine of lis pendens does not create such deterrent effect as it does not entail drastic consequences of the attachment of property, detention in civil prison, suit being dismissed or defence being struck off, as the case may be or punishment for contempt of court.

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

During the pendency of a suit, registration of notice of the pending litigation cannot secure for plaintiff equivalence of what an injunction can secure. Consequences of alienation of suit property in breach of interim injunction renders such alienation illegal and exposes the party to consequences provided under the CPC in addition to the punishment for contempt of court. Hence such registration of notices of pending suit, though desirable as additional safeguard, cannot be preferable or substituted to clamping order of injunction on adversary.

It cannot be laid down as a blanket proposition of law that in each and every case plaintiff is expected to show that the provision of section 52 do not afford adequate protection before injunction to restrain transfer pendente lite issued. Though depending upon the facts of the case, the court can consider imposition of conditions like seeking an undertaking that no equities would be claimed on account of sale or development of property; effecting sale only after putting transferees to notice that their rights would be subject to pending suits or requiring parties to inform the Court promptly of creation of such interest, those conditions can be in addition to or independent of the order of injunction but cannot be in place of or short of granting injunction.²²⁶³

In a Delhi case, the defendant entered into an agreement to sell and received a sum of ₹21,000 as advance, the plaintiff contended that a decree of specific performance of the said agreement be passed and till such time the final decision is taken in the suit, the defendant should be restrained by an order not to sell, alienate or create any third party interest in the property, as in that case the plaintiff will suffer an irreparable injury. The court declined to grant an injunction against the defendant, and instead, passed an order that in case the defendant intends to transfer, alienate or create third party interest in the property, the intending purchaser/transferee shall be informed in writing about the pendency of this suit.²²⁶⁴ The Bombay High court also refused a temporary injunction on the ground that section 52 provides adequate protection to parties from transfers pendente lite and the occasion for invoking powers under O 39 rules 1, 2 arises only in rare cases where plaintiff demonstrates that the rule of lis pendens is inadequate to protect his interest.²²⁶⁵

-
- 1902 Subs. by Act 20 of 1929, section 14, for “active prosecution”.
- 1903 Subs. by the A.O. 1950, for “in the Provinces or established beyond the limits of the Provinces”.
- 1904 Subs. by Act 3 of 1951, section 3 and Sch., for “within the limits of Pt A States and Pt C States” (w.e.f. 1-4-1951).
- 1905 Subs. by the A.O. 1937, for “the Governor General in Council”.
- 1906 The words “or the Crown Representative” rep. by the A.O. 1948.
- 1907 Subs. by Act 20 of 1929, section 14, for “a contentious”.
- 1908 Ins. by Act 20 of 1929, section 14.
- 1909 Anand Nivas Pvt Ltd v Anandji Kayanji, [1964] 4 SCR 892 [LNIND 1963 SC 213] : AIR 1965 SC 414 [LNIND 1963 SC 213] ; Kanbi Vaju Vasta, Botad v Kanbi Popat Vasta, AIR 1985 Guj 184 [LNIND 1984 GUJ 33] , p 186.
- 1910 Sunil D Chedda v Suresh Babsilal Seth, AIR 1992 SC 1200 , p 1201 : 1993 Supp (1) SCC 323 .
- 1911 Prem Chand J Panchal v Shahjahanu Liyakat Khan Pathan, AIR 2011(NOC) 251 (Guj).
- 1912 Amit Kumar Shah v Farida Khatoon, AIR 2005 SC 2209 [LNIND 2005 SC 369] : (2005) 11 SCC 403 [LNIND 2005 SC 369] .
- 1913 Devraj Dogra v Gyan Chand Jain, (1981) 2 SCC 675 [LNIND 1981 SC 143] , p 683.

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

- 1914 Ramdhane v Kedarnath, 173 IC 828 : AIR 1938 Cal 1 ; Hiranya Bhusan v Gouri Dutt, (1943) 76 Cal LJ 191 : 208 IC 75 : AIR 1943 Cal 207 . For analysis of section 52, see Dev Rai Dogra v Gyan Chand Jain, (1981) 2 SCC 675 [LNIND 1981 SC 143] , p 683.
- 1915 Bellamy v Sabine, (1857) 1 De G & J 566, pp 578, 584; Lakshmandas v Dasrat, (1882) ILR 6 Bom 168; Basappa v Bhimangowda, (1928) ILR 52 Bom 208 : 108 IC 17 : AIR 1928 Bom 65 ; Dodey Ram v Gulkando, 118 IC 660 : AIR 1929 All 601 .
- 1916 Shiv Chand Tyagi v Addl Commissioner, Meerut, AIR 2018 (NOC) 47 All: [LNINDORD 2017 ALL 429] ; KN Aswathnarayana Setty (D) through LRs v State of Karnataka, AIR 2014 SC 279 [LNIND 2013 SC 1032] : JT 2013 (15) SC 194 [LNIND 2013 SC 1032] : 2013 (14) Scale 565 [LNIND 2013 SC 1032] : 2014 (1) SCJ 621 [LNIND 2013 SC 1032] : 2014 (1) ShimLC 371; Haji Abdul Mateen v Sheikh Haji Firozuddin, AIR 2014 Del 111 [LNIND 2014 DEL 960] : [LNIND 2014 DEL 960] ; M T Kempegowda v G K Ramesh Kumar, (2011) 3 Kant LJ 59 : AIR (2011) 1 Kant. R 786.
- 1917 Shiv Chand Tyagi v Addl Commissioner, Meerut, AIR 2018 (NOC) 47 All : [LNINDORD 2017 ALL 429] .
- 1918 Chandrapal Guruwani v Saraswati Bai Guruwani, AIR 2017 CHG. 57 .
- 1919 Thomson Press (India) Ltd v Nanak Builders Investors Pvt Ltd, AIR 2013 SC 2389 [LNIND 2013 SC 1232] : JT 2013 (3) SC 289 [LNIND 2013 SC 1232] : 2013 (3) Scale 26 [LNIND 2013 SC 1232] : (2013) 5 SCC 397 [LNIND 2013 SC 1232] .
- 1920 Jahar Lal Bhutra v Bhupendra Nath, (1922) ILR 49 Cal 495 : 67 IC 108 : AIR 1922 Cal 412 ; Nathaji v Nana, (1907) 9 Bom LR 1173 [LNIND 1907 BOM 159] .
- 1921 Lov Raj Kumar v Major Daya Shankar (Dr), AIR 1986 Del 364 [LNIND 1985 DEL 374] .
- 1922 Narendrabhai Chhaganbhai Bharatia v Gandeve Peoples Cooperative Bank Ltd, AIR 2002 Guj 209 [LNIND 2002 GUJ 85] : (2002) 22 GLH 588 : (2002) 2 GLR 218 .
- 1923 Sayar Bai v Yashoda Bai, AIR 1983 Raj 161 .
- 1924 Sunder Lal Bhatia v Charan Lal Bhatia, AIR 2010 J&K 16 at 18 : (2010) 1 JKJ 75.
- 1925 Ramjidas v Laxmi Kumar, AIR 1987 MP 78 [LNIND 1986 MP 85] .
- 1926 Commentaries on Equity Jurisprudence, 3rd English Edn, section 406, p 106; Liladhar Uttamchand v Shivaji Ganesh, (1936) ILR Nag 22 : 165 IC 550 : AIR 1936 Ngp 125 .
- 1927 Tarakant v Puddomoney, (1866) 10 Mad IA 476 : 5 WR 63; Umamoyi v Tarini Prasad, (1867) 7 WR 225 ; Digamburee v Eshan, (1871) 15 WR 372 ; Raj Kishen v Radha Madhub, (1874) 21 WR 349 ; Ram Kishen v Doole Chand, (1874) 22 WR 547 ; Sami Ayyan v Ammai Ammal, (1871) 6 Mad HC 234; Manual v Sangapalli, (1872) 7 Mad HC 104; Balaji v Kushalfi, (1874) 11 Bom HC 24; Gulabchand v Dhondi, (1874) 11 Bom HC 64; Lala Kali Prosad v Buli Singh, (1877) ILR 4 Cal 789; Pranjivan v Bajju, (1880) ILR 4 Bom 34; Lakshmandas v Dasrat, (1882) ILR 6 Bom 168; Parvati v Kisan singh, (1882) ILR 6 Bom 567.
- 1928 Haji Abdul Mateed (D) through his LRs v Sheikh Haji Firozuddin, AIR 2014 Del 111 [LNIND 2014 DEL 960] .
- 1929 Harsh Vardhan Singh v Ranveer Singh, 2010 SCC OnLine Raj 2303; Sarita Gopalkumar Chand v Madgy, AIR (2010) 5 Bom R (NOC 489) 139 : 2010 (5) All MR 843; Sanjay Passi v Iqbal Chand Khurana, (2010) 117 DRJ 209 (Delhi).
- 1930 Faiyaz Husain Khan v Prag Narain, (1907) ILR 29 All 389 : 34 IA 102.
- 1931 Rajendar Singh v Santa Singh, AIR 1973 SC 2537 [LNIND 1973 SC 235] : [1974] 1 SCR 381 : (1973) 2 SCC 705 [LNIND 1973 SC 235] .
- 1932 Setappa Goundan v Muthiah Goundan, (1908) ILR 31 Mad 268; Dinonath v Shama Bibi, (1901) ILR 28 Cal 23; Hakim Singh Charan Das, (1903) PR 80 ; Achut v Shivajirao, (1937) 39 Bom LR 224 : 170 IC 172 : AIR 1937 Bom 244 .
- 1933 Maharaj Bahadur v Shaikh Abdul Rahim, (1922) ILR 1 Pat 5 : 62 IC 900 : (1922) ILR AP 394; Krisaji Pandharinath v Anusayabai, (1959) ILR Bom 94 : AIR 1959 Bom 475 [LNIND 1958 BOM 46] ; Rappel Augusthi v Gopalan, AIR 1970 Ker. 188 .
- 1934 Prem Chand J Panchal v Shahjahabanu Liyakatkhan Pathan, AIR 2011 (NOC) 251 Guj.
- 1935 Mohd Ali Abdul Chanimomin v Bisaheri Kom Abdulla, AIR 1973 Mys 131 .
- 1936 Ceean International Pvt Ltd v Ashok Surana, AIR 2003 Cal 263 [LNIND 2002 CAL 364] : (2003) 2 Cal LT 322.
- 1937 Sunder Lal Bhatia v Chaman Lal Bhatia, AIR 2010 J&K 16 ; Abdul Wahid v Hameed Mian, AIR 2010 (NOC) 931 Del; Parveen Kumar v Baljinder Kaur, AIR 2010 P&H. 40 .
- 1938 Parveen Kumar v Baljinder Kaur, AIR 2010 P&H. 40 .

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

- 1939 Lakhwinder Singh v Dilbagh Singh, AIR 2010 (NOC) 1113 P&H. : 2010 (3) RCR (Civil) 564 .
- 1940 Dharam Singh v Bhag Singh, AIR 2013 HP 89 [LNIND 2013 HP 75] : JCNO HP 2013 : 0210 : LNIND 2013 HP 75 .
- 1941 Nagubai Ammal v B Shama Rao, [1956] 1 SCR 451 [LNIND 1956 SC 38] , pp 460-2 : AIR 1956 SC 593 [LNIND 1956 SC 38] : [1956] SCJ 665 .
- 1942 Kamalammal v Senthil, AIR 2003 Mad. 337 [LNIND 2003 MAD 384] .
- 1943 Bhagwandas v Nathu Singh, (1884) ILR 6 All 444; Pir Baksh v Kadir Baksh, (1898) PR 32.
- 1944 Nand Keolpur v Sultan Jehan, (1952) ILR 31 Pat 722 : AIR 1952 Pat. 58 .
- 1945 Krishnaya v Mallya, (1918) ILR 41 Mad 458 : 44 IC 471. And see Natha Dhoja v Ramchand, (1941) 43 Bom LR 301 : 22 IC 407 : AIR 1946 Bom 402 .
- 1946 Annamalai Chettiar v Malayandi, (1906) ILR 29 Mad 426; Mati Lall v Preo Latt, (1908) 13 Cal WN 226 : 31 IC 696; Tinoodhan v Trailokha, (1912) 17 Cal WN 413 : 13 IC 177; Tangor Majhi v Jaladhar, (1910) 14 Cal WN 322 : 5 IC 691; Bharat Ramanuj v Srinath Chandra, (1922) ILR 49 Cal 220 : 66 IC 273 : AIR 1922 Cal 358 ; Parvathi Ammal v Govinda Raja, (1924) 45 Mad LJ 682 : 76 IC 876 : AIR 1924 Mad. 359 ; Ramdulari v Upendranath, (1925) ILR 4 Pat 619 : 90 IC 251 : AIR 1925 Pat. 462 ; Bhagirathi v Raj Kishore, (1930) 28 All LJ 766 : 122 IC 887 : AIR 1930 All 354 ; Jhuna v Munshi Tara Chand, 6 IC 168; Raghubar v Ghasite, (1910) 13 OC 98 : 6 IC 750; Basappa v Bhimangowda, (1928) ILR 52 Bom 208 : 108 IC 17 : AIR 1928 Bom 65 ; Periamurugappa v Manicka, (1926) 49 Mad LJ 68 : 87 IC 213 : AIR 1926 Mad. 50 [LNIND 1924 MAD 330] ; Sat Narain v Badri, 107 IC 556 : AIR 1928 Oudh 146 ; Dhiraj Singh v Dina Nath, 8 IC 288 : 6 Nag LR 140; K Janardanam v Motor Industries Pvt Ltd, (1975) 1 Andh WR 264; Mohammad Aleem v Maqsood Alam, AIR 1989 Raj. 43 , p 46.
- 1947 Bharat Ramanuj v Srinath Chandra, (1922) ILR 49 Cal 220, p 229 : 66 IC 273 : AIR 1922 Cal 358 . See Shiam Lal v Sohan Lal, (1928) ILR 50 All 290 : 106 IC 255 : AIR 1928 All 3 ; Nathu v Ramchand, AIR 1946 Bom 462 ; Hiranya Bhusan v Gouri Dutt, AIR 1943 Cal 227 : 76 Cal LJ 191 : 208 IC 75; Venkateshwar Pal v Kunju Vaya, AIR 1952 Tr & Coch 309; Ganapakiam v Ponnian Nadar, AIR 1955 Tr & Coch 3.
- 1948 Juthan v Parasnath Singh, 151 IC 70 : AIR 1934 Pat. 270 ; Earannama v Nathu-Gowda, AIR 1952 Mys 26 .
- 1949 Subramanion Chetty v Mohan Ali, 52 IC 624.
- 1950 Gouri Dutt v Sukur Mohammed, 75 IA 165 : 50 Bom LR 675 : AIR 1948 PC 147 .
- 1951 Amarnath v Deputy Director, Consolidation, AIR 1985 All 163 [LNIND 1984 ALL 243] .
- 1952 Faiyaz Hussain Khan v Prag Narain, (1907) ILR 29 All 339 : 34 IA 142.
- 1953 Krishnappa v Shivappa, (1907) ILR 31 Bom 393.
- 1954 Gouri Dutt v Sheikh Sukur Mohammed, AIR 1948 PC 147 : 75 IA 165.
- 1955 Shafiquallah v Samiullah, (1930) ILR 52 All 139 : 123 IC 101 : AIR 1929 All 943 ; Ram Narain v Nawab Sajjadali Khan, AIR 1946 Oudh 99 ; Nanjammal v Eswaramurthi, (1955) ILR Mad 519 : (1954) 1 Mad LJ 530 : AIR 1954 Mad. 592 [LNIND 1953 MAD 203] .
- 1956 Gharbhoya Bhimji v Deodata Bihari, (1937) ILR Nag 452 : 172 IC 389 : AIR 1937 Ngp 400 .
- 1957 Nagubai Ammal v B Shama Rao, [1956] 1 SCR 451 [LNIND 1956 SC 38] : AIR 1956 SC 593 [LNIND 1956 SC 38] : [1956] SCJ 655 [LNIND 1956 SC 38] : [1956] SCA 959 .
- 1958 [1956] 1 SCR 451 [LNIND 1956 SC 38], p 463; Ahmedbhoy v Vulleebhoy, (1883) ILR 6 Bom 703; Chenvirappa v Puttappa, (1887) ILR 11 Bom 708; Nuzbat-ud-Daula v Dilband Begam, (1913) 16 OC 225 : 21 IC 570; Bharat Ramanuj v Srinath Chandra, (1922) ILR 49 Cal 220 : 66 IC 273 : AIR 1922 Cal 358.
- 1959 Periamurugappa v Manicka, (1926) 49 Mad LJ 68 : 87 IC 213 : AIR 1926 Mad. 50 [LNIND 1924 MAD 330] ; Nuzbat-ud-Daula v Dilband Begam, 21 IC 570.
- 1960 Ravanagouda Siddanagouda v Basavantraya Madivalappa, AIR 2002 Kant. 96 [LNIND 2001 KANT 617] : 2002 Civil CC 263 : (2001) 6 Kar LJ 545 [LNIND 2001 KANT 617] .
- 1961 Jogendra v Fulkumari, (1900) ILR 27 Cal 77; Kathir v Maremadissa, (1915) ILR 38 Mad 450 : 20 IC 976.
- 1962 Nuzbat-ud-Daula v Dilband Begam, 21 IC 570.
- 1963 Krishnappa v Shivappa, (1907) ILR 31 Bom 393; Brojo Kishoree v Meajan Biswas, (1908) 13 Cal WN 1138 : 3 IC 791; Durga Prasad v Madho Prasad, (1908) 8 Cal LJ 53 ; Ram Bharose v Rampal Singh, (1920) ILR 42 All 319 : 58 IC 484; Bhagirathi v Raj Kishore, (1930) 28 All LJ 766 : 122 IC 887 : AIR 1930 All 354 .

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

- 1964 Kanshi Ram v Kesho Ram, AIR 1961 Punj 299 .
- 1965 Kulandaivelu v Sowbagyammal, AIR 1945 Mad. 350 . See Suresh Singh v State of Bihar, AIR 1994 Pat. 34 .
- 1966 Jagan Singh v Dhanwanti, (2012) 2 SCC 628 [LNIND 2012 SC 58] : LNIND 2012 SC 58 : 2012 3 Mad LJ 370 SC : 2012 (1) Scale 497 [LNIND 2012 SC 58] .
- 1967 S Malleshwarrao v Bokka Venkateshwarrao, AIR 2013 Kant. 88 : 2013 (2) AKR 248.
- 1968 Nagubai Ammal v B Shama Rao, [1956] 1 SCR 451 [LNIND 1956 SC 38] : AIR 1956 SC 593 [LNIND 1956 SC 38] : [1956] SCJ 655 [LNIND 1956 SC 38] ; Ambika Pratap v Dwarka Prasad, (1908) ILR 30 All 95; Pattumadammal v Nanjappa, (1939) 49 Mad LW 241 : (1939) Mad WN 311 : 184 IC 824 : AIR 1939 Mad. 275 [LNIND 1938 MAD 384] ; Jogarao v Chinnayya, (1936) 71 Mad LJ 201 : 164 IC 1006 : AIR 1936 Mad. 853 [LNIND 1936 MAD 78] ; Bimala Bala Debi v Sanat Kumar Chaudhury, (1960) 65 Cal WN 701.
- 1969 Sahandrabai v Shri Deo Radha Ballabhji, AIR 1938 Ngp 30 .
- 1970 Tangor Mahji v Jaladhar, (1909) 14 Cal WN 322 : 5 IC 691; Asutosh Roy v Ananta Ram, 50 IC 727.
- 1971 Ma Than v Maung Ba Gyan, (1927) ILR 5 Rang 101 : 101 IC 797 : AIR 1927 Rang 145 .
- 1972 See Mulla Code of Civil Procedure, 13th Edn, pp 124-129.
- 1973 Nathusingh v Anandrao, (1941) ILR Nag 652; Govinda Pillai v Aiyappan Krishnan, (1957) ILR Ker 5 : AIR 1957 Ker. 10 [LNIND 1956 KER 120] .
- 1974 Mohendra Nath v Parameswar, 60 IC 439.
- 1975 Shivshankarappa v Shivappa, AIR 1943 Bom 27 .
- 1976 Ashutosh Ray v Ananta Ram, 50 IC 727; Narayan Laxman v Vishnu Waman, (1957) 59 Bom LR 205 : AIR 1957 Bom 117 [LNIND 1956 BOM 158] .
- 1977 BR Rangaswami v Upparaje Gowda, AIR 1962 Mys 189 .
- 1978 Nathu Singh v Anandrao, 186 IC 688 : AIR 1940 Ngp 185 .
- 1979 Wali Bandi v Tabeya Bibi, (1919) ILR 41 All 534 : 50 IC 919; Ramchandra v Bhagwan, 57 IC 652.
- 1980 Nallakumara v Pappayi, AIR 1945 Mad. 219 , p 221.
- 1981 Mahommad Hanif v Khairatasli, (1940) ILR 20 Pat 346, p 353 : 192 IC 45 : AIR 1941 Pat. 577 and the cases referred to therein; Narayan Laxman v Vishnu Waman, (1957) 59 Bom LR 205 : AIR 1957 Bom 117 [LNIND 1956 BOM 158] ; Hakim Mohammad v Sahab Collector Bahadur, AIR 1958 All 24 [LNIND 1957 ALL 70] ; Parshotam v Bai Moti, AIR 1963 Guj 30 [LNIND 1962 GUJ 139] ; Narendrabhai Chhaganbhai Bharatia v Gandevis Peoples Cooperative Bank Ltd, AIR 2002 Guj 209 [LNIND 2002 GUJ 85] : (2002) 22 GLH 588 : (2002) 3 GLR 218 .
- 1982 Ghantsher Ghosh v Madan Mohan Ghosh, AIR 1997 SC 471 [LNIND 1996 SC 1485] : (1996) 11 SCC 446 [LNIND 1996 SC 1485] .
- 1983 Radhika v Radhamani, (1884) ILR 7 Mad 96.
- 1984 Dinonath v Shama Bibi, (1900) ILR 28 Cal 23; Gobind Chunder v Guru Churn, (1888) ILR 15 Cal 94; Sukhdeo v Jamna, (1901) ILR 23 All 60; Settappa Goundan v Muthia, (1908) ILR 31 Mad 268; Motichand v British India Corporation, (1932) 30 All LJ 54 : 136 IC 78 : AIR 1932 All 210 ; Krishnaji Pandharinath v Anusayabai, (1959) ILR Bom 94 : 60 Bom LR 1083 : AIR 1959 Bom 475 [LNIND 1958 BOM 46] .
- 1985 Venkatesh v Maruti, (1888) ILR 12 Bom 217. See also the judgment of J Bakewell in Ramasami v Govinda, (1916) 31 Mad LJ 839 : 38 IC 1; Govindappa v Hanumanthappa, (1915) ILR 38 Mad 36, p 39 : 17 IC 420.
- 1986 Chunni Lalv Abdul Ali, (1901) ILR 23 All 331; Bhugwan v Nilkanta, (1904) 9 Cal WN 171; Surjiram v Barhamdeo Persad, (1905) 2 Cal LJ 202 ; Madaneswar v Mahamaya Prosad, (1911) 15 Cal WN 672 : 9 IC 1027; Brāja Nath v Joggeswar, (1909) 9 Cal LJ 346 : 1 IC 62; Ammayi M v C Sitaramayya, 87 IC 714 : AIR 1925 Mad. 1039 [LNIND 1924 MAD 376] ; Chunder Koomar v Gopee Kristo, (1873) 20 WR 204 .
- 1987 Bepin Krishna v Priya Brata, (1921) 26 Cal WN 36 : 66 IC 345 : AIR 1921 Cal 730 ; Ramasami v Govinda, (1916) 31 Mad LJ 839 : 38 IC 1.
- 1988 Parsotam v Chheda Lal, (1907) ILR 29 All 76; Premasukh Das v Peerkhan, 95 IC 979 : AIR 1926 Ngp 21 : 23 Nag LR 86.
- 1989 Samal v Babaji, (1904) ILR 28 Bom 361; Har Shanker v Shew Gobind, (1899) ILR 26 Cal 966; Brojo Kishoree v Meajan Biswas, (1908) 13 Cal WN 1138 : 3 IC 791; Sami Nath v Thakur Prasad, 100 IC 294 : AIR 1927 All 309 ; Mousing v Amantara, 26 IC 879; Naba Krishna v Mohit Kali, 9 IC 840; Mirza Abid v Munnoo Bibi, (1927) ILR 2 Luck 496 : 102 IC 72 : AIR 1927 Oudh 261 ; Lachiram v Bholu, 82 IC 452 : AIR 1925 Ngp 132 ; Dhiraj Singh v Dina Nath, (1910) 6 Nag LR 140 : 8 IC 288.

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

- 1990 Thakur Prasad v Gaya, (1898) ILR 20 All 349; Ramasami v Govinda, (1916) 31 Mad LJ 839 : 38 IC 1; Madan Mohan v Raj Kishori, (1917) 21 Cal WN 88 : 39 IC 182; Nisar Husain v Sundar Lal, (1928) ILR 50 All 202 : 104 IC 292 : AIR 1927 All 657 ; Maganlal v Lakhiram, (1968) 9 Guj LR 161 : AIR 1968 Guj 193 [LNIND 1967 GUJ 85] .
- 1991 Nagendra v Sarat Kamini, (1922) 26 Cal WN 386 : 66 IC 879 : AIR 1922 Cal 235 ; Wazir Hussain v Beni Madho, 126 IC 389 : AIR 1930 Oudh 362 .
- 1992 Supreme Court Films Exchange Ltd v HH Maharaja Sir Srinath Singhji Dee, (1975) 2 SCC 530 [LNIND 1975 SC 250] : AIR 1975 SC 1810 [LNIND 1975 SC 250] ; Nalli Textiles v Minor Krishnan, AIR 2003 Mad. 11 (NOC) : 2002 AIHC 4152 .
- 1993 K S Dhillon v Punjab Financial Corp, AIR 2012 P&H. 75 .
- 1994 Kadali Pullayya v Kadali Narasamma, AIR 2002 AP 45 [LNIND 2001 AP 800] (NOC) : 2001 AIHC 4220 .
- 1995 Muppidi Aora Reddy v Bollareddy Ramakrishna Reddy, AIR 2003 AP 294 [LNIND 2003 AP 78] .
- 1996 Mewa Singh v Jagir Singh, AIR 1971 P&H. 244.
- 1997 Dalip Kaur v Jeewan Ram, AIR 1996 P&H. 158 : (1996) 113 PLR 138 .
- 1998 Parsotam v Chheda Lal, (1907) ILR 29 All 76.
- 1999 Nisar Husain v Sundar Lal, (1928) ILR 50 All 202 : 104 IC 292 : AIR 1927 All 657 ; Ram Rup v Special Manager, Court of Wards, Balrampur Estate, (1934) ILR 9 Luck 365 : 147 IC 910 : AIR 1934 Oudh 55 .
- 2000 Nagendra v SaratKamini, (1922) 26 Cal WN 386 : 66 IC 879 : AIR 1922 Cal 235 .
- 2001 Amulya Krishna v Raruli Pioneer Co-operative Bank Ltd, (1940) 70 Cal LJ 397 : 187 IC 416 : AIR 1940 Cal 150 ; see also, Mahomed Juman Mia v Akali Mudiani, (1943) 47 Cal WN 682 : 77 CLJ 162 : 210 IC 67 : AIR 1943 Cal 577 .
- 2002 Midnapore Zemindari Co v Naresh Narain, (1912) ILR 39 Cal 220 : 11 IC 129; Damodar v Miller, (1921) 6 Pat LJR 166 : 61 IC 735 : AIR 1921 Pat. 102 .
- 2003 Ahmed Ali v Banguluni Veeralla, AIR 1959 AP 280 [LNIND 1958 AP 52] .
- 2004 Ghanshyam Das v Ragho Singh, (1931) ILR 10 Pat 234 : 130 IC 257 : AIR 1931 Pat. 64 ; Abdul Muhammad v Seethalakshmi, 130 IC 666 : AIR 1931 Mad. 120 [LNIND 1930 MAD 154] ; Aravamudhu Ayyangar v Zamindarini Srinath Abiramvalli Ayah, (1934) 66 Mad LJ 566 : 150 IC 930 : AIR 1934 Mad. 353 [LNIND 1933 MAD 260] .
- 2005 Naggappa Chetty v Maung Po Gwe, 12 IC 849.
- 2006 Chetak Electric & Iron Industries v Rajasthan Finance Corpn, AIR 1998 Raj 42 .
- 2007 Goudappa Appoya Patil v Shivari Bhimappu Pattar, AIR 1992 Kant. 71 [LNIND 1990 KANT 241] , p 76.
- 2008 Jaglal Rai v Makhna Kuar, (1888) All WN 246.
- 2009 Velayudu Mudali v Co-operative Rural Credit Society, (1934) ILR 57 Mad 426 : 66 Mad LJ 90 : 148 IC 1098 : AIR 1934 Mad. 40 .
- 2010 Nata Padhan v Banchha Baral, AIR 1968 Ori. 36 [LNIND 1967 ORI 18] .
- 2011 Gowardhan v Ghasiram, AIR 2002 MP 130 [LNIND 2001 MP 313] .
- 2012 Sheoratan Koer v Kamla Prasad, (1932) ILR 11 Pat 415 : 139 IC 78 : AIR 1932 Pat. 270 ; Dolandas v Dadubhai, AIR 1947 Sau 181 .
- 2013 Khemchand Shankar Choudhari v Vishnu Hai Patil, (1983) 1 SCC 18 [LNIND 1982 SC 186] , p 21; Parmeshari Din v Ram Charan, (1937) All LJ 1376 : 39 Bom LR 1019 : (1937) 41 Cal WN 1130 : (1937) 2 Mad LJ 359 : 169 IC 657 : AIR 1937 PC 260 ; Narayan Laxman v Vishnu Waman, (1957) 59 Bom LR 205 : AIR 1957 Bom 117 [LNIND 1956 BOM 158] .
- 2014 Chanda Sab v Jam Shed Khan, AIR 1993 Kant. 338 [LNIND 1993 KANT 107] , p 346.
- 2015 Pulavarthi Ammanna v Bommiredi, (1949) ILR Mad 904.
- 2016 Maqbool Alam Khan v Mst Khoderija, [1966] 3 SCR 479 [LNIND 1966 SC 37] : AIR 1966 SC 1194 [LNIND 1966 SC 37] : [1967] 1 SCJ 63 .
- 2017 Shiam Lal v Sohan Lal, (1928) ILR 50 All 290 : 106 IC 255 : AIR 1928 All 3 ; Rabindra Nath v Sarat Chandra, (1970) ILR 2 Cal 117 : 74 Cal WN 952 : AIR 1971 Cal 159 [LNIND 1969 CAL 245] .
- 2018 Jogesh Chandra Mondal v Tarulata Ghose, (1955) 60 Cal WN 1089.
- 2019 Kanagasubhu v Poornath, AIR 1947 Mad. 458 [LNIND 1947 MAD 119] .
- 2020 Rajappan v Sankaran Sudhakaran, AIR 1997 Ker. 315 [LNIND 1997 KER 101] : (1997) 1 KLJ 508 .

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

- 2021 Vijayalakshmi Leather Industries, Pvt Ltd v K Narayanan, AIR 2003 Mad. 203 [LNIND 2003 MAD 154] : 2003-1-LW 772 : (2003) 1 Mad LJ 530.
- 2022 Chothy Theyyathan v John Thomas, AIR 1997 Ker. 249 [LNIND 1997 KER 26] .
- 2023 Munnootam Kuzhiyil Vayaloli Balan Nambiar v Thekkedath Sankara Kurup, (ILR) 2014 (1) Ker 342 .
- 2024 Bengal Ambuja Housing Development Ltd v Pramila Sanfui, AIR 2015 SC 3729 [LNIND 2015 SC 537] : [LNIND 2015 SC 537] : 2015 (10) Scale 69 [LNIND 2015 SC 537] .
- 2025 Shib Chandra v Lachmi Narain, (1929) ILR 51 All 686 : 56 IA 339 : 119 IC 612 : AIR 1929 PC 243 .
- 2026 Tiloke Chand Surana v Beattie & Co, (1924) 29 Cal WN 953 : 94 IC 538 : AIR 1926 Cal 204 .
- 2027 Shiam Lal v Sohan Lal, (1928) ILR 50 All 290 : 106 IC 255 : AIR 1928 All 3 .
- 2028 Krishnaji v Motilal, (1929) 31 Bom LR 476 : 122 IC 66 : AIR 1929 Bom 337 .
- 2029 Chhotabhai v Dadabhai, (1934) 36 Bom LR 738 : 152 IC 715 : AIR 1935 Bom 54 .
- 2030 Chatturbhujadoss v Rajamanicka, (1930) 60 Mad LJ 97 : 129 IC 469 : AIR 1930 Mad. 930 [LNIND 1930 MAD 104] .
- 2031 Kulandaivelu v Sowbagyammal, AIR 1945 Mad. 350 .
- 2032 Mohd Ali Abdul Chanimonnniv Bisahemi Kom Abdulla, AIR 1973 Mys 131 ; See Shanu Ram v Bashestar Nath, (1966) 68 Punj LR 44 ; Balwinderjit Kaur v Financial Commr (Appeals), Punjab, AIR 1987 P&H. 189 , p 190 : (1986) 90 PLR 184 .
- 2033 Shafiqullah v Samiullah, (1930) ILR 52 All 139 : 123 IC 101 : AIR 1929 All 943 ; Gendmal v Laxman, (1944) ILR Nag 852 : AIR 1945 Ngp 86 ; Kanshi Ram v Kesho Ram, AIR 1961 Punj 299 .
- 2034 Dhanse D Kalal v Vasudeo, (1971) ILR Bom 530 : 73 Bom LR 293 : AIR 1971 Bom 151 [LNIND 1969 BOM 55] .
- 2035 Nagubai Ammal v B Shama Rao, [1956] SCR 451 [LNIND 1956 SC 38] , p 472 : AIR 1956 SC 593 [LNIND 1956 SC 38] : [1956] SCJ 655 [LNIND 1956 SC 38] ; Shamrao Bapuji v Kamalnayan, (1947) ILR Nag 942 : AIR 1948 Ngp 316 ; Sri Jagannath Mahaprabhu v Praval Chandra Chatterjee, AIR 1992 Ori. 47 [LNIND 1991 ORI 129] , p 51 disagreeing with the view expressed in Lakshmanan v Komal, AIR 1959 Ker. 67 [LNIND 1958 KER 163] that the effect of section 52 is to render void as against the decree holder transfer or other dealing with the suit property pendente lite and overruling Pranakrushna v Umakanta Panda, AIR 1989 Ori. 148 [LNIND 1988 ORI 32] ; Padmaja v Erattil Sanjeev, AIR 2007 (NOC) 70 Ker..
- 2036 A V Raju v H Phoolchand, AIR 2011 Mad. 83 [LNIND 2011 MAD 190] ; S N Arora v Brokers and Brokers Pvt Ltd, AIR 2011 Del 89 [LNIND 2010 DEL 1680] : (2010) 118 DRJ 631 [LNIND 2010 DEL 1680] .
- 2037 Nagubai Ammal v B Shama Rao, AIR 1956 SC 593 [LNIND 1956 SC 38] , p 602; Bhajan Kaur v Kanwar Devinder Singh, AIR 1990 P&H. 347 , p 349.
- 2038 Lalitha Kariappa v Sanjeevi, AIR 2006 Kant. 25 : (2006) 1 KCCR 119 [LNIND 2005 KANT 460] .
- 2039 Jayaram Mudaliar v Ayyaswamy, AIR 1973 SC 569 [LNIND 1972 SC 222] ; K A Khader v Rajamma John Madathil, AIR 1994 Ker. 122 [LNIND 1993 KER 273] , p 126.
- 2040 Nagubai Ammal v B Shama Rao, AIR 1956 SC 593 [LNIND 1956 SC 38] , p 602.
- 2041 Lakshmanan v Kamal, AIR 1959 Ker. 67 [LNIND 1958 KER 163] , p 71.
- 2042 Jagannath Mahaprabhu v Pravat Chandra Chatterjee, AIR 1992 Ori. 47 [LNIND 1991 ORI 129] , p 51.
- 2043 Kerala Financial Corp v Syndicate Bank, AIR 1999 Ker. 213 [LNIND 1999 KER 61] .
- 2044 Cf Joy Chandra v Sreenath, (1905) ILR 32 Cal 357; Mahomed Juman Mia v Akali Mudiani, AIR 1943 Cal 577 : 77 Cal LJ 162 : (1943) 47 Cal WN 682 : 210 IC 677.
- 2045 Umesh Chunder v Zahoor Fatima, (1891) ILR 18 Cal 164 : 17 IA 201, p 212.
- 2046 Sadu Sahu v Chandramani, AIR 1948 Pat. 60 .
- 2047 Rajan v Yunuskutty, AIR 2002 Ker. 339 [LNIND 2002 KER 213] .
- 2048 Ammayya v Narayana, 86 IC 187 : AIR 1925 Mad. 487 .
- 2049 Nirmal Kumar Neogi v Samar Ghosh, AIR 2017 (NOC) 907 Cal.
- 2050 Nallakumara v Pappayi, AIR 1945 Mad. 219 .
- 2051 Natesa Chettiar v Subbunarayana, AIR 1945 Mad. 91 .
- 2052 Bala Ramchandra v Daulu, (1925) 27 Bom LR 38 : 86 IC 126 : AIR 1925 Bom 176 .

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

- 2053 Rafiuddin v Brijmohan, 21 IC 602; Philip v Ithak, (1959) ILR Ker 820 : AIR 1960 Ker. 98 [LNIND 1958 KER 253] .
- 2054 Philip v Ithak, AIR 1960 Ker. 98 [LNIND 1958 KER 253] applying Subbayya v Yellamma, (1886) ILR 9 Mad 130; Narayana Pillai Chandrashekharan Nair v Kunju Amma Thankamma, AIR 1990 Ker. 177 [LNIND 1989 KER 273] , p 179.
- 2055 Kasturi Devi v Harbant Singh, AIR 2000 P&H. 271 .
- 2056 Venkataramana v Rangiah, (1922) 41 Mad LJ 399 : 70 IC 212 : AIR 1922 Mad. 249 [LNIND 1921 MAD 90]dissenting from Tilakdhari v Gour Narain, (1920) 5 Pat LJR 715 : 59 IC : AIR 1921 Pat. 150; Veerakutty v Ramaswami, 32 IC 31; Guru Rusappa v Santhappa, (1925) 48 Mad LJ 496 : 87 IC 568 : AIR 1925 Mad. 710 [LNIND 1924 MAD 420]; Narayan Prasad v Raj Keshore, (1951) ILR AP 613; Sudama Devi v Rajendra Singh, AIR 1973 Pat. 199.
- 2057 Kanti Ram v Kutubuddin, (1895) ILR 22 Cal 33; Lachmin Narain v Koteswar Nath, (1880) ILR 2 All 826; Venkatarama Aiyar v Rangiyar Chetty, (1924) 46 Mad LJ 258 : 77 IC 504 : AIR 1924 Mad. 449 .
- 2058 Chinnaswami v Darmalinga, (1932) 63 Mad LJ 394 : (1932) Mad WN 742 : 139 IC 309 : AIR 1932 Mad. 566 [LNIND 1932 MAD 81] ; Suramma Nayrualu v Surayya, (1934) 67 Mad LJ 312 : 155 IC 612 : AIR 1934 Mad. 585 [LNIND 1934 MAD 134] ; Annapurna Dassee v Sarat Chandra, AIR 1942 Cal 394 : (1942) 46 Cal WN 355; Rusool Saheb v Hamed Bibi, (1949) 2 Mad LJ 534 : AIR 1950 Mad. 189 [LNIND 1949 MAD 82] .
- 2059 Lachmin Narain v Koteswar, (1880) ILR 2 All 826.
- 2060 Bhikhi Mal v Debi Sahai, (1925) ILR 47 All 923 : 89 IC 219 : AIR 1926 All 179 ; Kehar Singh v Jahangir, (1925) ILR 47 All 625 : 88 IC 761 : AIR 1925 All 487 ; Durga Prosad v Gangadin, 88 IC 202 : AIR 1925 All 502 ; Kedar Nath v Bankey Behari, 11 IC 645.
- 2061 Malik Singh v Shiam Lal, (1929) 27 All LJ 537 : 118 IC 43 : AIR 1929 All 440 ; Mahmud Khan v Khuda Bakhsh, (1908) PR 26 ; Shariff Hussain v Nur Shah, 123 IC 124 : AIR 1929 Lah 589 ; Bhag v Ujagar, (1931) 22 Punj LR 283 : 135 IC 48 : AIR 1931 Lah 435 ; Waziralli v Zaver Ahmed, AIR 1949 East Punj 193.
- 2062 Bachan Singh v Bijal Singh, (1926) ILR 48 All 221 : 90 IC 238 : AIR 1926 All 180 .
- 2063 Mool Chand v Ganga Jal, (1930) ILR 11 Lah 258 : 132 IC 369 : AIR 1930 Lah 356 ; Nabir Ganai v Mohd Ismail, AIR 1960 J&K 112.
- 2064 Bishan Singh v Khazan Singh, [1959] 1 SCR 878 [LNIND 1958 SC 77] : AIR 1958 SC 838 [LNIND 1958 SC 77] : [1958] SCJ 1234 [LNIND 1958 SC 77] disapproving Kundan Lal v Amar Singh, (1927) ILR 50 All 61 : 25 All LJ 739 : 103 IC 123 : AIR 1927 All 664 .
- 2065 Bishan Singh v Khazan Singh, AIR 1958 SC 838 [LNIND 1958 SC 77] ; Aziz Dar v Sona Dar, AIR 1970 J&K 37.
- 2066 Ramakrishna v Official Assignee, (1922) ILR 45 Mad 774 : 69 IC 407 : AIR 1922 Mad. 390 [LNIND 1922 MAD 31] ; Jagivan v Shridhar, (1878) ILR 2 Bom 252; Sadu Sahu v Chandramani, AIR 1948 Pat. 60 .
- 2067 Mahomed Sadiq v Ghasi Ram, (1946) 48 Punj LR 404 : AIR 1946 Lah 322 .
- 2068 Bishan Singh v Khazan Singh, AIR 1958 SC 838 [LNIND 1958 SC 77] : (1959) 1 SCR 878 [LNIND 1958 SC 77] .
- 2069 Munnial v Bhaiyalal, AIR 1962 MP 34 [LNIND 1960 MP 22] ; Khaja Bibi v Mohammad Hussain, AIR 1964 Mys 269 ; Ali Abdul Ghanmomin v Bisahami, AIR 1973 Mys 131 .
- 2070 Anundo Moyee v Dhonendro Chunder, (1872) 14 Mad IA 101 : 8 Beng LR 122 (PC).
- 2071 Motilal v Karrabuldin, (1898) ILR 25 Cal 179 : 24 IA 170; Kedra Nath Lal v Sheonarain, [1970] 2 SCR 204 [LNIND 1969 SC 312] : AIR 1970 SC 1717 [LNIND 1969 SC 312] .
- 2072 Amrit Lal Jalan v Haryana Urban Development Authority, AIR 1999 P&H. 140 .
- 2073 Motichand v British India Corp, (1932) 30 All LJ 54 : 136 IC 78 : AIR 1932 All 120 .
- 2074 Sardar Kar Bachan Singh v Major S Kar Bhajan Singh, AIR 1975 Punj 205 .
- 2075 Palani Chetti v Subramanyan Chetti, (1896) ILR 19 Mad 257.
- 2076 Sivaramakrishna v K Mammu, (1957) 1 Mad LJ 14 : AIR 1957 Mad. 214 [LNIND 1956 MAD 18] .
- 2077 Bowles v Bowles, (1884) ILR 8 Bom 571.
- 2078 Ali Shah v Hussain, (1878) ILR 1 All 588; Nathu Singh v Anandrao, 186 IC 688 : AIR 1940 Ngp 185 ; Kurusinga v Narasinha, (1937) ILR Bom 895 : 39 Bom LR 1287 : 174 IC 116 : AIR 1938 Bom 121 .

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

- 2079 Kiernander v Benimadhub, (1931) ILR 58 Cal 598 : 134 IC 561 : AIR 1931 Cal 763 .
- 2080 Anundo Moyee v Dhonendro Chunder, (1872) 14 Mad IA 101 : 8 Beng LR 122 (PC).
- 2081 Bisonath v Radha Kristo, (1869) 11 WR 554 .
- 2082 Tangor Majhi v Jaladhar, (1909) 14 Cal WN 322 : 5 IC 691; see also note (g) above.
- 2083 Vasantha Viswanathan v EK Elayalwar, (2001) 8 SCC 133 [LNIND 2001 SC 1806] ; Govind Baba v Jijibai, (1912) ILR 36 Bom 189 : 13 IC 849; Wigram v Buckley, (1894) 3 ChD 483  ; Josua Bank Ltd v Asian Bank Ltd, (1962) ILR 2 Ker 55 : AIR 1962 Ker. 309 [LNIND 1962 KER 78] .
- 2084 Govind Baba v Jijibai, (1912) ILR 36 Bom 189. But see Talari Kevali v Visvanathan, (1915) 16 Mad LT 158 : 25 IC 133.
- 2085 Kumubi Koya v Ahmed Kutti, AIR 1950 Mad. 59 .
- 2086 Jaynal Abedin v Hyderali Khan, (1928) ILR 55 Cal 701 : 111 IC 340 : AIR 1928 Cal 441 citing Ex parte Thornton, (1867) 3 ChD 178  ; Maung Ta Pan v Maung Po Thaw, 8 IC 1208; Shanmugharsundaram v Parvathi Ammal, AIR 1945 Mad. 454 .
- 2087 Abdul Ghaffar v Ishtiaq Ali, AIR 1943 Oudh 354 : (1944) ILR 19 Luck 1 : (1943) Oudh WN 231 : 210 IC 326.
- 2088 Lokenath Sahu v Achitananda, (1912) 15 Cal LJ 391 : 2 IC 85; Wali Bandi v Tabeya Bibi, (1919) ILR 41 All 534 : 50 IC 919.
- 2089 Manika Gramani v Ellappa, (1896) ILR 19 Mad 271.
- 2090 Dose Thimmana v Krishna, (1906) ILR 29 Mad 508; Krishna Patter v Sinnaponnu, 25 IC 759; Seetharamanujacharyulu v Venkatasubamma, (1930) ILR 54 Mad 132 : 127 IC 809 : AIR 1930 Mad. 824 [LNIND 1930 MAD 81] .
- 2091 H Bira Singh v Okram Onghi Rajkumari Snatambi Devi, AIR 1984 Gau 85 (NOC).
- 2092 Shanmugha Samudram v Parvathi Ammal, AIR 1945 Mad. 454 ; Indu Bhushan v Sudhakar Choudhury, AIR 1957 Cal 106 [LNIND 1956 CAL 65] .
- 2093 Sudhamoyee v Jessore Loan Co, AIR 1945 Cal 322 .
- 2094 Hans Nath v Ragho Prasad, 59 IA 138 : (1932) ILR 54 All 189 : 136 IC 402 : AIR 1932 PC 57 ; Thakardas v Jaikishna, AIR 1938 Lah 448 : 40 Punj LR 763.
- 2095 See para (ix) below "Suit for pre-emption".
- 2096 Laxman v Ramchandra, (1932) 34 Bom LR : 139 IC 610 : AIR 1932 Bom 301; Abdul Gaffur v Ishqali, AIR 1943 Oudh 354 : (1943) Oudh WN 261 : 210 IC 326.
- 2097 Govind Baba v Jijibai, (1912) ILR 36 Bom 189 : 13 IC 849.
- 2098 Kasummunissa v Nilratna, (1881) ILR 8 Cal 79.
- 2099 Bahadur Singh v Nari Mollani, AIR 1936 Cal 279.
- 2100 Thakur Badra v Hazari Singh, (1930) ILR 5 Luck 625 : 125 IC 163 : AIR 1930 Oudh 93.
- 2101 Gangabai v Pagubai, (1939) 41 Bom LR 815, p 816 : 185 IC 87 : AIR 1939 Mad. 403.
- 2102 Nidamanuri Subbayya v Ramalakshmi, (1951) 1 Mad LJ 143; Vardammal v AJ Vyas, (1971) 1 Mad LJ 65 : AIR 1971 Mad. 371 [LNIND 1970 MAD 81].
- 2103 Seetharamanujacharyulu v Venkatasubhamma, (1930) ILR 54 Mad 132 : 127 IC 809 : AIR 1930 Mad. 824 [LNIND 1930 MAD 81], overruling Rattamma v Seshachalam, (1927) 52 Mad LJ 520 : 101 IC 800 : AIR 1927 Mad. 502 [LNIND 1926 MAD 251]; and in effect Official Receiver v Subbammu, 99 IC 564 : AIR 1927 Mad. 403; Ramchandra v Kamlabai, AIR 1 944 Bom 191; Heranya Bhusan v Gouri Dutt, (1943) 76 Cal LJ 191 : 208 IC 75 : AIR 1943 Cal 227;

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

Kallawa v Parappa Sankappa, (1945) ILR Bom 885 : 47 Bom LR 321 : 225 IC 70 : AIR 1946 Bom 207; Gangabai v Pagubai, (1939) 41 Bom LR 815; Mahesh Prasad v Mundar, (1953) ILR 1 All 284 : (1951) All LJ 39 : AIR 1951 All 141 [LNIND 1950 ALL 153]; Krishnaji Pandharinath v Ansuyabai, (1959) ILR Bom 94 : 60 Bom LR 1083 : AIR 1959 Bom 475 [LNIND 1958 BOM 46].

- 2104 Seetharamanujacharyulu v Venkatasubhamma, (1930) ILR 54 Mad 132.
- 2105 Tirthabasi v Trinyuani Dasi, (1949) ILR Cut 336 : AIR 1951 Ori. 306.
- 2106 Ram Dhun Dhur v Mohesh Chander, (1883) ILR 9 Cal 406.
- 2107 Abdul Rahman v Inayati Bibi, 130 IC 113 : AIR 1931 Oudh 63.
- 2108 Bazayet Hossein v Dooli Chund, (1878) ILR 4 Cal 402 : 5 IA 211.
- 2109 Cutterput Singh v Maharaj Bahadoor, (1904) ILR 32 Cal 198 : 32 IA 1, p 16.
- 2110 Bepin Krishna v Byomkesh, (1924) ILR 51 Cal 1033 : 84 IC 880 : AIR 1925 Cal 395; Bazayet Hossein v Dooli Chund and Mahomed Wajid v Tayyuban, 5 IA 211 : (1879) ILR 4 Cal 402.
- 2111 Lee Lim Ma Hock v Saw Ma Hone, (1924) ILR 2 Rang 4 : 79 IC 729 : AIR 1924 Rang 221; Ma Kin v Ma Bwin, (1927) ILR 5 Rang 266 : 103 IC 264 : AIR 1927 Rang 186; ALAR Chetty Firm v Maung Thive, 74 IC 54 : AIR 1923 Rang 69.
- 2112 See in this connection Ma Chit Su v National Bank of India, (1925) 30 Cal WN 769 : 91 IC 432 : AIR 1925 PC 261.
- 2113 Puran Chand Nahatta v Manmotha Nath Mukherjee, (1928) ILR 55 Cal 532 : 55 IA 81, p 84 : 108 IC 342 : AIR 1928 PC 38.
- 2114 Bepin Krishna v Byomkesh, (1924) ILR 51 Cal 1033 : 84 IC 880 : AIR 1925 Cal 395.
- 2115 K Y Chettyar Firm v Jamila, (1930) ILR 7 Rang 734 : 121 IC 792 : AIR 1930 Rang 132.
- 2116 Bhola Nath v Bhuthnath, (1925) 40 Cal LJ 393 : 84 IC 490 : AIR 1925 Cal 239.
- 2117 Shanmugha Samudram v Parvathi Ammal, AIR 1945 Mad. 454.
- 2118 Gouri Dutt v Sheikh Sukur, 75 IA 165 : (1948) All LJ 263 : 50 Bom LR 657 : (1948) 52 Cal WN 840 : (1948) 2 Mad LJ 79 : AIR 1948 PC 147; Jahar Lal Bhutra v Bhupendra Nath, (1922) ILR 49 Cal 495 : 67 IC 108 : AIR 1922 Cal 412; Mati Lall v Preo Lall, (1908) 13 Cal WN 226 : 3 IC 696; Vedachari v Narasimha, (1924) 45 Mad LJ 825 : 76 IC 793 : AIR 1924 Mad. 307 [LNIND 1923 MAD 244]; Bhaskar v Shankar, (1924) 26 Bom LR 418 [LNIND 1924 BOM 46] : 80 IC 453 : AIR 1924 Bom 467; Pancham v Kandhai, 148 IC 653 : AIR 1934 All 713; Vraj Kumar v Kunjbiharilal, AIR 1971 MP 109 [LNIND 1970 MP 87]; P Lakshmi Ammal v S Lakshmi Ammal, AIR 1991 Mad. 137 [LNIND 1990 MAD 273], p 140; Joginder Singh Bedi v Sardar Singh Narang, AIR 1984 Del 319 (NOC). See Sunil D Chedda v Suresh Bansilal Sethi, (1993) 1 SCC 231 (Supp) wherein the Supreme Court granted time to the appellant for having the list registered in the manner required by the local amendment. See also Amol v Deorao, AIR 2011 (NOC) 215 Bom.

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

- 2119 See Ram Peary v Gawri, AIR 1978 All 318; P Lakshmi Ammal v S Lakshmi Ammal, AIR 1991 Mad. 137 [LNIND 1990 MAD 273], p 149.
- 2120 Jahar Lal Bhutra v Bhupendra Nath, (1922) ILR 49 Cal 495 : 67 IC 108 : AIR 1922 Cal 412.
- 2121 Faiyaz Husain Khan v Prag Narain, (1907) ILR 29 All 339 : 34 IA 102; Shib Chandra v Lachmi Narain, (1929) ILR 51 All 686 : 56 IA 339 : 119 IC 612 : AIR 1929 PC 243; Tinoodhan v Trailokya, (1913) 17 Cal WN 413 : 18 IC 177; Parvathi Ammal v Govinda Raja, (1924) 45 Mad LJ 682 : 76 IC 876 : AIR 1924 Mad. 359; Saiyid Zahid Ali v Sadar Begam, (1910) 13 OC 50 : 5 IC 800; Durga Prasad v Madho Prasad, (1908) 8 Cal LJ 153; Dammar Singh v Nazir-uddin, (1889) All WN 91; Sital Prasad v M Md Maranwatyar Khan, 149 IC 187 : AIR 1934 All 972; Radhey Lal v Ram Lal, 152 IC 1018 : AIR 1935 Oudh 49.
- 2122 Chutterput Singh v Maharaj Bahadoor, 32 IA 1 : (1905) ILR 32 Cal 198; Raichand v Dattatraya, (1963) ILR Bom 509 : 65 Bom LR 510 : AIR 1964 Bom 1 [LNIND 1962 BOM 69].
- 2123 Nisar Husain v Sundar Lal, (1928) ILR 50 All 202 : 104 IC 292 : AIR 1927 All 657; Madan Mohan v Raj Kishori, (1917) 21 Cal WN 88 : 39 IC 182; Nageshar Tewari v Gudar Singh, (1927) ILR 2 Luck 659 : 103 IC 474 : AIR 1927 Oudh 603; Thakur Prasad v Gaya, (1898) ILR 20 All 349; Ramasami v Govinda, (1916) 31 Mad LJ 839 : 38 IC 1; Girdharlal v Liladhar, (1931) 33 Bom LR 1123 : 134 IC 1223 : AIR 1931 Bom 539.
- 2124 Mangru v Tarakeshwar Nath, [1967] 3 SCR 125 [LNIND 1967 SC 65] : AIR 1967 SC 1390 [LNIND 1967 SC 65]. See Devraj Dogra v Cyan Chand Jain, (1981) 2 SCC 675 [LNIND 1981 SC 143], p 678.
- 2125 Aziz Fatima v Mukund Lal, (1932) 30 All LJ 572 : 139 IC 166 : AIR 1932 All 480.
- 2126 Sunita Jugalkishore Gilda v Ramanlal Udhoji Tanna, (2013) 10 SCC 258 [LNIND 2013 SC 754] : LNIND 2013 SC 754 : 2013 (10) Scale 519 [LNIND 2013 SC 754].
- 2127 Kiran Chandra v Dutt & Co, (1925) 29 Cal WN 94 : 85 IC 522 : AIR 1925 Cal 251.
- 2128 Ram Charan v Parmeshwar Din, (1933) ILR 55 All 235 : 1933 All LJ 113 : 144 IC 70 : AIR 1933 All 201.
- 2129 Pranjivan v Bajju, (1880) ILR 4 Bom 34.
- 2130 K S Dhillon v Punjab Financial Corp, AIR 2012 P&H. 75.
- 2131 Baldeo Sahai v Baij Nath, (1892) ILR 13 All 371; Jamuna Devi v Mongol, (1947) ILR 25 Pat 13 : 226 IC 350 : AIR 1946 Pat. 306.
- 2132 Raghunath Gangadhar Kakade v Ghyan Bahadur Kapse, AIR 2006 Bom 150 [LNIND 2005 BOM 1261] : (2006) 3 Bom CR 802 [LNIND 2005 BOM 1261] : (2006) 108 Bom LR 24.
- 2133 Jogendra Nath v Debendra Nath, (1898) ILR 26 Cal 127; Jogendra v Fulkumari, (1899) ILR 27 Cal 77; Basappa v Bhimangowda, (1928) ILR 52 Bom 208 : 108 IC 17 : AIR 1928 Bom 65; Nand Kishore v Lallu, (1930) 28 All LJ 1286 : 132 IC 333 : AIR 1931 All 45; Chandan v Fakigir, 27 IC 940; Khemchand v Mulchand, 148 IC 731 : AIR 1934

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

Lah 457; Subramonia v Subbayya, AIR 1961 Ker. 335 [LNIND 1960 KER 339]; Sumitra Devi v Sita Sharan Bulna, AIR 2009 Pat. 83 [LNINDORD 2009 PAT 3284].

- 2134 Shanker Puri v Lal Puri, AIR 2011 (NOC) 222 Raj..
- 2135 Shaikh Khan Ali v Pestonji, (1896) 1 Cal WN 62; Ramchandra v Jaideo, 109 IC 566 : AIR 1928 Ngp 198.
- 2136 Jogendra Nath v Debendra Nath, (1898) ILR 26 Cal 127.
- 2137 Jogendra v Fulkumari, (1899) ILR 27 Cal 77.
- 2138 Baldeo Das v Sarojini Dasi, (1930) ILR 57 Cal 597 : 126 IC 408 : AIR 1929 Cal 697; Jamuna Devi v Mangal Das, AIR 1946 All 306 [LNIND 1945 ALL 4].
- 2139 Venkatrao Anantdeo Joshi v Malatibai, (2003) 1 SCC 722 [LNIND 2002 SC 707] : AIR 2003 SC 267 [LNIND 2013 JHAR 23].
- 2140 Jayaram v Avvasami, AIR 1973 SC 569 [LNIND 1972 SC 222] : (1972) 2 SCC 200 [LNIND 1972 SC 222].
- 2141 Rangaswami v Sundarpandia, AIR 1928 Mad. 635 [LNIND 1928 MAD 17] : 110 IC 543.
- 2142 Madho Singh v Skinner, (1941) ILR All 433 : 43 Punj LR 587 : 197 IC 227.
- 2143 Ghasitey v Gobind, (1908) ILR 30 All 467; Kanta Prasad v Ram Jag, (1914) ILR 36 All 60 : 22 IC 266; (distinguishing Manpal v Sahib Ram, (1905) ILR 27 All 544; Asa Singh v Naubat, (1921) 19 All LJ 43 : 61 IC 34 : AIR 1921 All 105; Kahar Singh v Jahangir Singh, (1925) ILR 47 All 625 : 88 IC 761 : AIR 1925 All 487; Bhikhi Mal v Debi Sahai, (1925) ILR 47 All 923 : 89 IC 219 : AIR 1926 All 179; Bachan Smgh v Bijal Singh, (1926) ILR 48 All 221 : 90 IC 236 : AIR 1926 All 180; Hazara Singh v Baba Khan, (1922) ILR 3 Lah 264 : 69 IC 698 : AIR 1922 Lah 403; Bhagwan v Nanak Chand, (1927) ILR 49 All 516 : 100 IC 66 : AIR 1927 All 336; Harnam Singh v Jiwan, (1906) PR 7; Prabhi v Hamira, (1919) 1 Lah LJ 209; Kedar Nath v Bankey Behari, 11 IC 645; Ram Shankar v Nanik Prasad, (1914) 17 OC 150 : 24 IC 32; Kubra Bibi v Khdaija, (1917) 20 OC 13 : 38 IC 582; Bhagirath v Raj Kishore, (1930) 28 All LJ 766 : 122 IC 887 : AIR 1930 All 354; Sheikh Salamat Ali v Nur Muhammed, (1934) ILR 9 Luck 475 : 149 IC 258 : AIR 1934 Oudh 303; Mohammad Sadiq v Ghasi Ram, AIR 1946 Lah 322; see also note (19) above “Right before Suit.”
- 2144 Kahar Singh v Jahangir Singh, (1925) ILR 47 All 625 : AIR 1925 All 487.
- 2145 Baldeo Misi v Ram Lagan, (1923) ILR 45 All 709 : 77 IC 694 : AIR 1924 All 82.
- 2146 Ram Saran v Bhagwat Prasad, (1929) ILR 51 All 411 : 113 IC 422 : AIR 1929 All 53; Hans Nath v Ragho Prasad, 59 IA 138 : (1932) ILR 54 All 189 : 136 IC 402 : AIR 1932 PC 57.
- 2147 Hans Nath v Ragho Prasad, 59 IA 138 : (1932) ILR 54 All 189 : 136 IC 402 : AIR 1932 PC 57.
- 2148 Ram Chand Lal Chand v Khem Chand Lal Chand, AIR 1974 P&H. 91.

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

- 2149 Derpal v Karamchand, (1950) ILR 30 Pat 317 : AIR 1952 Pat. 9.
- 2150 Jaynat Abedin v Hyderali Khan, (1928) ILR 55 Cal 701 : 111 IC 340 : AIR 1928 Cal 441; Dhirendra Nath v Charusashi, 90 IC 431 : AIR 1926 Cal 191; Udayu Narayan v Radheshyam, (1950) ILR Cut 550 : AIR 1950 Ori. 36 [LNIND 1949 ORI 38]; Sheikh Bikala v Sheik Ali, (1950) ILR Cut 486 : AIR 1950 Ori. 210 [LNIND 1950 ORI 34].
- 2151 Sheolal v Balkrishna, (1948) ILR Nag 573.
- 2152 Kallawa v Parappa Sankappa, (1945) ILR Bom 885 : 47 Bom LR 321 : 225 IC 70 : AIR 1946 Bom 207.
- 2153 Digambarrao v Rangarao, (1949) 51 Bom LR 623 : AIR 1949 Bom 367.
- 2154 Ramanamma v Anthamma, AIR 1955 AP 199 [LNIND 1954 AP 53].
- 2155 Harbaksh Singh Gill v Ram Rattan, AIR 1988 P&H. 60, p 64.
- 2156 Nisar Husain v Sundar Lal, (1928) ILR 50 All 202 : 104 IC 292 : AIR 1927 All 657 ; Madan Mohan v Raj Kishori, (1917) 21 Cal WN 88 : 39 IC 182; Nageshar Tewari v Gudar Singh, (1927) ILR 2 Luck 659 : 103 IC 474 : AIR 1927 Oudh 603 .
- 2157 Subbaraju v Seetharamaraju, (1916) ILR 39 Mad 283 : 28 IC 232 following Radhika v Radhamani, (1884) ILR 7 Mad 96, p 99; Ram Dayal v Asghur, 126 IC 28 : AIR 1930 All 289 .
- 2158 Ramdas Popatlal v Fakira Pandu, (1957) 59 Bom LR 46 : AIR 1959 Bom 19 [LNIND 1956 BOM 138] .
- 2159 Dev Raj Dogra v Gyan Chand Jain, (1981) 2 SCC 675 [LNIND 1981 SC 143] , p 688.
- 2160 Mangru Mahto v Shri Thakur Taraknathji Tarakeshwar Math, AIR 1967 SC 1390 [LNIND 1967 SC 65] ; Dev Raj Dogra v Gyan Chand Jain, (1981) 2 SCC 675 [LNIND 1981 SC 143] , p 688.
- 2161 Ram Chunder v Maharaj Kunwar, AIR 1939 All 611 .
- 2162 Anaji Thamaji Patil v RB Patil, AIR 1973 Bom 75 [LNIND 1971 BOM 105] .
- 2163 Ramdas Popatlal v Fakira Pandu, (1957) 59 Bom LR 46 .
- 2164 Sunita Jugalkishore Gilda v Ramanlal Udhoji Tanna (D) through LRs, 2013 10 SCC 258 [LNIND 2013 SC 754] : 2013 (10) Scale 519 [LNIND 2013 SC 754] : JT 2013 (11) SC 460 : 2013 (3) KLJ 799 .
- 2165 Lokeman Sahu v Achitananda, (1912) 15 Cal LJ 391 : 2 IC 85; Wali Bandi v Tabeya Bibi, (1919) ILR 41 All 534 : 50 IC 919.
- 2166 Lokenath Sahu v Achitananda, (1912) 15 Cal LJ 391 ; Venkatarama v Elumalai, (1923) 44 Mad LJ 357 : 72 IC 464 : AIR 1923 Mad. 442 [LNIND 1922 MAD 217] ; Periamurugappa v Manicka, (1925) 49 Mad LJ 68 : 87 IC 213 : AIR 1926 Mad. 50 [LNIND 1924 MAD 330] ; Achut v Shivajirao, (1937) 39 Bom LR 224 : 170 IC 172 : AIR 1937 Bom 244 .
- 2167 Bepin Krishna v Priya Brata, (1921) 26 Cal WN 36 : 66 IC 345 : AIR 1921 Cal 730 .
- 2168 Prataprao Narayan Pawar v Ramchandra Dalichand Sancheti, AIR 2008 9NOC 1412 Bom.
- 2169 Sumitra Devi v Sita Sharan Bulna, AIR 2009 Pat. 83 [LNINDORD 2009 PAT 3284] : (2009) 4 Pat LJR 117 ; Raghunath Gangadhar Kakade v Ghyan Bahadur Kapse, AIR 2006 Bom 150 [LNIND 2005 BOM 1261] : (2006) 3 Bom CR 802 [LNIND 2005 BOM 1261] : (2006) 108 Bom LR 24 .
- 2170 See, however, Julam Missir v Pradip Missir, AIR 1958 Pat. 115 .
- 2171 Kubra Bibi v Khudaija, (1917) 20 OC 13 : 38 IC 582.
- 2172 Ishwar v Dattu, (1913) ILR 37 Bom 427 : 19 IC 885; Bhubendra Narayan v Tarupriya, AIR 1950 Assam 119 .
- 2173 Mohammed Ismail v Ashiq Hussain, (1969) All LJ 1055 : AIR 1970 All 648 [LNIND 1969 ALL 36] .
- 2174 Dhansingh v Sushilabai, AIR 1968 MP 229 [LNIND 1968 MP 51] .
- 2175 Santa Singh v Rajinder Singh, (1965) ILR 2 Punj 97 : AIR 1965 Punj 415 .
- 2176 Harnam Singh v Jiwan, (1906) PR 7 .

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

- 2177 Hazara Singh v Bube Khan, (1922) ILR 3 Lah 264 : 69 IC 698 : AIR 1922 Lah 403 .
- 2178 Shanker Puri v Lal Puri, AIR 2011 (NOC) 222 (Raj); Mahfooz Ahmed v Neelmani, AIR 2010 MP 165 [LNIND 2010 MP 176] : [LNIND 2010 MP 176] : 2010 (2) MPLJ 603 [LNIND 2010 MP 176] .
- 2179 S N Arora v Brokers & Brokers Pvt Ltd, (2010) 118 DRJ 631 [LNIND 2010 DEL 1680] (DB) : AIR 2011 Del 89 [LNIND 2010 DEL 1680] .
- 2180 Narain Singh v Imam Din, 154 IC 724 : AIR 1934 Lah 978 .
- 2181 Rambhat v Lakshman, (1881) ILR 5 Bom 630.
- 2182 Rafiuddin v Brijmohan, 21 IC 602.
- 2183 Rajender Singh v Santa Singh, AIR 1973 SC2537 [LNIND 1973 SC 235] : [1974] 1 SCR 381 : (1973) 2 SCC 705 [LNIND 1973 SC 235] : [1975] 1 SCJ 470 .
- 2184 Ibid.
- 2185 Lalitha Kariappa v Sanjeevi, AIR 2006 Kant. 25 [LNIND 2005 KANT 460] : (2006) 1 KCCR 119 [LNIND 2005 KANT 460] .
- 2186 Nuffur Merdha v Ram Lall, (1871) 15 WR 308 ; Ali Shah v Hussain, (1879) ILR 1 All 588, p 590; Lalu Mulji v Kashibai, (1886) ILR 10 Bom 400; Chunder Nath v Nilakant, (1881) ILR 8 Cal 690 (reversed in Nilkant v Suresh Chander, (1885) ILR 12 Cal 414).
- 2187 Nilkant v Suresh Chunder, (1885) ILR 12 Cal 414 : 12 IA 171 reversing Chunder Nath v Nilkant, (1881) ILR 8 Cal 690; Radhamadhub v Manohar, (1888) ILR 15 Cal 756 : 15 IA 97; Motilal v Karrabulam, (1897) ILR 25 Cal 179 : 24 IA 170.
- 2188 Samarendru Nath Sinha v Krishna Kumar, [1967] 2 SCR 18 [LNIND 1966 SC 283] : AIR 1967 SC 1440 [LNIND 1966 SC 283] : [1968] 1 SCJ 68 ; Kedarnath Lal v Sheonarain, [1970] 2 SCR 204 [LNIND 1969 SC 312] : AIR 1970 SC 1717 [LNIND 1969 SC 312] ; Jayaram Mudaliar Ayyasami, AIR 1973 SC 569 [LNIND 1972 SC 222] : (1972) 2 SCC 200 [LNIND 1972 SC 222] . See Devraj Dogra v Gyan Chand Jain, (1981) 2 SCC 675 [LNIND 1981 SC 143] , p 678.
- 2189 See Mulla Transfer of Property Act, 5th Edn, p 264, footnote (26). See also Narayan Govind v Krishna, (1973) 2 Mys LJ 176 and Bhai Ishar Das v Govind, AIR 1975 Raj. 45 [LNIND 1974 RAJ 38] . See also Chitalia Bros v South Indian Bank, AIR 1988 Kant. 59 [LNIND 1987 KANT 40] , p 65; Radhashyam Routray v Puranjan Mohapatra, AIR 1987 Ori. 142 [LNIND 1986 ORI 180] , p 144; G Purushothama Panikkar v G Mohan, AIR 1999 Ker. 443 [LNIND 1999 KER 221] .
- 2190 Eni Ammal MSM Mudaliar, (1978) 1 Mad LJ 146.
- 2191 Varkey Varkey v NM Kurian, AIR 1982 Ker. 222 .
- 2192 Ram Nivas v Onkar, AIR 1983 All 310 , pp 311 : 316, 317.
- 2193 Samarendra Nath Sinha v Krishna Kumar Nag, AIR 1967 SC 1440 [LNIND 1966 SC 283] .
- 2194 Shanti v Chhoto, AIR 1983 P&H. 321 , p 323, para 9.
- 2195 Sujan Bhan v Guj Rai, AIR 1981 All 149 .
- 2196 Rajkishore Lal v Sultan Jehan, (1952) ILR 31 Pat 722 : AIR 1953 Pat. 58 .
- 2197 Kulandaivelu v Soubagyammal, AIR 1945 Mad. 850 ; Sarat Chandra Ghose v Chintamani, AIR 1948 Pat. 111 .
- 2198 Radhamadhub Holda v Manohar, (1888) ILR 15 Cal 756 : 15 IA 97 (PC).
- 2199 Raj Kishen v Radha Madhub, (1874) 21 WR 349 .
- 2200 Har Shankar v Shew Gobind, (1899) ILR 26 Cal 966; Bhawani Koer v Mathura Prasad, (1907) 7 Cal LJ 1; Mahomed v Hem Chandra, (1909) 10 Cal LJ 590 : 4 IC 731.
- 2201 Mathura Prasad v Desai Sahu, (1922) ILR 1 Pat 287, p 290 : 65 IC 325 : AIR 1922 Pat. 542.
- 2202 RMVVM Chettyar Firm v M Subramaniam, (1927) ILR 5 Rang 458 : 105 IC 258 : AIR 1927 Rang 289; Abdur Rauf Chowdry v NPLSP Chettyar Firm, (1929) ILR 7 Rang 113, pp 116, 117 IC 575 : AIR 1929 Rang 175.
- 2203 Kadir Mohideen v Muthu Krishna, (1903) ILR 26 Mad 230.

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

- 2204 Thammayya v Ramanna, (1926) 51 Mad LJ 475 : 98 IC 201 : AIR 1926 Mad. 1161 [LNIND 1926 MAD 204].
- 2205 Kadir Mohideen v Muthu Krishna, (1903) ILR 26 Mad 230; Thammayya v Ramanna, (1926) 51 Mad LJ 475.
- 2206 Narayan v Govind, (1929) 31 Bom LR 345 : 116 IC 271 : AIR 1929 Bom 200.
- 2207 Neelakantha v Govinda Pillai, AIR 1954 Tr&Coch 122; Krishnan v Kumaraswami, AIR 1952 Tr&Coch 61; Raman Nair v Lakshmi Ammal, AIR 1952 Tr&Coch 96; Keshvan Karunakara v Raman Keshav, AIR 1952 Tr&Coch 230.
- 2208 Mahadeo Saran v Thakur Prasad, (1909) 14 Cal WN 677 : 6 IC 40.
- 2209 Jayaram Mudaliar v Ayyaswami, AIR 1973 SC 569 [LNIND 1972 SC 222]: (1972) 2 SCC 200 [LNIND 1972 SC 222].
- 2210 Indian Cotton Co v Ram Charan Lal, 183 IC 97 : AIR 1939 Ngp 128.
- 2211 Official Receiver v Jassa Singh, (1951) 1 Mad LJ 200 : AIR 1951 Mad. 687 [LNIND 1950 MAD 213].
- 2212 Punithavelu v Bhashyam, (1902) ILR 25 Mad 406; SubramaniavRamakrishna, (1922) 42 Mad LJ 126 : 70 IC 357 : AIR 1922 Mad. 335 [LNIND 1920 MAD 21].
- 2213 Motilal v Karrabuldin, (1897) ILR 25 Cal 179 : 24 IA 170; Kedar Nath Lal v Sheonarain, [1970] 2 SCR 204 [LNIND 1969 SC 312] : AIR 1970 SC 1717 [LNIND 1969 SC 312]; Kinhi v Ahmed, (1891) ILR 14 Mad 491; Byramji v Chunilal, (1902) ILR 27 Bom 266; People's Co-operative Bank Ltd v P A Pillai, (1958) ILR Ker 480 : AIR 1959 Ker. 133 [LNIND 1957 KER 284]; Kedarnath Lal v Sheonarain, AIR 1970 SC 1717 [LNIND 1969 SC 312], p 1721.
- 2214 Jairam v Maifujali, (1948) ILR Nag 324.
- 2215 Dnyanu Bana v Gulab Eknath, (1962) ILR Bom 60.
- 2216 Shivlal v Shambhu Prasad, (1905) ILR 29 Bom 435, p 447.
- 2217 Indurjeet Koer v Poottee, (1873) 19 WR 197 .
- 2218 Nawab Zain-ul-Abdin Khan v Muhammad Asghar Ali Khan, (1887) ILR 10 All 166 : 15 IA 12.
- 2219 Piari Lal v Hanif-un-Nissa, (1916) ILR 38 All 240 : 34 IC 303.
- 2220 Maharaj Bahadur v Surendra Narain, (1915) 19 Cal WN 152 : 28 IC 898.
- 2221 K N Aswathnarayana Setty v State of Karnataka, AIR 2014 SC 279 [LNIND 2013 SC 1032]: LNIND 2013 SC 1032 : 2013 (14) Scale 565 [LNIND 2013 SC 1032]; Marakkal v SG Kannappan, Second Appeal No 1648 of 1997; decided on 22 February 2017; High Court of Madras.
- 2222 A Nawab John v V N Subramaniam, (2012) 7 SCC 738 [LNIND 2012 SC 376] : LNIND 2012 SC 376 : 2012 (6) Scale 143 [LNIND 2012 SC 376] : 2012 5 SLT 248.

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

- 2223 M T Kempegowda v G K Ramesh Kumar, (2011) 3 Kant LJ 59 : AIR (2011) 1 Kant. R 786; Yashwanta v Mahadeo, (2011) 1 Mah LJ 569 : (2011) 1 Bom CR 146 [LNIND 2010 NGP 406] : (2011) 2 ICC 259 : (2011) 101 AIC 319 : AIR (2010) 6 Bom R 225 : AIR 2011 CC 280.
- 2224 Fomento Resorts & Hotels v Minguel Martins, (2009) 3 SCC 571 [LNIND 2009 SC 2947] : LNIND 2009 SC 2947 : 2009 (1) Scale 758 [LNIND 2009 SC 2947] : 2009 1 JT 470 [LNIND 2009 SC 2947]; R D Cements Industries Pvt Ltd Lko v Collector/DM Lucknow 2010 Supp All LJ 108; Ramdeo Chaudhary v Mathura Chaudhary, 2010 SCC OnLine Pat 231 : LNINDU 2010 PAT 518.
- 2225 Haji Abdul Mateen v Sheikh Haji Firozuddin, AIR 2014 Del 111 [LNIND 2014 DEL 960]: LNIND 2014 DEL 960.
- 2226 Motilal Shivalal v Poona Cotton and Silk Manufacturing Co, (1917) 19 Bom LR 602 [LNIND 1917 BOM 22] : 41 IC 246; Ma Chit Su v National Bank of India, (1925) 30 Cal WN 769 : 91 IC 432 : AIR 1925 PC 261 , p 263.
- 2227 Lanka Ram v Sunder Gopala, (1940) 2 Mad LJ 1038 : 52 Mad LW 862 : (1941) Mad WN 66 : 195 IC 212 : AIR 1941 Mad. 208 [LNIND 1940 MAD 281] .
- 2228 Fatima v Raza Ali, (1927) ILR Luck 269 : 99 IC 219 : AIR 1926 Oudh 610.
- 2229 Narayan v Sankaran, AIR 1951 Tr & Coch 137; Pyli v Varghese, AIR 1956 Tr & Coch 147.
- 2230 Surjit Singh v Harbans Singh, (1995) 6 SCC 50 [LNIND 1995 SC 878].
- 2231 Umamoyi v Tarini Prasad, (1867) 7 WR 225; Gulabchand v Dhondi, (1875) 11 Bom HC 64; Dammar Singh v Nazir-ud-din, (1889) All WN 91.
- 2232 Lakshan v Nikunjamoni, (1923) 27 Cal WN 755 : 80 IC 538 : AIR 1924 Cal 188; Chanan Singh v Warayam Singh, AIR 1947 Lah 175.
- 2233 Veeraraghava v Subha Reddi, (1920) ILR 43 Mad 37 : 53 IC 428.
- 2234 Commercial Bank of India v Subju Saheb, (1901) ILR 24 Mad 252. This proposition of law was cited with approval in Sri Jagannath Mahaprabhu v Pravat Chandra Chaterjee, AIR 1992 Ori. 47 [LNIND 1991 ORI 129], p 51. See also, Kashi Ram v District Judge, Dehradun, AIR 1993 All 83 [LNIND 1992 ALL 289], p 85.
- 2235 Saila Bala Dassi v Nirmala Sundari Dassi, AIR 1958 SC 394 [LNIND 1958 SC 8]: 1958 SCR 1287 [LNIND 1958 SC 8]. Also see Jugalkishore Saraf v Raw Cotton Co Ltd, AIR 1953 SC 376 : [1953] 1 SCR 1369; Sardar Govindrao Mahadik v Devi Sahai, (1982) 1 SCC 237 [LNIND 1981 SC 464].
- 2236 Raj Kumar v Sardari Lal, (2004) 2 SCC 601 [LNIND 2004 SC 82] : (2004) 2 Scale 601.
- 2237 Sarvinder Singh v Dalip Singh, (1996) 5 SCC 539 [LNIND 1996 SC 1164] : (1996) 6 Scale 59.
- 2238 Dhurander Prasad Singh v Jai Prakash University, (2001) 6 SCC 534 [LNIND 2001 SC 1428] : AIR 2001 SC 2552 [LNIND 2001 SC 1428].
- 2239 Bibi Zubaida Khatoon v Nabi Hassan Saheb, (2004) 1 SCC 191 [LNIND 2003 SC 959] : AIR 2004 SC 173 [LNIND 2003 SC 959]; see also Mohanasundaram v Kishan Lal, AIR 2012 : (NOC) 341(Mad).

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

- 2240 V Chandrashekaraiah v Puttamma, (2011) 4 ICC 630 : AIR (2010) 4 Kant. R 678.
- 2241 P R Yelumalai v N M Ravi, 2015 SCC OnLine SC 274; M Lakshminarayana v DB Pradeep Kumar, (2010) 1 UP LJ 192 (DB); Keval Developers Pvt Ltd v Ashok Govindram Hurra, 2010 SCC OnLine Guj 8220 August 2 : 2010; Yashwanta v Mahadeo, (2011) 1 Mah LJ 569 : (2011) 1 Bom CR 146 [LNIND 2010 NGP 406] : (2011) 2 ICC 259 : (2011) 101 AIC 319 : AIR (2010) 6 Bom R 225 : AIR 2011 CC 280; Bagadia Builders and Developers v Defense Civilians Co-Operative Housing Society, (2010) 6 Mah LJ 841 : (2011) 2 Bom CR 636 : (2011) 97 AIC 766 : AIR (2011) 4 Bom R 479 : AIR 2011 CC 2424; Amol v Deorao, AIR 2011 (NOC) 215 Bom.
- 2242 EN Chandran v Valsan Matathil, RSA No. 855 of 2016 (B); decided on 6 January 2017 High Court of Kerala; 2017 SCC Online Ker 48.
- 2243 Rajeev Berry v Additional District Judge, AIR 2011 Utr 12 : (2011) 112 RD 777. See also Anita Kuwar v Chandra Bhushan Singh, AIR 2010 Pat. 5; Mahfooz Ahmed v Neelmani, AIR 2010 MP 165 [LNIND 2010 MP 176]; (2010) 4 MPHT 44 : (2010) 2 MPLJ 603 [LNIND 2010 MP 176]; Jayeshkumar Chhakaddas Shah v Mafaji Motiji Thakor, AIR 2010 (NOC) 387 Guj; Shashi Surana v Anant Mishra, AIR 2010 Raj. 148 [LNINDORD 2010 RAJ 87]; RLW 2010 (3) Raj 2478; Padmavati Estate Pvt Ltd v Kusum Agarwal, AIR 2009 (NOC) 583; Rama Rao v T Raghunathan, AIR 2008 AP 92 [LNIND 2007 AP 814]; (2007) 6 Andh LD 821; Sunil Kumar Gupta v Kiran Girhotra, AIR 2008 SC 140 [LNIND 2007 SC 1184]; 2008 (1) Pat LJR 172 : (2007) 8 SCC 506 [LNIND 2007 SC 1184]; Usha Sinha v Dina Ram, AIR 2008 SC 1997 [LNIND 2008 SC 704]; (2008) 7 SCC 144 [LNIND 2008 SC 704]; Shantilata v Rajaniman Nayak, AIR 2007 Ori. 69 [LNIND 2007 ORI 57]; (2007) 103 CLT 238 : (2007) 1 Ori LR 287; Pannala Renuka v Kavali Venkataiah, AIR 2007 AP 46 [LNIND 2006 AP 878]; (2006) 6 Andh LD 761 : (2007) 1 ALT 259; S Verdangan v V Raja, AIR 2007 (NOC) 854 Mad.; Major P T Choudhary v Mohammed Abdul Basheer Khan, AIR 2007 (NOC) 121 (AP); Kasturi v Iyyamerumal, AIR 2005 SC 2813 [LNIND 2005 SC 418]; (2005) 6 SCC 733 [LNIND 2005 SC 418].
- 2244 Mal Chand v Shiv Kumar, AIR 2017 Raj. 86.
- 2245 Chunni Lal v Abdul Ali, (1901) ILR 23 All 331.
- 2246 India Umbrella Manufacturing Co v Bhagabandei Agarwalla, (2004) 3 SCC 178 [LNIND 2004 SC 1] : AIR 2004 SC 1321 [LNIND 2004 SC 1].
- 2247 Lalji Mal v Nand Kishore, (1897) ILR 19 All 332; Sheo Narain v Chunni Lal, (1900) ILR 22 All 243.
- 2248 Basappa v Bhimangowda, (1928) ILR 52 Bom 208 : 108 IC 17 : AIR 1928 Bom 65.
- 2249 Krishnabai v Sawlaram, (1927) ILR 51 Bom 37 : 29 Bom LR 60 : 100 IC 582 : AIR 1927 Bom 93 followed in Amrit Lal v Kanti Lal, (1931) 33 Bom LR 266 : 133 IC 244 : AIR 1931 Bom 280; Munni Lal Shyamle v Bhaiyalal Hazari, AIR 1962 MP 34 [LNIND 1960 MP 22].
- 2250 Dhayabhai v Bapalal, (1902) ILR 26 Bom 140; Vithal v Sakaram, (1899) 1 Bom LR 854.
- 2251 Gunnanji Saran Baliya v Joyce C Salin, AIR 1990 Del 13 [LNIND 1988 DEL 359], p 18.
- 2252 A V Raju v H Phoolchand, AIR 2011 Mad. 83 [LNIND 2011 MAD 190]; LNIND 2011 MAD 190 : 2011 (3) Mad LJ 666.
- 2253 Mangat Rai v Duli Chand, (1933) ILR 55 All 735 : (1933) All LJ 1488 : 147 IC 932 : AIR 1933 All 579 .

52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.—

- 2254 Baikunthu Nath Dey v Salimulla, (1908) 12 Cal WN 590 : 6 Cal LJ 547; Scarf v Jardine, \(1882\) 7 App Cas 345
- 2255 Digambarrao v Rangarab, (1949) 51 Bom LR 623 : AIR 1949 Bom 367 .
- 2256 Marakkal v SG Kannappan, (2017) 3 Mad LJ 379.
- 2257 Muktakeshi Dawn v Haripada Mazmudar, AIR 1988 Cal 25 [LNIND 1987 CAL 51] , p 27.
- 2258 Kachhi Properties, Satara v Ganpatrao Shankarao Kadam, AIR 2011 (NOC) 185 Bom 52 : 2010 (5) All MR 366 : 2010 (5) Bom CR 43 [LNIND 2010 BOM 645] : 2010 (112) Bom LR 3263 : 2010 (5) All MR 366 : 2010 (5) Bom CR 43 [LNIND 2010 BOM 645] : 2010 (112) Bom LR 3263 .
- 2259 T G Ashok Kumar v Govindammal, 2011-1 LW 394 ; Azhar Sultana v B Rajamani, AIR 2009 SC 2157 [LNIND 2009 SC 377] : 2010 (2) ALT 14 (SC) : 2009 (2) All WC 1546 (SC) : 2009 (4) KCCR 2671 [LNIND 2009 SC 377] : 2009-3-LW911 : 2009 (3) SCALE 159 [LNIND 2009 SC 377] : (2009)17 SCC 27 [LNIND 2009 SC 377] : [2009] 2 SCR 537 [LNIND 2009 SC 377] : 2009 (3) UC 1941 .
- 2260 Rita Toor v Logical Developers Pvt Ltd, (2010) 3 RCR (Civil) 662 : (2010) 158 PLR 499 : (2010) 158 PLR 499
- 2261 Azhar Sultana v B Rajamani, AIR 2009 SC 2157 [LNIND 2009 SC 377] : 2010 (2) ALT 14 (SC) : 2009 (2) All WC 1546 (SC) : 2009 (4) KCCR 2671 [LNIND 2009 SC 377] : 2009-3-LW911 : 2009 (3) Scale 159 [LNIND 2009 SC 377] : (2009)17 SCC 27 [LNIND 2009 SC 377] : [2009] 2 SCR 537 [LNIND 2009 SC 377] : 2009 (3) UC 1941
- 2262 Santokh Singh v Shagun Farm Pvt Ltd, CS(OS) 1756/2011 : 2017 (162) DRJ 283 : 2017 SCC Online Del 6844.
- 2263 Prakash Gobindram Ahuja v Ganesh PandharinathDhonde, AIR 2017 (NOC) 631 Bom: 2016 (6) ABR 745 : 2016 (6) Bom CR 262 .
- 2264 Vinod Saluja v Sita Rani, (1996) 36 DRJ 529 [LNIND 1996 DEL 142] .
- 2265 Kacchi Properties, Satara v Ganpatrao Shankarao Kadam, AIR 2011 (NOC) 185 Bom.

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(B\) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

²²⁶⁶53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

- (1) Every transfer of immovable property made with intent to defeat or delay the creditors of the transferor shall be voidable at the option of any creditor so defeated or delayed.

Nothing in this sub-section shall impair the rights of a transferee in good faith and for consideration.

Nothing in this sub-section shall affect any law for the time being in force relating to insolvency.

A suit instituted by a creditor (which term includes a decree-holder whether he has or has not applied for execution of his decree) to avoid a transfer on the ground that it has been made with intent to defeat or delay the creditors of the transfer or shall be instituted on behalf of, or for the benefit of, all the creditors.

- (2) Every transfer of immovable property made without consideration with intent to defraud a subsequent transferee shall be voidable at the option of such transferee.

For the purposes of this sub-section, no transfer made without consideration shall be deemed to have been made with intent to defraud by reason only that a subsequent transfer for consideration was made.]

[s 53.1] Amendment

This section was Amended by the amending Act of 1929.

[s 53.2] Applicable as Rule of Justice, Equity and Good Conscience

The principle of section 53 has been adopted in the Punjab where the TP Act, 1882 was not in force,²²⁶⁷ and was also followed in Bombay before the TP Act, 1882 was extended to that Presidency.²²⁶⁸ It has, however, been held that the requirement that any suit filed to set aside a fraudulent transfer must be a representative suit, will not be insisted upon in Punjab as that is a mere technicality.²²⁶⁹

[s 53.3] Transfer

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

The transfers referred to in this section are transfers binding between the parties, but voidable in the circumstances stated in the section.²²⁷⁰ A transfer with a deliberate attempt to defeat the rights of the decree-holder, would be hit by section 53.²²⁷¹ A document made to defeat or to delay his creditors is binding on the executant, and those claiming under him.²²⁷² The transfer is valid until it is set aside, and must not be confused with benami or colourable transfers which are merely sham transfers, and not meant to operate between the parties.²²⁷³ In the collusive or benami transactions there is no transfer, but the property is merely put in a false name, and generally for the purpose of defrauding creditors. As observed by Sir Lawrence Jenkins in Mina Kumari v Bijoy Singh,²²⁷⁴ the difference is distinct though it is often flurred.²²⁷⁵ Such colourable or sham deeds do not require to be set aside,²²⁷⁶ for the real title is all along with the transferor.²²⁷⁷ In fact, the challenge based on section 53 involves the admission that the transfer is a real one.²²⁷⁸

The judgment debtor got his self acquired land secretly mutated in favour of a son without any document of title. It was held the transfer is not valid, and the son of the judgement debtor cannot raise any objection to attachment of such property in execution of a decree.²²⁷⁹ Where the plaint itself disclosed that the sale transaction was fictitious and designed to defeat the plaintiffs' creditors, the defendant being a party to that design, it was held that both parties being in pari delicto neither of them could be permitted to take advantage of such a fraudulent transaction.²²⁸⁰ If the transfer was effected by the debtor before the institution of the suit, its validity would not be affected.²²⁸¹

A transfer under which a settlement deed was hurriedly executed in favour of the wife only for the purpose of defeating the suit claim of the decree holder would clearly be a fraudulent transfer in terms of section 53 of the Act of 1882.²²⁸² Objections to sale in recovery proceedings raised by person conniving with debtor so as to defeat claims of creditor would be dismissed.²²⁸³ Where a company was purchased in good faith and for consideration, the transfer of property in favour of the Company would create indefeasible right in favour of the Company on account of such transfer, which cannot be impaired as the same is preserved by section 53 of the Transfer of Property Act,²²⁸⁴ but no right would be created on any person on strength of a forged lease deed of public land executed by Estate Officer.²²⁸⁵

[s 53.3.1] Collusive Award and Decree

The principle of the section has been extended to a collusive award and decree,²²⁸⁶ even though section 2(d) excludes transfers by the operation of law from the scope of the TP Act, 1882.²²⁸⁷ The Lahore High Court has applied the principle of section 53 to a collusive award and decree as a rule of justice, equity and good conscience, though the TP Act, 1882 is not in force in Punjab, on the ground that section 2(d) was a technical provision which did not bind the courts in Punjab.²²⁸⁸

[s 53.3.2] Deed of appointment

The exercise of a power of appointment under a settlement is a voluntary transfer, and the appointment will be set aside if made for the purpose of delaying or defeating creditors.²²⁸⁹

[s 53.3.3] Marriage settlement

A marriage settlement made to defeat and defraud creditors is voidable under this section.²²⁹⁰

[s 53.3.4] Partition

This section has been applied to cases of partition.²²⁹¹ The correctness of these decisions was a question canvassed before the Supreme Court in Sarin v Poplai,²²⁹² but the Supreme Court declined to go into the question. The correct view, it is submitted, is that a partition is not a transfer,²²⁹³ and, therefore, not strictly within the section, but that the principle of the section applies to a fraudulent partition. Where the object of the transfer is not merely to give a sharer his rightful share in the family property, but to effect the partition in such a way that such sharer would be able to defeat the creditors, as for instance, to allot to him properties which the creditors would not be able to touch and which he would be able to keep for himself, it is clearly a transaction which fulfils the requirements of this section.²²⁹⁴ A reference to arbitration which led to an award and decree for partition by which the father received an allowance in lieu of his share in the family property, was held not to be voidable under this section as there were no debts in existence at the time of the reference, and as the object was not to defeat creditors, but to safeguard the interests of a minor son.²²⁹⁵ A partition which does not provide for the payment of a Hindu father's debt is mala fide, and may be avoided by a creditor in proceedings in execution of a decree against the father.²²⁹⁶ Similarly, in a partition in which no property was allotted to the father who was indebted, it was held that the partition was illusory, although the sons were directed to pay the father's debts.²²⁹⁷ Where there is partition in a joint Hindu family or a release deed by an indebted coparcener, section 53 is attracted, if the object of the allotment of share to such coparcener is to help him defeat his creditors. Even assuming that partition in a Hindu family and release deed by a coparcener in respect of his share does not amount to a "transfer" within the meaning of section 5 and, therefore, is not within the purview of section 53, the principle of the section can be invoked. If the object of a given instrument of a partition or a release deed is not to give a sharer his rightful share in the family properties, but to effect a partition in such a way that such a sharer would be able to defeat the creditors, it would amount to a fraudulent partition.

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

Where the value of the share paid to the indebted coparcener, on his effecting a release of the share, is so meagre that he would be hardly able to pay about 25% of his total debts, that one circumstance alone would be sufficient to establish that the intention was not merely to release his share in the interest of the suit property, but to defeat and delay the creditors.²²⁹⁸ However, a partition of joint family property between a Hindu father and his son is not voidable under section 53, even if it is made to avoid attachment by a creditor of the father,²²⁹⁹ there is nothing fraudulent in the son exercising his right of partition to save his share of the property.²³⁰⁰

[s 53.3.5] Partnership

Under the Statute of Elizabeth, an assignment by an outgoing partner of his share to the continuing partner in consideration of a covenant for the payment of the partnership debts when both the partners, and the firm, were insolvent was set aside as calculated to delay the creditors, both of the partners and of the firm.²³⁰¹ It has, however, been held by the Punjab High Court that a deed of dissolution was not a transfer within the meaning of this section.²³⁰²

[s 53.3.6] Relinquishment

A relinquishment by one coparcener in favour of another cannot be said to be a transfer within the meaning of this section,²³⁰³ unless it is found to be a device to evade creditors.²³⁰⁴

[s 53.3.7] Surrender

A surrender of a life-estate has been held to be transfer within the meaning of this section.²³⁰⁵

[s 53.3.8] Waqf

A deed of waqf executed as a device to put property out of the reach of creditors has been held to be a transfer to which this section applies, the court observing that section 53 does not infringe any rule of Mahomedan law, for under that law no person can make a waqf of his entire property without making arrangements for the payment of his debts.²³⁰⁶ In such a case, it is immaterial that the transfer is valid under Mahomedan law.²³⁰⁷ It is open to a debtor to prefer one or more creditors over the others in the payment of his debts, and so long as he retains no benefit in the property, the mere circumstance that some creditors stand paid while others remain unpaid, does not attract the provisions of section 53.

Where it was found that the sale of the assets of the company was effected for the purpose of discharging the debts payable by the company and that the consideration was not inadequate, it is immaterial that the transfer was effected in favour of a person who was not a creditor.²³⁰⁸

[s 53.4] Movable Property

The section does not apply to movable property,²³⁰⁹ but the principle of the section was extended to a case of

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

an assignment of a decree when a considerable part of the consideration was secretly reserved for the benefit of the assignor.²³¹⁰ The Statute of Elizabeth, 13 Eliz, c 5, included movable property, and the principle of that statute was applied to a transfer of movable property by the Privy Council;²³¹¹ and the Rangoon High Court has applied the section as a rule of justice, equity and good conscience to the transfer of movables.²³¹²

[s 53.5] Voidable

As stated above, the section does not refer to benami transfers, ie, to transfers that are colourable or void. The transfers referred to in the section are transfers in fraud of creditors which are valid until they are avoided, and which are voidable at the option of any creditor defrauded, defeated or delayed. If the creditor sues to avoid the transfer, he must file a representative suit on behalf of all the creditors. However, he may manifest an intention to avoid the transaction otherwise than by filing a suit, eg by attaching the property transferred. Accordingly, in a Madras case²³¹³ CJ Wallis said:

I am of opinion that it is open to the judgment-creditor by virtue of section 53 of the Transfer of Property Act to attach as the property of the judgment-debtor, property which has been fraudulently transferred to the claimant with intent to defeat or delay creditors. If he knows of the transfer when he applies for attachment, the application is sufficient evidence of his intention to avoid it; if he only hears of the transfer when a claim petition is preferred under O 21, rule 58, and still maintains his right to attach, that again is a sufficient exercise of his option to avoid.

In a case from Allahabad,²³¹⁴ a creditor sued to recover his debt from his debtor and joined as parties persons to whom the debtor had transferred his property by gift, but claimed no relief against the donees and they were “exempted” from the suit. In execution of his decree against the debtor, he attached the property transferred. The donees objected to the attachment and the court held that the creditor was barred by O 2, rule 2, and by the principle of res judicata from pleading that the gift was voidable under section 53. The court said, that the creditor had the option of accepting the transaction or avoiding it—once he decided to do one thing he lost the other option, and could not be allowed to reprobate what he had approbated.

[s 53.6] Sham Transfers

A document executed nominally with a view to staying off creditors, with the express understanding that the properties sold would be reconveyed after the pressure of the creditors had subsided, is a sham transaction, the consideration also being inadequate. Such a sale creates no equities in favour of the vendees, while setting aside the sale.²³¹⁵ A sham and fictitious transfer is no transfer at all, and need not be set aside under section 53.²³¹⁶

[s 53.7] Extent

There is no equity in favour of a party to a fraud and the whole transfer is voidable, and not merely as to the excess. A transaction which is intended to defeat or delay creditors cannot be good in part, and bad in part.²³¹⁷ The only exception is where the transferee utilises the consideration paid for the discharge of a prior encumbrance, and so becomes entitled by subrogation.²³¹⁸ Where the transfer is not voidable as a fraud on creditors, but is only a preference to one creditor, effect will be given to the deed to the extent to which it is supported by consideration.²³¹⁹

[s 53.8] Creditors

The term “creditor” is correlative to debtor, and signifies a person to whom a debt, that is a liquidated, or specific sum of money is due. In its ordinary acceptation, the term implies a person who has lent money or sold goods to another which has remained unpaid. It includes not only those who have proved their claim and obtained a decree and are designated judgment-creditors, but also ordinary creditors who have still a claim to prove.²³²⁰ A Mahomedan wife is a creditor in respect of her dower debt,²³²¹ and a genuine gift by a Mahomedan to his wife in lieu of dower, even if it is a preference over other creditors, is not hit by the section,²³²² and so is a deserted Hindu wife in her claim for maintenance.²³²³ However, a Hindu wife is not a creditor if she is not entitled to separate maintenance.²³²⁴ A person claiming only an unliquidated sum for damages for tort or breach of contract is not a creditor. An auction-purchaser who is not a decree-holder would not be a creditor entitled to take the benefit of the section.²³²⁵ A subscriber to a “chitty” agreement, on entering into the chitty agreement, does not incur a “debt” for the amount of all the future installments, and in respect of such amount there is no “debtor-creditor” relationship. Neither the pricing of the chitty, nor the execution of the security bond, would give rise to a debt. The prize amount is not received as a “loan”, but is received as of right by virtue of the terms of the contract between the parties. Therefore, no “debt” due to the foreman arises by reason of the receipt of the prize amount, or of the execution of the security bond for securing future subscriptions.

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

Execution of a mortgage by the subscriber in favour of the foreman of a “chitty” is not sufficient to treat the amount under the security bond as a “debt”.²³²⁶

[s 53.9] At the Option of the Creditors so Defeated

Where a co-sharer transfers his share to his wife who sues for partition thereof, the other co-sharer dependants cannot raise the plea that the transfer was a sham transaction intended to defraud his creditors.²³²⁷ The motive of putting the property out of the reach of the creditors does not by itself make the transaction a sham one. As far as the parties are concerned, it is a perfectly valid and binding contract.²³²⁸ It is only open to the creditors to bring a suit for avoiding the sale.²³²⁹ However, where a decree-holder entitled to avoid a transfer of property elects to do so by bringing the property to sale in execution of the decree, that avoidance enures for the benefit of the auction purchaser, even though he is not himself a creditor or a transferee.²³³⁰

[s 53.10] Subsequent Creditors

The term “creditor” includes not only creditors at the time of the assignment, but also those who subsequently become creditors.²³³¹ A man who contemplates going into trade cannot on the eve of his doing so, take the bulk of his property out of the reach of those who may become his creditors.²³³² However, a voluntary settlement made bona fide by a person who has ample means outside it to pay his present debts, is not void because it is found afterwards to defeat or delay future creditors.²³³³

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A man of extravagant and dissolute habits was persuaded to reform and make a settlement of his property on his wife and children. He subsequently relapsed and incurred debts. The settlement was held not to be voidable by the subsequent creditors.²³³⁴

(2) A obtained a decree against B for the possession of certain properties and mesne profits estimated at ₹10,000. B, a month later, executed a deed of trust settling all the property of which he was then possessed on his wife and children. The settlement was voidable under section 53.²³³⁵

The distinction between the two illustrations is—in the first, the settlor was not in debt at the time of the settlement and the creditors were subsequent creditors, while in the second, the settlor was in embarrassed circumstances at the time of the settlement, and the present creditor was defeated.

[s 53.11] Defeat or Delay Creditors

This section says “creditors” and not “creditor.” The intention must be to defeat or delay creditors generally, and not to prefer one creditor to another.²³³⁶ The proceedings invoking the provisions either in section 53 of Transfer of Property Act or in Provincial Insolvency Act are to be instituted in a representative capacity and they are intended to benefit not a particular creditor but to benefit all the creditors of the transferor.²³³⁷ The meaning of the statute is that the debtor must not retain a benefit for himself. It has no regard whatever to the question of preference or priority amongst the creditors of the debtor. This was followed by the Privy Council in Musahar Sahu v Hakim Lal,²³³⁸ where the following passage occurs in the judgment of Lord Wrenbury:

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

As a matter of law, their Lordships take it to be clear that in a case in which no consideration of the law of bankruptcy applies, there is nothing to prevent a debtor paying one creditor in full and leaving others unpaid although the result may be that the rest of his assets will be rendered insufficient to provide for the payment of the rest of his debts. The law is, in their Lordships' opinion rightly stated by CB Palles, Re Moroney,²³³⁹ where he says:

The right of the creditors taken as a whole is that all the property of the debtor should be applied in payment of demands of them or some of them, without any portion of it being parted with or without consideration reserved or retained by the debtor to their prejudice. Now, it follows from this, that security given by a debtor to one creditor upon a portion of or upon all his property (although the effect of it, or even the intent of the debtor in making it, may be to defeat an expected execution of another creditor) is not a fraud within the statute; because notwithstanding such an act, the entire property remains available for the creditors, or some or one of them, and as the statute gives no right of ratable distribution, the right of the creditors by such act is not invaded, or affected. The transfer which defeats or delays creditors is not an instrument which prefers one creditor to another but an instrument, which removes property from the creditors to the benefit of the debtor. The debtor must not retain a benefit for himself. He may pay one creditor and leave another unpaid; Middleton v Pollock.²³⁴⁰ As soon as it is found that the transfer here impeached, was made for adequate consideration in satisfaction of genuine debts and without reservation of any benefit to the debtor, it follows that no ground for impeaching it lies in the fact that the plaintiff who also was a creditor was a loser by payment being made to this preferred creditor—there being in the case no question of bankruptcy.

This case is now the leading case in India on the question of preference, and the facts of it are sufficiently remarkable, for the debtor filed an affidavit that he did not intend to transfer his properties, and nevertheless transferred them during the pendency of the suit to another creditor in satisfaction of another debt. The first creditor was grossly deceived, but his case was not within the section, for, as Sir Lawrence Jenkins said in delivering the judgment of the Board in Mina Kumari v Bijoy Singh:²³⁴¹

A debtor, for all that is contained in section 53 of the Transfer of Property Act, may pay his debts in any order he pleases and prefer any creditor he chooses.

A debtor may, therefore, convey property to any creditor in satisfaction of the debt due to him even though the transfer is effected to avoid an impending execution by another creditor.²³⁴²

A was a creditor of B, and in December 1900 filed a suit to recover his debt. During the pendency of the suit in January 1901, he applied for an attachment before judgment of certain properties of B. In February, B filed an affidavit that he had no intention of alienating his properties, and the application of A was accordingly dismissed. Nevertheless, in September, B sold the properties to another creditor. The sale defeated A, but as it was for adequate consideration and in satisfaction of a genuine debt, and as the debtor reserved no benefit for himself, it was a case of one creditor being preferred to the detriment of another, and the sale was not voidable under section 53.²³⁴³

The Supreme Court has held that the fact that a debtor wishes to prefer one creditor does not lead to the

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

inference that the intention was to defeat the creditors. In this case, there was in issue a deed of settlement and the allegation was that the deed was executed to evade the payment of sales tax, but there was no sales tax order against the author of the settlement.²³⁴⁴ Even in a case before the TP Act, 1882, the Allahabad High Court held that a genuine sale for a good and valid consideration to one creditor, even if effected to defeat and delay another creditor, apart from cases in which either insolvency or bankruptcy is invoked, is not voidable.²³⁴⁵ In order that a transaction may fall under section 53, the person alleging so must clearly establish an intention to defeat or delay the creditors generally, and not merely an intention of preferring some creditors to others. The transfer must be such as to remove the property from the creditors, to the benefit of the debtor. There must be a fraudulent intention to defeat or delay the creditors, which has to be found. As a man is presumed to intend the normal and ordinary consequences of his acts, the intention with reference to a particular act resulting in a transaction, should also be adjudged only from the consequences of that act, and in the background of the surrounding circumstances. The transferee must share the fraudulent intent and must actively aid and assist the transferor in carrying out his intention of securing cash to himself to the detriment of the creditors.²³⁴⁶

Undue preference in insolvency, is dealt with in section 54, Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920 and section 56, Presidency Town Insolvency Act, 1904. A fraudulent transfer under section 53 must be distinguished from a fraudulent preference under insolvency laws. A sale effected to discharge other debts payable by the debtor-transferor is not necessarily fraudulent. Ordinarily, in the race between the creditors, he who lags behind could not complain against him who proceeded fast and succeeded in getting at the property of the debtor. Even the fact that the transferee was not a creditor would make no difference.²³⁴⁷

If the debtor sells property to another creditor to discharge the debt due to him and the price realised is considerably in excess of the debt discharged;²³⁴⁸ or if a fictitious debt is included in the consideration;²³⁴⁹ this would be evidence of an intent to defraud creditors generally. In the case of a fictitious debt, the money is retained by the transferee for the benefit of the debtor. Again, if more property is sold than is necessary, the conversion of land into cash enables the debtor to keep property out of the reach of the creditors.²³⁵⁰ Mere inadequacy of the consideration may not by itself be sufficient to make the transaction voidable.²³⁵¹

ILLUSTRATION

A, a trader at Jubbulpore, was in embarrassed circumstances. He purchased a stamp paper at Agra and secretly executed a usufructuary mortgage of all his property to his uncle B, the consideration being a fictitious book debt. One of the terms of the mortgage was that B should out of the usufruct pay allowances to the wife and children of A. The mortgage was voidable under section 53, for it put all of A's property out of the reach of his creditors and reserved a benefit for A. Moreover, the secrecy with which the transaction was effected was evidence of fraudulent intention.²³⁵²

The question whether a transfer was made with intent to defeat or delay creditors is a mixed question of law and fact, and an erroneous view of the law will vitiate a finding of fact.²³⁵³ In a Madras case,²³⁵⁴ the lower court had found that the husband had sold property in order to defeat his wife's claim for arrears of maintenance. On appeal, it was urged that there was other property sufficient to satisfy the wife's claim. The high court said that in view of the finding of the lower court, it was unnecessary to consider this contention. It is submitted that this is incorrect, and that the high court should have considered all the facts and decided the issue as one of law. In another case,²³⁵⁵ it was said that the court should consider whether the other property of the debtor was of sufficient amount and easily available. The Supreme Court has held that where a transfer is effected to defeat or delay creditors, the fact that only a portion of the transferor's property is transferred is immaterial, "unless there is cogent proof that there is other property left sufficient in value and of easy availability to render the alienation in question immaterial for the creditors".²³⁵⁶

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

If there is no question of preference, an intention to defeat creditors generally may be inferred from an intention to defeat a particular creditor.²³⁵⁷

[s 53.12] Title Disputed

In an Allahabad case, an objection under O XXI, rule 58, Code of Civil Procedure 1908 (as it stood before 1976) was raised by the judgment-debtor's wife, on the ground that her husband had gifted the disputed property in her favour and that, therefore, the property was not the husband's property. On the objection being accepted, the creditor brought a suit to set aside the order. A defence was raised that under section 53, the suit was not maintainable, as it had not been filed on behalf of all the creditors. The plea was rejected; the suit was maintainable, since the wife's case was that the property no longer belonged to the husband. There was no allegation about an intention to defeat creditors and hence, section 53 did not come into play.²³⁵⁸

[s 53.13] No Presumption of Fraud

Under the general law, if creditors sue to avoid a transfer the burden of proving that it is a fraud on the creditors rests on them.²³⁵⁹ As pointed out by the Privy Council in Mina Kumari v Bijoy Singh,²³⁶⁰ however, suspicious a transaction may be, the court's decision must rest not upon suspicion, but on legal grounds established by legal testimony.²³⁶¹ The burden initially lies on the creditors to make out a case under this section. However, when they have proved facts which are sufficient to show prima facie that the intention of the debtor was to defeat or delay the creditors, it is for the debtor to meet the case, and to explain the facts.²³⁶²

The present section leaves the question of intention to be determined according to the general law of evidence. However, according to that law, a man is presumed to intend the natural consequences of his acts, and fraud must necessarily be proved by circumstantial evidence.²³⁶³ Therefore, even under the new section, it would be evidence of a fraudulent intention if a debtor made a voluntary settlement, or a transfer for a grossly inadequate consideration without reserving sufficient property for the payment of his debts; so also, if he put all his property out of the reach of those who might become his creditors before embarking on a hazardous enterprise. However, every such case would depend upon its own circumstances, and in all cases it is a question of fact whether the transaction is bona fide or a contrivance to defraud creditors.²³⁶⁴ The mere fact that a transfer is made without consideration, as in the case of a gift, will not necessarily lead to an inference that the transfer was made with the intention of defrauding creditors.²³⁶⁵

The facts which militate against the bona fides of a transaction and whose cumulative effect is proof of fraud are many and various. Secrecy is a badge of fraud,²³⁶⁶ while notoriety rebuts a presumption of fraud.²³⁶⁷ A gift by a Hindu father of ancestral property to his grandchildren, with the assent of the son who had received consideration by payment of his debts, though made to screen the property from subsequent creditors, is not fraudulent. The Privy Council said:

That it was intended to save the ancestral property from being wasted by the vices and extravagance of Udey Narain (the son) is openly avowed on the face of the deed. But such an intention is not fraudulent. It may be carried into effect by honest means. And people who mean to effect such a design by fraud are not likely to put it in the forefront of an instrument which must be registered, which may easily be discovered by persons interested to inquire about the property, and to which attention is, likely to be drawn by the consequent mutation of names after public notice and a change of management.²³⁶⁸

It is some evidence of fraud that a time-barred debt is set up as part of the consideration for the transfer; but though this is an element to be taken into consideration, it is not so strongly suggestive of fraud as the fact that the debt never existed.²³⁶⁹ It is evidence of a fraudulent intention that the transferor is in embarrassed circumstances, and the transaction is between relations,²³⁷⁰ or members of a small community,²³⁷¹ or that the transfer was a mere cloak for retaining a benefit for the transferor.²³⁷² A transaction which is a cloak under which the transferor retains a benefit for himself is assailable,²³⁷³ unless it is found on consideration of all the surrounding circumstances that such benefit is small.²³⁷⁴ However, these are all facts to be considered along with other circumstances of the case.²³⁷⁵ The mere fact that debts are due from the transferor is not also sufficient to establish a fraudulent intention.²³⁷⁶ In Muthiah Chetti v Palaniappa Chetti,²³⁷⁷ the Privy Council held that a mortgage executed by a debtor to a relation in discharge of bona fide debts was a piece of family policy not contrary to law, although it was effected during the pendency of a suit by another creditor. Where there were no present debts, a sale to a daughter was upheld against subsequent creditors, and payment of consideration was presumed.²³⁷⁸

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) Where there was a sale of a partnership which was in embarrassed circumstances, the Supreme Court held that section 53 applied because the firm was financially embarrassed, and because the transferee belonged to the same small community as the vendor, and must have known the circumstances of the vendors, because the transfer was registered at Madras, though the property was situated at Vizianagaram, and because no evidence was led to the purpose of the transfer.²³⁷⁹

(2) A sued B for debt. B obtained an adjournment and during the adjournment sold her land to her sister C. B allowed the suit to be decreed ex-parte and when A attached the land C objected that it was hers. B professed to have sold the land to raise money to pay a debt but no demand had been made for payment of the debt and B was not solely liable for its payment. The sale was held to be voidable as in fraud of creditors.²³⁸⁰

(3) A creditor had obtained a decree against a widow who has a life-interest in property left to her by her husband. The widow in order to put the property out of the reach of the creditor surrendered her interest to her son. The surrender was voidable under this section.²³⁸¹

(4) A being in embarrassed circumstances wished to convert his property into cash so as to conceal it from his creditors. B being aware of A's object assisted him by purchasing the property. The sale was voidable under this section.²³⁸²

[s 53.14] Transferee in Good Faith and for Consideration

The meaning of the second para of sub-section (1) is that if a person acquires property for value and in good faith, that is without being a party to any design on the part of the transferor to defeat or delay creditors, his rights will not be affected by the section, although the transferor's intention may have been fraudulent.²³⁸³ In a judgment approved by the Privy Council,²³⁸⁴ the Madras High Court said that under section 5 of the TP Act, 1882, good faith as well as consideration is made, in terms, as an essential condition for the validity of the transfer. The judgment quotes a passage from Twyne's case,²³⁸⁵ where Lord Coke said "a good consideration doth not suffice if it be not also bona fide." There are many Indian decisions to the same effect.²³⁸⁶ If the transferee is aware of the fraudulent intention of the transferor and aids and abets it, the transfer is voidable.²³⁸⁷ The knowledge and intention of the transferee are the determining factors.²³⁸⁸ If the vendor's intention was to convert his immovable property into cash so as to put it out of the reach of his creditors, and the vendee was aware of that intention, the sale would be voidable although the consideration was paid.²³⁸⁹ However, if the vendee was not a party to the fraud the sale would be valid,²³⁹⁰ even if the vendee were aware of an impending execution.²³⁹¹ A debtor created a charge on two houses for the maintenance of his son's wife in pursuance of an ante-nuptial agreement. But although the evidence showed that his intention was to defraud his creditors, the charge was not set aside as there was no proof that his daughter-in-law was a party to the fraud.²³⁹² However, in a case where the wife was a party to the fraud and the celebration of the marriage was part of a scheme to protect the property against creditors, the consideration of marriage was held to be insufficient to support the settlement.²³⁹³ In a case from Allahabad,²³⁹⁴ the first wife of a Mahomedan filed a suit for dower. Five days later, the husband transferred his property to his second wife for her dower. The court said that the transfer was voidable if the second wife combined with her husband with the improper object of defeating the first wife's claim. It is submitted, however, that the second wife was a creditor for her dower, and that her primary object must have been to secure her own dower, and the case was merely one of preference.

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

A preference of one creditor to another, even though fraudulent in the law of bankruptcy, is not fraudulent under this section. A creditor is a transferee in good faith if the transfer is made in satisfaction of his debt even though he is aware that proceedings have been taken by another creditor for the recovery of his debt, for his primary object is to protect himself, and not to defeat other creditors.²³⁹⁵ Therefore, if a transfer is to a creditor in satisfaction of a pre-existing debt, no question of good faith arises.²³⁹⁶ Good faith is not defined in the TP Act, 1882; and the definition in section 3(22) of the General Clauses Act, 1897, does not apply as the TP Act, 1882 was enacted in 1882. That definition provides that a thing shall be deemed to be done in good faith where it is in fact done honestly, irrespective of whether it is done negligently. An honest blunderer or stupid man who fails to make the usual inquiries is still acting in good faith, unless it is found that the failure to make inquiries was deliberately done to avoid discovering circumstances indicating fraud which are suspected to exist.²³⁹⁷

A transferee who has constructive notice of a fraud is not a transferee in good faith. In a suit for recovery of the property held Benami, a notice under certificate of posting was sent as soon as the real owner came to know of the clandestine sale and after five days of sending of this notice, the sale deed was executed, the court held that in the circumstances it would be presumed that he executed such sale after the notice was duly served on him. Consequently he was not a bona fide purchaser for value without notice and the suit was decreed in favour of the real owner.²³⁹⁸ In a Madras case,²³⁹⁹ the creditor A had obtained a decree against his debtor B, and attached B's property. B had previously sold the property to C, who preferred an objection to the attachment which was allowed. C then sold it to D who purchased on the faith of the order allowing C's objection. A filed a suit and obtained a declaration that the sale to C was in fraud of creditors. The court also held that D was not a transferee in good faith. He had seen the order of C's objection which showed that title would be decided in the suit which A was to file; and yet he made no inquiry of A.

It appears from the case last cited that the protection extends to an innocent purchaser from a transferee who was a party to a fraud on creditors. Where a man in debt executed a deed of gift of his furniture in favour of his wife, who a fortnight after a creditor's decree, granted a bill of sale of the furniture in favour of a person who took for value and without notice, the court held that though the wife's title was subject to defeasance on a creditor's suit under Statute of Elizabeth, 13 Eliz, c 5 as being a fraud on creditors, yet the title of the bona fide purchaser for value under the bill of sale was a valid one.²⁴⁰⁰ There is an apparently contrary decision in Allahabad,²⁴⁰¹ but in that case the original transfer was collusive and fictitious so that there was no title to convey to the second transferee. In a subsequent Allahabad case,²⁴⁰² the creditor was held to be estopped, as his omission to impeach the first transfer enabled the transferee to make a second transfer.

[s 53.15] Onus

The onus of proving want of good faith in the transferee is on the creditor who impugns the transaction.²⁴⁰³ But if fraud is established, the onus of proving his good faith is shifted to the transferee.²⁴⁰⁴ The issues in a suit to set aside a sale under section 53 are, therefore,—

- (1) was the transfer made with intent to defeat and delay creditors;
- (2) if so, was the purchaser a transferee in good faith and for consideration.

The onus of proving the first issue lies on the creditors; and if that be established the onus of proving the second issue will be on the transferee.²⁴⁰⁵

Under section 53, the burden of proof is on the person who alleges fraud, and mere suspicion is not sufficient to set aside the deed.²⁴⁰⁶ In order to challenge the transfer of property on the ground of fraud in transfer of

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

property, it is pertinent that the petitioner to explain under what circumstances he was concerned with the property and how he could get possession of the property.²⁴⁰⁷

If the transferee proves that he paid the fair value of the property, the court will lean towards holding that he acted bona fide.²⁴⁰⁸

[s 53.16] Consideration

This word is used in the same sense as in the Indian Contract Act, 1872 and, therefore, excludes natural love and affection. Transfers for natural love and affection are dealt with as transfers without consideration.²⁴⁰⁹ A time-barred debt is consideration under this section, but the inclusion of a time-barred debt in the consideration might be treated as some evidence of a fraudulent intention.²⁴¹⁰ A dower debt is a valid consideration under this section.²⁴¹¹ In a curious case from Madras, a man who was heavily indebted transferred all his property to the children of his first wife in consideration of her relations allowing him to marry a second wife, and it was held that this was valid consideration, and that the transfer was not a fraud on creditors.²⁴¹²

If the debtor sells or mortgages his property, and the consideration stated is in excess of what is paid, or if the vendee or mortgagee is a creditor and the consideration stated is in excess of the debt, with an understanding that the excess is to be retained for the benefit of the debtor, and that the transaction is to be a shield against creditors, the sale or mortgage is voidable under this section.

A transfer by a Mahomedan husband in favour of his wife in payment of a deferred dower is a transfer for good consideration, and is not void.²⁴¹³

[s 53.17] Insolvency

The provisions of sub-section (1) saving the law of insolvency were inserted by the amending Act of 1929.

The object of the law of insolvency is to provide for an equal distribution of assets amongst the creditors, and its provisions are, therefore, more stringent. A preference to one creditor which would be valid under section 53 of the TP Act, 1882 would, if the debtor were adjudged insolvent within three months, be deemed fraudulent under section 56 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, 1909, or section 54 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920. Similarly, a voluntary transfer may be set aside under those Acts if the transferor is adjudged insolvent within two years, although it may not offend against section 53 of the TP Act, 1882. Again, a transfer by a debtor of all his property to a particular creditor is not necessarily voidable under this section,²⁴¹⁴ but under the Insolvency Acts it may operate as a fraudulent transfer or a fraudulent preference. The cases of fraudulent preference falling under the Insolvency Acts must be distinguished from those falling under this section.²⁴¹⁵

ILLUSTRATION

A debtor owed money to a relation A, who, knowing that the debtor was insolvent and that another creditor B was pressing for payment required the debtor to secure his debt by a mortgage. This he was perfectly entitled to do for a preference to one creditor is not voidable under section 53 of the TP Act, 1882 even though no assets are left for other creditors. But if the debtor had been adjudged insolvent within three months of the mortgage, the mortgage would have been voidable as against the Official Receiver.²⁴¹⁶

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

An assignment of all his property to trustees for the benefit of his creditors is an act of insolvency on the part of the assignor.²⁴¹⁷

Insolvency courts have jurisdiction to decide questions of title both under section 7 of the Presidency-Towns Insolvency Act, 1909, and under section 4 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920. Hence, these courts have jurisdiction to decide whether a transaction is voidable under section 53 of the TP Act, 1882 on an application made by the Official Assignee,²⁴¹⁸ or the Official Receiver,²⁴¹⁹ as the case may be. This jurisdiction is not exclusive, and in some cases the court of insolvency would decline to exercise jurisdiction, and leave the matter to be determined in a regular suit.²⁴²⁰ It has also been held that the insolvency courts are the only courts having jurisdiction to avoid a transfer in preference of a creditor or as not being a transfer in good faith and for value and executed within two years of the date of adjudication, and that no such question can be raised in a court of ordinary civil jurisdiction.²⁴²¹ This, however, does not accord with English Law, and the correctness of these decisions is very doubtful.

[s 53.18] Creditor's Suit

A creditor's suit to avoid a transfer must be a suit on behalf of not only himself, but the whole body of creditors.²⁴²² When a creditor seeks a declaration of conveyance by transferor as fraudulent transfer a suit filed by him under section 53 should be representative in nature. Where the suit filed is neither in representative capacity nor on behalf of some other persons or creditors, non complain of requirement would enable the other creditors to join as party to the suit and the suit would not be maintainable.²⁴²³ This is because the debtor might otherwise be exposed to a multiplicity of suits by each and every creditor. It has, however, been held that it is enough if the suit is in substance on behalf of all creditors even though it is not a representative suit as such.²⁴²⁴ A single creditor can, of course, file a suit if he is the only creditor.²⁴²⁵ A creditor may not approbate and reprobate, for if he has sought to make the transferee liable as a universal donee under section 128 of this TP Act, 1882, he may not afterwards impugn the gift as a gratuitous transfer with intent to defeat and delay creditors.²⁴²⁶ The fact that the creditors have been paid off since the date of the transfer is immaterial.²⁴²⁷

English law allows a creditor if he can prove that he is a creditor to sue on his own behalf alone, and he may obtain an order declaring the deed void against creditors. However, the court will not give consequential directions for the satisfaction of his debt, unless he is in a position to levy execution against the property.²⁴²⁸ This exception has been followed in some Indian cases where an attachment of property has been discharged at the instance of a fraudulent transferee, and the decree-holder has been allowed to sue on his own account alone under O XXI, rule 63 of Code of Civil Procedure 1908 to establish his right to enforce his decree against the property.²⁴²⁹ The express direction in the fourth paragraph of the section has the effect of overruling these cases;²⁴³⁰ but this has been overlooked in some subsequent decisions.²⁴³¹

The representative suit would be under O I, rule 8 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and the title of the suit would be—

AB on behalf of himself, and all other creditors of CD Plaintiff

v

CD Defendant

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

The decree would be in the form of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908, sch I, appendix D(13), declaring the transfer void as against the plaintiff and all other creditors, if any, of the defendant. The Privy Council have observed that an issue under section 53 cannot be raised and no decree for setting aside transfers under that section can be passed except in a suit properly constituted for that purpose.²⁴³² Although a creditor cannot sue on behalf of himself alone, yet, he is not obliged to defend a suit on behalf of the whole body of creditors.²⁴³³ The Madras High Court at one time took a different view.²⁴³⁴ The defendant creditor had attached property in execution of a decree for debt, but it had been fraudulently sold by the judgment-debtor to the plaintiff. The plaintiff's objection to the attachment was dismissed, and he then sued for a declaration of his title. The court held that the defendant could not resist the claim as he had failed to have the sale (which was voidable at his option) declared to be void. These cases were, however, overruled by a Full Bench of the same High Court in Ramaswami Chettiar v Malappa Reddiar,²⁴³⁵ where CJ Wallis explained that a transaction voidable at the option of a creditor may be avoided by an unequivocal declaration of an intention to avoid it, and that an attachment by a creditor was an exercise by him of his option to avoid the transfer; the learned judge held that section 53 may be pleaded as a personal defence by an attaching creditor, although he has not himself filed a representative suit to avoid the transfer, and this decision has been affirmed by the Supreme Court.²⁴³⁶ The amended section 53(1) does not refer to a defence to a suit and if a defence under section 53(1) could be raised by an attaching creditor defeated under the section, such a defence need not be in a representative capacity. There was nothing in section 53(1), as it originally stood, which precluded a defence by an attaching creditor to a suit to set aside a summary order under O XXI, rule 63 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908 that the sale in favour of the plaintiff is vitiated by fraud, and the amendment made no change in this matter.²⁴³⁷ Other high courts have also decided the point in the same way.²⁴³⁸

ILLUSTRATION

A sells property to B in a fraud of creditors. Creditor C attaches the property in execution of a decree against A. B objects to the attachment and C maintains his right to attach and B's objection is dismissed. B then sues for a declaration of his right to the property. C may plead in defence that the transfer to B was in fraud of creditors.²⁴³⁹

[s 53.19] Limitation

A creditor's suit to avoid the transaction does not affect the validity of the transaction as between the parties to it and so, Article 91 of the Limitation Act, 1908, which corresponds to Article 59 of the Act of 1963 was held not applicable.²⁴⁴⁰ It has been held that the suit was governed by Article 120 of the Act of 1908 which provided for a period of six years from the time when the right to sue accrued.²⁴⁴¹ The article of the 1963 Act corresponding to Article 120 is Article 113 which, however, prescribes a limitation period of only three years. In a Madras case,²⁴⁴² the judges differed as to whether the right to sue accrues when the creditor exercises the option to avoid the transaction, or when he becomes aware of the facts which entitle him to the relief. In Abdulla Khan v Purshottam,²⁴⁴³ the Bombay High Court held that the right to sue accrues to the plaintiff only when he decides to exercise the option given to him by section 53 to challenge the transfer, and to seek to recover his dues out of the property transferred.

The effect of the declaration under this section is that the transaction does not affect the creditor's right to recover their claims from the property transferred. The declaration still leaves the deed operative as between the parties, and does not amount to cancelling or setting aside the deed, because the creditors have no title or interest in the property to set aside the deed as between the parties thereto. Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908, corresponding to Article 113 of the Act of 1963, governs such a suit, and the time begins to run from the date on which the court makes the declaration.²⁴⁴⁴

[s 53.20] Sub-section (2)—Subsequent Transferees

The second sub-section refers to the case when a subsequent transfer is in competition with a prior transfer without consideration. A bona fide transferee even from a fraudulent transferee is protected.²⁴⁴⁵ The voluntary transfer is not displaced unless it is fraudulent, and whether it is fraudulent is purely a question of fact. The subsequent transfer for consideration does not of itself create a presumption that the voluntary transfer which preceded it was fraudulent.

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

An auction purchaser at a court sale is a person who steps in by operation of law, and is not a subsequent transferee within the meaning of this section.²⁴⁴⁶

[s 53.21] Benami Transactions

The provisions of section 53 are not affected by any of the provisions of the Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, 1988.²⁴⁴⁷

2266 Subs. by Act 20 of 1929, section 15, for the original section.

2267 Lakhmi Narain v Tara Singh, (1901) PR 6 ; ChampovShankar Das, (1912) PR 74 : 14 IC 232; Ibrahim v Jiwan Das, 75 IC 1043 : AIR 1924 Lah 707 ; Mohammad Ishaq v Mohammad Yusuf, (1927) ILR 8 Lah 544 : 101 IC 172 : AIR 1927 Lah 420 ; Tapassi v Raja Ram, 115 IC 417 : AIR 1930 Lah 136 ; Chattru Mal v Majidan, (1934) ILR 15 Lah 849 : 150 IC 888 : AIR 1934 Lah 460 ; Gobind Ram v Chhogmal, 152 IC 472 : AIR 1934 Lah 161 ; Shallo Devi v Mohinder Singh, AIR 1971 P&H. 325 .

2268 Rangilbhai v Vinayak, (1887) ILR 11 Bom 666; Motilal Ravichand v Utam Jagjivandas, (1889) ILR 13 Bom 434. See also Musadee Mahomed v Meerza Ally, (1854) 6 Mad IA 27 and Suba Bibi v Balgobind, (1886) ILR 8 All 178; Zafruf Hasan v Farid-ud-din, AIR (1946) PC 177 : 47 Bom LR 2391 : (1945) 49 Cal WN 115.

2269 Badri Dass v Chunilal, (1961) 63 Punj LR 319 : AIR 1961 Punj 398 ; Shallo Devi v Mohinder Singh, AIR 1971 P&H. 325 . And see State of Punjab v Giani Bir Singh, (1968) ILR 1 Punj 10 : AIR 1968 Punj 479 .

2270 Krishna Kumar v Jai Krishna, (1917) 21 Cal WN 401 : 29 IC 690; Bhagwan Lal v Rajendra, 77 IC 1 : AIR 1923 Pat. 564 , p 567; Krishnabai v Debi Singh, 71 IC 409 : AIR 1923 Ngp 195 ; Ram Rao v Durga Ajodhya Pir Saigh, (1925) ILR 47 All 83.

2271 Pujabhai Virabhai Sarvaiya v Jitendra Keshubhai Sutreja, 2010 SCC OnLine Guj 316; Surinder Kaur v Parminder Kaur, (2010) 4 RCR (Civil) 422 : (2010) 4 ICC 779 (P&H).

2272 Anant Roman v Arunachalam, AIR 1952 Tr&Coch 105.

2273 Budhermal v Verharam, AIR 1946 Sau 78 ; Purna Chandra v Sarojendra, AIR 1953 Cal 251 [LNIND 1951 CAL 169] ; Kubra Begum v Jainandan, (1955) ILR 34 Pat 133 : AIR 1956 Pat. 270 ; Bandaru Subbaaidu v Alluri Satyanarayana, AIR 1962 AP 25 [LNIND 1960 AP 282] . For the distinction between collusion and fraud, see Nagubai Ammal v B Shama Rao, [1956] 1 SCR 451 [LNIND 1956 SC 38] , p 463 : AIR 1956 SC 593 [LNIND 1956 SC 38] : [1956] SCJ 655 [LNIND 1956 SC 38] . See however, Keshab Chandra Nayak v Laxmidhar Nayak, AIR 1993 Ori. 1 [LNIND 1992 ORI 8] , p 8; Yanala Maheshwari v Ananthula Sayamma, AIR 2007 AP 57 [LNIND 2006 AP 1091] : (2006) 6 Andh LD 623.

2274 Mina Kumari v Bijoy Singh, (1916) ILR 44 Cal 662 : 44 IA 72 : 40 IC 242 : AIR 1916 PC 232 .

2275 See for instance Velachand v Sitaram, (1925) 27 Bom LR 205 : 86 IC 873 : AIR 1925 Bom 287 ; China Mal v Gul Ahmad, (1923) 5 Lah LJ 435 : 73 IC 719 : AIR 1923 Lah 478 .

2276 Petherpermal v Muniandi, (1908) ILR 35 Cal 551 : 35 IA 98; Swaminatha v Rukmani, 55 IC 766; Alagappa v Dasappa, (1913) 24 Mad LJ 293 : 18 IC 332; Saraswati v Mahabir, 109 IC 272 : AIR 1928 All 476 ; Parkash Narain v Raja Birendra, (1931) ILR 7 Luck 131 : 133 IC 51 : AIR 1931 Oudh 333 ; Mahendra v Suraj Kumar, AIR 1958 Pat. 568 .

2277 Sheo Gobind Koeri v Ram Asrav Singh, 180 IC 615 : AIR 1939 Pat. 5 .

2278 Chumar v Alima, AIR 1998 Ker. 139 [LNIND 1997 KER 333] .

2279 Eknath Nana Shinde v Shankarappa Chanborappa Shinde, AIR 1999 Bom 22 [LNIND 1998 BOM 796] : (1940) ILR All 542 : (1940) All LJ 470 : 190 IC 337; Jagadamba Pande v Ram Khilawat, AIR 1942 All 344 : AIR 1942 Lah 309 : 203 IC 81; Jamnabai v Dattareya, AIR 1936 Bom 160 : 38 Bom LR 251 : 162 IC 260.

2280 Sultan Ahmad v Rashid Ahmad, AIR 1990 All 47 [LNIND 1989 ALL 152] .

2281 Rajan Gopinathan v D Jayashree Nayan, AIR 2010 (NOC) 388 Ker..

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

- 2282 Ayitam Venkata Anjani v Ganeshula Uma Parvathi, 2015 (6) Andh LD 504 : 2016 (1) ALT 160 .
- 2283 Sadashiv Prasad Singh v Harender Singh, (2015) 5 SCC 574 [LNIND 2014 SC 18] : AIR 2014 SC 1078 [LNIND 2014 SC 18] : 2014 (2) AJR 461 .
- 2284 Europlast India Ltd, Re, 2010 Supp Bom CR 425 ; (2010) 158 COMP CASES 390.
- 2285 Usha Mehta v Govt of AP, (2012) 12 SCC 419 [LNIND 2012 SC 680] .
- 2286 Akramunnissa Bibi v Mustafa-un-nissa Bibi, (1929) ILR 51 All 595 : 116 IC 445 : AIR 1929 All 238.
- 2287 Ramanathan v Unniammal, (1943) ILR Mad 47 : AIR 1942 Mad. 632 [LNIND 1942 MAD 136]; Thiruvengada Mudaliar v T Narayana Reddiar, AIR 1959 Mad. 141 [LNIND 1958 MAD 19].
- 2288 Chattru Mal v Majidan, (1934) ILR 13 Lah 849 : 150 IC 888 : AIR 1934 Lah 460.
- 2289 Joshua v Alliance Bank, (1895) ILR 22 Cal 185.
- 2290 Alamelu Achi v Meenakshi, AIR 1960 Mad. 536 [LNIND 1959 MAD 158].
- 2291 Vinayak v Moreshwar, AIR 1944 Ngp 44; Firm Schwebo v Subbiah, AIR 1944 Mad. 381 [LNIND 1944 MAD 78]; Fazlul Rahim khan v Nawab Kishore, (1952) All LJ 101 : AIR 1952 All 226 [LNIND 1951 ALL 209]. See, however, Panchali v Panniyodan Manni, AIR 1963 Ker. 66 [LNIND 1962 KER 174].
- 2292 Sarin v Poplai, [1966] 1 SCR 349 [LNIND 1965 SC 184] : AIR 1966 SC 432 [LNIND 1965 SC 184]: [1966] 1 SCJ 199 [LNIND 1965 SC 184] : [1966] 1 SCA 285 [LNIND 1965 SC 184].
- 2293 See note under section 5, "Partition".
- 2294 Vinayak v Mureshwar, AIR 1944 Ngp 44; Rattan Devi v Jagadhar Mal, AIR 1956 Punj 46.
- 2295 Shantilal v Munshilal, (1932) ILR 56 Bom 595 : 34 Bom LR 862 : 139 IC 820 : AIR 1932 Bom 498.
- 2296 Balusami Ayyar Re, (1928) ILR 51 Mad 417 : 112 IC 541 : AIR 1928 Mad 735.
- 2297 Picha Mooppanar v Vetu Pillai, AIR 1947 Mad. 203 [LNIND 1946 MAD 190].
- 2298 Sushilabehn v Anandilal Bapalal, AIR 1983 Guj 126 [LNIND 1982 GUJ 217], paras 12 and 14.
- 2299 Krishnasami v Ramasami, (1899) ILR 22 Mad 519; Kameswaramna v Venkata Subba Row, (1915) ILR 38 Mad 1120 : 24 IC 474; Chottelal v Seth Lakmichand, 94 IC 282 : AIR 1926 Ngp 355; Gaya Prasad v Murlidhar, (1928) ILR 50 All 137 : 104 IC 406 : AIR 1926 All 714.
- 2300 See Firm Schwebo v Subbiah, AIR 1944 Mad. 381 [LNIND 1944 MAD 78].
- 2301 Re Edwards-Wood, Ex-parte Mayou, (1865) 4 De G J & Sm 664.

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

- 2302 Ishwar Dass v Radha Mal, (1960) 62 Punj LR 224 : AIR 1960 Punj 417.
- 2303 Sunderlal v Gursaran, AIR 1938 Oudh 65.
- 2304 Official Assignee v TD Tehrani, AIR 1972 Mad. 187 [LNIND 1971 MAD 192].
- 2305 Natha v Dhunbaiji, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 1; Shivu Shidda v Lakhmichand, (1939) 41 Bom LR 1007 : AIR 1939 Bom 496; Joti Prasad v Bhargava, (1946) ILR All 341; Chidambara v Seniappa, (1965) ILR 1 Mad 691 : AIR 1965 Mad. 337 [LNIND 1964 MAD 114]; cf Sadashiv v Trimbak, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 146.
- 2306 Ahmad Husain v Kallu, (1929) 27 All LJ 460 : 117 IC 97 : AIR 1929 All 277; Bismillah Begum v Tahsin Ali Khan, (1930) ILR 52 All 710 : 124 IC 722 : AIR 1930 All 462; Mohamed Ali v Bismillah Begum, (1930) 33 Bom LR 155 : (1931) 35 Cal WN 324 : 128 IC 647 : AIR 1930 PC 255; Har Prasad v Mahomed Usman, (1942) All LJ 645 : 205 IC 30 : AIR 1943 All 2.
- 2307 See Har Prasad v Mahomed Usman, (1942) All LJ 645.
- 2308 Ibid. See also UOI v Rajeswari & Co, AIR 1986 SC 1748 [LNIND 1986 SC 209]: [1986] 3 SCR 175 [LNIND 1986 SC 209] : (1986) 3 SCC 426 [LNIND 1986 SC 209].
- 2309 Chidambaram v Sami Aiyar, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 6; cf Motilal v Kashibai, AIR 1938 Ngp 249 .
- 2310 Chidambaran v Srinivasa, (1914) ILR 37 Mad 227 : 23 IC 714 (PC).
- 2311 Abdool Hye v Mir Mohamed, (1883) ILR 10 Cal 616 : 11 IA 10.
- 2312 Ah Foon v Hoe Lai Pat, (1932) ILR 9 Rang 614 : 135 IC 651 : AIR 1932 Rang 13 .
- 2313 Ramaswami Chettiar v Mallappa Reddiar, (1920) ILR 43 Mad 760 : 59 IC 947; Narratan Lal v Stephen, 68 IC 369 : AIR 1922 Pat. 572 .
- 2314 Sachitanand v Radhapat, (1928) 26 All LJ 524 : 116 IC 86 : AIR 1928 All 234 .
- 2315 Prasad v Govindaswami Mudaliar, AIR 1982 SC 84 [LNIND 1981 SC 455] .
- 2316 Jangali Tewari v Babban Tewari, AIR 1982 All 316 [LNIND 1982 ALL 1] .
- 2317 Chidambaram v Sami Aiyar, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 6; Palaniappa v Official Receiver, 25 IC 948; Bhikabai v Panachand, (1919) ILR 43 Bom 707 : 52 IC 682; Visvananda v Venkata, (1927) Mad WN 1 : 99 IC 709 : AIR 1927 Mad. 278 [LNIND 1926 MAD 317] ; disting Krishna Kumar v Jai Krishna, (1917) 21 Cal WN 401 : 29 IC 690; Rajbahadur Mudaliar v Thiruvengada Mudaliar, 106 IC 651 : AIR 1928 Mad. 20 ; Sama Row v Doraisami, (1913) 24 Mad LJ 266 : 18 IC 768; Mula Ram v Jiwanda, (1923) ILR 4 Lah 211 : 72 IC 452 : AIR 1923 Lah 423 ; Madan Gopal v Leheri Mal Janki, (1931) ILR 12 Lah 194 : 130 IC 62 : AIR 1930 Lah 1027 ; Appalaraju v Krishnamurthy, 135 IC 582 : AIR 1932 Mad. 182 ; Janki Das v Gulzar, (1932) ILR 12 Lah 763 : 131 IC 383 : AIR 1932 Lah 174 ; Warayam Singh v Thakur Das, (1935) ILR 16 Lah 680 : 158 IC 254 : AIR 1935 Lah 404 ; Muthuvasu Chettiar v Velu Muruga Nadar, AIR 1939 Mad. 745 . But see Nanjamma v Rangamma, (1953) 2 Mad LJ 737 : AIR 1954 Mad. 173 [LNIND 1953 MAD 9] ; Govinda Marar v Sivarama Kurup, AIR 1972 Ker. 68 .
- 2318 Palamalai v South Indian Export Co, (1910) ILR 33 Mad 334 : 5 IC 33; Ammachukutty v Ammakutty Haji, 29 IC 583; Subraya v Perumal, 43 IC 956; Visvananda v Venkata, 99 IC 709 : AIR 1927 Mad. 278 [LNIND 1926 MAD 317] ; Gangama v Veerappa, 131 IC 833 : AIR 1931 Mad. 513 [LNIND 1930 MAD 198] ; NSPRMSP Firm v Alaudin, 148 IC 539 : AIR 1933 Rang 191 .
- 2319 Loorthi Odayar v Gopalasami Iyer, (1924) 46 Mad LJ 125 : 80 IC 147 : AIR 1924 Mad. 450 ; Rajani Kumar v Gaur Kishore, (1908) ILR 35 Cal 1051; Chinai Pitchiah v Pedakotiah, (1913) ILR 36 Mad 29 : 11 IC 868.
- 2320 Ishwar v Devar, (1903) ILR 27 Bom 146; China Mal v Gul Ahmad, (1923) 5 Lah LJ 435 : 73 IC 719 : AIR 1923 Lah 478 ; Reese River Silver Mining Co v Atwell, (1869) LR 7 Eq 347; Faiz Ali v Harkuar, 77 IC 50 : AIR 1923 Ngp 334 ; Gamu v Nathu, 96 IC 356 : AIR 1926 Ngp 494 ; Abdulla Khan v Purshottam, (1947) ILR Bom 807 : 49 Bom LR 875 : AIR 1949 Bom 265 .

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

- 2321 Suba Bibi v Balgobind, (1886) ILR 8 All 178; Bibi Saira v Bibi Suliman, 63 IC 111 : AIR 1921 Pat. 395 ; Umrao Singh v Kaniz Fatima, (1901) All WN 67; Amina Bibi v Shaikh Muhammad Ibrahim, (1929) ILR 4 Luck 343 : 114 IC 504 : AIR 1929 Oudh 520 .
- 2322 Kulsum Bibi v Shiam Sunderlal, AIR 1936 All 600 : (1936) All LJ 1027 : 164 IC 515; Rameshwar Nath v Aftab Begum, AIR 1936 All 803 : (1936) All LJ 966 : 166 IC 56; Bansidhar v Nawal Jahan, AIR 1938 Oudh 44 ; Razina Khatun v Abida Khatun, AIR 1937 All 39 ; Faqir Bux v Thakur Prasad, AIR 1941 Oudh 457 .
- 2323 Meenakshi Ammal v Ammani Ammal, 101 IC 610 : AIR 1927 Mad. 657 [LNIND 1926 MAD 503] .
- 2324 Brij Raj v Ram Dayal, (1932) ILR 7 Luck 411 : 135 IC 369 : AIR 1932 Oudh 40 .
- 2325 Bai Hakumbu v Dayabhai Rugnath, AIR 1939 Bom 508 : 41 Bom LR 1104 : 185 IC 655.
- 2326 Janardhan Mallan v Gangadharan, AIR 1983 Ker. 178 [LNIND 1982 KER 268] .
- 2327 Isabi v Abdulla, AIR 1950 Tr& Coch 60.
- 2328 Ronaq Mal v Kasturi Mal, (1960) ILR 2 Punj 551 : AIR 1961 Punj 423 ; Chidambaram Chettiar v Sellakumara, (1942) ILR Mad 1 : AIR 1941 Mad. 903 [LNIND 1941 MAD 365] ; Ram Singh, v Soma Devi, AIR 1988 HP 27 [LNIND 1987 HP 20] , p 30.
- 2329 Bai Laxmi v Lalchand, AIR 1952 Vid Prad 69.
- 2330 Nanjamma v Rangappa, (1953) 2 Mad LJ 737 : AIR 1954 Mad. 173 [LNIND 1953 MAD 9] .
- 2331 Hooseinbhai v Haji Esmail, (1903) 5 Bom LR 255; Thomas Pillai v Muthuraman Chettiar, (1910) ILR 33 Mad 205 : 4 IC 301; Ram Chand v Mathura Chand, (1921) 19 All LJ 299 : 60 IC 896 : AIR 1921 All 298 ; Rajagopala Chetty v Sivagami, (1924) Mad WN 869 : 82 IC 945 : AIR 1924 Mad. 779 ; Ram Das v Debu, (1930) 28 All LJ 1278 : 128 IC 436 : AIR 1930 All 610 ; Nanjamma v Rangappa, (1953) 2 Mad LJ 737 : AIR 1954 Mad. 173 [LNIND 1953 MAD 9] ; Murli Motiram v Rewachand, (1946) ILR Kant 141 : 226 IC 240 : AIR 1946 Sau 137 .
- 2332 Mackay v Douglas, (1872) 14 Eq 106 ; Re Butterworth, Ex parte Russell, (1882) 19 ChD 588 ; Mohammad Ishaq v Mohammad Yusaf, (1927) ILR 8 Lah 544 : 101 IC 172 : AIR 1927 Lah 420 .
- 2333 Re Lane Fax, Ex parte Gimblett, [1900] 2 KB 508  ; Sadashiv v Trimbak, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 146, p 156; Umar Sait v UOI, (1965) ILR 2 Mad 250 : (1965) 1 Mad LJ 59 : AIR 1965 Mad. 395 [LNIND 1964 MAD 197] .
- 2334 Ebrahimbhai v Fulbai, (1902) ILR 26 Bom 577.
- 2335 Nauramn Lal v Stephen, 68 IC 369 : AIR 1922 Pat. 572 .
- 2336 Bhagwant v Kedari, (1901) ILR 25 Bom 202; Amarchand v Gokul, (1903) 5 Bom LR 142 .
- 2337 Gopiseti Venkata Lakshmi Narasimharao v Sri Satya Financial Services, (2010) 93 AIC 658 : (2010) 4 Andh LD 312.
- 2338 Musahar Sahu v Hakim Lal, (1915) ILR 43 Cal 521 : 43 IA 104 : 32 IC 343 (PC) affirming Hakim Lal v Mooshahar Sahu, (1907) ILR 34 Cal 999; Solema Bibi v Hafez Mohammad, (1927) ILR 54 Cal 687 : 104 IC 833 : AIR 1927 Cal 836 ; Ma Pwa May v SRMMA Chettyar Firm, (1929) ILR 7 Rang 624 : 56 IA 379 : 120 IC 645 : AIR 1929 PC 279 ; Ladhu Ram v Charnu, (1929) 11 Lah LJ 251 : 116 IC 317 : AIR 1929 Lah 409 ; Atmaram v Dayaram, 115 IC 330 : AIR 1929 Sau 94 ; Amina Bibi v Shaikh Muhammad Ibrahim, (1929) ILR 4 Luck 343 : 114 IC 504 : AIR 1929 Oudh 520 ; Thakur Badri v Hazari Singh, (1930) ILR 5 Luck 625 : 125 IC 163 : AIR 1930 Oudh 93 ; Kalu v Randhir, (1918) 21 OC 97 : 46 IC 330; Uttamrao v Gangaram, 136 IC 237 : AIR 1932 Ngp 33 ; Tan San Mai v U Kya Zin, 145 IC 330 : AIR 1933 Rang 162 ; Narayana v Official Receiver, 150 IC 339 : AIR 1934 Mad. 294 [LNIND 1933 MAD 170] .
- 2339 Re Moroney, (1887) LR 21 Ir 27.
- 2340 Middleton v Pollock, (1876) 2 ChD 104 ; Mila v Mangal Ram, AIR 1938 Lah 156 : 179 IC 257; Faqir Bux v Thakur Prasad, AIR 1941 Oudh 457 .
- 2341 Mina Kumari v Bijoy Singh, (1916) ILR 44 Cal 662 : 44 IA 72 : 40 IC 242 : AIR 1916 PC 238 ; Amina Bibi v Shaikh Muhammad Ibrahim, (1929) ILR 4 Luck 343 : 114 IC 504 : AIR 1929 Oudh 520 ; Palamalai v South Indian Export Co, (1910) ILR 33 Mad 334 : 5 IC33; Muthiah Chetty v Palaniappa Chetty, (1922) ILR 45 Mad 90 : 70 IC 432 : AIR 1922 Mad. 447 [LNIND 1921 MAD 116] reversed on a different point in Muthiah Chetty v Palaniappa Chetty, (1928) ILR 51 Mad 349 : 55 IA 256 : 109 IC 626 : AIR 1928 PC 139 ; Kalu v Randhir, (1918) 21 OC 97 : 46 IC 330; Chettiar Firm v Chettiar Firm, AIR 1937 Rang 531 ; Ratan Devi v Jawarmal, AIR 1972 Raj. 67 [LNIND 1971 RAJ 112] .
- 2342 Mina Kumari v Bijoy Singh, (1916) ILR 44 Cal 662 : 44 IA 72 : 40 IC 242 : AIR 1916 PC 232 ; Kodija Bibi v Shah Muhammad Ibrahim, (1901) All WN 64; Mahammad-un-nissa Begum v Bachelor, (1905) ILR 29 Bom 428; Rash Mohan v Kristodas, (1918) 22 Cal WN 982 : 47 IC 412; VPL Firm v EKSM Chettyar Firm, 146 IC 954 : AIR 1933 Rang 169 ; Daya Ram v Nadir Chand, AIR 1934 Lah 318 ; Mahadeo Lal Jwala Prasad v Bibi Maniram, (1933) ILR 12 Pat 297 : 145 IC 213 : AIR 1933 Pat. 281 (transfer in satisfaction of dower debt); Amina v Lakhmi Chand, 154 IC 979 : AIR 1934

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

Lah 705 ; Kulsum Bibi v Shiam Sunderlal, AIR 1936 All 600 : (1936) All LJ 1027 : 164 IC 515; Rameshwar Nath v Aftab Begum, AIR 1936 All 803 : (1936) All LJ 966 : 166 IC 56; Jagdoba v Anand Rao, 167 IC 449 : AIR 1937 Ngp 9 ; Razina Khatun v Abida Khatun, AIR 1937 All 39 ; Gharbhoya Bhimji v Deolatta Bihari, (1937) ILR Nag 452 : 172 IC 289 : AIR 1937 Ngp 400 ; Kasturchand v Wazir Begum, (1937) ILR Nag 291 : 167 IC 48 : AIR 1937 Ngp 1 ; Maung San Gyaw v Maung Kyaw, AIR 1937 Rang 471 ; Bansidhar v Nawal Jahan, AIR 1938 Oudh 44 ; Ram Ratan v Akhtari Begum, (1939) ILR 14 Luck 621 : 181 IC 181 : AIR 1939 Oudh 230 ; Faqir Bux v Thakur Prasad, AIR 1941 Oudh 457 .

- 2343 Masahur Sahu v Hakim Lal, (1915) ILR 43 Cal 521 : 43 IA 104 : 32 IC 343 (PC).
- 2344 Chogmal Bhandari v Deputy Commercial Tax Officer, Kurnool, AIR 1976 SC 656 [LNIND 1976 SC 41] : [1976] 3 SCR 355 : (1976) 3 SCC 1749 [LNIND 1976 SC 41] .
- 2345 Suba Bibi v Balgobind, (1886) ILR 8 All 178 citing Wood v Dixit, [[1845\] 7 QB 892](#)  .
- 2346 Saroj Ammal v Sri Venkateswara Finance Corp, Vellore, AIR 1989 Mad. 4 (NOC).
- 2347 Rajeswari & Co v UOI, AIR 1973 Mad. 222 [LNIND 1972 MAD 221] : (1973) 1 Mad LJ 116.
- 2348 Hanifa Bibi v Punnamma, (1907) 17 Mad LJ 11; Visvananda v Aiyar Venkata, (1927) Mad WN 1 : 99 IC 709 : AIR 1927 Mad. 278 [LNIND 1926 MAD 317] ; Chidambaram v Sami Aiyar, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 6, on app Chidambaram v Srinivasa, (1914) ILR 37 Mad 227 : 23 IC 714 (PC); Saroj Ammal v Sri Venkateswara Finance Corp, (1988) 101 Mad LW 441 : AIR 1989 Mad. 4 (NOC).
- 2349 Narayana v Viraraghavan, (1900) ILR 23 Mad 184; Hanifa Bibi v Punnamma, (1907) 17 Mad LJ 11; Nainsukhdas v Goverdhandas, (1947) ILR Nag 510 : AIR 1948 Ngp 110 .
- 2350 Alagappa v Dasappa, (1913) 24 Mad LJ 293 : 18 IC 332; Palamalai v South Indian Export Co, (1910) ILR 33 Mad 334 : 5 IC 33; Gani v Sitaram, 79 IC 625 : AIR 1924 Ngp 318 .
- 2351 Kedarwati v Radhey Lal, 170 IC 353 : AIR 1937 Pat. 609 .
- 2352 Ghansam Das v Uma Pershad, (1919) 21 Bom LR 472 [LNIND 1919 BOM 11] : 50 IC 264 (PC).
- 2353 Ishan Chunder v Bishu, (1897) ILR 24 Cal 825; Amina Bibi v Mohammad Ibrahim, (1928) 5 Oudh WN 1077 : 114 IC 501.
- 2354 Meenakshi Ammal v Ammani Ammal, 101 IC 610 : AIR 1927 Mad. 657 [LNIND 1926 MAD 503] .
- 2355 Gopichand v Jodhraj, 116 IC 815 : AIR 1929 All 458 .
- 2356 Abdul Shukoor v Arji Papa Rao, [1963] 2 SCR 55 (Supp) : [1964] 1 SCJ 168 [LNIND 1962 SC 445] : AIR 1963 SC 1150 [LNIND 1962 SC 445] , p 1156; Haque Brothers v Mahendra Nath, AIR 1966 Ass & N 36; Basavegowda v S Narayana Swamy, AIR 1986 Kant. 225 [LNIND 1985 KANT 125] , p 229.
- 2357 See for instance Fakira v Majho, (1917) 2 Pat LJR 546 : 40 IC 865; Mula Ram v Jiwanda, (1923) ILR 4 Lah 211 : 72 IC 452 : AIR 1923 Lah 423 ; Akrammun-nissa Bibi v Mustafa-un-nissa Bibi, (1929) ILR 51 All 595 : 116 IC 445 : AIR 1929 All 238 ; RROO Chettyar Firm v Ma Sein Yin, (1927) ILR 5 Rang 588 : 105 IC 582 : AIR 1928 Rang 1 ; Bhaskara v Creditors of Piler K Saheb, (1965) ILR AP 68; Kanchanbai v Motichand, AIR 1967 MP 145 [LNIND 1964 MP 65] .
- 2358 Phoolan Devi v Surendra Prakash, AIR 1983 All 440 .
- 2359 Sharfumiya v Pacha Saheb, 112 IC 228 : AIR 1928 Mad. 793 .
- 2360 Mina Kumari v Bijoy Singh, (1916) ILR 44 Cal 662 : 44 IA 72 : 40 IC 242 : AIR 1916 PC 238 ; Sreemanchunder Dey v Gopalchunder, (1866) 11 Moo Ind App 28 , p 43; Maniklal v Bijoy Singh, (1921) 25 Cal WN 409 : 62 IC 356 : AIR 1921 PC 69 .
- 2361 Rambilas v Ganpatrao, (1953) ILR Nag 937 : AIR 1954 Ngp 129 .
- 2362 Abdul Shukoor v Arji Papa Rao, [1963] 2 SCR 55 (Supp) : [1964] 1 SCJ 168 [LNIND 1962 SC 445] : AIR 1963 SC 1150 [LNIND 1962 SC 445] ; Narendrabhai Chhaganbhai Bharatia v Gandevi Peoples Cooperative Bank Ltd, AIR 2002 Guj 209 [LNIND 2002 GUJ 85] ; Har Prasad v Mahomed Usman, (1942) All LJ 645 : 205 IC 30 : AIR 1943 All 2 ; Narasimhamurti v Maharajah of Pittapur, AIR 1941 Mad. 690 [LNIND 1941 MAD 76] ; Ponnuswami Goundar v S R Ramaswami Chettiar, AIR 1984 Mad. 198 (NOC).
- 2363 Mothoora Pandey v Ram Ruchya, (1869) 11 WR 482 ; Syed Md Haidar v Prince Safdar Jah, AIR 1938 Oudh 230 .
- 2364 Chidambaram v Sami Aiyar, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 6 on app; Chidambaram v Srinivasa, (1914) ILR 37 Mad 227 : 23 IC 714 PC citing Corlett v Rudcliffe, (1862) 14 Moo PC 121.
- 2365 Phooni v Radhe-Shyam, AIR 1950 Ajm 41 .
- 2366 Twyne's case, (1601) 3 Co Rep 80.
- 2367 Leonard v Baker, (1813) 1 M & W Sel 251 ("the transaction as to the assignment was perfectly notorious").

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

- 2368 Rai Bishen Chand v Asmaida Koer, (1884) ILR 6 All 560 : 11 IA 164, p 174.
- 2369 Hanifa Bibi v Punnamma, (1907) 17 Mad LJ 11; Motumal v Manghomal, 127 IC 701 : AIR 1930 Sau 284 .
- 2370 Ghansam Das v Uma Pershad, (1919) 21 Bom LR 472 [LNIND 1919 BOM 11] : 50 IC 264 (PC); Bhagwant v Kedari, (1901) ILR 25 Bom 202; Natha v Dhumbaiji, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 1; Nandaramdas v Zuleka Bibi, AIR 1943 Mad. 531 [LNIND 1943 MAD 105] : (1943) 2 Mad LJ 1 : 56 Mad LW 583 Umrao Begum v Rahmat Ilahi, AIR 1939 Lah 439 ; Shantilal v Champalal, AIR 1962 MP 363 [LNIND 1961 MP 18] .
- 2371 Abdul Shukoor v Arji Papa Rao, [1963] 2 SCR 55 (Supp) : [1964] 1 SCJ 168 [LNIND 1962 SC 445] : AIR 1963 SC 1150 [LNIND 1962 SC 445] .
- 2372 Natha v Maganchand, (1903) ILR 27 Bom 322; Ramasamia v Adinarayana, (1879) ILR 20 Mad 465; Subraya v Perumal, 43 IC 956; AltonvBarrington, [1869] 4 Ch App 622; Exparte: Games, Re Bamford (1879) 12 ChD 314 (CA); Re Fasey Ex parte Trustees [1923] 2 ChD 1 ; Muniyammal v Thyagaraja, AIR 1958 Mad. 580 .
- 2373 Bai Hakimba v Dayabhai Raghunath, (1939) 41 Bom LR 1104 : 185 IC 655 : AIR 1939 Bom 508 ; Abdul Majid v Paputhi Ammal, (1961) 1 Mad LJ 235 : AIR 1961 Mad. 235 .
- 2374 See Errachi Reddiar v Velayya Reddiar, AIR 1968 Mad. 256 [LNIND 1967 MAD 56] ; Chettiar (NLN) v J Chettiar, (1971) 2 Mad LJ 292 : AIR 1972 Mad. 34 [LNIND 1971 MAD 23] .
- 2375 Jagat Kishore v Kulakamini Dasya, AIR 1941 Cal 233 : 72 Cal LJ 420 : 197 IC 50.
- 2376 Ratan Chand v Kishen Chand, AIR 1938 Lah 136 .
- 2377 Muthiah Chetti v Palaniappa Chetti, (1928) ILR 51 Mad 349 : 55 IA 256 : 109 IC 626 : AIR 1928 PC 139 .
- 2378 Maung Din v Ma Hnin Me, (1925) ILR 3 Rang 71 : 89 IC 436 : AIR 1925 Rang 227 .
- 2379 Abdul Shukoor v Arji Papa Rao, (1963) 2 SCR 55 (Supp) : (1964) 1 SCJ 168 [LNIND 1962 SC 445] : AIR 1963 SC 1150 [LNIND 1962 SC 445] ; see Bachan Singh v Banarsi Das, AIR 1961 Punj 361 .
- 2380 RROO Chettyar Firm v Ma Sein Yin, (1927) ILR 5 Rang 588 : 105 IC 582 : AIR 1928 Rang 1 .
- 2381 Natha v Dhimbaiji, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 1.
- 2382 Palamalai v South Indian Export Co, (1910) ILR 33 Mad 334 : 5 IC 33.
- 2383 Ishan Chunder v Bishu, (1897) ILR 24 Cal 825 citing Food v Dixie, [1845] 7 QB 892  . See also Amarnath v Dwarka Das, AIR 1945 ILR All 42 : (1944) ILR All 737 : 219 IC 27.
- 2384 Chidambaram Chettiar v Srinivasa Sastrial, (1914) ILR 37 Mad 227 : 23 IC 714 (PC), on appeal from Chidambaram v Sami Aiyar, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 6, p 10.
- 2385 (1601) 3 Co Rep 80, p 82.
- 2386 Bhagwant v Kedari, (1901) ILR 25 Bom 202, pp 226-227; Palamalai v South Indian Export Co, (1910) ILR 33 Mad 34 : 5 IC 33; Fakira v Majho, (1917) 2 Pat LJR 546 : 40 IC 685; Aftabuddin v Basanta, (1918) 22 Cal WN 427 : 45 IC 441; Kamini v Hira Lal, (1919) 23 Cal WN 769 : 51 IC 736; Bhikabhai v Panachand, (1919) ILR 43 Bom 707 : 52 IC 682.
- 2387 Mula Ram v Jiwanda, (1923) ILR 4 Lah 211 : 72 IC 452 : AIR 1923 Lah 423 .
- 2388 Ibrahim v Jiwandas, 75 IC 1043 : AIR 1924 Lah 707 ; Daulat Ram v Ghulam Fatima, 89 IC 953 : AIR 1926 Lah 25 .
- 2389 Alagappa v Dasappa, (1913) 24 Mad LJ 293 : 18 IC 332.
- 2390 Natha v Maganchand, (1903) ILR 27 Bom 322; Ramasamia v Adinarayana Pillai, (1897) ILR 20 Mad 465; Vinayak v Kaniram, 92 IC 810 : AIR 1926 Ngp 293 .
- 2391 Ishan Chunder v Bishu, (1897) ILR 24 Cal 825; Muhammad-un-nissa v Bachelor, (1905) ILR 29 Bom 428, p 434; Ah Foon v Hoc Lai Pat, (1932) ILR 9 Rang 614 : 135 IC 641 : AIR 1932 Rang 13 .
- 2392 Hassan Abbas v Razia Begum, 12 IC 401; Re Reis, Ex parte Clough, [1902] 2 KB 769  .
- 2393 Bulmer v Hunter, (1869) LR 8 Bq 46.
- 2394 Hamidunnissa v Nazirunnissa, (1909) ILR 31 All 170 : 1 IC 883.
- 2395 Marwadi Samnaji v Sripathi, 101 IC 568 : AIR 1927 Mad. 1144 [LNIND 1926 MAD 390] ; Musahar Sahu v Hakim Lal, (1915) ILR 43 Cal 521 : 43 IA 104 : 32 IC 343; Natha v Maganchand, (1903) ILR 27 Bom 322.
- 2396 Gobind Ram v Chhogmal, 152 IC 472 : AIR 1934 Lah 161 .
- 2397 See Jones v Gordon, (1877) 2 App Cas 616 , p 629.

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

- 2398 Samitri Devi v Sampuran Singh, AIR 2011 SC 773 [LNIND 2011 SC 91] : (2011) 3 SCC 556 [LNIND 2011 SC 91] : [2011] 2 SCR 196 [LNIND 2011 SC 91] .
- 2399 Kunhu Pothanassiar v Ram Nair, (1923) ILR 46 Mad 478 : 72 IC 727 : AIR 1923 Mad. 558 [LNIND 1922 MAD 107] .
- 2400 Harrods Ltd v Stanton, [1923] 1 KB 516 : [1923] All ER Rep 592 ; Halifax Joint Stock Banking Co v Gledhill, (1891) 1 ChD 31 ^[1] ; Frin Man Singh v B N Sinha, AIR 1940 Lah 198 : 191 IC 639.
- 2401 Basit Begam v Banarsi Prasad, (1907) ILR 30 All 297.
- 2402 Phagoo v Tulshi, 125 IC 506 : AIR 1930 All 438 .
- 2403 Daulat Ram v Ghulam Fatima, 89 IC 953 : AIR 1926 Lah 25 ; Ram Ditta v Official Receiver, 147 IC 1026 : AIR 1934 Lah 365 ; Chana Madhu v Mankubai, AIR 1950 Kutch 57 .
- 2404 Narendrabhai Chhaganbhai Bharatia v Gandevi Peoples Cooperative Bank Ltd, AIR 2002 Guj 209 [LNIND 2002 GUJ 85] : (2002) 22 GLH 588 : (2002) 3 GLR 218 ; Woomesh Chunder v Gooroodoss Roy, (1872) 17 WR 9 (PC); Amarchand v Gokul, (1903) 5 Bom LR 142 ; Mohideen v Muhammad Mustappah, 126 IC 604 : AIR 1930 Mad. 665 [LNIND 1929 MAD 335] ; NSPRMSP Firm v Allaudin, 148 IC 539 : AIR 1933 Rang 191 .
- 2405 Abdul Shukoor v Arji Papa Rao, [1963] 2 SCR 55 (Supp) : [1964] 1 SCJ 168 [LNIND 1962 SC 445] : AIR 1963 SC 1150 [LNIND 1962 SC 445] ; Amarchand v Gokul, (1903) 5 Bom LR 142 ; Karuppa Thevar v Ganapathi Gounder, (1976) 1 Mad LJ 268; Basavegowda v S Narayana Swamy, AIR 1986 Kant. 225 [LNIND 1985 KANT 125] , p 229.
- 2406 Chandradip Singh v Addl Member, Board of Revenue, AIR 1978 Pat. 148 .
- 2407 Nirmal Jeet Singh Hoon v Irtiza Hussain, (2010) 14 SCC 564 [LNIND 2010 SC 1039] : [LNIND 2010 SC 1039] : 2010 (11) Scale 302 [LNIND 2010 SC 1039] .
- 2408 Amarchand v Gokul, (1903) 5 Bom LR 142 ; Ah Foon v Hoe Lai Pat, (1932) ILR 9 Rang 614 : AIR 1932 Rang 13 .
- 2409 Mohammad Ishaq v Mohammad Yusuf, (1927) ILR 8 Lah 544 : 101 IC 172 : AIR 1927 Lah 420 ; Sukhpal Kuar v Dasu, 58 IC 165.
- 2410 Motuamal v Manghomal, 127 IC 701 : AIR 1930 Sau 284 ; Hanifa Bibi v Punnamma, (1907) 17 Mad LJ 11.
- 2411 Khodija Bibi v Shah Muhammad Zahir, (1901) All WN 64; Amina Bibi v Shah Muhammad Ibrahim, (1929) ILR 4 Luck 343 : 114 IC 504 : AIR 1929 Oudh 520 ; Bibi Saira v Bibi Suliman, 63 IC 111 : AIR 1921 Pat. 395 .
- 2412 Kapini Goundan v Saranganapani, (1916) Mad WN 288 : 34 IC 744.
- 2413 Mathura v Hoya Umrao, (1949) ILR 28 Pat 97.
- 2414 Venkanna v Official Receiver, Rajmahundry, (1935) 68 Mad LJ 57 : 157 IC 559 : AIR 1935 Mad. 250 ; Alton v Harrison, (1869) LR 4 ChD 622.
- 2415 Narasinhamurti v Maharaja of Pittapur, (1941) 2 Mad LJ 99 : 54 Mad LW 76 : (1941) Mad WN 513 : AIR 1941 Mad. 690 [LNIND 1941 MAD 76] .
- 2416 Rash Mohan v Krisiodas, (1918) 22 Cal WN 982 : 47 IC 412.
- 2417 Karsandas v Maganlal, (1902) ILR 26 Bom 476, p 484; Lalchand v Husainio, 97 IC 257 : AIR 1927 Sau 78 ; Dutton v Morrison, (1810) 17 Ves 193.
- 2418 Jnanendra Bala Debi v Official Assignee of Calcutta, (1925) 30 Cal WN 346 : 93 IC 834 : AIR 1926 Cal 597 ; Ex parte Butters (1880) 14 ChD 265 .
- 2419 Anwar Khan v Muhammad Khan, (1929) ILR 51 All 550 : 113 IC 819 : AIR 1929 All 105 ; Shikri Prasad v Aziz Ali, (1922) ILR 44 All 71 : 63 IC 601 : AIR 1922 All 196 ; Hari Chand Rai v Moti Ram, (1926) ILR 48 All 414 : 94 IC 429 : AIR 1926 All 470 ; Chittammal v Ponnuswami Naicker, (1926) ILR 49 Mad 762 : 92 IC 573 : AIR 1923 Mad. 363 ; Fool Kumari Dasi v Khirrod Chandra DasGupta, (1927) 31 Cal WN 502 : 102 IC 115 : AIR 1927 Cal 474 ; Radha Krishna v Official Receiver, (1932) ILR 59 Cal 1135 : 56 Cal LJ 446 : (1932) 36 Cal WN 492 : 139 IC 323 : AIR 1932 Cal 642 ; Official Receiver v Subbayya, (1933) 64 Mad LJ 397 : 146 IC 530 : AIR 1933 Mad. 527 [LNIND 1933 MAD 2] ; Ram Ditto v Official Receiver, 147 IC 1026 : AIR 1934 Lah 365 .
- 2420 Ex parte Price, (1882) 21 ChD 553 ; Radha Krishna v Official Receiver, (1932) ILR 59 Cal 1135.
- 2421 Official Assignee of Bombay v Sundarachari, (1927) ILR 50 Mad 776 : 102 IC 702 : AIR 1927 Mad. 684 [LNIND 1927 MAD 67] (case under Presidency-towns Insolvency Act); Official Receiver v Palaniswami Chetti, (1925) ILR 48 Mad 750 : 88 IC 934 : AIR 1924 Mad. 1051 ; Shahzada Begum v Gokul Chand, (1927) ILR 2 Luck, 651 : 105 IC 50 : AIR 1927 Oudh 357 ; Kaniz Fatima v Narain Singh, (1927) ILR 49 All 71 : 98 IC 1001 : AIR 1927 All 66 ; Mariappa

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

Pillai v Roman Chettiyar, (1919) ILR 42 Mad 32 : 52 IC 519; Hiralal v Fatehchand, 152 IC 1026 : AIR 1934 Ngp 271 .
See also Shikri Prasad v Aziz Ali, (1922) ILR 44 All 71 : 63 IC 601 : AIR 1922 All 196 .

- 2422 Burjorji v Dhunbai, (1892) ILR 16 Bom 1; Ishwar v Devar, (1903) ILR 27 Bom 146; Hakim Lal v Mooshahar Sahu, (1907) ILR 34 Cal 999; Ekkari Ghose v Sideshwar Ghose, AIR 1936 Cal 783 ; Ayyamperumal v Palaniadi, (1958) 2 Mad LJ 540; Harekrishna v Banamali, AIR 1971 Ori. 1561 .
- 2423 Laila v Soosamma Chacko, AIR 2018 (NOC) 272 (Kerela): LNIND 2017 KER 4957 .
- 2424 Kishan Dass v Adeshwar Lal, AIR 1972 Del 122 [LNIND 1971 DEL 172] .
- 2425 State Bank of Travancore v A K Narayan, AIR 1967 Ker. 171 [LNIND 1966 KER 175] ; N Rajyalakshamma v K Rajamma, AIR 1973 AP 53 ; UOI v Ram Peary Debi, AIR 1984 Cal 215 [LNIND 1983 CAL 224] : ITR (1984) 150 Cal 719 .
- 2426 Sachitanand v Radhapat, (1928) 26 All LJ 524 : 116 IC 86 : AIR 1928 All 234 ; Sarju Singh v Shiam Sunder, 153 IC 674 : AIR 1934 All 948 .
- 2427 Deokali v Ramdevi, AIR 1941 Rang 76 .
- 2428 Reese River Silver Mining Co v Atwell, (1869) LR 7 Eq 347.
- 2429 Pokker v Kunhamad, (1919) ILR 42 Mad 143 : 51 IC 714; Sri Thakurji v Narsingh Narain, (1921) 6 Pat LJR 48 : 63 IC 788 : AIR 1921 Rang 53 ; China Mal v Gul Ahmad, (1923) 5 Lah LJ 435 : 73 IC 719 : AIR 1923 Lah 478 ; Loknath v Thakur Das, 71 IC 20; RROO Chettyar Firm v Ma Sein Yin, (1927) ILR 5 Rang 588 : 105 IC 582 : AIR 1928 Rang 1 .
- 2430 Rahimtulla v Rasulkhan, 145 IC 357 : AIR 1933 Ngp 169 .
- 2431 Radhika Mohan Gope v Hari Bashi Saha, (1933) 37 Cal WN 1141 : 57 Cal LJ 399 : 146 IC 1010 : AIR 1933 Cal 812 ; U Maung Nge v PLSP Chettyar Firm, 152 IC 506 : AIR 1934 Rang 200 .
- 2432 Chutterpat Singh v Maharaj Bahadoor, (1905) ILR 32 Cal 198 : 32 IA 1, p 15; Maung Tun Thein v Maung Sin, (1934) ILR 12 Rang 670 : 153 IC 942 : AIR 1934 Rang 332 ; AKACTV Chidambarm v RMARS Firm, (1934) ILR 12 Rang 666 : 152 IC 555 : AIR 1934 Rang 302 ; Median Bibi v Ismail Durga Association, AIR 1940 Mad. 789 [LNIND 1940 MAD 55] : (1940) ILR Mad 808 : (1940) 1 Mad LJ 873 : 51 Mad LW 608 : (1940) Mad WN 481; Girraj v Sauktha Prasad, AIR 1938 Oudh 33 .
- 2433 Bai Hakimbu v Dayabhai Ragnath, AIR 1939 Rang 508 : 41 Bom LR 1104 : 185 IC 655; Kosuru Ademma v Chevuru Subbamma, AIR 1942 Mad. 714 ; Ramanatha v Alagappa, (1956) 2 Mad LJ 157 : AIR 1956 Mad. 682 .
- 2434 Palaniandi v Appavu, (1916) 30 Mad LJ 565 : 34 IC 778; Subramania v Muthia Chettiar, (1918) ILR 41 Mad 612 : 48 IC 651.
- 2435 Ramaswami Chettiar v Malappa Reddiar, (1920) ILR 43 Mad 760 : 59 IC 947.
- 2436 Abdul Shukoor v Arji Papa Rao, [1963] 2 SCR 55 (Supp) : [1964] 1 SCJ 168 [LNIND 1962 SC 445] : AIR 1963 SC 1150 [LNIND 1962 SC 445] .
- 2437 Abdul Shukoor v Arji Papa Rao, AIR 1963 SC 1150 [LNIND 1962 SC 445] ; Alamelu Ammal v Chinnaswamy Reddiar, AIR 1989 Mad. 311 [LNIND 1988 MAD 484] , p 313 holding that the decision in Rukkumani Ammal v Kamachi Ammal was no longer good law.
- 2438 Abdul Kader v Ali Mia, (1912) 16 Cal WN 717 : 14 IC 715; Ram Chand v Mathura Chand, (1921) 19 All LJ 299 : 60 IC 896 : AIR 1921 All 298 ; Thansukhdas v Jhango, 54 IC 798; Lallu Singh v Chandra Sen, (1934) ILR 56 All 624 : AIR 1934 All 155 . See also Bai Hakimbu v Dayabhai Ragnath, AIR 1939 Rang 508 ; Ramaswami v Lakshmana, AIR 1936 Mad. 408 [LNIND 1935 MAD 426] : (1936) Mad WN 361 : 161 IC 1003.
- 2439 Ramaswami Chettiar v Mallappa Reddiar, (1920) ILR 43 Mad 760 : 59 IC 947.
- 2440 Pachamuthu v Chinnappan, (1887) ILR 10 Mad 213; Abdulla Khan v Purshottam, (1947) ILR Bom 807 : 49 Bom LR 876 : AIR 1948 Bom 265 .
- 2441 Narasimhan v Narayana Rao, 92 IC 405 : AIR 1926 Mad. 66 [LNIND 1925 MAD 104] ; Venkateswara Aiyar v Somasundaram, (1918) Mad WN 244 : 44 IC 551; Lal Singh v Jai Chand, (1931) ILR 12 Lah 262 : 130 IC 778 : AIR 1931 Lal 70 Parkash Narain v Raja Birendra, (1931) ILR 7 Luck 131 : 133 IC 51 : AIR 1931 Oudh 333 ; State Bank of Travancore v A K Naran, AIR 1967 Ker. 171 [LNIND 1966 KER 175] .
- 2442 Narshimhan v Narayana Rao, AIR 1926 Mad. 66 [LNIND 1925 MAD 104] ; Marthand Rao v Nawal Kishore, AIR 1954 Mad. 388 .
- 2443 Abdulla Khan v Purshottam, AIR 1944 Bom 267 .
- 2444 Rambilas v Ganpatrao, (1953) ILR Nag 937 : AIR 1954 Ngp 129 ; Nanjamma v Rangappa, AIR 1954 Mad. 173 [LNIND 1953 MAD 9] : (1953) 2 Mad LJ 737.
- 2445 Frin Man Singh v BN Sinha, AIR 1940 Lah 198 : 191 IC 639.

53. [Fraudulent transfer.—

2446 Vasudeo v Janardhan, (1915) ILR 39 Bom 507 : 29 IC 497; Awadhat v Punjaji, 53 IC 205.

2447 Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, 1988, section 6.

[53A. Part performance.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties > \(B\) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 2 Of Transfers of Property by Act of Parties

Sections 5 – 53A, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

(B) TRANSFER OF IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

²⁴⁴⁸[53A. Part performance.—

Where any person contracts to transfer for consideration any immovable property by writing signed by him or on his behalf from which the terms necessary to constitute the transfer can be ascertained with reasonable certainty, and the transferee has, in part performance of the contract, taken possession of the property or any part thereof, or the transferee, being already in possession, continues in possession in part performance of the contract and has done some act in furtherance of the contract, and the transferee has performed or is willing to perform his part of the contract, then, notwithstanding that ²⁴⁴⁹] where there is an instrument of transfer, that the transfer has not been completed in the manner prescribed therefore by the law for the time being in force, the transferor or any person claiming under him shall be debarred from enforcing against the transferee and persons claiming under him any right in respect of the property of which the transferee has taken or continued in possession, other than a right expressly provided by the terms of the contract:

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the rights of a transferee for consideration who has no notice of the contract or of the part performance thereof.]

[s 53A.1] History of the Section

This section was first enacted in 1929 by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Act, 1929, and imports into India a modified form of the equity of part-performance as developed in England in Maddison v Alderson.²⁴⁵⁰ The enactment of the section sets at rest the considerable uncertainty prevailing in Indian law, as can be seen by three decisions of the Privy Council.²⁴⁵¹

Recently, para 4 of section 53A has been amended by section 10 of the Registration and Other Related Laws (Amendment) Act, 2001 (Act 48 of 2001) whereby the words “the contract, though required to be registered, has not been registered, or” has been omitted.

[s 53A.2] Scope

So far applicability of section 53A of the TP Act, 1882 is concerned, what is to be seen is that the section provides for a shield of protection to the proposed transferee to remain in possession against the original owner who has agreed to sell to the transferee, if the proposed transferee satisfies other conditions of section 53A. That protection is available as a shield, only against the transferor, the proposed vendor would disentitle him from disturbing the possession of the proposed transferees who are put in possession pursuant to such an agreement. However, that has nothing to do with the ownership of the proposed transferor who remains full owner of the lands till they are legally conveyed by a sale deed to the proposed transferees. Such a right to protect possession against the proposed vendor cannot be pressed in service against a third party like the state when it seeks to enforce the provisions of the Act against the tenure-holder.²⁴⁵² The equitable right of section 53A of the TP Act, 1882 cannot be claimed for restraining sale of the suit property, but can be sought for seeking protection against dispossession.²⁴⁵³

[53A. Part performance.—

The following postulates are sine qua non for basing a claim on section 53A of the TP Act, 1882:

- (i) There must be a contract to transfer for consideration any immovable property.
- (ii) The contract must be in writing, signed by the transferor, or by someone on his behalf.
- (iii) The writing must be in such words from which the terms necessary to construe the transfer can be ascertained.
- (iv) The transferee must in part performance of the contract take possession of the property, or of any part thereof.
- (v) The transferee must have done some act in furtherance of the contract.
- (vi) The transferee must have performed or be willing to perform his part of the contract.²⁴⁵⁴

In view of the amendment by the Amending Act of 2001, another requirement would be that the document containing contract for transfer of immovable property, if executed on or after the commencement of the Registration and Other Related Laws (Amendment) Act, 2001, ie, 24 September 2001, has been registered.

A proposed vendee cannot protect his possession of the immovable property on the basis of an oral agreement. Written agreement is sine qua non for applicability of the equitable doctrine of part performance enshrined under section 53A.²⁴⁵⁵ In the absence of the pleadings and evidence of all the essential conditions, making out a defence of part performance to protect possession claimed by the plaintiff, would not be attracted.²⁴⁵⁶ The plea under section 53A of the TP Act, 1882 raises a mixed question of law and fact and, therefore, cannot be permitted to be urged for the first time at the stage of second appeal.²⁴⁵⁷

Doctrine of part performance is not applicable to the State of J&K.²⁴⁵⁸

[s 53A.3] Amendment of Registration and Specific Relief Act [s 53A.3.1] Amendment Act of 1929

The amending Act of 1929 did not merely partially introduce the equity of part-performance into Indian law by enacting section 53A, but also reinforced the position by amending the Registration Act, 1908 and Specific Relief Act, 1877.

Section 49 of the Registration Act, 1908 which enacts that a document required to be registered, but not registered, shall not affect the immovable property comprised therein, or be received as evidence of any transaction affecting such property, is amended, and a proviso is inserted to permit such a document being received in evidence in a suit for specific performance, or as evidence of part-performance of a contract for the purposes of section 53A of the TP Act, 1882.

This proviso made it clear that section 49 does not prevent an unregistered agreement or deed to be admitted in evidence as a contract.²⁴⁵⁹ It gave statutory recognition to Puchha Lal v Kunj Behari Lal,²⁴⁶⁰ and supersedes the decision in Sanjib Chandra v Santosh Kumar.²⁴⁶¹

[53A. Part performance.—

Under the proviso, the unregistered document may be referred to as evidence that certain acts are done in performance of the agreement, for instance when a building has been erected in the terms of an unregistered lease.²⁴⁶² However, a document which must be regarded as unregistered for fraud on registration cannot be referred to for invoking this section.²⁴⁶³

[s 53A.3.2] Amending Act of 2001

The amendments made the amending Act of 1929, both under the TP Act, 1882 as well as the Registration Act, 1908, to even unregistered documents for the purpose of section 53A has now been withdrawn by the amendments made by the Registration and Other Related Laws (Amendment) Act, 2001, which has come into force with effect from 24 September 2001. By this amending Act, as already noticed above, the words “the contract, though required to be registered, has not been registered, or,” as appearing in para 4 of section 53A has been omitted. Simultaneously, sections 17 and 49 of the Registration Act, 1908 have been amended making it clear that unless the documents containing contract to transfer for consideration any immovable property for the purpose of section 53A is registered, it shall not have effect for the purposes of section 53A.²⁴⁶⁴

The amendment made in 2001 requiring the documents to be stamped and registered so as to create right in terms of doctrine of part performance is prospective in nature and would not apply to a sale agreement executed in 1995.²⁴⁶⁵ In Awadhesh Kumar Singh v Shyam Narayan Jha,²⁴⁶⁶ the parties had entered into an agreement in 1995, before the amendment came in force. Moreover, the possession was not given to the vendee, of the disputed land, and it was held that the registration Act was not applicable and the document was not required to be compulsorily registered. Similarly, in Rajender Singh v Nanga,²⁴⁶⁷ the vendee had already paid full consideration and was put in possession of the land under an unregistered sale agreement prior to the amendment in 2001 coming into effect, the court held that the agreement to sell does not require compulsory registration and the defendant claimed to be a bonafide purchaser without notice of the claim of vendee but failed to prove that he ever made any enquiry from the vendee about his possession. he cannot be allowed to take the label of a bonafide purchaser without notice of the claim of the vendee and would not be entitled to take the benefit of section 53 A. The vendee would not be entitled to the relief of injunction and cannot be non suited.

An agreement of sale coupled with delivery of possession in part performance of conveyance rights created under this document now requires compulsory registration of this agreement of sale as it partakes the character of a conveyance and would require payment of stamp duty.²⁴⁶⁸ An unregistered agreement to sell will not entitle the prospective transferee to file a suit for specific performance as an agreement to sell does not create by itself any right or title in property hence an agreement to sell is not required to be registered and is admissible in evidence.²⁴⁶⁹ In A N Nagarajaiah v B Arvind,²⁴⁷⁰ the Karnataka High court observed,

The amendment of Registration Act, 1908 by the Amendment Act, 2001 and of section 53A Transfer of Property Act, makes it clear that if the benefit of section 53A of the Act is to be made available than the contract for sale shall be registered and if not registered then they shall have no effect for the purpose of section 53A. The amendment came into effect on 24 September 2001 and the benefit of doctrine of part performance after the coming into force of the Registration Act, 1908, (Amendment by Act of 2001) can be given only if alleged agreement to sell satisfies the provisions of section 17 (1A) of the Registration Act, 1908. Thus the document relied upon must be a registered document bearing stamp duty and unstamped agreement to sell cannot also have been looked into by the court for any purpose contrary to mandate of statute as given in section 35 of the Stamp Duty Act.

[53A. Part performance.—

It is therefore absolutely clear that in order to give benefits of section 53A of Transfer of Property Act, the document relied upon must be a registered document. Any unregistered document cannot be looked into by the court and cannot be relied upon or taken into evidence and therefore, an agreement of sale executed in 2005, but unregistered, shall have no effect for the purposes of section 53A.²⁴⁷¹ A suit for possession cannot be decreed on the basis of unregistered, undated and photocopies of the documents. In Udai Sapkota v Laxmi Prasad Sapkota,²⁴⁷² in a sale for land, the consideration was paid to the transferor and he in turn in part possession of the contract handed over the possession to the transferee. The instrument though required to be registered was not registered, but it was held that the rule that the sale deed must necessarily be registered is not applicable as it would be relevant only for the purposes of its admissibility in evidence in a pending suit in the court. Further, as the transferor himself neither executed nor got the sale deed registered, the court held that he be estopped to claim for recovery of possession of the property and would not be allowed to take advantage of his own wrong or fault to deny execution of sale deed. Where an unregistered and uncorroborated document was produced to protect possession of the property that was inherited by several heirs but only some of them had entered into an agreement to sell the entire property, it was held that the transferee have no right to claim protection of possession by invoking the doctrine of part performance.²⁴⁷³

[s 53A.3.3] Amendment in the Specific Relief Act

The amending Act also inserted a new section, section 27A, in the Specific Relief Act, 1877, providing that a party may sue for the specific performance of a contract in writing to lease immovable property, even though it is not registered, if he has acted in part-performance of the agreement. This amendment was wider than section 53A, for the section enacts an equity which is only available as a defence. Section 27A of the Specific Relief Act, however, enacted an active equity, as in English law, sufficient to support an independent action by a plaintiff.²⁴⁷⁴ If a plaintiff was in possession under a lease (which would otherwise be inadmissible for want of registration), he could put the lease in evidence, and sue upon it for specific performance treating it as a contract, or to show the character and nature of the possession of the defendant.²⁴⁷⁵ Whether a contract could be specifically enforced was not a relevant factor in granting relief under this section.²⁴⁷⁶ Section 27A is not re-enacted in the Specific Relief Act, 1963. Protection of section 53A would be available to the vendee till his suit for specific performance of contract is disposed off finally.²⁴⁷⁷ The amending Act of 2001 has not made any amendments in the Specific Relief Act, 1963.

[s 53A.4] Section 53A

The section has been described by the Privy Council,²⁴⁷⁸ and the Supreme Court,²⁴⁷⁹ as a partial importation of the English equitable doctrine of part performance. By virtue of this section, part performance does not give rise to an equity, as in England, but to a statutory right.²⁴⁸⁰ This right is more restricted than the English equity in two respects: (1) there must be a written contract;²⁴⁸¹ and (2) it is only available as a defence.²⁴⁸²

So far as India is concerned, the section creates rights which were not in existence before the enactment was passed.²⁴⁸³ These rights to retain possession rest on the express provisions of the statute. Section 53A of the TP Act, 1882 insists upon proof of some acts having been done in furtherance of the contract. The acts claimed to be in part performance must be unequivocally referable to the pre-existing contract, and point in the direction of the existence of contract. When a series of acts are done in performance, one such may be payment of consideration. Any one act by itself may or may not be of such a conclusive nature. The correct approach would be to look at the writing that is offered as a contract for transfer for consideration of any immovable property, and then examine the acts said to have been done in furtherance of the contract, and find out whether there is a real nexus between the contract and the acts pleaded as in part performance, to enable refusal of relief to be perpetuating the fraud of the party, who after having taken advantage or benefit of the contract, backs out and pleads non-registration as defence, a defence analogous to section 4 of the Statute of Frauds.²⁴⁸⁴

[s 53A.5] Applicability of Limitation Act

A perusal of section 53A shows that it does not forbid a defendant-transferee from taking a plea in his defence to protect his possession over the suit property obtained in part performance of a contract, even though the period of limitation for bringing a suit for specific performance has expired.²⁴⁸⁵

[53A. Part performance.—

If the six conditions enumerated in section 53A are complied with, the law of limitation cannot come in the way of the defendant taking a plea under section 53 A of the TP Act, 1882 to protect his possession of the suit property even though a suit for specific performance of a contract was barred by limitation. The reason is that the Law of Limitation is not applicable to a plea taken in defence unless a provision is expressly made in the statute. It is also trite law that law of limitation applies to the suits and applications and not to a defence taken by a defendant in a suit.²⁴⁸⁶

The Supreme Court has held that since the period of limitation bars a suit for specific performance of a contract, if brought after the period of limitation, it is open to a defendant in a suit for recovery of possession brought by a transferor to take a plea in defence of part performance of the contract to protect his possession, though he may not be able to enforce that right through a suit or action.²⁴⁸⁷

[s 53A.6] Contracts to Transfer for Consideration

These words exclude gifts. A gift does not involve a contract, and even before the enactment of the section, it was held that the doctrine of part performance did not apply to gifts.²⁴⁸⁸ Moreover, a gift is complete on acceptance, subject to registration.²⁴⁸⁹ In a Calcutta case,²⁴⁹⁰ the doctrine was applied to an antenuptial gift; but the case was regarded as one of contract, the court treating the antenuptial promise of the bride's father as becoming a binding contract when the marriage followed.

The section applies to a contract of dower governed by Mahomedan law, where the bride is in possession and has married in performance of the contract.²⁴⁹¹

[s 53A.7] Transfers and Agreements Covered by the Section

Transfer in relation of a capital asset would include any transaction involving allowing of the possession of an immovable property to be taken or retaining in part performance of contract of the nature referred to in section 53A.²⁴⁹² Similarly, a transfer under the Income Tax Act means transfer of such property by way of sale or exchange or lease for a term of not less than twelve years, and includes allowing the possession of such property to be taken or retained in part performance of a contract of the nature referred to in section 53A.²⁴⁹³

The section applies to leases and agreement to lease.²⁴⁹⁴ Where an agreement to lease is evidenced by correspondence, the lessee is put in possession, and there has been the acceptance of rent by the lessor for several years, the Supreme Court held that the section was applicable, and the lessee could defend the suit for ejectment.²⁴⁹⁵

However, in a case from Delhi for the renewal of lease, oral negotiations were carried out between the parties. The draft lease was prepared, but was not signed by either of the parties. It was held that no concluded contract came into existence, and the suit for specific performance is not maintainable.²⁴⁹⁶ Section 53A applies to usufructuary mortgages, and mortgages with possession.²⁴⁹⁷ It does not, however, apply to a family arrangement, which does not involve a transfer of property,²⁴⁹⁸ or to a partition, which is not a transfer at all.²⁴⁹⁹ It is doubtful whether the section applies to an agreement to transfer a partial interest in property, such as a right to win minerals, or to cut timber.²⁵⁰⁰

The mortgagee cannot claim a right higher than what is provided in the ultimate document agreed to be executed, by invoking section 53A. In the case of an agreement to execute a mortgage for a definite period

[53A. Part performance.—

under which possession was handed over to the defendant, if the conditions of section 53A are satisfied, he will be entitled to get all the rights under the mortgage which are agreed to be executed, but cannot claim to continue in possession after the expiry of that period relying on section 53A. The general law of mortgages or the rights and liabilities of the mortgagor and mortgagee are not modified by section 53A.²⁵⁰¹

[s 53A.8] By Writing

As has been noted, the section only applies to a case where there is a written agreement. An oral agreement will not be sufficient.²⁵⁰² Similarly, the section would have no application if there is no written contract at all.²⁵⁰³ To claim part performance, the contract of sale must be in writing,²⁵⁰⁴ and on the basis of oral agreement of sale that were never attempted to get recognised or enforced through judicial proceedings a person cannot claim protection of possession.²⁵⁰⁵ In Dhannalal Ahirwar v Satyanarayan,²⁵⁰⁶ the parties did enter into an oral contract but no effort was ever made to get the sale deed executed, the court held that an inference can be drawn, that the requisite conditions for part performance were not fulfilled and therefore no benefit under this section can be given. In case of a complete failure to prove execution of a contract for sale, the benefit of section 53A cannot be pleaded by a person despite the fact that he might have been given the possession of the property.²⁵⁰⁷ There seem to be two reasons for this limitation: (1) The occasion for the doctrine arises in India with reference to documents inadmissible in evidence for want of registration; and (2) The risk of perjuries, if an oral contract could be set up as a defence after limitation for a suit for specific performance had expired. Mere oral agreement does not create any interest or charge.

Though the contract must be in writing, its existence and its terms may, in appropriate cases, be proved by secondary evidence, as when the original is in the possession or power of the transferor.²⁵⁰⁸ It cannot, however, be proved from what purports to be its quotation in another document.²⁵⁰⁹ A writing which may refer to some part or parts of a contract which is oral, is not sufficient.²⁵¹⁰ So also, a writing which referred by mistake to a different piece of land was held as not entitling a person to claim part performance.²⁵¹¹ It is, however, not necessary that there should be a formal agreement.²⁵¹² But when the terms of the agreement are reduced to a form of document, such document serves the purpose of this section.²⁵¹³ An operative document incorporating a previous oral agreement is sufficient, even if it comes into existence later;²⁵¹⁴ but a mere memorandum recording that possession was taken earlier under an oral agreement, is not.²⁵¹⁵ A written agreement cannot, however, be relied upon if its material terms have been subsequently orally varied.²⁵¹⁶ Where the recital indicating passing of possession was found to have been subsequently interpolated in the deed of agreement, it was held that the interpolation by which the plaintiff could claim part performance under section 53A of the TP Act, 1882 was a material alteration, and the plaintiff could not, therefore, enforce his right under that agreement.²⁵¹⁷ Where the instrument of transfer is not brought on record in accordance with law, no benefit of protection can be availed of despite acquiring the possession of the property.²⁵¹⁸

[s 53A.9] Signed by him or on his Behalf

The contract must be signed by or on behalf of the person sought to be charged under this section.²⁵¹⁹ It follows, therefore, that a kabuliyat, signed only by the lessee, does not entitle him to relief under this section.²⁵²⁰ Where the lease deed, though registered, is not signed by the lessee, but possession had been delivered to the lessee, the lessee can claim the benefit of section 53A,²⁵²¹ It had been held by the Madras,²⁵²² and Andhra²⁵²³ High Courts that where such a contract was signed by another person as agent or karta of a joint family, a plea of part performance could not be taken against the members of the joint family, unless it was expressly stated to be on behalf of the joint family. Both the decisions have been expressly overruled, the former by the Privy Council,²⁵²⁴ and the latter by a Full Bench of the Andhra High Court.²⁵²⁵ Where a contract is signed by a person, whose act would be binding on the real owner, the section applies.²⁵²⁶ It has also been held that these words must be liberally construed,²⁵²⁷ and such liberal construction is in accord with the English Law.²⁵²⁸ The position is, of course different, where A, who was part-owner of a property which had been leased by him to a firm of which he was a member, signed the contract not as part-owner but, as a member of the firm; the section could not be invoked against the other owner.²⁵²⁹

In granting relief under section 53A, the question whether the contract is specifically enforceable has no bearing at all, and the doctrine of part performance applies even if specific performance is not otherwise permissible.²⁵³⁰

[53A. Part performance.—

[s 53A.10] Any Movable Property

The doctrine as enacted in this section cannot apply to movable property.²⁵³¹

[s 53A.11] Ascertained with Reasonable Certainty

A contract the terms of which cannot be ascertained with reasonable certainty, cannot be enforced.²⁵³² It is one of the necessary ingredients of section 53A that the terms of the written contract must be ascertainable with reasonable certainty. The emphasis on the word “reasonable certainty” pre-supposes that the court should be in a position to judge the exact nature of the transaction, ie, the subject matter of the document. This is the foundational basis for section 53A, and in the absence of a document or secondary evidence from which the court can ascertain the terms of that document with reasonable certainty, the defendants are not entitled to the benefit of the doctrine of part performance.²⁵³³

[s 53A.12] Taken or Continues in Possession

Section 53A applies to a person who contracts to transfer immovable property in writing. If the proposed transferee in the agreement has taken possession of the property or he continues in possession thereof being already in possession, part performance of the contract and has done some act in furtherance of the contract, and transferee has performed or is willing to perform his part of the contract, the transferor shall be debarred from enforcing any right in respect of the property.²⁵³⁴ Where the purchaser is given the possession of the suit shop in view of the agreement on payment of balance sale consideration of the total amount and he is ready and willing to perform his part of the contract, such purchaser is entitled to protect his possession under this section.²⁵³⁵

The section only applies to cases where the transferee is in possession under a contract to transfer immovable property. Sine qua non for taking shelter under section 53A is proof of possession.²⁵³⁶ If the transferee has not taken possession, the section does not apply.²⁵³⁷ In a case where a person claims benefit of part performance, evidence that he was inducted into possession for the first time subsequent to the contract, would be a strong piece of evidence regarding the contract, and of possession changing hands pursuant to the contract. Continuous possession of a tenant in the suit property even after entering into the sale agreements would not by itself amount to a part-performance, putting the tenant in possession of the suit properties pursuant to the sale agreements.²⁵³⁸

It is not necessary that the delivery of the possession must be at the instance of the vendor. The words used in the section are “and the transferee has... taken possession”.²⁵³⁹

It is not necessary, that the contract must contain a direct covenant regarding transfer of possession. It is only necessary that possession should have been taken in part performance of the contract,²⁵⁴⁰ but where only temporary possession was given to the defendant for carrying out construction, it was held that the exclusive possession in the legal sense remained with the plaintiff, and the defendants were not entitled to protect their possession under section 53A of the TP Act, 1882.²⁵⁴¹

It is not necessary that the transferee must be in possession of the entire property agreed to be sold. It is enough if the transferee continues in possession or takes possession even of a part of the property.²⁵⁴² Where the transferee was already in possession of immovable property under an agreement of sale, and the transferor accepted delayed payment of installment under the agreement by the transferee, and the transferee was willing to perform his part of contract, the benefit under section 53A cannot be denied to the transferee.²⁵⁴³

[s 53A.13] Possession, Change of Character

The Supreme Court has held that there is an understandable and noteworthy difference in the probative value of entering into possession for the first time, and continuing in possession with claim of change in character. Where person claiming benefit of part performance of a contract was already in possession prior to the contract, the court would expect something independent of the mere retention of the possession to evidence part performance and unless there is in addition something done in furtherance of this contract, he is not entitled to take the benefit of section 53A.²⁵⁴⁴ It has been held that mere retention of possession, quite legal and valid, if mortgage with possession is not discharged, could hardly be said to be an act in part performance unequivocally referable to the contract of sale.²⁵⁴⁵ When a person already in possession of the property in some other capacity enters into a contract to purchase the property, to confer the benefit of protecting possession under the plea of part performance, his act effective from that day must be consistent with the contract alleged, and also such as cannot be referred to the preceding title.²⁵⁴⁶

[53A. Part performance.—

Where a person is already in possession as a tenant at the commencement of an unregistered lease, he would continue to be a tenant from month to month, and section 53A would not apply where the person remains in occupation of the premises sold to him after the termination of the period of lease.²⁵⁴⁷ Merely because the landlord accepts rent after termination of notice under protest, such conduct would not amount to signifying “assent” to continuance of lease in absence of any evidence even to prove oral lease and hence such a tenant cannot take the benefit of section 53 A.²⁵⁴⁸ Similarly, a tenant who continued to be in possession as tenant, cannot take benefit of section 53A though subsequently an agreement to sale is entered between the parties.²⁵⁴⁹ In a Calcutta case,²⁵⁵⁰ on the expiry of the original lease, the lessee continued in possession under the renewal clause. Rent was paid for such period, but it was not shown to be independent of contract. It was held that the lessee was protected only under section 53A, and became a trespasser on the expiry of the renewed period. He did not become a monthly tenant. The court distinguished the decisions in *Biswabani Pvt Ltd v Santhosh K Dutta*²⁵⁵¹ and Technical Studios v Lila Ghosh.²⁵⁵²

The plea of retention of possession as a tenant is again contrary to the spirit of section 53A and a tenant claiming the benefit of part performance of the contract to protect his possession but failing to prove that he was given possession of the property in furtherance of the contract, cannot avail the benefit of section 53A.²⁵⁵³ The benefit of section 53A was not extended to the tenant, as the condition in the agreement to sell was that the possession as owner purchaser will be given to tenant at the time of the sale deed. Nothing was done on the part of the tenant in furtherance of the said agreement, and nothing was on the record to show that he ceased to be a tenant. It was held the tenant cannot take advantage of the doctrine of part performance, and the order of eviction against him meanwhile, is not illegal.²⁵⁵⁴

A person who is put in possession in pursuance of part performance of unregistered sale deed, is entitled to protect his possession through an order of interim injunction obtained in a suit for permanent injunction.²⁵⁵⁵

The maxim “possession follows title” is applicable in cases where proof of actual possession cannot reasonably be expected; for instance, in the case of waste lands, or where nothing is known about possession one way or another. Presumption of title as a result of possession, can arise only where facts disclose that no title vests in any party.²⁵⁵⁶

[s 53A.14] Adverse Possession

Setting up of a title by adverse possession and readiness and willingness to perform his part of the contract are contradictory to each other, which a party cannot be permitted to take.²⁵⁵⁷ Where a person bases his case on section 53A, it goes without saying that he admits by implication that he came into possession of the land lawfully under the agreement, and continued to remain in possession till date of suit; thereby, the plea of adverse possession is not available to appellant.²⁵⁵⁸ Plea of adverse possession and retaining the possession by operation of section 53A, are inconsistent with each other.²⁵⁵⁹ The defense of part performance cannot go with the plea of adverse possession.²⁵⁶⁰ Thus where a person admits permissive possession to manage property by virtue of an agreement to sell, his attempts to perfect his title by raising the plea of adverse possession would not be accepted.²⁵⁶¹ Similarly, where a person who obtains the possession of the property

[53A. Part performance.—

under executory terms of contract of sale and who fails to file any suit for specific performance of contract within the prescribed limitation period cannot ask for declaration of his title on the ground that he remained in possession for more than 12 years period and contending that his possession is adverse to the real owner. Such a possession can only be protected under section 53A.²⁵⁶²

[s 53A.15] Act of Part Performance

Repairs and improvements effected under a mortgage cannot be an act of part performance under a subsequent sale, as it is an act preliminary to a sale.²⁵⁶³ The mere retention by a tenant,²⁵⁶⁴ or a mortgagee in possession,²⁵⁶⁵ of possession after the expiry of the original lease or mortgage, or advancement of money for the purchase of stamps,²⁵⁶⁶ is not an act of part performance. Similarly, possession obtained subsequent to the agreement, and not referable to it, is not an act of part performance.²⁵⁶⁷ Where, however, the tenant remains in possession after the expiry of an old lease, and pays reduced rent, it is an act of part performance of the renewal of the lease at a reduced rent.²⁵⁶⁸ So also, where the person puts up a house soon after being put in possession under an unregistered contract of sale,²⁵⁶⁹ or takes electricity connection and makes improvements.²⁵⁷⁰

The section does not apply when a mortgagee in possession continues in possession under an oral sale;²⁵⁷¹ the position would, of course, be different when the mortgagee retains possession under an unregistered deed of sale.²⁵⁷²

So, also, where a lessee retained possession after the expiry of the lease, under a written agreement to purchase the property, for which he had paid the consideration.²⁵⁷³ For a tenant continuing in possession of an immovable property after a contract to transfer, written and signed by the landlord, to get the protection under section 53A, it is necessary to show that he continues in possession in pursuance of the contract as mere continuance in possession does not satisfy the requirement of section 53A.²⁵⁷⁴

The act in question must be referable to the contract alleged to have been partly performed.²⁵⁷⁵

In the proceedings instituted by the landlord under the Rent Control Act for eviction, the tenant is entitled to set up the agreement of sale in his favour as a shield in defence to the action. After the date of such contract, and after it was performed in part by the payment of consideration towards the contract, if the landlord allows the tenant to remain in possession by reason of the new status created under the contract, the landlord cannot contend that the possession is still referable to the earlier contract. Under section 53A, it is not necessary that the deed of transfer must have been obtained before the section can be invoked.²⁵⁷⁶

In two cases,²⁵⁷⁷ however, the doctrine was wrongly applied to oral sales to persons in possession, though there was no act done in furtherance of the contract for sale.

[s 53A.16] Has Performed or is Willing to Perform

The section confers no rights on a party who was not willing to perform his part of the contract.²⁵⁷⁸ A transferee has to prove that he was honestly ready, and willing to perform his part under the contract.²⁵⁷⁹ A prospective vendee who had taken possession could not resist dispossession, if he fails to discharge his obligations under an agreement to sell,²⁵⁸⁰ or were not willing to pay the price agreed upon.²⁵⁸¹ Where the agreement was executed for Rs 17,750 but the buyer paid only 5500 as earnest money and was in possession of the property under the orders of the court but failed to prove his readiness and willingness to make the payment or the balance amount on the date agreed for execution of the deed or till the filing of the suit, it was held that he was not entitled to protection under section 53A.²⁵⁸² The High Court of Karnataka has pointed out that in order to substantiate the plea of part performance, the defendant who takes this plea must assert that he had demanding specific performance within the stipulated time. Plea of part-performance is not available in case one fails to plead in his written statement his willingness to perform his part of contract.²⁵⁸³ Failure to take this plea would mean that he did not show readiness and willingness to perform his part of the contract.²⁵⁸⁴

[53A. Part performance.—

The doctrine of readiness and willingness is an emphatic way of expression to establish that the transferee always abides by the terms of the agreement, and is willing to perform his part of the contract.²⁵⁸⁵ Part performance, as a statutory right, is conditioned upon the transferee's continuous willingness to perform his part of the contract in terms covenanted there under.²⁵⁸⁶

Willingness to perform the roles ascribed to a party in a contract is primarily a mental disposition. However, such willingness in the context of section 53A of the TP Act, 1882 must be absolute and unconditional.²⁵⁸⁷ If willingness is studded with a condition, it is in fact no more than an offer, and cannot be termed as willingness. Where the vendee company expresses its willingness to pay the amount, provided the plaintiff clears his income tax arrears, there is no complete willingness, but a conditional willingness or partial willingness which is not sufficient to arm the company with the shield provided under section 53A of the TP Act, 1882.²⁵⁸⁸

In case a substantial part of sale consideration is paid, and the transferee, being sufficiently possessed of more amount than contemplated in agreement, the transferor, cannot fall back on frivolous plea of not having received amount of registration charges, and the purchaser would be entitled to protection of section 53A.²⁵⁸⁹ Where on receipt of the balance consideration, the purchaser was given possession of property and with another agreement he was allowed to use premises as an absolute owner, was permitted to get electricity connection make improvements and take other necessary steps, this would show his willingness to perform his part of the contract.²⁵⁹⁰ Where the transferee is not willing to fulfil his part of the contract, section 53A will not be attracted.²⁵⁹¹ Where the possession of the property was handed over in furtherance of an agreement to sell but the transferee was not ready and willing to fulfil his specific obligations under the agreement and part of the bargain, the benefit of section 53A would not be available to him.²⁵⁹² Where the transferee failed to discharge his obligations under agreement to sell and failed to establish his willingness and readiness to fulfil his part of the contract,²⁵⁹³ nor paid balance amount, and did not even file a suit for specific performance of contract despite expiry of period of limitation he cannot resist a suit for recovery of possession,²⁵⁹⁴ nor claim that the transferor should have instead filed a suit for specific performance or recovery of the balance amount.²⁵⁹⁵ On the other hand when the right of the true owner is challenged by the proposed vendee, he must establish that he has performed his part of the contract as performance of his part of contract and readiness and willingness to perform if neither pleaded nor proved by the vendee he would not be entitled to seek the benefit of section 53A.²⁵⁹⁶ In certain circumstances, once a party to a contract has repudiated a contract, it is not necessary for the other party to tender the amount payable under the contract in the manner provided in the contract, in order to successfully claim the specific performance of the contract. Non payment of registration charges after payment of substantial sale consideration would not be²⁵⁹⁷ sufficient to dispossess the transferee. This does not, however, mean that where one party to a contract repudiates the contract, the other party to the contract, who claims specific performance of the contract, is absolved from his obligation to show that he was ready and willing to perform the contract.²⁵⁹⁸ In the instant case, the transferee was in possession of the premises and claimed protection under section 53A. Under the agreement of sale, he was required to pay regular installments of a monthly sum to the transferor. After paying some installments, he stopped payments, alleging that the transferor had repudiated the agreement. The arbitrator held that since the transferee stopped payment of the monthly sum, he could not be said to have performed or was willing to perform his part of the contract and, therefore, was not entitled to retain possession under the protection afforded by section 53A. It was held that the award of the arbitrator could not be set aside on the ground of error of law apparent on face of the award. It could not also be said that the arbitrator was guilty of misconduct.

So also, a person who falsely pleads that he has paid the full consideration for the transfer, and is found not to have paid a part of the consideration is not entitled to the benefit of the section.²⁵⁹⁹ It is, however, not necessary that the willingness to perform the terms must be expressly pleaded in the pleadings.²⁶⁰⁰

[53A. Part performance.—

In judging willingness to perform, the court must consider the obligations of the parties, and the sequence in which they were to be performed. So a buyer could not be said to be not willing if he was to pay the balance of the purchase money after the revenue records were rectified, and did not do so because they were not rectified.²⁶⁰¹

This is also the position in English Law, based on the maxim, “he who seeks equity must do equity.” So, where a person in possession under an agreement to lease, has failed to perform a condition precedent to the agreement, he was not allowed to raise the equity of Walsh v Lonsdale.²⁶⁰² With reference to section 53A, the High Court of Punjab and Haryana has held that the tenants who claim to have agreed to purchase the property must take the plea that he has performed, or is willing to perform, his part of the contract.²⁶⁰³ Similarly, where a person after taking possession, instead of filing a suit for specific performance took steps to transfer possession to a third party, the possession of such a person would not be protected.²⁶⁰⁴

[s 53A.17] Then

Section 53A makes it clear by employing the word “then” after laying down the pre-requisites that a transferee can seek refuge under it only after satisfying the other pre-requisites.²⁶⁰⁵

[s 53A.18] Though the Contract is Not Registered

These words expressly supersede the provisions of the Registration Act, 1908. Under the proviso added to section 49 of the Registration Act, 1908, unregistered documents are admissible as evidence of part performance. However, by the amendments made by the Registration and Other Related Laws (Amendment) Act, 2001, which has come into force with effect from 24 September 2001, as already noticed above, the words “the contract, though required to be registered, has not been registered, or,” as appearing in para 4 of section 53A has been omitted. Simultaneously, sections 17 and 49 of the Registration Act, 1908 has been amended making it clear that unless the documents containing contract to transfer for consideration any immovable property for the purpose of section 53A is registered, it shall not have effect for the purposes of section 53A. Presently the protection of possession can be availed of only under a registered agreement.²⁶⁰⁶ However, there is a contrary ruling from the Punjab and Haryana High court.²⁶⁰⁷ The court has held that as an agreement to sell does not create any right or title to the property and it is a sale deed which when executed will create a right, title or interest in the property, hence an agreement to sell is not required to be registered and the same is admissible in evidence in a suit for specific performance of the contract. This ruling stands in sharp contrast to the amendment of 2001.

[s 53A.19] Where there is an Instrument of Transfer

The case of an instrument of transfer is put in the alternative. The amendment to section 49 of the Registration Act, 1908 shows that the section applies although there is not a distinct and separate contract in writing. The instrument itself is treated as the contract in writing, as was done by CJ Jenkins in Puchha Lal v Kunj Behari Lal.²⁶⁰⁸

In order that the doctrine of part performance may be invoked, it is necessary that the acts of part performance must be such as not only to be referable to the contract of which the part performance is alleged, but to be referable to no other title.²⁶⁰⁹

The section would not apply if the instrument is unsigned, or if it cannot be proved for some other reason, eg, if the original is unstamped and lost so that secondary evidence, is inadmissible, as in Hiralal v Shankar.²⁶¹⁰ The doctrine does not extend to gifts.²⁶¹¹

[s 53A.20] Nature of Right: Available Only as a Defence

[53A. Part performance.—

The Privy Council in *Probodh Kumar Das v Dantmara Tea Co*²⁶¹² has held that the right conferred by section 53A is a right available only to the defendant to protect his possession. The section is so framed as to impose statutory bar on the transfer; it confers no active title on the transferee.²⁶¹³ Indeed any other reading of it would make serious inroad on the whole scheme of the TP Act, 1882. The above law laid down has been followed with approval by Supreme Court in Technicians Studio Pvt Ltd v Leela Ghosh.²⁶¹⁴

It has been held that part-performance in India does not give rise to equity as in England, but to a statutory right which is a comparatively restricted right. In that, it is available only as a defence. It is only a partial importation in the statute law of India of the English doctrine of part-performance. Thus, a person who is lead into possession on the strength of a void lease does not acquire any interest in the property, but gets under section 53A only a right to defend his possession.²⁶¹⁵ Following Probodh Kumar, the Supreme Court again in *Delhi Motor Co v UA Basrurkar*²⁶¹⁶ has held that section 53A is only available as defence to the lessee, and not as conferring a right on the basis of which the lessee can claim rights against the lessor.

This section does not create a title in the defendant;²⁶¹⁷ and he cannot maintain a suit on title.²⁶¹⁸ It only imposes a statutory ban on transfer. The Supreme Court has approved this principle.²⁶¹⁹

It merely operates as a bar to the plaintiff asserting his title. It is limited to cases where the transferee had taken possession, and against whom the transferor is debarred from enforcing any right, other than that expressly provided by the contract. When the conditions mentioned in the section are fulfilled, it debars him from enforcing against the transferee any right or interest not expressly provided by the contract. So far as the transferee is concerned, the section confers a right on him to the extent it imposes a bar on the transferor. However, that is only a right to protect his possession against any challenge to it by the latter contrary to the terms of the contract.²⁶²⁰ Where the transferee who gets a document of a contract of sale in his favour coupled with the actual delivery of possession of the suit property can use it as a protective shield against the transferor or any person claiming under him.²⁶²¹

Where suit for possession by the owner was resisted by proposed vendor claiming benefit under section 53A and he neither pleaded nor proved performance of his part of the contract or readiness and willingness to perform, it was held that non mentioning of agreement of sale in plaint would not disentitle the owner to claim possession because burden lay on proposed vendee to plead and prove ingredients of section 53A and hence owner would be entitled to possession.²⁶²² In a Supreme Court case, the appellant company was the sub-lessee of the disputed premises. A suit for eviction was decreed against it, but ultimately, in revision before the high court, there was a compromise under which the appellant company became a direct tenant (instead of being a sub-lessee) for 16 years, the rent being paid on a monthly basis. No deed was executed, nor was the compromise registered. On the expiry of the period of lease, the landlord issued a notice to quit, and a suit for eviction was filed. It was held that the compromise required registration and this having not been done, it created no interest in favour of the appellant, though he could protect his eviction for 16 years, by reason of part performance. On the expiry of the said period, he had no protection at all. The subsequent possession after the passing of the compromise decree conferred no active title on the transferee, but only imposed a statutory bar on the transferor.²⁶²³ The plaintiff brought a suit for specific performance on the footing that the unregistered document in the suit was an agreement to sell land. The plaintiff's main plea was founded on part performance. However, in the documents itself, it was stated that full consideration for the land was also delivered to the plaintiff-vendee. Thus, the passing of consideration and passing of title—the two essential incidents to constitute a sale deed—being present in the document, it was held that the document was nothing but a sale deed, but as it was unregistered, the sale failed. However, the plaintiff had been given possession of the suit land simultaneously with the execution of the sale deed, and was continuously in possession, thus the court held, that he could not be non-suited and would be entitled to a decree for permanent injunction to protect his title.²⁶²⁴

[53A. Part performance.—

In Kulwant Singh v Prasada Ram,²⁶²⁵ A in lieu of a loan of Rs 6000 from B, put B in the possession of the property, who made various developments on the property. A later sold the property to C. The attempt of dispossessing B by C led to an action by the former by way of permanent injunction. The issue was whether protection of section 53A, is available to him as this plea is available only in defence and not to base his claim in the suit on this plea. The court held that protection under section 53A can be used not for an attack but only in defence.

It is only in the case of a suit for specific performance that part performance assists a plaintiff. A transferee who has come into possession of the property in part performance of a written agreement can continue in possession, if he is ready and willing to perform his part of the agreement. In such a case, it is not necessary that the transferee should have filed a suit for specific performance within the period of limitation prescribed for a suit for specific performance.²⁶²⁶ According to the Bombay High Court, an application for temporary injunction in a suit seeking specific performance of agreement of sale of land cannot be treated as an application for the relief of injunction under section 53A. The high court dissented from a Madras case holding to the contrary.²⁶²⁷ According to the Allahabad High Court, section 53A applies to the transferee, even if he is a plaintiff. Further, it applies not only where the transferee is physically in possession on the date of suit, but also where he has been illegally dispossessed by some person claiming under the transferor. A contrary interpretation would reduce the utility of the section to a naught, because a powerful transferor would then, defeat the section by forcibly dispossessing the transferee and compelling him to sue as a plaintiff.²⁶²⁸ It is, of course, not available under the section.²⁶²⁹

A transferee in possession under section 53A of the TP Act, 1882 can ask for an injunction for the protection of his rights. He can claim injunction against the transferor restraining him from interfering with his possession.²⁶³⁰ The Madhya Pradesh High Court has held that a transferee-in-possession satisfying all conditions of the section must be protected by the court, whether he comes as a plaintiff or as a defendant. The court cannot tell the transferee-in-possession if he comes as a plaintiff - "go back, use your physical strength and muscle power to resist and repel the attack of the transferor and drive him to come to the court as a plaintiff and then if you are arrayed as a defendant, the court will protect you."²⁶³¹

A person who is allowed to take or retain possession of any building or part thereof in part performance of a contract of the nature referred to in section 53A of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 (4 of 1882), shall be deemed to be the owner of that building for taxation purposes.²⁶³²

[s 53A.21] Part Performance Not a Sword

Some Indian decisions betray a misconception of the limited scope of the section. In a Bombay case,²⁶³³ a defendant who had taken possession under an unregistered lease, was held liable for the rent, and damages were awarded to the plaintiff. In this case, the section was used as a ground of attack, and the cardinal principle was overlooked, ie, part performance must be the act of the person seeking to avail himself of the equity, and that acts of the person sought to be charged are of no avail. In a Rangoon case,²⁶³⁴ the court granted a declaration of right to the person claiming under the transferee. A Lahore case,²⁶³⁵ where the transferee who was in possession was said to have a right under the section, can perhaps be explained as meaning that he had a right to resist dispossession.

In this regard, the Supreme Court has laid to rest all doubts, and held that the benefit of section 53A cannot be taken aid of by the transferee-plaintiff to establish his right as owner of the property,²⁶³⁶ nor can he maintain a suit against a third party to the contract for enforcement of a bar as against the transferor.²⁶³⁷ It has further been held that section 53A can be used as a shield, but not as an independent claim either as plaintiff, or as a defendant.²⁶³⁸ It is a "weapon of defence and not attack".²⁶³⁹ In a matter with regard to an unregistered lease deed, the Supreme Court held that section 53A is meant only to bring out a bar against the enforcement of a right by a lessor in respect of the property of which the lessee had already taken possession, but does not give any right to the lessee to claim possession, or to claim any other rights on the basis of an unregistered lease.²⁶⁴⁰ Right under this section cannot be pressed into service against a third party like state purporting to enforce the provisions of Uttar Pradesh Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960 against the proposed transferor of lands.²⁶⁴¹

[53A. Part performance.—

No doubt section 53A creates a right in favour of transferee to defend his possession. But if he is forcibly ejected by the transferor, he can file a suit for recovery of possession not pursuant to section 53A, but under section 6 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963.²⁶⁴² A Full Bench of Bombay High Court has held that when it is said that proposed transferee-in-possession can use section 53A as a shield, but not as a sword, it means that he can use section 53A either as a plaintiff or as a defendant to protect his possession, but he cannot use section 53A either for getting title or for getting possession if he is not actually in possession. In other words, when the transferee-in-possession comes to the court as a plaintiff seeking a decree of perpetual injunction against the transferor, he is using section 53A as a shield to protect his possession.²⁶⁴³ Where the party acquired the premises in part performance of the contract, a sale of the same property in favour of third party who never had possession of the property, would not result in dispossession of the party who had entered in possession of the property in part performance of the contract. Thus a plea seeking their eviction would not be granted and they are entitled to protection under section 53A.²⁶⁴⁴

With reference to section 53A, the High Court of Punjab and Haryana has held that the section applies only when the defendant transferee seeks to debar the transferor from enforcing his right of transfer of property. In other words, section 53A can be used only as a defence. The high court dissented from the views taken to the contrary in Ram Chander v Maharaj Kanwar,²⁶⁴⁵ *Achayya v Venkata Subba Rao*²⁶⁴⁶ and *Amrao Singh v Sanathan Dharma Sabha*²⁶⁴⁷ The high court agreed with the view taken to the same effect in *Padmanabh v Appalanarasamma*²⁶⁴⁸ and Motilal v Jaswant Singh.²⁶⁴⁹

It was clearly stipulated in an agreement to sell in favour of the objection in respect of the attached property, that possession would be delivered to the objector after the execution of the sale deed. It was not in dispute that the judgment-debtor was in actual possession of the property at the time of execution of the agreement, and continued to be in possession thereafter. It was held that in view of the provisions of sections 53A and 54 of the TP Act, 1882 and O XXI, rule 59 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908, the objector could not maintain an objection petition on the basis of the rent note allegedly executed on the same date on which the agreement to sell was executed.²⁶⁵⁰

In Ghanshyambhai Dhirubhai Barvaliya v Rasikbhai Dhirubhai Ambaliya,²⁶⁵¹ the Gujarat High court observed to hold that the transferee can use thedeed as shield only as a defendant and not as a plaintiff would defeat the very spirit of section for it will be possible for an over-powering transferor to forcibly dispossess the transferee even against the covenants in the contract and compel him to go to the court as a plaintiff. If the right as a shield is available to the transferee as a defendant, there is no justification that it would be denied to the transferee even if by force of circumstances, he is compelled to approach the Court as a plaintiff to use that shield.

[s 53A.22] Payment Remaining Due

A person cannot be debarred from taking advantage of section 53A, merely because he has not paid the amount in full, particularly when, by filing a suit for specific performance, he has evinced his readiness and willingness to perform the contract.²⁶⁵² A society was in possession of land leased out to it by a municipality. The society apprehended eviction by the municipality, and filed a suit seeking protection to its possession under section 53A. It was held that the society must be protected from unjust invasion by the municipality over its legitimate rights. It was seeking protection as a shield, and not as a sword.²⁶⁵³

[53A. Part performance.—

[s 53A.23] Who is Entitled to the Benefit of Part Performance

The words of the section do not warrant a conclusion that the plaintiff as such is necessarily debarred from the benefit of the section.²⁶⁵⁴ The true position, as explained by CJ Subba Rao as he then was, in a case decided by High Court of Andhra Pradesh is:

Whether the transferee occupies the position of a plaintiff or a defendant, he can resist the transferor's claim against the property. Conversely, whether the transferor is the plaintiff or the defendant, he cannot enforce his rights in respect of the property against the transferee. The utility of the section or the rights conferred thereunder should not be made to depend on the manoeuvring for positions in a court of law, otherwise a powerful transferor can always defeat the salutary provisions of the section by dispossessing the transferee by force and compelling him to go to a court as plaintiff. Doubtless, the right conveyed under the section can be relied upon only as a shield and not as a sword but the protection is available to the transferee both as a plaintiff and as a defendant so long as he uses it as a shield.²⁶⁵⁵

Whether the above statement was a correct statement of the law, was kept open by the Supreme Court.²⁶⁵⁶

So, since the object of a suit under O XXI, rule 103 of the Civil Procedure Code 1908 is to protect possession, and the capacity in which the plaintiff comes to the court is, in reality, of defence, the plaintiff can take advantage of section 53A.²⁶⁵⁷

An equitable right of protection of possession of the transferee in pursuance of agreement to sale cannot be availed of by third party who had no agreement with the owner. Where the transferee had already sold the land to the third party, whatever may be the nature of possession of the third party, she cannot protect the possession under this section.²⁶⁵⁸ This section imposes a statutory bar on the transferor to seek possession of immovable property from transferee in possession and said bar cannot be imposed on the third parties who is not a party to contract/agreement to sell and consequently a suit by proposed transferee against third party to contract for enforcement of bar created by section 53 A would not be maintainable.²⁶⁵⁹ Where the property was purchased by the bonafide transferee who had no knowledge of the agreement at the time of the execution of the sale agreement and they were bonafide purchasers for value, a person who was put in possession on the strength of the partly performed contract, but was not willing to fulfil his part of the contract would not be entitled to protect his possession as against the bonafide purchasers.²⁶⁶⁰ Where under an agreement to sell, a bonafide transferee in good faith and for value had been put in possession of the property for sale of which permission from company law board was granted, the transferee will be entitled to protect the possession under section 53A irrespective of the fact that sale agreement was executed in his favour after the winding up proceedings.²⁶⁶¹

Section 53A cannot be enforced against non-alienating coparceners who are not parties to an agreement of sale.²⁶⁶²

Section 53A operates only against a transferor, but not against a co-sharer who was not a party to the transfer, nor does it have any effect of superseding section 44 of the TP Act, 1882, and frustrate the right of the co-sharer in a family dwelling house as contemplated in section 44.²⁶⁶³

[53A. Part performance.—

The effect of a conjoint reading of section 53A of Transfer of Property Act and section 202 of the Contract Act is that transferor who executed an agreement to sell and a power of attorney, though continued to be the legal owner of the property as per title deed yet all his powers were taken away and were vested in the person in whose favour the agreement to sell and power of attorney was executed,²⁶⁶⁴ but, where a person claims to have been put in possession of property on the basis of power of attorney and agreement of sale alleged to be executed in his favour but fails to bring in both the documents on record, he is not entitled to protection under section 53 A.²⁶⁶⁵

[s 53A.24] Transferor, or Person Claiming under him

The person claiming under a transferor, referred to in the section, is a person who claims under a title derived subsequently to the transfer, and not anterior to it.²⁶⁶⁶ The test for determining whether these words in section 53A apply to a Hindu reversioner is, whether the acts of the deceased widow affecting the property bind the reversioner. If her acts bind the property, they must bind the reversioner in the same manner, and to the same extent as the acts of an absolute owner would bind his heir. The reversioner may not be her heir, but is certainly her successor, and is bound by her acts which lawfully affect the property, and to the extent he is so bound, he becomes a person claiming under her.²⁶⁶⁷

A reversioner comes within the expression “person claiming under him” in the context of Hindu law. Though reversioners do not claim through the widow, they are the successors-in-title of the estate after the widow’s death, in the sense that the extent of the estate which would devolve on him would depend on the exercise by the widow of her right of disposal for legal necessity.²⁶⁶⁸

Where an agreement is entered into by a guardian, which he was competent to enter into so as to bind the minor, and is for the minor’s benefit, the minor is the transferor within the meaning of the section, and is debarred from obtaining possession from the transferee.²⁶⁶⁹ A judgment creditor who has attached the property of a judgment debtor in possession of an intended purchaser is a person claiming under the transferor.²⁶⁷⁰ A person who holds in adverse possession to the transferor is, of course, not a person claiming under him.²⁶⁷¹ Similarly, where a Hindu father executed a document of transfer of joint family property, the sons who were entitled to two-thirds of the property were not affected, by this section, as they do not claim under the father.²⁶⁷²

The successor in interest of a lessor is not a person “claiming” under the lessee within the meaning of section 53A.²⁶⁷³

[s 53A.25] Right Expressly Provided by the Contract

The transferor may, of course, enforce a right which is expressly provided by the terms of the contract. So, if the contract were an agreement of lease not provable for want of registration, the lessee could not resist a demand for rent. If he did so, he would be disentitled to the benefit of the section as not being willing to perform his part of the contract. So also where a lessee is already put in possession of certain premises in part performance of an unregistered lease, the lessor can enforce the term of the lease entitling him to re-enter, if there is default in payment of six months’ rent.²⁶⁷⁴

Similarly, if the unregistered lease was only for a term, there would be no right to continue in possession after the expiry of the term.²⁶⁷⁵

[s 53A.26] Proviso: Transferee for Consideration without Notice

The purpose of proviso is to defeat a claim which would otherwise, have succeeded under the main part of the section. The question of this proviso does not arise until and unless the claimant has substantiated his claim

[53A. Part performance.—

under the main part of the section. If the defendant fails to establish the requirements of section 53A, the proviso would not come into the picture at all, irrespective of whether transferee has notice of the defendant's agreement or the part performance thereof, he will be entitled to succeed.²⁶⁷⁶

The proviso to the section saves the right of a transferee for consideration who has no notice of the contract or its part performance.²⁶⁷⁷ The burden of proving that he is a transferee for consideration without notice is on the transferee.²⁶⁷⁸ This was so held prior to the enactment of section 53A. As to what constitutes notice, has been discussed in section 3 above. It has been held that possession by the earlier transferee would operate as notice; the court relied on illustration 2 to section 27(b) of the Specific Relief Act, 1877.²⁶⁷⁹ The Specific Relief Act of 1963, re-enacts the section as section 19(b), but contains no illustrations. In a suit for declaration of title and performance, B was in occupation of the suit premises as a bonafide purchaser without any notice of the sale agreement with plaintiff, A. A also had no notice of the sale or fact that B was in occupation of the suit property by way of part performance of the contract. B was not shown to be ready and willing to perform his part of the contract and non readiness and willingness was pleaded in written statement. Where the sale deed in favour of A was valid and subsisting, B would not be entitled to plead the benefit of protection under the doctrine of part performance of the contract.²⁶⁸⁰

In a Rajasthan case, it was held that though the burden of proving that the subsequent transferee had notice of the prior contract lay on the defendant (who claimed the benefit of part performance), the subsequent transferee must be taken to have implied notice of the agreement (to sell) and of part performance, because since the defendant was admittedly in possession, the transferee would have had notice of the title of the defendant, but for wilful abstention from inquiry. In this case, the defendant was in possession as mortgagee and agreed to purchase.²⁶⁸¹

[s 53A.27] Agreement Otherwise Invalid

The section specifically allows the doctrine of part-performance to be applied to agreements which though required to be registered, are not registered, and to transfers not completed in the manner prescribed by any law. The section is, therefore, applicable to cases where a transfer has not been completed in the manner required by law, unless such non-compliance with the procedural or formal requirements results in the transfer being void.

If the agreement is void under any other law, neither the section, nor the doctrine of equity on which it is founded will validate that which the law says is invalid. This proposition follows from the decisions of the Privy Council in *Ariff v Jadunath*²⁶⁸² and Mian Pir Bux v Sardar Mahomed Tahar.²⁶⁸³

The following agreements have, therefore, been held outside the scope of the doctrine: an agreement by a client to transfer land to a mukhtiar as remuneration for his services, which was invalid under section 28 of the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879;²⁶⁸⁴ an agreement regarding the transfer of immovable property belonging to a company in liquidation executed by the liquidator which was not duly sanctioned by the creditors under section 212 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913;²⁶⁸⁵ an agreement subsequent to the TP Act, 1882 by a reversioner to transfer his right of succession;²⁶⁸⁶ an agreement on behalf of a trust to which all the trustees have not joined.²⁶⁸⁷

The doctrine of part performance cannot be availed of in respect of a transaction which is null and void. Where possession by the transferor to the transferee was not supported by any valid transfer or by title holder, the transferee cannot claim possession of the suit property as part performance.²⁶⁸⁸ A transfer in contravention to section 165-A of Madhya Pradesh land revenue Code being void, section 53A cannot be invoked in such a case. The purchaser may claim refund of consideration under section 65 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.²⁶⁸⁹ In an Andhra Pradesh case, it was held on the facts that the possession given to the petitioners in pursuance of the contract of sale without obtaining previous sanction of the tehsildar as required under section 471, Hyderabad Tenancy Act (the sale being by a tribal in favour of a non-tribal) was unlawful, and section 53A could not give any protection for such possession.²⁶⁹⁰ In a case where possession was obtained under an agreement of sale in respect of service inam land violating section 5 of the Madras Hereditary Village Offices Act, it was held that the provisions of section 53A of the TP Act, 1882 cannot be resorted to by the would-be vendee to maintain his possession.²⁶⁹¹ Where there was a sale of land by a member of the schedule tribe in contravention of the provisions under section 3(l)(a) of the Andhra Pradesh Scheduled Areas Land Transfer Regulation 1959, it was held that a person in possession of immovable property in contravention of section 3(l)(a) of the said Act would not be entitled to claim the benefit of section 53A of the TP Act, 1882.²⁶⁹² Similarly, where sale deeds were not valid for want of necessary permission under section 22 of the Orissa Land Reforms Act, 1960, it was held that the defendant was not entitled to ask for protection of his possession under section 53A of the TP Act, 1882, his possession being on the basis of a void transaction.²⁶⁹³

[53A. Part performance.—

[s 53A.28] Agreements Conditional on Compliance with Statute

There is, however, a distinction between an agreement void as such, and an agreement void in the absence of something which the vendor could do, and had expressly or impliedly contracted to do. Where a vendor agrees to sell his share of property including sir land, there is an implied term in the contract that he will apply for sanction to the revenue authorities necessary for such transfers, and the court will direct him to do so.²⁶⁹⁴

It cannot be said that such an agreement is void because no sanction has been obtained.²⁶⁹⁵

It has been held that the equity is not available in the case of agreements by a municipal body without complying with the requisite formalities prescribed by the statute incorporating such body.²⁶⁹⁶ This appears to be correct as an agreement made without complying with such formalities is not a contract at all. In some cases, however, such an “agreement” can give rise to a promissory estoppel, or an equity similar to that in Ramsden v Dyson.²⁶⁹⁷

A defence under section 53A involves a question of fact, and its foundation ought to be laid in the pleadings as well as in the evidence. The defence cannot be raised for the first time in second appeal.²⁶⁹⁸

In a Calcutta case, it was held that if all the ingredient facts required to support the defence in part performance are stated in the written statement, the defendant will be entitled to raise such a defence even though the defence is not mentioned in the written statement.²⁶⁹⁹

[s 53A.29] Plea of Part Performance

The plea under section 53A, being a mixed question of law and fact, cannot be raised for the first time in second appeal by the respondent.²⁷⁰⁰ In absence of a contract in writing, a party cannot be allowed to raise a plea of part performance.²⁷⁰¹

[s 53A.30] Equity in Walsh v Lonsdale

The equity in *Walsh v Lonsdale*²⁷⁰² may be stated thus: Where (in a case where a lease not under seal is void at law) A agrees to let land to B on lease, and B goes into possession, and the agreement is one of which specific performance would be granted, A and B have the same legal rights as between themselves and are subject to the same legal liabilities, as if a lease under the seal had been granted on terms of the agreement. Hence, the landlord has the same power of distress as he would have had if a lease under seal had been granted, and the tenant can only be evicted if he has committed such a breach of covenant as would (if a lease had been granted) have entitled the landlord to re-enter. The equity depends not so much on part performance as on the fact that there is a valid contract between the parties still capable of specific performance, and is an instance of the rule that equity regards as done what ought to have been done.

[53A. Part performance.—

As has been noted, the Privy Council have held that no equitable rule could override the express provisions of TP Act, 1882 or the Registration Act, 1908 regarding writing or registration.²⁷⁰³ The enactment of this section has only altered that position by creating the limited right conferred under the section, and it is settled law that no other equitable right can supersede the provisions referring to writing or registration.²⁷⁰⁴ It follows, therefore, that there is no scope in India for applying the equity of Walsh v Lonsdale, except in the limited class of cases where an interest in land can be created without registration, eg a lease for less than one year, or a sale for less than ₹100. In such a case, if the defendant were in possession, he would not require protection for he would be the owner of the interest; and if he were not, his remedy would be a suit for possession.

The decisions of the Privy Council, referred to above, had the effect of overruling a number of decisions where the equity in Walsh v Lonsdale had been applied. In those decisions, the equity had been applied to agreement of lease,²⁷⁰⁵ exchange,²⁷⁰⁶ mortgage,²⁷⁰⁷ sale,²⁷⁰⁸ or release,²⁷⁰⁹ where the agreements were not registered. In several of these cases it was recognised that the equity was not available after a suit for specific performance has become time-barred,²⁷¹⁰ or has been dismissed,²⁷¹¹ or after the execution of a decree for specific performance has become time-barred.²⁷¹² Although equity confers no title,²⁷¹³ it confers an interest which is attachable and saleable.²⁷¹⁴

[s 53A.30.1] Fiduciary capacity of vendor

In a Bombay case,²⁷¹⁵ CJ Scott said that if a vendor who has contracted to sell immovable property puts the prospective vendee in possession, and then seeks to eject the vendee who is willing to complete the purchase, he is repudiating his fiduciary obligation, and the court will not grant him the relief he seeks. This is not a correct statement of the law as explained in Mian Pir Bux v Sardar Mahomed Tahar,²⁷¹⁶ for it treats a contract of sale as a declaration of trust, even though under section 5 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, such a declaration must be registered. The same equity was, however, applied by CJ Macleod in Venkatesh v Malappa,²⁷¹⁷ and in a number of decisions of the Rangoon High Court.²⁷¹⁸ The true position was explained by CJ Page in Official Assignee v ME Moola & Sons Ltd,²⁷¹⁹ which was affirmed by the Privy Council,²⁷²⁰ and several decisions of Rangoon High Court were expressly overruled by a Full Bench of that high court in Ma Kyi v Ma Thon.²⁷²¹ This position has been reaffirmed by the Supreme Court in Chaliagulla Ramaschandrayya v Boppna Satyanarayana,²⁷²² where the court held that the only equity which prevailed against the statutory provisions regarding writing, registration, etc was the right enacted in section 53A.

In some cases, however, the prospective transferee can invoke the equity of Ramsden v Dyson, or the doctrine of promissory estoppel even in cases where he cannot invoke section 53A.

[s 53A.30.2] Ground of Part Performance of Agreement to Sale

In a case where heirs inherited suit property after demise of their father but did not execute any agreement to sale in respect of their shares in the suit property, agreement executed in favour of defendant by one of the heirs which was unregistered and no witness was present to prove it has not right of possession over the suit land. Defendant would not be entitled to benefit of section 53A.²⁷²³

[s 53A.30.3] Section 53A and res judicata

The plea of res judicata would be available in case of an attempt to protect the possession acquired under the doctrine of part performance. Where in spite of having the right to retain the possession of the property under the benefit of section 53A, the predecessor of the transferee did not take the plea of part performance in an earlier suit which can lead to the presumption that he was not willing to fulfil his part of the contract, and consequently a decree for recovery of possession of the property was made as against him in an earlier proceedings that became final against him as also against person claiming under such transferee, the proceedings filed by the successor of the transferee for specific performance of the contract of the same

[53A. Part performance.—

agreement would be barred by constructive res judicata.²⁷²⁴

-
- 2448 Ins. by Act 20 of 1929, section 16.
- 2449 The words “the contract, though required to be registered, has not been registered, or” have been omitted by the Registration and Other Related Laws Amendment Act, 2001 (48 of 2001) section 10 (w.e.f. 24 September 2001).
- 2450 Maddison v Alderson, (1883) 8 App Cas 467.
- 2451 Mahomed Musa v Aghore Kumar Ganguli, (1914) ILR 42 Cal 801 : 42 IA 1 : 28 IC 930; Ariff v Jadunath, 58 IA 91 : 131 IC 762 : AIR 1931 PC 79 ; Mian Pir Bux v Sardar Mahomed Tahar, 61 IA 388 : 60 Cal LJ 370 : 60 Mad LJ 865 : 36 Bom LR 1195 : (1934) All LJ 912 : 151 IC 326 : AIR 1934 PC 235 .
- 2452 State of Uttar Pradesh v District Judge, AIR 1997 SC 53 [LNIND 1996 SC 1691] : (1997) 1 SCC 496 [LNIND 1996 SC 1691] .
- 2453 Vasundara Bhalla v Haridas Bhagat & Co Pvt Ltd, AIR 1995 Mad. 172 [LNIND 1994 MAD 490] ; Nigamananda Patra v Sarat Chandra Patra, AIR 1998 Ori. 19 [LNIND 1996 ORI 110] .
- 2454 Arun Kumar Gupta v Santosh Kumar, AIR 2018 All 11 : 2017 (11) ADJ 424 : 2018 1 All WC 845 All; Nathulal v Phool Chand, (1969) 3 SCC 120 [LNIND 1969 SC 408] : AIR 1970 SC 546 [LNIND 1969 SC 408] ; Shrimant Shamrao Suryavanshi v Pralhad Bhairoba Suryavanshi, (2002) 3 SCC 676 [LNIND 2002 SC 55] : AIR 2002 SC 960 [LNIND 2002 SC 55] ; Rambhau Namdeo Gajre v Narayan Bapuji Dhotra, (2004) 8 SCC 614 [LNIND 2004 SC 839] ; Ram Kumar Agarwal v Thawar Das, (1999) 7 SCC 303 [LNIND 1999 SC 725] , p 309; Jacobs Pvt Ltd v Thomas Jacob, AIR 1995 Ker. 249 [LNIND 1994 KER 263] . See also Damodaran v Shekharan, AIR 1993 Ker. 242 [LNIND 1992 KER 89] ; M Mariappa v AK Sathyanarayan Shetty, AIR 1984 Kant. 58 .
- 2455 Shivram Kisan Gunjal v Ramesh Vishwanath Gunjal, (2010) 5 Mah LJ 623 : 2011 Supp Bom CR 616 : AIR (2011) 3 Bom R 653 : AIR 2011 CC 1819 ; Nathulal v Phool Chand, (1969) 3 SCC 120 [LNIND 1969 SC 408] ; Sardar Govind Rao v Devi Sahai, (1982) 1 SCC 237 [LNIND 1981 SC 464] ; Mool Chand v Bakhra Rohan, (2002) 2 SCC 612 [LNIND 2002 SC 78] : AIR 2002 SC 812 [LNIND 2002 SC 78] ; see also Nigamananda Patra v Sarat Chandra Patra, AIR 1998 Ori. 19 [LNIND 1996 ORI 110] .
- 2456 Hazilal v Jugal Kishore, AIR 1999 MP 104 [LNIND 1998 MP 40] : (1998) 2 Jab LJ 177 : (1998) 2 MPJR 60 : (1998) 2 MPLJ 266 .
- 2457 Ram Kumar Agarwal v Thawar Das, (1999) 7 SCC 303 [LNIND 1999 SC 725] , p 309 : [1999] 4 LRI 687; Sham Lal v Mathi, AIR 2002 HP 66 [LNIND 2001 HP 90] , para 18.
- 2458 Swaran Kumar Jain v Dev Dutt Mahajan, AIR 1994 J&K 33, p 37.
- 2459 Girja v Girdhari, (1950) ILR 29 Pat 628 : AIR 1951 Pat. 277; Rajendra N Sarkar v Gour C Ghosh, (1970) 75 Cal WN 106.
- 2460 Puchha Lal v Kunj Behari Lal, (1913) 18 Cal WN 445 : 20 IC 803.
- 2461 Sanjib Chandra v Santosh Kumar, (1922) ILR 49 Cal 507 : 69 IC 877 : AIR 1922 Cal 436, foll in Ramjoo Mahomed v Haridas Mullick, (1925) ILR 52 Cal 695 : 91 IC 320 : AIR 1925 Cal 1087.
- 2462 Cf Lester v Foxcroft, (1701) Colles PC 108 : W & TLC, vol II, 9th Edn, p 410.
- 2463 Anand Narain v Lala Murli Manohar, AIR 1945 Oudh 120.
- 2464 See Appendix V.

[53A. Part performance.—

- 2465 Gurmeet Kaur v Harbhajan Singh, AIR 2017 Del 164 : 241 (2017) DLT 339.
- 2466 Awadhesh Kumar Singh v Shyam Narayan Jha, AIR 2018 Pat. 24 [LNIND 2017 PAT 2343].
- 2467 Rajender Singh v Nanga, AIR 2018 P&H. 29
- 2468 Ningappa Bharamappa Sogi v Govt of Karnataka, AIR 2011 Kant. 115 [LNIND 2010 DHRWD 21]; (2012) 1 ICC 621; Manglu Mool Singh v Kunjlal, AIR 2014 CHG. 31.
- 2469 Sukhwinder Kaur v Amarjit Singh, AIR 2012 P&H. 97 : LNIND 2012 PNH 607 : (2012) 166 PLR 241 [LNIND 2012 PNH 607].
- 2470 A N Nagarajaiah v B Arvind, AIR 2014 Kant. 140.
- 2471 Sita Ram v Asha Devi, RSA No. 223/2003, decided on 4 January 2017. High Court of Himachal Pradesh; Pappi v Ramesh Kumar, 239 (2017) DLT 221; Kashi Nath Sah v Shri Nath, 2017 III AD (Delhi) 311 : 238 (2017) DLT 392; Arun Kumar Tandon v Akash Telecom Pvt Ltd, AIR 2010 (NOC) 744 Del.
- 2472 Udai Sapkota v Laxmi Prasad Sapkota, AIR 2013 Sikkim. 21.
- 2473 Venetta Kharsyntiew v Tushar Nath Bhattacharjee, AIR 2014 (NOC) 590 (Meg).
- 2474 Hari Prasad v Hanmantrao, (1936) ILR Nag 115 : 170 IC 554 : AIR 1937 Ngp 74.
- 2475 Murlidhar v Tara, AIR 1953 Cal 349 [LNIND 1950 CAL 63].
- 2476 Sakharam v Sitaram, AIR 1952 Ngp 244.
- 2477 Anjali Das v Bidyut Sarkar, AIR 1992 Cal 47 [LNIND 1991 CAL 305], p 57.
- 2478 Mian Pir Bux v Sardar Mahomed Tahar, 61 IA 388 : 60 Cal LJ 370 : 67 Mad LJ 865 : 36 BomLR 1195 : (1934) All LJ 912 : 151 IC 326 : AIR 1934 PC 235 ; A M A Sultan v Seydu Zohra Beevi, AIR 1990 Ker. 186 [LNIND 1989 KER 80], p 187.
- 2479 Maneklal Mansukhbhai v Honnusi Jamshedji, [1950] SCR 75 , p 83 : AIR 1950 SC 1 [LNIND 1950 SC 13] : [1950] SCJ 317 ; Chaliagulla Ramachandrayya v Boppana Satyanarayana, AIR 1964 SC 877 [LNIND 1963 SC 160] : [1964] 1 SCJ 109 . See also Nathulal v Phoolchand, [1970] 2 SCR 854 [LNIND 1969 SC 408] , p 858 : AIR 1970 SC 546 [LNIND 1969 SC 408] , p 548; and Sardar Govindrao Mahadikv Devi Sahai, AIR 1982 SC 989 [LNIND 1981 SC 464] , p 994 analysing this section; Sardar Govindrao Mahadik v Devi Sahai, (1982) 1 SCC 237 [LNIND 1981 SC 464] , p 257.
- 2480 Amrao v Baburao, (1950) ILR Nag 25. See Hamida v Smt Humer, AIR 1992 All 346 [LNIND 1992 ALL 290] , p 350; Kashinath Mehrotra v Roop Narayan Choudhary, AIR 2008 (NOC) 301 All; Basanti Bai v Fulchand Mondal, AIR 2007 Cal 8 [LNIND 2006 CAL 289] ; Bhajan Lal v Bal Govind, AIR 2007 All 19 ; Raj Sing Hurji Bhil v Vani Ken Manjubhai, AIR 2007 Guj 69 [LNIND 2006 GUJ 502] ; Magna v Amar Chand, AIR 2007 (NOC) 1435 Raj.; Ganga Ram v Kamal Chand, AIR 2006 Raj. 17 ; Thota Rambabau v Cherujuri Venkteshwara Rao, AIR 2006 AP 114 [LNIND 2005 AP 486] : (2005) 4 Andh LD 450 : (2005) 5 ALT 278 ; H C Nagappa v Thairnnisa, AIR 2006 Kant. 112 [LNIND 2005 KANT 594] ; K Balaraman v Pattamal, AIR 2006 Mad. 260 [LNIND 2006 MAD 966] : (2006) 4 CTC 326 [LNIND 2006 MAD 966] ; N G Vigneshwara Bhat v P Srikrishna Bhat, AIR 2006 Kant. 322 ; Parasa Ranga Rao v Mathe Sanjeeva Rao, AIR 2006 AP 366 [LNIND 2006 AP 605] : (2006) 5 Andh LD 237 : (2006) 5 ALT 205 .

[53A. Part performance.—

- 2481 Parini Vishnumurthy v Vindavalli Durayya, AIR 2009 AP 187 : (2009) 6 Andh LD 123 : (2009) 6 ALT 716 ; Kashinath Mehrotra v Roop Narayan Choudhary, AIR 2008 (NOC) 301 All; Basanti Bai v Fulchand Mondal, AIR 2007 Cal 8 [LNIND 2006 CAL 289] ; Bhajan Lal v Bal Govind, AIR 2007 All 19 ; Raj Sing Hurji Bhil v Vani Ken Manjubhai, AIR 2007 Guj 69 [LNIND 2006 GUJ 502] ; Magna v Amar Chand, AIR 2007 (NOC) 1435 Raj.; Ganga Ram v Kamal Chand, AIR 2006 Raj. 17 ; Thota Rambabau v Cherujuri Venkateshwara Rao, AIR 2006 AP 114 [LNIND 2005 AP 486] : (2005) 4 Andh LD 450 : (2005) 5 ALT 278 ; H C Nagappa v Thairnnisa, AIR 2006 Kant. 112 [LNIND 2005 KANT 594] ; K Balaraman v Pattamal, AIR 2006 Mad. 260 [LNIND 2006 MAD 966] : (2006) 4 CTC 326 [LNIND 2006 MAD 966] ; N G Vigneshwara Bhat v P Srikrishna Bhat, AIR 2006 Kant. 322 ; Parasa Ranga Rao v Mathe Sanjeeva Rao, AIR 2006 AP 366 [LNIND 2006 AP 605] : (2006) 5 Andh LD 237 : (2006) 5 ALT 2005 .
- 2482 See note (20) below. This passage was cited with approval in U N Sharma v Puttegowda, AIR 1986 Kant. 99 [LNIND 1985 KANT 122] , p 102.
- 2483 Kripa RamvBishen Das, AIR 1944 Lah 179 .
- 2484 Sardar Govindrao Mahadik v Devi Sahai, (1982) 1 SCC 237 [LNIND 1981 SC 464] , p 257 relying on Steadman v Steadman, [[1974\] 2 All ER 977](#) (HL) and holding that the statement of law in Maddison v Alderson, (1882-1883) 8 AC 467 : 31 WR 820 (HL) that it may be taken well settled that payment of part of purchase money or even the whole consideration is not sufficient act of part performance, can be taken to have been shaken considerably from its foundation and that English Law took a sharp u-turn in Steadman's case.
- 2485 Balasaheb Manikrao Deshmukh v Rans Lingoji Warthi, AIR 2000 Bom 337 [LNIND 2000 AUG 5] , para 12.
- 2486 Antoney v Joseph, 2014 (1) KHC 500 : 2014 (1) KLT 598 [LNIND 2013 KER 986] .
- 2487 Shrimant Shamrao Suryavanshi v Prahad Bhairoba Suryavanshi, (2002) 3 SCC 676 [LNIND 2002 SC 55] : AIR 2002 SC 960 [LNIND 2002 SC 55] ; Ramesh Chand Ardawatiya v Anil Panjwani, (2003) 7 SCC 350 [LNIND 2003 SC 504] ; Mahadeva v Tanabai, (2004) 5 SCC 88 [LNIND 2004 SC 525] : AIR 2004 SC 3854 [LNIND 2004 SC 525] ; Mahadeo Nathuji Patel v Surajbai, 1994 Mah LJ 1145 ; Narsinmha Setty v Padma Setty, AIR 1998 Kant. 389 [LNIND 1998 KANT 92] ; see also Nanasaheb Gujaba v Appa Ganu, (1957) 59 Bom LR 303 : AIR 1957 Bom 138 [LNIND 1957 BOM 16] ; Cf Venkatasubbayya v Rosayya, AIR 1957 AP 58 . See Parnam Balajiv Bathina Venkatramayya, AIR 1988 AP 250 [LNIND 1987 AP 333] , p 254.
- 2488 Maung Hla Maung v Maung Po Htai, 123 IC 142 : AIR 1929 Rang 316 ; Hiralal v Gaurishankar, (1928) 30 Bom LR 451 : 109 IC 149 : AIR 1928 Bom 250 ; Hari Pada v Elokeshi Devi, (1940) 44 Cal WN 357 : 71 Cal LJ 144 : 189 IC 249 : AIR 1940 Cal 254 .
- 2489 Katyanasundaram v Karuppa, (1927) ILR 50 Mad 193 : 54 IA 89 : 100 IC 105 : AIR 1927 PC 42 .
- 2490 Pran Mohan Das v Hari Mohan Das, (1928) ILR 52 Cal 425 : 85 IC 799 : AIR 1928 Cal 856 .
- 2491 Haji Mokshed v Del Rouson Bibi, (1971) 75 Cal WN 277 : AIR 1971 Cal 162 [LNIND 1970 CAL 218] .
- 2492 Director of Income Tax (Exemptions) v Maharaja Agrasen Technical Education Society, [2010] 328 ITR 551 (Delhi) : [2011] 196 Taxman 528 (Delhi).
- 2493 Nahalchand Laloochand Pvt Ltd v Assistant, CIT 2014 SCC OnLine SC 1107 : (2015) 274 CTR (SC) 246 : [2015] 228 Taxman 1 (SC).
- 2494 Maneklal Mansukhbhai v Hormusji Jamshedji, [1950] SCR 75 : AIR 1950 SC 1 [LNIND 1950 SC 13] : [1950] SCJ 317 ; Benarsi Das v Ali Mahomed, AIR 1936 Lah 5 ; Shyam Sunder Lal v Dur Shah, AIR 1937 All 10 ; Jonnada Sayi v Jonnada Subbanna, AIR 1946 Mad. 310 [LNIND 1945 MAD 275] ; Ramchandra v Subraya, (1951) ILR Bom 692 : 53 Bom LR 363 : AIR 1951 Bom 127 [LNIND 1951 BOM 10] ; Deochand v Parwatibai, AIR 1952 Ngp 115 ; Karthikeya Mudaliar v Singaram Pillai, (1956) 2 Mad LJ 515; Vidya Bhushan Singh v Rati Ram, AIR 1963 HP 49 [LNIND 1963 HP 8] ; Sinha BP v Somnath, AIR 1971 All 297 ; C A Fernandes v A L P Furtado, AIR 1975 Goa 27 ; P C Thomas v Laila Beevi, AIR 1993 Ker. 335 , p 339, but not to a mere agreement to sell without any condition for delivery of possession.
- 2495 Maneklal Mansukhbhai v Hormusji Jamshedji, AIR 1950 SC 1 [LNIND 1950 SC 13] .
- 2496 Somani Marketing Pvt Ltd v Subash C Raswant, (1998) 47 DRJ 427 [LNIND 1998 DEL 640] . See however, Ved Prakash v Genelec Ltd, (1993) 25 DRJ 92 [LNIND 1993 DEL 37] and Shukla Malhotra v Vyasa Bank Ltd, (1998) 45 DRJ 504 [LNIND 1998 DEL 316] wherein it was held that section 53A was not applicable to a lease agreement.
- 2497 Ayyan Kunhi v Krishna, AIR 1950 Tr & Coch 81; Ram Reddi v Venkat Reddi, AIR 1963 AP 489 [LNIND 1963 AP 44] reversing AIR 1963 AP 239 [LNIND 1961 AP 86] ; P C Thomas v Laila Beevi, AIR 1993 Ker. 335 , p 339: but not to a mere agreement to sell without any condition for delivery of possession.
- 2498 Jileba v Marmesra, (1950) All LJ 477 : AIR 1950 All 700 [LNIND 1950 ALL 149] .
- 2499 Rashakrestayya v Sarasamma, (1951) ILR Mad 607 : (1950) 2 Mad LJ 338 : AIR 1951 Mad. 213 [LNIND 1950 MAD 290] .
- 2500 S N Banerji v Kuchwar Lime & Stone Co Ltd, (1941) ILR 21 Pat 243 : (1942) All LJ 149 : 44 Bom LR 324 : (1942) 46 Cal WN 374 : (1942) 1 Mad LJ : 197 IC 399 : AIR 1941 PC 128 ; Traders Miners Ltd v Dhirendranath Ltd, AIR 1944 Pat. 261 .

[53A. Part performance.—

- 2501 Damodaran v Shekharan, AIR 1993 Ker. 242 [LNIND 1992 KER 89] , p 245.
- 2502 U Pu Le v Oo Kim Seng, 144 IC 825 : AIR Rang 136; Ma Mya v VPR VSA Annamdai Chettiyar, 151 IC 227 : AIR 1934 Rang 127 ; Dhanrajmal v Hazarmal, 200 IC 326 : AIR 1943 Sau 81 ; Bechardas v Ahmedabad Municipality, AIR 1941 Bom 346 ; Shravan Jayram v Garbad Ukha, AIR 1943 Bom 406 ; Balkrishna v Ranganath, (1950) ILR Nag 613 : AIR 1951 Ngp 171 ; Narayan v Guruprasad, (1951) ILR Nag 334 : AIR 1952 Ngp 246 ; Narasayya v Ramachandrayya, AIR 1956 AP 209 ; Sundararaja Iyer v Kanakaraj, (1958) ILR Mad 69 : (1958) 2 Mad LJ 374 : AIR 1958 Mad. 576 [LNIND 1958 MAD 219] ; Murid Khan v Usman Khan, AIR 1962 Punj 475 ; Ude Ram v State of Haryana, AIR 1994 P&H. 175 , p 178 : (1994) 108 PLR 186 ; Rambhau Namdeo Gaire v Narayan Bapuji Dhotra, (2004) 8 SCC 614 [LNIND 2004 SC 839] : AIR 2004 SC 4342 [LNIND 2004 SC 839] ; Mahadeva v Tanabai, AIR 2004 Bom 378 [LNIND 2004 BOM 438] : (2004) 4 Bom CR 564 [LNIND 2004 BOM 438] : (2004) 4 CTC 465 [LNIND 2004 BOM 438] .
- 2503 Chintalapati Purushottama Sastry v Yarlagadda Nagarja Rao, (2011) 4 ICC 103 : (2011) 3 Andh LD 599; Kamalamma v H S Subbanarasimha Sastry, AIR 2010 (NOC) 883 Kant. :2010 (1) KCCR 290 [LNIND 2009 KANT 584] : 2010 (1) Ren CR (Rent) 568.
- 2504 Thomas Mathew @ Thampikunju v Vachi Yesudasan, 2014 (2) KLJ 79 : LNIND 2014 KER 53 .
- 2505 Brijgopal Lumani v Mothey Anja Ratna Rajkumar, AIR 2010 (NOC) 570 AP : 2010 (3) ALT 785 : 2010 (2) Andh LD 355.
- 2506 Dhannalal Ahirwar v Satyanarayan, AIR 2014 (NOC) 497 MP.
- 2507 Md Makbul Hussain v Kasim Uddin, AIR 2012 Gau 190 [LNIND 2012 GAU 52] .
- 2508 Maneklal Mansukhbhai v Hormusji Jamshedji, [1950] SCR 75 : AIR 1950 SC 1 [LNIND 1950 SC 13] : [1950] SCJ 317 ; Karthikeya v Singaram, (1956) 2 Mad LJ 515 : AIR 1956 Mad. 693 [LNIND 1956 MAD 283] ; Bobba Suramma v P Chandramma, AIR 1959 AP 568 [LNIND 1959 AP 86] .
- 2509 Hari Prasad v Hanmantrao, (1936) ILR Nag 115 : 170 IC 554 : AIR 1937 Ngp 74 ; Kashi Prasad v Bed Prasad, 189 IC 111 : AIR 1940 Ngp 113 ; Firdos Jehan v Mohammed Yunus, (1939) ILR 15 Luck 43 : 184 IC 401 : AIR 1940 Oudh 1 ; Ramjiwan v Hanuman Prasad, 190 IC 163 : AIR 1940 Oudh 409 ; Nasibanv Md Sayed, AIR 1936 Ngp 174 ; Qamar Jahan Begum v Bansidhar, (1947) ILR 17 Luck 530 : 199 IC 35 : AIR 1942 Oudh 23 ; Subhodchandra v Bhagwandas, (1946) 50 Cal WN 851 : AIR 1947 Cal 353 ; Parasram v Deoram, AIR 1947 Ngp 188 ; Kathiar Jute Mills Ltd v Calcutta Match Works, AIR 1958 Pat. 133 .
- 2510 Maung Ohu v Maung Po Kwe, 177 IC 977 : AIR 1938 Rang 356 .
- 2511 Ajjab Singh v Jhabbu Lal, (1949) ILR Nag 449 : AIR 1948 Ngp 67 .
- 2512 Firdos Jehan v Mahommed Yunus, AIR 1940 Oudh 1 ; Maung Po Kwe v Maung Po Sein, 174 IC 169 : AIR 1938 Rang 49 ; Shira Khatoon v Paung Po, 182 IC 523 : AIR 1939 Rang 206 .
- 2513 Radhabai v Nayudu, (1950) ILR Nag 799 : AIR 1951 Ngp 285 .
- 2514 Allam Gangadhar Rao v G Gangarao, AIR 1968 AP 291 [LNIND 1967 AP 71] .
- 2515 Krishna Sardar v Sindhu Bala, (1970) 74 Cal WN 622 : AIR 1970 Cal 444 [LNIND 1969 CAL 274] .
- 2516 Yasodammal v Janki Ammal, (1968) ILR 2 Mad 382 : (1968) 1 Mad LJ 249 : AIR 1968 Mad. 294 [LNIND 1967 MAD 11] .
- 2517 Janab MHM Yakoob v M Krishnan, AIR 1992 Mad. 80 [LNIND 1991 MAD 135] , p 89.
- 2518 Johnson Koshy v Madhu Mohanan, AIR 2012 (NOC) 240 Cal.
- 2519 Berendra Huttaya v Gauri Channaya, AIR 1948 Mad. 546 .
- 2520 Ram Abtar v Shanta Bala, AIR 1954 Cal 207 [LNIND 1953 CAL 179] ; Ramnarain v Sukhi, AIR 1957 Pat. 24 ; Chandra Nath v Chulai Pasha, AIR 1960 Cal 40 ; Lal Behari Sasmal v Kanak Kanti Roy, AIR 1962 Cal 502 [LNIND 1962 CAL 10] .
- 2521 Raghavendra v Motilal, AIR 1982 All 304 , p 307.
- 2522 Subramanyam v Subba Rao, (1944) ILR Mad 749 : AIR 1944 Mad. 337 [LNIND 1943 MAD 242] foll in Rattayya v Chandrayya, (1948) 1 Mad LJ 392 : AIR 1948 Mad. 526 .
- 2523 Satyanarayanamurty v Subrahmanyam, AIR 1959 AP 534.
- 2524 Srikakulam Subrahmanyam v Kurra Subba Rao, AIR 1948 PC 95 : 75 IA 115.
- 2525 Padmanbharaju v Lakshmi Kumara, AIR 1967 AP 267 .
- 2526 Srikakulam Subrahmanyam v Kurra Subba Rao, 75 IA 115 : (1949) ILR Mad 141 : 50 Bom LR 646 : (1948) All LJ 226 : 52 Cal WN 706 : (1948) 2 Mad LJ 22 : AIR 1948 PC 95 reversing Subrahmanyam v Subba Rao, AIR 1948 PC

[53A. Part performance.—

- 95 ; Labhchand Shankarlal v Sharifabi, (1961) 63 Bom LR 602 : AIR 1961 Bom 215 [LNIND 1960 BOM 119] ; Paryarikkal Mohammedunni Hajis v Ramchandran, AIR 1990 Ker. 119 [LNIND 1989 KER 146] (NOC).
- 2527 Labhchand Shankarlal v Sharifabi, AIR 1961 Bom 215 [LNIND 1960 BOM 119] ; Debi Singh v Bhim Singh, AIR 1971 Del 316 [LNIND 1971 DEL 41] .
- 2528 See Meggery & Wade, The Law of Real Property, 2nd Edn, pp 551-4.
- 2529 Steuart & Co Ltd v Mackertich, AIR 1963 Cal 198 [LNIND 1962 CAL 49] .
- 2530 Durga Prasad v Kanhaiyalal, AIR 1979 Raj. 200 .
- 2531 Bhabhi Dutt v Ramlalbyamal, 152 IC 431 : AIR 1934 Rang 303 .
- 2532 Bobba Suramma v P Chandramma, AIR 1959 AP 568 [LNIND 1959 AP 86] .
- 2533 Kamalabai Laxman Pathak v Onkar Parsharam Patil, AIR 1995 Bom 113 [LNIND 1994 BOM 149] : (1994) 96 Bom LR 641 .
- 2534 Shashi Kapila v R P Ashwin, (2002) 1 SCC 583 [LNIND 2001 SC 2564] : AIR 2002 SC 101 [LNIND 2001 SC 2564] ; Reserve Bank of India, Mumbai v Krishi Export Comm Corp Ltd, Varanasi, AIR 2012 (NOC) 151 All.
- 2535 Rajpal v Harswaroop, AIR 2011 Del 203 [LNIND 2011 DEL 663] .
- 2536 S Parmuthai v P Muthusamy, AIR 2004 Mad. 450 [LNIND 2004 MAD 595] , para 19; Sardar Kamaljit Singh v Suresh Chand, AIR 2010 Raj. 152 .
- 2537 Sardar Kamaljit Singh v Suresh Chand, AIR 2010 Raj. 152 ; Thota Chima Subba Rao v Malapalli Raju, (1949) FCR 484 ; Sanyasi Raju v Kamappadu, AIR 1960 AP 83 [LNIND 1958 AP 55] ; Nila Padhan v Gokulananda Padhi, AIR 1950 Ori. 118 .
- 2538 Chinnaraj v Sheik Davood Nachair, AIR 2003 Mad. 89 [LNIND 2002 MAD 551] , para 15 : (2002) 3 Mad LJ 784.
- 2539 Nagar Khan v Gopi Ram, AIR 1976 Pat. 2 .
- 2540 Balkrishna v Ranganath, (1950) ILR Nag 613 : AIR 1951 Ngp 171 ; Bobba SurammavP Chandramma, AIR 1959 AP 568 [LNIND 1959 AP 86] . See further note (15) below.
- 2541 R K Apartments Pvt Ltd v Arun Bahree, (1999) 77 DLT 193 [LNIND 1998 DEL 710] .
- 2542 Durga Prasad v Kanhaiyalal, AIR 1979 Raj. 200 .
- 2543 Teja Singh v Ram Prakash Talwar, AIR 1984 P&H. 95.
- 2544 Nanjegowda v Gangamma, AIR 2011 SC 3774 [LNIND 2011 SC 809] .
- 2545 Sardar Govindrao Mahadiu v Devi Sahai, AIR 1982 SC 989 [LNIND 1981 SC 464] : (1982) 1 SCC 237 [LNIND 1981 SC 464] .
- 2546 D S Parvathamma v A Srinivasan, (2003) 4 SCC 705 [LNIND 2003 SC 371] : AIR 2003 SC 3542 [LNIND 2003 SC 371] ; (Approving Bhagwandas Parsadilal v Surajmal, AIR 1961 MP 237 [LNIND 1960 MP 104] and impliedly approving Dakshinamurthi Mudaliar v Dhanakoti Ammal, AIR 1925 Mad. 965 [LNIND 1924 MAD 387] and AMA Sultan v Seydu Zohra Beevi, AIR 1990 Ker. 186 [LNIND 1989 KER 80] .
- 2547 Biswabani Pvt Ltd v Santosh Kumar Dutta, AIR 1980 SC 226 [LNIND 1979 SC 373] : (1980) 1 SCC 185 [LNIND 1979 SC 373] .
- 2548 K Sajjan Raj v Gopi Setty Chandra Mouli, AIR 2011 (NOC) 411 AP.
- 2549 Inder Kumar Johar v Kailash Devi, AIR 1999 P&H. 65 : (1998) 119 PLR 795 [LNIND 1998 PNH 125] .
- 2550 Goswami Maltivahuji MaharajvPurushottam, AIR 1984 Cal 297 [LNIND 1984 CAL 181] ; S K Kapoor v Sanjay, AIR 2010 All 56 ; St Mary Educational Society v Qutubuddin Ahmed, AIR 2007 AP 156 [LNIND 2006 AP 1329] : (2007) 2 Andh LD 412 : (2007) 3 ALT 214 .
- 2551 Biswabani Pvt Ltd v Santhosh K Dutta, AIR 1980 SC 226 [LNIND 1979 SC 373] : (1980) 1 SCC 185 [LNIND 1979 SC 373] .
- 2552 Technical Studios v Lila Ghosh, AIR 1977 SC 2425 [LNIND 1977 SC 267] : (1977) 4 SCC 324 [LNIND 1977 SC 267] .
- 2553 Girija Shankar v Sheela Devi, AIR 2013 CHG. 30 : 2012 (2) CGLRW 385.
- 2554 Inder Kumar Johar v Kailash Devi, AIR 1999 P&H. 65 : (1998) 119 PLR 795 [LNIND 1998 PNH 125] .
- 2555 Lakshmi alias Bhagyalakshmi v E Jayaram (D) by LRs, AIR 2013 SC 2939 [LNIND 2013 SC 95] : 2013 (2) Scale 277 [LNIND 2013 SC 95] : (2013) 9 SCC 311 [LNIND 2013 SC 95] : 2013 (2) WLN 49 : JT 2013 (2) SC 466 [LNIND 2013 SC 95] .

[53A. Part performance.—

- 2556 State of AP v Star Bone Mill and Fertiliser Co, 2013 (9) SCC 319 [LNIND 2013 SC 148] : JT 2013 (3) SC 401 [LNIND 2013 SC 148] : 2013 (2) Scale 728 : (2014) 1 WBLR (SC) 422 : 2013 (3) WLN 68.
- 2557 M Jaya Rao v M Krishna Rao, AIR 2012 AP 34 [LNIND 2011 AP 1300] ; Sardar Kamaljit Singh v Suresh Chand, AIR 2010 Raj. 152 ; Gurcharan Kaur v Sukhwant Singh, AIR 2013 P&H. 42 .
- 2558 Mohan Lal v Mira Abdul Gaffar, AIR 1996 SC 910 [LNIND 1995 SC 1293] : (1996) 1 SCC 639 [LNIND 1995 SC 1293] .
- 2559 Roop Singh v Ram Singh, (2000) 3 SCC 708 [LNIND 2000 SC 521] : AIR 2000 SC 1485 [LNIND 2000 SC 521] .
- 2560 Thomas Mathew @ Thampikunju v Vachi Yesudasan, 2014 (2) KLJ 79 .
- 2561 Lakshmi v Karuppathal alias Sadayammal, AIR 2011 Mad. 192 [LNIND 2011 BMM 8] .
- 2562 M Gopal v K Jangareddy, AIR 2011 AP 185 [LNIND 2011 AP 493] .
- 2563 Kukaji v Basantilal, AIR 1955 Madh Bh 93.
- 2564 Dakshinamurthi v Dhanakoti, (1925) 48 Mad LJ 661 : 87 IC 552 : AIR 1925 Mad. 965 [LNIND 1924 MAD 387] ; Bhagwandas v Surajmal, AIR 1961 MP 237 [LNIND 1960 MP 104] .
- 2565 Pannalal v Labhchand, AIR 1955 Madh Bh 49.
- 2566 Govindrao Mahadik v Devi Sahay, AIR 1982 SC 989 [LNIND 1981 SC 464] : (1982) 1 SCC 237 [LNIND 1981 SC 464] .
- 2567 Manjural Hoque v Mewajan Bibi, (1956) 60 Cal WN 714 : 97 Cal LJ 257 : AIR 1956 Cal 350 [LNIND 1955 CAL 142] .
- 2568 Satyaniranjan Chakravarty v Habibur Sobhan, 144 IC 598 : AIR 1933 Cal 393 .
- 2569 Naicker P v S Pillai, AIR 1971 Mad. 466 [LNIND 1971 MAD 45] .
- 2570 RajPal Singh v Harbans Kaur, AIR 2010 (NOC) 1021 P&H..
- 2571 Ma Shwe Kin v Ka Hee, (1924) 3 Bur LJ 211 : 84 IC 514 : AIR 1924 Rang 381 (the court also held that the possession was not referable only to the contract).
- 2572 Chikkannaswamy v Hayat Khan, (1955) ILR Mys 234 : AIR 1955 Mys 38 ; Baba Murlidhar v Soudagar, AIR 1970 Mys 202 .
- 2573 Annamalai Goundan v Venkataswami Naidu, (1959) ILR Mad 796 : (1959) 1 Mad LJ 301 : AIR 1959 Mad. 354 [LNIND 1959 MAD 6] . See, however, Mallappa Bhimanna v Land Tribunal, (1979) 2 Kant LJ 218 and Mallanna v Abdul Nabi, AIR 1986 Kant. 221 [LNIND 1985 KANT 140] , p 223.
- 2574 Sunil Kumar Sarkar v Aghor Kumar Basu, AIR 1989 Gau 39 [LNIND 1987 GAU 16] .
- 2575 Fgp Ltd v Saleh Hooseini Doctor, (2009) 10 SCC 223 [LNIND 2009 SC 1825] : 2009 (12) Scale 516 [LNIND 2009 SC 1825] : [2009] 14 SCR 995 [LNIND 2009 SC 1825] ; Chandramathy C S v Devakey Amma, AIR 2011 CC 15 : (2010) 4 KLT 465 [LNIND 2010 KER 614] (Kerala): 2010 (4) KHC 383 : 2010 (3) KLJ 344 ; Ranchhoddas Chhaganlal v Devaji Supdu, AIR 1977 SC 1517 [LNIND 1977 SC 19] : [1977] 2 SCR 621 [LNIND 1977 SC 19] : (1977) 3 SCC 584 [LNIND 1977 SC 19] .
- 2576 Chinna Thevar v Gnanaprakasi Ammal, (1978) 2 Mad LJ 533. Relying on Munuswami Gounder v Eruse Gounder, AIR 1975 Mad. 25 [LNIND 1974 MAD 344] ; Wilfed Lovette v Ganesh, AIR 1988 Bom 142 [LNIND 1987 BOM 490] , p 147.
- 2577 Naganna v Appalaraju, 129 IC 59 : AIR 1930 Mad. 1021 [LNIND 1930 MAD 20] ; Husaini Begum v Sultani Begum, 105 IC 479 : AIR 1927 Oudh 485 .
- 2578 Chinnaraj v Sheik Davood Nachair, AIR 2003 Mad. 89 [LNIND 2002 MAD 551] ; A Lewis v M T Ramamurthy, AIR 2008 SC 493 [LNIND 2007 SC 1284] : (2007) 12 Scale 50 ; Brijgopal Lumani v Mothey Anja Ratna Rajkumar, AIR 2010 (NOC) 570 AP; Seshamma v N M Haneef, AIR 2010 (NOC) 653 Mad..
- 2579 Awadhesh Kumar Singh v Shyam Narayan Jha, AIR 2018 Pat. 24 [LNIND 2017 PAT 2343] ; Sunder Bai v Naint Ram, AIR 2003 MP 268 [LNIND 2002 MP 315] , para 9; Bhajan Lal v Bal Govind, AIR 2007 All 19 ; M Ponnuswamy v M Thamaraikannan, AIR 2008 (NOC) 506 Kant.; Lakshmi v Karuppathathaal, AIR 2011 Mad. 192 [LNIND 2011 BMM 8] .
- 2580 Andhra Graphite Pvt Ltd v Ms Jobing Syndicate, a registered Partnership Firm, AIR 2011 (NOC) 245 AP.
- 2581 Bechardas v Ahmedabad Municipality, AIR 1941 Bom 346 ; Sulleman v Patel, (1933) 35 Bom LR 722 : 145 IC 557 : AIR 1933 Bom 381 not followed Bhagwati Lal v Shri Krishan Chandra, AIR 1994 Raj. 331 (NOC).

[53A. Part performance.—

- 2582 Ajabrao Marotrao Radake v Bhalchandra Vitthalrao Deshpande, AIR 2018 (NOC) 46 Bom : 2017 (6) ABR 137 : 2017 (5) Bom CR 340 : 2017 (3) MhLJ 850 .
- 2583 Hukma v Manga, AIR 2003 P&H. 287 : (2003) 135 PLR 753 .
- 2584 M Mariyappa v A K Satyanarayana, AIR 1984 Kant. 50 [LNIND 1983 KANT 47] .
- 2585 Thota Rambabau v Cherujuri Venkateshwara Rao, AIR 2006 AP 114 [LNIND 2005 AP 486] : (2005) 4 Andh LD 450 : (2005) 5 ALT 278 ; H C Nagappa v Thaimnisa, AIR 2006 Kant. 112 [LNIND 2005 KANT 594] ; K Balaraman v Pattamal, AIR 2006 Mad. 260 [LNIND 2006 MAD 966] : (2006) 4 CTC 326 [LNIND 2006 MAD 966] ; N G Vigneshwara Bhat v P Srikrishna Bhat, AIR 2006 Kant. 322 ; Parasa Ranga Rao v Mathe Sanjeeva Rao, AIR 2006 AP 366 [LNIND 2006 AP 605] : (2006) 5 Andh LD 237 : (2006) 5 ALT 205 ; Ganga Ram v Kamal Chand, AIR 2006 Raj. 17 .
- 2586 Mohan Lal v Mira Abdul Gaffar, AIR 1996 SC 910 [LNIND 1995 SC 1293] : (1996) 1 SCC 639 [LNIND 1995 SC 1293] .
- 2587 Chinnaraj v Sheik Davood Nachair, AIR 2003 Mad. 89 [LNIND 2002 MAD 551] , para 16e : (2002) 3 Mad LJ 784.
- 2588 Jacobs Pvt Ltd v Thomas Jacob, AIR 1995 Ker. 249 [LNIND 1994 KER 263] : (1994) 2 KLJ 738 .
- 2589 Seshamma v N M Haneef, AIR 2010 (NOC) 653 Mad. : 2010 (1) CTC 641 [LNIND 2009 MAD 5085] : 2010 1 LW 687 .
- 2590 Raj Pal Singh v Harbans Kaur, AIR 2010 (NOC) 1021 P&H..
- 2591 Parmanand v Kailash Chand, AIR 2012 CHG. 64 ; M Jaya Rao v M Krishna Rao, AIR 2012 AP 34 [LNIND 2011 AP 1300] : LNIND 2011 AP 1300 : 2012 (1) Andh LD 136 : 2012 (1) ALT 240 .
- 2592 Andhra Graphite Pvt Ltd v Jobing Syndicate, a registered Partnership Firm, AIR 2011 (NOC) 245 AP : 2011 (2) Andh LD 16.
- 2593 Bhauvti v Alam, AIR 2014 MP14 [LNIND 2013 MP 133] : LNIND 2013 MP 133 : 2013 (4) MPLJ 39 [LNIND 2013 MP 133] .
- 2594 Tongani Tea Co Ltd v Rossell India Ltd, AIR 2014 Gau 41 : 2013 (4) Gau LT 767.
- 2595 Lakshmi v Karuppathal, AIR 2011 Mad. 192 [LNIND 2011 BMM 8] : LNIND 2011 BMM 8 .
- 2596 Hardei v Amin Chand, AIR 2011 HP 103 [LNIND 2011 HP 255] : LNIND 2011 HP 255 .
- 2597 K K Adalakha v Amrish Sehgal, AIR 2010 (NOC) 1118 P&H..
- 2598 Jawahar Lal Wadhwa v Haripada Chakroberty, AIR 1989 SC 606 [LNIND 1988 SC 515] .
- 2599 Ranchod v Manubai Zipru, (1954) ILR Bom 194 : 55 Bom LR 890 : AIR 1954 Bom 153 [LNIND 1953 BOM 15] ; Shobharam v Totaram, (1949) ILR Nag 959.
- 2600 Karthikeya Mudaliar v Singaram Pillai, (1956) 2 Mad LJ 515; Sohan Singh v Gulzari, AIR 1997 HP 12 [LNIND 1996 HP 11] .
- 2601 Nathulal v Phoolchand, [1970] 2 SCR 854 [LNIND 1969 SC 408] : AIR 1970 SC 546 [LNIND 1969 SC 408] : (1969) 3 SCC 120 [LNIND 1969 SC 408] ; Sardar Govindrao Mahadik v Devi Sahai, (1982) 1 SCC 237 [LNIND 1981 SC 464] , p 257.
- 2602 Walsh v Lonsdale, [1982] 21 ChD 9 . See also Cornish v Brook Green Laundry Ltd, [1959] 1 QB 394 : [1959] 1 All ER 373 (CA); Kamalabai Laxman Pathak v Onkar Parsharam Patil, AIR 1995 Bom 113 [LNIND 1994 BOM 149] .
- 2603 Kuldip Singh v Prakash Chand, AIR 1985 P&H. 222 .
- 2604 Shivayya v Praveena, AIR 2008 Kant. 157 [LNIND 2007 KANT 613] : (2008) 3 KCCR 1342 [LNIND 2007 KANT 613] .
- 2605 Jacobs Pvt Ltd v Thomas Jacob, AIR 1995 Ker. 249 [LNIND 1994 KER 263] : (1994) 2 KLJ 738 .
- 2606 Arun Kumar Tandon v Akash Telecom Pvt Ltd, AIR 2010 (NOC) 744 Del; Nagna v Amarchand, AIR 2007 (NOC) 1425 Raj.; Amar Singh v Laxman, AIR 2007 (NOC) 320 Raj..
- 2607 Sukhwinder Kaur v Amarjeet Singh, AIR 2012 P&H. 97 : (2012) 166 PLR 241 [LNIND 2012 PNH 607] .
- 2608 Puchha Lal v Kunj Behari Lal, (1913) 18 Cal WN 445 : 20 IC 868.
- 2609 Thakamma Mathew v M Azamathulla Khan, (1993) 49 DLT 249 .
- 2610 Hiralal v Shankar, (1921) ILR 45 Bom 1170 : 62 IC 637 : AIR 1921 Bom 401 .
- 2611 Piru Charan Pal v Sumtomy Nema, AIR 1973 Cal 1 [LNIND 1972 CAL 169] ; SDP Sabha Baijnath Co-op Multipurpose Society Ltd v State of Himachal Pradesh, AIR 1984 HP 67 (NOC).

[53A. Part performance.—

- 2612 Probodh Kumar Das v Dantmara Tea Co, 66 IA 293 : (1940) ILR 1 Cal 250 : (1940) All LJ 226 : 42 Bom LR 199 : 44 Cal WN 145 : (1940) 1 Mad LJ 75 : 185 IC 217 : AIR 1940 PC 1 ; Ramrao v Purmandand, AIR 1940 Bom 281 ; Kashinath v Makchhed, AIR 1939 All 504 ; Peary Lal v Pirthu Singh, AIR 1945 All 422 ; Raghav Rao v Gopalrao, AIR 1942 Mad. 125 ; Bholai Phukan v Lakhi Kanta, AIR 1949 Assam 8 ; Bajrang Gopi v Rup Narayan, AIR 1949 Pat. 464 ; Hari Prasad v Abdul Haq, AIR 1951 Pat. 160 ; Sardarilal v Shakuntla Devi, (1960) 63 Punj LR 363 : AIR 1961 Punj 378 ; Motilal v Jaswant Singh, (1963) ILR 13 Raj 832 : AIR 1964 Raj. 11 [LNIND 1963 RAJ 154] ; Dammulal v Mahomedbhai, (1956) ILR Nag 10 : AIR 1955 Ngp 306 ; Kanhaiyalal v Jerome D'Costa, (1955) ILR Nag 833 : AIR 1955 Ngp 302 ; Vora Mull v Manoranjan, (1969) ILR Guj 266 : 10 Guj LR 950 : AIR 1970 Guj 22 ; Stoneware Pipe & SFM Co v State, AIR 1972 Raj. 83 .
- 2613 Rajpal v Harswaroop, AIR 2011 Del 203 [LNIND 2011 DEL 663] : LNIND 2011 DEL 663 .
- 2614 Technicians Studio Pvt Ltd v Leela Ghosh, (1977) 4 SCC 324 [LNIND 1977 SC 267] , para 5; AIR 1977 SC 2425 [LNIND 1977 SC 267] .
- 2615 Ram Gopal Reddy v Additional Custodian, Evacuee Property, [1960] 3 SCR 214 [LNIND 1960 SC 69] : AIR 1966 SC 1438 [LNIND 1966 SC 4] : [1966] 2 SCJ 782 [LNIND 1966 SC 4] .
- 2616 Delhi Motor Co v UA Basurkar, AIR 1968 SC 794 [LNIND 1968 SC 2] , para 6 : [1968] 2 SCR 720 [LNIND 1968 SC 2] : [1968] 2 SCJ 614 [LNIND 1968 SC 2] : [1968] 2 SCA 22 [LNIND 1968 SC 2] .
- 2617 Rajpal v Harswaroop, AIR 2011 Del 203 [LNIND 2011 DEL 663] ; Kuchwar Lime Stone Co v Secretary of State, (1936) ILR 15 Pat 460 : 163 IC 507 : AIR 1936 Pat. 372 ; Garaj Narain v Babulal, AIR 1975 Pat. 58 ; B Sitarama Rao v Bibhisana Pradhan, AIR 1978 Ori. 222 [LNIND 1978 ORI 25] .
- 2618 S N Banerji v Kuchwar Lime & Stone Co Ltd, (1941) ILR 21 Pat 24 : (1942) All LJ 149 : 44 Bom LR 324 : 46 Cal WN 374 : (1942) 1 Mad LJ 1 : 197 IC 399 : AIR 1941 PC 128 ; Maung Ba v Maung Kywe, (1928) ILR 6 Rang 125 : 110 IC 735 : AIR 1928 Rang 124 ; Osman Gazi v Hemanta Kumar, (1969) 74 Cal WN 355.
- 2619 Ram Gopal v Custodian, [1966] 2 SCR 214 [LNIND 1966 SC 4] : AIR 1966 SC 1438 [LNIND 1966 SC 4] : [1966] 2 SCJ 782 [LNIND 1966 SC 4] .
- 2620 M Sankar Nadar v Deva Krishnan, 2017 (1) CTC 561 [LNIND 2017 BMM 38] : 2017-2-LW 434 : (2017) 3 Mad LJ 778; Rampratap Kayan v Natural Petroleum Co Ltd, (1950) ILR 2 Cal 443 : 54 Cal WN 58 : AIR 1950 Cal 23 [LNIND 1949 CAL 53] .
- 2621 Rehmat Bee v Noor Mohd, (2010) 120 DRJ 85 (Delhi); Sunil Kapoor v Himmat Singh, (2010) 167 DLT 806 : (2010) 115 DRJ 229 ; Dharamwati v Satbir, (2010) 118 DRJ 352 A (Delhi); Raj pal v Harswaroop, AIR 2011 Del 203 [LNIND 2011 DEL 663] .
- 2622 Hardei v Amin Chand, AIR 2011 HP 103 [LNIND 2011 HP 255] : (2011) 2 Shim LC 426.
- 2623 Technicians Studio Pvt Ltd v Lila Ghosh, AIR 1979 SC 2425 : (1979) 4 SCC 324 : [1978] 1 SCR 516 [LNIND 1977 SC 267] .
- 2624 Madan Mohan v Gawri Shankar, AIR 1988 MP 152 [LNIND 1987 MP 224] .
- 2625 Kulwant Singh v Prasada Ram, Regular Second Appeal No. 3892 of 2006 (O&M), decided on 15 January 2015, High Court of Punjab & Haryana, Chandigarh.
- 2626 Chaman Lal v Surinder Kumari, AIR 1983 P&H. pp 323, 324, 325, paras 8 and 9.
- 2627 Venkat Dhannaji v Vishwanath, AIR 1983 Bom 413 [LNIND 1982 BOM 304] , p 415, para 9 (dissenting from Krishnamoorthy v Paramsiva, AIR 1981 Mad. 310 [LNIND 1981 MAD 132] , p 311, para 3).
- 2628 Babu Ram v Basdeo, AIR 1982 All 414 , p 424, para 33 (following Pandit Ram Chander v Pandit Maharaj Kunwar, AIR 1939 All 611).
- 2629 Ajab Singh v Jhabbulal, (1949) ILR Nag 449 : AIR 1948 Ngp 67 .
- 2630 SE Munnuswami Gounder v Erusa Gounder, AIR 1975 Mad. 25 [LNIND 1974 MAD 344] ; Bhulkoo Ghaslyia v Hiriyaibai, AIR 1949 Ngp 410 ; Sitaram v Tularam, AIR 1989 MP 128 [LNIND 1988 MP 184] , p 132 holding that the decision in Krishnamoorthy v Paramsiva, AIR 1981 Mad. 310 [LNIND 1981 MAD 132] is a judgment per incuriam inasmuch as it does not take into account the earlier Division Bench decision in SE Munnuswami Gounder's case; Krishnamoorthy's case was followed in UV Sharma v Puttegowd, AIR 1986 Kant. 99 [LNIND 1985 KANT 122] , p 102. See also T Parameshwari v S S Investments Pvt Ltd, (1993) 1 Mad LW 109 affirmed by the Supreme Court in SLP nos 17926 and 17927 of 1991 and cited in Vasundara Bhalla v Haridas Bhagat & Co Pvt Ltd, AIR 1995 Mad. 172 [LNIND 1994 MAD 490] , p 178; Sadashiv Chander Bhamgare v Eknath Pandharinath Nangude, AIR 2004 Bom 378 [LNIND 2004 BOM 438] .
- 2631 Chetak Construction Ltd v Om Prakash, AIR 2003 MP 145 [LNIND 2002 MP 370] , para 13.
- 2632 CIT-1 v Goel Builders, 2010 SCC OnLine All 1080 : 2010 Supp All LJ 245 : (2011) 331 ITR 344 .
- 2633 Sulleman v Patel, (1933) 35 Bom LR 722 : 145 IC 557 : AIR 1933 Bom 381 .

[53A. Part performance.—

- 2634 Mastram v Ma Ohn, 154 IC 769 : AIR 1934 Rang 284 .
- 2635 Kaur Ram v Chaman Lal, 154 IC 1088 : AIR 1934 Lah 751 ; Ramchander v Maharaj Kunwar, AIR 1939 All 611 ; Etah Municipality v Moradhuj, 189 IC 819 : AIR 1940 All 340 .
- 2636 Ram Gopal Reddy v Additional Custodian Evacuee Property, Hyderabad, AIR 1966 SC 1438 [LNIND 1966 SC 4] .
- 2637 Ambaben Waghubhai Haribhai Desai v Baldevbhai Becharsinh Vaghela, AIR 2010 Guj 17 [LNIND 2009 GUJ 318] : (2009) 3 GLH 768 : (2010) 1 GLR 565 .
- 2638 Patel Natwarlal Rupji v Kondh Group Kheti Vishayak, (1996) 7 SCC 690 [LNIND 1995 SC 1257] : AIR 1996 SC 1088 [LNIND 1995 SC 1257] ; SP Munnuswami Gounder v Ersu Gounder, AIR 1975 Mad. 25 [LNIND 1974 MAD 344] : (1974) 1 Mad LJ 499; N P Tripathi v Damayanti Devi, AIR 1988 Pat. 123 , p 125.
- 2639 Chetak Construction Ltd v Om Prakash, AIR 2003 MP 145 [LNIND 2002 MP 370] , p 150 : (2003) 2 MPJR 95.
- 2640 Delhi Motor Co v UA Basurkar, AIR 1968 SC 794 [LNIND 1968 SC 2] : [1968] 2 SCR 720 [LNIND 1968 SC 2] .
- 2641 State of Uttar Pradesh v District Judge, (1997) 1 SCC 496 [LNIND 1996 SC 1691] : AIR 1997 SC 53 [LNIND 1996 SC 1691] .
- 2642 Bhalkoo Ghaslya v Hiryabai, AIR 1949 Ngp 410 .
- 2643 Sadashiv Chander Bhamgare v Eknath Pandharinath Nangude, AIR 2004 Bom 378 [LNIND 2004 BOM 438] , p 384.
- 2644 Gita Devi v Sobha Agarwalla, AIR 2017 Jhar. 24 .
- 2645 Ram Chander v Maharaj Kanwar, AIR 1939 All 611 .
- 2646 Achayya v Venkata Subba Rao, AIR 1957 AP 854 [LNIND 1956 AP 105] .
- 2647 Amrao Singh v Sanathan Dharma Sabha, AIR 1985 P&H. 195 .
- 2648 Padmanabh v Appalanarasamma, AIR 1952 Ori. 143 .
- 2649 Motilal v Jaswant Singh, AIR 1964 Raj. 11 [LNIND 1963 RAJ 154] .
- 2650 Juhar Mal v Kapur Chand, AIR 1983 Raj. 139 .
- 2651 Ghanshyambhai Dhirubhai Barvaliya v Rasikbhai Dhirubhai Ambaliya, AIR 2017 Guj 164 .
- 2652 Ekudashi v Ganga, AIR 1981 All 373 .
- 2653 Savarkundla Nagarpalika v Maninagar Nivas Nirmal Sahakari Mandhi Ltd, AIR 1981 Guj 243 [LNIND 1981 GUJ 40] .
- 2654 Ewaz Ali v Firdous Jehan, AIR 1944 Oudh 212 ; Radhanath Swain v Madhusudan, (1956) ILR Cut 42 : AIR 1956 Ori. 58 .
- 2655 Achayya v Venkata Subba Rao, AIR 1957 AP 854 [LNIND 1956 AP 105]; Akram MeavSecunderabad Municipal Corp, AIR 1957 AP 859; Maruti v Krishna, (1966) ILR Bom 291 : 67 Bom LR 761 : AIR 1967 Bom 34 [LNIND 1965 BOM 15] .
- 2656 Delhi Motor Co v Basurkar, [1968] 2 SCR 720 [LNIND 1968 SC 2] : AIR 1968 SC 794 [LNIND 1968 SC 2] : [1968] 2 SCJ 614 [LNIND 1968 SC 2] .
- 2657 Maruti v Krishna, AIR 1967 Bom 34 [LNIND 1965 BOM 15] . But see Padmalabha v Appalanarasamma, AIR 1952 Ori. 143 .
- 2658 Mahadeva Mandi Madashetty v Rangamma, AIR 2013 Kant. 56 [LNIND 2012 KANT 340] .
- 2659 Ambaben Waghubhai Haribhai Desai v Baldevbhai Becharsinh Vaghela, AIR 2010 Guj 17 [LNIND 2009 GUJ 318] : 2009 GLH (3) 768 : (2010) 1 GLR 565 .
- 2660 Parmanand v Kailash Chand, AIR 2012 CHG. 64 .
- 2661 Reserve Bank of India, Mumbai v Krishi Export Co Corp Ltd, Varanasi, AIR 2012 (NOC) 151 All.
- 2662 V KrishnaiahvN Narasimhareddy, AIR 1976 AP 395 [LNIND 1976 AP 46] .
- 2663 Salim v First Addl Civil Judge, Saharanpur, AIR 1996 All 342 [LNIND 1996 ALL 70] : 1997 Civil CC 118.
- 2664 Surjeet Singh v Paramjeet Singh, (2010) 120 DRJ 602 [LNIND 2010 DEL 2348] (Delhi); Johnson Koshy v Madhu Mohan, AIR 2012 (NOC) 240 Cal.

[53A. Part performance.—

- 2665 Johnson Koshy v Madhu Mohan, AIR 2012 (NOC) 240 Cal.
- 2666 Hemraj v Rustomji, AIR 1953 SC 503 .
- 2667 Balaram Jairam v Kewalram, AIR 1940 Ngp 396 ; Ranchod v Zipru, (1954) ILR Bom 194 : 55 Bom LR 890 : AIR 1954 Bom 153 [LNIND 1953 BOM 15] ; Bobba Suramma v P Chandramma, AIR 1959 AP 568 [LNIND 1959 AP 86] ; Karunakar Das v Mahakuren, (1959) ILR Cut 453 : AIR 1960 Ori. 170 [LNIND 1959 ORI 11] . But see Labhu v Shiv Ram, (1939) 41 Punj LR 56 : AIR 1939 Lah 57 ; Jagad Bhusan v Panna Lal, AIR 1941 Cal 287 , on app (1943) ILR 1 Cal 56 : 206 IC 624 : AIR 1943 Cal 344 .
- 2668 Piru Charan Pal v Sunitnony Nemo, AIR 1973 Cal 1 [LNIND 1972 CAL 169] .
- 2669 Srikakulam Subrahmanayam v Kurra Subba Rao, 75 IA 115 : (1949) ILR Mad 141 : 50 Bom LR 646 : (1948) All LJ 226 : 52 Cal WN 706 : (1948) 2 Mad LJ 22 : AIR 1948 PC 95 , reversing Subrahmanayam v Subba Rao, AIR 1944 Mad. 337 [LNIND 1943 MAD 242] ; Amrao v Baburao, (1950) ILR Nag 25 : AIR 1951 Ngp 405 ; Manglu Mehra v Sukru Meher, (1950) ILR Cut 107 : AIR 1950 Ori. 217 [LNIND 1949 ORI 33] .
- 2670 Audinarayudu v Mangamma, (1943) 2 Mad LJ 300 : 56 Mad LW 502 : AIR 1943 Mad. 706 [LNIND 1943 MAD 158] .
- 2671 Raju Roy v Kasinath Roy, AIR 1956 Pat. 308 .
- 2672 Nanjedevaray v H V Rama Rao, (1957) ILR Mys108 : AIR 1959 Mys 173 .
- 2673 Narendra Bahadur Tandon v Shankar Lal, AIR 1980 SC 575 [LNIND 1980 SC 33] : (1980) 2 SCC 253 [LNIND 1980 SC 33] .
- 2674 Muralidhar v Tara Dye, AIR 1953 Cal 349 [LNIND 1950 CAL 63] .
- 2675 See Radha Charan Das v Pranbati Dass, (1959)63 Cal WN 535.
- 2676 S Veerabadra Naicker v S Sambanda Naicker, AIR 2003 Mad. 19 [LNIND 2002 MAD 550] , paras 29 & 31 : (2002) 3 Mad LJ 834; Prova Rani v Lalit Mohini, AIR 1960 Cal 541 [LNIND 1959 CAL 218] , para 5; Yasodammal v Janaki Ammal, AIR 1968 Mad. 294 [LNIND 1967 MAD 11] .
- 2677 Parmanand v Kailash Chand, AIR 2012 CHG. 64 ; Hemraj v Rustomji, AIR 1953 SC 503 ; Dayawati v Madan Lal Verma, AIR 2003 All 276 [LNIND 2003 ALL 98] , para 20.
- 2678 Prova Rani v Lalit Mohini, AIR 1960 Cal 541 [LNIND 1959 CAL 218] ; Mahadei Halua v Ram Krishna, AIR 1960 Pat. 354 .
- 2679 Mahadei Halua v Ram Krishna, AIR 1960 Pat. 354 .
- 2680 Vasanthi v Venugopal, AIR 2017 SC 1569 [LNIND 2017 SC 129] : 2017 (3) Scale 674 : (2017) 4 SCC 723 [LNIND 2017 SC 129] .
- 2681 Asharam v Bhanwarlal, AIR 1974 Raj. 188 .
- 2682 Ariff v Jadunath, 58 IA 91 : AIR 1931 PC 79 .
- 2683 Mian Pir Bux v Sardar Mahomed Tahar, 64 IA 388 : 60 Cal LJ 370 : 60 Mad LJ 865 : 36 Bom LR 1195 : (1934) All LJ 912 : 151 IC 326 : AIR 1934 PC 235 .
- 2684 Ranjhari v Gokul Singh, 123 IC 408 : AIR 1930 Pat. 61 .
- 2685 Bank of Upper India v Arif Hussain, (1930) 28 All LJ 1157 : 128 IC 772 : AIR 1931 All 59 .
- 2686 Lalita Prasad v Sarnam Singh, 149 IC 491 : AIR 1933 Pat. 165 .
- 2687 Janakiram Ayyar v PM Nilakanta Ayyar, (1954) 1 Mad LJ 26 : AIR 1954 Mad. 537 [LNIND 1953 MAD 165] ; Karnataka Trader Hubli v Hiren Shamji Karamsey, AIR 1987 Kant. 204 [LNIND 1987 KANT 98] , p 206.
- 2688 TS Bellieraj v Vinodhim Krishna Kumar, AIR 2004 Mad. 319 [LNIND 2004 MAD 523] , para 21.
- 2689 Radhe Lal v Punaram, (1974) MP LJ 761 .
- 2690 Meram Pocham v Agent to the State Government, AIR 1978 AP 242 [LNIND 1977 AP 288] ; Chetan v State of Rajasthan, AIR 1984 Raj. 295 (NOC).
- 2691 Muthabathula Arjaya v Rambala Venkata Surya Gopal Krishnamurthi, AIR 1974 AP 240 [LNIND 1971 AP 71] .
- 2692 Goddam Narsa Haddy v Collector, Adilabad, AIR 1982 AP 1 [LNIND 1981 AP 155] .
- 2693 Sadhu Meher v Rajkumar Patel, AIR 1994 Ori. 26 [LNIND 1993 ORI 143] , p 29.
- 2694 Motilal v Nanhelal, (1980) ILR 58 Cal 692 : 57 IA 333 : AIR 1930 PC 287 ; Chandnee Widya Vati Madden v CL Katial, [1964] 2 SCR 495 [LNIND 1963 SC 77] : AIR 1964 SC 978 [LNIND 1963 SC 77] .

[53A. Part performance.—

- 2695 Nathulal v Phoolchand, [1970] 2 SCR 854 [LNIND 1969 SC 408] : AIR 1970 SC 546 [LNIND 1969 SC 408] : (1969) 3 SCC 120 [LNIND 1969 SC 408] ; Rajendra Nath v Gour Gopal, (1971) 75 Cal WN 106 : AIR 1970 Cal 163 ; Emma v Parwatamma, AIR 1972 Mys 121 .
- 2696 Akram Mea v Secundrabad Municipal Corp, AIR 1957 AP 859 ; Sitaram v Corp of Calcutta, AIR 1956 Cal 18 [LNIND 1954 CAL 141] ; Jitendra Nath v Baduria Municipality, AIR 1967 Cal 423 [LNIND 1966 CAL 199] .
- 2697 See Collector of Bombay v Municipal Corp, [1952] SCR 43 [LNIND 1951 SC 55] : AIR 1951 SC 469 [LNIND 1951 SC 55] : [1951] SCJ 752 [LNIND 1951 SC 55] ; UOI v Indo-Afghan Agencies, [1968] 2 SCR 366 [LNIND 1967 SC 334] : AIR 1968 SC 718 [LNIND 1967 SC 334] .
- 2698 St Francis Xavier's Church v Varalakshmi Ammal, (1976) 1 Mad LJ 230.
- 2699 Ambika Pada Chowdhury v Radha Rani, 83 Cal WN 527.
- 2700 Hiralal Agarwala v Bhagirathi Gore, AIR 1975 Cal 445 [LNIND 1975 CAL 118] .
- 2701 Kalawati Tripathi v Damyanti Devi, AIR 1993 Pat. 1 , p 11.
- 2702 Walsh v Lonsdale, [1882] 21 ChD 9 .
- 2703 Ariff v Jadunath, 58 IA 91 : 131 IC 762 : AIR 1931 PC 79 ; Mian Pir Bux v Sardar Mahomed Tahar, 61 IA 388 : 60 Cal LJ 370 : 67 Mad LJ 865 : 36 Bom LR 1195 : (1934) All LJ 912 : 151 IC 326 : AIR 1934 PC 235 .
- 2704 Chaliagulla Ramachandrayya v Boppana Sabyanarayana, AIR 1964 SC 877 [LNIND 1963 SC 160] : [1964] 1 SCJ 109 .
- 2705 Jogendra Krishna v Kurpal Harsih, (1922) ILR 49 Cal 345 : 68 IC 993 : AIR 1923 Cal 63 ; Ganjendrav Ashraff, (1923) 27 Cal WN 159 : 69 IC 707 : AIR 1923 Cal 130 ; Chan E Maung v Ah Til, 84 IC 396 : AIR 1925 Rang 118 ; Peari Dai v Naimish Chandra, (1926) ILR 5 Pat 40 : 90 IC 822 : AIR 1926 Pat. 184 ; Kanti Chandraw v Brojendra Mohan, (1929) 49 Cal LJ 12 : 116 IC 630 : AIR 1929 Cal 186 ; Karamath Khan v Latchmi Atchi, 61 IC 675 ; Akbar Fakir v Initial Sayal, 29 IC 707 ; Singheeram v Bhagbat, (1910) 11 Cal LJ 543 : 6 IC 374 ; Bipin Behary v Tincowry, (1911) 13 Cal LJ 271 : 9 IC 374 ; Secretary of State v Forbes, (1912) 16 Cal LJ 217 : 17 IC 180 ; Bibi Jawahir v Chatterput Singh, (1905) 2 Cal LJ 343 .
- 2706 Hari Pada v Nirod Krishna, (1921) 33 Cal LJ 437 : 64 IC 687 : AIR 1921 Cal 383 ; Meher Ali Khan v Aratunnessa, (1921) 25 Cal WN 905 : 67 IC 167 : AIR 1921 Cal 383 .
- 2707 Maung Tun Ya v Maung Aung, (1924) ILR 2 Rang 313 : 84 IC 1023 : AIR 1925 Rang 1 ; Po Tok Maung v Ma Le War, (1924) 3 Bur LJ 238 : 84 IC 468 : AIR 1925 Rang 102 .
- 2708 Shyam Kishore v Umesh Chandra, (1920) 24 Cal WN 463 : 31 Cal LJ 75 : 51 IC 154 ; Hemeshwar v Pal Chandra, AIR 1928 Cal 754 ; Maung Myat Tha Zan v Ma Dun, (1924) ILR 2 Rang 285 : 81 IC 857 : AIR 1924 Rang 214 ; Khankala Kunta v Mandlem Giraviah, (1926) 50 Mad LJ 669 : 96 IC 290 : AIR 1926 Mad. 757 [LNIND 1925 MAD 285] ; Akli v Daha, (1928) ILR 7 Pat 95 : 105 IC 63 : AIR 1928 AP 44 .
- 2709 Khogendra v Sonaban, (1915) 20 Cal WN 140 : 31 IC 987.
- 2710 See Kalipada v Fort Gloster Jute Manufacturing Co, (1927) 31 Cal WN 348 : 100 IC 866 : AIR 1927 Cal 365 ; Mahim Chandra v Esahak, 105 IC 860 : AIR 1927 Cal 954 .
- 2711 Lalchand v Lakshman, (1904) ILR 28 Bom 466.
- 2712 Pitambair Gain v Ram Charan, (1924) 28 Cal WN 157 : 76 IC 365 : AIR 1924 Cal 483 . See, however, Mehar Ali Khan v Aratunnessa, (1921) 25 Cal WN 905 : 67 IC 167 : AIR 1921 Cal 383 ; Maung Po Kywe v Maung Po Thin, (1929) ILR 7 Rang 288 : 119 IC 744 : AIR 1929 Rang 251 ; Shafikul Huq v Krishna Gobinda, (1919) 23 Cal WN 284 : 47 IC 428 ; Shyam Kishore v Umesh Chandra, (1920) 24 Cal WN 463 : 31 Cal LJ 75 : 51 IC 154.
- 2713 Kalipada v Fort Gloster Jute Manufacturing Co, (1927) 31 Cal WN 348 : 100 IC 866 : AIR 1927 Cal 365 .
- 2714 Juan Chandra v Rajani Kanta Pal, (1918) 22 Cal WN 22 : 41 IC 850.
- 2715 Bapu Appaji v Kashinath Sadoba, (1917) ILR 41 Bom 438 : 38 IC 103 ; Laxaman v Raoji, (1923) 25 Bom LR 1027 [LNIND 1923 BOM 142] : 77 IC 305 : AIR 1924 Bom 150 doubting Lalchand v Lakshman, (1904) ILR 28 Bom 466 ; Gangaram v Laxman, (1916) ILR 40 Bom 498 : 37 IC 360 ; Laxman v Bhagwan Singh, (1921) ILR 45 Bom 434 : 60 IC 581 : AIR 1921 Bom 409.
- 2716 Mian Pir Bux v Sardar Mahomed Tahar, 61 IA 388 : 60 Cal LJ 370 : 67 Mad LJ 865 : 36 Bom LR 1195 : (1934) All LJ 912 : 151 IC 326 : AIR 1934 PC 235 ; Namtulla v Safiabu, (1935) 37 Bom LR 82 : 156 IC 779 : AIR 1935 Bom 208 ; Muthuswami v Loganatha, AIR 1935 Mad. 404 [LNIND 1934 MAD 312].

[53A. Part performance.—

- 2717 Venkatesh v Malappa, (1922) ILR 46 Bom 722 : 66 IC 868 : AIR 1922 Bom 9; Dada v Bahiru, (1927) 29 Bom LR 307 : 109 IC 533 : AIR 1928 Bom 150.
- 2718 Maung Shwe Hmon v Maung Tha Byaw, 72 IC 6 : AIR 1923 Rang 125; Ma Pyone v Mau, 77 IC 877 : AIR 1924 Rang 89; Ma Myat Tha Zan v Ma Dun, (1924) ILR 2 Rang 285 : 81 IC 857 : AIR 1924 Rang 214; Maung Tun Ya v Maung Aung, (1924) ILR 2 Rang 313 : 84 IC 1023 : AIR 1925 Rang 1; Ma Ma E v Maung Tun, (1924) ILR 2 Rang 479 : 84 IC 517 : AIR 1925 Rang 119; Maung Ok Kyi v Ma Pu, (1926) ILR 4 Rang 368 : 99 IC 519 : AIR 1927 Rang 33; CAMKR Chettiar v Ma Kyaw, (1928) ILR 6 Rang 270 : 110 IC 616 : AIR 1928 Rang 321; Maung Po Sin v Ma Nyein, (1928) ILR 6 Rang 276 : 110 IC 610 : AIR 1928 Rang 182.
- 2719 Official Assignee v ME Moola & Sons Ltd, (1934) ILR 12 Rang 589 : 154 IC 9 : AIR 1935 Rang 84.
- 2720 Moola Sons Ltd v Official Assignee, Rangoon, 63 IA 340 : (1936) All LJ 832 : 38 Bom LR 1011 : 40 Cal WN 1253 : 71 Mad LJ 40 : 163 IC 418 : AIR 1936 PC 230.
- 2721 Ma KyivMa Thon, (1935) ILR 13 Rang 274 : 157 IC 565 : AIR 1935 Rang 230.
- 2722 Chaliagulla Ramaschandrayya v Boppna Satyanarayana, AIR 1964 SC 877 [LNIND 1963 SC 160]: [1964] 1 SCJ 109 : 1964 (1) AnWR 46 : (1964) 1 MLJ 46 [LNIND 1962 SC 445] : [1964] 3 SCR 985 [LNIND 1963 SC 160].
- 2723 Venetta Kharsyntiew v Tushar Nath Bhattacharjee, AIR 2014 (NOC) 590 (Meg).
- 2724 Shantaben v Hasmukhbhai Bhailalbai Patel, AIR 2013 Guj 193 [LNIND 2012 GUJ 173]: LNIND 2012 GUJ 173 : 2012 (2) Guj LR 1719.

54. Sale defined.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 3 Of Sales of Immovable Property

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 3 Of Sales of Immovable Property

Sections 54–57, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

54. Sale defined.—

"Sale" is a transfer of ownership in exchange for a price paid or promised or part-paid and part-promised.

Sale how made.—¹Such transfer, in the case of tangible immovable property of the value of one hundred rupees and upwards, or in the case of a reversion or other intangible thing, can be made only by a registered instrument.

²In the case of tangible immovable property of a value less than one hundred rupees, such transfer may be made either by a registered instrument or by delivery of the property.

Delivery of tangible immovable property takes place when the seller places the buyer, or such person as he directs, in possession of the property.

Contract for sale.—A contract for the sale of immovable property is a contract that a sale of such property shall take place on terms settled between the parties.

It does not, of itself, create any interest in or charge on such property.

Sale

The section deals with three subjects:

- I. Definition of sale.
- II. Mode of transfer by sale.
- III. Contract for sale.

I—Definition of Sale[s 54.1] Definition

The definition indicates that in order to constitute a sale, there must be transfer of ownership from one person to another, i.e., all rights and interests in the properties which are possessed by that person are transferred by him with his free consent³ to another person. The transferor cannot retain any part of his interest or right in that property, or else it would not be a sale. The definition further says that the transfer of ownership has to be for a "price paid or promised or part-paid and part-promised". Price thus constitutes an essential ingredient of the transaction of sale. The words "price paid or promised or part-paid and part-promise" indicate that actual payment of the whole of the price at the time of the execution of sale deed is not a sine qua non to the completion of the sale. Even if the whole price is not paid but the document is executed and thereafter

54. Sale defined.—

registered, if the property is of the value of more than ₹100, the sale would be complete.⁴ Therefore, a sale simpliciter is when a piece of immovable property is transferred by way of a sale with all advantages and/or disadvantages on “as is where is” basis and so any assurance of the development of the property amounts to be a “service” under the Consumer Protection Act.⁵ In a lease, there is a partial transfer or demise and the rights left in the transferor are called the reversion.⁶ Therefore, where a document was presented for registration and the issue was whether the document in question, was a partial transfer and accordingly, a lease, or whether it involved any outright sale therein, it was held that it was a lease deed was executed by the lessor in favour of the co-operative societies and its members.⁷ In a mortgage, there is a transfer of an interest to the extent stated in section 58 below. A sale is, however, distinguishable from a hire-purchase agreement. If the transferee has eventually to pay the entire purchase price, it may be a circumstance indicating that the transaction was meant to be a sale. On the other hand, if the transferee is given a right to terminate the agreement, that may be a circumstance indicating that the transaction is a hire-purchase agreement.⁸ If the transfer is in the nature of a security for money then even though it is described as a sale it would not be a sale but a mortgage.⁹

An outright sale is distinguishable from a sale with an option of reconveyance, which must be evidenced by the sale deed. If the sale deed is totally silent with respect to an option/agreement of reconveyance, the transfer would be an outright sale and not a sale with an option of reconveyance.¹⁰ Where the reconveyance clause was inserted in an unusual manner at foot of deed above signatures but interlineations were neither signed nor attested by appellant vendor at the time of execution but were made after execution and before registration. As this reconveyance clause was inserted without consent and knowledge of respondent buyer at time of registration when he put his thumb impression, it was held that such additions are not binding as such insertion had been made to convert the absolute sale deed into a conditional sale deed.¹¹ An agreement for sale and purchase simpliciter is a reciprocal arrangement imposing obligations and benefits on both parties, and is enforceable at the instance of either. However, when an agreement provides that the right to obtain a sale is subject to the fulfilment of certain conditions by the purchaser, the agreement would in effect be an option to purchase, as the right to purchase would only accrue upon the voluntary performance of the conditions specified by the owner. The vendor cannot compel the performance of the conditions by the purchaser, and then ask for the contract to be specifically performed.¹²

The essential elements of a sale are:

- (1) the parties;
- (2) the subject-matter;
- (3) the transfer or conveyance (discussed under section 55);
- (4) the price or consideration.

[s 54.2] Parties to Sale

The parties are the seller and the buyer.

The seller must be a person competent to transfer.¹³ He must be competent to contract, and he must have title to the property or authority to transfer it, if it is not his own. A purchaser purchasing the property from the seller who claimed to be the owner on the basis of the Will of the original owner claiming to be his son, has a duty to verify the documents relating to and facts of parentage of the seller. Failure to do so would disentitle him to claim the title of a bonafide purchaser without notice of the defect in title. In Jagadambai v Suresh Kumar,¹⁴ one S, sought the property claiming that he was the son of the deceased owner, a claim that his widow successfully refuted. Thus a sale executed by this S of the property in favour of the purchaser came in question. The purchaser was not permitted to take the label of a bonafide purchaser to protect his possession as the law imposed a duty upon him to ascertain the competency of the seller to alienate the property that he failed to do. A sale of property in excess of the share and of a portion belonging to another co-owner on the basis of unsubstantiated and unproven claim of oral relinquishment would be invalid and illegal.¹⁵ A sale deed executed by any other person in presence of the owner would not be valid.¹⁶ Similarly, the guardian of the property of a minor is empowered to sell it with the permission of the court, and without such permission the sale would be invalid.¹⁷ In Sachida Nand Sharma v State of Bihar,¹⁸ the property belonged to A but was sold four years after his disappearance by his brother as the guardian of the minor son during life time of the natural guardian, i.e., the mother. The mother was of sound mind and there was no evidence that the sale was for the benefit of the minor, it was held that the sale would be void as having been executed by a person who had no right or title to the property.

54. Sale defined.—

In case a power of Attorney executed by the owner empowers the holder to transfer property, the term transfer would include all kinds of transfers including sale and thus the power of attorney holder would be competent and entitled to sell the property.¹⁹ The fixing of different rates of stamp duty when a Power of Attorney is executed in favour of blood relative as against in favour of outsider as agent is not unconstitutional and is to curb tendency of transferring immovable properties through Power of Attorney and inappropriate documentation and levy of stamp duty on such ostensible documents, whose real intention is to transfer immovable property.²⁰

In Aqeel Ahmad v Mohd Moin,²¹ a Muslim lady, executed a Will of her property expressly revoking the earlier two Wills in which she had dedicated her property to Allah giving reasons for the same, and through this last Will she declared that after her death, the property would go solely to the beneficiary, and upon the death of the beneficiary, her son in the capacity of her heir would be the owner. In a challenge to the validity of the sale executed by the son, it was held that the sale executed by such son would be valid and the title in the property would be validly transferred in favour of the transferee. Similarly, in Husna Bano v Munni Bano,²² it was held that when a person is the beneficiary under the Will, and he conveys property after the death of the testator, in absence of any provision in the Will that the property should be held back to pay out the debts, the conveyance of property by the legatee or his constituted attorney is proper. Where a woman inherits the property of her husband the fact that she had converted to Christianity would not be material due to protection available under the Caste Disabilities Removal Act, 1850, and she would be competent to transfer the property through sale having right, and title to the property.²³ On the other hand, a person purchasing the entire property despite being fully aware that the transferor was the owner of only half portion of the property, cannot later claim to be a bonafide purchaser without notice and his claim of absolute title over the entire property would be rejected.²⁴ Similarly, a person who is not the sole owner of the property, cannot claim the complete sale proceeds and would be entitled to only a portion of it.²⁵ The change in the plaint for a relief of declaration of title must be allowed along with the original prayer of cancellation of lease deeds if it doesn't change the basic nature of the suit.²⁶

The buyer may be any person who is not disqualified to be a transferee under section 6(h)(3). A duly executed transfer by way of sale to a minor who had paid the consideration is valid.²⁷ A sale deed executed when vendor was a minor is not per se void, but becomes voidable as soon as the option is exercised by the minor through the guardian.²⁸ A sale executed after getting a general power of attorney and express authorization to sell would be valid,²⁹ but not in absence of such permission.³⁰ Where a person A sold his property to B, who undertook to discharge his debts, but failed to do so, it was held that his mere failure to discharge the debts did not make the transaction a sham one. This was more so, because—

- (i) possession had already been delivered to the vendee;
- (ii) there was mutation of names in the municipal records;

54. Sale defined.—

- (iii) stamp for the sale deed stood only in vendee's name; and
- (iv) some amount in cash was also paid by the vendees as part of consideration making sale deed to be real as fully supported by consideration.³¹

Even if the acceptance of the papers and the possession is by a person other than the transferee mentioned in the document, though with an endorsement, the sale would not be vitiated on this account. In Jagtar Singh v State of Punjab,³² the recitals in agreement and sale deed showed that the transferee was the state government. The land was recorded in favour of the ownership of state government c/o Baba Farid University of Health Sciences and acceptance of the sale deed was by the Vice Chancellor of University. The sale was held as valid and in favour of state government as a transferee.

With regard to persons under disability like pardanashin or illiterate lady, the court must be satisfied that the deed had been explained to and understood by the party, under disability, either before execution or after it under circumstances showing that the deed has been executed with full knowledge and comprehension. Mere execution by such a person, although unaccompanied by duress, protest or obvious signs of misunderstanding or want of comprehensions, is, in itself, no real proof of a true understanding in the mind of the executant.³³ It has to be proved that such execution is the mental act of the maker.³⁴

Conveyance of property by legatee or his constituted attorney is not improper. In Husna Bano v Munni Bano,³⁵ the Calcutta High Court held that a party, as a legatee or through a power of attorney was in a position to confer an imperfect title of the property on the purchaser. The Court relied on the decision in Hirak Roy v S K Roy reported in 1990 (95) Cal WN 629, where it was held that a legatee is recognized to be having an imperfect title to an immoveable property, in the absence of an assent from the executor or executrix. Furthermore, he has the right to convey the imperfect title. If the title is imperfect, it is the problem of the taker of the property.

[s 54.3] Subject-matter of Sale

The subject-matter is transferable immovable property that is sufficiently identifiable, i.e., the identity of the property should not be subject to controversy.³⁶ The section is not applicable to the sale of movable property which is governed by the Indian Sale of Goods Act, 1930.³⁷ Immoveable property has been explained in the note under that heading under section 3. Immoveable property is transferable except in the cases specified in section 6.

The definition of immovable property in the General Clauses Act includes land, benefits to arise out of land, and things attached to the earth or permanently fastened to anything attached to the earth. Things attached to the earth are mentioned in section 8 as incidents which pass with the land on transfer, and are defined in section 3. Land and things attached to the earth are things which can be touched and are, therefore, tangible immovable property. Thus, a field or a house is tangible immovable property. Where the owner of the land had executed a lease and the lessee had with the permission of the owner constructed a hotel on it in which ownership rights were with the lessee and not with the owner of the house, a sale deed executed by the wife of the owner after his demise would be a sale of only the land and not of the hotel. The purchaser would acquire ownership only in the land and would be entitled to lease rent as per the lease which was being realized by the predecessors.³⁸ A benefit to arise out of land is immovable property, and is an interest in land. However, such interests may or may not be tangible. An undivided share in land is tangible as the owner has joint physical possession.³⁹ However, an easement, a right of ferry, or a fishery are intangible, for these are rights exercised over the property of another, and cannot be perceived by the sense of touch. There has been a conflict of decisions as to whether an equity of redemption is tangible, or an intangible immovable property. It was held in a number of cases that the equity of redemption in a simple mortgage is tangible for the owner is in possession, but is intangible in a usufructuary mortgage because he is not in physical possession.⁴⁰ Conversely, as to the mortgagee's interest, that it was intangible in a simple mortgage, but tangible if the mortgagee is a usufructuary mortgagee.⁴¹ That has also the opinion of CJ Sulaiman in his minority opinion in Sohan Lal v Mohan Lal,⁴² and was described as well-founded in principle in earlier editions of this work. The judgment of the majority of the judges in Sohan Lal v Mohan Lal was, however, that an equity of redemption is tangible property even in the case of a usufructuary mortgage and was based, inter alia on the following passage from Salmond's Jurisprudence:⁴³

54. Sale defined.—

The right of the owner of a thing may be all but eaten up by the dominant rights of lessees, mortgagees and other encumbrances. His ownership may be reduced to a mere name rather than a reality. Yet he nonetheless remains the owner of the thing, for all the others own nothing more than rights over it.

The majority view has been followed by the Patna,⁴⁴ Bombay,⁴⁵ Andhra Pradesh,⁴⁶ and Rajasthan⁴⁷ High Courts.

An interest under a deed of settlement, whereby a person is granted an income in future rents and profits of certain immovable property, and also a share in the proceeds of the property in future, is “immovable property” within the meaning of the section.⁴⁸ In a case of transfer of co-operative society membership/flat, the Supreme Court, in *Prathima Chowdhury v Kalpana Mukherjee*⁴⁹ held that it is difficult to accept that parties had agreed to pass on consideration by transfer of shares, which were not even owned by transferee on date of transfer of property in question. On facts, it was held that the transfer being suspicious, is not valid. In an agreement of sale of land, the well, room, tubewell and trees standing on the land,⁵⁰ would be treated as part of it.

A statutory bar on alienation will override the provisions of the TP Act, 1882.⁵¹

[s 54.4] Tangible and Intangible Property

The distinction between tangible and intangible immovable property is analogous to that made in English law between a corporeal hereditament and an incorporeal hereditament. Topham explains the distinction as follows:

A corporeal hereditament is an interest in land in possession, i.e. a present right to enjoy the possession of land. An incorporeal hereditament is a right over land in the possession of another, which may be a future right to possession, or a right to use for a special purpose land in the possession of another, e.g. a right of way.⁵²

The contrast is between the estate of one who is possessed of the land, the tangible thing, and that of a man who has the mere right, the intangible thing, without possession of anything tangible.⁵³

The “other intangible thing” in section 54 is intended to embrace those imponderables related to immovable property. A patta right is intangible property, and the sale of such a right must be effected by a registered instrument.⁵⁴ It cannot include such things as a mere licence to sell electricity.⁵⁵ A licence to enter into land, and fish is a transaction relating to profits a pendre, and must be registered under this section⁵⁶ if the value exceeds ?100. Hence, the sale of such a right, if not effected by a registered instrument, passes no title.⁵⁷ Growing crops are, of course, excluded from the definition of immovable property by section 3; but a contract to take tendu leaves, adhat timber etc. from land is not limited to growing crops, and must be registered.⁵⁸

54. Sale defined.—

[s 54.5] Mortgage Debt

The mortgage debts can no longer be transferred as actionable claims under chapter VIII of TP Act, 1882. They can only be transferred by way of sale under section 54, or by way of exchange under section 118, or by way of gift under section 123, but in all cases as immovable property, and consequently only by registered instrument.⁵⁹ However, the Privy Council has held that an unregistered transfer of a mortgage debt may be treated as a transfer of the debt dissociated from the security.⁶⁰

The Supreme Court, in Vanchalabhai Raghunath Ithape (D) by Lr v Shankarrao Baburao Bhilare (D) by Lrs,⁶¹ held that a sale with a condition of repurchase is not a lending and borrowing arrangement. No debt subsists and no right to redeem is reserved by the debtor, but only a personal right to purchase.

In the case of Williams v Owen,⁶² a similar question arose as to whether a conveyance by the plaintiff's father to the defendant was to be considered as having been a mortgage as contented by the plaintiff, or as having been a sale, with a right of repurchase at a given date. It was held that in a mortgage the debt subsists and a right to redeem remains with the debtor, but a sale with a condition of repurchase is not a lending and borrowing arrangement; no debt subsists and no right to redeem is reserved by the debtor, but only a personal right to purchase. This personal right can only be enforced strictly according to the terms of the deed and at the time agreed upon.⁶³

[s 54.6] Reversion

A reversion is particularly mentioned, probably because the lessor, although out of possession, is able to give symbolical possession by his lessee attorney to the transferee. However, such symbolical possession is not equivalent to physical possession and a reversion is, therefore, intangible.⁶⁴ A transfer of a reversion is a transfer of a right to future rents which is a "benefit to arise out of land" within the meaning of the phrase used in the definition of immovable property in the Registration Act, 1908.⁶⁵ Arrears of rent already accrued due are not a benefit to arise out of land, but a mere debt or chose in action, and not immovable property at all.⁶⁶

[s 54.7] Fruits of an Action

An assignment of the fruits of an action is not illegal,⁶⁷ but such an assignment is not a sale although the suit (action) is for the possession of immovable property,⁶⁸ because, if the defendant succeeded and the suits were dismissed, there would be no property to be sold.⁶⁹ On the other hand, if the seller has a present title, the mere fact that he is out of possession will not justify the inference that the sale is a transfer of a law suit.⁷⁰

[s 54.8] Easements

The grant of an easement is not a transfer of ownership under this section;⁷¹ and the provisions of the TP Act, 1882 have no application to the creation of an easement.⁷²

[s 54.9] Exchange and Sale

Though, under section 118 (exchange), the formalities required for sale are made applicable to an exchange, that does not mean that all the requirements of section 54 must apply to an exchange.⁷³ Thus, a grant of land on what is called adhlapi tenure, i.e., a transfer of land in return for work done in clearing land and sinking a well, is not a sale;⁷⁴ and a transfer of life interest in land in discharge of a claim for maintenance is neither a sale, nor an exchange, nor a gift.⁷⁵ A transfer of land in satisfaction of a charge for maintenance has been held to be not a sale, but an exchange.⁷⁶ A transfer of land in satisfaction of a wife's claim for dower;⁷⁷ or a sale deed executed by a husband in consideration of a wife's claim for khurach pandan (which was a personal right) valued at ₹14,000,⁷⁸ or a transaction by which a person agreed to file a suit to redeem a mortgage and to bear all expenses and charges in respect of such a suit, is not a sale.⁷⁹ However, where parties were to exchange properties with one of them paying an additional sum of Rs 1 lakh as equalisation of value, it amounts to sale,

54. Sale defined.—

and not exchange.⁸⁰

However, in some cases such a transaction has been held to be a sale on the ground (submitted to be erroneous) that the extinction of the dower debt is equivalent to the payment of price.⁸¹ If the consideration for the transfer is not money only, but also forbearance to sue or to take proceedings, the transfer is not a sale.⁸² A transaction in consideration of the regard for the transferee, who also agreed to maintain the transferor,⁸³ or a compromise affecting immovable property as an acknowledgment of an existing right, does not operate as a sale,⁸⁴ but there would be cases in which a compromise might result in a sale.⁸⁵ A decretal amount may be the price,⁸⁶ an advance made by one brother to another is a good consideration for a sale.⁸⁷

[s 54.10] Hire Purchase

Hire purchase transaction is not sale. Stipulation authorising the owner to seize a vehicle given out on hire purchase for non-payment of an installment, is valid.⁸⁸

[s 54.11] Sale and a General power of Attorney

A power of attorney is not a sale.⁸⁹ A sale involves transfer of all the rights in the property in favour of the transferee but a power of attorney simply authorises the grantee to do certain acts with respect to the property including if the grantor permits an authority to sell the property. It is revocable unless made irrevocable. GPA Sales or Sale Agreement or Will transfers' cannot be used to transfer immovable property. Both the descriptions are misnomers as there cannot be a sale by execution of a power of attorney nor can there be a transfer by execution of an agreement of sale and a power of attorney and will. Immovable property can be legally and lawfully transferred/conveyed only by a registered deed of conveyance under section 5 and 53A of TP Act, 1882. A General power of Attorney; The general Power of Attorney, Deed of Agreement, Will receipt and Affidavit do not confer title as a sale can be effected under section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act (TPA) only by a registered sale deed. Where the owner of the property first executes a power of attorney in favour of the developer but revokes it subsequently, the remedy of specific relief is not lost to the developer who can still seek specific enforcement of the development agreement.⁹⁰

[s 54.12] Price—Meaning of

The word "price" is used in its ordinary sense as meaning money only.⁹¹ It is used in the same sense as in section 77 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872 as enacted.⁹² The Supreme Court has held that though "price" is not defined in the TP Act, 1882, it is used in the same sense as in the Sale of Goods Act, 1930, and means the money consideration for the sale of goods.⁹³ The Supreme Court has also held that the presence of a money consideration is an essential element in a transaction of sale; if the consideration is not money, but some other valuable consideration, it may be an exchange or barter, but not a sale.⁹⁴ However, the Andhra Pradesh High Court has held a family settlement to be a consideration for execution of an agreement of sale.⁹⁵

[s 54.13] Price of the Essence

The price is fixed by the contract antecedent to the conveyance. Price is of the essence of a contract of sale,⁹⁶ and unless the price is fixed, there is no enforceable contract, because if no price is named the law does not imply, as in the case of a sale of goods, a contract to buy at a reasonable price. If no price is paid or promised, even a registered deed does not affect a sale.⁹⁷ However, it is sufficient if the contract specifies definite means of ascertaining the price.⁹⁸ The law is stated by Fry on Specific Performance as follows:

In all sales it is evident that price is an essential ingredient, and that where it is neither ascertained nor rendered ascertainable, the contract is void for incompleteness, and incapable of enforcement. It is not however necessary that the contract should in the first instance determine the price, it may either appoint a way in which it is to be determined or it may stipulate for a fair price.

54. Sale defined.—

A contract for sale at 33 years' purchase of the net income is valid, and capable of specific enforcement.⁹⁹ The plea of absence of any sale due to sale consideration being very low is untenable, unless there is reliable evidence on record to show as to what was the market value of the land at the time of the agreement.¹⁰⁰ There should be direct or indirect evidence of any contemporaneous transaction on record.¹⁰¹

[s 54.14] Price how Ascertained

A clause in an agreement that the purchaser will at his own expense and cost take proper legal steps to protect and defend the properties, was held as affording sufficient and adequate consideration. The law does not require that the consideration should be immediately ascertainable in money. It is sufficient if it is ascertainable at a time when the payment is made.¹⁰² Where the transaction is on the face of it complete, it cannot be regarded as a mere agreement on the ground that the price is unascertained at that time.¹⁰³

The fact that there is difference between two sale deeds of the same property executed at different times does not, in itself, prove that the subsequent sale deed showing a lower price, must be collusive, and lacking in bona fides. On the contrary, the mala fide purchaser generally inflates the price.¹⁰⁴

[s 54.15] Price—Payment of

The time of payment of price is not necessarily a sine qua non to the completion of the sale.¹⁰⁵ If the intention is that property should pass on registration, the sale is complete as soon as the deed is registered irrespective of whether the price has been paid;¹⁰⁶ and the purchaser is entitled to sue for possession although he has not paid the price,¹⁰⁷ unless the contract provides for transfer of ownership only on the payment of the price.¹⁰⁸ This is clear from the words of the section, "price paid or promised or part paid or part promised." However, when although the deed recited that the price was not paid, and it was not in fact paid and so also possession was not delivered, it was held that the inference was irresistible that no title passed.¹⁰⁹ A condition that price shall be paid in a year provided that possession was given within that time does not invalidate the sale deed.¹¹⁰ If the price is not paid the seller cannot on that account set aside the conveyance.¹¹¹ He can only sue for the price;¹¹² and he will have a charge on the property for the unpaid purchase-money. Even if the plaintiff had paid only part of the money to the second defendant as sale consideration and the remaining amount which was shown to have been paid before the execution of the deed was, in fact, not paid, the sale deed would not, for that reason, become invalid on account of section 54 of the TP Act, 1882.¹¹³ This is non-possessory charge, as explained in the note under section 55(4)(b), and it will not justify the seller refusing to give possession. Similarly, where for the sale of immovable property, a sum of ₹1500 was paid by cheque, but the cheque was dishonoured. It was held that if the transferee commits fraud, there is no valid transfer. Once it is found that the contract is without consideration—as in this case—it is void, and title did not pass.¹¹⁴ Nonpayment of sale consideration does not vitiate sale provided it is promised to be paid. However, if the assertion made in the sale deed that consideration had already been paid is found to be incorrect, the transaction does not amount to sale in eyes of law.¹¹⁵

The purchaser is free to pay the entire sale consideration to the seller in advance or at the time of taking the possession and even if there is sufficient consideration to be paid at the time of the possession without executing the sale deed to enable the purchaser to enjoy the usufruct, the transaction would be valid. In absence of specific pleading to the effect, the courts should not decide the justness or fairness of agreements entered into by the parties.¹¹⁶

Therefore, though the sale deed may recite that the consideration had been paid, the parties can adduce evidence to show that the recital was not correct.¹¹⁷ Section 92 of Indian Evidence 1872 Act does not bar such evidence. In that case, the purchaser agreed to pay consideration at the time of execution and registration, but failed to do so. It was held that he could tender or pay the money within a reasonable time, but before the vendor repudiates the contract sale. However, the vendor cannot be expected to wait indefinitely to enable the vendee to perform his part, and if the vendee does not make payment within a reasonable time, the vendor is at liberty to sell the property to another person. If after such repudiation the amount is tendered by the vendee, it is of no consequence.¹¹⁸

54. Sale defined.—

[s 54.16] Price, Challenge to Adequacy of

In Lal Achal Ram v Raja Kazim Hussain Khan,¹¹⁹ the Privy Council laid down the principle that a stranger to a sale deed cannot dispute payment of consideration or its adequacy. This decision was later overruled by the Supreme Court, in Vidhyadhar v Manikrao,¹²⁰ wherein they held that a person in his capacity as a defendant can raise any legitimate plea available to him under law to defeat the suit of the plaintiff. This would also include the plea that the sale deed by which the title to the property was intended to be conveyed to the plaintiff was void or fictitious or, for that matter, collusive, and not intended to be acted upon. The whole question would depend upon the pleadings of the parties, the nature of the suit, the nature of the deed, the evidence led by the parties in the suit, and other attending circumstances. Thus, a distinction has been drawn between a deed which was intended to be real or operative between the parties, and a deed which is fictitious in character, and was never designed as a genuine document to effect transfer of title. In such a situation, it would be open even to a stranger to impeach the deed as void and invalid on all possible grounds. It may be noted that Madhya Pradesh¹²¹ and Andhra Pradesh¹²² High Courts have held that it is not open to third parties to challenge consideration for a sale. It is submitted that in view of the law laid down by the Supreme Court, these two judgments should be considered per incuriam. When sale deed is relied upon for determination of market value, the consideration mentioned in the sale deed cannot be ignored. In absence of proof for undervaluation or proof that sale was a distress sale, it is not possible to ignore sale price mentioned in sale deed.¹²³

[s 54.17] Extrinsic Evidence of Payment

Notwithstanding an admission in a sale deed that the price has been paid, it is open to the vendor to prove that no consideration was in fact paid.¹²⁴ Extrinsic evidence is also admissible to show that a deed which was in form a deed of sale with a receipt for the consideration, was in reality intended to operate as a deed of gift.¹²⁵ If no price was in fact paid and the transfer was a reward for past cohabitation or with the object of future cohabitation, the ostensible sale deed may amount to a gift, but would be invalid under section 6(h) of TP Act, 1882.¹²⁶ The mere fact of non-payment of consideration will not make the sale deed fictitious, although it may sometimes be evidence that it was not intended to operate.¹²⁷ A compromise in which each side admits the title of the other to a part of the property in dispute does not require a written instrument, because in such case there is no transfer of title.¹²⁸

[s 54.18] Time whether Essence of Contract

So far as the contract of immovable property is concerned, time is not the essence of the contract. Of course, this dictum of law is subject to two exceptions. The first one being that it should be stipulated in the contract itself that time is the essence of the contract. The second one is that the party considering the time to be the essence of the contract should put the other party on notice specifying that time is concerned the essence of the contract. Unless both these conditions are not complied with, the rule that time is not the essence of the contract, so far as it is concerned with the immovable property, shall prevail.¹²⁹ However, time is essence of the contract in the case of a re-conveyance, it being a concession or a privilege given to the seller to repurchase the property under the agreement.¹³⁰

II—Mode of Transfer by Sale[s 54.19] Mode of Transfer

There are only two modes of transfer by sale, and these are (1) registered instrument; and (2) delivery of possession.

The first overlaps the second, for a transfer may in all cases be made by a registered instrument. It is only in the case of tangible immovable property of value less than 100, that the section allows the simpler alternative of delivery of possession. In all other cases, a registered instrument is compulsory.¹³¹ The option of a simpler alternative is allowed in the case of tangible immovable property of value less than ₹100, because the formality of a registered instrument is not considered necessary in view of the small value, and the patent evidence of the transfer afforded by the delivery of physical possession.¹³² Sale of such property would be complete as soon as delivery of possession is proved either on the basis of an unregistered instrument of sale or otherwise.¹³³

54. Sale defined.—

The Supreme Court while discussing Uttar Pradesh Municipality Act held that unless a statute itself provides for vesting and transfer of immovable property from one person to other by acquisition or like, the question of transfer of ownership of property in the water works from the licensee to the Board could not have taken place, even if such work had been forcibly taken over, or the possession of the same had been given to the Board voluntarily by the licensee.¹³⁴

[s 54.20] Registration

The Registration Act, 1908, does not distinguish between tangible and intangible immovable property, and makes registration optional in the case of all immovable property of value less than ₹100. Under the said Act, a sale of intangible immovable property can only be made by a registered instrument, whatever the value of such property may be; and a sale of tangible immovable property, though of a value less than ₹100, must also be effected by a registered instrument, unless it is effected by delivery of possession.

It is significant to note that section 54 comprehends the value of the property, as distinguished from the purported consideration of alienation, and, therefore, even if the property worth more than ₹100 is transferred for a consideration of less than ₹100, it cannot be done without a registered document.¹³⁵

In terms of section 54 of the TP Act, 1882 as amended by Uttar Pradesh Act 2 of 1997, a contract of sale can be made only by registered instrument. The use of expression “only” here indicates that under law, contract to sale has got to be entered into by a registered instrument.¹³⁶ Where the sale deed requires registration, title does not pass until the sale deed is registered, even though the transfer of possession as well as payment of consideration takes place before registration of the document.¹³⁷ Since sale of immovable property becomes complete and effective only when it stands registered in a written instrument, there may be issues for determination of the market value of the property where the land also has a building over it, but the owner of the land does not own the building. Both the title in the land and in the building over the land are separable and vest in two different persons. In Ashok Kumar v Chief Controlling Revenue Authority,¹³⁸ the owner sold the land. The land had a hotel constructed over it and the owner of the land was not the owner of this hotel. It was held that while affixing stamps, the value of the land only would be included and not that of the hotel. Further, in such a sale of land, the title with respect to the land only will pass and not in the property constructed over the land, as the owner had no title in the hotel.

Ordinarily, the sale deed which was registered first has to prevail in the matter of conveyance of title over others.¹³⁹ The title under a sale deed passes on the date of the execution of the sale deed, even if the registration of the sale deed is completed on a later date, it must relate back to the date of sale.¹⁴⁰ Therefore, an agreement to sell executed prior to date of attachment before judgment, but registered thereafter, would prevail over such attachment.¹⁴¹ In a conveyance of land situated in one registration district, the inclusion of one yard of land in another registration district for the purpose of giving jurisdiction to the registering authority of the latter district and without any intention to convey that one yard of land, is a device to evade the registration law, and does not constitute an effective registration and, therefore, no property passes.¹⁴² The onus to prove that fraud on law of registration has been practised is on the party who alleges it.¹⁴³

If immovable as well as movable property is sold for a single consideration by an unregistered deed, the sale is ineffectual not only as to the immovable, but also as to the movable property. This is because the document embodies only one transaction, and there is no separate transaction concerning the movable property.¹⁴⁴ Where the original registered sale deed is lost, secondary evidence to prove registration, and the contents of the deed would be admissible.¹⁴⁵

54. Sale defined.—

Under Uttar Pradesh Selling of Property (Temporary Restriction of Transfer) Act, the law requires permission to be taken by the vendor by applying to the concerned authority, but such authority shall have discretion to grant or refuse the sanction, and it is immaterial that the agreement between the parties did not contain such terms as obliging the seller to take permission.¹⁴⁶

[s 54.21] Transfer by Operation of Law

Transfers by operation of law,¹⁴⁷ or by or in execution of a decree or order of a court within the meaning of section 2(d) are outside the scope of section 54, and need not be registered. Thus where the property is sold at a court auction, a certificate of sale issued by the court is enough as the purchaser's document of title.¹⁴⁸

[s 54.22] No other Mode of Transfer

The provisions of this section as to modes of transfer, i.e., (1) by registered instrument; and (2) by delivery of possession, are exhaustive; and a sale cannot be effected in any other way.¹⁴⁹ Title to land cannot pass under an oral sale,¹⁵⁰ or by mere admission when the statute requires a deed,¹⁵¹ or by an unregistered sale deed accompanied by a money receipt stating the sale amount was in lieu of purchase of land.¹⁵² An agreement of sale is not a document of transfer, nor by reason of execution of a power of attorney, can the right, title or interest of an immovable property be transferred.¹⁵³ Transaction in the nature of General Power of Attorney sales or sale agreements/Will do not convey title and do not amount to transfer, nor can they be recognized as valid modes of transfer of immovable property. The courts will not treat such transactions as completed or concluded transfers or as conveyances as they neither convey title nor create any interest in an immovable property. They cannot be recognized as deeds of title except to the limited extent of section 53A of the TP Act, 1882. Such transaction cannot be relied upon or made the basis for mutation in Municipal or revenue records. This rule applies not only to deeds of conveyance in regard to freehold property but also to transfer of leasehold property. A lease can be validly transferred only under a registered assignment of lease.¹⁵⁴ The Privy Council, referring to the transfer of a zamindari estate, said that it could not be transferred except by registered instrument, and that recitals in deeds and in petitions to officials could not amount to a transfer,¹⁵⁵ and in a later case referred to the mischievous, but persistent error that proceedings for the mutation of names could affect proprietary rights.¹⁵⁶

[s 54.23] Where the Act is Not in Force

In Punjab, where the TP Act, 1882 was not in force, an oral sale was valid in all cases.¹⁵⁷ The English rule that the contract makes the intending purchaser the equitable owner was also followed.¹⁵⁸ Similarly, in the old Gwalior state, where the section was not in force, it was held that the rules contained therein were merely procedural.¹⁵⁹ When a document is executed, it must be registered.¹⁶⁰

Paragraphs 2 and 3 of section 54 have been in force within the limits of all municipalities in Punjab since 27 April 1935,¹⁶¹ and throughout Punjab since 1 April 1955.¹⁶²

[s 54.24] Ownership when Transferred in Cases of Registration

Property does not pass, in other words, ownership is not transferred until registration is affected.¹⁶³ By reason of section 47 of Registration Act, 1908, however, the title relates back to the date of execution for the purposes of priority, once registration is affected.¹⁶⁴ The ownership under sale deed passes on the date of the execution of the sale deed, irrespective of the date of registration,¹⁶⁵ unless there is a contrary intention depicted in the contract,¹⁶⁶ but in absence of registration, ownership issues cannot be decided merely from the date of execution of the sale deeds.¹⁶⁷ So, a registered sale deed will not be defeated by another deed executed later, but registered earlier.¹⁶⁸ And if a deed is registered after a suit has been filed, the transfer will not be subject to lis pendens if the deed was executed before the suit was filed.¹⁶⁹

A suit for pre-emption, which can only be filed after the completion of a sale, was held to be premature when it was filed after the deed was executed and lodged for registration, but before the registration was complete; this decision was based on the argument that as the document required registration, the transaction of sale could only be said to be complete when the registration formalities were complete.¹⁷⁰ As regards the word “ownership”, the Supreme Court has held that the word must be assigned a wider meaning in section 32(1) of the Income Tax Act, 1961. A “building owned by the assessee” used in the Income Tax Act would mean the person who having acquired possession over the building, in his own right uses the same for the purposes of the business or profession though a legal title has not been conveyed to him consistently with the requirements of TP Act, 1882, Registration Act, etc., but nevertheless is entitled to hold the property to the exclusion of all others.¹⁷¹

54. Sale defined.—

[s 54.24.1] Cancellation of sale deed, whether permissible

Where property is transferred by way of sale and the vendor divests himself of his ownership of the property, he retains no control or right over the said property. Thus the owner upon execution and registration loses completely his rights and the purchaser becomes its absolute owner. Such transfer cannot be annulled or cancelled unilaterally by vendor by executing a deed of cancellation¹⁷² nor by consent or agreement between purchaser and vendor. Such deed of cancellation cannot be accepted for registration. The power to cancel the deed vests only with a court and can be ordered under section 31 of the Specific Relief Act.¹⁷³ Where A, managed to get the sale deed executed from B, fraudulently making him believe that the papers/documents he was signing were to enable him to get him grants distributed from the government to leprosy patients, which B successfully proved in court, the order for cancellation of the sale deed would be proper.¹⁷⁴

Under section 68 of the Andhra Pradesh Registration Rules 1960, rule 26 (i) (k) (i) proviso the registrar is empowered to pass orders for ex-parte cancellation of the sale deed. The provision empowers the registrar to be presented with deed of cancellation of earlier deed of conveyance on behalf of the state. No prior notice to the parties to the deed is required under the said proviso and the sub registrar is the competent authority to register unilateral deed of cancellation of the earlier registered deed. This ex-parte registration of deed of cancellation by the sub registrar would be valid.¹⁷⁵

[s 54.25] Intention the True Test

The real test is the intention of the parties. In order to constitute a “sale”, the parties must intend to transfer the ownership of the property, and they must also intend that the price would be paid either in praesenti or in future. The intention is to be gathered from the recital in the sale deed, the conduct of the parties, and the evidence on record.¹⁷⁶ On the other hand, it does not follow that property passes as soon as the instrument is registered, for the true test is the intention of the parties.¹⁷⁷ Registration is prima facie proof of an intention to transfer, but it is no proof of an operative transfer if there is a condition precedent (which must be strictly proved) as to payment of consideration or delivery of the deed. Thus, the seller may retain the deed pending payment of price, and in that case there is no transfer until the price is paid, and the deed delivered.¹⁷⁸ The words “price paid or promised” in the definition show that the payment of price is not necessarily a sine qua non to the completion of the sale.¹⁷⁹

A combined reading of section 8 and section 54 of the TP Act, 1882 suggests that though on execution and registration of a sale deed, the ownership and all interests in the property pass to the transferee, yet that would be on terms and conditions embodied in the deed indicating the intention of the party. Such intention can be gathered by intrinsic evidence, namely, from the averments on the sale deed itself, or by other attending circumstances subject, of course to the provision of section 92 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872.¹⁸⁰ Where, according to the terms of the deed, title was not to pass to the vendee on execution and registration of the deed, but was to pass only on exchange of equivalents, then title would not pass on execution of the deed.¹⁸¹

In a Patna case, according to the agreement, the title did not pass at the time of execution and registration, but was to pass when the vendee paid the balance of the consideration to the vendor. The title, it was held, will pass on tender of the balance within reasonable time, irrespective of the refusal of the vendor to receive the money. The vendor had no option in the matter.¹⁸² The answer to the question whether the transferor intends to transfer ownership by mere execution or registration, or whether he intends to do so only after receipt of consideration, would depend on the intention of the parties. The intention is primarily to be determined from the recitals of the sale deed, it is only when the recitals are ambiguous that extraneous evidence is admissible.¹⁸³ The deed may expressly provide that the sale will be void, unless the balance of price is paid in a fixed time.¹⁸⁴ However, if the intention was that the transfer should take effect on registration, property passes although the seller has not given possession,¹⁸⁵ or the buyer has not paid the price.¹⁸⁶ In Kondu v Vishnu,¹⁸⁷ a contract of sale was registered, and it provided that on certain conditions being fulfilled it should operate as a sale-deed. The buyer took possession under the contract, and it was held to operate as a conveyance, and passed property to him as soon as he had fulfilled the conditions. Where the property stood transferred by a genuine registered GPA sale/conveyance to transferee, as it was no longer the property of transferor, it cannot be attached as against judgement debtor.¹⁸⁸

54. Sale defined.—

In some cases, the document of a sale deed may be termed differently, yet would operate as a sale deed. In Udai Sapkota v Laxmi Prasad Sapkota,¹⁸⁹ document used the words “Chinti Bikri”. This was a Nepali Term that meant a complete sale. The content of the document stated that the seller was giving a written money receipt, after finally selling the dry field and that he shall register the land. It was held that the document would be a sale deed and not merely a money receipt. In the context of an agreement for sale of a flat, where the receipt did not contain a covenant to the effect that any formal Agreement to Sell would have to be executed, even a document styled as a “Receipt”, can operate and be enforceable as a contract.¹⁹⁰

[s 54.26] Sham and Void Transaction

A fictitious and void transaction would not convey a valid title. A sale deed executed at the time of the nikhah, by the bridegroom in favour of the bride's father at his request for enhancing his status without any money payment, would be fictitious.¹⁹¹ In a case decided by Orissa High Court,¹⁹² the deed was badly drafted, which did not clearly convey title to the vendee. Terms regarding consideration and vendee's title were all intermingled and possession of the property and also the documents remained with the executant. It was held that there was no sale. However, in another case,¹⁹³ where the power of attorney holder of the vendor admitted that execution of sale deed was only for defrauding creditors, it was held that such sale would be binding in view of section 43, and is not null and void. A sale by the power of attorney holder of the vendor to his sons is not a bona fide transfer when neither the general power of attorney was executed by the vendor, nor any amount was paid in presence of the Sub-Registrar.¹⁹⁴ Similarly, where the power of attorney, an affidavit and the receipt did not contain any date and neither the defendant, nor any of the witnesses produced by him were able to identify the photograph of the deceased allottee or give any description with regard to his physical characteristics, such as complexion, features, age etc. or provide any explanation to the failure to obtain the original letter of allotment, which would be the document of title, at the time of purchase, it was held that the transaction was a sham.¹⁹⁵ Again where the handwriting and fingerprint expert found dissimilarity in disputed and specimen thumb impression, it was held that sale deed was executed by an imposter and hence, is null and void,¹⁹⁶ but a sale of property worth more than ₹10 lakhs for a mere ₹4.60 lakhs would not be a sham sale, when the sale was coupled with a covenant that the vendee would purchase the property, subject to his accepting the onerous responsibility to evict the tenant occupying the property, and get vacant possession.¹⁹⁷

The party committing the breach may doubtless incur the liability to be punished for the breach committed by it but the sale by itself may remain valid as between the parties to the transaction subject only to any directions which the competent Court may issue in the suit against the vendor.¹⁹⁸

[s 54.26.1] Proof of execution

The execution of a sale deed in cases of conflict and doubts, can be testified by the witnesses. In Udai Sapkota v Laxmi Prasad Sapkota,¹⁹⁹ the scribe entered the witness box and testified the contents of the document and verified the same along with the son of the executants who also unequivocally corroborated the execution of the document. It was held that execution of the sale deed was duly proved and the fact that executants himself did not testify would not be material. Mere change of purpose of sale land use would not invalidate the sale deed,²⁰⁰ but when the execution of sale deed is allegedly based on cheating, the party must bring it to the notice of the court at the earliest. The method of transfer of property i.e., acquiescence by delay and laches to be optional mode to transfer must be expressly stipulated in the contract.²⁰¹ There is a priority of mortgage over a sale made during the subsistence of the mortgage,²⁰² and likewise, a right of pre-emption recognized by

54. Sale defined.—

statute, would be treated as mandatory.²⁰³

[s 54.27] Interest that cannot be transferred

Where land is held by a person jointly with others, a transfer by him in excess of his interest is not totally invalid, but is valid to the extent of his interest in the land.²⁰⁴ A sale deed executed by a widow upon her remarriage, is liable to be set aside since as per custom of the schedule tribe to which the widow belonged, a female could hold property till her life time or till she remarried.²⁰⁵

[s 54.28] Unregistered Deed

Immovable property can be lawfully transferred/conveyed only by a registered deed of conveyance.²⁰⁶ Where the deed is not registered, there is no transfer, and property does not pass.²⁰⁷ Mere delivery of the deed will not operate as delivery of the property;²⁰⁸ nor will a recital in the sale deed of delivery of possession suffice, for such a recital might be inserted without any attempt at fulfillment.²⁰⁹ This is so even if the property is tangible immovable property of value less than ₹100.²¹⁰ However, if the unregistered deed of value less than ₹100 is accompanied by delivery of the property, the sale would be effective by virtue of delivery of possession, and would not be rendered nugatory by the unregistered deed.²¹¹ The deed would be evidence of the contract of sale or of any negotiations concerning the transaction.²¹² If a document which is not registered is part and parcel of a single transaction which is evidenced in part by a registered instrument, then the other document must also be registered. However, if the agreement to reconvey the property can be treated as a separate transaction, then under section 54, it creates no interest in the property, and need not be registered.²¹³ An unregistered deed may, under the judgment of the Privy Council in Varatha Pillai v Jeevarathammal,²¹⁴ be used as evidence of the character of possession. Twelve years' possession under an unregistered sale deed will create title by adverse possession, not only when the property is of value less than ₹100, and section 49 of the Registration Act, 1908 does not apply,²¹⁵ but also when it is of that value and over.²¹⁶ Where a sale was affected by registered instrument, other parties claimed title on the basis of an unregistered agreement, but the claim was also based on co-ownership; the claim would be sustainable.²¹⁷

Where there is no transfer of immovable property worth more than ₹100 in favour of the plaintiff by the defendant making the former owner of the property, nor was there any deed executed in his favour and the suit by the plaintiff for declaring him to be the owner is decreed and the decree is not registered under section 17 of Registration Act, the decree would be violative of section 54, TP Act, 1882. In such a case, section 2 (d) of the TP Act, 1882 does not give any protection.²¹⁸

In Davendra Singh v State of Rajasthan,²¹⁹ the land was purchased in 1950 vide an unregistered sale deed and in furtherance of such sale possession was delivered to the purchaser. It was held that though the value of the land was shown in the document as Rs 90 only, the said document was required to be registered and would therefore not be admissible in evidence. As per section 54, a document for sale of immovable property having value less than Rs 100, if written must be registered failing which the said document cannot be admitted in evidence. In determining the requirement of registration, the courts should dwell upon the issues in a proper perspective on issue of change of user of land, valuation of land and such other ancillary aspects.²²⁰ In the case of unregistered sale deeds, the priority between buyers under interest, if any created by the unregistered sale deed is that the effect of possession under the first unregistered sale deed would terminate and prejudice the second buyer.²²¹

[s 54.29] Delivery of Property

In case of tangible immovable property of a value less than ₹100, transfer may be made either by a registered document, or by delivery of possession. The delivery of possession takes place when the seller places the buyer or such person as he directs, in possession of the property.²²² This mode of transfer is only recognised in the case of tangible immovable property of small value, as delivery of possession is a patent act. Possession of land is given by going on the land, but it is not necessary to walk over the whole land.²²³ Possession of a house may be given by delivery of the keys.²²⁴ Doubtful causes can only arise when the property is already in possession of the buyer. The Calcutta High Court had held in Sibendrapada v Secy of State that in such a case an oral sale was invalid as the essence of a transfer by delivery of property is that possession is changed,²²⁵

54. Sale defined.—

the vendor, by appropriate acts and declarations, converts permissive possession into possession as a vendee.²²⁶ Similarly, where a mortgagor sold his equity of redemption of value less than ₹100 to the mortgagee in possession by pointing out the boundaries, the court said that the mortgagor had done what he could to deliver possession, and that the oral sale was valid.²²⁷ In a case,²²⁸ which was also a sale of an equity of redemption less than ₹100 in value to a mortgagee in possession, the Madras High Court held that it was sufficient that the vendor, by appropriate declaration and acts, converts the possession of the vendee as mortgagee into possession as purchaser. The judges observed that it was not the intention of the TP Act, 1882 to require sales of properties below ₹100 in value to be made by registered instrument when the vendee is in possession as a tenant. A relief for recovery of possession cannot be granted if the plaintiff fails to prove that possession of the property was delivered to him in pursuance of the execution of the sale deed and that he had applied for getting the revenue papers mutated in his name, more so as the property continued in the names of the defendants in the revenue records.²²⁹

[s 54.30] Usufructuary Mortgage

A Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court held, by a majority, that where the property was in possession of a usufructuary mortgagee, the interest of the mortgagor was tangible property, and could be transferred without a registered instrument,²³⁰ and similar views have been expressed by the Bombay,²³¹ Orissa²³² and Madras High Courts.²³³ There has, however, been a conflict as to whether, in such a case, delivery can be effected only by the mortgagee giving up possession as mortgagees, or whether possession can be delivered by the vendor doing all he can under the circumstances to indicate finally and unambiguously his intention to pass the title and the possession; Allahabad²³⁴ and Bombay²³⁵ High Courts have taken the former view; Patna²³⁶ and Orissa²³⁷ High Courts, the latter view.

[s 54.31] Oral Sale

If on the date of sale, the buyer gets possession, a delivery of possession by the seller may be inferred.²³⁸ Before, however, an oral sale can be said to have taken place, a court must be satisfied that the entire consideration has been paid, or that the possession of the property sought to be purchased has been delivered to the purchaser.²³⁹

When tangible immovable property of value less than ₹100 is delivered under an oral contract of sale, the sale is complete. No title is left in the vendor, and if he subsequently executed a registered conveyance to a third person, that person gets nothing, even though the price under the oral sale has not been paid.²⁴⁰ The necessary ingredient for completion of sale is the handing over of the properties to the purchaser. In Manickam v Chinnamma,²⁴¹ A claimed that he has purchased the property as early as in the year 1976, but did not file any scrap of paper to show that he was put in possession, patta changed in his name and he paid the kist and that his name finds place in the Adangal. The sale was held as invalid.

[s 54.32] Delivery Plus Unregistered Sale Deed

In the case of tangible immovable property worth less than ₹100, if the transfer is not made by delivery, there must be a registered sale deed. An unregistered deed would be invalid, and would not operate as constructive delivery.²⁴² However, if there is delivery, it is, as already stated, not rendered nugatory by the existence of an unregistered deed.²⁴³ But the delivery need not be contemporaneous with the unregistered deed; it may take place sometime later.²⁴⁴

[s 54.33] Oral Evidence

In a case,²⁴⁵ Madras High Court had observed that the execution of an unregistered sale deed invalidated the oral sale by delivery, as the deed excluded evidence of the agreement of sale. However, this has been dissented from by the Patna High Court,²⁴⁶ and it has been held that a sale deed though not registered is admissible as evidence of the contract of sale.²⁴⁷ This is now made clear with reference to certain suits by the proviso inserted in section 49 of the Registration Act by Act 21 of 1929. Even if the property were worth more than ₹100 so that there could be no oral sale, the vendee in possession under an unregistered sale deed would be protected from dispossession by the doctrine of part performance enacted in section 53A; but such an unregistered deed would not support a suit on title.²⁴⁸

54. Sale defined.—

III—Contract for Sale[s 54.34] Contract for Sale

An Agreement to sell does not create an interest in the proposed vendee in the suit property,²⁴⁹ but only creates an enforceable right in the parties.²⁵⁰ An “agreement for sale” is not the same as “sale”, and the title to the property agreed to be sold, still vests in the vendor in case of an agreement for sale, but in the case of sale, title of the property vests with the purchaser. An “agreement for sale” is an executory contract, whereas “sale” is an executed contract. In all agreements for sale, the two most important conditions would be the date of payment of price, and date of delivery of possession of the property.²⁵¹ An agreement for sale of property, and a promise to transfer a property convey the same meaning and effect in law. A promise to transfer a property is an agreement for sale of a property.²⁵² A contract for the sale of immovable property differs from a contract for the sale of goods, in that the court will grant specific performance of it, unless special reasons to the contrary are shown.²⁵³ An agreement to sell if unregistered can be admitted in evidence for collateral purposes in a suit for specific performance.²⁵⁴ With respect to the admissibility of unregistered sale deeds executed in 1960 and 1963 respectively having value of the property as more than Rs 100/, the same would not be admissible in evidence and even for collateral purposes the sale deeds would not be permitted to be received in evidence.²⁵⁵ The definition of contract for sale includes the settlement of the terms between the parties as one of the essentials for completion of a contract.²⁵⁶ It is not within the competence of the guardian of a minor to bind the minor by a contract for the purchase of land; and as there is want of mutuality, the minor on attaining majority cannot obtain specific performance of the contract.²⁵⁷ Otherwise, a contract for the sale of land is subject to the general rules applicable to all contracts; and this and other sections of the TP Act, 1882 are taken as part of the India Contract Act, 1872. There is no requirement of law that an agreement or contract of sale of immovable property should only be in writing. If it is in writing but not signed by the purchaser it does not mean that there is no concluded contract.²⁵⁸ However, heavy burden lies on the party relying on an oral agreement to prove that there was consensus ad idem the parties for a concluded oral agreement for sale of immovable property, and that vital and fundamental terms for sale of immovable property were concluded between the parties orally and a written agreement, if any, to be executed subsequently would be a formal agreement incorporating the terms already settled by the oral agreement.²⁵⁹ Where the agreement of sale is reduced to writing and is coupled with delivery of possession of property in part performance of the contract, rights are created under the agreement and such document requires compulsory registration. Even such agreement of sale would partake the character of conveyance amenable to stamp duty.²⁶⁰ A contract for sale by a minor is void, but a contract for sale to a minor is valid. The note under section 6(h), “Minor as transferee”, deals with this aspect. Incidents peculiar to the sale of land are subject to section 55.

[s 54.35] Does Not of Itself Create any Interest

The law of India does not recognize equitable estates,²⁶¹ and the English rule that the contract makes the purchaser owner in equity of the estate, does not apply.²⁶² In Rambaran v Ram Mohit,²⁶³ the Supreme Court settling a conflict of decisions, has held that a contract for sale does not create any interest in land.²⁶⁴ Hence, apart from section 53A, “an averment of the existence of a contract of sale, whether with or without an averment or possession following upon the contract, is not a relevant defence to an action for ejectment in India”.²⁶⁵ Mere existence of a contract of sale would not confer a title on buyer and thus any charge or attachment created over property of seller prior to contract of sale would stand with priority over and above transfer of property.²⁶⁶ A person who has contracted to buy land is not the owner of any interest in the land and is, therefore, not competent to apply to set aside an execution sale of the same land.²⁶⁷ Similarly, he is not entitled to mesne profits.²⁶⁸ It has also been held that even after a decree has been passed in a suit for specific performance, the purchaser has no interest in the property.²⁶⁹ Section 54 of the TP Act, 1882 specifically provides that the contract of sale does not, of itself create any interest in or charge on immovable property which is subject matter of contract of sale.²⁷⁰ A person having an agreement to sell in his favour does not get any right in the property, except the right of litigation on that basis.²⁷¹ In the absence of registered sale deed, nobody can call himself as owner by purchase on the basis of agreement to sell, and the power of attorney executed by the alleged vendor in favour of the prospective purchaser cum attorney.²⁷² As by reason of an agreement for sale, no interest in an immovable property is created, the question of transfer of any interest thereby would not arise and, therefore, the prohibition of alienation created under section 4 of the Andhra Pradesh Vacant Lands in Urban Areas (Prohibition of Alienation) Act, 1972 would not apply to such a transaction.²⁷³

Where a landholder is prohibited from transferring the land with effect from a certain date under the local tenancy Act, a transfer of the land subsequent to that date is void. The fact that agreements for the sale of such land were entered into before the specified date, is of no consequence, as such agreements do not create any right or interest in the property.²⁷⁴ Where property agreed to be sold was compulsorily acquired, the vendee sued for specific performance of the contract; it was held that he was not even entitled to the compensation awarded in respect of such property.²⁷⁵

54. Sale defined.—

A contract for sale is, therefore, merely a document creating a right to obtain another document, and does not require registration.²⁷⁶ As a contract for sale is not the same as a sale and is not required to be compulsorily registered and title remains with the vendor, but if an agreement of sale is coupled with delivery of possession in part performance of conveyance rights created under this document requires compulsory registration as this agreement of sale partakes the character of a conveyance and would require both registration and stamp duty.²⁷⁷ Where the Registrar of Assurances declined to register the sale deed, executed in favour of the nominee of a party in whose favour the contract for sale was earlier made and who had signed the sale deed as a confirming party on the ground that the confirming party had acquired some interest in the land and ought to file income-tax clearance certificate as provided under section 230-A of the Income-Tax Act, 1961, it was held that since the confirming party was not the owner of the property, and had not acquired any right, title or interest in the property, on the strength of mere agreement to sell the property, the question of his obtaining income tax clearance certificate under section 230-A of the Income Tax Act did not at all arise.²⁷⁸

Where the contract is for the sale of unascertained goods, namely trees that were neither identified nor counted nor were in a deliverable state, the agreement in question is not a sale, but only an agreement to sell and the requisite permission from various departments could be obtained only by the owners.²⁷⁹

The concept of two classes of ownership—legal and equitable—is alien to Indian law, which recognises only one owner. The equitable doctrine of English law has no application in India.²⁸⁰ However, many of the English equitable principles have taken statutory form in India. From the ultimate paragraph of section 54, and the ultimate and penultimate paragraphs of section 40, it is clear that though a contract for the sale of immovable property does not create an interest in, or a charge on, the property, it creates an obligation annexed to the ownership of the property, which may be enforced against a transferee without notice or a voluntary transferee.²⁸¹

[s 54.36] Agreement to sell and suit for specific performance

Since an agreement to sell is primarily a contract between two parties, they must follow the terms and conditions laid down in the contract and if after entering into a contract for sale of property, the seller without any reasonable excuse avoids executing a sale deed, the buyer can proceed to the court and file a suit for specific performance of the contract. The court would award his suit and direct the seller to execute a sale deed in his favour. But for that it must be established by the buyer, that he has fulfilled his part of the bargain, be it payment of price or any other condition. In addition he must state the facts clearly and truthfully before the court. His intentions must be bonafide. In a suit for specific performance of alleged agreement of sale, the admission of unregistered sale deed as evidence is allowed.²⁸² Whether an agreement of sale concluded or remained an offer is a question of fact. When an agreement deed is executed whereby the seller agrees to sell immovable property to buyer for consideration, and the buyer pays the consideration in part, it would be a concluded contract of sale. If either he is not ready and willing to perform his part of the bargain or he wants execution of sale deed after stipulating some conditions that did not form part of the agreement to sell, or misquotes the terms of the agreement and set up a false claim merely to create a basis for specific performance such as that the land would be converted into Lal Dora and that the payment of the balance amount was to be dependent on such event, he would not be entitled to a decree of specific performance.²⁸³ In an agreement to sell and a decree for specific performance of the contract, the contract between parties is not extinguished upon passing of the decree, and this passing of the decree does not modify or abrogate any of the express or implied terms of the contract. Parties to the contract continue to bear the rights and obligations to complete the contract in accordance with the terms and conditions of the contract. It does not confer an indefeasible right upon the decree holder to get the property straightway in his own name as the decree for specific performance merely recognizes the claim for specific performance of contract. The Court shall presume unless and until the contrary is proved that breach of contract to transfer immovable property cannot be adequately relieved by compensation in money. This presumption is a rebuttable one.²⁸⁴ The consequences of an agreement to sell includes the creation of right in respect of the property being sold in favour of vendee when the agreement to sell had been executed in favour of a person, he gets right to get that property transferred in his favour by filing a suit of specific performance.²⁸⁵

54. Sale defined.—

In Mohd Hafizullah v Javed Akhtar,²⁸⁶ an agreement to sell the property was executed by A, B and C, in favour of X and Y. The property comprised of a residential house and the share of all three sellers constituted 3/4th of the house. 1/4th was under the ownership of W. She prayed that the buyers be directed to purchase her share as well, as nobody else would be interested to buy virtually an undivided small share in a house. The court granted her prayer and directed that she be permitted to sell her share to either X or Y or to their nominee. W was approached by Q as the nominee of X and Y but offered to purchase the share of W in her own right and not as a nominee of X/Y. The property was sold to her. When X and Y came to know that the property had been sold to somebody else, without informing them, they approached the court for cancellation of the sale deed in favour of Q as the same according to them was procured by fraud and for a suit for specific performance of the contract of sale in their favour. Upholding their claim, the court ordered for cancellation of the sale deed executed by W in favour of Q as the same was procured by fraud and without giving any notice to X and Y, and decreed specific performance in favour of X and Y.

When a decree for specific performance of agreement of sale of immovable property is passed in favour of transferee under prior contract for sale, resulting in cancellation of sale with subsequent purchaser, seller cannot retain sale consideration received from subsequent purchaser.²⁸⁷

[s 54.37] Adverse Possession

Even after the contract to sell, title clearly resides in the vendor, and even though the proposed vendee has taken possession, his possession is under the contract and is, therefore, clearly permissive. In Achal Reddy v Ramakrishna Reddiar,²⁸⁸ the Supreme Court held that: "In the case of an agreement of sale, the party who obtains possession acknowledges title of the vendor even though the agreement of sale may be invalid. It is an acknowledgement and recognition of the title of the vendor which excludes the theory of adverse possession... Adverse possession implies that it commenced in wrong and is maintained against right. When the commencement and continuance of possession is legal and proper, referable to a contract, it cannot be adverse." Supreme Court has further held in *Thakur Kishan Singh v Arvind Kumar*²⁸⁹ that mere possession for howsoever length of time does not result in converting the permissive possession into adverse possession. In Roop Singh v Ram Singh,²⁹⁰ the Supreme Court has gone a step further, and held that once it is admitted by implication that the plaintiff came in possession of the land lawfully under the agreement and continued to remain in possession till the date of the suit, the plea of adverse possession would not be available to the defendant, unless it has been asserted and pointed out that hostile animus of retaining possession as an owner after getting possession of the land existed.

In a suit for declaration, possession and permanent injunction on the grounds of adverse possession, A claimed uninterrupted possession of the property on the basis of an unregistered sale deed executed in 1951, in his favour by the owner B. Such possession was not denied by B at the time of suo moto eviction proceedings under Orissa Regulation 2 of 1956 and thereafter as well. B pleaded that A had taken advantage of his drunken position and sought permission to construct shops and lease them out, but did not plead any forgery. In light of the fact that there was no evidence of any compelling circumstance or situation demanding such construction, absence of any terms of such construction and possession, and the fact that there was no close relation between A and B, presumption as regards the nature of possession of A would arise as that of the owner and he would be entitled to a declaratory order.²⁹¹

[s 54.38] Attachment

There was a conflict of decision as to whether the obligation created by a contract for sale will prevail over claims enforceable under an attachment.²⁹² The matter is, however, set at rest by the Supreme Court holding that a sale deed having been executed prior to attachment before judgment, though registered subsequently,

54. Sale defined.—

will prevail over attachment before judgment.²⁹³ The Supreme Court has gone even to the extent of holding that not only a sale deed, but even an agreement of sale will prevail over attachment before judgment made subsequent to such agreement of sale.²⁹⁴

[s 54.39] Equities of Person Contracting to Buy

If the transaction is still in the stage of contract, the buyer, even if he has paid the price or part of the price and even if he has taken possession, is not the owner, and the property is still in the seller. However, these circumstances may give rise to equities in favour of the buyer. A buyer who has paid the price or part of the price in anticipation of a conveyance is entitled under section 55(6)(b) to a charge on the property for the amount paid. If the contract is still capable of specific performance, the buyer may file a suit for specific performance, and complete his title. If the buyer is in possession in pursuance of the contract, he is protected from dispossession by the right enacted in section 53A. However, if section 53A does not apply, “an averment of the existence of a contract of sale, whether with or without possession following upon the contract”, is not a defence to an action for ejectment in India.²⁹⁵ It has, however, been held that though a contract of sale does not, of itself, create an interest in property, there is transfer of ownership, when, in addition, a part of the purchase price has also been paid.²⁹⁶ This decision, it is submitted, is not correct, for ownership can pass only on registration or delivery of possession.

[s 54.40] Estoppel

An admission that land has been sold will not operate as an estoppel so as to do away with the necessity for a registered conveyance.²⁹⁷ Title to land will not pass by mere admission when the Act requires a conveyance.²⁹⁸ However, it has been held that section 54 has no application when there is clear evidence that following the contract for sale, the proposed purchaser was put into physical possession, and he continued to do so uninterruptedly till execution of sale deed and formal delivery.²⁹⁹

The recitals in the documents are binding on the persons party to the document. In Surendra V K v V K Thimmaiah,³⁰⁰ decided by the Supreme Court, late Kunnaiah had sold some properties at Hoskote under a registered sale deed, where the reason for sale of the said lands was mentioned as that to discharge the loan borrowed by him for the purpose of purchasing the lands at Kaikere Village and to improve the lands. The properties at Hoskote were belonging to his grandfather Thimmaiah. In this background the High Court had rightly held that the properties purchased by Kunnaiah at Kaikere Village out of the money received by him from the sale of the ancestral lands, are the ancestral properties. The High Court held that the recitals in the document are binding on the parties and it was not open for any party to say that the said properties are self-acquired properties of late Kunnaiah. This view was upheld by the Supreme Court.

The unilateral self-serving recitals in a Sale Deed, in the facts of the case, cannot be construed as conclusive, according to Patna High Court.³⁰¹

[s 54.41] Mahomedan Law

The exception in favour of rules of Mahomedan law in section 2(d) only refers to such rules as differ from the general rules contained in chapter II. However, section 54 occurs in chapter III and, therefore, applies to Mahomedans.³⁰² Under the Mahomedan law rule, the execution of an instrument of sale is in no case necessary and the sale becomes absolute on payment of price and delivery of possession,³⁰³ but the section renders this rule obsolete where the TP Act, 1882 is in force. In cases where the Mahomedan right of pre-emption is claimed, there was a conflict of judicial opinion³⁰⁴ as to whether the right arises when the sale is complete under Mahomedan law, or only when it is complete under the provisions of this section. The rule generally applied was that it was the intention of the parties which determined the system of law applicable, and the date when the sale can be said to be complete;³⁰⁵ and this rule had been approved by the Privy Council.³⁰⁶ The Supreme Court has,³⁰⁷ however, concluded the question and held that if the TP Act, 1882 was in force, no sale could be said to be complete, unless the provisions of section 54 were complied with, regardless of the intention of the parties. There was no justification for importing any rule of personal law to override the express provisions of the TP Act, 1882.

54. Sale defined.—

The transaction called the hiba-bil-iwaz may³⁰⁸ or may not³⁰⁹ be a sale depending upon the facts and circumstances of the case. A hiba-bil-iwaz by which a Mahomedan transfers property to his wife in satisfaction of dower debt, is not a sale.³¹⁰ A dower debt being a debt payable by husband to wife, a gift in lieu of dower debt cannot be held to be valid, inasmuch as repayment of dower debt being consideration, no property can be transferred by way of a gift in lieu thereof.³¹¹ Where it amounts to a sale, if the property is immovable property of the value of ₹100 or upwards, it must be effected by a registered instrument.³¹²

[s 54.42] Reconveyance

In a sale coupled with an agreement to re-convey, there is no relation of debtor and creditor, nor is the price charged upon the property is conveyed, but the sale is subject to an obligation to re-transfer the property within the period specified. Distinction between mortgage by conditional sale, and sale with condition to re-convey is the relationship of debtor and creditor, and the transfer being a security for the debt.³¹³ An option to re-purchase is a privilege or concession,³¹⁴ because option by its very nature is dependent entirely on the volition of the person granted the option. He may or may not exercise it. Its exercise cannot be compelled by the person granting the option. It is because of this one-sidedness or “unilaterality” that the right is strictly construed.³¹⁵ A total absence of a clause of reconveyance in the sale deed would lead to an inference of it being an outright sale.³¹⁶

It is well-settled that time is an essence of the contract in the case of a re-conveyance.³¹⁷ An agreement of sale even though described as a re-conveyance, does not by itself mean that it is an option to repurchase, nor does it in any way alter the substance of the deed. It merely records a historical fact—that the property which is to be sold was being purchased by the person who used to be the owner. The agreement remains an agreement for sale of immovable property, and must be governed by the same provisions of law.³¹⁸

It is true that it is customary to include a recital regarding the agreement of re-conveyance in the sale deed itself. However, where there was an agreement preceding the sale deed and that agreement contained such a clause, and a sale deed, was executed consequent thereto, the absence of reference to the agreement of re-conveyance in the sale deed would not lead to the inference that the said right was given up by the plaintiff, executant of sale deed. Unless there is a detailed plea, and also evidence that before execution of the sale deed there was novation, and parties expressly agreed to give a go-bye to the agreement of re-conveyance, no contrary presumption can be drawn.³¹⁹ In another case, the question arose about the genuineness of the document of a re-conveyance in respect of two properties, before the Supreme Court. The sale deed did not contain any stipulation about the re-conveyance, however subsequent deed for re-conveyance was executed by the agent of the purchaser. The seller expressed the absence of stipulation of re-conveyance in the sale deed as per the advice given by their legal advisor. Further, the existence of re-conveyance deed was supported by a letter returned by seller to the purchaser, besides the parties re-conveyed one of the two properties within the time limit fixed under the deed of re-conveyance, and for the same amount as stipulated in the re-conveyance deed. It was held that the re-conveyance deed was genuine.³²⁰ In D R Rathna Murthy v Ramappa,³²¹ after the execution of the sale deed, a clause relating to reconveyance was inserted without the knowledge of the buyer in unusual manner to convert the character of the deed. On the issue of the validity of the reconveyance clause, the court said that in determination of whether a sale is absolute or conditional, the Act provides the complete code in property law and held that the deed would continue to remain an absolute sale and the reconveyance clause inserted post execution of an absolute sale fraudulently would be totally invalid. In another case, it was found that the sale deed was in reality not an outright sale, but an anomalous mortgage, and the agreement to sell is in reality a supplement to the anomalous mortgage. It was agreed between the mortgagors of the one side and the mortgagee on the other that the amount of loan would carry interest at the rate of 18% per annum, and in pursuance of which agreement the possession of the suit property was delivered to mortgagee, and it was further agreed between them that after completion of five years, the accounts would be settled and on payment of balance amount, if any, the mortgagee would re-convey and re-deliver the possession of suit property to the mortgagors.³²² Where it was found that there was no recital in document as to whether amount paid by transferee was towards mortgage consideration or loan amount, and there was no stipulation of interest and entire property was given in possession under document to transferee, which he was continuously enjoying, and transferee got the property mutated in his name, and further transferor never exercised his right to repurchase property or offered to pay the amount back, it was held that the transaction is a simple conditional sale with a right of re-purchase, and not mortgage with conditional sale.³²³ In Rajamma v B Renuka Murthy,³²⁴ the property was agreed to be sold absolutely for family necessity and to pay family debts for a consideration of Rs 2000/ and the title and possession was delivered to the purchaser with the execution of the document with the clause in the document empowering him and his successors to enjoy the property by paying taxes to the government. At the same time the transferor and his legal representatives had no right in the property and the transferee was entitled to enter into any kind of transaction with the property including sale. The vendors also undertook to repay the entire amount within five years and execute sale deed. The court held that this transaction was a conditional sale with an option of repurchase.

54. Sale defined.—

[s 54.43] Bonafide Purchaser

A purchaser ought to make necessary enquiry and only after being satisfied about the title of property, should he purchase the same. In Ethiraj V v Sridevi,³²⁵ the Karnataka High Court considered a case where the purchaser purchased entire property from the defendant though he was aware that the defendant was only owner of half portion of the said property and held that it is not open for the purchaser to contend that he is a bonafide purchaser.

-
- 1 As to limitation to the territorial operation of paras 2 and 3 of section 54, see section 1, supra. These paragraphs extend to every cantonment see section 287 of the Cantonments Act, 1924 (2 of 1924).
 - 2 As to limitation to the territorial operation of paras 2 and 3 of section 54, see section 1, supra. These paragraphs extend to every cantonment see section 287 of the Cantonments Act, 1924 (2 of 1924).
 - 3 Iqbal Singh v State of Haryana, (2011) 3 RCR (Civil) 365 [LNIND 2010 PNH 1903] . Surinder Pal v Rainbow Promoters Pvt Ltd, (2011) 2 RCR (Civil) 762 : (2011) 99 AIC 583 ; Ratab Bai v Basanti Bai, AIR 2008 (NOC) 1172 MP.
 - 4 Vidhyadhar v Manikrao, (1999) 3 SCC 573 [LNIND 1999 SC 260] , p 590 : AIR 1999 SC 1441 [LNIND 1999 SC 260]
 - 5 Naar Construction Pvt Ltd v UOI, (2012) 5 SCC 359 [LNIND 2012 SC 313] : LNIND 2012 SC 313 : AIR 2012 SC 2369 [LNIND 2012 SC 1211] .
 - 6 See note “Demise” under section 105.
 - 7 As per section 54 and section 105 of the Transfer of Property Act, see Residents Welfare Association, Noida v State of UP, (2009) 14 SCC 716 [LNIND 2009 SC 858] : AIR 2009 SC (Supp) 2193 : 2009 (6) Scale 94 [LNIND 2009 SC 858] : LNIND 2009 SC 858 .
 - 8 Central Finance & Housing Co v British Transport Co, (1953) All LJ 656 : AIR 1954 All 195 [LNIND 1953 ALL 135] .
 - 9 Ramlal v Phagua, (2006) 1 SCC 168 [LNIND 2005 SC 820] : AIR 2006 SC 623 [LNIND 2005 SC 820] ; Chennamal v Maniamalayalam, AIR 2005 SC 4397 [LNIND 2005 SC 819] : (2005) 13 SCC 71 [LNIND 2005 SC 819] ; Umabai v Neelakanth D Chavan, (2005) 6 SCC 243 [LNIND 2005 SC 368] : (2005) 4 JT 292 ; Shanti Devi v Nand Lal, AIR 2005 Raj. 218 : RLW 2005 (2) Raj 1249 ; Abdul Sami Qureshi v Sardar Kuldeep Singh, AIR 2008 (NOC) 840 All; Tulsi v Chandrika P Prasad, AIR 2006 SC 3359 [LNIND 2006 SC 658] : (2006) 8 SCC 322 [LNIND 2006 SC 658] ; Bhagwan Devi v Beni Bai, AIR 2006 All 251 [LNIND 2006 ALL 23] : (2006) 2 RD 164; Jankiraman v State, (2006) 1 SCC 697 [LNIND 2006 SC 12] : AIR 2006 SC 1106 [LNIND 2006 SC 12] .

54. Sale defined.—

- 10 Vitthal Maharn Patil v Fakira Bhavsing Patil, AIR 2011 (NOC) Bom 292.
- 11 D R Rathna Murthy v Ramappa, (2011) 1 SCC 158 [LNIND 2010 SC 985] : 2010 (10) Scale 625 : (2011) 4 Mad LJ 548 (SC) : 2011 MPLJ 507 (SC).
- 12 V Pechimuthu v Gowrammal, (2001) 7 SCC 617 [LNIND 2001 SC 1561] , p 626 : AIR 2001 SC 2446 [LNIND 2001 SC 1561] .
- 13 Ramdas v Sitabai, JT 2009 (8) SC 224 [LNIND 2009 SC 1367] : LNIND 2009 SC 1367 : 2009 (8)Scale 654 [LNIND 2009 SC 1367] : 2009 (5) Bom CR 290 [LNIND 2009 SC 1367] .
- 14 Jagadambai v Suresh Kumar, AIR 2017 Mad. 224 [LNIND 2017 MAD 913] : LNIND 2017 MAD 913 .
- 15 Baldev Raj Sharma v Kanta Devi, AIR 2017 P&H. 119 .
- 16 Anu Dutta v Lolit Kalita, AIR 2013 Gau 178 [LNIND 2013 GAU 298] .
- 17 See Church of Christ Charitable Trust & Educational Charitable Trust v Ponniamman Educational Trust, (2012) 8 SCC 706 [LNIND 2012 SC 381] : LNIND 2012 SC 381 : AIR 2012 SC 3912 [LNIND 2012 SC 1029] : 2012 (6) JT 149 [LNIND 2012 SC 381] ; Sarup Chand v Surjit Kaur, AIR 2002 P&H. 54 : LNIND 2001 PNH 122 .
- 18 Sachida Nand Sharma v State of Bihar, AIR 2013 Pat. 89 [LNIND 2013 PAT 595] : LNIND 2013 PAT 595 .
- 19 A Bhagyamma v Bangalore Development Authority, Bangalore, AIR 2010 Kant. 63 [LNIND 2009 KANT 90] : 2009 (4) Kant LJ 509 : LNIND 2009 KANT 90 .
- 20 State of MP v Rakesh Kohli, (2012) 6 SCC 312 [LNIND 2012 SC 326] : AIR 2012 SC 2351 [LNIND 2012 SC 326] : LNIND 2012 SC 326 : 2012 (5) Scale 467 [LNIND 2012 SC 326] .
- 21 Aqeel Ahmad v Mohd Moin, AIR 2014 (NOC) 303 All : 2014 (1) All LJ 719 : 2014 (1) Ren CR (Rent) 298.
- 22 Husna Bano v Munni Bano, AIR 2013 Cal 111 [LNIND 2013 CAL 121] : LNIND 2013 CAL 121 : 2013 (3) ICC 510.
- 23 K Sivanandam v Maragathammal, AIR 2013 Mad. 30 [LNIND 2012 MAD 1767] : 2012 (3) Mad LW 674 [LNIND 2012 MAD 1767] : LNIND 2012 MAD 1767 .
- 24 V Ethiraj v S Sridevi, AIR 2014 Kant. 58 [LNIND 2013 KANT 370] : LNIND 2013 KANT 370 : 2014 (1) Kant LJ 273 [LNIND 2013 KANT 370] .
- 25 Harminder Khullar v Swaran Kant Juneja, AIR 2014 (NOC) 6 Del : LNIND 2013 DEL 1287 : 202 (2013) DLT 222 .
- 26 Abdul Rehman v Mohd Ruldu, (2012) 11 SCC 341 [LNIND 2012 SC 597] : LNIND 2012 SC 597 : 2012 (9) Scale 582 [LNIND 2012 SC 597] .

54. Sale defined.—

- 27 Ulfat Rai v Gauri Shankar, (1911) ILR 33 All 657 : 11 IC 20; Das v Dhanja, (1916) ILR 38 All 154 : 35 IC 23; Munni Kunwar v Madan Gopal, (1916) ILR 38 All 62 : 31 IC 792; Munia v Perumal, (1911) ILR 37 Mad 390 : 26 IC 195; Subba Reddy v Guruva Reddy, 120 IC 77 : AIR 1930 Mad. 425 [LNIND 1929 MAD 182] .
- 28 Dev Kishan v Ram Kishan, AIR 2002 SC 370 , para 33.
- 29 A Bhagyamma v Bangalore Development Authority, Bangalore, AIR 2010 Kant. 63 [LNIND 2009 KANT 90] : (2009) 4 Kar LJ 509 [LNIND 2009 KANT 90] .
- 30 Lakhwinder Singh v Paramjit Kaur, AIR 2004 P&H. 6 : (2003) 135 PLR 837 .
- 31 Rajammal v Raman Kutty, AIR 1985 Mad. 222 [LNIND 1984 MAD 323] .
- 32 Jagtar Singh v State of Punjab, AIR 2012 P&H. 145 : [LNIND 2012 PNH 41] .
- 33 Naryan Mishra v Champa Dibya, AIR 1986 Ori. 53 [LNIND 1985 ORI 72] , p 56; Santoo v Jagannath, AIR 2004 All 131 .
- 34 Labanya Singh v Tapoi Singh, AIR 2003 Ori. 155 [LNIND 2003 ORI 144] , p 156.
- 35 Husna Bano v Munni Bano, AIR 2013 Cal 111 [LNIND 2013 CAL 121] .
- 36 Ram Jiwan Rai v Deoki Nandan Rai, AIR 2005 Pat. 23 : (2004) 2 BLJR 1062 : (2004) 3 Pat LJ 31 .
- 37 Sahebram Surajmal v Purushottamlal, (1950) ILR Nag 355 : AIR 1950 Ngp 89 .
- 38 Ashok Kumar v Chief Controller, Revenue Authority, UP, Allahabad, AIR 2011 All 142 [LNIND 2011 ALL 61] .
- 39 Peare Lal v Lala, (1911) 14 OC 161 : 11 IC 673; Maung Hoe Kyin v Pe Hla Gyi, 83 IC 270 : AIR 1924 Rang 267 ; Nathu v Gulabchand, 144 IC 919 : AIR 1934 Ngp 13 .
- 40 Ramasamfi v Chinnan, (1901) ILR 24 Mad 449, p 463; Mutsaddi Lal v Muhammad Hanif, (1912) 10 All LJ 167 : 15 IC 853; Rahmat Ali v Muhammad Mazhar Hussain, (1913) 11 All LJ 407 : 19 IC 818; Sheikh Hushmat v Sheikh Jamir, (1919) 23 Cal WN 513 : 52 IC 558; Ramnarain v Kula Chandra, 49 IC 426.
- 41 Ramasami Pattar v Chinnan Asari, (1901) ILR 24 Mad 449; dissenting from Subramaniam v Perumal, (1895) ILR 18 Mad 454; Mutsaddi Lal v Muhammad Hanif, (1908) 10 All LR 167 : 15 IC 853.
- 42 Sohan Lal v Mohan Lal, (1928) ILR 50 All 986 : 118 IC 117 : AIR 1923 All 726 .
- 43 See the 11th Edn, p 302.
- 44 Pheku Mian v Syed Ali, (1936) ILR 15 Pat 772 : 167 IC 890 : AIR 1937 Pat. 178 ; Puran Mahton v Bhago Mahton, AIR 1946 Pat. 81 ; Jagannath v Chhatu Sah, (1948) ILR 27 Pat 206 : AIR 1949 Pat. 504 ; Suraj Prasad v Aguta Devi, (1958) ILR 37 Pat 1577 : AIR 1959 Pat. 153 .

54. Sale defined.—

- 45 Tukaram v Atmaram, (1939) ILR Bom 71 : 40 Bom LR 1192 : 180 IC 40 : AIR 1939 Bom 31 .
- 46 Venkatasubbamma v Subbayya, AIR 1964 AP 21 [LNIND 1962 AP 143] .
- 47 Bhanwarilal v Dhulilal, (1958) ILR 8 Raj 572 : AIR 1959 Raj. 218 [LNIND 1958 RAJ 167] .
- 48 Moolla Sons Ltd v Official Assignee, Rangoon, 63 IA 340 : (1936) All LJ 832 : 38 Bom LR 1011 : 40 Cal WN 1253 : 71 Mad LJ 40 : 163 IC 418 : AIR 1936 PC 230 .
- 49 Prathima Chowdhury v Kalpana Mukherjee, AIR 2014 SC 1304 [LNIND 2014 SC 80] .
- 50 Hakim Singh v Ram Sanahi, AIR 2001 All 231 [LNIND 2001 ALL 243] : (2001) 1 All CJ 653. It was also observed that the room was constructed during the pendency of the case and tubewell was fixed on a trolley, which was movable and could be removed at any time and, therefore, there was no question of mentioning these facts in agreement to sale.
- 51 Ram Karan v State of Rajasthan, (2014) 8 SCC 282 : AIR 2014 SC 3070 : 2014 (8) Scale 233 : 2014 (7) SCJ 346 .
- 52 Topham, New Law of Real Property, 4th Edn, pp 12,13.
- 53 William and Eastwood, Principles of the Law of Real Property, p 79.
- 54 Anthya v Gattadw, AIR 1950 Hyd 38 .
- 55 Manmohan Das v Official Liquidator, (1940) ILR All 568 : (1940) All LJ 449 : 192 IC 367 : AIR 1940 All 458 .
- 56 Ananda Behera v State of Orissa, [1955] 2 SCR 919 [LNIND 1955 SC 84] : AIR 1956 SC 17 [LNIND 1955 SC 84] : [1955] SCJ 96 ; State of West Bengal v Sardiya Thakurani, AIR 1971 SC 2097 .
- 57 Bihar Eastern Gangetic Fishermen Co-operative Society Ltd v Sipahi Singh, AIR 1979 SC 2149 : [1978] 1 SCR 375 [LNIND 1977 SC 261] .
- 58 Mahadeo v State of Bombay, [1959] 2 SCR 339 (Supp) : AIR 1959 SC 735 [LNIND 1959 SC 29] : [1959] SCJ 1021 [LNIND 1959 SC 29] ; Cf Manoharlal v State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1959 MP 120 : ILR 1958 MP 864 .
- 59 Perumal v Perumal, AIR 1921 Mad. 137 ; Elumalai v Balakrishna, (1921) ILR 44 Mad 965 : 66 IC 168 : AIR 1922 Mad. 344 [LNIND 1921 MAD 65] ; Bank of Upper India v Fanny Skinner, (1929) ILR 51 All 494 : 119 IC 241 : AIR 1929 All 161 : on app 62 IA 115 : 155 IC 743 : AIR 1935 PC 108 ; Banarasi Das v Ramchander, 141 IC 421 : AIR 1933 Lah 210 ; Girdhar v Motilal Champalal, (1941) ILR Nag 615 : (1940) Nag LJ 151 : 192 IC 556 : AIR 1941 Ngp 5 .
- 60 Imperial Bank of India v Bengal National Bank, 58 IA 323 : 35 Cal WN 1034 : 54 Cal LJ 117 : (1931) All LJ 804 : 61 Mad LJ 589 : 33 Bom LR 1338 : 134 IC 651 : AIR 1931 PC 245 ; Fanny Skinner v Bank of Upper India, 62 IA 115 : 55 IC 743 : AIR 1935 PC 108 . See also note “Debts” under section 8.
- 61 Vanchalabhai Raghunath Ithape (D) by Lr v Shankarrao Baburao Bhilare (D) by Lrs, AIR 2013 SC 2924 [LNIND 2013 SC 1117] .

54. Sale defined.—

- 62 Williams v Owen, 1840 5 My & Cr 303 : English Reports 41 (Chancery) 386.
- 63 Vanchalabhai Raghunath Ithape (D) by Lr v Shankarrao Baburao Bhilare (D) by Lrs, AIR 2013 SC 2924 [LNIND 2013 SC 1117] .
- 64 Bhaskar Gopal v Padman Hira, (1916) ILR 40 Bom 313 : 33 IC 263. But see Sibendrapada v Secretary of State, (1907) ILR 34 Cal 207 where this point seems to have been overlooked.
- 65 Mansataswami v Subbia Pillai, (1911) ILR 34 Mad 64 : 6 IC 504.
- 66 Damodar Das v Girdhari Lal, (1905) ILR 27 All 564; Sharp v Key, (1841) 8 M&W 379.
- 67 Subhadrayamma v Venkatapati Raju, (1924) 47 Mad LJ 93 : 80 IC 807 : AIR 1924 PC 162 .
- 68 Kalyan v Desrani, (1927) ILR 49 All 488 : 100 IC 610 : AIR 1927 All 361 .
- 69 Abdul Wahid Khan v Shaluka Bibi, (1894) ILR 21 Cal 496 : 21 IA 26.
- 70 Jiyao Singh v Jageshar Singh, (1929) ILR 4 Luck 185 : 114 IC 755 : AIR 1929 Oudh 22 ; Badri Prasad Misir v Bijai Nand Tewari, (1932) ILR 54 All 905 : 139 IC 693 : AIR 1932 All 685 .
- 71 Bhagwan Sahai v Narsingh Sahai, (1907) ILR 31 All 612 : 3 IC 615; Kodayya v Veeranna, 92 IC 672 : AIR 1926 Mad. 543 ; Satyanarayana v Lakshmayya, (1929) 57 Mad LJ 46 : 115 IC 145 : AIR 1929 Mad. 79 .
- 72 Sital Chandra v Delanney, (1916) 20 Cal WN 1158 : 34 IC 450.
- 73 Sardara Singh v Harbhajan Singh, AIR 1974 P&H. 345 .
- 74 Ghulam Muhammad v Tek Chand, (1921) ILR 2 Lah 199 : 62 IC 932 : AIR 1921 Lah 82 .
- 75 Madan Pillai v Badrakali, AIR 1922 Mad. 311 [LNIND 1922 MAD 5] ; overruling Ariyaputhira Muthukomaraswami, (1914) ILR 37 Mad 423 : 15 IC 343.
- 76 Rajjo v Lajjo, (1928) 26 All LJ 169.
- 77 Chaudhri Talib Ali v Kaniz Fatima Begam, AIR 1927 Oudh 204 ; Bashir Ahmad v Zubaida Khatun, AIR 1926 Oudh 186 ; Mahomed Hashim v Aminabi, AIR 1952 Hyd 5 ; Ghulam Abbas v Razia Begam, (1952) ILR 1 All 477 : (1950) All LJ 917 : AIR 1951 All 86 [LNIND 1950 ALL 300] .
- 78 Malik Mohammad Shujaaqt v Salim Jahan, (1949) ILR All 400 : AIR 1949 All 204 .
- 79 Sahadeo Singh v Kubernath, (1953) ILR 1 All 265 : AIR 1950 All 632 [LNIND 1950 ALL 132] .

54. Sale defined.—

- 80 John Thomas v Joseph Thomas, AIR 2000 Ker. 408 [LNIND 2000 KER 309] : ILR 2000 (3) Ker 517 .
- 81 Saiful Bibi v Abdul Aziz Khan, (1932) ILR 54 All 22 : 133 IC 901 : (1931) All LJ 951 : AIR 1932 All 596 ; Ali Hasan v Rasidan, 124 IC 756 : AIR 1931 All 237 ; Mahomed Zaki v Mannu, (1925) 28 OC 227 : 87 IC 176 : AIR 1925 Oudh 407 ; Asalat v Sambu, (1911) 14 OC 214 : 11 IC 928; Abbas Ali v Karim Baksh, (1908) 13 Cal WN 160 : 4 IC 466.
- 82 Zamindar of Polavaram v Maharaja of Pittapuram, (1931) ILR 54 Mad 163 : 135 IC 17 : AIR 1931 Mad. 140 [LNIND 1930 MAD 103] ; Mahima Byasdeba v Dinabandhu, (1959) ILR Cut 250 : AIR 1960 Ori. 16 [LNIND 1958 ORI 57] .
- 83 Rati Ram v Main Chand, AIR 1959 Punj 117 .
- 84 Krishna Tanjahi v Aba, (1910) ILR 34 Bom 139 : 4 IC 833.
- 85 Alagappa Chettyar v Chettyar Firm, (1936) ILR 14 Rang 766 : 170 IC 434 : AIR 1934 Rang 287 .
- 86 Sura Reddi v Ram Sarasa, AIR 1937 Mad. 714 [LNIND 1937 MAD 59] .
- 87 Ashok Chandra v Chota Nagpur Banking Corp, AIR 1948 Rang 294 .
- 88 Hameed v Jayabharat Credit and Investment Co, AIR 1986 Ker. 206 [LNIND 1985 KER 332] .
- 89 Jayanta Ghosh v State of West Bengal, AIR 2008 (NOC) 303 Cal.
- 90 Sudhir Tyagi v Subhash Tyagi, (2011) 179 DLT 780 (Delhi). Ashok Kumar Jaiswal v Ashim Kumar, AIR 2014 Cal 92 [LNIND 2014 CAL 152] : LNIND 2014 CAL 152 : 2014 (1) Cal LT 663. See also Suraj Lamp and Industries (P) v State of Haryana, AIR 2009 SC 3077 [LNINDORD 2009 SC 574] : 2009 (76) ALR 792 : 2010 (6) ALT11(SC) : 2010 (3) Bom CR 808 : 2011(6) Kant LJ 62 : 2009 (6) MhLJ 11 (SC) : 2009 MPLJ 315 (SC) : 2009 (9) Scale 36 [LNINDORD 2009 SC 574] : (2009) 7 SCC 363 [LNINDORD 2009 SC 574] : [2009] 10 SCR 1048 [LNINDORD 2009 SC 574] .
- 91 Madan Pillai v Badrakali, (1922) ILR 45 Mad 612, p 617 : 68 IC 687 : AIR 1922 Mad. 311 [LNIND 1922 MAD 5] ; Bashir Ahmad v Zubaida Khatun, (1926) ILR 1 Luck 83 : 92 IC 265 : AIR 1926 Oudh 186 ; Chaudhri Talib Ali v Kaniz, (1927) ILR 2 Luck 575 : 102 IC 142 : AIR 1927 Oudh 204 ; Rajjo v Lajjo, (1928) 26 All LJ 169 : 114 IC 43 : AIR 1928 All 204 ; Abadi Begam v Mohammad Khalil, (1930) 7 Oudh WN 1010 : AIR 1930 Oudh 481 ; Subbi Reddy v K N Srinivasa Murthy, AIR 2006 Kant. 4 [LNIND 2005 KANT 406] : (2005) 6 Kar LJ 489 [LNIND 2005 KANT 406] ; Jagir Singh v Ranjeet Singh, AIR 2006 Raj. 105 : RLW 2005 (4) Raj 2941 : (2005) 4 WLC 447 ; Inder Chand v Sethi, AIR 2006 Raj. 251 [LNIND 2006 RAJ 32] : RLW 2006 (3) Raj 2248 : (2006) 4 WLC 144 ; Anjum Reddy v Arjun C Thanga, (2006) 7 SCC 756 [LNIND 2006 SC 644] : (2006) 8 Scale 477 [LNIND 2006 SC 644] ; Ramlal v Phagua, (2006) 1 SCC 168 [LNIND 2005 SC 820] : AIR 2006 SC 623 [LNIND 2005 SC 820] .
- 92 Queen Empress v Appavu, (1886) ILR 9 Mad 141; Volkart Bros v Vettivelu, (1888) ILR 11 Mad 459, p 467; Kedar Nath v Emperor, (1903) ILR 30 Cal 921; Samaratmal v Govind, (1901) ILR 25 Bom 696.
- 93 CIT v Motor and General Stores Pvt Ltd, [1967] 3 SCR 876 [LNIND 1967 SC 176] : AIR 1967 SC 200 : [1968] 1 SCJ 96 [LNIND 1967 SC 176] .

54. Sale defined.—

- 94 State of Madras v Gannon Dunkerley and Co (Madras) Ltd, [1959] SCR 379 [LNIND 1958 SC 39] , pp 397–398 : AIR 1958 SC 560 [LNIND 1958 SC 39] : [1958] SCJ 696 [LNIND 1958 SC 39] ; CIT v Motor & General Stores Pvt Ltd, [1967] 3 SCR 876 [LNIND 1967 SC 176] : AIR 1967 SC 200 .
- 95 Kanigolla Lakshamana Rao v Gudimetla Ratna Manikyamba, AIR 2003 AP 241 [LNIND 2003 AP 125] .
- 96 Surinder Pal v Rainbow Promoters Pvt Ltd, (2011) 2 RCR (Civil) 762 : (2011) 99 AIC 583 ; Milnes v Grey, (1807) 14 Ves 400; Bombay Tramways Co v Bombay Municipal Corp, (1902) 4 Bom LR 384 , p 404.
- 97 Maung Saing v Shwe Lon, (1909) 4 LBR 369.
- 98 Gourlay v Somerset (Duke), (1815) 19 Ves 429; Morgan v Milman, (1853) 3 De GM&G 29, p 37.
- 99 Ram Sundar Saha v Raj Kumar Sen, (1928) ILR 55 Cal 285 : 104 IC 527 : AIR 1927 Cal 889 .
- 100 Hakim Singh v Ram Sanchi, AIR 2001 All 231 [LNIND 2001 ALL 243] , para 11 : (2001) 1 All CJ 653.
- 101 Kamal Shivajirao Katkar v Gajarabi Sopanrao Algude, AIR 2001 Bom 369 [LNIND 2001 BOM 297] : (2001) 3 Mah LR 290.
- 102 Beni Madho v John, AIR 1947 All 110 .
- 103 Unnao Commercial Bank v Kailash Nath, AIR 1955 All 393 [LNIND 1954 ALL 38] .
- 104 Hiralal Agarwala v Bhagirathi Gore, AIR 1975 Cal 445 [LNIND 1975 CAL 118] .
- 105 Sankarsan Behara v Commissioner, Consolidation, Odisha, Cuttack, AIR 2018 Ori. 41 : 124 (2017) CLT 993 ; Nalamathu Venkaiya v B S Neelakanta, AIR 2005 AP 535 [LNIND 2005 AP 645] ; Ranjana Nagpal v Devi Ram, AIR 2002 HP 166 [LNIND 2001 HP 76] : (2002) 3 Shim LC 478.
- 106 Vidhyadhar v Manikrao, (1999) 3 SCC 73 , para 36 : AIR 1999 SC 1441 [LNIND 1999 SC 260] ; Ghosh v Rohini, (1908) 13 Cal WN 692 : 4 IC 541; Ponnaya Goundan v Muttu, (1894) ILR 17 Mad 146; Kashidas v Chaithru, (1914) 19 Cal LJ 289 : 23 IC 813; Sagaji v Namdev, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 525; Bajinath v Paltu, (1908) 30 AH 125; Subbayaar v Moment, (1913) ILR 36 Mad 8 : 10 IC 546; Shib Lal v Bhagwan, (1888) ILR 11 All 244; KYKM Chetty Firm v SNVR Chetty Firm, 34 IC 125; Puttam Singh v Jagannath, AIR 1947 AP 1 ; Balabhadra Misra v Nirmala Sundari, (1953) ILR Cut 531 : AIR 1954 Ori. 23 ; Sukaloo v Pumau, AIR 1961 MP 176 [LNIND 1960 MP 21] : (1960) ILR MP 614; Michhu Kuar v Raghu Jena, AIR 1961 Ori. 19 [LNIND 1960 ORI 121] ; Sukalop v Puanu, AIR 1961 MP 176 [LNIND 1960 MP 21] ; G Hampamma v Kartigi Sajjivalada Kalingappa, AIR 1990 Kant. 128 [LNIND 1989 KANT 113] , p 131; Gayatri Prasad v Board of Revenue, (1973) All LJ 412; Premnarayan v Kunwarji, AIR 1993 MP 164 .
- 107 Krishnamma v Mali, (1920) ILR 43 Mad 712 : 56 IC 530; Somasundaram v Shwe Bwa, 57 IC 948; Chandra Shanker v Abbhay Kumar, AIR 1952 Bom 56 [LNIND 1951 BOM 30] ; Kutcherlakota Vijaylakshmi v Radimeti Rajuratnamba, AIR 1991 AP 50 [LNIND 1990 AP 71] , p 53.
- 108 Kaliaperumal v Rajagopal, AIR 2009 SC 2192 .

54. Sale defined.—

- 109 Motilal Sahu v Ughra Narain Sahu, (1950) ILR AP 288; Ananda Chandra v Nilakantha, AIR 1972 Ori. 99 [LNIND 1971 ORI 66] .
- 110 Kauleshar Prasad v Abadi, (1915) ILR 37 All 631 : 30 IC 512.
- 111 Ponnaya Goundan v Muttu, (1894) ILR 17 Mad 146; Sagaji v Namdev, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 525; Tatia v Babaji, (1898) ILR 22 Bom 176, p 183; Govindammal v Gopalachariar, (1906) 16 Mad LJ 524; Subbayar v Monien, (1913) ILR 36 Mad 8 : 10 IC 546; Nitai v Champaklata, (1919) 29 Cal LJ 250 : 51 IC 104; Bai Devmani v Ravishankar, (1929) ILR 53 Bom 321 : 116 IC 236 : AIR 1929 Bom 147 .
- 112 Sagaji v Namdev, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 525; Velayutha v Gvindaswami, (1907) ILR 30 Mad 524; Bai Devmani v Ravishankar, (1929) ILR 53 Bom 321; Sahadeo Singh v Kubernath, (1953) ILR 1 All 265 : AIR 1950 All 632 [LNIND 1950 ALL 132] .
- 113 [1999] 2 LRI 243.
- 114 Ind Kaur v Tara Singh, (1978) 80 Punj LR 41 .
- 115 Bhartu v Nawal, AIR 2012 All 91 [LNIND 2012 ALL 6] : (2012) 5 All LJ 526.
- 116 Matadin Yadav v Midas Lids Pvt Ltd, AIR 2014 (NOC) 295 Del : 2014 III AD (Delhi) 268 : 205 (2013) DLT 484.
- 117 Bhartu v Nawal, AIR 2012 All 91 [LNIND 2012 ALL 6] : LNIND 2012 ALL 6 : 2012 (3) All LJ 309.
- 118 Baldeo Singh v Dwarika Singh, AIR 1978 Pat. 97 ; Ganesh Prasad v Deo Nandan Raut, AIR 1985 Pat. 94 : p 97.
- 119 Lal Achal Ram v Raja Kazim Hussain Khan, 32 IA 113 : (1905) ILR 27 All 271.
- 120 Vidhyadhar v Manikrao, (1999) 3 SCC 573 [LNIND 1999 SC 260] : AIR 1999 SC 1441 [LNIND 1999 SC 260] ; approving the view of the Calcutta, Patna and Orissa High Courts. See Kamini Kumar Deb v Durga Charan, Nag AIR 1923 Cal 521 : 37 Cal LJ 122; Saradindu Mukherjee v Kunja Kamini Roy, AIR 1942 Cal 514 : (1942) 46 Cal WN 798; Jugal Kishore Tewari v Umesh Chandra Tewari, AIR 1973 Pat. 352 : 1973 BLJR 255 ; Sanatan Mohapatra v Hakim Mohammad Kazim Mohammad, AIR 1977 Ori. 194 [LNIND 1977 ORI 26] : 44 Cut LT 606.
- 121 Vijay Bahadur v Surendra Kumar, AIR 2003 MP 117 [LNIND 2003 MP 690] , p 127 : (2003) 1 MPJR 393 : (2003) 2 MPLJ 86 [LNIND 2003 MP 690] .
- 122 Kavitha Goud v Nookala Sudarshan Reddy, AIR 2004 AP 326 [LNIND 2004 AP 571] , p 342 : (2004) 4 Andh LD 324 : (2004) 5 ALT 293 .
- 123 Executive Engineer (Electrical) Karnataka Power Transmission Corp Ltd v Asst Commissioner and Land Acquisition Officer, Gadag, (2010) 15 SCC 60 : 2011 (1) Scale 288 .
- 124 Lal Chand v Indarjit, (1900) ILR 22 All 370 : 27 IA 93; See also Hukumchand v Hiralal, (1879) ILR 3 Bom 159; Vasudeva v Narasamma, (1882) ILR 5 Mad 6; Lala Himmat v Llewellyn, (1885) ILR 11 Cal 486; Chunni Bibi v Basanti Bibi, (1914) ILR 36 All 537 : 24 IC 661; Lodd Govindoss v Muthiah Chetty, (1925) 48 Mad LJ 721 : AIR 1925 Mad. 660

54. Sale defined.—

[LNIND 1925 MAD 88] ; Irpan Ali v Jogendra, (1932) ILR 59 Cal 1111 : 143 IC 241 : AIR 1932 Cal 708 ; Pancha Sahu v Janki Mandan, AIR 1952 Pat. 263 . See also note “Recital of Payment” under section 55 below.

- 125 Hanif-un-nissa v Faiz-un-nissa, 38 IA 85 : (1911) ILR 33 All 340 reversing Faiz-un-nissa v Hanif-un-nissa, (1905) ILR 27 All 612.
- 126 Subana v Yamanappu, (1933) 35 Bom LR 345 : 149 IC 464 : AIR 1933 Bom 209 .
- 127 Alamdhar Husain v Moti Ram, (1918) 16 All LJ 454 : 46 IC 382; Muniram Bibi v Amjan Ali, (1928) 26 All LJ 539 : 114 IC 192 : AIR 1928 All 391 .
- 128 Balkrishna v Rangnath, (1950) ILR Nag 618 : AIR 1951 Ngp 171 .
- 129 Sri Brahadambal Agency and Partnership Firm v Ramasamy, AIR 2002 Mad. 352 [LNIND 2001 MAD 688] , p 362; K Ramakrishnan v Siddhammal, AIR 2002 Mad. 241 [LNIND 2001 MAD 764] , p 247.
- 130 Mehdi Hussain Khan v Nusrat Hasan, AIR 2004 AP 123 : (2004) 2 Andh LD 45 : (2004) 1 ALT 569 .
- 131 The Supreme Court has held that prior to merger of state of Sikkim with UOI on 26 April 1975, the Chogyal was the owner of the entire properties, and if he exercised his right of “eminent domain” in relation to the suit properties which were said to be belonging to his private estate, no registered deed of sale was required to be executed in his favour—MTW Tenzing Namgyal v Motilal Lakhota, (2003) 5 SCC 1 [LNIND 2003 SC 157] , p 11 : AIR 2003 SC 1448 [LNIND 2003 SC 157] . See also Tandonbi Devi v Kalamu Singla, AIR 2009 (NOC) 587 ; Dayal Fuel Industry v Bihar State Financial Corp, AIR 2009 (NOC) 592 (Pat.); Vijay Kuamr Sharma v Devesh Bihari Saxena, AIR 2008 All 66 [LNIND 2007 ALL 90] : (2008) 1 All WC 664 : (2008) 104 RD 191; Munnalal v Atmaram, AIR 2008 (NOC) 843 MP; Subbi Reddy v K N Srinivasa Murthy, AIR 2006 Kant. 4 [LNIND 2005 KANT 406] : (2005) 6 Kar LJ 489 [LNIND 2005 KANT 406] ; Jagir Singh v Ranjeet Singh, AIR 2006 Raj. 105 : RLW (2005) 4 Raj 2941 : (2005) 4 WLC 447 ; Inder Chand v Sethi, AIR 2006 Raj. 251 [LNIND 2006 RAJ 32] : RLW 2006 (3) Raj 2248 : (2006) 4 WLC 144 ; Anjum Reddy v Arjun C Thanga, (2006) 7 SCC 756 [LNIND 2006 SC 644] : (2006) 8 Scale 477 [LNIND 2006 SC 644] ; Ramlal v Phagua, (2006) 1 SCC 168 [LNIND 2005 SC 820] : AIR 2006 SC 623 [LNIND 2005 SC 820] .
- 132 Bhaskar Gopal v Padman Hira, (1916) ILR 40 Bom 313 : 33 IC 267; Mohinuddin v President, Municipal Committee, Khargone, AIR 1993 MP 5 [LNIND 1992 MP 142] , p 7 : (1993) 38 MPLJ 333 ; Raj Bahadur v Babu Lal, AIR 2011 All 48 [LNIND 2011 ALL 3] : (2012) 4 All WC 3595; Ramchandra v Hari Kirtan, AIR 2004 All 345 : (2004) 4 All WC 3473.
- 133 Raj Bahadur v Babu Lal, AIR 2011 All 48 [LNIND 2011 ALL 3] : (2012) 4 All WC 3595.
- 134 Noorulla Ghazanfulla v Municipal Board, Aligarh, AIR 1995 SC 1058 [LNIND 1995 SC 212] : 1995 Supp (2) SCC 667 .
- 135 Davendra Singh v State of Rajasthan, AIR 2002 Raj. 66 , para 8.
- 136 Godhan v Ram Bilas, AIR 1995 All 357 [LNIND 1994 ALL 151] .
- 137 Cherichi v Ittiamam, AIR 2001 Ker. 184 [LNIND 2000 KER 557] , para 23 : (2001) 1 Ker LJ 247 .
- 138 Ashok Kumar v Chief Controlling Revenue Authority, AIR 2011 All 142 [LNIND 2011 ALL 61] : LNIND 2011 ALL 61 .

54. Sale defined.—

- 139 G N Devan v Habitunissa, (1987) SCC 688 (Supp).
- 140 Kameshwar Choudhary v State of Bihar, AIR 1998 Pat. 141 ; Bhawanbhai Karamanbhai Bharvad v Anegyanagar Co-op Housing Society Ltd, AIR 2003 Guj 294 [LNIND 2003 GUJ 61] , p 306 : (2004) 1 GLR 506 .
- 141 Adinarayana v S Gafoor Sab, AIR 2004 AP 377 [LNIND 2004 AP 243] : (2004) 2 Andh LD 736 : (2004) 2 ALT 780 .
- 142 Inugante Venkataraman Rao v Appa Rao, 63 IA 169 : (1936) All LJ 258 : 38 Bom LR 457 : 40 Cal WN 545 : 70 Mad LJ 378 : 161 IC 29 : AIR 1936 PC 91 .
- 143 Officiating Common Manager, Bhingarpur Debottar Estate v Brahman Nijan, Uttar Bada and Dakshinabada, AIR 1990 Ori. 190 [LNIND 1989 ORI 18] , p 195; Hardayal v Aram Singh, AIR 2001 MP 203 [LNIND 2000 MP 531] , p 205 : (2001) 1 MPJR 339.
- 144 Bhabhi Dutt v Ramlalbyamal, 152 IC 431 : AIR 1934 Rang 303 ; Bevan v Ganesh Das, 34 IC 542; CIT, Bhubaneshwar v Kalinga Industry Ltd, (1974) 40 Cal LJ.
- 145 Ramchandra Majhi v Hambai Majhi, AIR 1989 Ori. 27 [LNIND 1988 ORI 92] , p 30.
- 146 Bishamber Nath v Kishan Chand, AIR 1998 All 195 [LNIND 1997 ALL 1079] .
- 147 See, for instance, Lords Food Products (India) Pvt Ltd v Orissa State Financial Corp, AIR 2002 Ori. 156 [LNIND 2002 ORI 168] , p 166 (with regard to section 29(2) of the State Financial Corporation Act, 1951).
- 148 Megha Enterprises Pvt Ltd v Official Liquidator, Jaipur, AIR 2008 Raj. 138 [LNINDORD 2008 RAJ 217] : RLW 2009 (1) Raj 316 .
- 149 Papireddi v Narasareddi, (1893) ILR 16 Mad 464; Sheo Narain Singh v Darbari Mahton, (1897) 2 Cal WN 207; Makhan Lal v Bunku Behari, (1892) ILR 19 Cal 623 overruling Khatu Madharam, (1889) ILR 16 Cal 622; Konormal v Nabin Chandra, 15 IC 228; Ma Mya v VPRVSA Annamalai Chettiyar 151 IC 227 : AIR 1934 Rang 127 ; Narayan Swami v Lakshmi, (1939) 48 Mad LW 959 : (1939) Mad WN 98 : 183 IC 87 : AIR 1939 Mad. 1220 .
- 150 Pankajakshy v Devaki Rama Krishna, AIR 2011 Ker. 30 [LNIND 2010 KER 557] : (2010) 4 KLT 113 [LNIND 2010 KER 557] .
- 151 Mathura Mohan v Ram Kumar, (1916) ILR 43 Cal 790 : 35 IC 305.
- 152 Bishun Kumar v Mahendra, AIR 2005 Sikkim. 33 .
- 153 G Ram v Delhi Development Authority, AIR 2003 Del 120 [LNIND 2002 DEL 510] , para 14 : (2002) 98 DLT 800 [LNIND 2002 DEL 510] : (2002) 64 DRJ 140 [LNIND 2002 DEL 510] .
- 154 Suraj Lamps & Industries Pvt Ltd v State of Haryana, AIR 2012 SC 206 [LNIND 2011 SC 1109] : (2012) 1 SCC 656 [LNIND 2011 SC 1109] .

54. Sale defined.—

- 155 Immitipattam Thirugnana v Periya Dorasami, (1901) ILR 24 Mad 377 : 28 IA 46.
- 156 Nirman Singh v Lal Rudra, (1926) ILR 48 All 529 : 53 IA 220 : 98 IC 1013 : AIR 1926 PC 100 ; Ram Sarup v Charitter Rai, 100 IC 270 : AIR 1927 All 338 ; Ram Prasad v Bedo, 13 IC 436. See also note "Transfer" under section 5.
- 157 Udho Das v Mehr Bakhsh, 144 IC 340 : AIR 1933 Lah 262 .
- 158 Tomlinson v Hording, (1930) 11 Lah LJ 467 : 120 IC 538 : AIR 1930 Lah 131 .
- 159 Sayyed Ibne Hasan v Mehtab, AIR 1960 MP 237 [LNIND 1960 MP 110] .
- 160 Bank of Upper India v R H Skinner, 69 IA 130 : (1942) All LJ 648 : 45 Bom LR 267 : 47 Cal WN 43 : (1942) 2 Mad LJ 559 : 202 IC 740 : AIR 1942 PC 67 .
- 161 See Sardarilal v Shakuntla Devi, (1961) 63 Punj LR 362 : AIR 1961 Punj 378 .
- 162 Murid Khan v Usman Khan, AIR 1962 Punj 475 .
- 163 Amol v Deorao, AIR 2011 (NOC) 215 Bom : 2011 (2) All MR 22; S Venkoji Rao v The Bangalore Development Authority, ILR 2011 Kant 408 : 2011 (2) Kant LJ 286 ; Ponnayya Goundan v Muttu, (1894) ILR 17 Mad 146; Venkataramiah v CIT, [1965] 3 SCR 567 [LNIND 1965 SC 106] : AIR 1966 SC 115 [LNIND 1965 SC 106] : [1965] 2 SCJ 283 [LNIND 1965 SC 106] ; Harbans Singh v Tekamani Devi, AIR 1990 Pat. 26 , p 31; Lakshmi Narain Bamwal v Jagdish Singh, AIR 1991 Pat. 99 , p 105.
- 164 Ganesh Prasad v Bhaiyalal, AIR 1938 Ngp 253 ; Rameshwar Das v Tildhari Das, (1958) ILR AP 312.
- 165 Har Narain v Mam Chand, 2011-1. L.W. 402 : 2010 (83) ALR 716 : (2011)52 GLR 601 (SC) : JT 2010 (11) SC 641 [LNIND 2010 SC 987] : 2010 (4) KLT 359 (SC) : (2011)1 Mad LJ 723 (SC) : 2011 112 RD184 : 2010 (10) Scale 617 [LNIND 2010 SC 987] : (2010) 13 SCC 128 [LNIND 2010 SC 987] ; Ittianam v Cherichi alias Padmini, (2010) 8 SCC 612 [LNIND 2010 SC 658] : LNIND 2010 SC 658 : 2010 (7) Scale 495 [LNIND 2010 SC 658] : AIR 2010 SC 2994 [LNIND 2010 SC 658] ; Kameshwar Choudhary v State of Bihar, AIR 1998 Pat. 141 . See also note "Priority" under section 48 below.
- 166 Kaliaperumal v Rajagopal, AIR 2009 SC 2122 [LNIND 2009 SC 416] : (2009) 4 SCC 193 [LNIND 2009 SC 416] .
- 167 Kantaben Chandulal Shah v Gajiben, AIR 2005 Guj 49 [LNIND 2004 GUJ 411] .
- 168 Narayan v Laxuman, (1905) ILR 29 Bom 42; Lallubhai v Bai Amrit, (1877) ILR 2 Bom 299, p 343; Santaya v Narayan, (1883) ILR 8 Bom 182, p 184; Chander Singh v Jamuna Prasad, AIR 1958 Pat. 193 .
- 169 Venkataramana v Rangiah, (1922) 41 Mad LJ 399 : 70 IC 212 : AIR 1922 Mad. 249 [LNIND 1921 MAD 90] dissenting from Tilakdhari v Narain, (1920) 5 Pat LJR 715 : 59 IC 290 : AIR 1921 AP 150 ; Veerakutty v Ramaswami, 32 IC 31; Guru Basappa v Santhappa, (1925) 48 Mad LJ 496 : 87 IC 568 : AIR 1925 Mad. 710 [LNIND 1924 MAD 420] .
- 170 Ram Saran Lall v Domini Kuer, [1962] 2 SCR 474 [LNIND 1961 SC 215] : AIR 1961 SC 1747 [LNIND 1961 SC 215] ; Tapan Krishna Das v Hazi Ali Khan, AIR 2005 Cal 60 [LNIND 2004 CAL 392] : (2004) 4 CHN 511 .

54. Sale defined.—

- 171 Mysore Minerals Ltd v CIT, (1999) 7 SCC 106 [LNIND 1999 SC 1247] , p 112 : (1999) 239 ITR 775 [LNIND 1999 SC 1247] .
- 172 M Manikandan v The Sub Registrar, Thamaraipatti, WP (MD) No 10833 of 2011 and MP (MD) No 1 of 2011, decided on 20 January 2017. High Court of Madras (Madurai Bench); Ms Latif Estate Line India Ltd v Hadeeja Ammal, AIR 2011 Mad. 66 [LNIND 2011 MAD 658] : (2011) 2 CHN 450 : (2011) 2 CTC 1 [LNIND 2011 MAD 658] .
- 173 K Rajan v Bangalore Development Authority, AIR 2011 (NOC) 341 (Kant.); Thota Ganga Laxmi v Govt of Andhra Pradesh, (2010) 15 SCC 207 : 2012 (3) ALT 50 : 2012 (1) Andh LD 90.
- 174 Champa Devi v Sudama Dubey, AIR 2017 SC 3433 .
- 175 Vatumalli Laxmi Prasanna v State of Telengana, AIR 2018 Hyd 32 .
- 176 Vimal Chand Ghevarchand Jain v Ramakant Eknath Jajoo, (2009 (5) Scale 59 [LNIND 2009 SC 646] : LNIND 2009 SC 646 : 2009 (5) SCC 713 [LNIND 2009 SC 646] ; Vidhyadar v Manikrao, (1999) 3 SCC 573 [LNIND 1999 SC 260] : AIR 1999 SC 1441 [LNIND 1999 SC 260] .
- 177 Nitai v Champaklata, (1919) 29 Cal LJ 25 : 51 IC 104; Gangi v Govinda, (1924) 46 Mad LJ 464 : 84 IC 626 : AIR 1924 Mad. 544 [LNIND 1924 MAD 21] ; Seramot Ali v Samad Ali, 19 IC 562; Jogendra v Manmatha, 34 IC 106; Maung Mon v Ma Kin Oh, (1927) ILR 5 Rang 636, p 640 : 106 IC 358 : AIR 1928 Rang 47 ; See also Sundar v Lalji, 145 IC 698 (a registered mortgage deed); Parosottam Das v Syed Ali Haidar, 171 IC 233 : AIR 1937 Oudh 493 ; Rajkumar Singh v Uchit Tatwa, AIR 1951 Pat. 454 ; Harbans Singh v Tekamani Devi, AIR 1990 Pat. 26 , p 31; Lakshmi Narain Bamwal v Jagdish Singh, AIR 1991 Pat. 99 , p 105; Ramchandra Singh v S D Haripur, AIR 1989 Pat. 50 , p 54.
- 178 Sheo Narain Singh v Darbari Mahton, (1897) 2 Cal WN 207; Mauladan v Raghunandan, (1900) ILR 27 Cal 7; Sangu Ayyar v Cumarasami, (1895) ILR 18 Mad 61; Ramalinga v Ayyadora, (1905) ILR 28 Mad 124; Sarat Chandra v Hari Pada, (1906) 4 Cal LJ 338 ; Gostho Behary v Rohini, (1908) 13 Cal WN 692 : 4 IC 541; Jogendra v Manmatha, 34 IC 106; Hara Bewa v Bunchanidhi, (1957) ILR Cut 380 : AIR 1957 Ori. 243 .
- 179 Shiva Narayan Sab v Baidya Nath Prasad Tiwary, AIR 1973 Pat. 386 .
- 180 Prem Singh v Dt Board of Rawalpindi, 151 IC 168 : AIR 1934 Lah 917 .
- 181 Shiv Narain v A N Mukerji, AIR 1973 Pat. 386 : (1973) ILR Pat 516.
- 182 Baidyanath Misra v Udayanath Misra, (1974) 2 CWR 978; Iswar Das v Maralidhar Rai, AIR 1992 Ori. 170 [LNIND 1991 ORI 193] , p 174; Hara Bewa v Banchanidhi Barik, AIR 1957 Ori. 243 ; Umakanta Das v Pradip Kumar Ray, AIR 1986 Ori. 196 [LNIND 1986 ORI 124] , p 198.
- 183 Bishundeo Narain Rai v Anmol Devi, AIR 1998 SC 3006 [LNIND 1998 SC 781] : (1998) 7 SCC 498 [LNIND 1998 SC 781] .
- 184 Bakhtawar Ram v Naushad, 55 IC 659.
- 185 Ponnayya Goundan v Muttu, (1894) ILR 17 Mad 146.
- 186 Sagaji v Namdeo, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 525; Chinnasamy Reddiar v Krishna, (1906) 16 Mad LJ 146; Amirthathamal v Periasamy, (1909) ILR 32 Mad 325 : 4 IC 507; Govindammal v Gopalachariar, (1906) 16 Mad LJ 524; Velayutha v Govindasami, (1911) ILR 34 Mad 543 : 8 IC 364; Shib Lal v Bhagwan, (1888) ILR 11 All 244 dissenting from Ikbāl Begam v Gobind Prasad, supra; Bajjnath v Paltu, (1908) ILR 30 All 125; Gostho Behari v Rohini, (1908) 13 Cal WN 692; Nilmadahab v Hara Proshad, (1913) 17 Cal WN 1161 : 20 IC 235; Bhonu Lal v WA Vincent, 65 IC 882 : AIR 1922

54. Sale defined.—

Pat. 619 ; Naran Das v Dhania, (1915) ILR 38 All 154 : 35 IC 23; Ramdhari v Gorakh, (1931) ILR 10 Pat 264 : 133 IC 34 : AIR 1931 Pat. 236 ; Umedmal Motiram v Davu, (1878) ILR 2 Bom 547 (before the Act); Hari Chand v Gordhan Das, (1957) 59 Punj LR 310 : AIR 1957 Punj 238 ; Ajmer Singh v Nishi Kumar, AIR 2004 P&H. 85 : (2003) 135 PLR 728 .

187 Kondu v Vishnu, (1913) ILR 37 Bom 53 : 17 IC 176.

188 Maya Devi v Lalita Prasad, (2015) 5 SCC 588 [LNIND 2014 SC 301] .

189 Udai Sapkota v Laxmi Prasad Sapkota, AIR 2013 Sikkim. 21 .

190 Sanjay Puri v Radhey Lal, (2011) 121 DRJ 507 [LNIND 2010 DEL 1869] (DB) : (2011) 179 DLT 218 DB (Delhi).

191 Munnan Khan v Ashrafunnissa, AIR 1983 All 363 , p 364, para 3.

192 Kakila Dei v Balakrushna Behera, AIR 1984 Ori. 111 [LNIND 1983 ORI 76] .

193 Biswanath Sahu v Tribeni Mohan, AIR 2003 Ori. 189 [LNIND 2003 ORI 191] : (2003) I Ori LR 522.

194 Hans Raj v Karmi, AIR 2004 P&H. 315 : (2004) 136 PLR 862 .

195 O P Kurechia v Manju, (1998) 47 DRJ 706 [LNIND 1998 DEL 673] .

196 Bashi Prasad v Babu Lal, AIR 2003 All 206 .

197 P Retnaswamy v A Raja, AIR 2002 Mad. 131 [LNIND 2001 MAD 876] , p 142 : (2001) 3 LW 603 .

198 Thomson Press (India) Ltd v Nanak Builders Investors Pvt Ltd, AIR 2013 SC 2389 [LNIND 2013 SC 1232] .

199 Jagtar Singh v State of Punjab, AIR 2012 P&H. 145 : LNIND 2012 PNH 41 .

200 Suresh Kumar Dagla v Sarwan, (2014) 14 SCC 254 [LNIND 2014 SC 944] : 2014 (9) Scale 675 [LNIND 2014 SC 944] : 2016 (4) All MR 487.

201 State of Jharkhand v KN Farms and Industries Pvt Ltd, (2012) 5 SCC 297 [LNINDU 2012 SC 1] : LNINDU 2012 SC 1 : 2012 (4)Scale 142 [LNINDU 2012 SC 1] .

202 Pradeep Kumar Sharma v Uttar Pradesh Finance Corp, Rajpur Road, Dehradun, (2012) 10 SCC 424 [LNIND 2012 SC 691] : 2012 (10)Scale 511 [LNIND 2012 SC 691] : LNIND 2012 SC 691 .

203 Suresh Prasad Singh v Dulhin Phulkumari Devi, (2010) 6 SCC 441 [LNIND 2010 SC 499] : LNIND 2010 SC 499 : 2010 (2) Pat LJR 167 : 2010 (5) Scale 771 [LNIND 2010 SC 499] .

204 Ganpath Sahu v Bull Sahu, AIR 1974 Ori. 192 .

205 Sonam Dolma v Phunchog Angrup, AIR 2002 HP 77 [LNIND 2001 HP 37] : (2002) 1 Sim LC 308.

206 Suraj Lamps & Industries Pvt Ltd v State of Haryana, AIR 2012 SC 206 [LNIND 2011 SC 1109] : (2012) 1 SCC 656 [LNIND 2011 SC 1109] .

54. Sale defined.—

- 207 Numaanab v Hara Proshad, (1913) 17 Cal WN 1161 : 20 IC 235; Kaliram v Dularam, 142 IC 582 : AIR 1933 Cal 544 .
- 208 Biswanath Prashad v Chandra Narayan, (1921) ILR 48 Cal 509 : 48 IA 127 : 63 IC 770 : AIR 1921 PC 8 .
- 209 Nathu v Gulabchand, 144 IC 919 : AIR 1934 Ngp 13 .
- 210 Mokhan Lal v Bunku Behari, (1892) ILR 19 Cal 623 overruling Khatu v Madhuram, (1889) ILR 16 Cal 622; Konormal v Nabin Chandra, 15 IC 228.
- 211 Immamuddin v Ramzan, (1885) All WN 201; Kathari v Bhupati, (1916) 29 Mad LJ 721 : 31 IC 52; Gunga Narain v Kali Churn, (1895) ILR 22 Cal 179; Bhagabati Swarnakar v Sazhi, 2 IC 413; Gulab v Lalta, (1919) 22 OC 58 : 51 IC 561; Dayaram v Sita Ram, 79 IC 394 : AIR 1925 All 206 ; Tribhovan v Shankar, AIR 1943 Bom 431 ; Ram Chandra v Hari Kishan, AIR 2004 All 345 .
- 212 Brajaballav v Akkoy Bagdi, (1926) 30 Cal WN 254 : 93 IC 115 : AIR 1926 Cal 705 ; Uma Jha v Chetu, 95 IC 187; Punchha Lal v Kunj Behari Lal, (1913) 18 Cal WN 445 : 20 IC 803; Sheikh Juman v Mohammad, (1917) 21 Cal WN 1149 : 41 IC 779. See section 49 of Registration Act, 1908, as amended by Act 21 of 1929.
- 213 Dave Ramshankar v Bai Kailasauri, AIR 1974 Guj 69 [LNIND 1972 GUJ 47] .
- 214 Varatha Pillai v Jeevarathammal, (1919) ILR 43 Mad 244 : 46 IC 285 : 53 IC 901 (PC); Abdul Alim v Abdul Sattar, AIR 1936 Cal 130 .
- 215 Nailamuttu Pillai v Betha, (1900) ILR 23 Mad 37; Dawal v Dhanna, (1917) ILR 41 Bom 550, p 559 : 41 IC 273.
- 216 Kemam Kandaswamy v Chinappa, (1921) 40 Mad LJ 105 : 62 IC 603 : AIR 1921 Mad. 82 [LNIND 1920 MAD 110] .
- 217 Tarinikamal v Prafulla Kumar, AIR 1979 SC 1165 [LNIND 1979 SC 145] .
- 218 Nachhitar Singh v Jagir Kuar, AIR 1986 P&H. 197 , p 200, para 7.
- 219 Davendra Singh v State of Rajasthan, AIR 2002 Raj. 66 : 2002 Civil CC 97 : 2002 (3) RCR (Civil) 341 .
- 220 Neeraj Jain v State, of UP 2014 SCC OnLine SC 1091
- 221 Ramesh Vajabhai Rabari v Pratiksha Real Estate, (2014) 12 SCC 190 : AIR 2014 SC 2962 [LNIND 2014 SC 579] : 2014 (5) ABR 458 : 2014 (4) Scale 555 [LNIND 2014 SC 579] .
- 222 Om Prakash v Shanti Devi, (2015) 4 SCC 601 [LNIND 2015 SC 4] : LNIND 2015 SC 4 : AIR 2015 SC 976 [LNIND 2015 SC 4] : 2015 (1)Scale 19 [LNIND 2015 SC 4] ; Brijvasilal v Abdul Haji, (2001) 9 SCC 367 , p 368.
- 223 Hanmanta v Mir Ajmodin, (1904) 6 Bom LR 1104 .

54. Sale defined.—

- 224 Guest v Homfray, (1801) 5 Ves 818.
- 225 (1907) ILR 34 Cal 207; followed in Tilak Brittlal v Rudeshwar, 41 IC 8 and Mrinalini v Mohima Chandra, 6 IC 763.
- 226 Kulachandra Ghosh v Jogendrachandra Ghosh, (1933) ILR 60 Cal 384 : 144 IC 155 : AIR 1933 Cal 411 ; Mahbub v Kalekhar, AIR 1936 Lah 756 ; Maung Mya Maung v Ma Khine, 166 IC 267 : AIR 1936 Rang 497 ; Chutia v Sonaram Chutia, (1916) 20 Cal WN 195 : 34 IC 692; followed in Santokhi Misser v Siro Jha, 151 IC 55.
- 227 Sonai Chutia v Sonaram Chutia, (1916) 20 Cal WN 195.
- 228 Muthukaruppan v Muthu, (1915) ILR 38 Mad 1158 : 25 IC 772; followed in Sheikh Dawood v Moideen, (1925) 48 Mad LJ 264 : AIR 1925 Mad. 566 [LNIND 1924 MAD 522] and Ram Nath v Gajadhar, 92 IC 478 : AIR 1926 All 300 ; Swaminatha Udayar v Mottayya Padayachi, (1957) 1 Mad LJ 17 : AIR 1957 Mad. 209 [LNIND 1956 MAD 99] ; Bhanwarilal v Dhulilal, (1958) ILR 8 Raj 572 : AIR 1959 Raj. 218 [LNIND 1958 RAJ 167] ; Sukatto v Panau, AIR 1961 MP 176 [LNIND 1960 MP 21] ; Thakurdas v Sobhachand, (1916) 12 Nag LR 3 : 32 IC 233; Dinanath v Manbodhi, (1916) 12 Nag LR 139 : 36 IC 547. See also Sibendrapada v Secy of State, (1907) ILR 34 Cal 207; Biswanath Prasad v Chandra Narayan, (1921) ILR 48 Cal 509 : 48 IA 127 : 63 IC 770 : AIR 1921 PC 8 ; Kulachandra Ghosh v Jogendrachandra Ghosh, (1933) ILR 60 Cal 384 : 144 IC 155 : AIR 1933 Cal 411 ; Mahbub v Kalekhar, AIR 1936 Lah 756 ; Maung Mya Maung v Ma Khine, 166 IC 267 : AIR 1936 Rang 497 .
- 229 Inderjeet Singh v Nasim Meman, AIR 2017 (NOC) 729 (CHG.).
- 230 Sohan Lal v Mohan Lal, (1928) ILR 50 All 986 : 118 IC 177 : AIR 1928 All 726 .
- 231 (1953) ILR Bom 1071 : 55 Bom LR 641 : AIR 1953 Bom 437 [LNIND 1953 BOM 2] .
- 232 Trilochan v Bamadev, AIR 1972 Ori. 136 [LNIND 1971 ORI 91] ; Abas Ali Khan v Sahabuddin Khan, (1980) 49 Cut LT 297.
- 233 Nagammal v Krishnaswami Nayudu, (1976) 2 Mad LJ 72.
- 234 Sohan Lal v Mohan Lal, (1928) ILR 50 All 986.
- 235 Patel Bhikabhai v Shah Chimanlal, supra. And see Chinna Nagaiah v N Baliga, AIR 1956 Hyd 170 .
- 236 Suraj Prasad v Aguta Devi, (1958) ILR 37 Pat 577 : (1959) ILR AP 153; And cf Puran Mahton v Bhago Mahton, (1946) ILR AP 81.
- 237 Trilochan v Bamadev, AIR 1972 Ori. 136 [LNIND 1971 ORI 91] .
- 238 Gunga Narain v Kali Churn, (1895) ILR 22 Cal 179; Ummar Sahib v Vythilinga, (1909) 5 Mad LT 263 : 4 IC 1135; Ammani v Jagannatha, (1915) Mad WN 442 : 30 IC 7; Tukaram v Atmaram, (1939) ILR Bom 71 : 40 Bom LR 1192 : 180 IC 40 : AIR 1939 Bom 31 .
- 239 Sampatlal v Pokar, (1954) ILR 4 Raj 705 : AIR 1955 Raj. 70 .

54. Sale defined.—

- 240 Moidin v Avaran, (1888) ILR 11 Mad 263.
- 241 Manickam v Chinnamma, 2017-2-LW 253 : (2017) 4 Mad LJ 6.
- 242 Biswanath Prasad v Chandra Narayan, (1921) ILR 48 Cal 509 : 48 IA 127 : 63 IC 770 : AIR 1921 PC 8 .
- 243 Immamuddin v Ramzan, (1885) All WN 201; Gunga Narayan v Kali Churn, (1895) ILR 22 Cal 179; Kathari v Bhupati, (1916) 29 Mad LJ 721 : 31 IC 52; Daya Ram v Sita Ram, 79 IC 394 : AIR 1925 All 206 ; Nagayya v Sayamma, AIR 1951 Mys 42 ; Ram Chandra v Hari Kirtan, AIR 2004 All 345 : (2004) 4 All WC 473.
- 244 Mahommad Yagoolally v Chottey Lal, 179 IC 583 : AIR 1939 Pat. 218 ; Bhulkhoo v Hiriyabai, (1949) ILR Nag 534.
- 245 Kuppuswami v Chinnaswami, 111 IC 677 : AIR 1928 Mad. 546 [LNIND 1927 MAD 317] .
- 246 Keshwar Mahton v Sheonandan, 122 IC 533 : AIR 1929 Pat. 620 .
- 247 Punchha Lal v Kunj Behari Lal, (1913) 18 Cal WN 445 : 20 IC 803; Sheikh Juman v Mohanmmad, (1917) 21 Cal WN 1149 : 41 IC 779; Kathari v Bhupati, (1916) 29 Mad LJ 721; Brajaballav v Akhoy Bagdi, (1926) 30 Cal WN 254 : 93 IC 115 : AIR 1926 Cal 705 .
- 248 Ko Yan v Ma Mai Ni, (1933) ILR 10 Rang 529 : 140 IC 777 : AIR 1933 Rang 4 ; see also Bhabani Sarma v Narayan Sarma, AIR 2003 Gau 171 [LNIND 2003 GAU 49] , p 176. See also Chanda Bai v Anwarkhan, AIR 1997 MP 238 [LNIND 1996 MP 136] .
- 249 State of Uttar Pradesh v District Judge, (1997) 1 SCC 496 [LNIND 1996 SC 1691] : (1997) 1 SCC 496 [LNIND 1996 SC 1691] .
- 250 Ningappa Bharamappa Sogi v Govt of Karnataka, AIR 2011 Kant. 115 [LNIND 2010 DHRWD 21] : (2012) 1 ICC 621; Baboo Lal v Nathi Lal, AIR 2014 ((NOC))201 (All); Kumaran v Kumaran, AIR 2011 Ker. 75 [LNIND 2010 KER 747] : [LNIND 2010 KER 747] ; Namdeo v Collector, AIR 1996 SC 973 [LNIND 1995 SC 814] : (1995) 5 SCC 598 [LNIND 1995 SC 814] ; Ram Bhau Namdeo v Narain Bapuji, (2004) 8 SCC 614 [LNIND 2004 SC 839] : AIR 2004 SC 4342 [LNIND 2004 SC 839] .
- 251 B R Koteswara Rao v G Rameshwari, Bai, AIR 2004 AP 34 , pp 38, 40 : (2003) 4 Andh LD 662.
- 252 Bommaka Nagabhushana Reddu v W Srinivasa Rao, (2002) 9 SCC 664 , p 665 : (2001) 5 JT 487 .
- 253 Specific Relief Act, 1963, section 10. See Ram Swarup Gaur v Ratiram, AIR 1984 All 369 [LNIND 1984 ALL 195] , p 373.
- 254 Ghanshyambhai Dhirubhai Barvaliya v Rasikbhai Dhirubhai Ambaliya, AIR 2017 Guj 164 .
- 255 Bali Devi v Chhagan, Lal, AIR 2017 (NOC) 271 Raj. : 2017 (2) Raj LW 1756 (Raj).

54. Sale defined.—

- 256 Satya Prakash Goel v Ram Krishan Mission, AIR 1991 All 343 [LNIND 1990 ALL 338] , p 347. See also Munna Lal v Atma Ram, AIR 2008 (NOC) 843 MP; Subbi Reddy v K N Srinivasa Murthy, AIR 2006 Kant. 4 [LNIND 2005 KANT 406] : (2005) 6 Kar LJ 489 [LNIND 2005 KANT 406] : (2005) 4 KCCR 2751 [LNIND 2005 KANT 406] ; Jagir Singh v Ranjeet Singh, AIR 2006 Raj. 105 ; Inder Chand v Sethi, AIR 2006 Raj. 251 [LNIND 2006 RAJ 32] : RLW 2006 (3) Raj 2248 : (2006) 4 WLC 144 ; Anjum Reddy v Arjun C Thanga, (2006) 7 SCC 756 [LNIND 2006 SC 644] : (2006) 8 Scale 477 [LNIND 2006 SC 644] ; Ramlal v Phagua, (2006) 1 SCC 168 [LNIND 2005 SC 820] : AIR 2006 SC 623 [LNIND 2005 SC 820] .
- 257 Mir Sarwarjan v Fakhruddin Mahomed, 39 IA 1 : 13 IC 331; Venkatachalam v Setharam, (1933) ILR 56 Mad 433 : 64 Mad LJ 354 : 142 IC 315 : AIR 1933 Mad. 322 [LNIND 1932 MAD 172] .
- 258 Aloka Bose v Parmatma Devi, (2009) 2 SCC 582 [LNIND 2008 SC 2460] : AIR 2009 SC 1527 [LNIND 2008 SC 2460] ; B Rajamani v Azhar Sultana, AIR 2005 AP 260 [LNIND 2004 AP 1466] : (2005) 2 Andh LD 862.
- 259 Brij Mohan v Sugra Begum, (1990) 4 SCC 147 , p 158.
- 260 Ningappa Bharaneppa Sogi v Govt of Karnataka, AIR 2011 Kant. 115 [LNIND 2010 DHRWD 21] : (2011) 1 KCCR 744 .
- 261 Webb v Macpherson, (1904) ILR 31 Cal 57 : 30 IA 238; Chhatra Kumari v Mohan Bikram, (1931) ILR 10 Pat 851 : 58 IA 279 : 133 IC 705 : AIR 1931 PC 196 ; Mian Pir Bux v Sardar Mohammed Tahar, 61 IA 388 : 69 Cal LJ 370 : 67 Mad LJ 865 : (1934) All LJ 912 : 151 IC 326 : AIR 1934 PC 275 ; Official Assignee v ME Moolla and Sons Ltd, (1934) ILR 12 Rang 589 : 154 IC 9 : AIR 1935 Rang 84 .
- 262 Maung Shwe Goh v Maung Inn, (1917) ILR 44 Cal 542 : 44 IA 15 : 38 IC 938; Hormasji Manekji v Keshav, (1894) ILR 18 Bom 13; Rupchand v Jankibai, (1925) 27 Bom LR 1441 : 91 IC 817 : AIR 1926 Bom 24 ; Kalachand v Jatindra Mohan, (1929) ILR 56 Cal 487 : 117 IC 855 : AIR 1929 Cal 263 .
- 263 Rambaran v Ram Mohit, [1967] 1 SCR 293 [LNIND 1966 SC 173] : AIR 1967 SC 744 [LNIND 1966 SC 173] ; Shiv Kumar v Ajodhia Nath, AIR 1972 J&K 125; Jiwan Dass Rawal v Narain Dass, AIR 1981 Del 291 [LNIND 1981 DEL 164] ; Suraj Charan Lenka v Pramila Mumary Mohanty, AIR 1986 Ori. 74 [LNIND 1985 ORI 80] , p 75.
- 264 Balwant Vithal Kadam v Sunil Baburaoi Kadam, AIR 2018 SC 49 : 2018 (1) Scale 35 : (2018) 2 SCC 82 : 2018 (1) SCJ 734 .
- 265 Mian Pir Bux v Sardar Mahomed Tahar, 61 IA 388, p 396 : 60 Cal LJ 370 : 67 Mad LJ 865 : 36 Bom LR 1195 : 1934 All LJ 912 : 151 IC 326 : AIR 1934 PC 235 ; The Official Assignee v ME Moolla and Sons Ltd, (1934) ILR 12 Rang 589 : 154 IC 9 : AIR 1935 Rang 84 .
- 266 Kumaran v Kumaran, AIR 2011 Ker. 75 [LNIND 2010 KER 747] : (2011) 1 KLJ 161 ; Amol v Deorao, AIR 2011 (NOC) 215 Bom; Kashi Nath Sah v Shri Nath, 238 (2017) DLT 392 : 2017 IIIAD (Delhi) 311.
- 267 Mahadeo v Vasudeo, (1899) ILR 23 Bom 181.
- 268 Ramalingam v GR Jagadammal, AIR 1957 AP 960 [LNIND 1956 AP 23] .
- 269 Govinda Chandra v Provabati Ghose, (1955) 59 Cal WN 886 : AIR 1956 Cal 147 [LNIND 1955 CAL 68] .

54. Sale defined.—

- 270 Indira Fruits and General Market, Meerut v Bijendra Kumar Gupta, AIR 1995 All 316 [LNIND 1995 ALL 96] ; Jayshree Oza v Rakesh Mohan, (1998) 74 DLT 11 [LNIND 1998 DEL 339] ; Dewan and Sons Investments v DDA, AIR 1997 Del 388 [LNIND 1997 DEL 212] ; Majidan v Ishaq, AIR 2008 (NOC) 1135 UP.; Basant Kaur v General Public, AIR 2008 (NOC) 1406 P&H.; Ramesh Chandra v Prem Lata Sinha, AIR 2008 Pat. 155 [LNIND 2008 PAT 96] : (2008) 56 BLJR 2405 .
- 271 Mohinder Kaur v Sudarshan Krishnamurthy, (1992) 23 DRJ 179 [LNIND 1992 DEL 172] .
- 272 Imitiaz Ali v Nasim Ahmed, AIR 1987 Del 36 [LNIND 1986 DEL 318] : (1986) 30 DLT 487 [LNIND 1986 DEL 318] : 1986 Ren LR 632.
- 273 K Venkateswarlu v K Pedda Venkaiah, AIR 2002 AP 8 [LNIND 2001 AP 948] : (2001) 5 Andh LT 473 [LNIND 2001 AP 948] .
- 274 Gopal Singh v The State, AIR 1984 Raj. 174 , pp 177, 178.
- 275 Sujan Singh v Mokhan Chand Jain, AIR 1983 P&H. 180.
- 276 Dave Ramnshankar v Baikailasgoure, AIR 1974 Guj 69 [LNIND 1972 GUJ 47] ; Amol v Deorao, AIR 2011 (NOC) 215 Bom.
- 277 State of Uttaranchal v Khurana Brothers, (2010) 14 SCC 334 [LNIND 2010 SC 1056] : LNIND 2010 SC 1056 : AIR 2011 SC 224 [LNIND 2010 SC 1056] ; Mohammad Siddique Khan v Balakdas Bairagi, (2011) 2 MP LJ 130 ; Vakil v Sakir, 2010 SCC OnLine All 704; Joseph Kantharaj v Attharunnisa Begum S, (2010) 2 SCC 619 [LNINDORD 2010 SC 131] : [2010] 1 SCR 629 [LNINDORD 2010 SC 131] : LNINDORD 2010 SC 131 ; Association of Leasing and Financial Service Cos v UOI, (2011) 2 SCC 352 [LNIND 2010 SC 1047] : LNIND 2010 SC 1047 : 2010 (11) Scale 461 [LNIND 2010 SC 1047] .
- 278 Mural Viniyog Ltd v Registrar of Assurance, AIR 1989 Cal 65 [LNIND 1988 CAL 19] , p 69.
- 279 State of Himachal Pradesh v Motilal Pratap Singh and Co, AIR 1981 HP 8 [LNIND 1980 HP 27] .
- 280 Amulya Gopal Majumdar v United Industrial Bank Ltd, AIR 1981 Cal 404 [LNIND 1980 CAL 169] .
- 281 Dorabai v Mathuradas Govinddas, AIR 1980 SC 1334 [LNIND 1980 SC 201] : (1980) 3 SCC 545 [LNIND 1980 SC 201] .
- 282 S Kaladevi v V R Somasundaram, (2010) 5 SCC 401 [LNIND 2010 SC 340] : LNIND 2010 SC 340 : AIR 2010 SC 1654 [LNIND 2010 SC 340] : 2010 (3) Scale 641 [LNIND 2010 SC 340] .
- 283 Matadin Yadav v Midas Lids Pvt Ltd, AIR 2014 (NOC) 295 Del : (2015) 5 SCC 650 [LNIND 2014 SC 509] .
- 284 Shanker Singh v Narinder Singh, 2013 (4) AJR 456 : 2012 (90) ALR 698 : 2012 2 AWC1826 SC : 2012 (1) CGBCLJ 48 : [2012 (2) JCR 44 (SC)] : JT 2011 (14) SC 106 [LNIND 2011 SC 2242] : 2012-1-LW231 : 2012 (1) PLJR 189 : 2012 (1) RCR (Civil) 576 : 2011 (13) SCALE 574 [LNIND 2011 SC 2242] : 2012 (1) UJ80.
- 285 Sanjeev Lal v CIT Chandigarh, (2015) 5 SCC 775 : AIR 2014 SC 3589 : 2014 (8) Scale 432 : 2014 (6) SCJ 401 .

54. Sale defined.—

- 286 Mohd Hafizullah v Javed Akhtar, (2015) 5 SCC 650 [LNIND 2014 SC 509] : 2014 (8) Scale 292 [LNIND 2014 SC 509] : 2014 (7) SCJ 444 [LNIND 2014 SC 509] .
- 287 Rathnavathi v Kavita Ganashamdas, (2015) 5 SCC 223 [LNIND 2014 SC 918] : LNIND 2014 SC 918 : 2014 (12) Scale 386 [LNIND 2014 SC 918] .
- 288 Achal Reddy v Ramakrishna Reddiar, AIR 1990 SC 553 [LNIND 1989 SC 761] : (1990) 4 SCC 706 [LNIND 1989 SC 761] .
- 289 Thakur Kishan Singh v Arvind Kumar, (1994) 6 SCC 591 [LNINDORD 1994 SC 24] , para 5 : AIR 1995 SC 73 [LNINDORD 1994 SC 24] .
- 290 Roop Singh v Ram Singh, (2000) 3 SCC 708 [LNIND 2000 SC 521] , para 9 : AIR 2000 SC 1485 [LNIND 2000 SC 521] ; Moturi Seeta Ramabrahmam v Bobba Rama Mohana Rao, AIR 2000 AP 504 [LNIND 2000 AP 995] : (2000) 5 Andh LD 111 : (2000) 5 ALT 73 ; Baruna Giri v Raja Kishore Giri, AIR 1983 Ori. 107 [LNIND 1982 ORI 5] .
- 291 Mangru Oram v Abdul Razak, AIR 2017 (NOC) 901 Ori..
- 292 Varghese v Koran, AIR 1952 Tr&Coch 407 . See also note “Attachment” under section 40.
- 293 Hamda Ammal v Avadippa Pathar, (1991) 1 SCC 715 [LNIND 1990 SC 679] , p 723; Abdul Jalal v Mariya Financer, AIR 2002 Ker. 276 [LNIND 2002 KER 120] : (2002) 1 Ker LJ 482 .
- 294 Vannarakkal Kallalathil Sreedharan v Chandramaath Balakrishnan, (1990) 3 SCC 291 [LNIND 1990 SC 137] , p 294; overruling Mohinder Singh v Nanak Singh, AIR 1971 P&H. 381 .
- 295 61 IA 388; (1934) ILR 12 Rang 589.
- 296 Rabindra Nath v Haredra Kumar, (1955) 97 Cal LJ 62 : AIR 1956 Cal 462 [LNIND 1956 CAL 16] .
- 297 Maung Po Yin v Maung Tel Tu, (1924) ILR 2 Rang 459 : 86 IC 205 : AIR 1925 Rang 68 .
- 298 Mathura Mohan v Ram Kumar, (1916) ILR 43 Cal 790 : 35 IC 305; Maung Po Yin v Maung Tel Tu, (1925) ILR 2 Rang 459 : 86 IC 205 : AIR 1925 Rang 68 .
- 299 Bhabani Sarma v Narayan Sarma, AIR 2003 Gau 171 [LNIND 2003 GAU 49] , p 176.
- 300 Surendra V K v V K Thimmaiah, 2013 (10) SCC 211 [LNIND 2013 SC 488] .
- 301 Sachida Nand Sarma v State of Bihar, AIR 2013 Pat. 89 [LNIND 2013 PAT 595] .
- 302 Ghafur-ud-din v Hamid, (1912) 10 All LJ 154 : 16 IC 679.

54. Sale defined.—

- 303 Begam v Muhammad, (1894) ILR 16 All 344, p 346.
- 304 Ibid; Najm-un-nissa v Ajaib Ali, (1900) ILR 22 All 343; Janki v Girjadar, (1885) ILR 7 All 482; Budhai v Sonaulah, (1914) ILR 41 Cal 943 : 23 IC 395; Kheyali v Mullick, (1916) 1 Pat LJR 174 : 34 IC 210.
- 305 Jadu Lal v Janki Koer, (1908) ILR 35 Cal 575; Abdulla v Ismail, (1921) ILR 46 Bom 302 : 64 IC 913 : AIR 1922 Bom 124 .
- 306 Sitaram v Jiaul Hasan, (1921) ILR 45 Bom 1056 : 48 IA 475 : 64 IC 826 : AIR 1923 PC 41 .
- 307 Radhakisan Laxminarayan v Shridhar Ramchandra, [1961] 1 SCR 248 [LNIND 1960 SC 405] : AIR 1960 SC 1368 [LNIND 1960 SC 405] : [1961] 1 SCJ 215 . See also Janki v Girjadar, (1885) ILR 7 All 482
- 308 See Mulla's Mahomedan Law, Masum Vali Sahib v Iluri Mohin Sahib, (1952) ILR Mad 1010 : (1952) 1 Mad LJ 611 : AIR 1952 Mad. 671 [LNIND 1951 MAD 327] .
- 309 Abdul Hamid v Abdul Ghani, 148 IC 801 : AIR 1934 Oudh 163 .
- 310 Chaudhri Talib Ali v Kaniz, (1927) ILR 2 Luck 575 : 102 IC 142 : AIR 1927 Oudh 204 ; Bashir Ahmed v Zubaida, (1926) ILR 1 Luck 83 : 92 IC 265 : AIR 1926 Oudh 186 .
- 311 Saimunissa v S K Mohiuddin, AIR 1991 Pat. 183 , p 186; Usman Khan v Amir Main, AIR 1949 Pat. 237 .
- 312 Abbas Ali v Karim Baksh, (1909) 13 Cal WN 160 : 4 IC 466; Sarifuddin v Mohiuddin, (1927) ILR 54 Cal 754 : 105 IC 67 : AIR 1927 Cal 808 ; Fateh Ali v Muhammad, (1928) ILR 9 Lah 428 : 119 IC 258 : AIR 1928 Lah 516 ; Saburannessa v Subdu Shaikh, (1934) 38 Cal WN 747 : 152 IC 422 : AIR 1934 Cal 693 ; Usman Khan v Amir Khan, (1947) ILR 26 Pat 361 : AIR 1949 Pat. 23 ; Ghulam Abbas v Razia Begaum, (1952) ILR 1 All 477 : (1950) All LJ 917 : AIR 1951 All 86 [LNIND 1950 ALL 300] .
- 313 Bhaskar Waman Joshi v Shrinarayan Rambilas Agarwal, AIR 1960 SC 1954 ; followed in Kamal Shivajirao Katkar v Gajarabi Sopanrao Algude, AIR 2001 Bom 369 [LNIND 2001 BOM 297] : (2001) 3 Mah LR 290.
- 314 Shanmugam Pillai v Anna, AIR 1950 PC 38 : 1949 FCR 537 : (1950) 1 Mad LJ 683; K Simiathmull v Nanjalingiah Gowder, AIR 1963 SC 1182 [LNIND 1962 SC 95] .
- 315 V Pechimuthu v Gowranmal, (2001) 7 SCC 617 [LNIND 2001 SC 1561] , p 626 : AIR 2001 SC 2446 [LNIND 2001 SC 1561] .
- 316 Vitthal Maharn Patil v Fakira Bhavsing Patil, AIR 2011 (NOC) 292 Bom.
- 317 Mehdi Hussain Khan v Nusrat Hasan, AIR 2004 AP 123 : (2004) 2 Andh LD 45 : (2004) 1 ALT 569 .
- 318 V Pechimuthu v Gowranmal, (2001) 7 SCC 617 [LNIND 2001 SC 1561] , p 627–628 : AIR 2001 SC 2446 [LNIND 2001 SC 1561] .

54. Sale defined.—

- 319 Babu Ram v Indra Pal Singh, AIR 1998 SC 3021 [LNIND 1998 SC 750] : (1998) 6 SCC 358 [LNIND 1998 SC 750] .
- 320 S V R Mudaliar v Rajababu F Buhari, AIR 1995 SC 1607 [LNIND 1995 SC 513] : 1995 4 SCC 15 [LNIND 1995 SC 513] .
- 321 D R Rathna Murthy v Ramappa, (2011) 1 SCC 158 [LNIND 2010 SC 985] . AIR 2011 (NOC) 292 Bom.
- 322 Habeeb Khan v Valasula Devi, AIR 1997 AP 53 [LNIND 1996 AP 375] .
- 323 Kundurthi Ranganadham v Puli Ragaiah, AIR 2004 AP 415 [LNIND 2004 AP 375] : (2004) 3 Andh LD 629 : (2004) 4 ALT 209 .
- 324 Rajamma v B Renuka Murthy, AIR 2017 (NOC) 614 Kant. : 2011 (2) RCR (Civil) 414 : 2010 (10) Scale 625 [LNIND 2010 SC 985] : (2011) 1 SCC 158 [LNIND 2010 SC 985] .
- 325 Ethiraj V v Sridevi, AIR 2014 Kant. 58 [LNIND 2013 KANT 370] .

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed

MullaDr Poonam Pradhan Saxena

Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > Mulla The Transfer of Property Act, 13th ed > The Transfer of Property Act, 1882 > CHAPTER 3 Of Sales of Immovable Property

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882

CHAPTER 3 Of Sales of Immovable Property

Sections 54–57, Transfer of Property Act, 1882

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

In the absence of a contract to the contrary, the buyer and seller of immovable property respectively are subject to the liabilities, and have the rights, mentioned in the rules next following, or such of them as are applicable to the property sold:

- (1) The seller is bound—
 - (a) to disclose to the buyer any material defect in the property ³²⁶[or in the seller's title thereto] of which the seller is, and the buyer is not, aware, and which the buyer could not with ordinary care discover;
 - (b) to produce to the buyer on his request for examination all documents of title relating to the property which are in the seller's possession or power;
 - (c) to answer to the best of his information all the relevant questions put to him by the buyer in respect of the property or the title thereto;
 - (d) on payment or tender of the amount due in respect of the price, to execute a proper conveyance of the property when the buyer tenders it to him for execution at a proper time and place;
 - (e) between the date of the contract of sale and the delivery of the property, to take as much care of the property and all documents of title relating thereto which are in his possession as an owner of ordinary prudence would take of such property and documents;
 - (f) to give, on being so required, the buyer, or such person as he directs, such possession of the property as its nature admits;
 - (g) to pay all public charges and rent accrued due in respect of the property up to the date of the sale, the interest on all encumbrances on such property due on such date, and, except where the property is sold subject to encumbrances, to discharge all encumbrances on the property then existing.
- (2) The seller shall be deemed to contract with the buyer that the interest which the seller professes to transfer to the buyer subsists and that he has power to transfer the same:

Provided that, where the sale is made by a person in a fiduciary character, he shall be deemed to contract with the buyer that the seller has done no act whereby the property is encumbered or whereby he is hindered from transferring it.

The benefit of the contract mentioned in this rule shall be annexed to, and shall go with, the interest of the transferee as such, and may be enforced by every person in whom that interest is for the whole or any part thereof from time to time vested.

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- (3) Where the whole of the purchase-money has been paid to the seller, he is also bound to deliver to the buyer all documents of title relating to the property which are in the seller's possession or power:

Provided that, (a) where the seller retains any part of the property comprised in such documents, he is entitled to retain them all, and, (b) where the whole of such property is sold to different buyers, the buyer of the lot of greatest value is entitled to such documents. But in case (a) the seller, and in case (b) the buyer, of the lot of greatest value, is bound, upon every reasonable request by the buyer, or by any of the other buyers, as the case may be, and at the cost of the person making the request, to produce the said documents and furnish such true copies thereof or extracts therefrom as he may require; and in the meantime, the seller, or the buyer of the lot of greatest value, as the case may be, shall keep the said documents safe, uncanceled and undefaced, unless prevented from so doing by fire or other inevitable accident.

- (4) The seller is entitled—

- (a) to the rents and profits of the property till the ownership thereof passes to the buyer;
- (b) where the ownership of the property has passed to the buyer before payment of the whole of the purchase-money, to a charge upon the property in the hands of the buyer, ³²⁷[any transferee without consideration or any transferee with notice of the non-payment], for the amount of the purchase-money, or any part thereof remaining unpaid, and for interest on such amount or part [from the date on which possession has been delivered].

- (5) The buyer is bound—

- (a) to disclose to the seller any fact as to the nature or extent of the seller's interest in the property of which the buyer is aware, but of which he has reason to believe that the seller is not aware, and which materially increases the value of such interest;
- (b) to pay or tender, at the time and place of completing the sale, the purchase-money to the seller of such person as he directs:

provided that, where the property is sold free from encumbrances, the buyer may retain out of the purchase-money the amount of any encumbrances on the property existing at the date of the sale, and shall pay the amount so retained to the persons entitled thereto;

- (c) where the ownership of the property has passed to the buyer, to bear any loss arising from the destruction, injury or decrease in value of the property not caused by the seller;
- (d) where the ownership of the property has passed to the buyer, as between himself and the seller, to pay all public charges and rent which may become payable in respect of the property, the principal moneys due on any encumbrances subject to which the property is sold, and the interest thereon afterwards accruing due.

- (6) The buyer is entitled—

- (a) where the ownership of the property has passed to him, to the benefit of any improvement in, or increase in value of, the property, and to the rents and profits thereof;
- (b) unless he has improperly declined to accept delivery of the property, to a charge on the property, as against the seller and all persons claiming under him, ³²⁸[] to the extent of the seller's interest in the property, for the amount of any purchase-money properly paid by the buyer in anticipation of the delivery and for interest on such amount; and, when he properly declines to accept the delivery, also for the earnest (if any) and for the costs (if any) awarded to him of a suit to compel specific performance of the contract or to obtain a decree for its rescission.

An omission to make such disclosures as are mentioned in this section, paragraph (1), clause (a), and paragraph (5), clause (a), is fraudulent.

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Amendments

The following amendments have been made by Act 20 of 1929. In section 55(l)(a), the words “or in the seller’s title thereto” have been inserted. These give effect to the decision in *Haji Essa v Dayabhai*³²⁹ that a material defect in the property includes a defect in the title of the seller. In section 55(4)(b), the words “any transferee without consideration or any transferee with notice of the non-payment” have been inserted after the words “to a charge upon the property in the hands of the buyer”. The effect is that the unpaid seller’s charge is available not only against the buyer, but against a transferee from the buyer with notice of a gratuitous transferee. At the end of the sale clause, the words “from the date on which possession has been delivered” have been added to indicate that the buyer is liable for interest on unpaid price only from the date when he is put in possession. In section 55(6)(b), the words “with notice of the payment” have been omitted. This makes the charge of the buyer for price prepaid effective not only against the seller, but against all persons claiming under him, irrespective of notice.³³⁰

In the Absence of a Contract to the Contrary

Note (56) under the same head may be referred to.

Rights and Liabilities

The section set forth the rights and liabilities of the buyer and seller—

- (1) Before completion.
- (2) After completion.

These rights and liabilities are as follows:

(i) Before completion

	Seller's liabilities		Buyer's liabilities
section 55(l)(a)	To disclose material defects.	section 55(5)(a)	To disclose facts materially increasing value.

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

section 55(l)(b)	To produce title deeds.
section 55(l)(c)	To answer question as to title.
section 55(l)(d)	To execute conveyance.	section 55(5)(b)	To pay price.
section 55(l)(e)	To take care of the property.
section 55(l)(g)	To pay outgoings.
	Seller's right		Buyer's right
section 55(4)(a)	To take rents and profits.	section 55(6)(b)	Charge for price prepaid.

The rights and liabilities before completion are all contractual with the exception of the seller's right to take the rents and profits under section 55(4)(a), which is a right the seller has because he continues to be the owner after the contract. The seller's liabilities—to produce title deeds under section 55(l)(b); to answer question as to title under section 55(1)(c); to execute conveyance under section 55(l)(d); and to disclose defects under section 55(l)(a); and the buyer's liability to disclose facts materially increasing the value under section 55(5)(a)—merge in the conveyance. There is no remedy on them after the conveyance except on the ground of fraud, but omission of disclosure is expressly declared to be fraudulent. The buyer's liability to pay the price under section 55(5)(b) does not merge in the conveyance, and after conveyance is enforced by the seller's charge for unpaid price, in terms of section (55)(4)(b). Conversely, if the buyer has paid purchase money before conveyance, he has a charge under section 55(6)(b). The seller's liability to take care of the property under section 55(l)(e) and to pay outgoings under section 55(1)(g) are obligations collateral to the contract, which do not merge in the conveyance and can be enforced after completion.

(ii) After completion

Seller's liabilities		Buyer's liabilities
section 55(l)(f)	To give possession.	section 55(5)(c)	To bear loss to the property.
section 55(2)	Implied covenant for title.
section 55(3)	To deliver title deeds on receipt of price.	section 55(5)(d)	To pay outgoings.
	Seller's right		Buyers' right
section 55(4) (b)	Charge for price not paid.	section 55(6)(a)	Benefit of increment.

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

The buyer's rights and liabilities after completion—section 55(6)(a), section 55(5)(c), and section 55(5)(d)—are not contractual, but are incidents of the ownership that has been transferred to him. The seller's charge for unpaid price under section 55(4)(b) is a security for the enforcement of the buyer's liability to pay the price in terms of section 55(5)(b) which has not merged in the conveyance. The liability to give possession under section 55(1)(f), and to guarantee title as per section 55(2) are contractual liabilities implied in the conveyance.

Open Contract for Sale

When nothing is said as to the way in which the seller shall prove his title, and the contract for sale merely fixes the price which is to be paid for a certain piece of land, it is said to be an open contract.³³¹ The section sets forth the rights and liabilities that are implied in an open contract for sale, i.e., a contract in which the terms are not subject to particular conditions. They are merely an elaboration of the fundamental duties of the parties which are that the seller must make out a good title, execute a conveyance, and deliver the property and title deeds to the buyer; while the buyer must examine title, accept it if good, draft a conveyance for the seller to execute, and pay the price.

These implied conditions are usually varied and supplemented by particular conditions which are comprised in the comprehensive phrases “contract to the contrary.” A contract to execute a sale deed “containing the necessary stipulations” means a contract for sale on the conditions implied by this section.³³²

Section 55(1)(a)—Seller's Duty of Disclosure

A contract for sale of land is not a contract uberrimae fidei; but although the duty of disclosure is not absolute, the seller is under an obligation to disclose latent defects of which he is aware. This is the same rule as in the sale of goods under section 16 of the Indian Sale of Goods Act, 1930. In *Carlisch v Salt*³³³ J Joyce said:

In the case of a sale of the chattel, the law as stated by Bramwell, B in *Horsfall v Thomas*³³⁴ is that if there be a defect known to the manufacturer, and which cannot be discovered on inspection, he is bound to point it out. Upon consideration of the authorities, I am of opinion that the vendor of real estate is under a similar obligation with respect to a material defect in the title or the subject of the sale, which defect is exclusively within its knowledge, and which the purchaser could not be expected to discover for himself with the care ordinarily used in such transactions.

A latent defect is a defect which the buyer could not with ordinary care discover for himself. There is no duty to disclose defects of which the buyer has actual,³³⁵ or constructive notice.³³⁶ If at the time of execution of an agreement to sell, a proposal for acquisition of such land was pending before the government, but a notification of the same was not issued, the same does not constitute a material defect and the seller is not bound to disclose the same to the buyer.³³⁷ As to patent defects and defects of which the seller is unaware, the maxim of caveat emptor applies. However, a mutual mistake as to the matter of fact essential to the agreement will render the agreement void.³³⁸ The fact that rooms and flats constructed were not authorized and were illegal is a material fact, a non-disclosure of which would attract the application of this section.³³⁹ A litigation pending in the court with respect to the property that is proposed to be sold is a material fact. The rights of a bona fide purchaser who purchased the property in ignorance of the pending litigation in its regard ought to be protected, but the purchaser must be a bona fide purchaser who bought the property for adequate price.³⁴⁰ It has been held that there is a patent defect where it is obvious that there is a right of way enjoyed by some third person or by the public in general;³⁴¹ but that the existence of a public right of way is a latent defect if the land is not such as to indicate clearly a right of public user.³⁴² The ruinous condition of a house is a patent defect.³⁴³ The buyer can see these on inspection and if he is not vigilant and omits to take inspection, he has only himself to blame. An underground culvert or drain is a latent defect.³⁴⁴

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Material defect

The latent defect whether of property or of title must be material. This is decided with reference to the principle laid down by CJ Tindall in *Flight v Booth*³⁴⁵ that it must be of such a nature that it might be reasonably supposed that if the buyer had been aware of it he might not have entered into the contract at all, for he would be getting something different from what he contracted to buy. The terms of the contract will be referred to in order to decide whether the case falls within the rules in this case. Where land was sold for building purposes, an underground drain was held to be a material defect;³⁴⁶ but not when a house, and land were sold mainly for residence.³⁴⁷ Lack of an independent passage to the factory would be a material defect and a non-disclosure of the same, despite repeated correspondence; and a false assurance of clear independent approach road would hold the seller liable for not only non-disclosure, but actually misleading the buyer with respect to a material defect.³⁴⁸

Defects in property

It was at one time doubted whether this phrase included defect in title, but the Bombay High Court held that it did,³⁴⁹ and the amending Act of 1929 has adopted this decision by adding the words "or in the seller's title thereto." A defect in title is a material defect.³⁵⁰ A defect may be of property or of title and a defect of property may also be a defect of title, for a right of way across land would be a good objection to title. Defects of property are defects which interfere with the physical enjoyment of the land sold. Trifling defects such as rotten boards or joints need not be disclosed.³⁵¹

Defect in title

Defects in title are always latent defects,³⁵² for a seller's title is a matter exclusively within his own knowledge and he is bound to state it explicitly, and to tell the entire truth which is relevant to the matter in hand.³⁵³ In the absence of words to the contrary, the presumption is that the seller is giving a title free from reasonable doubt and this rule is implied in section 25(b) of the Specific Relief Act, 1877, which corresponds to section 17 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963. A title free from reasonable doubt is a marketable title which can at all times be forced upon an unwilling purchaser.³⁵⁴

The following are instances of a defect in the seller's title: an encumbrance;³⁵⁵ a notification and not a mere proposal³⁵⁶ of intended acquisition under the Land Acquisition Act;³⁵⁷ a restrictive covenant;³⁵⁸ an easement;³⁵⁹ a party-wall notice and award throwing upon the owner the liability to contribute to rebuilding;³⁶⁰ unusually onerous covenants in a sale of lease-hold property;³⁶¹ or the fact that the agreed root of title is a voluntary conveyance.³⁶² In a Bombay case³⁶³ it was held that an outstanding equitable mortgage was not a material defect in the title, as the amount of the mortgage was less than the price and could be cleared by the vendor. Where a person sells property not belonging to him, it is clearly a case of fraud and not a mere material defect

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

in title. The case is outside section 55(l)(a), and such a person must make good the loss suffered by the other party.³⁶⁴

Non-disclosure

If before he has accepted the conveyance the buyer discovers a material defect which has not been disclosed, he may claim damages or rescind the contract for misrepresentation. He may also resist a suit for specific performance. The duty of disclosure merges in the conveyance, but if the buyer has accepted the conveyance he has a remedy in damages on the covenant for title.³⁶⁵ The fact that the buyer knew of the defect in title of the seller prior to the purchase, does not prevent him from suing for damages for breach of the covenant.³⁶⁶ Again, as non-disclosure of a material defect is a fraud, he may sue to set aside the sale and claim damages.

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A sells to B an enclosed field. Before accepting the conveyance, B discovers that the public have a right of way across the field of which there is no visible indication on the land. This is a defect both on the property and in the seller's title. A not having disclosed this defect, B may refuse to complete and claim damages. He can also resist a suit for specific performance.

(2) A sells a property to B. After he has accepted the conveyance, B discovers that under a decree for partition a portion of the property had been allotted to C. A's omission to disclose the decree is fraudulent and B may sue to set aside the conveyance.³⁶⁷

The onus of showing a failure to disclose a defect in title is on the purchaser.³⁶⁸

In a case where Flat buyers buying Flats and occupying the same with full awareness that revised plans for their flats had been rejected by authorities, the Supreme Court held that the only remedy available to flat owners is to sue sellers of flats/developers for refund of their money and/or for damages.³⁶⁹

Section 55(l)(b)—Production of Title Deeds

Under this sub-section the seller is to produce his title deeds for inspection, and not for delivery. Title deeds are delivered on receipt of the whole of the purchase money under section 55(3). This sub-section requires the seller to produce the title deeds for inspection by the buyer in order that the buyer should satisfy himself as to title, but it makes no reference to the title abstract.³⁷⁰

There is no obligation to produce title deeds unless the buyer makes a request.³⁷¹ They must be produced within a reasonable time, and this is so even if the agreement requires them to be produced "forthwith".³⁷² However, the buyer must not omit to take inspection, otherwise he will be held to have constructive notice of matters which he would have discovered, if he had investigated the title.³⁷³

The words "in the seller's possession or power" indicate that the seller must produce not only documents which are in his possession, but also in his power. They do not enable a purchaser to insist on the production of documents not in the possession or power of the seller or to claim expenses of incurring a search for them in the office of the Collector or Registrar. Such a right can be derived by an express term of contract.³⁷⁴

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Section 55(1)(c)—Requisitions

When the documents of title are produced under the last sub-section the buyer examines them and if he is not satisfied, he makes requisitions or objections. These are (1) requisitions on title; (2) requisitions as to matters relating to conveyance; and (3) merely inquiries.

Requisitions on title are objections purporting that the documents do not show the agreed title or that the documents are not efficacious, i.e., not duly attested or not executed by parties having the capacity to convey, or that the identity of the property is not established, or that further evidence is necessary. Examples of such requisitions will be found in the cases mentioned in the footnote herewith.³⁷⁵

Requisitions as to matters relating to conveyance refer to such matters as the joinder or concurrence of parties to the conveyance.

Inquiries are for the protection of the buyer, and call attention to possible omissions of disclosure by the seller, and seek information on such points as easements, party walls and insurance.

The conditions of sale usually contain a stipulation requiring requisitions to be made within a certain time of the delivery of the abstract. This stipulation is construed as referring to the delivery of a perfect abstract, i.e., an abstract which shows all the documents, and gives all the facts upon which the vendor's title is based.³⁷⁶ Such a stipulation cannot operate to thrust upon a purchaser a property to which no title is shown.³⁷⁷

Answers to requisitions

The seller is bound to answer all requisitions which are relevant to the title and which are specific. He is not bound to answer a general inquiry as to whether there was within the knowledge of the seller or his solicitor any settlement, deed, fact, omission or encumbrance affecting the property, and not disclosed by the abstract.³⁷⁸ He is bound to answer to the best of his information questions regarding the income or rental of the property.³⁷⁹ The contract may give the vendor an express power of rescission if requisitions are made which he is unwilling to comply with. But even so, the vendor is not relieved of his duty to make out his title.³⁸⁰ Where the vendor has failed to answer requisitions, the purchaser is entitled to rescind the contract; he need not formally demand answers or make time the essence.³⁸¹ The duty to answer requisitions is altogether distinct from the duty of disclosure under section 55(1)(a), for the omission of the buyer to make a requisition will not absolve the seller if he has not made a full disclosure.³⁸² Where a vendor sells land under an open contract, he cannot compel the purchaser to accept a statutory declaration as sufficient evidence to contradict statements appearing in the documents of title, such as the consideration stated in a deed which shows prima facie that the deed is insufficiently stamped.³⁸³

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Waiver of requisitions

The buyer may waive requisitions. Waiver may be express, or may be implied from conduct as when a buyer does not press a requisition that has been made, or ask for time to pay the price;³⁸⁴ or when he enters into possession or pays the whole or part of the price.³⁸⁵ Such conduct constitutes waiver as it shows an acceptance of title. However, the question is one of fact to be decided on all the circumstances of the case, and payment of price and entry into possession will not have this effect if the contract provides that this may be done before completion.³⁸⁶ Such implied waiver only refers to the title shown in the abstract or the documents produced, but not to an extraneous defect subsequently discovered,³⁸⁷ or to an encumbrance removable by the seller.³⁸⁸

Section 55(1)(d)—Execution of Conveyance

The execution of the conveyance, and the payment of price are reciprocal duties to be performed simultaneously.³⁸⁹ If either party sues for specific performance, he must show that he was ready and willing to perform.

It is the duty of the buyer to tender a conveyance,³⁹⁰ but unless time is made the essence, it need not be tendered at any particular time.³⁹¹ The buyer has to send a notice to the seller calling him to execute a sale deed. Without sending such a notice, the buyer is not entitled to a suit for specific performance of contract. Thus where A requested B to execute a sale deed on the assurance that he was ready and willing to fulfil his part of the contract of paying the balance of the consideration amount, but B instead of executing the sale deed in favour of A executed a lease deed of the same property in favour of C, and A sent him a notice demanding his money back, a suit for specific performance of the contract seeking relief of execution of sale deed would not be granted by the court, without A sending him notice to the effect of execution of sale deed.³⁹² Both the obligation to tender a conveyance³⁹³ and to pay the price at the time of execution³⁹⁴ are, of course, subject to a contract to the contrary. Where on the sale and purchase of land, the description in the contract affords a sufficient and satisfactory identification of the property sold without a plan, the purchaser cannot require, at the expense of the vendor, a plan to supplement the description.³⁹⁵ There is no indication in the section as to what is the proper time and place for execution. The time is usually settled by the contract, and if it is not so settled, the proper time is the date when the seller makes out his title. If a time is fixed, and an unreasonable delay occurs, the proper course is to give notice making time the essence of the contract.³⁹⁶ In India, in the absence of any express terms, the buyer has to pay the cost of the stamp.³⁹⁷ A vendor is under an obligation to oblige the purchaser and execute conveyance in favour of the assignee of the purchaser, where the conditions of the tender/bid do not so prohibit, where the contract is not one of personal service or where the purchaser is not to discharge any obligation to the seller after the execution of the sale deed. When the whole of the bid amount has to be deposited. However recognizing right of assignment prior to deposit of the whole of the consideration and confirmation of sale would not defeat the entitlement of the applicant.³⁹⁸ If there has been a re-sale by the buyer and the conveyance is direct to the sub-purchaser, the seller may require the original buyer to be a party to the conveyance if there is a difference of price;³⁹⁹ but not otherwise, for an ordinary contract of sale is to convey to the purchaser or to such persons as the purchaser shall direct.⁴⁰⁰ The payment of price is usually acknowledged in the conveyance, and a receipt also is endorsed upon it, and attested by the seller's solicitors. The purchaser on receipt of the executed conveyance presents it for registration. The seller had to admit execution before the Registrar, and he should also be called upon to admit receipt of the price.⁴⁰¹ An auction purchaser can seek issuance of the sale certificate in favour of his nominee and the vendor has to oblige.⁴⁰²

Section 55(1)(e)—Care of Property

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Although a contract of sale transfers no right in rem (as it does in English law) yet, as already explained,⁴⁰³ it imposes upon the seller a personal obligation in the nature of a trust, and though he is still the owner, this sub-section imposes on him the same duties as are imposed upon a trustee by section 15 of the Trusts Act. The English law imposes the same liability;⁴⁰⁴ and in *Phillips v Silvester*⁴⁰⁵ Lord Selborne said that:

the vendor is pro tanto a trustee in possession for the purchaser, although he holds the purchaser at arm's length, and a trustee, therefore, who is bound to do those things which he would be bound to do if he were a trustee for any other person.

The seller must do what a prudent owner ought to do, and keep the property in reasonable repair and protect it from injury by trespassers.⁴⁰⁶ The seller must also take care of the title deeds, for loss of the deeds depreciates the value of the property, and is damage done to the estate.⁴⁰⁷ On completion he must deliver the title-deeds to the buyer.⁴⁰⁸

The obligation declared by this sub-section is one collateral to the contract, and does not merge in the conveyance. Section 55(5)(c) also implies that after completion the buyer is not responsible for any loss caused by the seller. If the seller neglects his duty, the buyer is entitled to compensation to be deducted from the purchase money; and after completion, the buyer may recover damages.⁴⁰⁹

Section 55(l)(f)—Possession

It is the duty of the seller to give possession and not to leave the buyer to get possession for himself,⁴¹⁰ notwithstanding a condition in the sale deed that if no possession is given the vendee may take steps to take possession.⁴¹¹ The implied contract to give possession may be enforced by a suit for specific performance.⁴¹² The vendee, however, has no right to obtain from the vendor expenses which he may have incurred subsequent to the sale in obtaining the possession of the property.⁴¹³

There are four classes of possession: possession in consequence of proprietary interest, possession in consequence of licensory or contractual right and gratuitous or purely permissive possession. In the case of gratuitous or permissive possessee, a suit of injunction against dispossession by owner of premises is not maintainable as such person holds the property on behalf of the owner and acquires no right or interest irrespective of long possession. The protection of the court may be granted only if there is a valid subsisting rent agreement, lease deed or licence agreement in his favour.⁴¹⁴ It is not necessary in a suit for specific performance either to separately claim possession, or for the court to pass a decree for possession. A decree for specific performance of contract includes everything incidental to be done by one party or another to complete the sale transaction, the rights and obligation of the parties in such a matter being indicated by section 55 of TP Act, 1882.⁴¹⁵ The most important part of such a decree is the portion where the court directs that the contract to be specifically performed, and the details which follow do not in any way limit the jurisdiction of the executing court to take particular steps which were mentioned in the decree, but all other steps which ought to be taken for giving full effect to the decree of specific performance are not only within the competence of the court, but the court is bound to assist the party to the decree.⁴¹⁶

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

The sub-section does not say when the seller should give possession, but section 55(4)(a) shows that possession should be given when ownership passes to the buyer.⁴¹⁷ This would be at the time of execution of the sale deed,⁴¹⁸ unless it was the intention of the parties that the transfer of ownership should be deferred till the payment of the price.⁴¹⁹ If that is not the intention, the seller cannot refuse possession because the price has not been paid.⁴²⁰ However, the right of the buyer to obtain possession under section 55(1)(f), and the right of the seller to realize the unpaid balance of the price under section 55(4)(b), may be enforced in the same action. The High Court of Calcutta, Allahabad and Rangoon have held that if the buyer sues for possession, he may be required to deposit the balance in court within a time specified, failing which his suit will be dismissed.⁴²¹ But the High Court of Madras has held that the vendee is entitled to possession, and cannot be put to equitable terms as to payment of price.⁴²² The Bombay High Court has held that in a suit by the vendee to recover possession, the court is not competent to pass a decree for possession conditional upon payment of the unpaid price, but may incorporate in the decree for possession, the statutory charge under section 55(4)(b) for the unpaid price.⁴²³ Where the vendor is not in a position to give possession of the property agreed to be sold by him to the purchaser, the purchaser will be entitled to rescind the contract, and claim the advance that may have been paid.⁴²⁴ The forfeiture of money paid as part payment of purchase price and not as earnest money is impermissible. The justification of the forfeiture of advance money being a part of “earnest money” should be clear and explicit in the contract.⁴²⁵

As its nature permits

These words refer to physical possession in the case of tangible property, and symbolical in the case of intangible property. (Property already in the possession of the buyer is dealt with in the note “Delivery of Property” under section 54.) Possession is a flexible term, and does not necessarily import personal occupation. So when a buyer had notice of a tenancy⁴²⁶ or of a usufructuary mortgage,⁴²⁷ he was only entitled to symbolical possession. In this connection it may be noted that a direction by the mortgagor to the tenants to pay rents to the mortgagee constitutes a usufructuary mortgage.⁴²⁸ Ordinarily, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, if the agreement is to sell a house in which the seller has the sole and absolute interest, the possession that its nature permits delivery of, is vacant possession. The possession of tenants or trespassers in the house cannot affect the nature of the property. Thus, when property is sold with all rights and free from encumbrances, the seller is bound to give vacant possession of the property which is occupied by the trespassers.⁴²⁹ Where the sale is through the court, then the court has to ensure delivery of possession of property even if there was no prayer to that effect by the buyer.⁴³⁰ It has been held that in the case of agricultural land, the vendor must normally give vacant possession.⁴³¹

Section 55(1)(g)—Outgoings Pending Completion

The liability imposed upon the seller by this sub-section is collateral to the contract, and may be enforced after completion. The same liability exists under English law. It results from his duty under section 55(1)(e) to take care of the property pending completion. The English phrase “outgoings” includes reasonable repairs; but under the TP Act, 1882 the seller’s liability for such is attributable to his duty under section 55(1)(e) to take care of the property. The seller who repairs is, under section 55(4)(a), entitled to the rents and profits for the same period, i.e., between contract and completion, as these constitute the fund out of which he would bear the expense. By agreement, the parties may agree that the vendor shall pay all public charges due at the date of the delivery of possession instead of at the date of the sale.⁴³² When the vendor has contracted to sell the property free from encumbrances, but due to the non-payment of interest since the contract of sale on the mortgage already created on the property, the mortgage dues have been considerably increased, and the vendor is unable to deliver possession of the property free from encumbrance, he cannot be allowed to take advantage of his own wrong.⁴³³

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Encumbrances

If the property is not sold free from encumbrances, the seller's duty to discharge an encumbrance may also be referred to after completion of the covenant for title implied by section 55(2). In Nathu Khan v Burtonath,⁴³⁴ the Privy Council said:

The purchase deed contained the express declaration that the property was sold free from encumbrances and consequently by section 55(l)(g), sub-section (2) of the Transfer of Property Act the vendor must have been deemed to contract with the buyers that he had power to transfer the property so sold, and consequently, that the property was free from burdens.

If the buyer has to discharge such an encumbrance owing to the seller's default, the seller is liable, under section 69 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, for the moneys paid by the buyer to clear his title.⁴³⁵ However, when a buyer has agreed to discharge the encumbrance, he cannot claim to be reimbursed by the seller.⁴³⁶ Under section 18(c) of the Specific Relief Act, 1877, which corresponds to section 13 of the Act of 1963, the buyer has a right to compel the seller to discharge the encumbrance. The buyer is not bound to accept an indemnity from the seller.⁴³⁷ But, if the seller has not paid off the encumbrance, the buyer may do so himself under section 55(5)(b), and set off the amount against the price. If the buyer is dispossessed by the encumbrancer, he may sue for damages on the implied covenant for title recognised in section 55(2), and in this subsection.⁴³⁸ If the encumbrance is a common charge on the property sold and other properties, the buyer may under section 56 insist on its being discharged out of the other properties. If the buyer sues for specific performance of the contract for sale, the court may direct the seller to discharge the encumbrance before he is paid the price.⁴³⁹

It is immaterial that the buyer was aware of the encumbrance when he contracted to buy.⁴⁴⁰ In such a case, there is no duty of disclosure by the seller under section 55(l)(a) and, therefore, no fraud, but the statutory liability does not depend upon proof of fraud.⁴⁴¹ If the buyer pays the encumbrance, he has a right to be indemnified by the seller.⁴⁴² The existence of a covenant in the sale deed guaranteeing non-existence of an encumbrance would entitle the seller to indemnity.⁴⁴³ This right of indemnity was denied in an Allahabad case⁴⁴⁴ before the TP Act, 1882 on the ground that there was no express provision in the contract of sale, and no such relation as is contemplated by sections 69 and 70 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872. It is submitted that it should have been treated as an implied term of the contract, and that section 69 was applicable. In another case, the buyer was not allowed any damages when it was found that in defending a suit by the mortgagee he did not show sufficient diligence.⁴⁴⁵

The sale is not subject to encumbrances, unless there is an express provision to that effect.⁴⁴⁶ If the sale is subject to encumbrances, the seller in addition to the price of his interest gets under section 55(5)(d) an implied indemnity against encumbrances affecting the property.⁴⁴⁷ In a case where property was sold subject to an encumbrance which was stated to be of ₹16,300, and the buyer had to pay ₹23,000 to clear it, it was held that he was not entitled to recover the difference from the seller.⁴⁴⁸ This was, however, merely a matter of the construction of the sale deed. Where the purchaser purchases the property being secured assets being the highest bidder at an e-auction believing them to be free from all encumbrances and charges and in addition the bank also issued sale certificates that the scheduled property is free from all encumbrances, there would be no obligation on part of the purchaser to discharge the liability of outstanding dues towards previous owner.⁴⁴⁹

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Proof of discharge of encumbrance

If the sale is not subject to encumbrances, the vendor does not make out a marketable title, unless he gives satisfactory evidence of the discharge of encumbrances. Thus, if he produces a release of a mortgage, he must show that the release is signed by a person duly authorized.⁴⁵⁰

Rents

The seller of leasehold property is bound to pay rents accruing due upto the date of sale.⁴⁵¹ In the same way, the buyer is required by section 55(5)(d) to pay rents accruing due after ownership has passed to him.

Public Charges

Public charges would include tax liabilities to the statutory authorities,⁴⁵² i.e., government revenue,⁴⁵³ municipal taxes, and payments charged upon land by statute either expressly or impliedly, by reason of their being recoverable by distress or other process against the land. If the buyer has to pay such charges owing to the seller's default, he would have the same right to indemnity as in the case of an encumbrance. The public authority imposing the charge will levy it on the party who is the owner for the time being, and is not concerned with the rights inter se of the buyer and seller.⁴⁵⁴ The liability exists before the completion of the sale and continues thereafter, whether the existence of such charges or encumbrances is discovered before or after the completion. The obligation, unless there is a contract to the contrary, is absolute.⁴⁵⁵ Such a contract to the contrary must be express and not implied, as a result whereof the meaning of the term encumbrance would be expanded.⁴⁵⁶ Where electricity is disconnected for nonpayment of dues, the distributor cannot be compelled to give connection to the buyer without making recovery from him,⁴⁵⁷ but where the property of a company under liquidation is purchased on "as is where is basis" and the buyer applies for fresh connection in his name, the buyer would not be liable to pay arrears of electricity dues of erstwhile company for availing supplies.⁴⁵⁸

Duty to Enable Completion

It has been held by the Privy Council⁴⁵⁹ that there is an implied covenant by the vendor to do all things necessary to effect a transfer, so where a vendor contracts to sell sir land, which can only be transferred after sanction by the revenue authorities, the vendor must apply for such sanction. This decision has been followed by the Supreme Court in Chandnee Widya Vati Madden v C L Katial,⁴⁶⁰ and Nathulal v Phoolchand.⁴⁶¹ The Supreme Court in Rojasara Ramjibhai Dahyabhai v Jani Narottamdas Lallubhai,⁴⁶² has held that if the vendor agrees to sell the property which can be transferred only with the sanction of some government authority, the court has jurisdiction to order the vendor to apply to the authority within a specified period, and if the sanction is forthcoming to convey to the purchaser within a certain time. Following the said decision, the Delhi High Court has held that the seller cannot avoid the agreement on his own ipse dixit for non-performance of the terms on his part as agreed.⁴⁶³

Section 55(2)—Covenant for Title

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

In a Calcutta case,⁴⁶⁴ CJ Rankin observed that this clause contemplates a completed contract, and corresponds to the covenant for title in an English conveyance. The Madras High Court has said that this sub-section applies to cases where the transaction has not progressed beyond the stage of contract,⁴⁶⁵ and the clause was referred to in a Lahore case while the transaction was still at the stage of contract,⁴⁶⁶ but these cases, it is submitted, are incorrect.

Prior to completion and in the absence of any express stipulation in the contract, the buyer's right is to a title, free from reasonable doubt. Under section 17(b) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963, a vendor cannot enforce specific performance, unless he can give the buyer a title free from reasonable doubt. In Babu Bindeshri v Mahant Jairam,⁴⁶⁷ the buyer sued for specific performance of a contract for sale as the seller had refused to give him a guarantee of good title, but the Privy Council dismissed the suit as the plaintiff was not entitled to an absolute guarantee of title. However, the refusal of a vendor to give such a guarantee does not disentitle the buyer from claiming specific performance of the contract of sale.⁴⁶⁸

The expression "title free from reasonable doubt" is analogous to the expression "marketable title" adopted by courts of law while interpreting section 55(2). Bare expectancy of getting a right in course of time is not the same thing as asserting that the person asserting has an interest in the immovable property. "Marketable title" is one in which the vendor would be in a position to force the property concerned on an unwilling purchaser under all circumstances. It should be shown to be free from doubts which a court of law would be disposed to accept as serious or sufficient.⁴⁶⁹ Covenant under section 55(2) relates only to the title conveyed. If the title itself is restricted—eg subject to statutory charge—there cannot be a covenant of higher title. If the title is subjected to statutory charge under section 55(4), then the plaintiff who prevents defendant from cutting and removing the trees is not in breach of the covenant.⁴⁷⁰

The provisions of section 55(1) enable the buyer before completion to ascertain if the title offered is free from reasonable doubt. Once he has accepted the conveyance and the sale is completed, he has no remedy on the contract except for fraud. Thus, a dispute arising subsequent to the contract for sale of the property about a particular clause in the deed during the negotiations about the form the deed should take, cannot affect the completeness of the contract already made, nor can it amount to a repudiation when it is not persisted.⁴⁷¹ If the sale is vitiated by fraud, the buyer can sue to set aside the sale and to recover the price. Omission to make disclosure under section 55(l)(a) is fraud.

The implied covenant of title applies to any lawful eviction by the title paramount, and imports an absolute warranty of the title professed to be transferred, and of the seller's power to deal with it. It, therefore, supersedes the strict rule of English law by which the doctrine of caveat emptor applies after the buyer has accepted the conveyance.⁴⁷² The covenant for title implied by section 55(2) gives the buyer a further remedy in cases of defects discovered after the conveyance.⁴⁷³ The implied covenant for title has nothing to do with the question whether the buyer has notice of the defect of the title; even if the buyer was aware of the defect at the time of the contract, he may, under this covenant, hold the seller responsible in damages,⁴⁷⁴ and claim a return of the purchase money if he is dispossessed by reason of a defect in title.⁴⁷⁵ However, the seller's liability is limited to the title which he has professed to transfer. If he describes himself as malik and does not mention that he has derived title from Hindu women, the interest which he professes to transfer is a full proprietary title. If he has only professed to transfer occupancy right,⁴⁷⁶ he is not liable if the buyer is evicted by title paramount. However, if the vendor sells occupancy land as if he was absolutely entitled, he is liable in damages for breach of this covenant, irrespective of whether the buyer was aware of the defect.⁴⁷⁷ So also if he sells non-transferable cantonment land as if he were absolutely entitled,⁴⁷⁸ or if he sells as free from encumbrances, land which is subject to an encumbrance.⁴⁷⁹ A mortgage debt is immovable property and if the mortgage debt is sold, and it then appears that the mortgage was invalid, the buyer is entitled to damages for breach of the implied covenant for title.⁴⁸⁰ If an owner of property which is made non-transferable by statute agrees to transfer that property in a manner intended to circumvent the provision of the statute, the agreement is void in law and unenforceable, and damages cannot be awarded for breach of such an agreement. However, if a person purports to convey and agrees to guarantee quiet enjoyment to the vendee, the vendor or any person claiming under him cannot avoid paying damages for breach of the agreement.⁴⁸¹ Where a suit for the return of purchase money is based on the express covenant contained in the deed, section 55(2) has no application.⁴⁸² An agreement to sell by a mortgagee does not extinguish the equity of redemption. In such a case, the vendor is not liable for damages, but only to the return of the purchase money.⁴⁸³

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Two persons purchasing as co-tenants have separate interest with reference to the implied covenant for title, and may enforce it by separate suits.⁴⁸⁴

Mere existence of contract for sale or a decree for specific performance would not confer a title on the buyer and even if the buyer has been put in part performance of the contract in terms of section 53 A of the Act, such claim does not confer any title to buyer. The transfer of title occurs only when execution and registration of document takes place. Any charge or attachment created over the property of seller prior to the contract of sale would stand with priority over and above transfer of property.⁴⁸⁵ The questions regarding the validity of an agreement and enforceability without redemption of mortgage by transferor in the case of an agreement for sale of property mortgaged with bank are therefore required to be determined by courts.⁴⁸⁶

Misdescription

Misdescription may be either of title, or of the property. Misdescription of title is a breach of the covenant for title, and gives a right to damages as explained in the last paragraph. However, the covenant for title does not extend to misdescription of property or corporeal misdescription, i.e., as to the extent of the land sold.⁴⁸⁷ In such a case, a suit will lie for rectification in a case of mutual mistake or fraud under section 31 of the Specific Relief Act, 1877, corresponding to section 26 of the Act of 1963. But there may be a special covenant in the conveyance for compensation for errors.⁴⁸⁸ In such a case, even a sub-purchaser may recover damages, for the benefit of the covenant runs with the land.⁴⁸⁹

Misdescription before completion

If the misdescription is discovered before the conveyance is executed the purchaser may rescind or claim damages if the misdescription is in a material and substantial point, so far affecting the subject-matter of the contract, that it may reasonably be supposed, that but for such misdescription, the purchaser would never have entered into the contract.⁴⁹⁰ This is so even though there is a condition for compensation. However, if the misdescription does not materially alter the substance of the contract, the purchaser must complete and accept compensation.⁴⁹¹

Limitation

A suit for the return of purchase money may or may not be based on the implied covenant for title; if it is not, limitation is either under Article 24 or Article 47 of the Act of 1963, corresponding respectively to Article 62 and Article 97 of the Act of 1908. If it is, limitation is under Article 55 of the Act of 1963, corresponding to Article 116 of the Act of 1908. After the Limitation Act, 1963 was enacted, the distinction is of little importance, as the period of limitation under Article 55 is also three years.

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

In Hanuman v Hanuman,⁴⁹² the Privy Council held that a suit relating to a voidable sale deed was governed by Article 97 (corresponding to Article 47) as the sale went off on an objection taken by the coparceners of the vendors. It was observed, however, that if the sale was void ab initio, the appropriate article would be Article 62 (corresponding to Article 24). This was followed in Tulsiram v Murlidhar,⁴⁹³ where the sale was voidable and Article 97 was applied, and in Ardeshir v Vajesing,⁴⁹⁴ where the sale was void and Article 62 was applied. The same rule applied to cases governed by TP Act, 1882. If the sale is voidable, limitation is under Article 97 (corresponding to Article 47 of the 1963 Act) from the date of dispossession,⁴⁹⁵ or from the date when the imperfection of title is declared.⁴⁹⁶ If the sale is void and possession is not given, Article 24 (corresponding to Article 62 of the Act of 1908) would no doubt be applied. However, the case where possession is given even though the sale is void, is not treated as a case of total failure of consideration ab initio, and Article 97 corresponding to Article 47 of the Act of 1963 is applied from the date of dispossession.⁴⁹⁷

If the suit for refund of the purchase money is on the implied covenant for title, Article 116 corresponding to Article 55 of the Act of 1963 applies. This is because the word “compensation” in Article 116 is not restricted to a claim for unliquidated damages and includes a claim for a certain and liquidated sum;⁴⁹⁸ and a covenant in a registered deed is contract in writing registered within the article.⁴⁹⁹ Therefore, if the sale is void as the seller has no title to convey and possession is not given, limitation is under Article 116 from the date of the sale deed.⁵⁰⁰ The distinction between the breach of registered contracts and other contracts has been abrogated in the Limitation Act, 1963.

The covenant for title is a covenant that the vendor has a present title to convey, and is broken on the execution of a sale deed containing such a covenant.⁵⁰¹ It might, therefore, be supposed that if the vendee is put into possession and subsequently dispossessed owing to a defect of title, limitation under Article 116 corresponding to Article 55 of the Act of 1963 would still run from the date of the sale deed. But CJ Macleod in Multanmal v Budhumal,⁵⁰² pointed out that the discovery of the defect and dispossession might occur more than six years from the date of sale so that the terminus a quo for limitation should be the date of dispossession. If there is an express covenant for quiet enjoyment or for indemnity in case of dispossession, limitation will be under Article 116 corresponding to Article 55 of the Act of 1963 from the date of disturbance.⁵⁰³

Express Covenant for Title

Express covenants override and do away with the effect of all implied covenants.⁵⁰⁴ However, although an express covenant is a special stipulation which alone governs the right of the parties, yet the implied covenant cannot be got rid of except by clear and unambiguous expressions;⁵⁰⁵ so that the express covenant is over and above that implied by this sub-section.⁵⁰⁶ For instance, in a case⁵⁰⁷ where the covenant was:

you shall henceforward be enjoying the same hereditarily and with right of alienation by gift, sale or otherwise as you please. Removing the hindrances to this arising from my agnates or king or neighbour, I shall see that the sale is given effect to in your favour without any obstruction—it was held to be covenant for title as well as a covenant for quiet enjoyment. But although the recitals showed that title was derived from a widow, yet the implied covenant for title was not excluded because there were no clear and unambiguous expressions showing that the vendor did not mean to guarantee that he had a good title. The usual express covenant for title, is, like the above, one that includes a covenant for quiet enjoyment.⁵⁰⁸ An express stipulation to compensate the purchaser for any defect in title is not an express covenant for title, and does not exclude the implied covenant for title prescribed by section 55(2); the purchaser can, therefore, maintain a suit for the refund of a portion of the purchase money.⁵⁰⁹ A covenant for quiet enjoyment does not exclude the covenant for title, for a specific covenant will not exclude an implied covenant, unless it relates to the same subject matter. Thus, in the case of sale of his interest by a mortgagee with a covenant to make good any sums that had been paid by the mortgagor, this covenant was referred to the personal debt and did not exclude the implied covenant for title, and the mortgagee was liable in damages when the mortgage proved to be invalid.⁵¹⁰ In another case, the covenant in a sale deed was that “if any dispute arises through me in respect of the land, I shall get it settled”, the Madras High Court held that this was an express covenant for quiet enjoyment and that it did not exclude the implied covenant for title.⁵¹¹ This is correct, for a covenant for quiet enjoyment is a future covenant. However, where in an Allahabad case⁵¹² the covenant was:

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

if, God forbid, any person comes forward as partner or co-sharer and brings a claim, or if an encumbrance, etc. is found... and the property passes out of the possession of the vendees we, the vendors shall... pay to the vendees... the consideration of this sale deed with costs.

It was held to exclude the implied covenant for title and when the vendees had to pay a sum exceeding the purchase-money to clear a prior mortgage, the court held that they had no remedy. But this decision was erroneous and was reversed by the Privy Council.⁵¹³

Their Lordships observed:

With regard to the last portion of the sale deed, which states what is to ensue in the event of the vendees being put out of possession, it may, of course, be an additional safeguard, it may have been a thing suggested by the parties to cover contingencies which were not yet wholly foreseen, but that it contradicts or restricts the wider language of the contract of sale or that it either narrows or wipes out the obligation under the statute, cannot be maintained.

In other words, their Lordships held that it was a covenant for quiet enjoyment, which did not exclude the implied covenant for title. It has been held that eviction by a pre-emptor is due to the buyer being disqualified to purchase and is, therefore, not a breach of covenant for title.⁵¹⁴ The correctness of this decision is very doubtful for the seller's covenant is “that he has power to transfer”, and this must mean transfer to the buyer. With reference to the covenant for quiet enjoyment, a general covenant to indemnify the purchaser against any loss that might accrue in connection with sale has been held to apply to eviction by a pre-emptor.⁵¹⁵ However, a covenant to refund the purchase money in case of dispossession does not apply to eviction by a pre-emptor, as the pre-emptor would have to pay the purchase money.⁵¹⁶ A covenant for quiet enjoyment does not become a covenant for delivery of possession. There is no breach of covenant of quiet enjoyment in a case where no possession was delivered under the sale deed, and there is no subsequent dispossession.⁵¹⁷ A recital in a sale deed to the effect that there was no encumbrance of whatever nature such as usufructuary mortgage implies that the purchaser would be reimbursed, if he suffers damage in consequence of any dispute.⁵¹⁸

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Fiduciary Character

The implied covenant for title does not apply in the case of a trustee; or in the case of a guardian selling on behalf of a minor.⁵¹⁹ A trustee is only deemed to covenant that he has done no act whereby the property is encumbered or his power of transfer restricted. If a trustee conveys without disclosing his fiduciary character, he could no doubt be required to convey “as beneficial owner” so as to become subject to the usual covenants for title. Section 38 of the Trust Act, 1882, empowers trustees to sell on special conditions.

Runs with the Land

The benefit of the implied covenant for title runs with the land.⁵²⁰ It is, therefore, enforceable by subsequent purchasers of the land; and if the buyer re-sells to several purchasers, each one is entitled to sue on the covenant in respect of his part. In David v Sabin:⁵²¹

A granted a lease to B, and B mortgaged to C. B then surrendered the term to A. A mortgaged to D, and then A and D conveyed to E. A had, however, not got in the interest left outstanding in C. C established his charge by suit against E. The Court of Appeal held that A was liable on the covenant for title to E and that as the covenant ran with the land it was no difference that B had mortgaged without the knowledge of A.

Restrictive covenant in a deed of conveyance running with the land, has been dealt with in several cases.⁵²² Covenants running with the land are further dealt with in the notes on sections 40, 108(c), and 108(j).

Section 55(3)—Delivery of Title Deeds

The title deeds are things which pass with the conveyance without being named, as accessory to the estate.⁵²³ This has been a principle of English law since the earliest times.⁵²⁴ Accordingly, as in England, the seller has to deliver to the buyer all deeds relating to the property conveyed.⁵²⁵ This includes documents in his power, but not in his possession and the cost of obtaining them must be borne by the seller.⁵²⁶ Counterpart leases and kabuliyets are deeds of title accessory to the estate;⁵²⁷ and it has also been held that village account books should be delivered on the sale of a village, as they are necessary for the enjoyment and management of the estate.⁵²⁸

Prior to completion, the seller is bound under section 55(l)(b) to produce all title deeds in his possession and power, for inspection. However, the duty to deliver them does not depend upon completion. Even if the seller has executed the conveyance and put the buyer in possession, he need not deliver the deeds, until the price has been paid in full. This accords with the English law under which the seller's equitable lien gives him a right to retain the deeds of title until payment.⁵²⁹ In Ma Hnit v Maung Po Pu,⁵³⁰ where the price had already been paid, the Privy Council observed that:

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

the duty of the purchaser ... was to tender a conveyance, and he would then, and not before such a tender was either made or waived, have the right to the deeds as the accompaniment of the transferred title.

The first exception to the rule is where the seller retains part of the property comprised in the deeds in which case he may retain the deeds, but is under an obligation for their safe custody and to produce and give true copies of them when required.

The second exception is when the property is sold in different lots. In that case the purchaser of the lot of the greatest value is entitled to the documents, but is under the same liability as to their safe custody and production, as stated in the preceding paragraph. This rule may be excluded by an express contract to the contrary, eg that the purchaser of “the largest lot”, i.e., the lot of the greatest area, should have the deeds.⁵³¹ The sub-section does not explain what is to be done if the sales are at different times. In that case, the last purchaser would be entitled to the documents.⁵³²

Section 55(4)(a)—Rents and Profits

As already explained, the contract for sale transfers no right in rem.⁵³³ The seller is the owner subject to an obligation to fulfil the contract and accordingly, he has to take care of the property—section 55(1)(e); and to pay public charges and rents—section 55 (1)(g). This sub-section, therefore, declares his right to receive rents and profits which belong to him as owner, and which are the funds out of which he performs the duties of maintenance. The right to receive rents and profits remains with the owner despite an agreement to sell the property which passes no title on the prospective vendee.⁵³⁴

This sub-section shows that possession should be given by the seller when ownership passes to the buyer.⁵³⁵ But if the buyer takes possession before completion, he would, as he takes the rents and profits, pay interest on unpaid purchase-money. This is because it is inequitable that the same person should enjoy both the rents and profits of the land as also the interest of the money.⁵³⁶ It makes no difference that the land yields no profit, and that the delay in completion is due to the seller.⁵³⁷ The rule in Fludyer v Cocker,⁵³⁸ that possession and interest are mutually exclusive was applied by the Judicial Committee in a case of compulsory acquisition, and the owner was allowed interest on price from the date on which he was dispossessed.⁵³⁹ The committee said:

The Lordships are of opinion that the right to interest depends upon the following broad and clear considerations. Unless there is something in the contract of parties which necessarily imports otherwise, the date when one party enters into possession of the property of another is the proper date from which interest on the unpaid price should run. On the one hand, the new owner has possession, use, and fruits; on the other, the former owner parting with these, has interest on the price. This is sound in principle, and authority fully warrants it.

The Supreme Court has followed this principle.⁵⁴⁰ It has been observed, however, that this rule is outside the provisions of the TP Act, 1882, and may be negated by an express or implied condition to the contrary, or by evidence of conduct.⁵⁴¹

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

The only exception to this rule is when after the buyer has taken possession, the seller delays completion and the circumstances are such as to require the purchaser to keep the purchase money lying idle and unproductive. In such a case the seller will not be entitled to interest.⁵⁴² If the seller refused to execute a conveyance or to give possession, the buyer will be entitled to specific performance by execution of the conveyance, and compensation which would be mesne profits from the date when the conveyance should have been executed and possession given.⁵⁴³ If the buyer takes possession before completion, the seller is entitled to interest on unpaid price from the day on which buyer actually takes possession although the buyer might safely have taken possession earlier.⁵⁴⁴

Section 55(4)(b)—Seller's Charge for Unpaid Price

Clause (b) of sub-section (4) of section 55 provides that where the ownership of the property is transferred to the buyer before payment of the whole of the sale price, the vendor is entitled to a charge on that property for the amount of the sale price as also for interest thereon from the date of delivery of possession. Originally, there was no provision with regard to the date from which interest would be payable on the amount of unpaid purchase money. It was on the recommendation of the Special Committee that the words “from the date on which possession has been delivered” were inserted into this clause by section 17 of the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Act, 1929. This clause obviously applies to a situation where the ownership in the property has passed to the buyer before the whole of the purchase money was paid to the seller or the vendor. The statutory charge is inflexible.⁵⁴⁵

If the sale is completed by conveyance and the price or any part of the price is unpaid, the seller has under this sub-section a charge for the balance of price unpaid. This charge is the converse of the buyer's charge for price prepaid under section 55(6)(b). The mere execution of a promissory note by the vendee for the purchase money in favour of the vendor does not put an end to the vendor's charge for the unpaid purchase money, even if the vendor sues upon the note and obtains advance or even if he assigns the decree.⁵⁴⁶ Where the contract stipulated the specific date by which the price was to be paid, a suit for specific performance of contract at the instance of the transferee would be dismissed if the price was not paid by that date and was deposited only after court's notice.⁵⁴⁷ A sum of money kept with the vendee under a sale deed by the vendor, is a portion of the unpaid purchase money for which the vendor has a lien on the property sold.⁵⁴⁸ If besides the averment in the plaint the purchaser gives no evidence to show that the amount was kept ready and available it would be presumed that the buyer was not ready and willing to pay the price.⁵⁴⁹ Thus, in a case where an agreement was entered into and a sale deed was executed by which the vendee agreed to pay an additional amount if the property sold yielded a larger amount of the profit, it was held that the additional amount agreed to be paid, was a part of the purchase price and was a charge on the property.⁵⁵⁰ Where a mortgagee having purchased the entire mortgaged property, an arrangement was arrived at between the mortgagee and the widow and infant son of the original mortgagor, pursuant to which the mortgagee reconveyed one village out of the mortgaged properties purchased by him and the widow being unable to pay the price executed a mortgage in favour of the mortgagee-purchaser which mortgage, however, was found invalid for want of attestation, the Privy Council held that the transaction constituted a sale and under section 55(4)(b), the mortgagee-purchaser who became the vendor was entitled to a charge on the village for the unpaid purchase price.⁵⁵¹ According to the practice prevalent in Bihar known as “ta khubzul badlain” (that is title to the property passing to the purchaser only when there is exchange of equivalent), where a sale deed recites that entire sale consideration has been paid and possession has been delivered, but registration receipt as also the possession of the property is retained by vendor as agreed consideration (either full or in part) is not received, irrespective of recitals in sale deed, title would not pass to the purchaser till payment of entire consideration to vendor and registration receipt is obtained by purchaser in exchange. In such cases on sale deed being executed and registered, registration receipt (which is issued by the sub-registrar) authorizing holder thereof to receive registered sale deed on completion of formalities is received and retained by vendor and is not given to the purchaser. The vendor who holds the registration receipt will either receive the registered document or keep the original sale deed in his custody or may keep the registration receipt without exchanging it for the registered document from the registrar till payment of the consideration is made. Where the purchaser pays the price, i.e., the whole price or part that is due, on or before the agreed date, he receives in exchange the registration receipt from the vendor entitling him to receive the original registered sale deed as also the possession. If payment is not made as agreed, the vendor could repudiate the sale and refuse to deliver the registration receipt/ registered document as the case may be, which is in his custody and proceed to deal with the property as he deems fit, by ignoring the rescinded sale.

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Thus where the vendees had not paid the consideration of ₹22000 at the time of execution and registration of sale deed, the recitals in the sale deed that the vendor had received the entire price of ₹22000 from the purchasers and had transferred all his rights therein and that on such sale the vendor had relinquished and transferred possession of property to purchasers will not be of any assistance to the vendees to contend that the title had passed to them or part consideration was paid.⁵⁵²

Where, however, the title in the property has passed, but possession has not been delivered, the seller is not entitled to interest on the purchase price.⁵⁵³ In an Andhra Pradesh case, a part of the sale consideration remained unpaid under the compromise decree for specific performance. Therefore, by the operation of section 55(4)(b), the seller had the first charge on the property that was passed on to the buyers. In the event of any breach of the express terms of the decree by any one of the parties, the other party could enforce it. Hence, a charge created by the operation of section 55(4)(b) for the unpaid purchase money in a decree for specific performance can be enforced by bringing the property to sale without a further suit under O XXXIV, rule 14 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908.⁵⁵⁴

To an oral sale, section 55(4)(b) does not apply, and the vendor has no charge on the unpaid part of the consideration.⁵⁵⁵

In case of the non payment of the balance amount by the buyer, the seller is not empowered to forfeit the earnest amount paid by him without notice and without there being a clause in the contract to that effect. In such cases the court can direct the seller to return the earnest with interest to the buyer.⁵⁵⁶

Punjab

The principle of section 55(4)(b) has been applied to Punjab as a rule of justice, equity and good conscience.⁵⁵⁷

Non-possessory

The charge has been said to be a non-possessory lien,⁵⁵⁸ i.e., it is not a right to retain possession.⁵⁵⁹ Accordingly, as the ownership has passed, the charge gives the seller no right to refuse possession.⁵⁶⁰ The Madras High Court has held that if the vendee sues to recover possession after the execution of conveyance but before payment of price, the court has no power to put him on equitable terms as to the payment of price.⁵⁶¹ However, the Calcutta High Court, following a judgment of J Mahmud in an Allahabad case,⁵⁶² has held that such terms may be imposed as “there is no reason why the right of the purchaser to obtain possession under section 55(l)(f), and the right of the vendor to realise the unpaid balance of the purchase money under section

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

55(4)(b) should not be recognised and enforced in one action”.⁵⁶³ The Rangoon High Court has followed the High Court of Calcutta.⁵⁶⁴ The Bombay High Court, while not making payment of the balance of the purchase money a condition of the purchaser obtaining possession, proceeds as if the vendor had counter-claimed. The purchaser’s suit for possession is decreed, but in the decree a declaration of the vendor’s charge is incorporated with a direction that the vendor should on payment of the court fee recover the amount by sale of the property.⁵⁶⁵ The same view is taken by the Nagpur High Court.⁵⁶⁶ The Allahabad High Court held that the provisions of section 55 did not exclude the application of the principles of equity; hence, where a purchaser who has not paid the full price, sues for possession, he can be put to terms by the decree.⁵⁶⁷ If the seller is not in possession, he cannot of course rescind and reclaim possession because the buyer has not paid.⁵⁶⁸ The seller’s only remedy is to sue to enforce his charge, and he may also under section 55(3) refuse to part with the title deeds, if he has not already done so. Part of the purchase money left with the vendee, if unexpended, ensures for the benefit of the vendee, and not of the vendor.⁵⁶⁹

Section 55(5)(b) is reciprocal with and complimentary to section 55(4)(b). Where the amount of the purchase price is left with the vendee for payment to an usufructuary mortgagee, it is not the money that is due to the vendor under section 55(5)(b) and, therefore, a statutory charge or a vendor’s lien cannot be said to exist where an agreement between the parties is that the vendee should discharge the mortgage and recover possession.⁵⁷⁰

Several Buyers

If there are several purchasers, the seller is not concerned with the proportion to be paid by each, but he has a charge on the whole property for unpaid purchase money.⁵⁷¹

Substitution of Equivalent Property

If the seller is unable to deliver possession of the property sold and the buyer accepts in substitution other equivalent property, the buyer remains liable for unpaid price.⁵⁷²

In the Hands of the Buyer

This expression has been made more intelligible by the addition of the words inserted by the Amending Act 20 of 1929. The phrase now is “in the hands of the buyer, any transferee without consideration or any transferee without notice of the non-payment.” This construction seems to have been put upon the section by the Privy Council in Webb v Macpherson.⁵⁷³ It was adopted by the courts in India,⁵⁷⁴ and has now received the sanction of the legislature.

ILLUSTRATION

A sold his house to B. There was a recital in the sale deed that the price had been paid. But the price had not been paid and 11 days after registration, B, as he could not raise the money, returned the deed to A with an endorsement rescinding the conveyance. The endorsement was not registered and did not affect B’s title. The house was attached and sold by an execution creditor of B. The purchaser became the legal owner of the house but took subject to A’s charge for unpaid purchase money. The purchaser could not claim to be a purchaser without notice as A was in possession at the date of the sale.⁵⁷⁵

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

In a case where the seller admitted receipt of consideration by a recital in the deed and also by a receipt endorsed on the deed, it was held that he was estopped from enforcing his charge against a transferee for value.⁵⁷⁶ However, in another case it was said that recitals of receipt of consideration where none was paid was so common that there was no estoppel.⁵⁷⁷ In such cases, it becomes a question of fact whether the transferee took with notice of the charge.

Interest

After the words “interest on such amount or part” the words “from the date on which possession has been delivered” have been added by the amending Act 20 of 1929. This amendment adopts the decision of the Madras High Court in *Muthia Chetty v Sinna Velliam*⁵⁷⁸ that the rights to interest depends upon the circumstances and equities of each case, and that interest on the unpaid purchase money will not be payable as long as the seller is in possession of the land. The purchaser is not liable if he retains part of the purchase money as security for the seller discharging an encumbrance.⁵⁷⁹ However, if the purchaser retains part of the purchase money in order to pay off an encumbrance himself, and then fails to do so, he is liable for interest.⁵⁸⁰

Enforcement

The charge is enforced under section 100 by a suit for sale as if the seller were a mortgagee. The charge cannot be enforced by a creditor,⁵⁸¹ or by a judgment creditor.⁵⁸² Being only a charge, it cannot be enforced against a bona fide purchaser for value without notice of the charge.⁵⁸³

Limitation

Article 53 in the Limitation Act, 1963, applies only to suits to recover the price from the defendant personally, while suits to enforce the charge against the property are governed by Article 132 of the Act of 1908, which is now re-enacted as Article 62 of the Act of 1963. This was so decided both before and after the amendment of the article.⁵⁸⁴ If liability arises by virtue of a registered conveyance, limitation was governed by Article 116 of the Act of 1908,⁵⁸⁵ after 1 January 1964, however, there is no article corresponding to Article 116, and Article 53 or Article 62 would apply. Time runs not from the date of the sale, but from the date when the plaintiff is damnified.⁵⁸⁶

Recital of Payment

A false acknowledgement of receipt of price by a recital in a deed does not estop the seller from giving evidence as against the buyer that he has not received payment. The Privy Council in *Shah Lal Chand v Indarjit*⁵⁸⁷ said that it was settled law, that notwithstanding an admission in a sale deed that the consideration has been received, it is open to the vendor to prove that no consideration has been actually paid. If it was not so, facilities would be afforded for the grossest frauds. However, such a recital may give rise to a presumption of payment.⁵⁸⁸

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Exclusion of Charge

Sale is a transfer for a price paid or promised or part paid or part promised. Therefore, where the consideration is price promised, the promise is itself the consideration, and there is no scope for a charge. So also, when the price is part paid and part promised, and the amount to be paid is fully paid. The distinction between a sale in consideration of covenant to pay a sum of money in the future and a sale in consideration of a sum of money which the buyer covenants to pay, may seem fine, but it is a very real distinction.⁵⁸⁹ The former gives rise to a charge, the latter does not. If the sale is in consideration of a sum of money which the buyer covenants to pay, the charge may be excluded by an agreement express or implied which is inconsistent with its continuance.

In Webb v Macpherson,⁵⁹⁰ the Privy Council said:

In their Lordships' opinion there is no ground whatever for saying that the charge is excluded by a mere personal contract to defer payment of a portion of the purchase money, or to take the purchase money by installments, nor is it in their Lordships' opinion, excluded by any contract, covenant, or agreement with respect to the purchase money which is not inconsistent with the continuance of the charge.

A direction to the buyer to pay the price to the creditor of the seller or to a third party does not exclude the charge.⁵⁹¹ If part of the purchase money is left with the buyer to pay off creditors of the seller, the seller is entitled to a charge for the amount left with the buyer, if the latter omits to pay the creditors.⁵⁹² Nor is the charge lost if the seller takes a security for the amount unpaid such as a memorandum of agreement,⁵⁹³ or a bond,⁵⁹⁴ or a mortgage,⁵⁹⁵ or a promissory note.⁵⁹⁶ However, if there is an agreement which puts the buyer under an enforceable liability to a third party as to the unpaid price, there is a contract to the contrary and the charge is lost. Thus, the seller has no charge if the buyer by his direction executes a promissory note to a third party, for the right to recover the unpaid price cannot reside in one party, and the right to enforce the security in another.⁵⁹⁷ So also, if the direction to pay a third party is the result of a novation by which the seller's liability to the third party is extinguished, and the buyer becomes liable to the third party instead of the seller.⁵⁹⁸ In cases where it was held that the promissory note or mortgage was not collateral security for the price, but the price itself, the charge was excluded.⁵⁹⁹ Where the vendor leaves a part of the price with the vendee to be paid to his illegitimate son on attaining majority, the vendor is not entitled to have a lien on the property sold.⁶⁰⁰

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A sells property to B on the 10 February 1905 for ₹790. At the time of the conveyance, ₹300 are paid and ₹490 remain unpaid. For this amount B on the 13 February 1905 executes a registered bond promising to pay the amount in installments of ₹50 per mensem. B fails to pay and on the 10 February 1917. A sues to recover the unpaid price and to enforce his charge on the property sold. The remedy on the bond was time barred at the date of suit. But the bond was only a collateral security for the price. A had therefore a charge for the unpaid price. Limitation to enforce the charge was 12 years under Article 132. The suit on the charge was in time and was decreed.⁶⁰¹

(2) A is a minor and his guardian on his behalf sells A's share of a house for ₹2,886 to B. B pays half the price

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

and as security for the unpaid balance executes a bond promising to pay A the sum of ₹1,443 with interest at 6% when he attained majority. A's charge for unpaid price is not lost.⁶⁰²

(3) A sells property to B for ₹28,000. Of this amount ₹8,200 are paid on the date of the conveyance, ₹19,800 are left with B to discharge a mortgage by A on the same and two other properties. B on the same date executes a security bond hypothecating his property as security for the payment of the mortgage, and covenanting to pay ₹15,000 damages in case he defaults in making the payment by a fixed date. B dies not paying off the mortgage. A is entitled to a charge for ₹19,800, being the unpaid price, but as to the ₹15,000, he is entitled only to damages actually incurred.⁶⁰³

(4) A sells property to B for ₹2,000 of which ₹1,000 is not paid. A owes ₹1,000 to C. C agrees to release A from liability for the debt and to recover the amount from B who promises to pay C instead of A. The arrangement is a contract to the contrary and the charge is lost.

Waiver

The charge as explained in the preceding paragraph is not waived on equitable considerations which would apply to the unpaid vendor's equitable lien in English law. It can only be waived by an express contract to the contrary or by an implied contract, i.e., some conduct inconsistent with the continuance of the charge.

The case is overruled by the Madras High Court in *Sivasubramania Ayyar v Subramania Ayyar*⁶⁰⁴ which proceeded on the ground of waiver, despite the warning given by the Privy Council in *Webb v Macpherson*⁶⁰⁵ that a statutory charge cannot be waived on equitable grounds. In Punjab where the TP Act, 1882 is not in force, the English rule was followed in a case where the seller agreed to accept shares in lieu of cash for the balance of the price.⁶⁰⁶

Assignment

If the seller assigns the debt for the unpaid price, the assignee gets the benefit of the charge if the assignment is registered, but not otherwise.⁶⁰⁷

Leases

The charge under this section cannot be extended to leases. There is no charge on the leasehold for unpaid premium even though the lease be in perpetuity.⁶⁰⁸

Owerty of Partition

An owerty of partition is the difference paid in money in order to equalise shares in corporeal property which are incapable of a precise division, and in such a case, there is an implied lien or charge created on the land taken under partition for the payment of the owerty.⁶⁰⁹ In a decision of the Kerala High Court,⁶¹⁰ the majority held that section 55(4)(b) applies to cases where the owerty is unpaid. It is respectfully submitted, however, that the majority view is erroneous, and the view of J Raghavan dissenting, that owelty is a part of the property being partitioned and cannot be equated to the purchase price, is correct.

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Section 55(5)(a)—Buyer's Duty of Disclosure

The seller is by section 55(l)(a) under a duty to disclose latent defects. There is no doubt that the buyer is under no duty to disclose latent advantages, although he may not make a statement which is misleading. This is also the law in England as stated in the following passage from the judgment of Lord Selborne in Coaks v Boswell:⁶¹¹

Every such purchaser is bound to observe good faith in all that he says or does, with a view to the contract, and (of course) to abstain from all deceit, whether by suppression of truth or by suggestion of falsehood. But inasmuch as a purchaser is (generally speaking) under no antecedent obligation to communicate to his vendor facts which may influence his own conduct or judgment when bargaining for his own interest, no deceit can be implied from his mere silence as to such facts, unless he undertakes or professes to communicate them. This, however, he may be held to do, if he makes some other communication which, without the addition of those facts, would be necessarily or naturally and probably misleading.

Thus a buyer need not disclose the existence of a coal mine of which the seller is unaware.⁶¹²

However, to this rule matters of title constitute an exception. Although the seller's title is ordinarily a matter exclusively within his knowledge, yet there may be cases where the buyer has information which the seller lacks. In such a case, he must not make an unfair use of it. He must give the information to the seller under the penalty of the contract being voidable for fraud both under section 17(5) of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, and the last clause of this section. An English illustration is the case of *Summers v Griffiths*⁶¹³ where an old woman sold property at an undervalue believing that she could not make out a good title to it, while the purchaser knew that she could. The purchaser was held to have committed a suppressio veri and the sale was set aside as fraudulent. Another is *Ellard v Landaff (Lord)*⁶¹⁴ where a lessee obtained a renewal of a lease, in consideration of a surrender of the old lease, suppressing the fact that the person on whose life the old lease depended was on his death bed. This case has been adversely criticised,⁶¹⁵ but it would be good law under TP Act, 1882, and had been adopted in illustration (a) to section 22 of the Specific Relief Act, 1877. The corresponding section in the Specific Relief Act, 1963 (section 20), does not however, contain that illustration.

There are no cases in India under the sub-section, but it has been described in *Haji Essa v Dayabhai*⁶¹⁶ as casting upon the buyer the duty of communicating facts about the seller's title.

Section 55(5)(b)—Payment of Price

This sub-section is the corollary of section 55(l)(d), for the execution of the conveyance by the seller, and the payment of price by the buyer are reciprocal duties to be performed simultaneously. The buyer is bound to tender a conveyance for execution,⁶¹⁷ but the buyer is not bound to part with the price except on a complete conveyance to himself of the whole interest that he has purchased. This sub-section imposes a personal liability on the buyer, apart from the liability imposed by section 55(4)(b) on the property.⁶¹⁸

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Section 55(5)(b) does not require the buyer to deposit the purchase money in court when his tender is refused by the seller, and the tender does not become invalid for non-deposit in court.⁶¹⁹

Free from Encumbrances

It follows that if the property is sold free from encumbrances and they are not discharged at the time of conveyance, the buyer is not bound to pay. He may under section 13(l)(c) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963, compel the vendor to discharge the encumbrance; or he may, under this sub-section, discharge it himself and set off the amount against the purchase money,⁶²⁰ or recover it by a subsequent suit against the vendor.⁶²¹ If the amount due on the encumbrance is greater than the purchase money, he may retain the latter as security for the seller discharging it; and in such a case, he will not be liable for interest on the purchase money until after the seller has shown himself ready and willing to pay the difference and discharge the encumbrance.⁶²² If the seller has deposited a sum with the buyer for the discharge of the encumbrance and the sum proves to be greater than what is due, the excess belongs to the seller as part of his price.⁶²³

ILLUSTRATION

A mortgages property to her son-in-law B. A dies and her son C and daughter D, the wife of B, succeed to the property under Mahomedan law. C sells his share to E free from encumbrances and deposits ₹426 with E for the discharge of the mortgage to his brother-in-law B. B remits half the amount due on the mortgage. C is entitled to the amount remitted as part of his price.⁶²⁴

Section 55(5)(c)—After Completion Buyer Bears Losses

After completion by conveyance, the ownership of the property having passed to the buyer, the buyer is the owner, and the property is at his risk. If the seller has committed waste, he is liable, but for all accidental destruction or deterioration after conveyance, the loss falls on the buyer.

It is clear both from this sub-section as well as sub-section (1)(e) that in the interval between the contract and conveyance, the seller bears the loss. Illustration (a) to section 13 of the Specific Relief Act, 1877, would suggest the opposite. However, that illustration is based on English law, and could not be applied where TP Act is in force,⁶²⁵ and has not been re-enacted in the Specific Relief Act, 1963.

If the seller has insured the property against fire, the buyer may require the seller to apply the insurance money in restoring the premises.⁶²⁶

Section 55(5)(d)—Outgoings After Completion

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Under section 55(l)(g) the seller pays public charges and rents which have accrued due upto the date of the sale. After the sale, this liability is transferred to the buyer. The liability is a statutory and not a contractual liability and, therefore, it is binding on a minor vendor on whose behalf the property is sold.⁶²⁷

If the property is sold free from encumbrances, i.e., if absolute ownership is to be conveyed, the seller must discharge the encumbrances. If a mortgagee brings to sale the mortgaged property free from encumbrances, the amount of municipal taxes accrued due before the sale must be deducted from the sale proceeds payable to him.⁶²⁸ If the property is sold subject to encumbrances, the seller must pay interest on the encumbrances up to date of sale and after the completion, the buyer is liable to discharge the encumbrances.⁶²⁹

The liability enacted in this sub-section is between the seller and the buyer. If after a sale subject to encumbrances, the seller is made personally liable for an encumbrance, he has a right of indemnity against the buyer. If the encumbrance proves to be invalid, the seller has nothing to complain of, for his indemnity is complete. He cannot pick up the burden of which the land is relieved, and claims it as his. The seller cannot participate in any benefit the buyer may derive from his purchase after the conveyance.⁶³⁰

ILLUSTRATION

A sells property to B for ₹5,000. The sale is subject to a mortgage encumbrance which was believed to be of ₹2,000. After the sale it is discovered that the mortgage is invalid; so that B has got complete ownership for ₹5,000. A then sues to recover ₹2,000 as part of his purchase money. A's suit fails for after conveyance. The seller cannot participate in any benefit derived by the buyer from his purchase.

It is pertinent to note that this illustration is the converse of the illustration in the note "Free from encumbrances" under section 55(5)(b).

Public charges would be payable by the seller or by the buyer accordingly as they accrue before or after the sale.⁶³¹ The liability of the seller and the buyer inter se is no concern of the authority levying the charge.⁶³² If the charge is levied upon the seller after transfer of ownership, he has a right of indemnity against the buyer.⁶³³ Interest accrues due from day to day and would be apportioned accordingly; the seller paying interest upto the date of sale, and the buyer paying subsequent interest. The buyer is bound to pay rents accruing due after the conveyance, just as the seller is under section 55(l)(g) bound to pay rents accruing due upto the date of sale. The sub-section assumes that the liability to pay rent is apportionable.

Section 55 (6)(a)—Benefits After Completion

After completion, the transfer passes to the buyer all rights of ownership, and such rights as are under section 8 the legal incidents thereof. As to rents and profits, section 55(4)(a) gives these to the seller until completion, and this sub-section gives them to the buyer after completion. If any repairs are made by the seller to the property sold, the buyer is entitled to the benefit of such repairs, and the seller cannot claim any compensation for the same.⁶³⁴

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Section 55(6)(b)—Buyer's Charge for Price Prepaid

In the absence of a contract to the contrary, the buyer will have a charge on the seller's interest in the property which is the subject matter of the sale agreement insofar as the purchase money and interest on such amount are concerned, unless the buyer has improperly declined to accept delivery. The charge is available against the seller and all persons claiming under him.⁶³⁵ This charge in favour of the buyer is the converse of the seller's charge under section 55(4)(b). The principle underlying this provision is a trite principle of justice, equity and good conscience.⁶³⁶ It arises in favour of the buyer, the moment he pays the purchase money or any part of it and cannot be subsequently lost unless the buyer commits a default. A subsequent compromise entered into between the seller and the buyer that too at the time when the seller had lost title would not efface this statutory charge available to the buyer.⁶³⁷

Since this charge is statutory charge in favour of a buyer, and is different from a contractual charge to which the buyer may become entitled to under the terms of the contract, consequently, the buyer is entitled to enforce the said charge against the property and for that purpose trace the property in the hands of the third parties, and even when the property is converted into another form by proceeding against the substituted security, since none claiming under the seller including a third party purchaser can take advantage of any plea based even on want of notice of the charge. The said statutory charge gets attracted and gets attached to the property for the benefit of the buyer the moment he pays any part of the purchase money,⁶³⁸ and is only lost in case of purchaser's own default or his improper refusal to accept delivery.⁶³⁹

The buyer has a charge for price prepaid, i.e., for price that he has paid in anticipation of completion. Interest on price prepaid would run from the date of payment to the date of delivery of possession.⁶⁴⁰ After the conveyance is executed and possession is given, this clause has no application.⁶⁴¹ The buyer's charge would never be lost to the vendor even though he has not filed a suit for specific performance on the basis of agreement of sale. Subsequent compromise entered into between seller and buyer and that too at time when seller had lost title would not efface statutory charge available to the buyer under section 55 (6) (b).⁶⁴²

A charge would not be created if the parties expressly stipulate that the purchase money will not form the charge on the property, or it will be released from the charge on certain circumstances, or that earnest would be forfeited under certain circumstances.⁶⁴³ If the seller has no personal interest in the property, there can be no charge under this sub-section. This was so held in a case where a mutawalli (who is a mere custodian) sold wakf property without the sanction of the court.⁶⁴⁴ Where a guardian of a minor contracts to sell a property and such transfer is for legal necessity, the purchaser has a charge for the price paid on the minor's interest in the property.⁶⁴⁵ No charge is available where the sale is not genuine.⁶⁴⁶

Where the agreement for sale is invalid or void, no charge would attach to the property;⁶⁴⁷ this would be so, for instance, where a landlord agrees to sell land to a stranger, even though a tenant was in possession, contrary to section 64 of the Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act, 1948.⁶⁴⁸

There is a reference to the buyer's charge in an Oudh case,⁶⁴⁹ which is difficult to understand. The shares of a father and sons were brought to sale in execution of a money decree and bought by A. Before the sale was confirmed, the property was mortgaged to B by a mortgage which was valid as to the father's share only. B paid off A, and the sale was set aside. Subsequently, the son's share was sold subject to B's mortgage, to C. B sued to enforce his mortgage, and it was held that B was entitled to recover the amount he had paid to A to set aside the sale. This is good law, for B's payment was not efficacious and he had paid the money for the preservation of his security. However, the judgment seems to proceed on the ground that B was subrogated to the charge of the purchaser A whose sale was set aside. It is difficult to understand how A's charge could continue after the sale had been set aside, and the price refunded to him. The judgment refers to section 55(4)(b), but that again seems to be a mistake for section 55(6)(b). The principle underlying section 55(6)(b) is a principle of justice, equity and good conscience, and applies to Punjab.⁶⁵⁰ The buyer's charge, under the section is a statutory charge and differs from a contractual charge which a buyer may be entitled to claim under a separate contract.⁶⁵¹ A buyer can enforce his statutory charge against the property, and the plea of want of notice on the part of a third person would be of no avail.⁶⁵² A buyer's charge exists even in cases where the buyer is in possession of the property intended to be sold, and is not lost by his accepting the delivery of possession.⁶⁵³ The creation of a charge under the section is not at all difficult when the buyer comes into possession of the property intended to be sold. It arises immediately when the purchase price is paid by the buyer to the seller.⁶⁵⁴

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

When the contract goes off by reason of the default of the seller and without the default of the buyer, the buyer does not lose the charge. The buyer can claim return of the purchase money under section 55(2) even if he was aware of the defect in the title of the same at the time of the contract. After the amendment of 1929, the charge can be enforced, according to the Madras High Court, even against persons claiming through the seller, irrespective of notice.⁶⁵⁵

All Persons Claiming under him

The charge on the property is enforceable not only against the seller, but against all persons claiming under him. It can be enforced by the buyer against the property and even against a subsequent transferee without notice.⁶⁵⁶ Before the amending Act of 1929, the words "with notice of payment" occurred after the words "all the persons claiming under him". These words were omitted as they allowed a transferee without notice to escape. After the amendment of 1929, notice to the purchaser has become irrelevant.⁶⁵⁷ Therefore, a transferee for consideration and without notice is also bound by the charge.⁶⁵⁸ A gratuitous transferee, or a transferee for value with notice would in any event be liable under the second para of section 40.

Where the vendor has been declared an evacuee, the purchaser can claim against the property, but cannot bring to sale the property sold by the competent authority to a third party.⁶⁵⁹ Thus, a tenant purchasing his landlord's property under the provisions of the Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act, 1948, is not a person claiming under the landlord, as the transaction is involuntary.⁶⁶⁰

Improperly Declines to Accept Delivery

The buyer has a charge for all sums that he pays towards the purchase money, and for interest thereon. This charge attaches from the moment the buyer pays any part of the purchase money, and is only lost in case of his own subsequent default.⁶⁶¹ If the buyer improperly refuses to accept delivery, he loses his charge. However, when the property is compulsorily purchased by the Central Government under chapter XX-C of the Income Tax Act, 1961, there is no occasion for the buyer to have improperly declined to accept delivery of the property. Where, the amount of purchase money was properly paid by the buyer, in anticipation of the fulfillment of the contract which would include delivery of the property, the order of compulsory purchase having intervened, the transferees were excluded from accepting delivery of property.⁶⁶²

Although the buyer loses his charge the seller has no right to retain any installments of price that have been paid, unless they have been paid as deposit or earnest. In a suit against the buyer, whether for specific performance or for damages, the seller would have to give credit for moneys prepaid not as earnest, but as installments of price.⁶⁶³

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

In a Madras case, the intending buyer revoked his right to have the sale executed in his favour, only because the official assignee (in whom the property had in the meantime vested on the insolvency of the seller) insisted on bringing the property to sale in the interest of creditors, and the insolvency court so directed. It was held that the buyer can insist upon a charge on the property being created for the amount paid as purchase money and can secure a charge for the price pre-paid, that is to say, the price paid by him in anticipation of completion of a sale.⁶⁶⁴

Earnest

The characteristic of earnest is that it serves two purposes. It goes in part payment of the purchase money for which it is deposited, but primarily it is security for the performance of the contract.⁶⁶⁵ In *Kunwar Chiranjit v Har Swamp*⁶⁶⁶ Lord Shaw said:

Earnest money is part of the purchase price when the transaction goes forward: it is forfeited when the transaction falls through, by reason of the fault or failure of the vendee.

This definition of earnest has been approved and adopted by the Supreme Court in Maula Bux v UOI.⁶⁶⁷ Supreme Court has also held that the charge created under section 55(6)(b) would extend to earnest money paid before the title passes.⁶⁶⁸ Where the contract goes off by default of the buyer, the seller is entitled to retain the earnest money as forfeited.⁶⁶⁹ However, if the seller is in default, the buyer refusing to complete is entitled to a refund of the earnest money.⁶⁷⁰ The fact that after a judicial investigation, the title of the vendor is ultimately found to be clear does not disentitle the vendee to claim a refund of the earnest money.⁶⁷¹

The provisions of section 55(6) relating to the purchaser's charge are subject to a contract to the contrary, but mere use of the word "earnest" is not enough to constitute a contract to the contrary.⁶⁷²

It has been held, relying on the language of the clause, and on the decision in *Ibrahim Bhai v Fletcher*⁶⁷³ that in such a case the purchaser is not entitled to any interest on the earnest amount till he files the suit.⁶⁷⁴

Where the buyer has accepted title and the seller has rescinded the contract and forfeited the deposit by reason of the buyer's failure to pay the balance of the price, the buyer cannot afterwards recover his deposit on discovering that the title is defective.⁶⁷⁵ If the buyer's conduct does not amount to a repudiation, mere delay or such circumstances as would suffice to deprive him of the equitable remedy of specific performance would not justify a forfeiture of the deposit.⁶⁷⁶ If it was intended to embody the terms of the contract in a written agreement, the mere payment of earnest money will not preclude the purchaser from pleading that there was no concluded contract.⁶⁷⁷

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

It is necessary, however, to distinguish between earnest and advance; there is no right to forfeit an advance.⁶⁷⁸ Whether it is an advance or earnest, has to be ascertained from all the facts; a part-payment described as advance is earnest, and would be forfeited if it is paid as security for the performance of the contract, and the very fact, it has been said, that it is paid on the date of the agreement raises a presumption that it was paid as a security.⁶⁷⁹ Again, the right to forfeit earnest does not apply to a quantum of earnest agreed to, but not in fact paid by the buyer; the seller cannot claim to recover such amount.⁶⁸⁰ The justification of the forfeiture of advance money being a part of “earnest money” should be clear and explicit in the contract as the forfeiture of money paid as part payment of purchase price and not as earnest money is impermissible in law.⁶⁸¹

Interest

So far as payment of interest is concerned, the section specifically envisages payment of interest upon the purchase-money/price prepaid, though not so specifically on the earnest money deposit, apparently for the reason that an amount paid as earnest money simpliciter, as mere security for due performance does not become repayable till the contract or agreement got terminated and it is shown that the purchaser has not failed to carry out his part of the contract, and the termination was brought about not due to his fault, the claim of the purchaser for refund of earnest money deposit will not arise for being asserted.⁶⁸²

Properly Declines to Accept Delivery

This may occur when the sale goes off by default of the seller, or without default of either party. If the seller is in default, he is not entitled to forfeit the earnest.⁶⁸³ When the buyer by reason of such default properly declines to take delivery, his charge extends not only to prepaid price including earnest and interest thereon, but also to the costs of the suit for specific performance or for rescission. There is a similar provision in section 13(l)(d) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963. Expenses incurred in pursuance of the contract have also been allowed.⁶⁸⁴ An instance of a sale not being concluded owing to the default of the seller is Rose v Watson.⁶⁸⁵ The buyer agreed to buy a part of a large plot, on the seller representing that it would be laid out in buildings. The seller failed to carry out his representation and the buyer rescinded the contract owing to the seller's default. Lord Westbury said—

The purchaser would have been willing to perform the contract if the vendor had performed those things which, in good faith, he was bound to do.

and held that the purchaser's charge was not lost.

Other instances of a seller being in default are when a seller is unable to make out a good title,⁶⁸⁶ or when a seller fails to obtain the renewal of certain leases in time, such renewal within the stipulated time, being one of the conditions of the contract of sale.⁶⁸⁷ Similarly, where a sale was subject to the vendor obtaining planning permission, he must do so within a reasonable time even if no time is specified, and if he fails to do so, the purchaser may properly decline to complete the transaction.⁶⁸⁸ However, in absence of a clause in the contract requiring the seller to obtain a certificate from the Endowment department before effecting the purchase, his liability under section 55 would not be attracted and there would be no obligation on his part to get the clearance of permission or exemption from such department for purchase or transferring the title of the property.⁶⁸⁹

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

ILLUSTRATIONS

(1) A agrees to sell property to B, and undertakes that a part owner C will join in the conveyance. But in breach of the agreements A and C convey the property to D. B sues for specific performance and D offers to convey A's half share if B will pay the full price. B refuses this offer, as he was entitled to do under section 15 of the Specific Relief Act, 1877(now section 12(3) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963). B has properly declined to accept delivery and has a charge for part of the price that he had prepaid.⁶⁹⁰

(2) A agrees to sell a house to B and puts B in possession. A sale deed is executed, but is not registered. B sues for specific performance but his suit is dismissed. A sues to evict B. Property has not passed under the unregistered deed, and the case being before the enactment of section 53A, the agreement is no defence to the ejectment. B is only entitled to a charge for price prepaid.⁶⁹¹

Section 55(6)(b) applies only where it is possible for the vendor to give delivery, and yet he fails to do so. Where the contract depends for its performance upon the vendor recovering possession from the tenant who is protected under tenancy law and the purchaser is aware of the contingency, the statutory lien under section 55(6)(b) is not created until the vendor secures possession from the tenant, and is himself in a position to give delivery.⁶⁹² If, without default of either party, the sale is not completed, the buyer does not lose his charge. An instance of such a case is Whitbread & Co Ltd v Watt.⁶⁹³ In that case, the agreement was to purchase as soon as three hundred houses were built on the estate. The purchaser rescinded after three years, as the houses had not been built. The court held that the charge of the vendee remained operative, although there had been no default on the part of the vendor.

Sub-purchaser

In case the buyer before completion re-sells to a sub-purchaser, the latter has in English law a charge on the buyer's equitable interest.⁶⁹⁴ This statement of the law is accepted by Shephard and Brown as being applicable in India. However, the judgment of Lord Cairns in the case cited proceeds on the ground that the buyer who has by virtue of his contract an equitable estate becomes, on part payment, owner of the property to the extent of his payment. This line of reasoning has no application under the TP Act, 1882 where no right in rem passes under the contract. When the case arises, it will probably be held that the sub-purchase operated as an assignment pro tanto of the buyer's charge.

Enforcement

The charge is enforced by suit for sale. It is enforceable against all persons claiming under the seller, irrespective of whether they have notice of the payment.

Non-disclosure Fraudulent

The last paragraph of the section enacts that the omission of disclosure, whether by the seller under section

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

55(l)(a) or by the buyer under section 55(5)(a), is fraudulent. In the absence of this provision such non-disclosure would be a misrepresentation under section 18(2) of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, and render the contract voidable. It is well settled that where a purchaser discovers defects in the property before conveyance, he can either rescind the contract, or successfully resist a suit for specific performance.⁶⁹⁵ However, the effect of this provision is that the party who suffers by the non-disclosure has the right not only to rescind the contract, but to set aside the conveyance. This is necessary as the non-disclosure may only be discovered after the conveyance.

Remedies After Completion

Remedies after completion are much more limited than those before completion because most contractual rights merge in the conveyance. In a judgment of the Madras High Court,⁶⁹⁶ Justice Venkatarama Ayyar (as he then was) has reviewed both English,⁶⁹⁷ and Indian⁶⁹⁸ authorities, and stated the position thus:

If the contract has been completed by the execution of the sale deed, then the purchaser can claim compensation if he establishes fraud; or if there is a special agreement for making compensation for errors in quantity or if there is a warranty that the extent conveyed by the sale deed is correct. Apart from such cases he has no right to compensation.

Compensation can be claimed in cases of fraud,⁶⁹⁹ or if there is an express contract to that effect in the agreement for sale,⁷⁰⁰ or if the court finds on a true construction that such a warranty was necessarily implied in the agreement;⁷⁰¹ such a warranty cannot, however, be established by oral evidence;⁷⁰² There can, of course, be no fraud if the purchaser had actual or constructive notice of the defect.⁷⁰³ It is, however, open to a purchaser to renounce his position as such, and to fall back upon his previous relationship with the seller.⁷⁰⁴

Remedies after completion are (1) Rescission; or (2) Rectification.

Rescission

Rescission may be on the ground either (a) of fraud; or (b) common mistake; or (c) incapacity, legal or equitable; or (d) coercion or undue influence.

The first two grounds, fraud and common mistake, follow the common law rule that except on these grounds, an executed conveyance cannot be rescinded after it has been substantially performed.⁷⁰⁵ Non-disclosure infringing section 55(l)(a) or section 55(5)(a) is declared to be fraud and would, therefore, give a right to set aside the conveyance, and to a refund of the purchase money. A Bombay case⁷⁰⁶ is an instance of a deed set aside for fraud, while *Bingham v Bingham*⁷⁰⁷ is an instance of a common mistake where the buyer purchased land which both parties thought belonged to the seller, but which really belonged to the buyer himself. A seller is under a legal incapacity to sell if he is a minor or a lunatic, and a suit would lie to set aside the sale. A fiduciary relationship between the parties may also render the contract voidable after completion.⁷⁰⁸

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Rectification

When the sale deed either on account of fraud or of common mistake does not truly express the intention of the parties, the court will rectify it in conformity with the contract.⁷⁰⁹

Enforcement of Obligation not Merged in the Conveyance

The buyer may under section 55(l)(f) sue to recover possession;⁷¹⁰ or under section 55(3) for the delivery of title deeds;⁷¹¹ or under section 55(2) for compensation for breach of the covenant for title;⁷¹² or under section 55(l)(e) for compensation for breach of the duty to take care of the property;⁷¹³ or under section 55(l)(g) for an indemnity against encumbrances discharged in case of sale of land free from encumbrances;⁷¹⁴ or under section 55(6)(b) to enforce his charge for the price prepaid.⁷¹⁵ On the other hand, the seller may sue under section 55(4)(b) to enforce his lien for unpaid purchase money;⁷¹⁶ or for an indemnity against encumbrances in case of a sale of land subject to encumbrances.⁷¹⁷ There would also be a right of suit for compensation for breach of express covenants such as for quiet enjoyment;⁷¹⁸ or to give vacant possession;⁷¹⁹ or for compensation for errors of description where the contract provides for such compensation;⁷²⁰ or for breach of collateral warranty.⁷²¹

Remedies Before Completion

Remedies before completion depend upon the law of contract, and of specific performance. The contract may be rescinded not only for fraud, common mistake⁷²² or the disability of the party, but also for misrepresentation when there is no intention to deceive or to state a falsehood.⁷²³ The right to repudiate a contract for defect of title must be exercised immediately when the defect is discovered. If after ascertaining the defect, the purchaser treats the contract as subsisting, he does not retain the right to repudiate at any subsequent moment he chooses, but must give the vendor a reasonable time to remedy the defect.⁷²⁴ No question of giving time arises, of course, when the vendor has refused to remove the defect.⁷²⁵ On the breach of any essential terms of the contract, the other party may rescind and sue for damages,⁷²⁶ and in that case, must restore any benefit that he has received.⁷²⁷ If the buyer has gone into possession, he is accountable for the rents and profits that he has received. If the seller has received the price, he must return it. If the seller rightfully rescinds, he is entitled to forfeit the deposit or earnest. He is under no obligation to return the deposit because it is not a benefit he has received under the contract, but a collateral security.⁷²⁸ However, if he recovers damages as well, he must give credit for the deposit against the damages.⁷²⁹

If the aggrieved party does not elect to rescind, he may still sue for damages for the breach. The best remedy is, however, a suit for specific performance of the contract. A vendor in such a suit may compel the purchaser to take the property in spite of trivial defects, and to receive compensation for the deficiency.⁷³⁰ This relief is discretionary and the court has regard not only to the legal rights of the parties, but to the conduct and the circumstances of the case. Specific performance will be refused under section 20 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963, on the ground of unfair advantage or of hardship.

Damages

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

Damages are claimable under the law as enacted in section 73 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872. This would be the difference in the market value at the time of the contract, and at the time of the breach. The rule is the same as in English law, except where the default of the vendor is due to a defect in his title. In this case, damages are limited to the expenses the buyer has incurred.⁷³¹ This exception does not apply where the default of the seller is wilful;⁷³² and it has no application to a breach of covenant for title in a conveyance.⁷³³ The English law was once assumed to be the law in India,⁷³⁴ but it is now settled that the law in India is different, and that there is the same measure of damages in the case of goods as in the case of land, and that both are governed by section 73 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.⁷³⁵ For a further exposition of the law on this subject, the reader is referred to Pollock and Mulla's Indian Contract Act.⁷³⁶ Damages for eviction in breach of an express covenant for quiet enjoyment is the value of the land calculated at the date of the breach,⁷³⁷ and if the land has increased in value, the purchaser will be entitled to recover the higher value.⁷³⁸

In the Absence of a Contract to the Contrary

The implied conditions enumerated in this section are supplemented or varied in actual practice by numerous particular conditions. Such conditions are strictly construed in favour of the party whose rights are restricted. In Seaton v Mapp,⁷³⁹ Vice-Chancellor Knight Bruce stated the principle of construction as follows:

I think, and have always thought that when a vendor sells property under stipulations which are against common right, and place the purchaser in a position less advantageous than that in which he otherwise would be, it is incumbent on the vendor to express himself with reasonable clearness; if he uses expressions reasonably capable of misconstruction, if he uses ambiguous words, the purchaser may generally construe them in the manner most advantageous to himself.

This rule applies especially to conditions restricting investigation of title.

It has been observed by the Andhra High Court that a contract to the contrary must be strictly construed because such a contract is in restraint of legal rights.⁷⁴⁰ It is submitted that this is not correct, for section 55 merely lays down general rules, and in terms contemplates a departure from those rules in particular cases. Where the contract to the contrary departs from the usual terms and puts either the vendor or the purchaser in an unfairly advantageous position, the court can, of course, construe any ambiguity or vagueness in such a contract against the party in such a position. The general principles contained in section 55 regarding rights and liabilities of the buyer and seller can only apply in the absence of a contract to the contrary, and not in a case where the parties consciously negotiated, but failed in respect of any terms or conditions—as a result of which the agreement itself could not be settled or concluded.⁷⁴¹

(1) Restricting requisitions

The conditions in contracts for sale frequently impose restrictions on the buyer's right to make requisitions as to title. These generally fall into the following classes:

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- (a) Requiring requisitions to be made in a specified time.
- (b) Restricting the period for which title is to be shown.
- (c) Requiring the existence of a fact to be assumed.
- (d) Requiring the buyer to accept title as it is.

(a) Requiring requisitions to be made in a specified time.—Conditions of sale may stipulate that requisitions shall be made in a specified time of the delivery of the abstract of title or otherwise, the buyer shall be deemed to have accepted title. This is construed as meaning a time from the delivery of a perfect abstract, i.e., an abstract as perfect as the seller can make it,⁷⁴² and an abstract which shows all the documents, and gives all the facts upon which the vendor's title is based.⁷⁴³ If the contract provides that time is to be of the essence of the contract, it operates as a waiver if a requisition is not made in time. However, the condition does not apply if the seller has no title at all,⁷⁴⁴ and it cannot be used to thrust upon a purchaser, a property to which there is no title.⁷⁴⁵

(b) Restricting the period.—There is no statutory period in India. Apart from the statutory limit, the period for which title has to be shown may be fixed by the contract. The condition may require that a particular deed be taken as the root of title, and in that case requisitions cannot be made with regard to a time before that deed. However, both with reference to the statutory period (in England) and the period (if any) fixed by contract, it is well settled that such limitation does not affect the main rule that the seller should show a good title, but only the subordinate rule that title for the period fixed by contract or by statute shall be prima facie evidence of a good title; in other words, the purchaser may object that the title shown for the period is defective. A condition restricting the period of investigation does not prevent the buyer from making inquiries aliunde, and if he discovers a defect, he is entitled to call for evidence to cure the defect;⁷⁴⁶ so also, if the seller allows inspection of a prior title deed which enables the buyer to discover the defect.⁷⁴⁷

On the other hand, the seller may by appropriate stipulation exclude even independent investigation of title. The leading case on this point is Hume v Bentley,⁷⁴⁸ where lease-holds were sold on condition that “the lessor's title will not be shown, and shall not be inquired into.” The buyer discovered facts, which he contended showed that the lessor, a canal company, had under its incorporating statute no power to grant the lease, but his objection was disallowed. A similar case is Re National Provincial Bank of England and Marsh,⁷⁴⁹ where the condition was that the root of title should be a conveyance of 1869, and that “the prior title shall not be required, investigated or objected to.” The buyer discovered aliunde facts which showed that it was doubtful whether a former grantor had a fee simple or merely a life estate, but he was not allowed to rescind. In such cases, the buyer cannot rescind as there has been no fraud or misrepresentation by the seller, but the seller would probably not be able to enforce specific performance if the title were shown to be bad, as the court would exercise in favour of the buyer the discretion that it has under section 20 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963. Specific performance was enforced in Hume v Bentley,⁷⁵⁰ as the court refused to decide the question whether the lease was valid, and the buyer apparently got what is called a good holding title, i.e., a title not likely to be challenged; but *Re National Provincial Bank of England and Marsh*⁷⁵¹ J North, said that he was not deciding that the purchaser was bound to accept the vendor's title, if it should turn out to be a bad one.

(c) Requiring the existence of a fact to be assumed.—Such a condition will be enforced if the seller himself believes the statement of fact to be correct.⁷⁵² However, if the seller knows it to be false, the condition gives the seller an unfair advantage over the buyer, and the contract will not be enforced in a suit for specific performance. Thus, Re Banister, Broad v Munton,⁷⁵³ the condition stated that it was not accurately known how a predecessor in title acquired the property, and required the buyer to assume that he was seized in fee-simple, free from encumbrances. The seller, who was a solicitor, knew accurately how the predecessor had acquired the property, and that she was not seized in fee-simple. MR Jessel said that the utmost that can be asked of a purchaser is that he shall assume something of which the seller knows nothing, and refused specific performance.

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

(d) Requiring the buyer to accept title as it is.—If the seller stipulates that the buyer shall accept the title as it is, the buyer has notice that the title is questionable and if he chooses to buy, he will be held to his bargain.⁷⁵⁴ However, this condition does not relieve the seller of the obligation under section 55(l)(a) of disclosure,⁷⁵⁵ or of giving as good a title as he can, i.e., by paying off a mortgage.⁷⁵⁶ Nor will the condition be enforceable if he has no title at all,⁷⁵⁷ and a fortiori if he knows that he has no title.⁷⁵⁸

ILLUSTRATION

A, a mortgagee, acting under a power of sale, agreed to sell the property mortgaged and B agreed to purchase it. B then discovered that A had no title because his mortgagor had stolen the title deeds and the real owner was in possession. The sale contained a condition that “the purchaser shall take the premises sold with such title only as the vendor can give him.” A was nevertheless not entitled to require B to complete his purchase; for the condition necessarily implied that A had some title, however defective it might be.⁷⁵⁹

When a mortgagee assigned the debt and his interest with a condition that he was not liable for any defect in the claim transferred, and the mortgage proved to be invalid as it was attested by only one witness, the assignment was nevertheless held to be valid because it included a personal claim.⁷⁶⁰

(2) Title to the satisfaction of the buyer's solicitors

The contract sometimes provides that the seller should show a title satisfactory to the buyer's solicitors. The seller must then show either that the solicitor did approve of the title, or that there was such a title tendered as made it unreasonable not to approve of it.⁷⁶¹ The reasonable meaning of this condition is not to make the possibly arbitrary opinion of a certain or uncertain solicitor final, but to claim the purchaser's right of investigating title with professional assistance, and of refusing to complete if the title proved to be bad.⁷⁶² This is a usual condition in contracts of sale in Bombay.

(3) Deposit

The seller invariably insists on a provision for the payment of a deposit. This is advantageous to him as the deposit is not only part payment, but security for performance, and may be forfeited if the sale goes off owing to the buyer's default.⁷⁶³ However, the buyer should pay it to the seller's solicitor as stake-holder, for if he pays it to the solicitor as the agent of the seller, and the seller becomes insolvent, he will be unable to recover it from the solicitor.⁷⁶⁴ There is sometimes an express provision for forfeiture of deposit on the buyer's default, with liberty to the seller to resell, and recover the deficiency and the costs of re-sale from the original buyer.

(4) Vendor's right of rescission

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

This provision is that, on the buyer making, or the buyer insisting upon any requisition with which the seller is unwilling or unable to comply, the seller may rescind the contract returning the deposit without interest, and without costs of investigating the title. This right must be exercised reasonably and in good faith;⁷⁶⁵ the vendor will not be allowed to rescind where he has been guilty of a shortcoming which, though falling short of fraud or dishonesty, might be described as recklessness.⁷⁶⁶ Thus, a vendor who had agreed to sell land subject to a mortgage free of encumbrances, was held not entitled to rescind under such a condition as he had made no proper inquiries with the mortgagees as to whether they would concur in the sale.⁷⁶⁷ However, though a vendor has to be reasonable, he does not have to be beyond criticism before he can exercise his right of rescission; where a vendor had failed to warn the purchaser of certain evidential gaps in his title, but had made a serious attempt to meet the requisitions, he was held entitled to rescind.⁷⁶⁸ The seller cannot, of course, exercise the right if he has been guilty of misrepresentation,⁷⁶⁹ or if he has no title;⁷⁷⁰ nor does such a clause empower the seller to override reasonable requisitions.⁷⁷¹ A vendor may rescind where the purchaser insists on an objection as to an undisclosed right of way.⁷⁷²

(5) Purchaser's right of rescission

It is also a common condition that the buyer may rescind if any notice affecting the property is received from the municipality, or if the property or any part of it is notified for acquisition under the Land Acquisition Act.

(6) Identity of the property

It is usually stipulated that no other evidence of the identity of the property should be required than that afforded by a comparison of the description in the contract with that in the documents. However, this condition is not effective if such comparison affords no evidence of identity;⁷⁷³ or if the description in the document is discrepant.⁷⁷⁴

In the event of ambiguity, a plan attached to the conveyance can be looked as to ascertain the identity of the property even if such a plan is not referred to in the conveyance.⁷⁷⁵

(7) Compensation for errors of description

It is usually provided that errors of description will not annul the sale, and either that compensation should be allowed, or that compensation should not be allowed. If the condition is that compensation should not be allowed it will probably exclude the purchaser's right to enforce specific performance with compensation. However, such a condition will not enable a seller to force upon a buyer a substantially different property.⁷⁷⁶

If the condition allows compensation, English cases⁷⁷⁷ apply the rule in Flight v Booth,⁷⁷⁸ that the condition will cover even a considerable discrepancy if the property is substantially the same. This would probably be followed in India, for the terms of the condition would be regarded rather than the somewhat restrictive provision of section 12(2) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963. Under this condition, compensation may be claimed even after completion.⁷⁷⁹ However, a warranty against encumbrances does not entitle the seller to compensation for a discrepancy in the area.⁷⁸⁰ Whether the condition includes or excludes compensation, it applies of course only to innocent errors, and not to cases of intentional misrepresentation.⁷⁸¹ If the condition applies to any error, misstatement or omission discovered in the particulars of sale, it refers to matters of title, as well as the subject matter of the contract.⁷⁸² If it refers to the description of the property, it does not extend to defects of title.⁷⁸³

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

(8) Time for completion

A time for completion is usually fixed, but where no time is fixed, the Privy Council have adopted the English rule that time is not of the essence of the contract, unless it can be so inferred from the circumstances of the case.⁷⁸⁴ If there has been an unreasonable delay, either party can make time of the essence by giving a notice to complete in a reasonable time;⁷⁸⁵ but the time fixed must be reasonable.⁷⁸⁶ What is reasonable time has to be ascertained after considering all the circumstances including the ability of the purchaser to find the money, and not merely conveyancing difficulties; a period of 28 days is not reasonable where the vendor knows of the purchaser's difficulties of finding the money because a proposed sub-sale had fallen through.⁷⁸⁷ Where, however, time has been fixed, and made the essence, reasonableness of the notice to complete is immaterial.⁷⁸⁸ The stipulation as to time for making requisitions, referred to in condition (1) above, is a useful means of expediting completion.

(9) Interest on unpaid price

It is usual to provide that the buyer shall pay interest from the date fixed for completion on the balance of the price. This may be either absolute, or conditional on non-completion due to wilful default of the purchaser, or any cause other than wilful default of the seller. If it is absolute, ie, where the delay occurs "for any cause whatever," these words will not allow a vendor to take advantage of his own wrong.⁷⁸⁹ However, if the seller has not been guilty of misconduct, lapse of time occasioned by a defect in the seller's title not known to him at the time of the contract, and which he has taken steps to remove will not relieve the purchaser of his liability for interest under the condition.⁷⁹⁰

ILLUSTRATION

A contracted to sell half an estate to B, the purchase to be completed on 24 June 1854, and if "for any cause whatever" the purchaser should not be completed on that day, B was to pay interest. The other part owner claimed the whole estate and refused to part with the deeds. A sued for partition and a decree was made in July 1862. B had not elected to rescind and in spite of the delay of eight years he was liable to pay interest because there had been no misconduct by A.⁷⁹¹

(10) Wilful default

What is wilful default is a question of fact. Wilful default implies that the default is intentional,⁷⁹² ie, the party knows that what he is doing or omitting is something which it was wrong for him to do or omit.⁷⁹³ Wilful default implies that the party was a free agent, and that what he has done arises from the spontaneous operation of his will; while default means nothing more and nothing less than not doing what is reasonable in the circumstances.⁷⁹⁴ If both parties are in the wrong, it is not a case of cause other than wilful default of the seller so as to exempt the purchaser from liability for interest.⁷⁹⁵

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

(11) Cost of conveyance

The conditions of sale generally throw the cost of conveyance as much as possible on the buyer. However, a condition that each party should pay half and half including the stamp and registration charges is not usual in India. The seller is liable for the cost not only of perusing and executing the draft tendered by the buyer, but also of execution by any other necessary party and of getting in an outstanding legal estate and completing the title; but the latter expenses are sometimes thrown on the buyer.⁷⁹⁶ In an open contract, the seller must bear the expense of procuring and making an abstract of any deed forming part of the title, although such deed be not in his possession.⁷⁹⁷

(12) Property sold free from encumbrance

The direction given in the sale deed that the amount retained by the vendee was to be paid to a simple money creditor and a covenant on the part of the vendor to pay off an outstanding mortgage and giving liberty to the vendee to pay the same in case the vendor failed to pay, was not a contract to the contrary and the vendee was not precluded from retaining the sum reserved for payment to the simple creditor.⁷⁹⁸

(13) Insurance

The condition as to insurance provides that on payment of a proportionate part of the premium, and subject to the consent of the insurance office, the benefit of the policy shall be assigned to the buyer from the date of completion.

326 Ins. by Act 20 of 1929, section 17.

327 Ins. by Act 20 of 1929, section 17.

328 The words “with notice of the payment” omitted by Act 20 of 1929, section 17.

329 Haji Essa v Dayabhai, (1896) ILR 20 Bom 522.

330 Hari Bapuji v Bhaga Sadhu, (1936)
 38 Bom LR 1200 : 167 IC 804 : AIR 1937 Bom 142
 ; Abdul Hamid Khan v Mahomed Ali, (1951) 53 Bom LR 817 :
 AIR 1952 Bom 67 .

331 Halsbury's Laws of England, 3rd Edn, vol 34, p 228.

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 332 (1928) ILR 55 Ram Sundar Saha v Raj Kumar Sen,
Cal 285 : 104 IC 527 : AIR 1927 Cal 889
- 333 , p 341. Carlish v Salt, [\[1906\] 1 ChD 335](#)
- 334 Horsfall v Thomas, (1862) 1 H & C 90.
- 335 1925 Mad. 968 Ramasubbu v Muthiah, 85 IC 999 : AIR
- 336 (2014) 3 SCC 430 Godrej & Boyce Manufacturing Co Ltd v State of Maharashtra,
: LNIND 2014 SC 70
2014 (1)Scale 707 :
AIR 2014 SC 1446 ; Harilal v Mulchand, (1928) ILR 52
Bom 883 : 113 IC 27 : AIR 1928 Bom 427 ; Ganpat Ranglal
v Mangilal Hiralal, AIR 1962 MP 144
- 337 2011 P&H. 122 : Sukhdev Kaur v Gurdev Singh, AIR
(2011) 164 PLR 16
- 338 ILR 50 Nursing Das v Chuttoo Lall, (1923)
; Meghi v Tyeballi, Cal 615 : 74 IC 996 : AIR 1923 Cal 641
AIR 1925 Bom 64 (1924) 26 Bom LR 1019 : 90 IC 9 :
- 339 (2013) 5 SCC 336 Dilip Kumar Mukherjee v Kolkata Municipal Corp,
: LNIND 2012 SC 1041
2012 (10) SC 361 AIR 2013 SC 927 : JT
- 340 257 (Delhi). B S Oberoi v P S Oberoi, (2010) 117 DRJ
- 341 \(1891\) 3 ChD 405 Bowles v Round, (1800) 5 Ves 508; Ashburner v Swell, p 408.
- 342 199 : Yandle & Sons v Sutton, [\[1922\] 2 ChD](#)
[1922] 2 All ER Rep 425
- 343 Grant v Munt, (1815) Coop G 173.
- 344 2 ChD 258 : Re Puckett & Smiths Contract, \(1902\)
[\[1900-3\] All ER Rep 114](#)

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 345 Flight v Booth, (1834) 1 Bing (NC) 370.
- 346 Re Puckett & Smiths Contract
 (1902) 2 ChD 258
 (1899) 80 LT 127 ; Re Brewer & Hankins Contract,
- 347 Re Brewer and Hankins Contract,
 (1899) 80 LT 127 .
- 348 Haryana Financial Corp v Rajesh Gupta,
 AIR 2010 SC 338 ; (2010) 1 SCC 655
- 349 Haji Essa v Dayabhai, (1896) ILR
 20 Bom 522; Sheo Ram v Thakur Mahton, 58 IC 529; Mohomed Siddiq v Li Kan Shoo, 92
 IC 766 : AIR 1925 Rang 372 ; Ramasubbu v Muthiah, 85 IC
 999 : AIR 1925 Mad. 968 .
- 350 Baljit Singh v Improvement Trust, Ludhiana,
 AIR 2009 SC 1254 ; (2009) 2 SCC 558
- 351 Sugden, 14th Edn, pp 334, 341.
- 352 Baljit Singh v Improvement Trust, Ludhiana,
 AIR 2009 SC 1254 ; (2009) 2 SCC 558
- 353 Re Banister, Broad v Munton,
 (1879) 12 ChD 131 ; Re Marsh and Granville (Earl),
 (1883) 24 ChD 11 ; Bai Dosibai v Bai Dhanbai, (1925) ILR
 49 Bom 325 : 85 IC 597 : AIR 1925 Bom 85
- 354 Pyrke v Waddingham, (1852) 10 Hare 1; Haji Mahomed Mitha v
Musaji Esaji, (1891) ILR 15 Bom 657; Shrinivasdas v
Meherbai, (1917) ILR 41 Bom 300 : 44 IA 36 : 39 IC 627;
Rajendra Kumar v Poosammal, AIR 1975 Mad. 379 ;
 (1975) 2 Mad LJ 59.
- 355 Re Banister Broad v Munton,
 (1879) 12 ChD 131 ; Mahomed Siddiq v Li Kan Shoo,
 AIR 1925 Rang 372 ; contra, Madan Mohan v Jwala Prasad, AIR 1950 East Punj 276.
- 356 Haryana Financial Corp v Rajesh Gupta,
 AIR 2010 SC 338 ; (2010) 1 SCC 655

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 357 (1935) ILR 59 Lallubhai Rupchand v Chimanlal Nandlal,
AIR 1935 Bom 16 Bom 83 : 36 Bom LR 1041 : 155 IC 564 :
- 358 \(1885\) 15 QBD 261 ; Halkett v Dudley (Earl), \(1886\) 16 QBD 778
; \(1907\) 1 ChD 590 ; Bai Dosibai v Bai
Dhanbai, [\[1904-7\] All ER Rep 465](#) ; Bom 325 : 85 IC 597 :
AIR 1925 Bom 85 ; Lallubhai Rupchand v Chimanlal Nandlal, (1935) ILR 59 Bom 83 : 36 Bom LR 1041 : 155 IC 564 :
AIR 1935 Bom 16
- 359 ChD 357 ; Turner v Moon, \(1901\) 2 ChD 825 \(1883\) 25
; Great Western Rly v Fisher, \(1905\) 1 ChD 316
; Lallubhai Rupchand v Chimanlal Nandlal, (1935) ILR 59 Bom 83.
- 360 Carlish v Salt, \(1906\) 1 ChD 335
- 361 QBD 523 ; Reeve v Berridge, \(1888\) 20
ChD 637 ; Re White and Smiths' Contract, \(1896\) 1
ChD 666 ; Re Haedicke and Lipskis Contract, \(1901\) 2
; Molyneux v Hawtrey, \(1903\) 2 KB 487
; [\[1900-3\] All ER Rep 472](#)
- 362 Re Marsh and Granville (Earl), 24 ChD 11.
- 363 20 Bom 522. Haji Essa v Dayabhai, (1896) ILR
- 364 AIR 1979 AP 90 Shaik Buddan Sah v Nigamma,
- 365 Turner v Moon, \(1901\) 2 ChD 825
- 366 AIR 1945 Mad. 205 Thammineni v Dhavala Polinaidu,
- 367 9 Mad 89. Gajapathi v Alagia, (1886) ILR
- 368 Bom 175 Ratanlal v Nanabhai, AIR 1926
- 369 Esha Ekta Apartments Co-operative Housing Society Ltd v
Municipal Corp of Mumbai, AIR 2013 SC 1861

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 370 (1930) ILR 57 See the observations of CJ Rankin in Jyotiprasad v HV Low Co,
AIR 1930 Cal 561 Cal 1189, pp 1193-1194 : 128 IC 321 :
- 371 Maung Po Te v Maung Shwe Ko, 35 IC 373.
- 372 Jitendra Nath v Maheswari Bose, AIR
1965 Cal 45
- 373 3. See note “Wilful abstention from inquiry or search” under section
- 374 593 ; see also Molly Ajithkumar v Vimala Sasidharan, AIR 1943 Mad.
87 : LNIND 2012 KER 16 AIR 2012 Ker.
2012 (1) Ker LJ 499
- 375 Shrinivasdas v Meherbai, (1917) ILR 41
Bom 300 : 44 IA 36 : 39 IC 627; Hirachand v Jayagopal, (1925) ILR 49
Bom 245 : 89 IC 553 : AIR 1925 Bom 69
- 376 Nilmani Addy v Dinendranath Das, (1930)
ILR 57 Cal 1115 : 126 IC 705 : AIR 1930 Cal 428
; Hobson v Bell, (1839) 2 Beav 17; Blacklow v Laws, (1842) 2 Hare 40; Pryce-Jones v William,
\(1902\) 2 ChD 517
- 377 Nilmani Addy v Dinendranath Das, (1930)
ILR 57 Cal 1115.
- 378 Re Ford v Hill, \(1879\) 10 ChD 365
; approved in Taylor v London & County Banking Co, \(1901\) 2 ChD 231 , p 258.
- 379 Premchand v Ram Sahai, 140 IC 209 :
AIR 1932 Ngp 148
- 380 Lakhmidas & Co v DJ Tata, AIR 1927
(1927) 29 Bom LR 19 : 101 IC 229 :
Bom 195 ; Quinion v Home, \(1906\) 1 ChD 596
- 381 Re Stone and Saville's Contract,
\(1963\) 1 WLR 163 (CA). [\[1963\] 1 All ER 353](#)
- 382 Heywood v Mallalieu, \(1883\) 25
ChD 357

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 383 \(1936\) 1 ChD 713  Re Spollon and Long's contract,
: [\[1936\] 2 All ER 711](#)
- 384 Burroughs v Oakley, (1819) 3 Swans 159, p 172.
- 385 Fludyer v Cocker, (1806) 12 Ves 25; Fleetwood v Green, (1809) 15 Ves 594; Haydon v Bell, (1838) 1 Beav 337; Ghousiah v Rustumjah, (1890) ILR 13 Mad 158, p 160.
- 386 \(1878\) 7 ChD 766 Bolton v London School Board,
; Stevens v Guppy, (1828) 3 Russ 171.
- 387 Blacklow v Laws, (1842) 2 Hare 40.
- 388 \(1883\) 23 ChD 320 Re Gloag and Miller's Contract,
.
- 389 Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 51.
- 390 Ma Hrit v Maung Po Pu, (1920) 31 Cal LJ 87 : 55 IC 791; Dinkar Rao v Ayub, 75 IC 889 : AIR 1923 Ngp 37 . See, however, Andhra Paper Mills Co Ltd v State of Andhra, AIR 1961 AP 57 , p 58.
- 391 Brijmohan v Chandrabhagabai, (1940) ILR Nag 643, p 646 :
AIR 1939 Ngp 173
- 392 Jagannath Malik v Surendra Gartia,
AIR 2017 Ori. 128
- 393 Prabodh Kumar Das v Gillanders Arbuthnot & Co, (1934) 59 Cal LJ 503 : 152 IC 571 : AIR 1934 Cal 699
- 394 Ram Krishna v Mukand Shanker, (1962) All LJ 1082 :
AIR 1963 All 47
- 395 755  Re Sharman's Contract, \(1936\) 1 ChD
: [\[1936\] 2 All ER 1547](#)
- 396 Jamshed v Burjorji, (1916) ILR 40
Bom 289 : 43 IA 26 : 32 IC 246.
- 397 Indian Stamp Act, 1890, section 29(c).

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 398 475(Raj). Re Rath Alloys and Steels Ltd, [2015] 191 COMP CASES
- 399 Halsbury's Laws of England, 3rd Edn, vol 34, p 346.
- 400 469 Egmont (Earl) v Smith, \(1877\) 6 ChD
LR 440 , p 474; Rahimtulla v Official Assignee, Bombay, (1935) 37 Bom
: 152 IC 1062 : AIR 1935 Bom 340
- 401 See Indian Registration Act, 1908, section 58(1)(c).
- 402 Umrah Developers, Bangalore v Deputy Commissione,
Bangalore Urban District, AIR 2010 Kant. 186
- 403 See note "Does not of itself create any interest," under section 54, above.
- 404 Sherwin v Shakespear, (1854) 5 DeG M & G 517, p 537; Phillips
v Sliverster, (1872) 8 Ch App 173; Egmont (Earl) v Smith, \(1877\) 6 ChD 469
; Golden Bread Co v Hemmings, \(1922\) 1 ChD 162  :
[\[1921\] All ER Rep 569](#)
- 405 Phillips v Silvester, (1872) 8 Ch App 173, p 177; Sashi Bhushan
v Rai Chand, AIR 1950 Cal 333
- 406 Royal Bristol Permanent Building Society v Bomash, \(1887\) 35 ChD 390, p 397.
- 407 Homby v Matcham, (1848) 16 Sim 325; Brown v Sewel, (1853)
11 Hare 49 : (2010) 5 Kar LJ 430 : (2010)
3 KCCR 2201
- 408 Re Duthy and Jesson, \(1898\) 1 ChD
419
- 409 Clarke Ramuz, \(1891\) 2 QB 456
(CA).
- 410 Darpan v Kedar Nath, (1916) 1 Pat
LJR 140 : 35 IC 539.
- 411 Barisal Loan Officer v Satish Chandra,
AIR 1936 Cal 12
- 412 Sundara v Sivalingam, (1924) ILR 47
Mad 150 : 7 IC 542 : AIR 1924 Mad. 360 ; see
Babu Lal v Hazari Lal Kishori Lal, (1982) 1 SCC 525 , p 534.

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 413 1937 Rang 31 . U Mya v Chettyar Firm, 167 IC 84 : AIR
- 414 Sequeira, (2012) 5 SCC 370 : LNIND
2012 SC 194 : AIR 2012 (3) Bom R 857; A
Shanmugam v Ariya Kshatriya Rajakula Vamsathu Madalaya Nandhavana Paripalanai Sangam, (2012) 6 SCC 430 : LNIND 2012 SC 259
 : AIR 2012 SC 2010 : 2012 5 MLJ 618
 SC.
- 415 (1999) 78 DLT 254 . Uttam International v Jogender Pal Singh,
- 416 AIR 1996 Bom 296 . Prataprai Trambaklal Mehta v Jayant Nemchand Shah,
- 417 Subbaroyar v Kottava, (1916) Mad WN 284 : 34 IC 737.
- 418 Lah 308 : 88 IC 743 : Sri Ram v Kidari Parshad, (1925) ILR 6
 AIR 1925 Lah 481 .
- 419 See note under section 54 “Does not of itself create any interest”.
- 420 Sagaji v Namdev, (1899) ILR 23
 Bom 525; Velayutha v Govindasawmi, (1900) ILR 30
 Mad 524 and (1911) ILR 34 Mad 543 : 8 IC 364; Krishnamma v Mali, (1920) ILR 43 Mad 712 : 56 IC 530; Kutcherlakota Vijayalakshmi v Radimeti
Rajuratnamba, AIR 1991 AP 50 , p 53.
- 421 Shib Lal v Bhagwan, (1888) ILR 11 All 244, p 251; Bajinath v Paltu, (1908) ILR 30 All 125; Pran Dei v Sat Deo, 111 IC 761 :
 AIR 1929 All 85 ; U Tin v MPM Chettyar Firm, 147 IC 742 : AIR
 1933 Rang 401 ; Dhuri v Kishun Prasad, AIR 1965 Pat. 29
 . See also note under section 55(4)(b).
- 422 Velayutha v Govindaswami, (1900)
 ILR 30 Mad 524; Krishnamma v Mali, (1920) ILR 43
 Mad 712; Ramayya v Rama Aiyar, AIR 1947 Mad. 92 ; and see Veerni Soorayya v Kateeza Begum, AIR 1957 AP 688 .
- 423 Basalingava v Chinnava, (1932) ILR 56
 Bom 556 : 34 Bom LR 427 : 138 IC 534 : AIR 1932 Bom 247
 ; distinguishing Kevaldas v Nagindas, (1909) 11 Bom LR 383
 : 2 IC 429.
- 424 807 : AIR 1951 Mad. 470 . Vuddandam v Juluri Venkatakameshwara Rao, (1950) 2 Mad LJ

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 425 1 SCC 345 : 2012 (10) Scale 393 Satish Batra v Sudhir Rawal, (2013) LNIND 2012 SC 665 :
- 426 De G E & J 307; see also Royal Bristol Permanent Building Society v Bomash, ChD 390, p 394; See also Purna Chand v Official Liquidator, AIR 1960 Punj 51 ; Raj Kumar v Shanti Saroop Gandhi, AIR 1992 P&H. 18 , p 20. Lake v Dean, (1860) 28 Beav 607; Hughes v Jones, (1861) 3 (1887) 35
- 427 Mumtaz-un-nissa v Bhagirath, 6 IC 114.
- 428 449 : AIR 1932 Mad. 768 Venkataratnam v Varahaliah, (1932) 63 Mad LJ 301 : 139 IC
- 429 AIR 1950 Cal 333 Sashi Bhushan v Raichand,
- 430 AIR 2010 Jhar. 151 Sunita Devi v Dinbandhu Shah,
- 431 AIR 1964 Raj. 240 AIR 1916 Cal 1 Anandilal v Abdul Hussain, , rel upon Hyam v ME Gubbay, (1916) 20 Cal WN 66 : ; Panchapagesa Ayyar v M Arunachla Mudaliar, AIR 1950 Cal 333 (1932) Mad WN 122; Sashi Bhusan v Rai Chand,
- 432 AIR 1950 PC 99 Govindram v State of Gondal, 77 IA 156 : 52 Bom LR 450 :
- 433 510 Arun Prakash v Tulsi, AIR 1949 Cal
- 434 LR 571 : 26 Cal WN 514 : 66 IC 107 : (1922) 24 Bom AIR 1922 PC 176 Nathu Khan v Burtonath,
- 435 LR 571 : 66 IC 107 : Nathu Khan v Burtonath, (1922) 24 Bom ; AIR 1922 PC 176 ; Manishanker v Ramkrishna, (1904) 6 Bom LR 832 ; Bhagwati v Banarsi Das, (1928) ILR 50 All 371 : 55 IA 135 : 108 IC 687 : ; Ganpat Ranglal v Mangilal Hiralal, AIR 1928 PC 98 AIR 1962 MP 144
- 436 (1953) ILR Mys 29. R Muninarayana v C P Chimanswamy, AIR 1952 Mys 120 :
- 437 (1907) 1 ChD 244 695  Re Weston and Thomas's Contract, (1893) 1 ChD ; Re Kidd and Gibbons Contract,

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 438 AIR 1932 All 553 Gobardhan Das v Afzal Husain, 138 IC 495 : (1932) All LJ 598 :
- 439 AIR 1926 Mad. 569 Kathamuthu v Subramaniam, (1926) 50 Mad LJ 228 : 94 IC 561 :
- 440 ILR 16 Cal 330; Basaraddi Sheikh v Enajaddi, (1898) ILR 25 (1889)
 Cal 298; Subbaroya v Rajagopala, (1915) ILR 38 Mad
 887 : 23 IC 570; Vellayappa Rowthen v Bava Rowthen, 29 IC 747; Mahomed Ali v Venkatapathi, (1920) 39 Mad LJ 449
 : 60 IC 235; Chendrayya v Hanumayya, 98 IC 450 : AIR 1927 Mad. 193
 ; Lakhpatt Kuer v Durga Prasad, (1929) ILR 8 Pat 432 : 117 IC 654 :
 AIR 1929 Pat. 338
- 441 ILR 25 Cal 298. Basaraddi Sheikh v Enajaddin, (1898)
- 442 LR 571 ; Manishanker v Ramkrishna, (1904) 6 Bom LR 832 (1922) 24 Bom
 ; Harcharan Lal v Nurul Hasan, 152 IC 221 : AIR 1934 Oudh 492
 ; Gawri Shankar v Munnu, 153 IC 811 : AIR 1935 Oudh 142
 ; Rinsa Ansa v Mohanlal, AIR 1938 Ngp 257
- 443 746 Imam Din v Bhag Sing, AIR 1936 Lah
- 444 ILR 6 All 67. Dost Muhammad v Sangad, (1884)
- 445 743 Lookmanji v Mangal Sing, AIR 1938 Lah
- 446 ILR 51 All 1053 : 119 IC 1 : Jugal Kishore v Banwari Lal, (1929)
 ; Harcharan Lal v Nurul Hasan, 152 IC 221 : AIR 1929 All 791
Mahmood Mamuna v National Bank of India, AIR 1934 Oudh 492 ;
 ; Parshotam Parshad v Taiwar, Ali, AIR 1944 Mad. 572
 AIR 1945 All 39
- 447 (1909) ILR 31 Izzat-un-nissa Begam v Kunwar Pertab Singh,
 Cal WN 1040 : 16 IC 73. All 583 : 36 IA 203 : 3 IC 793; Ram Barai Singh v Sheodeni, (1912) 16
- 448 (1930) ILR 57 Bidhubhushan Pal v Umeshchandra,
 Cal 683 : 128 IC 183 : AIR 1930 Cal 568
- 449 2017 P&H. 144 M J Steel Sales v State of Punjab, AIR

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 450 41 (1925) ILR 49 Bom 300 : 44 IA 36 : 39 IC 627; Hirachand v Jayagopal, Bom 245 : 89 IC 553 : (1917) ILR AIR 1925 Bom 69
- 451 AIR 1924 Pat. 822 Phus Kuer v Rambhajan Singh, 75 IC 975 :
- 452 AIR 2010 (NOC) 910 Diamond Infotech Pvt Ltd v Kolkatta Municipal Corp, Cal.
- 453 Dantaluri v Kanjuluri, 8 IC 435.
- 454 (1907) ILR 30 Nellore Municipality v Dwarapally Kottamma, Mad 423.
- 455 1945 Bom 187 , p 195. State of Gondal v Govindram, AIR
- 456 Pvt Ltd, 2010 SCC OnLine Ori 495 : Special Officer (Commerce) NESCO v Raghunath Paper Mills AIR 2011 Ori. 52 : 2011 (Supp. 1) Ori LR 943 : 2011 (1) Ren CR (Rent) 905.
- 457 Commission, AIR 2010 Gau 131 Carbon Resources Pvt Ltd v The Assam Electricity Regulatory
- 458 Pvt Ltd, Ori LR 943 AIR 2011 Ori. 52 Special Officer (Commerce), NESCO v Raghunath Paper Mills 2011 Supp (1)
- 459 (1931) ILR 58 ; Kishanlal v Suryadatta, Cal 692 : Motilal v Nanhelal, 57 IA 333, p 338 : AIR 1930 PC 287 AIR 1958 MP 239
- 460 [1964] 2 SCR 495 : Chandnee Widya Vati Madden v C L Katial, AIR 1964 SC 978
- 461 854 : (1969) 3 SCC 120 1972 Mys 121 Nathulal v Phoolchand, AIR 1970 SC 546 : [1970] 2 SCR ; Eramma v Parwataimna, AIR
- 462 (1986) 3 SCC 300 Rojasara Ramjibhai Dahyabhai v Jani Narottamdas Lallubhai, AIR 1986 SC 1912
- 463 AIR 1999 Del 383 Raghunath Rai v Jageshwar Prashad Sharma,

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 464 ILR 57 Cal 1189 : 128 IC 321 : Jyotiprasad v HV Low & Co, (1930) AIR 1930 Cal 561
- 465 Mad 338, p 350 : 39 IC 358; Adikesavan v Gurunatha, (1917) ILR 40
 AIR 1926 Mad. 569 ; See also Sigamani v Munabadra, (1926) 49 Mad LJ
 668 : 91 IC 514 : AIR 1926 Mad. 225 ; Arunachala v Ramasami,
 (1915) ILR 38 Mad 1171 : 25 IC 618; Subayya v Garikapati, (1955) ILR AP
 170 : AIR 1957 AP 307
- 466 (1925) ILR 6 Sri Ram v Kidari Parshad-Cheddi Lal,
 Lah 308 : 88 IC 743 : AIR 1925 Lah 481
- 467 ILR 9 Babu Bindeshri v Mahant Jairam, (1887)
 All 705 : 14 IA 173 (PC).
- 468 ILR All 1033 Deepchandra v Sajjan Ali Khan, (1950)
 : (1951) All LJ 81 : AIR 1951 All 93
 ; Surendra Maneklal v Bai Narmada, AIR 1963 Guj 239
- 469 1975 Mad. 379 Rajendrakumar v Poosammal, AIR
 : (1975) 2 Mad LJ 59.
- 470 AIR 1986 Ker. 149 Mani J Meenattoor v Amy Homi Colabawalla,
- 471 SCR 360 Durga Prasad v Deepchand, [1954]
 : AIR 1954 SC 75 :
 [1954] SCJ 23 ; A K Parvalhamlal v A Goundar, (1978) 1 Mad LJ
 196.
- 472 ILR 25 Basafaddi Sheikh v Enajaddi, (1898)
 Cal 298; Mehdi Husain v Jafar Khan, (1905) 8 OC 345; Muhammad Ibrahim v Nakched,
 (1910) 7 All LJ 752 : 6 IC 890; Raghava v Samachariar, (1914) Mad WN 57 : 22 IC 42; Kanshi Ram v Jaimal Singh,
 (1923) 6 Lah LJ 31 : 75 IC 562 : AIR 1923 Lah 590
- 473 LR 292 Vishvanath v Bala, (1916) 18 Bom
 : 34 IC 147; Harilal v Mulchand, (1928) ILR 52
 Bom 883 : 113 IC 27 : AIR 1928 Bom 427 ; Bapu v Kashiram,
 (1929) 31 Bom LR 658 : 119 IC 659 : AIR 1929 Bom
 361
- 474 ILR 16 Ram Chunder Dutt v Dwarkanath, (1889)
 Cal 330; Basaraddi Sheikh v Enajaddi, (1898) ILR 25
 Cal 298; Subbaroya v Rajagopala, (1915) ILR 38 Mad
 887 : 23 IC 470; Arunachala v Gurunatha, (1917) ILR 40 Mad 338 : 39 IC
 358; Mahomed Ali v Venkatapathi, (1920) 39 Mad LJ 449 : 60 IC 235; Lachman Das v Jawahar Singh, 70 IC 250 :
 AIR 1924 Lah 476 ; Bapu v Kashiram, (1929)
 31 Bom LR 658 : 119 IC 659 : AIR 1929 Bom 361
 ; Velayappa Rowthen v Bava Rowthen, 29 IC 747; Parasurma v Muthuswamy, (1925) 50 Mad LJ 100 : 91 IC 313 :

475	1923 All 169	Kali Din v Madho , 77 IC 862 : AIR
476	IC 889.	Kulla Mal v Umra , 61 IC 604; Sankaran Nair v Ramaswami , 27
477		Shaligram v Narain , 45 IC 669.
478	AIR 1929 All 837	Thomas v Hanuman Prasad , (1929) 27 All LJ 1122 : 122 IC 675 :
479	AIR 1932 All 553	Gobardhan Das v Afzal Husain , 138 IC 495 : (1932) All LJ 598 :
480	473 : AIR 1921 Mad. 277 Chidambara , (1916) 29 Mad LJ 454 : 31 IC 179.	Balagurumurthy v Ramakrishna , (1921) 41 Mad LJ 267 : 69 IC ; dissenting from Samu Pathan v
481	(1950) 52 Bom LR 614 :	Gulabchand Daulatram v Suryajirao , AIR 1950 Bom 401
482		L Dugar Mal v Gobind Saroop , AIR 1950 East Punj 74.
483	(1949) 51 Bom LR 47	Abraham Ezra Issac Mansoor v Abdul Mahomed Alibhai , AIR 1949 Bom 154
484		Chidambaram v Sivathasamy , (1905) 15 Mad LJ 396.
485	75 :	Kumaran v Kumaran , LNIND 2010 KER 747 AIR 2011 Ker.

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 486 5 SCC 531 : Shamsher Singh v Rajinder Kumar, (2015) AIR 2014 SC 2253 : 2016 (1) SCJ 35
- 487 ; Abdulla Khan v Abdur Rahman Beg, (1896) ILR 18 (1883) 11 QBD 255
All 322; Janga Venkata v Jamal Ahmed, (1915) 29 Mad LJ 122 : 29 IC 394; Delli Gramani v Ranachandran, (1952) ILR Mad 682 : (1951) 2 Mad LJ 611 : AIR 1953 Mad. 769 ; RN Dawar v Ganga Saran Dhama, AIR 1993 Del 19 , p 22.
- 488 32 . Palmer v Johnson, (1893) 12 QBD
- 489 Kishenlal v Kinloch, (1881) All WN 164.
- 490 Flight v Booth, (1834) 1 Bing NC 370.
- 491 \(1889\) 42 ChD 150 Re Fawcett and Homes' Contract, (1902) ILR 29 (CA); Administrator-General of Bengal v Aghore Nath, Cal 420; Hussonally v Tribhowandas, (1921) 25 Cal AIR 1921 PC 40
- 492 Hanuman v Hanuman, 18 IA 158.
- 493 Bom 750. Tulsiram v Murlidhar, (1902) ILR 26
- 494 Bom 593. Ardeshir v Vajesing, (1901) ILR 25
- 495 Subbaroya v Rajagopala, (1915) ILR 38
Mad 887 : 23 IC 570; Sankara v Kalathil, (1923) ILR 46
Mad 40 : 70 IC 787 : AIR 1923 Mad. 46 ; approved by the SC in Chettiar v Iyer, [1966] 3 SCR 608 : AIR
1967 SC 359 : [1966] 2 SCJ 711 .
- 496 Juscrun Boid v Pirthichand Lal, 46 IA 52; Bapu v Kashiram, (1929) 31 Bom LR 658 : 119 IC 659 : AIR 1929 Bom
361 ; Venkatanarasimhulu v Peramma, (1895) ILR 18
Mad 173; Venkatarama v Venkata, (1901) ILR 24 Mad 27.
- 497 Bom 538; Kashiram v Zabu, 136 IC 225 : Nursing v Pachu, (1913) ILR 37 AIR 1932 Ngp 5
- 498 ILR 49 Bom 596 : 89 IC 59 : Ganapat Putta v Hammad Saiba, (1925) AIR 1925 Bom 440
; Lalchand Nanchand v Narayan Hari, (1913) ILR 37 Bom 656 : 21 IC
315; Tricomdas Cooverji v Gopinathji Thakur, 44 IA 65 : 39 IC 156.

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 499 Krishnan v Kannan, (1896) ILR 21
 Mad 8; Muhammad Siddiq v Muhammad Nuh, (1930) ILR 52
 All 604 : 124 IC 185 : AIR 1930 All 771 .
- 500 Ganapa Putta v Hammad Saiba, (1925)
 ILR 49 Bom 596 : 89 IC 59 : AIR 1925 Bom 440
 ; Arunachala v Ramasami, (1915) ILR 38 Mad 1171 : 35 IC 618;
Injad Ali v Mohini, (1923) 27 Cal WN 1925 : 80 IC 623 : AIR 1924 Cal 148
 ; Krishnan v Kannan, (1898) ILR 21 Mad 8; Narayana Reddi v
Peda Rama, (1891) 1 Mad LJ 479.
- 501 Raju Malu v Krishna Ray, (1878) ILR 2
 Bom 273; Tulsiram v Murlidhar, (1902) ILR 26 Bom
 750; Dart on Vendors and Purchasers, 7th Edn, vol II, p 768.
- 502 Multanmal v Budhumal, (1921) ILR 45
 Bom 955 : 61 IC 70 : AIR 1921 Bom 255 ;
Lakhpatt Kuer v Durga Prasad, (1929) ILR 8 Pat 432 : 117 IC 654 :
 AIR 1929 Pat. 388 ; Muhammad Siddiq v Muhammad Nuh,
 (1930) ILR 52 All 604 : 124 IC 185 : AIR 1930 All 771
 ; Abdul Rahim v Kadu, 118 IC 203 : AIR 1930 Sau 12
 ; Chandrawatibai v Valabdas, 133 IC 76 : AIR 1931 Sau 141 .
- 503 Ramachandra v Tohfah, (1904) ILR 26
 All 519; Ram Jaggi Rai v Kauleshar Rai, (1908) ILR 30
 All 405; Mul Kunwar v Chattar Singh, (1908) ILR 30 All 402;
Hanwant Rai v Chandi Prasad, (1929) ILR 51 All 651 : 119 IC 243 :
 AIR 1929 All 293 ; Mangaladha v Gandamal, 120 IC 424 :
 AIR 1929 Lah 388 ; Ratanbai v Ghasiram, (1932) ILR 55
 Bom 565 : 134 IC 1157 : AIR 1932 Bom 36 .
- 504 Subramania v Saminatha, (1898) ILR 21
 Mad 69; Line v Stephenson, (1838) 4 Bing (NC) 678 : (1938) 5 Bing (NC) 183; Debbett v Atherton, (1872) LR 7 QB 316; Saraswatibai v Madhukar, (1950) ILR Nag
 467 : AIR 1950 Ngp 229 .
- 505 Mahomed Ali v Venkatapathi, (1920) 39 Mad LJ 449 : 60 IC 235;
Seaton v Mapp, (1846) 2 Coll 556; Page v Midland Rly, \(1894\) 1 ChD 11
 ; Digambar Das v Nishibala Debi, 8 IC 91; Gwasha Lal v Kartar Singh, AIR 1961 J&K 66 .
- 506 Kashirao v Zabu, 136 IC 225 : AIR
 1932 Ngp 5 .
- 507 Mahomed Ali Sheriff v Venkatapathi, (1920) 39 Mad CJ 449, p
 450; Nanhi v Ketki, (1932) 30 All LJ 69 : 136 IC 73 :
 AIR 1932 All 224 .
- 508 Cf Nagardas v Ahmed Khan, (1897)
 ILR 21 Bom 175.

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 509 Nathuni Sah v Satyanarain Prasad, (1961) ILR AP 11.
- 510 473 : AIR 1921 Mad. 277 Balagurumurthy v Ramakrishna, (1921) 41 Mad LJ 267 : 69 IC
- 511 Raghava v Samachariar, (1914) Mad WN 57 : 22 IC 42.
- 512 590 : AIR 1914 All 937 Ram Chander v Bhagwati, (1924) 22 All LJ 576, p 578 : 79 IC
- 513 Bhagwati v Banarsi Das, (1928) ILR 50
 All 371 : 55 IA 135, p 138 : 108 IC 687 : AIR 1928 PC 98
 ; Nanhi v Ketki, 136 IC 73 : 30 All LJ 69 : AIR 1932 All 224
 ; Nand Ram v Purshotam Das, 145 IC 615 : (1933) All LJ 201 : AIR 1933 All 203
- 514 All 337. Ghulam Jilani v Imdad, (1881) ILR 4
- 515 PR 111 : 4 IC 690; Sita Ram v Nanak Chand, 92 IC 313 : (1908)
 182 ; Kaliyan Singh v Fazal Din, 94 IC 1055 : AIR 1926 Lah
 ; Hanwant Rai v Chandi Prasad, (1929) ILR 51 AIR 1926 Lah 455
 : 119 IC 243 : AIR 1929 All 293 All 651
- 516 1933 Lah 522 Ishro v Naubat Rai, 146 IC 120 : AIR
- 517 AIR 1948 Ngp 382 Vishwanath v Deokabai, (1948) ILR Nag 50 :
- 518 AIR 1950 Mad. 621 Ramamurthi v Kuppasami, (1950) 1 Mad LJ 499 :
- 519 All 997 : 151 IC 826 : (1934) All LJ 645 : AIR 934 All 645. Maida v Kishan Bahadur, (1934) ILR 56
- 520 ILR 51 All 651 : 119 IC 243 : AIR 1929 All 293 (1929)
 ; Bapu v Kashiram, (1929) 31 Bom LR 658 : 119 IC 659 :
 AIR 1929 Bom 361 ; Ramayya v Kottayya, (1930) Mad WN 195 : 127 IC 617 :
 AIR 1930 Mad. 748 ; Abdul v Kisan, (1931) 29 Nag LR 392 : 136 IC 879 :
 AIR 1931 Ngp 166
- 521 David v Sabin, \(1893\) 1 ChD 523

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 522 Ecclesiastical Commissioner for England
\(1936\) 1 ChD 430  ; Drake v Gray, \(1936\) 1 ChD 451
 : [\[1936\] 1 All ER 363](#) ; White v Bijou Mansions
Ltd, \(1937\) 1 ChD 610  : [\[1938\] 1 All ER](#)
546 ; Marquess of Zetland v Driver, \(1939\) 1 ChD 1
 : [\[1938\] 2 All ER 158](#) .
- 523 Austin v Croome, (1842) Car & M 653.
- 524 Buckhurst (Lord) v Fenner, (1572) 1 Co Rep 1.
- 525 Bhavani v Devrao, (1887) ILR 11
 Bom 485; Re Williams and Newcastle's (Duchess) Contract, \(1897\)
2 ChD 144  , p 148 (the right to the deed would go with the land).
- 526 Re Duthy and Jesson, \(1898\) 1 ChD
419 .
- 527 Bhawani v Devrao, (1887) ILR 11
 Bom 485.
- 528 Ibid.
- 529 Shephard and Brown note that the English law is different, but the learned authors have been misled by Dart. See Dart on Vendors and Purchases, 8th Edn, p 607. The editors submit that the statement in the text is correct—see Dryden v Forst, (1938) 3 My & Cr 670, p 672.
- 530 Ma Hnit v Maung Po Pu, (1919) 31 Cal
 LJ 87 : 55 IC 791 (PC).
- 531 Griffiths v Hatchard, (1854) 1 K & J 17.
- 532 Re Lowe Capel v Lowe, (1901) 36 LJ 73
 ; Khanderao v Romer, AIR 1941 Bom 48
- 533 See note “Does not of itself create any interest,” above.
- 534 See B R Mulani v A B Aswathanarayana,
 AIR 1993 Kant. 257 , p 276 distinguishing Malikajappa Bhimappa Bennur v Bhimappa
Kashappa Parasannavar, AIR 1966 Mys 86 ; Shiddappa Adivappa
Jadi v Ramamaa, AIR 2002 Kant. 416 , p 422.
- 535 Subbaroyar v Kottaya, (1916) Mad WN 284 : 34 IC 737. This statement of law in this passage was approvingly referred in Kishanlal Soni v Chandrabala Devi,
 AIR 1990 AP 72 , p 74; National Insurance Co v Life Insurance Corp,
 AIR 1963 SC 1171 , p 1179.

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 536 possession is an implied agreement to pay interest”); Birch v Joy, (1852) 3 HLC 565, p 590; Binks v Rokeby, (Lord), (1818) 2 Swan 222, p 226; Plews v Samuel, (1904) 1 ChD 464; Muthia Chetty v Sinna, (1912) ILR 35 Mad 625, p 627 : 10 IC 662; Suryaprakasa Rao v Venkata Dikshitulu, 146 IC 317 : AIR 1933 Mad. 844 .
- 537 Ballard v Shutt, (1880) 15 ChD 122 .
- 538 Fludyer v Cocker, (1805) 12 Ves 25.
- 539 Ratanlal Choonilal v Municipal Commissioner, (1919) ILR 43 Bom 181 : 45 IA 233, p 245 : 48 IC 404; Pandurang v Mahadev, (1922) ILR 46 Bom 195 : 64 IC 492 : AIR 1922 Bom 186 ; Dinkar Rao v Ayub, 75 IC 889 : AIR 1923 Ngp 37 ; Malikajappa v Bhimappa, AIR 1966 Mys 86 .
- 540 Satinder Singh v Umrao Singh, [1961] 3 SCR 676 : AIR 1961 SC 908 ; Govindaraju v CIT, [1967] 3 SCR 653 : AIR 1968 SC 129 ; See also National Insurance Co v Life Insurance Corp, [1967] 2 SCJ 852 . See also National Insurance Co v Life Insurance Corp, AIR 1963 SC 1171 : p 1179.
- 541 State of Madras v Andhra Paper Mills Co, (1956) ILR AP 87 : AIR 1957 AP 34 .
- 542 Narasingerji v Panuganti, (1921) Mad WN 519 : AIR 1921 Mad. 498 : on app (1924) ILR 47 Mad 729 : 51 IA 305 : 82 IC 993 : AIR 1924 PC 226 ; Cf Powell v Martyr, (1803) 8 Ves 146; Pulliyadi Ellarayan v Nagendra, 42 IC 509. This statement of law in this passage was approvingly referred in Kishanlal Soni v Chandrabala Devi, AIR 1990 AP 72 , p 74; National Insurance Co v Life Insurance Corp, AIR 1963 SC 1171 , p 1179.
- 543 Subbaroyar v Kottaya, (1916) Mad WN 284 : 34 IC 737; Hari Prasad v Harihar, 70 IC 804 : AIR 1923 Pat. 205 ; cf Nilkamal v Sri Gunomani, (1871) 7 Beng LR 113 (PC).
- 544 Maung Shwe Goh v Maung Inn, (1917) ILR 44 Cal 542 : 44 IA 15 : 38 IC 938 (PC).
- 545 Vidhyadhar v Manikrao, (1999) 3 SCC 573 : AIR 1999 SC 1441 .
- 546 Somu Achari v Singara Achari, AIR 1945 Mad. 407 .
- 547 Nalamathu Venkaiya v B S Neelkanta, AIR 2005 AP 535 : (2005) 5 Andh LD 767 : (2005) 6 ALT 585 .

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 548 IC 980 : AIR 1941 Lah 10 Kesho Das v Jiwan, (1941) ILR Lah 568 : 43 Punj LR 450 : 195
- 549 2005 AP 260 : (2005) 2 Andh LD 862. B Rajamani v Azhar Sultana, AIR
- 550 AIR 1952 Cal 93 Rajaram v Chedda, (1951) 55 Cal WN 765 :
- 551 (1936) All LJ 915 : 38 Bom LR 760 : 40 CAL WN 1130 : 71 Mad LJ 347 : 163 IC 4 : AIR 1936 PC 204 Kocharlokota Venkata v Ravu Venkata Kumara, 63 IA 304 :
- 552 2011 SC 2521 : Janak Dulari Devi v Kapildeo Rai, (2011) 6 SCC 555 AIR
- 553 1956 AP 113 Subba Rao v Vesudevsasthy, AIR
- 554 1983 AP 49 Hema Bala Sundrai v P Sakuntala, AIR
- 555 AIR 1985 AP 200 Mungamuru Lakshmidewamma v Land Acquisition Officer,
- 556 AIR 2005 AP 535 585 : (2005) 5 Andh LD 767 : (2005) 6 ALT Nalamathu Venkaiya v B S Neelakanta,
- 557 (1964) ILR 1 Punj 143 : AIR 1964 Punj 123 Sohan Singh v State Bank of India,
 24 rel on Mela Ram & Sons v Ram Das Joshi & Sons, (1942) ILR
 Lah 17 : 44 Punj LR 415 : 203 IC 462 : AIR 1942 Lah 275
 . See, however, Dayal Das Chanan Das v Harkishan Singh, (1930) ILR 11 Lah 587 : AIR 1930 Lah 568
- 558 (1907) ILR 30 Mad 524; Velayutha v Govindasawmi, (1920) ILR
 43 Mad 712 : 56 IC 530. Krishnamma v Mali,
- 559 SCC 573 : Vidhyadhar v Manikrao, (1999) 3
 AIR 1999 SC 1441
- 560 23 Bom 525; Sagaji v Namdev, (1899) ILR
 30 Mad 524 : and Velayutha Chetty v Govindasawmi, (1907) ILR
 (1911) ILR 34

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- Mad 543 : 8 IC 364; Krishnamma v Mali, (1920) ILR 43 Mad
712; Raj Lingam v Somanna, AIR 1967 AP 7 .
- 561 43 Krishnamma v Mali, (1920) ILR
Mad 712 : 56 IC 530; Velayutha Chetty v Govindasawmi,
(1907) ILR 30 Mad 524; dissenting from Subramania Ayyar v Poovan,
(1904) ILR 27 Mad 28; Poomabai v Annamal,
AIR 1944 Mad. 124 .
- 562 11 Shib Lal v Bhagwan, (1888) ILR
All 244; followed in Bajinath v Paltu, (1908) ILR 30
All 125; Pran Dei v Sat Deo, 111 IC 761 : AIR 1929 All 85
; Dhuri v Kishun Prasad, (1965) ILR AP 29.
- 563 20 IC 325. Nilmadhab v Hara Proshad, (1913) 17 Cal WN 1161, p 1164 :
- 564 AIR 1933 Rang 401 U Tin v MPM Chettiyar Firm, 147 IC 742 :
.
- 565 56 Baslingava v Chimnaya, (1932) ILR
Bom 556 : 34 Bom LR 42 : 138 IC 534 : AIR 1932 Bom 247
distinguishing Kevaldas v Nagindas, (1909) 11 Bom LR
383 : 2 IC 429.
- 566 IC 169 : Sobhalal Shyamlal v Sidhlal Halkelal, (1939) ILR Nag 636 : 185
AIR 1939 Ngp 210 .
- 567 All 139 Peary Lal v Hub Lal, AIR 1945
- 568 Trimalrav v Municipal Commissioners,
172. Bansiram v Panchami Dasi, (1916) 20 Cal WN 638 : 35 IC 284;
(1879) ILR 3 Bom
- 569 AIR 1948 All 307 Kailasnath v Jyoti Prasad,
.
- 570 : (1953) 2 Mad LJ 504 : Vinaitheertha Thevar v Viswanatha Ayyar, (1954) ILR Mad 484
AIR 1954 Mad. 508 .
- 571 AIR 1934 Lah 348 Bhag Mal v Shiromani Gurudwara, 150 IC 725 :
.
- 572 AIR 1934 All 617 Mathura Prasad v Ram Sarup, 149 IC 304 :
.
- 573 Cal 57 : 30 IA 238. Webb v Macpherson, (1904) ILR 31

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 574 Meghraj v Abdullah, (1914) 12 All LJ 1034 : 25 IC 208; Gur Dayal v Karam Singh, (1916) ILR 38 All 254 : 35 IC 289; Rama Nana Bharti v Sheo Das, (1921) ILR 43 All 314 : 60 IC 933 : AIR 1921 All 54 ; Syed Hasan Bagar v Thakur Sheo Narain Singh, (1926) ILR 1 Luck 7 : 91 IC 917 : AIR 1926 Oudh 81 ; Alliance Bank of Simla v Walsh, (1883) PR 66 .
- 575 Umedmal Motiram v Davu, (1878) ILR 2 Bom 547.
- 576 Tehitram v Kashibai, (1909) ILR 33 Bom 53 : 1 IC 614.
- 577 Meghraj v Abdullah, (1914) 12 All LJ 1034 : 25 IC 208.
- 578 Muthia Chetty v Sinna Velliam, (1912) ILR 35 Mad 625 : 10 IC 662; Durai Swamy v Mohamed Abbas, AIR 1952 Mad. 678 ; Official Receiver, Salem v Chinna Goundan, (1957) 2 Mad LJ 414 : AIR 1957 Mad. 630 . See also Fldyer Cocker, (1805) 12 Ves 25, and other cases cited under note on section 55(4)(a).
- 579 Muhammad Siddiq v Muhaiwnad Nasrullah, (1899) ILR 21 All 223 : 26 IA 45.
- 580 Choakklinga Tambiran v Ramanandan, 97 IC 586 : AIR 1926 Mad. 1031 .
- 581 Hari Ram v Denaput Singh, (1883) ILR 9 Cal 167; Mela Ram & Sons v Ram Das Joshi & Sons, (1942) ILR 24 Lah 17 : AIR 1942 Lah 275 : 44 Punj LR 415 : 203 IC 462.
- 582 Moti Lal v Bhagwan Das, (1909) ILR 31 All 443 : 3 IC 497.
- 583 Tehilram v Kashibai, (1909) ILR 33 Bom 53 : 1 IC 614; Gur Dayal v Karam Singh, (1916) ILR 38 All 254 : 35 IC 289.
- 584 Virchand v Kumaji, (1894) ILR 18 Bom 48; Chunilal v Bai Jethi, (1898) ILR 22 All 454; Ramakrishna Ayyar v 846; Har Lal v Muhamdi, (1899) ILR 21 All 454; Ramakrishna Ayyar v Subramania, (1906) ILR 29 Mad 305; Munir-un-nissa v Akbar Khan, (1908) ILR 30 All 172; Meghraj v Abdullah, (1914) 12 All LJ 1034 : 25 IC 208; Kallu v Ram Das, (1928) 26 All LJ 53 : 107 IC 679 : AIR 1929 All 121 ; Gulzari Mal v Meghi Mal, (1933) ILR 14 Lah 380 : 141 IC 435 : AIR 1933 Lah 109 .
- 585 Ram Raghubir Singh Lal v United Refineries, 60 IA 183 : 64 Mad LJ 655 : 37 Cal WN 633 : 57 Cal LJ 308 : 35 Bom LR 753 : 1933 All LJ 541 : 142 IC 788 : AIR

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 1933 PC 143 ; Bajinath v Parmeshwari Dayal, (1934) ILR 10
 Luck 26 : 149 IC 529 : AIR 1934 Oudh 240 .
- 586 Gulzari Mal v Meghi Mal, (1933) ILR 14
 Lah 380 : 141 IC 435 : AIR 1933 Lah 109 ;
 dissenting from Raghubar Rai v Jai Rai, (1912) ILR 34 All 429.
- 587 Shah Lal Chand v Indarjit, (1900) ILR 22
 All 370 : 27 IA 93, p 97; see also Hukumchand v Hiralal, (1879) ILR 3
 Bom 159; Vasudeva v Narasamma, (1882) ILR 5
 Mad 6; Lala Himmat v Llewhellen, (1885) ILR 11 Cal 486; Chunni Bibi v
Basanti Bibi, (1914) ILR 36 All 537 : 24 IC 661; Lodd Govindoss v
Muthiah Chetty, (1925) 48 Mad LJ 721 : AIR 1925 Mad. 660 ; Irpan
Ali v Jogendra, (1932) ILR 59 Cal 1111 : 143 IC 241 :
 AIR 1932 Cal 708 .
- 588 Bai Devmani v Ravishankar, (1929)
 ILR 53 Bom 321 : 116 IC 236 : AIR 1929 Bom 147
 ; and see Raghavendra v Venkatasami, (1929) Mad WN 752 : 124 IC 277 :
 251 ; Goli Ramaswami v Naria Jagannadha Rao, AIR 1930 Mad.
 AIR 1962 AP 94 .
- 589 Webb v Macpherson, (1904) ILR 31
 Cal 57, p 73 : 30 IA 238.
- 590 Webb v Macpherson, (1908) ILR 31
 Cal 57 : 30 IA 238, p 245.
- 591 Sivasubramania Ayyar v Subramania Ayyar,
 (1916) ILR 39 Mad 997 : 37 IC 429; overruling Abdulla Beary v Mamhali Beary,
 (1910) ILR 33 Mad 446 : 5 IC 87 and Subramania Mudaliar v Gnana Sambanda,
 (1911) 21 Mad LJ 359 : 10 IC 98; Meghraj v Abdulla, (1914) 12 All LJ 1034 : 25 IC 208; Har Chand v Kishori Singh, 7
 IC 639; Kunchithapatham v Palamalai, (1917) 32 Mad LJ 347 : 39 IC 405; Alwar Chetty v Jagannatha, (1928) 54 Mad
 LJ 109 : 108 IC 291; Kesho Das v Jiwan, AIR 1941 Lah 10 : (1941)
 ILR Lah 568 : 43 Punj LR 450 : 195 IC 980; Mela Ram & Sons v Ram Das Joshi & Sons, ILR
 (1942) 24 Lah 17 : AIR 1942 Lah 275 : 44
 Punj LR 415 : 203 IC 462; Shankar Bala v Gotiram Pandurang, (1941) 43 Bom LR 1014
 : 199 IC 481 : AIR 1942 Bom 67 .
- 592 Daulat Ram v Inderjeet, (1933) ILR 8
 Luck 185 : 141 IC 468 : AIR 1933 Oudh 33
 ; Gangaram v Raghubans, (1948) ILR 27 Pat 898.
- 593 Webb v Macpherson, (1908) ILR 31
 Cal 57; Karuppiiah Pillai v T B Hari Row, (1911) 21 Mad LJ 849 : 11 IC 890.
- 594 Virchand v Kumaji, (1894) ILR 18
 Bom 48; Bashir Ahmad v Nazir, (1921) ILR 43 All 544
 : 63 IC 495 : AIR 1921 All 74 ; Ranganayaki v Parthasarathy, 54
 IC 503; Munayya v Krishnayya, (1925) 47 Mad LJ 737 : 84 IC 949 :
 AIR 1925 Mad. 215 .

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 595 Lakshmana Iyer v Sankaramoorthi, (1913) 25 Mad LJ 245 : 18 IC 199; Naima Khatun v Basant Singh, (1934) ILR 56 All 766 : (1934) All LJ 318 : 149 IC 781 : AIR 1934 All 406 ; Ahmad Ali v Raihan Raza, (1934) All LJ 682 : 148 IC 639 : AIR 1934 All 525 .
- 596 Vellayappa Chettiar v Narayana, 18 IC 81; Dayal Das v Harkishan Singh, (1930) ILR 11 Lah 587 : 125 IC 330 : ; Krishnaswami v Vijayaraghava, AIR 1939 Mad. 590 : (1939) 1 Mad LJ 344 : 49 Mad LW 597 : (1939) Mad WN 284; Somu Achari v Singara Achari, AIR 1945 Mad. 407 ; Dhanikachala Pillai v Raghava Reddiar, AIR 1962 Mad. 423 ; Sundaraja v Sakthi Talkies, (1966) 2 Mad LJ 161 : AIR 1967 Mad. 127 .
- 597 Swaminatha v Subbarama, (1927) ILR 50 Mad 548 : 100 IC 10 : AIR 1927 Mad. 219 .
- 598 Theyagaraja v Seshappier, 54 IC 458; Ramkrishna v Panchanmal, AIR 1939 Mad. 876 .
- 599 Krishnawami Iyengar v Subramania, (1918) 35 Mad LJ 304 : 44 IC 523; RMARS Chettyar Firm v Daw Ngwe, 153 IC 1026 : AIR 1934 Rang 190 .
- 600 Chandra Kesavalu v Perumal Chettiar, (1939) ILR Mad 437 : (1939) 1 Mad LJ 820 : 49 Mad LW 605 : AIR 1939 Mad. 722 .
- 601 Bashir Ahmad v Nazir, (1921) ILR 43 All 544 : 63 IC 495 : AIR 1921 All 74 .
- 602 Munayya v Krishnayya, (1925) 47 Mad LJ 737 : 84 IC 949 : AIR 1925 Mad. 215 .
- 603 Naima Khatun v Basant Singh, (1934) ILR 56 All 766 : 1934 All LJ 318 : 149 IC 781 : AIR 1934 All 406 ; Swaminatha Pillai v Parameswaram, AIR 1967 Ker. 195 .
- 604 Sivasubramania Ayyar v Subramania Ayyar, (1916) ILR 39 Mad 997 : 37 IC 429. .
- 605 Webb v Macpherson, (1908) ILR 31 Cal 57 : 30 IA 238. .
- 606 Morton v Woodfall, (1927) ILR 8 Lah 257 : 90 IC 770 : AIR 1927 Lah 103 ; Brentwood Brick and Coal Co, \(1876\) 4 ChD 562 .
- 607 Rajagopala v Ranganatha, 152 IC 375 : AIR 1934 Mad. 615 ; affirming Ranganatha v Rajagopala, 142 IC 730 : AIR 1933 Mad. 181 . See also note under section 8, "Debt Secured by a Charge".

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 608 ILR 48 Mad 821 : 90 IC 725 : Venkatacharyulu v Venkatasubba, (1925)
AIR 1926 Mad. 55
- 609 [1957] SCR 775 : Swaminathaudayar v Official Receiver of West Tanjore, [1957] SCJ 501 AIR 1957 SC 577
- 610 ILR 2 Ker 613 : Parvathi Amma v Makki Amma, (1961)
AIR 1962 Ker. 85
- 611 , p 235. Coaks v Boswell, \(1886\) 11 App Cas 232
- 612 Harvey, (1821) Jac 169, p 178. Fox v Mackreth; Pitt v Mackreth, (1788) 2 Bro CC 400; Turner v
- 613 Summers v Griffiths, (1866) 35 Beav 27.
- 614 Ellard v Landaff (Lord), (1810) 1 Ball & B 241.
- 615 205  See Turner v Green, \(1895\) 2 ChD
- 616 Bom 522, p 532. Haji Essa v Dayabhai, (1896) ILR 20
- 617 LJ 87 : 55 IC 791 (PC). Ma Hnit v Maung Po Pu, (1920) 31 Cal
- 618 ILR 52 All 901 : 130 IC 198 : Raghukul Tilak v Pitam Singh, (1931)
AIR 1931 All 99
- 619 AIR 1973 Pat. 386 Shiva Narain Sah v Baidya Nath Prasad Tiwary,
- 620 ILR 30 All 172, p 175; Ranganaya Kamma v SR Subudthi, (1908)
1955 Ori. 20 AIR
- 621 142 IC 83 : Mahtab Singh v Collector of Saharanpur, (1932) 30 All LJ 556 :
AIR 1932 All 454

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 622 (1899) ILR 21 Muhammad Siddiq v Muhammad Nasirullah,
Veerabhadrayya v Subbarayudu, All 223 : 26 IA 45; Badri Das v Jivan, (1912) 10 All LJ 480 : 15 IC 854;
 AIR 1942 Mad. 650 .
- 623 Ram Ratan Lal v Abdul Wahid, 81 IC 503; Subba Row v Varadiah, (1943) ILR Mad 885 : 56 Mad LW 199 : (1943) 1 Mad LJ 279 : AIR 1943 Mad. 482
 ; Satyanarayan Murthi v Sathiraju, AIR 1942 Mad. 525
 ; Ram Lal v Harihar Prasad, AIR 1955 Pat. 254 .
- 624 Ram Ratan Lal v Abdul Wahid, 18 IC 503.
- 625 See Pollock and Mulla's Contract Act, 8th Edn, p 767.
- 626 See note "Insured property" under section 49.
- 627 Gangi v Govinda, (1924) 46 Mad LJ 464 : 84 IC 626 :
 AIR 1924 Mad. 544 .
- 628 (1934) ILR 61 Bibhuti Bhushan Majmudar v Mujihar Rahmwi, 1934 Cal 842 Cal 956 : 38 Cal WN 971 : 153 IC 247 : AIR
- 629 See Waman Martand v Commr, CD
 (1925) ILR 49 Bom 73 : 26 Bom LR 942 : 84 IC 421 : AIR 1924 Bom
 524 where the rights and liabilities of the seller and buyer in a sale subject to encumbrances and in a sale free from encumbrances, were contrasted; cf as to court sales —Mangalathammal v Narayanaswamy, (1906) ILR 30 Mad 461.
- 630 (1909) ILR 31 Izzat-un-nissa Begam v Kunwar Pertab Singh,
 ILR Ker 321 : All 583 : 36 IA 203 : 3 IC 793; Kunjikavu Amma v Janaki Amma, (1957)
 AIR 1957 Ker. 98 .
- 631 (1909) ILR 31 Izzat-un-nissa Begam v Kunwar Pertab Singh,
 All 583.
- 632 (1907) ILR 30 Nollore Municipality v Dwarapally Kotamma,
 Mad 423.
- 633 Arunachella v Rangiah, (1906) ILR 29
 Mad 519.
- 634 Achuthan v Parameshwara, AIR 1951 Tr & Coch 195.
- 635 (2000) 10 SCC 130 Delhi Development Authority v Skipper Construction Co Pvt Ltd,
 573 : AIR 2000 SC
 ; see also Chettiar Firm v Chettiar, AIR 1941 PC 47
 : (1941) 11 AWR (PC) 664 : (1941) 54 LW 237.

55. Rights and Liabilities of buyer and seller.—

- 636 (2004) 3 SCC 711 Videocon Properties Ltd v Bhalchandra Laboratories,
: AIR 2004 SC 1787
- 637 AIR 2012 Ker. 87 Molly Ajithkumar v Vimala Sasidharan,
- 638 (2004) 3 SCC 711 Videocon Properties Ltd v Bhalchandra Laboratories,
: AIR 2004 SC 1787
- 639 311 : Asgar G Patel v UOI, (2000) 5 SCC
AIR 2000 SC 2222
